The New England Freedmen's Aid Commission (Baptist) acknowledges a donation of $1000 from Mrs. M. M. Carter of Wilmington, Mass.; the American Missionary Association for the freedmen, $500 from Hon. Gerritt Smith, of Peterboro, N. Y., and $1000 from "a friend of the freedmen" in Hampshire Co., Mass.

TERMS OF THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

The Young Pilgrim will be continued semi-monthly the ensuing year at the following rates:

For a single copy,—Fifty Cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, or any number of copies under fifty, when sent to one address,—Forty Cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number of copies over fifty, when sent to one address,—Thirty-five Cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers,—at the same rates, with no extra charge for American postage.

All subscriptions for the coming year must be made at the above rates.

We shall send the July numbers of the new volume to all of our present subscribers, and hope to hear from every one before the 1*st of August. After that, no more will be sent, except to those who have renewed their subscription.*

Clubs.

Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other name on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, 37 cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, 32 cents a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less that ten), from 12 to 21 cents a year on each copy.

Subscriptions may commence with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

All communications, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to the YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY.

The supply of these tracts is exhausted, and some who have ordered them will have to wait till more are obtained. They are expected every day.

N. B. Persons ordering will please notice the CHANGE IN PRICE. And those who have ordered at the old rates, and not yet received the tracts, will please send the difference, as the old price will not pay cost on the new lot.

For the World's Crisis.

ONLY A WORD.

"The night is far spent, the day is at hand; let us therefore put off the works of darkness, and put on the armor of light."

Paul gives us a description of the armor of the christian, and the order of our warfare. Besides this, putting on, holy and beloved, bowels of mercy, speaking kindly, walking prudently, and soberly, not in rioting, nor chambering, not in perverseness of mind; but with filial fear and loving gratitude; looking unto Him who will come, and will not delay past the appointed time, although it seems to tarry long.

I only write a word, to let you know I remember the brethren scattered up and down the land, who are of like precious faith, looking for the Lord, who, when he comes, will make the place of his feet glorious. May the Lord remember us, and refresh us by his Holy Spirit. Give all for Christ; he is over all. Yours in the Lord,

Colebrook, N. H. D. N. Chadsy.

For the World's Crisis.

CONFERENCE REPORT.

The East Maine Conference, appointed to be held at Brewer, commenced Friday, June 10th, at two P. M., by prayer and conference. Good interest. Saturday forenoon, preaching by Bro. Damman. Afternoon, preaching by Bro. I. K. Lombard. Evening, preaching by Bro. F. A. Baker. Sunday morning, conference. Preaching at ten, by Bro. I. K. Lombard. Afternoon, preaching by Bro. F. A. Baker, and in the evening by Bro. Damman.

At our business meeting, chose Brn. I. Smith and F. A. Baker a committee to designate the time and place for the next conference. We think our meeting proved a success.

M. Young, Clerk.

For the World's Crisis.

ARE THESE THINGS SO?

Is it indeed true that we are within a few years of the great and solemn event of the coming of the Lord? This question with all its solemnity is before us, and by a close study of the word of God and the signs of the times, and the events which are to precede the coming of Christ and the end of the world, I can but conclude that it is indeed true; that but a short time will intervene before the wheat and tares are separated; eternal life, God's precious gift, given to the saints of the Most High, who will possess the kingdom for ever and ever. Many who profess to be Adventists are opposed to the time of his coming as lately brought to view in the calculations of Bro. Thurman. To me all things seem to say that we shall soon see the Savior. Let us wait and see, if haply we be found not fighting against God, and in the mean time we should be diligently preparing for this solemn event; so that when He comes we may be found perfect and pure, ready to enter on life's endless joys. We have but a short time to prepare to dwell on the new earth, and to become citizens of the heavenly kingdom. I desire to help spread the glorious tidings of our soon coming King, by scattering tracts, and doing good as opportunity shall present; that when the Master comes I may have treasures laid up in heaven, and dwell with the saints in glory. Yours, believing in the soon coming of Jesus, Lewis H. Little.

Mechanicsville, Iowa.

Correspondence.

From Sr. E. L. Marsh.

Bro. Grant:—I am yet a pilgrim, sad and weary, journeying on through this vale of tears to the "rest" that is promised to all true believers, to those who love the Savior and his glorious appearing, who love to watch and pray. It seems strange that some professors should be so indifferent in regard to the coming of the blessed Savior. While he remains away we are surrounded by sin, sorrow, pain and death; no permanent peace; no promise of friends we so dearly love, one day or even an hour; we can place no dependence on anything earthly; everything is fading and transitory. Therefore I rejoice to hear the proclamation go forth, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh." In him are centered all my hopes and joy. Can there be any who sincerely love him, who do not love his appearing? I would say in earnest to those who say they are Jews and are not, Prepare to meet thy God. I believe his coming very near. The Savior is coming to remove the curse from this sin-burdened earth, and restore it to its primitive beauty, and give us peace and rest. Let us strive so to live, that at his appearing and kingdom we may be found clad in the spotless robes of his righteousness, and go forth to meet him with joy.

"O! that each in the day of his coming may say,
I have fought my way through,
I have finished the work thou didst give me to do."

God grant that it may be so with thy waiting few,—and they are few.

O! to see the worldliness manifested in professors of religion, even among ministers of the gospel. They preached the coming of the Savior near, but in words deny him. Do they not know that they are narrowly watched by the world, and bring a reproach on the cause of our blessed Master?

"Blow, watchmen, blow a certain sound,
For dark and dangerous is the night,
And daring scoffers thicken round,
The evil servants smite."

From your sister, waiting,

New Richmond, Pa. Emily L. Marsh.

From Bro. J. R. Preston.

Bro. Grant:—With pleasure I embrace the opportunity of saying to the dear brethren and sisters that I am still on the way to the kingdom. Though I have been somewhat hindered from the work I love most—preaching Jesus and the resurrection—by the necessity of preparing a home for my family, yet I have done what I could. During the winter I visited Chickasaw, and tried to preach the word to those who were willing to hear. Met Bro. H. H. James at Bro. Stearns', who assisted in preaching the glad tidings of the kingdom. Bro. Stearns' people are active workers in the vineyard. May the Lord bless them.

Next to Spring Lake, in company with Bro. James, where we had good meetings. Then to Boylan's Grove. Found the church in working order, and had some good meetings. Quite an interest prevails here. May the Lord bless them. On my way home I called at Marble Rock, where I was kindly received by Bro. L. G. Hiscox and family. Bro. H. has not been able to preach much for some time past, but hopes soon to enter more fully into the work. Tried to preach to an interesting audience in the evening, and on the next day returned to Floyd. I have preached once in two weeks in the Dudley settlement in Mitchell Co., and also at Floyd.

I believe most firmly that the kingdom of God is at hand, and hope to be one in that ransomed host who, robed in immortality, shall praise God forever. Yours in hope of eternal life, J. R. Preston.

Floyd, Iowa, April 20, 1865.

From Sr. S. P. Green.

Bro. Grant:—Amidst all my afflictions, care and pain, I am blest and comforted with the weekly visits of the heavenly messenger which kind Father is pleased to send to me. Comparatively few in this vicinity are privileged with the perusal of this best of all religious papers published in our land, the World's Crisis. Since about a year and a half five copies of the Crisis have been sent to this vicinity; when up to that time for several years only one copy, and that came to my address. I have been blest and comforted, enlightened and strengthened by these silent preachers, books, tracts and papers.

It is about thirteen years since I first saw the light emanating from God's book. Glory be to God, my mind has never been turned from the great and glorious truths contained therein. Have ever since been firm in the belief of the sleep of the dead until the resurrection, the destruction of the wicked, etc. etc., and the immediate coming of Christ. Sometimes I have had great reason to fear lest I should come short of a home in "Eden restored." I have been almost discouraged, and weary because of the roughness of the way. Plymouth has not been entirely forgotten, for He has sent his servants into this place occasionally, to proclaim speedy redemption to the captives, and destruction to those who are found on the left hand at last. I know that some good has been the result.

All thanks be to the great Giver of every good and perfect gift.

Brethren and friends, one and all, if some seeds have fallen on stony places, and the fowls of the air have devoured them, there have also some fallen into good ground, and will spring up and bear fruit, some a hundred, some sixty, and some thirty fold. I hope soon to share with you, dear pilgrims, the golden reward of the righteous. O, all ye who pray and find access at the throne of grace, remember me and my family.

Your sister, S. P. Green.
Plymouth, Vt.

From Sr. L. B. Weaver.

Bro. Grant:—I'm a weary, way-worn pilgrim and stranger in this vale of tears, and often sigh to be at rest in the everlasting kingdom of God, never more to suffer pain or disease again. Often does the day seem long and the nights dark and dreary, and I would gladly rest in the silent grave, there to slumber until the blessed Master shall appear to gather all his chosen ones home. O how sweet the sound of home falls on my weary ear, when pain and distress weigh so heavily upon my nearly worn-out body.

"How sweet to reflect on those joys that await me."

When trying to get a little sleep in the silent watches of the night, then the reward looks bright and blessed to me, and I earnestly pray "Thy kingdom come!" To one whose body is constantly racked with pain and distress, how sweet the prospect of rest; and when the tedious nights seem long and dreary, 'tis then I can look forth and cry,

"Watchman, tell me, does the morning
Of fair Zion seem to dawn?"

and it does seem as if it were soon to break forth in splendor upon our ravished eyes. O how it fills my aching heart with joy to know that the bright day is soon to burst forth. I earnestly long for that day to come when all our tears and sighs shall be gone, and all the dear afflicted ones that now are suffering from disease will have a body like Christ's, and never more have to pass wearisome days and sleepless nights, until life itself is a burden. O my dear sister sufferers, be patient a little while longer; yonder no pain can ever rack our bodies. Dear Sister "Chloe," God bless you, and bring us at last to the city of our God. There we'll meet to chant the heavenly anthems of redeeming love, and never fear the cruel hand of death and disease. Would that I could see you here in this world. You shall have my prayers, and will you not remember me at the throne of grace? Dear Savior, gather us home.

Luthera B. Weaver.

From Sr. J. M. Tuck.

Bro. Grant:—I have been a reader of the Crisis for a little more than two years, and I can say of a truth that I have received more benefit from it than from all the religious reading I ever had since I professed faith in Christ, which has been twenty-three years. I love the doctrines it advocates; they are truly meat in due season, and it is about all the truth we do get, living where we do not have the privilege of hearing the true gospel preached but occasionally; although we are surrounded by those who profess to teach the doctrines of Christ, and they tell us that when we die the soul or spirit goes to inhabit a house not made with hands, eternal, in the heavens; consequently there is no necessity for this old body being raised. But my hope is predicated on a future resurrection of the dead, when, if we are Christ's, these vile bodies will be made like his glorious body. What a glorious hope! It often cheers my heart while passing through this world of trial and sorrow. Destroy it, and my hope of a future life is gone.

We have been called to lay many of our loved ones away in the silent grave, but we hope to meet them again when Jesus comes to awake the sleeping millions who have long been slumbering in the dust. May the Lord help us to love his word, open our hearts to receive the truths therein contained, have our lamps trimmed and burning, and finally be saved in his everlasting kingdom. Your unworthy sister, J. M. Tuck.
Albion, Me.

From Sr. E. P. Beach.

Bro. Grant:—One year ago myself and husband were all in this place who believed in the blessed truths of the sleep of the dead and the destruction of the wicked; but now there are three Methodist brothers who openly advocate these precious truths; and others are searching to see if these things are so. My prayer by day and night is, that God in his infinite mercy would bring many more out of sectarian darkness into his glorious truth, and out of nature's darkness into the light and liberty of the gospel of peace. Pray for us, you who have access to the throne of grace, that God may pour out his Spirit in this place, and raise up a little band that shall have clean hands and pure hearts, watching, and, like Paul, loving the appearing of Jesus.

When I hear of the Lord's working, my heart is made glad. As we look about us, we see the harvest is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Let us pray the Father that he would raise up and send forth laborers into the field; and let us who have had but little of this world's goods, and but one talent, not think we can do nothing; we can lend our paper, and we can go to Jesus and ask him to bless its truths to their souls; and we can by the grace of God so live that those around us shall be constrained to acknowledge there is a reality in religion. And if our names should be cast out as evil, let us rejoice, being assured if we suffer with Him we shall reign with Him in his kingdom. Your sister in hope, Eliza P. Beach.

From Bro. C. F. Churchill.

Bro. Grant:—By the grace of God I hope to stem and outride the gathering storm, to gain the port of eternal joy and bliss beyond the mountain waves of life's tempestuous sea, where the wicked cease from troubling, and the toil-worn soul shall rest.

"The hope of living, reigning there,
Is all my hope against despair."

In a little while I hope to meet the dear ones where tears will never fall or heart be sad; where God's own soft hand shall wipe the tear from sorrow's streaming eye. Cheer up, ye waiting ones, our redemption draweth near. The Master will be here in a little while, and bring his reward with him,—glory, honor, immortality, eternal life; with an incorruptible inheritance in the everlasting kingdom for his faithful followers. May God grant me a share with all his faithful ones in his coming glory. C. F. Churchill.
Presque Isle, Me.

From Sr. L. E. Saulpaugh.

Bro. Grant:—My heart says, O Lord, keep the children in this time of peril, when wicked men and seducers are waxing worse and worse. May the dear saints of God ever keep so near their Redeemer, who bought them with his precious blood, that they may be saved from falling in with the last-day fables so cunningly devised by wicked men. May the Lord help us to trust in him, that like Mount Zion we may never be moved, but abide for ever.

Signs speak in thunder tones that the Captain of our salvation is near, and if we have kept the faith and laid hold on eternal life, he will bring us off victorious, to reign with him in the kingdom of God. And to us who are laying away our loved ones, how cheering the thought that they will come again from the land of the enemy to their own border, and we shall see them and know them,—a meeting that will never be saddened by the thought of parting. May this be the happy lot of us all. Your sister in Christ, L. E. Saulpaugh.
Goffstown Village, N. H.

From Bro. Wm. Crewdson.

Dear Brother:—I have much reason to be grateful to the unknown friend who sent me your most valuable paper, the Crisis; also for your exposition of the prophecies, as well as others of the brethren on the same subjects. I was of the opinion we were in the last days. In that opinion I stood alone, not knowing that such was the mind of any man. I thank God he ever turned my mind to the prophecies. May God send forth light and truth with speed and power to the ends of the earth. I have loaned the papers on all occasions when I thought good could be done. Many are beginning to be convinced there is some great event at hand. May the Lord enlighten the hearts of all who are searching for truth. I should have spent many a dull and lonely hour if it had not been for your Crisis, being old, and a cripple for twenty-five years. When I feel unable to purchase your paper and read your excellent books and tracts, my feelings are inexpressible; but, thank God, if I am not privileged to read them, others are, and that is some comfort to me. May they do great good wherever they are sent. Hoping we shall meet in the better kingdom, your Bro.,
Payson, Ill. Wm. Crewdson.

From Sr. A. A. Hill.

Bro. Grant:—I am not ashamed to give in my testimony on the side of the Lord. I love him, and he owns and blesses me every day. I have cast myself and all I have in his hands, believing that if I cast all my care upon him who careth for me, he will direct all things for my good. He has greatly increased not only my spiritual but also my bodily strength, in answer to prayer. What love our heavenly Father has for us! He is ever ready to lend a listening ear to our petitions, though they may be ever so humble, if they are offered in the right spirit. It is five months to-day since death entered our dwelling and took from me my dear husband. He sleeps sweetly in Jesus, which is my great consolation. "Whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth." Thank the Lord for the balm he ever has ready whenever he inflicts a wound. The grace of God assisting me, I hope to meet my husband, with the rest of the redeemed, in the kingdom of God, where trials, sickness and death will be felt no more.

"O Lord, forgive my errors past,
And help me live henceforth to thee;
Nor me from thy dear presence cast,
While tossed upon life's troubled sea.

"Mould every thought, desire and deed,
Conform me to thy holy will,
Impart to me the grace I need,
And with thy love my spirit fill."

Abby A. Hill.

From Sr. H. M. Duboy.

Bro. Grant:—I wish to say a few words to those who write for the Crisis. Would not Bro. Grant's task be a good deal easier, his burden lighter, if you would all pray more over the articles you send him for insertion? Do you always have the glory of God in view? Is it always your greatest desire to feed the flock of God, not only the strong, but also the lambs? Do you always aim to write in such a spirit as will lead sinners to Christ, and that all will feel when reading them like drawing nearer to God? Oh that we all might have more of that charity without which we are as "sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal."

Brethren and sisters, let us pray more for those who write for the Crisis, that they may always be led by the spirit of Christ; not forgetting to pray also for those who labor in the gospel. They have many trials and discouragements. Give them your prayers and sympathies, and may God sustain them.

I praise God for the light we have. I believe we are almost home. I want to see Jesus, my best friend, with all the saints, and greet them in the new earth. Let us be faithful. Your sister, Hannah M. Dubey.
Castle Rock, Minn.

Obituaries.

Foster. In Charlestown, April 24th, Dea. Gideon Foster, eighty-five years and eleven months.

Dea. Foster was a native of Andover, Mass. In the year 1800 he was baptized in Reading Pond. In 1820 he connected himself with the First Baptist church, Charlestown. In 1830 he was chosen deacon, which office he filled till his death. For many years he was keeper of the Charlestown almshouse. He was three times married; first, to Miss Tabitha Robbins, with whom for many years he attended upon Dr. Baldwin's meeting, in Boston. His second wife was Parmela Winn., of Burlington, Mass., a woman of rare qualities of mind and heart. In 1844 he was married to Mrs. Ruth Rose, who survives him, in deep affliction. He had ten children, several of whom live to mourn his loss and bless his memory. Dea. Foster was a genuine christian gentleman of the old school. He had a sensitive, sympathetic nature; he was cheerful, kind-hearted, charitable. He made many friends, and kept them. As an officer in the church he approached very nearly the God-given standard—"Likewise must the deacons be grave, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not greedy of filthy lucre, holding the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience." His personal piety was of that sincere, consistent, earnest type that wins universal commendation. He was a man of much prayer, and of strong faith in God. He walked with God in the flesh nearly sixty-four years, and now he is not, for God has taken him. "So he giveth his beloved sleep."—Com.

Jacobs. Fell asleep in South Windsor, Conn., May 1, 1865, after a short but severe illness, Jane Jacobs, aged eighteen years and two months.

This young sister for about a year past has had a presentiment that she would not live long, and the world seemed to lose its charms for her. She desired a better country, even an heavenly country. She had full possession of her reason till within a very short time of her death. She spoke much about Jesus and the world to come; bade her parents an affectionate farewell, and warned her sister to prepare to meet her in the kingdom. Bro. and Sr. Jacobs feel their loss much, but they mourn not as those who have no hope.

Bro. H. H. Dickinson spoke words of comfort and consolation from Job 14.

"Fond parents, forbear to complain
That the loved one has gone from your sight;
You soon shall behold her again,
With new and redoubled delight."

O. Loomis.

Ross. Died at Addison, Vt., June 28th, of consumption, Ella F., daughter of David T. and Mary Ross, aged seventeen years and eleven months.

Five years ago this summer she followed Christ in baptism, at the hands of the writer. She was comforted by the christian's hope amid all her trials, and Christ was so present with her that she was enabled to shout when dying, "Mother, I see Jesus! All glory, for me and you! I'm happy," leaving her parents and one sister to mourn, but not as those that have no hope. Sermon from Lam. 3: 33, by Rev. Mr. Walker. D. T. Ross.

Morey. Died in Atkinson, Me., May 4th, Christopher Morey, aged nearly eighty-eight years.

He was born in Ashford, Ct., in 1777; became interested in the subject of religion in early life; was a consistent, devoted and persevering member of the Methodist Episcopal church for over sixty years. He fell asleep in hope of a part in the "first resurrection." Thomas Smith.

Fletcher. Died in Hopeville, Conn., May 4, 1865, Mary L., wife of Orrin L. Fletcher, aged twenty-five years, eleven months and fourteen days.

She sleeps in Jesus.

Words of consolation were spoken by Bro. A. M. Higgins, from St. John 12: 24.

O. L. Fletcher.

Married.

In South Stukeley, C. E., May 13th, 1865, by Elder C. P. Dow, Mr. Leonard J. Kneeland and Miss Emily J. Anderson, both of Stukeley.

In Bolton, C. E., June 11th, 1865, by Elder C. P. Dow, Elder Levi Carter McKinstry and Miss Miriam Alexander, both of Barnston, C. E.

In Stanbridge, C. E., June 20th, 1865, by Elder C. P. Dow, Mr. Frederick Chambers, of Stanbridge, and Miss Paulina Rider, of Granby, C. E.

In Templeton, Mass., June 3d, by Rev. L. Salim, Mr. George Wheeler, of Templeton, and Miss Lydia A. Cook, of Athol, Mass.

At Groton, July 5th, by Daniel Needham, Esq., John Sawyer and Mrs. Frances B. Warner.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

From Northampton June 21st.

The Times says all the preparations connected with the final departure of the Atlantic cable are completed. The Great Eastern is expected to sail from Valentia on the 10th of July, and that telegraphic communication with America would be completed by the 20th.

Commercial treaties between the Zollverein and England and Belgium were agreed to in both Houses.

A Polish deputation had presented an address of condolence to the Emperor of Russia, who thanked them, but added that he and his successors would never tolerate a separation of Poland from Russia.

The negotiations between the Pope and the Italian Government had been obstructed by serious difficulties, and it was expected they would terminate without result.

A meeting had been held at Palermo for the purpose of protesting against the negotiations between the Italian and Roman Governments.

The treaty of commerce between France and Spain had been signed.

Advices of the 29th.

Marshal Canrobert has been appointed commander of the Army of Paris.

The Italian Government has rejected the terms proposed by the Pope for the settlement of the question of the Bishops, and negotiations have been broken off.

There is a ministerial crisis at Vienna. The Cabinet has resigned.

From Brazil.—A private letter to the Providence Journal, dated Rio de Janeiro, May 25th, gives us the following interesting information from Brazil:

Within a week after the Parliament met, the Chamber of Deputies unanimously passed the bill for establishing a steamship line with this country. The bill corresponds to that passed by our Congress. It was expected at the date of our letter that it would pass the Senate within three weeks. We may therefore hope that at last we shall have a regular line of good vessels plying between Brazil and New York, and securing for us a large part of the trade which now goes to Europe, and which we ought long ago to have obtained.

A large and intelligent party are agitating the question of Emancipation. Senator Silveira da Motta has with general approval brought in a bill prohibiting foreigners from buying slaves, and requiring those who now own them to liberate them within two years. A similar bill was rejected last year, but it is hoped that this may now pass.

Another Senator, the Viscount de Jequitinhonha, has introduced a bill providing for the emancipation in ten years of all slaves over twenty-five years of age, and for the complete abolition of slavery in fifteen years. It is not expected that it will at present pass. But the anti-slavery party is rapidly gaining ground. The books on emancipation which the Rev. James C. Fletcher took out with him, were eagerly sought and read. It is hardly possible that the abolition of slavery in the United States should not have a very marked influence in Brazil, especially if our commercial and social relations become more intimate.

Brazil, uniting with the Argentines and the Uruagayans, had commenced a cruel war against Paraguay. There are immense forces in the field on both sides, and hostilities are being carried on without mercy.

A third revolution has broken out in Bolivia, driving out the recently self-elected President. The revolutionists were marching on the city of Lapaz, and it was thought they would sack the city.

The revolution in Peru seems to be gaining ground. Gen. Cauzeo, the actual Vice President of Peru, has joined the rebels.

A revolution, headed by the ex-President Urbina, had broken out in Ecuador. The war steamer Guayas was captured by a number of armed men on board the steamer Washington, the latter vessel floating down alongside under pretense that the current carried her there. The commander of the Guayes was killed.

New York, June 28. Advices from Venezuala state that Gen. Falcon has entered upon the duties of his office as President. Gen. Filipe Mozano died at Caraccas on the 25th ult. It was said that Gen. Venanico Pulgar, a personal enemy of the President, had invaded a town on the Maracaibo coast, but was obliged to return to one of the States of Columbia.

The State of New Barcelona was still in disorder.

Troops continued to arrive at Havana from San Domingo.

Advices from Nassau state that the place was entirely deserted by the floating population acquired during the war in the United States.

Gen. Breckinridge was still in Havana, and counsels all his friends to throw themselves on the clemency of the President and ask for pardon, and probably intends to do so himself. He keeps very quiet.

Trade will commence with the Southern ports immediately after the 1st of July. Vessels are already advertised.

The Locust Plague.—The following letter gives an account of the plague of locusts in Syria:

"Maalka, May 18. I think you will be interested to hear about the swarms of locusts which have visited the whole of Palestine and the Lebanon, and which, I fear, will leave little food for man or beast. Early in last month the locusts first appeared, and in such myriads, that on looking through the telescope they seemed like a dense fall of snow, in huge yellow flakes, as far as the eye could reach, and continued for weeks to cover the whole land, with the exception of a small portion. We are very thankful that in our two little villages, and for a few miles round, no locusts alighted. Every evening the town crier used to go round and cry out: 'Men, women and children of Maalaka, you are to leave your work and go to drive away the locusts, and he who disobeys shall eat one hundred rods, sit twenty-four hours in prison and pay a fine.' By shouting and drumming, the people frighten away some of the swarm to hinder them from depositing eggs. Then, a fortnight later, a proclamation was issued that every individual must bring a measure of locusts' eggs to the Seraglio to be burnt, and those who could not gather must buy their share. So locusts eggs were sold at a high price, and finally burnt. The last thing ordered was the formation of little canals, into which the young larvæ (now hatched and eating voraciously,) might be chased and destroyed en masse. With all their efforts and orders from the Sultan, very few, comparatively, can be killed, and I fear the land will suffer grievously. The locusts have not come here for twenty years back, and their visit now is supposed to be owing to the very mild winter."

DOMESTIC.

Washington, July 6. Maj. Gen. Hancock repaired to the Arsenal at noon to-day and delivered the death warrants of Payne, Harrold, Atzerott and Mrs. Surratt to Maj. Gen. Hartsuff, who is in charge of the prisoners, when they together visited the condemned to inform them of the sentences pronounced and the time fixed for their execution. Payne was the first to whom the intelligence was communicated. It did not seem to take him by surprise, as doubtless he anticipated no other sentence and nerved himself accordingly. The other prisoners were more or less affected. Mrs. Surratt, particularly, sank under the dread announcement and pleaded for four days additional time to prepare herself for death.

All the prisoners will be attended by clergymen of their own designation. The scaffold has been erected in the south yard of the old penitentiary building, which is enclosed by a high brick wall. Coffins and burial clothes have already been prepared. Only a limited number of persons will be admitted to the scene.

The sentences of the conspirators who are to be imprisoned will be carried into immediate effect.

Washington, July 7. The execution of the four condemned conspirators, Payne, Atzerott, Harrold and Mrs. Surratt, took place at precisely twenty-two minutes past one o'clock in the presence of about one thousand spectators, all of whom (with the exception of about two hundred and fifty or three hundred) were officers and soldiers.

New York, July 7. The Tribune's Galveston correspondent, writing under date of the 20th ult., says that place was occupied by colored troops as provost guard. Gen. Gordon left on the 20th for Houston with a sufficient force to occupy that city.

Galveston is dreary and desolate. Loyalty does not manifest itself among the inhabitants. The impoverished people still cling to the idea of State rights and want to fly to the "Lone Star" once more.

There are more slaves in Texas than before the war, but the institution is waning and little effort is made to capture runaway negroes. There is a reign of terror in the interior, where the rebel soldiers are taking vengeance on rebel quartermasters and contractors.

☞ Among the papers of Jeff. Davis, recently captured, the Government discovered several documents of vital importance, determining the guilt and complicity of Jeff. Davis in the conspiracy plot. These documents are of such import as probably to determine the authorities in favor of the trial of Davis before a military commission upon the charge of assassination.

☞ Prince Napoleon appears by all accounts to be preparing for a long absence from France. His Pompeiian house in the Avenue Montaigne has been sold, and for some days past his yacht has been waiting at Havre in readiness for his departure. It may possibly, however, be delayed for a few days in consequence of the accident he has met with.

☞ A Catholic gentleman in England died recently. His son was in Rome and with the Pope when he received the news, so His Holiness telegraphed his benediction to the family of the deceased. This is the first instance in which blessings have been sent by telegraph.

☞ It is rumored that there will shortly be an interview between Victor Emmanuel and the Pope, and that Francis II. will then rid Rome of his presence and retire to Bohemia. This will be a severe blow to brigandage.

☞ The Italian papers are full of I meetings (they have adopted our word, and prefixed it with an Italian article), which are being held in all parts of the kingdom to protest against any compromise with Rome.

Notices.

To All Concerned.—Removal.

I have removed my business to a large and commodious office, 19 Lindall St., directly in the rear of the Boston Post Office, where I have a good assortment of tracts, new and old, Bible Students' Libraries, pamphlets, Sunday school books, etc., etc. Several new tracts are ready for the press, and it is hoped that other publications will follow in quick succession. All letters, orders and remittances designed for me, whether for Social Hymns, "Children's Hymns, Lyres, Bibles, Libraries, Concordances, Hebrew, Greek, or English, or any other books published by the Tract Societies or S. S. Unions, or others, in this country or England, which are of use to Bible students, should be directed to H. L. Hastings, Scriptural Tract Repository, No. 19 Lindall St., Boston, Mass.
July 10, 1865.

Wilbraham via. Rutland.

Who desires to go to Wilbraham campmeeting through Rutland? Let churches in Vermont ascertain about how many will go, that it may aid us in getting fare reduced clear through. Write to H. F. Carpenter, Rutland, Vt.

Campmeeting in Wallingford.

There will be a campmeeting on Wallingford Farms, Ct., commencing August 14th, and continuing over the following Sunday. Particulars hereafter. B. Hitchcock.

Notice.

I would say to the preaching brethren who are traveling this way, or feel it a duty to come here and preach the word, that there are a few yet left in Dover, N. H., who love Jesus and his coming, and we respectfully invite them to come this way, whether it be a week day evening, or on the Lord's day, and I will see that you have a place to preach. In behalf of the friends of Jesus,

Joseph Pinkham.

Tremont Grove and Campmeeting.

This meeting will be held upon the same ground as last year, one-half mile from the Tremont Depot, West Wareham, Mass., on the Old Colony and Cape Cod Railroad, thirty-five miles from Boston, and eighteen from New Bedford. It will commence July 25th, and continue over the Sabbath. We hope to greet the many we have met there before, and many more beside. Shall we not see many from Portsmouth, Concord, Lawrence, and from towns round about Boston? Encouraged by the blessings of God upon this meeting in the past, we expect a larger and a better one this year.

Preachers who may come in the name of the Lord will find a cordial welcome. We, however, assume no responsibilities save with such as are engaged. None are desired who come in their own name, or in the name of some strange doctrine. The objects of this meeting are to comfort and strengthen the saints, and save men "from the wrath to come."

H. Munger, for the Committee.

Notice.

The members of the African Female Mission Church of Peekskill, intend holding a Session or Convention of women at Peekskill, New York, commencing Friday, July 14th, to continue one week or more. Preaching through the day in the grove, and in the church evenings. All brethren and sisters are invited who are in favor of women laboring in the gospel, and will come and work for Jesus. We hope there will be a large gathering of laborers here, independent of party, sect or color. Come brethren and sisters, let us make one rally for the Lord.

The President of the Female Union Missionary Association will deliver the opening address. Subject, Mission Work. We expect female preachers from Philadelphia and elsewhere.

Mrs. Elizabeth Duffuls, M. D.,
New York, June 28. Superintendent.

Notice.

The Lord willing, we will hold a meeting at Findley's Lake, Chaut Co., N. Y., August 11th, in the evening. Also on Ripley Hill, near Bro. James Thorp's, Saturday and Sunday, 12th and 13th, as Bro. Thorp may appoint, and at the Sherwood schoolhouse, near Union Mills, the 14th, in the evening. Father and Mother Ongley will be with me, and assist in preaching the word.

John T. Ongley.

Dedication.

The Free Advent meeting-house at Lake Village will be dedicated July 22d, at ten o'clock A. M. Elds. M. Grant, T. W. Piper, and others, will be present. Meeting to continue over the Sabbath.

J. Knowles, for the brethren.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The fifth annual campmeeting will commence at Tremont, Tuesday, July 25th, and hold over the following Sabbath. The Committee will make arrangements for boarding. Bro. Hiram Munger will preside, arrange for the preaching, and give due notice of the same. By order of the Committee.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.
A. Decker....Sunday, July 16th
Hiram Munger....Sunday, July 23d

East Boston, at the Chapel, corner of London and Decatur Streets, Sunday, July 16th. Let there be a general gathering of the friends. H. L. Hastings.

Pittsfield, N. H., Saturday evening, July 29th, at 6½ o'clock, and over the following Lord's day.
Miles Grant.

Groton Junction, Mass., (Community Hall) Lord's day, July 16th. (Rom. 6: 5.) Wm. C. Thurman.

Springfield, Mass., (Barnes' Hall) Friday eve., July 14th
H. K. Flagg.

Portland, Me....July 23d and 30th
J. K. Bellows.

Windham Centre....Friday evening, July 14th
if there is a conveyance from Poland.
Portland....Sunday, July 16th
Biddeford....Monday evening, July 17th
Saybrook, N. H., (where Bro. Edmunds appoints), Tuesday evening, July 18th.
Lynn, Mass....Thursday evening, July 20th
South Reading....Friday evening, July 21st
Tremont camp-ground....Monday, July 24th
All letters to me must be directed Chicopee Falls, instead of Chicopee. Hiram Munger.

Bradford, N. H., (Pond meeting-house), Sabbath, July 16th.
Manchester, N. H....Sabbath, July 23d
T. M. Preble.

Lowell, Mass....Sunday, July 16th
J. T. Dixon.

Camps Mills, Ct....July 23d
Wallingford Farms, Ct....July 30th
B. Hitchcock.

Pittsfield....July 16th
Warner, (Waterloo school-house)....July 23d
Z. Ford.

Holderness, (Brick school-house)....Sunday, July 30th
Manchester....Sunday, August 6th
Nelson Hartshorn.

Conference in Dover school-house, Saturday, Aug. 5th at 3 P. M.
South Atkinson....Sunday, Aug. 6th
Sebec, Me., (school-house near Bro. Joshua Livermore's) Sunday, Aug. 13th. Thomas Smith.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine Ground), July 16th and 30th, and every two weeks after until further notice.
S. S. Mooney.

Dover, N. H., (in the old Court House), every Sabbath until further notice. T. M. Latham.

Hartland, Vt., (Dinsmore Hill)....July 16th
Danbury, N. H., (Town Hall)....July 23d
Concord, N. H....July 30th
Portsmouth, N. H....Aug. 6th
Worcester, Mass....Aug. 13th and 20th
J. Couch.

Vernon, Vt....Sunday, July 16th
Northfield Farms, Mass....Sunday, July 23d
North Adams....Sunday, July 30th
A. Mussey.

Rome, Me....Aug. 5th and 16th
H. B. Sevey.

Lawrence, Mass....Sunday, July 16th
Cheshire Street, Ct....Sunday, Aug. 6th
Wallingford Farms....Tuesday evening, Aug. 8th
Yalesville, Ct....Thursday evening, Aug. 10th
Plymouth Hollow....Friday evening, Aug. 11th
Northfield, (where Bro. Humphreville may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 13th. L. Boutell.

Warner, (Waterloo school-house), Sat. eve., and Sunday, July 15th and 16th. Love feast Sunday morning, at 9 o'clock; baptism in the afternoon.
Bradford, N. H., (at Israel Andrews), Saturday evening, July 22d; and Sunday, 23d, at Pond meeting-house. Love feast 9 A. M. Baptism P. M.
North Sutton, Saturday evening, July 29th, and at Israel Andrews' meeting-house Sunday, July 30th. Love feast 9 A. M.
Top of Kearsarge Mountain....Aug. 6th
John G. Hook.

Philadelphia, Pa....July 16th, 23d, and 30th
Rufus Wendell.

There will be preaching at the West Brick School-House, near Brimfield, Mass., Sunday, July 23d. Let there be a general attendance. Come, rally in the name of the Lord. S. S. Brewer.

Concord, N. H....Sunday, July 16th
North Chichester, N. H....July 23d
Brookfield, N. H., instead of Bro. Ross....July 30th
A. W. Sibley.

New Bedford....July 16th
J. S. White.

Livermore, Me....July 16th
Rome, Me....July 23d
L. L. Howard.

Athol....Sunday, July 16th
A. M. Higgins.

Lincolnville Centre, Me....Sunday, July 16th
Newburgh, (school-house near Joseph Smith's), Sunday, July 23d. Thomas Smith.

Bristol, Ct....Sunday, July 16th
Ira Morgan.

Bristol....Friday eve., July 14th
Cheshire Street....Sunday, July 16th
Yalesville....Monday eve., July 17th
Wallingford Farms....Tuesday eve., July 18th
New Britain....Wed. eve., July 19th
Hartford....Thurs. eve., July 20th
Warehouse Point....Friday eve., July 21st
Springfield, Mass....Sunday, July 23d
Palmer....Monday eve., July 24th
Clinton....Wed. eve., July 26th
Holden....Friday P. M., July 28th
Worcester....Sunday, July 30th
A. Ross.

Winchester (Stone school-house)....July 16th
West Hill, Ct....July 30th
Lovely Street....August 6th
H. Rockwell.

Plainfield, (Pond school-house)....Sunday, July 16th
Wm. J. Blanchard.

Biddeford....Sunday, July 16th
J. K. Bellows.

Carlisle....Sunday, July 16th
B. Spaulding.

Portsmouth....Sunday, July 16th
J. G. Smith.

Northwood Narrows....Sunday, July 16th
Lee....Sunday, July 23d
Dover....Sunday, July 30th
Kennebunkport, Me....Sunday, Aug. 8th
Benj. P. Manning.

West Poland, Me....Sunday, July 16th
And the five evenings previous as Bro. Libby may arrange. These appointments are given by the suggestion of Bro. Munger. A. Simpson.

Benedict school-house, Erie Co., N. Y., July 16th, at 10½ A. M.
Benedict school-house, Erie Co., N. Y., July 18th, at 10½ A. M.; and at Swift's Mills at 4 P. M.
C. F. Sweet.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

H. S. P.—Will send your letter when we next remit to him,—probably this month.
J. Wilcox—He is.
C. C. Johnson—Life of H. Munger all sold. Sent you Tracts on Infidelity instead.
Edwin A. Cole—Out of "Munger." Have sent you all in Tracts.
J. F. Boyd—Have sent you others instead of "Munger's Life," as they are all sold.

☞ Cash receipts are omitted this week. Will appear in our next.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By Mail—E Elliot, J Heady, D M Kinter, Mrs. C Samuel, C C Johnson, Mrs. J. D. Ellis, J F Boyd, A Mallory, G W Smith, A P Hyde, B C Snyder, F Butt, Mrs. F G Haskell, Mrs. L C Wheeler.
By Express—F H Burbank, T Smith.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

F S Bradford, F H Chamberlain, M D Wellcome, G Dillabaugh, B Spaulding, J C Perkins, J. A. S., J Lyle, I C Wellcome, Asa Rogers, H M Bryant, J J Austin, L Southwick, J T Kimball, T M Preble, G Hull, G W Burnham, D W Griffin, H M Fisher, H S Paine, H C Ames, C B Turner, E S Willard.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

H. L. Hastings—Scriptural Tract Repository, 19 Lindall Street, Boston, Mass. Rear of the Boston P. O.
B. Spaulding—Chelmsford, Mass.
F. H. Burbank—S. W. Cor. 7th and Spring Garden Streets, Philadelphia, Penn.
R. J. Whitehead—Warren, Ct.
C. Goodrich—No. 2 Central Square, East Boston, Mass.
Bro. Wm. C. Thurman's address for the present is Boston, Mass., Box 292, care of Miles Grant.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
H. F. Carpenter—Rutland, Vt.
Mrs. Walter Pratt—No. 4 Poplar Place, Boston, Mass.
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.

Maine Second Advent Tract Society.

S. K. Partridge, R. R. York, I. C. Wellcome,
Board of Managers.
I. C. Wellcome, Secretary and Business Agent.
Isaac Wight, Treasurer.

It was voted that all orders for tracts and books for distribution by this Society be addressed to the Agent, I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me., who will supply them as fast as the means are furnished.

All our ministers will receive subscriptions for the Tract Fund, and they purpose to raise $200, or more, for free distribution in Maine this year.

I. C. Wellcome, Agent.

Agency for Maine.

Having been solicited to take the agency for Maine of Bro. Himes' "New Chart of Daniel and John," I would say to any and all in Maine who wish it, I am prepared to furnish it at the regular retail price, $5.00, and to preachers (or others who wish them to sell) at a liberal discount. Address orders to I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me.

Notice.

Elder Thomas Smith, Bangor, Me., has on hand for sale H. L. Hastings' "Signs of the Times," with an assortment of his various Tracts; also, the Tracts by Miles Grant, on "The Soul," "The Spirit, and "What is Man?" and other Advent tracts.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The Emphatic Diaglott: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library; with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

Christian Baptism: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid; $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

Rahab the Harlot. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

Dictionary of the Holy Bible, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

Why the Shoe Pinches. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

The Scriptural Question Book. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

Canon of the Holy Scriptures examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

The Great Symbolic Chart of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

Glad Tidings; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts.; postage, 2 cts.

The taking of Human Life incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

Death not Life; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 2 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

The Mission of Suffering. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 5c, postage 2c.

Thurman's Bible Chronology, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

Muller's Life of Trust. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

Diphtheria: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. Price, 10 cts.; by mail, 12 cts.

The Syriac New Testament. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. Price $2.50. Postage 36 cts.

Non-Resistance; or, the Spirit of Christianity restored. By W. C. Thurman. Price 20 cts.; postage 4 cts.

Chloe Lankton; or, Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75 cents. By mail, 87 cts.

Glad Voices; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty-five or less.

Fables of Infidelity and Facts of Faith. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.00.

Likeness of Wm. Miller, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1. I don't believe in Religion....12 pp., 3c.
2. Did the World make itself?....16 pp., 4c.
3. Is God Everybody, and Everybody God?..16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible?....24 pp., 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament?....16 pp., 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?....16 pp., 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his Apostles?..16 pp., 4c.
8. Prophecy....32 pp., 5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets....28 pp., 5c.
10. Infidelity among the Stars....28 pp., 5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise....36 pp., 5c.
12. Telescopic Views of Scripture....32 pp., 5c.
13. Science, or Faith?....32 pp., 5c.

For the Set, (making 304 pp.)....40c. postpaid.

For a greater quantity.

By mail, 800 pp....$1.00.
By express, 1000 pp....$1.00.

Address all orders to Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home....16 pp.
2. Life Insurance....16 pp
3. Lost! Lost!....8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet?....8 pp.
5. About God (for children)....4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing....4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ....4 pp.
8. Now....4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent. postpaid—
One set (64 pp.)....6 c.
1300 pp....$1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid)....$1.00
Address all orders to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

ENGLISH BIBLES.

Sent by mail, postpaid, at the following prices:—

Diamond,	morocco, gilt, marginal references,	$1.75
"	roan,	1.10
"	roan, " brass rims and clasps,	1.70
"	calf colored edges, marg. ref.,	1.35
Pearl,	morocco, gilt, reference between verses,	2.40
"	morocco " circuit bind., marg. ref.,	3.20
"	roan, " reference between verses,	1.75
"	roan, " rims and clasps, marg. ref.,	2.00
Nonpareil,	morocco, gilt, circuit bind', marg. ref.,	3.80
"	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.00
Minion,	morocco, gilt, without references,	2.40
"	roan, " without references,	1.90
"	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.50
"	calf, marbled edges, without ref.,	2.15

Address all orders, with the money, to
MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

THE BIBLE STUDENT'S LIBRARY.

In five volumes (68 pp. each.)

For the set—{By express—cloth, $4.00; paper, $2.00. / By mail—cloth, $4.00; paper, $2.50. [illegible]}

Single Copy—cloth, $1.00; paper, 50 cts. [illegible]

I. Signs of the Times; or, a Glance at Christendom as it is. [illegible] By H. L. Hastings.

II. The Voice of the Church on the Coming and Kingdom of the Redeemer; or, a History of the Doctrine of the Reign of Christ on Earth. [illegible] By D. T. Taylor.

III. Thessalonica, or The Model Church; a Sketch of Primitive Christianity; and REASONS FOR MY HOPE. [illegible] By H. L. Hastings; and SPIRITUALISM A SATANIC DELUSION, by Wm. Ramsey, D.D.

IV. The Great Controversy between God and MAN; its Origin, Progress, and End. [illegible]

V. Future Punishment, as taught in the Scriptures; [illegible]

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to
MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Rev. T. Covey. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton, "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments.

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture, [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England, [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, embracing the Scripture argument against fighting, and the testimonies of the Primitive Church. By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. By M. Hall. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 18th chap. of Isaiah, showing its application to the United States of America in the present conflict, and end of the dispensation. By G. E. Fuzell. [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. After the manner of Bunyan. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, the kingdom of Satan, the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ; or a view of this world as it was, as it is, and as it is to be. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, as comprehended in the Scriptures of truth. By C. F. Sweet. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the promised Messiah. By Mrs. Mary A. Seymour. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. [illegible] By Phineas A. Smith. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for preparing all the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated Health Institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. This is a valuable work, and should be read by all the young. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 14, in connection with Dan. 12: 11-13. By H. K. Flagg. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.00.
By Express—1800 pages for $1.00.
Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; postage, 2 cents. Free to the poor.

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers. 36 pages.
The Saints' Inheritance....48 "
The New Heavens and New Earth....24 "
The Voice of Warning....24 "
The Advent at Hand....24 "
The Last Days....24 "
The Church not in Darkness....24 "
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one)....24 "
Outline of the Coast of Man....8 "

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State....24 pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead....24 "
Ghostology....48 "
Man's Future State....12 "
The Key of Truth....12 "

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved....24 pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment....12 "
Future Punishment Destruction....12 "
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts)....12 "
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Lost 24 "
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary....24 "
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality....12 "

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one)....36 pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one)....36 "
One Thing....12 "
Judson's Letter on Dress....12 "
Duty of Christians (a peace tract)....24 "
Leaflets for Letters,—6 cents per set.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. [illegible] Single, by mail, 12 cts.

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. [illegible] Single, by mail, 10 cts.

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, [illegible] Single, by mail, 10 cts.

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible] Single, by mail, 15 cts.

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. This is written with a desire to impart instruction upon the Kingdom of God, Matt. 11: 12; [illegible] Single, by mail, 10 cts.

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7.—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." [illegible] Single, by mail, 8 cts.

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" History of False Christs, Earthquakes, Famines, Pestilences, [illegible] Single, by mail, 15 cts.

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the Signs in the Sun, in the Moon, and in the Stars; [illegible] Single, by mail, 25 cts.

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. Price 4 cts., postage 2 cts.

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; [illegible] Single, 8 cts.; by mail, 10 cts.

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, revised, and enlarged. Price 8 cts. By mail, 8 cts.; per dozen, by mail, 65 cts.

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25 [illegible]

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C F. Hudson. A most learned and valuable work, exhibiting great candor, ability, and research, containing quotations from some four hundred writers of all ages and languages, [illegible] 1 vol. 12 mo., pp. 482, price $1.50—post paid.

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. 160 pp. In cloth, 75c. Paper, 40c.

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. Cloth, 60c. Paper, 40c. With the following and Mr. H.'s other Tracts, 325 pages in all, $1.00.

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. From Sir James Stephen, with notes. 5c., postage 2c. $1.00 per 100.

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. 6c., postage 2c. $2.25 per 100.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. 6c., postage 2c. $2.75 per 100.

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? With a Reply to Dr. Mansel. 6c., postage 2c. $2.75 per 100.

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to articles in the Quarterlies, January, April, and September, 1859, and April and October, 1862. (Price 10c, postage 2c.)

Blain's Tracts.

Price.—1 cent for every 8 pages; postage, 2 cents on every package of 150 pages, or less.

Endless Misery not a Bible Doctrine....32 pages.
The Wicked not Immortal (with 200 proof-texts)....16 "
Bible Meaning of the word Hell....16 "
Bible Meaning of Forever and Everlasting....16 "
Smoke of Torment and Unquenchable Fire Explained....8 "
Rev. John Foster's Letter on Future Punishment....8 "

For the World's Crisis.

I WOULD LIKE TO LIVE WHEN JESUS COMES.

"But the thoughts of the coming of the Lord are most sweet and joyful to me, so that if I were but sure that I should live to see it, and that the trumpet should sound, and the dead should arise, and the Lord appear before the period of my age, it would be the joyfullest tidings in the world."—Richard Baxter, 1670.

I would like to live when Jesus comes
To gather home his chosen ones,
To see the city of my God
Descending from his blest abode:
O! I would live when Jesus comes
To gather up his ransomed ones.

To see Her with his glory crowned,
By angels borne and circled round;
To hear the shout—The Bridegroom's come!
And rise to greet him on his throne.
Yes, I would live when Jesus comes
To gather up his ransomed ones.

To see the righteous dead come forth,
From east and west, from south and north,
And hear their shout from shore to shore,
O grave, thy victory now is o'er!
O! I would live when Jesus comes
To gather up his ransomed ones;

And hear the living pilgrim ones
Cry out, "Behold, behold He comes;
Lord Jesus, come, O, quickly come,
And take thy waiting watchers home!"
O! could I live when Jesus comes
To gather up his ransomed ones.

And then the change, as "twinkling eye,"
The gift of life, no more to die;
The catching up, the friends restored,
And "so forever with the Lord."
O! I would live when Jesus comes
To gather up his ransomed ones.

To see the haughty scorner quail,
The persecutor's proud heart fail;
The fear, the trembling, the dismay,
The rending rocks, the fiery spray;
Yes, I would live when Jesus comes
To gather up his ransomed ones.

The heavens as a parchment scroll,
The earth in flaming billows roll;
The pride of man, his darling world,
In winding-sheet of flame is furled.
O! let me live when Jesus comes
To gather up his ransomed ones.

And then to hail the glorious dawn
Of heavens new—a world re-born;
A fragrant earth, new Eden bowers,
The tree of life, unfading flowers;
Yes, I would live when Jesus comes,
To gather up his ransomed ones.

In crucible of flame refined,
The air with perfumed zephyrs twined,
The sealess* earth, the sunless† sky,
The host of saints with tearless eye;
O! I would live when Jesus comes
To gather up his ransomed ones.

Milwaukee, Wis. GEO. THOMSON.

* Rev. 21: 1. † Rev. 21: 23.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE.

NUMBER THIRTEEN.

My Dear Sister:—There are very many who take the same view of this subject as does friend B. They cannot believe that justification and sanctification are two separate and distinct works. "Are we sanctified wholly when we are justified?" is a question that has been much discussed. But what christian can not readily reply, from the knowledge derived from their own experience, in the negative? Who, after the experience of regenerating grace, resulting in a state of justification before God, has not afterward found to their sorrow that there was still the workings within of the carnal mind, of evil tendencies? Who has not been convicted, after obtaining pardon, of a deeper work, a more perfect cleansing of the heart?

Justification relates particularly to past transgressions. The cry of the awakened sinner is not for purity, but for pardon. "Pardon my iniquities, O Lord, for I have sinned against thee." The justified soul longs for holiness; to be made pure. The language of such is, "Create within me a clean heart, O God, and renew a right spirit within me." And not only can they adopt this language of the pious David, but also that which follows: "Then shall I teach transgressors thy ways, and sinners shall be converted unto thee."

This is usually the motive that urges the believer on to the attainment of this grace,—that they may thereby be fitted for the work of God, prepared to teach transgressors the way of life so effectively as to result in their conversion to God. It was this more than anything else that induced your friend to seek with all her heart for the attainment of "perfect love."

The first week of my conversion, I was convicted for holiness. It was just as distinctly presented before me as a definite object, as was justification. Not by the minister, not by the membership, for all were silent to me in regard to it; not to my knowledge did one profess it; but the Spirit of God convicted me, and I sent a note to a young friend just converted, stating my feelings, and inviting her to unite with me in seeking for the blessing.

A few words of instruction at that time from one who understood the way, would no doubt have resulted in my immediate experience of this grace. Had the church felt as did Paul in regard to the converts at Ephesus when he inquired of them, "Have ye received the Holy Ghost since ye believed?" I should immediately upon my conversion have been directed to seek for the baptism of the Spirit, as that which was essential to "establish me unblameable in holiness before God," and impart power to labor in the vineyard with success.

Receiving no aid in this direction, I failed to attain until two years subsequent. The light had increased; my obligations to be holy were more deeply realized, and at the commencement of a series of meetings, I decided not to rest until I had that which I felt I so much needed to enable me to engage with so much earnestness and success in efforts for others. As soon as all of my interest was concentrated to that one point, and all the breathings of my soul were for purity, I began to feel worse and worse. I asked for the Spirit's deep heart-searchings, and was answered. My convictions when a condemned sinner were not so great for pardon, as was now my convictions for entire sanctification. That was the distinct object before me, and for its attainment my soul was almost in an agony.

More and more clearly shone the light, revealing inward depravity to an extent unthought of. I felt as though the more I sought for purity, the more vile I became. When tempted to discouragement on account of it, I was strengthened by the consideration that it was in answer to my petition for the searchings and illuminations of the Spirit that I was enabled to see my before hidden, but now manifest depravity, and the remedy was provided in the all-cleansing blood of Christ.

Again and again I presented myself a living sacrifice on the altar, and tried, oh so hard, to believe the offering acceptable, and the blood efficacious for me. With every effort, every agonizing supplication for the accomplishment of the work, I seemed to be further removed from the object sought.

My distress deepened. Thoughts like these intruded: "It is unjust in God to withhold from me that which I desire above every thing else. I have sought with all my heart; I have consecrated all; I have believed just as well as I know how; I have done all that I can do on my part, and still the blessing is withheld. It is of no use to seek more; it is not for me." I did not however yield to these suggestions, but resolved to pray once more, and then the case would be decided. I remained at home from the meeting, in order to have a season of uninterrupted devotion.

I resolved to pray long and earnestly, if need be, and then, if victory did not crown the effort, I would yield the contest. I knelt for prayer, but remained in silence before God. I was dumb; I opened not my mouth. Then the tempter said, Your case is hopeless; God will not even permit you to pray. I arose in sadness, and sat down. Then a cry was inspired in my heart, "O God, why cannot I receive the blessing now? Show me the hindrance." A reply came distinct in its utterances to the mental ear, "You have been trusting too much in your own efforts." With the voice came light. I saw very perceptibly my error. Yes, I had been doing much—struggling hard, laboring earnestly, and making great efforts to lay hold upon the blessing. All had failed.

Again the voice gently whispered to my heart. It was a promise now from Jesus, "I will pray the Father for you." Now faith sprang up. "I have tried to pray, but failed. Jesus says, I will pray for you; Jesus can not pray in vain. I will trust in Jesus." There was no effort in this, but a calm, quiet resting on the words of promise.

In a moment the blessing came. It was instantaneous in its effect, and the testimony of the Spirit was clearly distinct in its reception. It did not testify of pardon, but of purity. It was not a renewal of previous grace received and lost, but the grace of "perfect love." Such an inflowing of peace, and love, and joy, I never before received. Not with loud expressions, but calmly and sweetly my heart went forth in words of praise to Him who had redeemed me from all iniquity, and purified me unto himself, to be from henceforth one of his peculiar people, zealous of good works.

Such was my experience twenty-three years ago, and it is in harmony with that of others who, after being made partakers of justifying and regenerating grace, have been convicted for a higher state, and sought for a distinct blessing, and obtained a definite experience of the same. They are widely different from the exercises preceding and attendant upon conversion, and the being reclaimed from a backslidden state; and to this fact there are thousands who can testify.

I have more I wish to say on this point, but must defer to a future letter.

Yours truly, M. D. W.

For the World's Crisis.

THOUGHTS ON THE DAY OF JUDGMENT.

Let us endeavor to realize the majesty and terror of the universal alarm on the final Judgment Day, when the dead are sleeping in the silent grave; when the living are thoughtless and unapprehensive of the great event, or intent on other pursuits; some of them asleep in the dead of night; some of them dissolved in sensual pleasures, eating and drinking, marrying and giving in marriage; some of them planning or executing schemes for riches or honors; some in the very act of sin; the generality stupid and careless about the concerns of eternity, and the dreadful day just at hand; and a few here and there conversing with their God, and looking for the glorious appearance of their Lord and Savior; when the course of nature runs on uniform and regular as usual, and infidel scoffers are taking umbrage from thence to ask, "Where is the promise of his coming?" in short, when there are no more visible appearances of this approaching day than of the destruction of Sodom, on that clear morning in which Lot fled away; or of the deluge, when Noah entered into the ark.

Then, in that hour of unapprehensive security, suddenly shall the heavens open over the astonished world; then shall the alarming clangor break over their heads like a clap of thunder in a clear sky Immediately the living turn their gazing eyes upon the amazing scene; some hear the long-expected sound with rapture, and lift up their heads with joy, assured that the day of their redemption is come; while the thoughtless are struck with the wildest horror and consternation. In the same instant the sound reaches all the mansions of the dead; and in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, they are raised, and the living are changed. This call will be as animating to all the sons of men, as that call to a single person, "Lazarus, come forth."

O! what a surprise will this be to the thoughtless world. Should this alarm burst over our heads this moment, into what a terror would it strike many, even some that are saying by their actions, Stand by; I am holier than thou. Such will be the terror, such the consternation, when it actually comes to pass. Sinners will be the same timorous, self-condemned creatures then as they are now. Then they will not be able to stop their ears, who are deaf to all the gentler calls of the gospel now. Then the trump of God will constrain them to hear and fear, to whom the ministers of Christ now preach in vain. Then they must all hear; for "all that are in the graves," all, without exception, "shall hear his voice." Now the voice of mercy calls, reason pleads, conscience warns; but multitudes will not hear. This is a voice which must reach every one of the millions of mankind, and not one of them will be able to stop his ears. Infants and giants, kings and subjects, all ranks, all ages of mankind shall hear the call.

The living shall start and be changed, and the dead rise at the sound. The dust that was once alive and formed a human body, whether it flies in the air, floats in the ocean, or vegetates on earth, shall hear the new-creating fiat; wherever the fragments of the human frame are scattered, this all-penetrating call shall reach and speak them into life. This summons shall speak through every corner of the universe; heaven, earth, and all their inhabitants, shall hear and obey.

Now, methinks I see, I hear the earth heaving, charnel houses rattling, tombs bursting, graves opening. Now the nations under ground begin to stir. There is a noise and a shaking among the dry bones. The dust is all alive, and in motion, and the globe breaks and trembles, as with an earthquake, while this vast army is working its way through, and bursting into life, the ruins of human bodies are scattered far and wide, and have passed through many and surprising transformations. A limb in one country, and another in another; here the head, and there the trunk; and the ocean rolling between. And now, at the sound of the trumpet, they shall all be collected, wherever they were scattered; all properly sorted and united, however they were confused; atom to its fellow atom, bone to its fellow bone; now methinks you may see the air darkened with fragments of bodies, flying from place to place, to meet and join their proper parts.

"Scattered limbs and all
The various bones obsequious to the call,
Self-moved, advance; the neck perhaps to meet
The distant head, the distant legs, the feet.
Dreadful to view, see through the dusky sky
Fragments of bodies in confusion fly,
To distant regions journeying, there to claim
Deserted members, and complete the frame.
The severed heel and trunk shall join once more,
Though realms now rise between, and oceans roar.
The trumpet's sound each vagrant mote shall hear,
Or fixed in earth, or if afloat in air,
Obey the signal, wafted in the wind,
And not one sleeping atom lay behind."

SARAH H. DUNN.

THE FREEDMEN.

The following extract, which we take from the statement of one of the Secretaries of the American Missionary Association, at its late annual meeting in this city, will give the reader some idea of the work which has been done for the freedmen by that Association the past year, the work which yet remains to be done, and the agencies which are to do it, if done at all. W. B. H.

THE WORK AMONG THE FREEDMEN.

Our great work among the freedmen has increased in magnitude and importance with every movement of our armies, and every new development of Providence. The march of our soldiers into the rebel country has liberated multitudes and brought them within our reach. Their first want is always food and clothing; the former is generally given them by government, the latter by this, and other benevolent associations and persons, in the North. The fall of Savannah, Charleston, Wilmington, Richmond and other places opened the way to reach increasing thousands with instruction in letters and religion, and schools were early opened in all those places.

The association has had within the year more than two hundred and fifty teachers and missionaries in this field in Washington, D. C., Maryland, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida in the East, and Missouri, Kansas, (Cairo,) Illinois, Kentucky, Tennessee, Arkansas, Mississippi and Louisiana, in the West, and among the soldiers in the different districts. They have ministered to the necessities of the people in the supply of their temporal wants, instructed them in letters and religion, counselled them in the discharge of the duties of their new relations as freemen, husbands, fathers, brothers, sons and citizens; aided in the reconstruction of their churches on the basis of freedom, in securing the rights and privileges assured to them by presidential proclamation, or congressional action, and in protecting them from the hostility of despoiled masters; and with all sought to guide them in the way of salvation, faith in Christ, and holy obedience to his commandments.

The work has been successful; all classes, children and youth, the aged and the soldier, have been found apt to learn, and eager for instruction; laborers are willing to work industriously on lands purchased by them, or set apart for them, or under the stimulus of wages. The marriage relation is regarded with increased sanctity, and growth in christian life promoted. In all their labors the missionary character of our work has been kept prominent by the public ministry of the word, and the personal efforts of teachers to impart Bible truth, and lead the people to Christ.

In this we have been greatly aided by the American Bible Society, which has with a noble generosity seconded all our efforts by making to us large grants of Bibles, according to the fullest wants of the people.

The cash disbursements reported at our annual meeting in October last were about one hundred and forty thousand dollars, of which one hundred thousand dollars was for freedmen. The cash receipts for the first eight months of this fiscal year are seventy-six thousand five hundred dollars, ($77,500,) against seventy-four thousand dollars for the corresponding time last year. The cash expenditures for the freedmen for the same time are about fifty-two thousand dollars, and the aggregate amount of clothing sent about two thousand barrels.

WHAT REMAINS TO BE DONE.

In the work for the freedmen, what has been done is of less importance than what remains to be done, minute details of past operations may therefore give place to a brief outline of present and immediate demands. The crisis period of the freedmen has just been reached. Of the liberty assured to them by the President or Congress, the majority are yet to be put in possession; hundreds of thousands still remain on the lands of rebel masters, compelled to work without wages, or be driven out utterly destitute. In some States and districts their freedom is not yet even promised. Returning, but not repentant, rebel masters, exasperated by defeat, regarding the slave as in some measure the cause of their disasters, and finding the best of them in the armies of their conquerors, are ready, in many instances, to wreak upon defenceless women and children, the rage which they find impotent towards the government.

In some districts these people find no redress: they are between the upper and nether millstones, in danger of being ground to powder, and for a season must inevitably suffer. Their voices may not be heard in courts of justice, they have no part in reconstructing State governments, and even loyal Southern States are framing enactments to bind heavy burdens on them, which will make their pretended liberty a solemn, hideous farce. These things occur at the time of their greatest destitution. Tens of thousands of them are dismissed in single States, from single departments of government labor, and they know not where to look for employment.

THE BUREAU FOR FREEDMEN.

But, just at this point, the freedmen have cause for thanksgiving. Government has come to their aid; a Bureau has been established under the immediate care of a Christian General, their true friend, who is gathering men of like spirit to his aid, and they will do all in their power to right the wrongs of the freedmen, and secure for them the blessings of personal and civil liberty. The work of this Bureau is an immense one, and will demand the co-operation of the benevolent. Physical wants are to be supplied, the helpless and orphans are to be provided for, labor is to be organized, farming and other implements and stock are to be secured, means of education to be furnished, and, to say nothing of the millions of poor white refugees to be cared for, the political, intellectual and moral regeneration of nearly four millions of colored men is to be sought through their agency and agencies co-operating with them. This is to be done amid hostile influences, on lands snatched from rebel masters, by means to be created from confiscated rebel property, and in direct antagonism to all the former laws and usages of the States.

The Bureau should have the countenance and support of all Christians and philanthropists. Government should immediately place in their hands all the abandoned and confiscated lands needful for the accomplishment of their purposes. All property belonging to the department of freedmen, all reserved funds, and all the undistributed product of the freedmen's labor. This being done, charitable supplies of bodily wants may soon cease. The freedmen will become self-supporting.

The control of all freedmen should pass immediately from post and department military commanders to the Bureau. They should be encouraged to ask from government in behalf of the colored men under their care, equal rights on the witness stand, in the jury room, and at the ballot box; and that no reconstructed State goverment should be suffered to exercise authority over them or adjudicate concerning their interests, until these rights are secured.

They should be encouraged to provide for all the colored people of the South free schools, under competent teachers, and should receive the cordial co-operation of the benevolent of the North in this work. There are at least a million of colored youth to be taught in common schools; nearly as many adults eager to be taught in night and Sabbath schools, and more than one hundred thousand of colored soldiers for whom instruction should be provided.

Government, through the Bureau, by the use of abandoned or confiscated rebel property, should provide buildings and apparatus for schools, and houses, transportation and rations for the teachers; but most of the teachers must be from the North, and for a time the most of their salaries be paid by the North. Twenty thousand such teachers will be needed; at moderate rates their salaries would amount to from three to five millions of dollars per year. A great sum, and impossible, if added to the other burdens of the Bureau, though but a fraction compared with the voluntary contributions of the benevolent for the army and navy, a tax from which they are soon to be relieved.

CHRISTIANS MUST HELP.

The moral and religious regeneration of the South must be sought largely through the colored people. The removal of the direst evils engendered and entailed upon them by slavery, comes into the category of religious and missionary work, and must not be left on the hands of government alone, however favorably disposed. It belongs to the Christianity of the country, and must be done through its benevolent and missionary organizations, or it will not be done at all.

Let Christians and philanthropists estimate the cost and value of this work, its necessity to the freedom, prosperity and unity of our country. Let them through their own chosen organizations co-operate in it to the extent of their ability and their duty, and secure for their holy and benevolent purposes the services of men and women of high intellectual, moral and religious culture, and its prosperity will be sure.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.

'Twas night, and darkness veiled the skies,
Nor moon nor stars their light displayed;
Those peerless orbs had closed their eyes
In misty clouds of darkest shade.

All nature wrapped in darkened gloom,
No voice was heard, nor pleasing sound;
The earth seemed like a spacious tomb,
And solemn silence reigned profound.

I strayed among the sleeping dead,
(A solemn and impressive place);
I viewed the dark and silent bed
Of those enshrined in death's embrace.

I thought of death's long, dreary night,
Which slumbering mortals pass alone;
They hear no sound, they see no light,
"Alike unknowing and unknown."

But, lo! a voice within my breast
Said, Mourn not for thy kindred dear,
For in the grave their souls must rest
Till Christ in triumph shall appear.

The trump of God shall shortly sound,
And these shall spring to life again,
With immortality be crowned,
No more to suffer death or pain.

With joy I'll hail the glorious day
When the redeemed shall wake to sing
In loudest praise, in sweetest lay,
Hosanna to our glorious King.

No more to part, we there shall rove
O'er Eden's plains restored in bloom,
And sing and shout redeeming love,
No more to sigh o'er Nature's gloom.

Carthage, Me. C. BROWN.

THY KINGDOM COME.

Some time ago, I met at the house of a christian friend, a Mrs. B., when the substance of our conversation was much as follows:

"Do you know," said I, "whether your sins are forgiven?"

"I cannot say anything about that, sir," she replied; "but I follow my church regularly, and we have an excellent minister."

"But what a mercy it is," I said, "that God does not answer your prayers!"

"Why, sir, I cannot see that. Pray, what do you mean?"

I replied, "Do you not, every time you go to church, frequently say, 'Thy kingdom come?' Have you ever considered that when his kingdom comes, Christ will punish the unconverted with everlasting destruction? Are you not, therefore, in saying 'Thy kingdom come,' asking the Lord to visit you with everlasting destruction? Let us look at the first chapter of the second epistle to the Thessalonians. It is there written, 'The Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ: who shall be punished with everlasting destruction from the presence of the Lord, and from the glory of his power; when he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be admired in all them that believe.' Now if you knew God the Savior of sinners, as revealed in the death of his beloved Son, and obeyed the gospel of remission of sins through faith in his blood, you might then, with propriety say, 'Thy kingdom come,' and anticipate the answer to your petition with joy; but for any who have not obeyed the gospel to offer such a prayer, what is it but asking the Lord Jesus to come in flaming fire, to take vengeance upon them?"

"It is, indeed, very solemn," said Mrs. B. "I confess I never thought so much of the meaning of these words before."

After this I did not see Mrs. B. for several days, perhaps a fortnight. When I met her again, I recognized a countenance that bespoke much exercise of mind. "Oh, sir," said she, "I have not been able to say those words since I saw you last. I always stop when I come to 'Thy kingdom come.' I feel, sir, I am such a sinner. I am very unhappy. What can I do? Do you think there is any hope of such a sinner being saved?"

"It is well," I replied, "that you have discovered your mistake before it became too late; and I thank God for making you in any measure sensible of your real condition before him. Be assured that you will find rest and peace, only in believing the record which God has given of his Son. As to doing anything to save your soul, you can do nothing. Eph. 2: 8, 9; Luke 7: 42. It is because of our entirely depraved and helpless condition, that God has provided an all-sufficient and everlasting salvation, through the blood of his beloved Son. The work of salvation is God's work; and he has accomplished it in the death and resurrection of Jesus; and the blessing of it will be yours, not by doing but by believing. Rom. 5: 4–10. Hence it is written, 'God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life.' John 3: 16. Take God at his word, and you will be happy; Rom. 15: 13; 5: 1; for he justifies from all things all that believe in Jesus." Acts 13: 39. "If," I continued, "a person pays you a Bank of England note, you never doubt that the promise written on it will be fulfilled; and therefore you consider it as valuable as gold. And will you give less credit to God's promise, who says, 'Whosoever believeth in Jesus shall not perish, but have everlasting life'"? It pleased God, soon after, to enable Mrs. B. to lay hold of his own sure promises, and to find peace in believing. To him be all the praise!

Dear Reader! Christ is quickly coming. Are you reconciled to God by the death of Jesus? or does the Searcher of hearts behold you still an unpardoned sinner in his sight? Christ crucified for sinners is the only way of salvation. His blood can wash you from all your sins. He can clothe you in the righteousness of God. He can intercede for you in heaven. He can present you without spot to God. Then will you not now believe and be saved?

"Was ever equal pity found!
The Prince of life resigns his breath,
And pours his blood upon the ground,
To ransom guilty worms from death."

—Tract.

IMPROVEMENTS IN PALESTINE.

Much is going the rounds of the press on this subject. The expressions used, we fear, have also conveyed to many minds much more exalted ideas than the facts will warrant. We have recently read, and have had sent us for republication, accounts of the rebuilding of Jerusalem, the widening and beautifying of its streets, of a railroad to be built from Jaffa to Damascus, via Jerusalem, with branches to Bethlehem, Hebron, Nazareth, etc., of carriages driven by steam to be put upon the new French road (the only proper road in all Syria) from Beirout to Damascus, of great waterworks to be put up at Dog River to supply Beirout, of a harbor to be constructed at Jaffa at a cost of $1,500,000, and of the establishment of great cotton factories, universities of learning, and printing-presses at various points, of the knitting together of all sections of Syria by lines of telegraph, etc., etc. All this looks large upon paper, and is well fitted to entertain those whose eyes are towards that country, as well for its accomplished past as its predicted future; but there is not one item in all this parade but must be taken with great allowance, if people have any wish to get at the truth. We left Palestine but a few months ago, having made a complete tour of the land, and spent days and weeks in its principal cities; we, therefore, profess to have a little acquaintance with the facts.

There are, indeed, some new buildings being erected in Jerusalem; among others, one by Louis Napoleon, on the site of the old church of St. Ann, near St. Stephen's Gate. And it may be, that some rickety incumbrances of the cramped, narrow and filthy streets have recently been torn away by the Pasha's order. Outside the walls, westward, the Russians have also erected some fine substantial buildings, for the accommodation of their monks, schools and pilgrims. But, as to any general renovation of the holy city, there are no signs. Permits and promises from the Pasha are easily enough obtained; but neither Mahometan, Jewish, or Christian enterprise and energy are vigorous enough there as yet to warrant any such assertions or hopes as those of a general renewal of that nest of discomfort, poverty and dilapidation.

As to the proposed railroad, there were two applications for a Firman from Constantinople for it; the one by an English company, the other by a certain Dr. Zimpel. We are not sure, whether either, neither or both of these applications have been granted; or, if granted, that there is any reliable prospect of having either of the proposed plans soon carried into effect. As to Dr. Zimpel, Dr. Barclay says, "This very learned, excellent and benevolent brother, albeit somewhat eccentric, whom I had the happiness of baptizing in the Jordan about twelve years ago, has been spending many months and much money, too, endeavoring to procure a concession from the Sultan for this purpose." Some say he has succeeded in securing the Firman. But a much more vital element of the scheme needs yet to be secured; to wit, some five or six millions of dollars, according to his own estimate. And as Jaffa is without a harbor, and Jerusalem almost destitute of trade, we anticipate some delay in the execution of these proposals.

A telegraph has, indeed, been established from Beirout to Nablus and Jaffa, and also between Beirout and Damascus. In some sections, also, cotton has been planted and grown, but the product has been small, and the means of manufacturing it into forms for use are of a very limited and primitive sort. Waterworks and steam-carriages are mere fancies as yet in that country. Damascus has been watered from time immemorial by the natural flow of the "Abana" through it, but it will be after this when the waters of Lycus flow in the streets of Beirout, or when newspapers are distributed in the villages of Palestine. The Sultan, who refuses to allow wharves and landings to be built in Constantinople, though at no expense to him, is hardly the man to encourage the building of costly harbors and breakwaters for the benefit of his refractory Arabs.

But a still greater hindrance to improvements in Palestine, is the jealousy between the great European powers. Whoever holds Syria, including Palestine and Egypt, must inevitably control the East. Hence, one power looks upon the movements of the other, in that region, with suspicion, and plies itself to defeat every scheme of which it has not the control. The Church of the Holy Sepulchre, for example, is now almost roofless, but it cannot be repaired, because one party will not allow the other to do it, lest a claim should be set up of having more right to it than the rest. A country which requires a Congress of nations to repair a church-roof, is not in a condition very rapidly to improve. There must come revolutions first. Let France, however, have the control or dictatorship, and more than what are now but dreams, will be speedily made realities; but only then. Meanwhile, the city of David, and Solomon, and the Temple, even the City of the Great King, continues to mourn under the foot of the alien.
—Dr. Seiss.

☞ A fine coat may cover a fool, but never conceals one.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

BREAD AND BREAD-MAKING.

As by common consent bread is the "staff of life," the question naturally arises, "what are the best methods of making it?" The common white flour fermented bread, which is so universally used, is very far from being the best as an article of diet. The use of fine or bolted flour, has opened upon community a perfect "Pandora's Box" of evils in the shape of constipation and the ten thousand ailments to which it gives rise. By the separation of the bran from the flour, not only a portion of the grain necessary to the proper distension of the stomach and bowels is removed, but it has been repeatedly proved by chemical analysis that the bran is as rich, or richer, in nutritious substances than the flour.

These are not merely the "notions" of "hair-brained," "bran-bread "crazy fanatics!" but FACTS which commend themselves to the common sense of all who will investigate, which have been proved by the experience of thousands, and which have been demonstrated by the highest scientific authorities, a few of which we quote:

Dr. Johnson, M. A., F. R. S., F. G. S., etc., in his "Chemistry of Common Life," says: "The bran or husk of wheat, which is separated from the fine flour in the mill, and is often condemned to humbler uses, is somewhat more nutritious than either the grain as a whole, or the whiter part of the flour. The nutritive quality of any variety of grain depends very much upon the proportion of gluten it contains; and the proportions of this in the whole grain, the bran and the fine flour respectively, of the same sample of wheat, are very nearly as follows—whole grain, 12 pr. ct.; whole bran, (outer and inner skins,) 18 pr. ct.; fine flour, 10 pr. ct.

If the grain, as a whole, contain more than twelve per cent. of gluten, the bran and the flour will also contain more than is above represented, and in a like proportion. The whole meal obtained by simply grinding the grain is equally nutritious with the grain itself. By sifting out the bran, we render the meal less nutritious, weight for weight; and when we consider that the bran is rarely less and is sometimes considerably more than one-fourth of the whole weight of the grain, we must see that the total separation of the covering of the grain causes much waste of wholesome human food. Bread made from the whole meal is, therefore, more nutritious; and as many persons find it a more salutary food than white bread, it ought to be more generally preferred and used."

Prof. Youmans, author of the standard works on "Chemistry," "Household Science," "Chemical Chart," etc., says: "The grain of which bread is made consists mostly of starch, gluten, and sugar. The ligneous husk of grain produces the bran, while the flour is formed by the interior white portions. The gluten is tougher and more difficult to grind than the starch, hence the finest and whitest flour, obtained by repeated siftings, contains a larger proportion of starch, the darker colored flour being richer in gluten; and as the nutritive properties of flour are in proportion to the nitrogenized element (gluten,) the latter will make the most nutritious bread."

The "Eclectic Review," in an article entitled "Frauds in Foods," says: "Many of the most important elements of our blood, brain and bone are found in the greatest abundance in the colored, outer part of the wheat, which we deem fittest for pigs; so we fatten them and suffer ourselves. The difference in nourishing properties between whole meal and flour and very finely dressed flour amounts, in many cases, to fully one-third."

Dr. Bennett says: "Now, if there is a well established fact emanating from chemical analysis, it is this: That superfine or very finely bolted wheat flour will not alone sustain animal life. This fact has been repeatedly demonstrated by Magendi, the greatest physiologist that ever lived. Having ascertained that the muscular and nervous tissues, including the whole brain or cerebral mass, was composed of nitrogenous matter, he readily concluded that starch, or the fecula of wheat, would not alone sustain animal life, for the reason that it contains not a particle of nitrogenous matter. Consequently, he found by experiment, that animals fed exclusively on very finely dressed flour, died in a few weeks, whereas those fed on the unbolted thrived."

Dr. John Ellis, Professor of the Principles and Practice of Medicine, says: "The worst case of scurvy I ever had to treat, occurred in a little girl five or six years old, who had lived entirely upon toast made of superfine flour."

We might quote many more, but these must suffice.

The second objection to the common method of bread-making is the fermenting process to which it is subjected. Fermentation, as all persons at all conversant with chemistry know, is, as described by Professor Johnson,

"The consequence of a peculiar action which yeast exercises upon moist flour. It first changes a portion of the starch of the flour into sugar, and then converts this sugar into alcohol and carbonic acid, in the same way as it does when it is added to the worts of the brewer or the distiller. As the gas cannot escape from the glutinous dough, it collects within in large bubbles, and makes it swell, till the heat of the oven kills the yeast plant, and causes the fermentation to cease."

Prof. Youmans says: "If the fermentation proceeds too far, the dough becomes sour; that is, the vinous passes into the acetous fermentation, the alcohol changes to vinegar."

Who would think of taking a half-decayed apple or potato, and subjecting it to the action of heat to stay the process of putrefaction, and then placing it before human beings as food? And yet this is precisely what is done by fermentation. Take a common bread "sponge," as it is called. Let it remain thirty-six hours longer than usual, and what is the result?—a sour, almost putrid mass. This process of putrefaction commences the moment the yeast is added to moist flour, and is only checked by the action of heat.

Baker's bread is often still more objectionable, from the fact that an inferior aaticle of flour is used which is disguised by the introduction of alum and other chemicals.

Soda and saleratus, in all their forms, are decidedly injurious, and when introduced into bread, biscuit, and other articles of food, are a prolific source of disease.

Having demonstrated the effects of bad management of it, we will consider what are the best materials and the best methods of preparing and cooking them.

Bread, to be the most wholesome and palatable, should contain but two ingredients—unbolted flour from the best quality of wheat or other grain, and pure water. The following, so far as we know, are the preferable methods of making it, arranged in the order of their respective merits:

UNLEAVENED BREAD.

No. 1. Gems.—Into cold water stir Graham flour sufficient to make a batter a trifle thicker than that used for ordinary griddle cakes. Bake in a hot oven in small tin patty pans two inches square, and three fourths o an inch deep.

NOTE.—This makes delicious bread. No definite rule as to the proportions of flour and water can be given, owing to the difference in the absorbing properties of various brands of flour. Of some kinds, the batter will require to be made considerably stiffer than the consistency above mentioned. A little experience will enable any person to approximate the right proportions with sufficient exactness. The flour should be stirred into the water very slowly in the same manner as in making mush. No more stirring is necessary after the flour is all added. If hard water is used in making them, they are apt to be slightly tough. A small quantity of milk will remedy this defect.

No. 3. GRAHAM BISCUIT.—Make Graham mush as for table. When cool mix with it Graham flour sufficient to roll well. Knead for a few minutes, roll three-fourths of an inch thick, cut with a common biscuit cutter, and bake in a hot oven from thirty to forty-five minutes.

No. 4. GRAHAM BISCUIT.—(Another Form.) Stir into cold water Graham flour enough for a rather soft dough; knead it for five or ten minutes, and bake the same as No. 3.

No. 5. WHEAT MEAL CRISPS.—Make a very stiff dough of Graham flour and cold water; knead thoroughly, roll as thin as possible and bake for twenty minutes in a hot oven.—Hygienic Cook Book.

HINTS TO BATHERS.

At this warm season, when bathing is so popular, it will be well to observe the following practical hints, which we take from the London Sixpenny Magazine:

"On first plunging into cold water there comes a shock which drives the blood to the central parts of the system. But immediately a reaction takes place, which is assisted by the exercise of swimming, producing, even in water of a low temperature, an agreeable warmth. The stay in the water should never be prolonged beyond the period of this excitement. If the water be left while this warmth continues, and the body immediately dried, the healthy glow over the whole surface will be delightful.

To remain in the water after the first reaction is over, produces a prolonged chilliness, a shrinking of the flesh, and a contraction of the skin, by no means favorable to health or enjoyment; for it is only in water thoroughly warmed by summer heats where we may bathe for many hours with impunity.

Certain precautions are necessary. Moderate exercise, by summoning into action the powers of the system, and quickening the circulation, is better than inactivity. We should never go into water immediately after a meal, nor while the process of digestion is going forward. Nor should we plunge into the water when violently heated, or in a state of profuse perspiration. Such imprudences are often fatal, especially if the water be unusually cold. If too warm, the temperature of the body may be reduced by bathing the wrists and wetting the head.

Before meals rather than after, and especially before breakfast and before supper, are proper seasons for bathing. The heats of the day are to be avoided, but in very hot weather, a bath is useful to cool the blood and secure refreshing sleep. If in the middle of the day, a shaded place should be chosen, or the head protected from the sun by being kept wet, or by wearing a straw hat, as is practised by the fashionable French ladies at their watering places.

The sea is the best place for swimming. Owing to the greater specific gravity of salt water than fresh, the body is more buoyant in it, as are other substances. A ship coming out of salt water into fresh, sinks perceptibly in the water. The difference is nearly equal to the weight of the salt held in solution.

The bottom should be of hard sand, gravel or smooth stones. Sharp stones and shells cut the feet—weeds may entangle them. The swimmer must avoid floating grass and quicksand. The new beginner must be careful that the current cannot carry him into a deeper place, also that there be no holes in the bottom. As persons are ever liable to accidents, cramps, etc., it is always best that boys or girls should be accompanied by those who are older than themselves, and who will be able to save them in any emergency."

WHY SO MUCH BEAUTY IN POLAND?—"Because," says Bayard Taylor, "there, girls do not jump from infancy to young ladyhood. They are not sent from the cradle to the parlor, to dress, to sit still and look pretty. No, they are treated as children should be. During childhood, which extends through a period of several years, they are plainly and loosely dressed, and allowed to run, romp and play in the open air. They are not loaded down, girded about, and oppressed every way with countless frills and superabundant flounces, so as to be admired for their clothing. Nor are they rendered delicate or dyspeptic by continual stuffing with candies and sweet-cakes, as are the majority of American children. Plain, simple food, free and various exercise, and an abundance of sunshine during the whole period of childhood, are the secrets of beauty in after life."

☞ Few will have restless nights who take dinner at midday, and nothing after that except a piece of cold bread and pure water.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.........$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.
PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.
All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

Single copy, 50 cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.
Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cents a year for each copy.
Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cents a year for each copy.
To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

CLUBS.—Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other names on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, [illegible] a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less than ten), from [illegible] cents a year on each copy.

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

POSTAGE.—Six cents per quarter, on every package of ten copies or less, to one address. Must be paid quarterly or yearly in advance, at the office where the paper is received. Send no money to us for postage.

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.
2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all sums due are paid.
3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and order their papers discontinued.
4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.
5. The law declares that any person to whom a periodical is sent, is responsible for payment if he receives the paper, or makes use of it, even if he has never subscribed for it, or has ordered it stopped. His duty in such a case is, not to take the paper from the office, and to notify the publisher that he does not wish it.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 511. BOSTON, TUESDAY, JULY 18, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 18.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME, H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

RESIGNATION.

To thee resigned, O God, thou loving one!
To thee my stricken soul looks up once more.
Oft in the briery way my feet have gone,
Weary and bleeding,—oft with wail and moan
It turns to thee, its refuge evermore.

O, often, Father, hath thy pitying eye
Seen the wild sweep of anguish bow me down,—
Hath seen me turn my 'wildered gaze on high,
As if thou couldst be lost from you deep sky,
Blacker then seeming than thy awful frown.

Could God be lost from out his universe?
O hush! my soul, the tempest is between;
When the fierce whirlwind has reeled on its course,
Thy chastened eyes shall clearly see the source
Of trials stern, as of thy joys serene.

Thou art my Father! Through these blinding tears
My eyes behold thy loving hand, O God,
Outstretched to me through all these burdened years,
So laden with earth's sinful doubts and fears,—
Thy ruling hand that gently holds the rod.

I had some idols in my temple-heart,
That place of worship sacred to but thee;
Not all in anger hast thou torn apart
The gorgeous drapery of sweet hopes, whose art
Concealed the danger of their witchery.

Thou hast with tender hand that seemed too hard,
Broke the clay images set up in vain;
Thrown down, but oft restored, without regard
To thy best will; and ever the reward
Has been to see them broken o'er again.

At length, dear Father-God, I thought the last Loved hope and purpose of my life had been
In resignation on thy altar cast,
And life's severest struggle overpast,
That on thee only I should henceforth lean.

But O, not so! one precious wish survived,
Strong as my life, and exquisitely dear;
It held the holy place next unto thine;
Next the Most Holy was its flame-lit shrine,—
Methought thou would'st allow it e'en so near.

And thou requirest it! Thy will be done!
Upon thy altar let the offering lie.
Like Isaac to his father, only son,
So to my soul this was my only one.
I yield it up at thy behest to die.

No angel may be near to call to me
Forbiddingly, as to thy friend of old;
But O, my gracious God, how much to thee
I shall be owing through eternity,
By human tongue on earth may ne'er be told.

O guardian God, still lead me by the hand!
My trusting soul does love thee but the more.
How sweet and lasting in the heavenly land
Shall be my rest with that triumphant band
Who, conquerors all, shall gain th' eternal shore.

Marysville, Ohio. LOUISA SOUTHWICK.

For the World's Crisis.

"THOU SHALT BE WITH ME IN PARADISE."

But a purgatory the Romish prelate could not have without a paradise, and a paradise, as an intermediate state, the Protestant divine cannot have, without admitting the Romish argument in favor of purgatory, or stultifying himself. The only alternatives left them are, either to send souls straight to heaven or hell, without a judgment, contrary to the express declaration of God's word (Acts 17: 31; 2 Cor. 5: 10; Col. 3: 4; 2 Tim. 4: 8; 1 Pet. 5: 4; 2 Pet. 2: 9, and Rev. 22: 12) or abandon the "Roman fable" of an intermediate state, and the consciousness of dead men in hades, come on to BIBLE ground, believe that "the dead know not anything" (Eccl. 9: 5), but, as Paul says, (1 Cor. 15: 18) that "they are fallen asleep," that "until the heavens be no more they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep" (Job 14: 12); that in due time Christ will come to awake them (like Lazarus) out of sleep (John 11: 11; 1 Thess. 4: 15, 16); that "their love, and their hatred, and their envy, is perished" (Eccl. 9: 6); that "there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom, in the grave, whither thou goest" (9: 10), and where they have gone, and where ALL "shall hear the voice of the Son of God, and shall come forth" (John 5: 25–29), "they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life (or to live again) and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of damnation," or "second death." Rev. 20: 14.

BELIEVE this. Let Paradise remain where God has located it,—the kingdom where God purposed it should be. Place the comma where it belongs, after "to-day," and bless God for truth.

But do not think we are done with the "thief" yet, no, no; he is altogether too notorious to let slip so easily; we are not done with him or you, or the comma either. There are other passages in which, it seems, men are not agreed concerning "the comma." Take for a sample, Matt. 19: 28. "That ye which have followed me in the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit in the [illegible] of his glory." In some (most) old Bib[illegible] Testaments, the comma is placed aft[illegible] ation;" while in those publishe[illegible] "American Bible Society," in New [illegible] is placed after "me;" changing the m[illegible] of the sentence precisely as the sense would be changed by placing the comma after "to-day," in Luke 23: 43; making the "regeneration" to coincide with the "times of restitution" (Acts 3: 21), which coincide with the time that the "kingdoms of this world become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ (Rev. 11: 15); which coincides with the time" when the Son of man shall come in his glory, and all the holy angels with him; THEN he sits "upon the throne of his glory, and before him will be gathered all nations, . . . and then shall the King say . . . Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom." And this coincides with the prayer of the thief, and will be PARADISE, as we shall show.

One or two more samples and we will have done with the comma. 1 Cor. 15: 32. "If, after the manner of men, I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what advantageth it me, if the dead rise not? let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die." Dr. Adam Clarke says, "I believe the common mode of pointing this verse is erroneous. I propose to read it thus: "If after the manner of men, I have fought with beasts at Ephesus, what doth it advantage me? If the dead rise not, let us eat and drink; for to-morrow we die." Then follows his comment. "What the apostle says here, is a regular and legitimate conclusion from the doctrine, that there is no resurrection, for, if there be no resurrection, then there can be no judgment; no future state of rewards and punishments; why, therefore, should we bear crosses, and keep ourselves under continual discipline! Let us eat and drink, take all the pleasure we can, for to-morrow we die: and there is an end of us forever." The italics are his own.

But that is not an "end of us forever," if so be that the "thief was with Christ in paradise" the same day he died; not an end of us, if so be that the soul or spirit is in a conscious state," flies away," and wings its course right straight to glory," and is "happy with Christ and the angels in heaven."

No, not an "end of us forever," if so be that the body is only the "casket," "clay-tenement," "form," "prison, or house," in which "the "inner-man," the "real man," the "man proper" "lived for the time being,"—like a bird in a cage,—but is now "set free," "let loose," "moved away," "thrown off its form," "burst its prison shell," and is "not dead," but "alive" and "happier" forever, "better off than ever" "before death;" not an end, if this be true, resurrection or no resurrection. And what need of one, pray tell?

But it would "be an end of us forever," if "the resurrection" depended upon the "inherent nature of the soul's properties," if "the resurrection" depended upon the spirit, soul, or life, being "awake;" in a "living, conscious state," unsusceptible of and superior to the power of death. For if thus dependent, man could by these means "redeem himself from death," independent of Jesus Christ, and there would be no necessity that "a ransom should be given to God for him;" but now "the redemption of their soul is precious," and without this redemption it (the soul) would "cease forever." Ps. 48: 7, 9.

Man cannot wake his own soul or life out of the sleep of death and "give it a body as it pleaseth him" (1 Cor. 15: 38), but God can "by his Spirit" through Jesus Christ our Lord. Hence "the resurrection" is not dependent upon "the breath or spirit of life" given to the first Adam, when he "became a living soul," but upon "the power," "the mighty power," "spirit," or "glory" of God the Father. Matt. 22: 29; Eph. 1: 19; Rom. 8: 11; and 6: 4. Otherwise, that dormant state of the spirit, soul, or life, in death, would be an "eternal sleep," and an "end of us forever." "But now is Christ risen from the dead" (blessed be God), and become the "first fruits" of them that sleep; therefore we shall have a resurrection, shall have part (the second first fruits, or harvest) in the FIRST RESURRECTION," and though we "sleep," death will not be "an end of us forever."

This is "our hope," the "one hope;" therefore, "come, Lord Jesus;" come to awake thy "sleeping saints" to glory, and "come quickly." Even so, come, amen.

Zech. 9: 12 is a parallel passage that needs no comment. "Turn you to the strongbold, ye prisoners of hope: even to-day do I declare that I will render double unto thee."

Griesbach, who stands, perhaps, at the head of all the critics on the "Greek text," at all events is cited by all Protestant writers as "valid authority," says of the passages in Luke 23: 43; "Unquestionably, the comma should be after "to-day," and he so places it in the margin. The verse would then read thus, "Verily I say unto thee to-day, thou shalt be with me in paradise." Now let us see if we can find a Bible paradise into which the "malefactor" may enter when Christ "comes into his kingdom," harmonizing with his petition, and the Savior's promise, as indicated in the above punctuation.

Turn to Rev. 2: 7. "To him that overcometh will I give to eat of the tree of life, which is in the midst of the paradise of God." Well, we have not yet found paradise, but we have found that the "tree of life" is in the "midst" of it, and if we can only find the tree, we shall be "in paradise." Now turn to Rev. 21, and read the description of the new heavens and the new earth, and there in the fifth verse you will find the throne "of his "glory," upon which Christ is to sit "in his kingdom," (Matt. 19: 28; 25: 31–34. Luke 22: 28–30); upon which he is seen sitting (Rev. 21: 5); and then in 22: 42, a "river of water of life clear as crystal," is seen "proceeding out of that throne, and in the midst of the street of it (of the city, 21: 10–27), and on either side of the river, was there the TREE OF LIFE." "In the midst of the PARADISE of GOD." We have found it! And Christ will be there? yes; and the kingdom? yes; and paradise? the word of God says so. And the thief will be there? in paradise! Christ said he should. Amen. Our comma has found a period. G. W. STETSON.

Olena, O.

☞ To say I will not come to Christ because I have sins, is as if one should say, I will never have any thing to do with happiness if offered, because I have great misery; I will go to no surgeon, because my wound is so great; I will eat no bread, because I am so exceedingly hungry.

For the World's Crisis.

SOMETHING WORTH REMEMBERING.

1. The highest authority to which we can appeal is the word of God.

2. The next highest in settling chronology is Astronomy.

3. Next to Astronomy, the records found on ancient monuments are regarded as of the highest authority.

4. Next to those records, History is considered the best authority.

5. The Parian Chronicle may occupy the fifth place as authority in establishing the correct chronology.

And that which should be remembered is, that we have clearly proven that all of these authorities must give place, before Ptolemy's Canon can be received by those who prefer reason to the prejudices and prepossessions of men. For example:

1st. If it be true that the Lord hath said "of Cyrus, He is my shepherd, and shall perform all of my pleasure, even saying to Jerusalem, It shall be built." It is certain that in all the Bible there is nothing harder to evade than the epoch from which Daniel's sixty-nine weeks are to be reckoned; hence he who would defend the Canon is reduced to the necessity of either renouncing the Bible, or with some apparent plausibility explain this away.

All agree that the tenth year of Zedekiah was a sabbatical year. Jeremiah settles this point. Hence this sabbatical year alone proves the incorrectness of Ptolemy's Canon.

2nd. As eclipses of the sun so seldom occur at a given place. Next to the Bible, eclipses of the sun are the highest authority to which we can appeal in settling chronology, and of all of the eclipses of the sun recorded in history, there is not one that a man can even claim to have occurred in harmony with Ptolemy's Canon before B. C. 431. Hence Struyk in his catalogue of eclipses gives none of the sun previous to that date. It is true that seven eclipses of the moon are claimed to have been found in harmony with the Canon, but out of the seven only one can be made according to the record.

As the eclipse of A. D. 136 was seen and "carefully observed" by the most celebrated astronomers of that age, it certainly becomes the highest authority to which we can appeal, and it ought to be borne in mind that all tables that are correct enough to make this according to the record, make all ancient eclipses of the sun even to the express language of those who saw them. And if Ptolemy has told the truth as to the quantity eclipsed, A. D. 136, no eclipse can be made on the 8th of March, B. C. 720. He who says that the eclipse of B. C. 491 occurred in the reign of Darius the Second, contradicts the express word of Ptolemy, who declares that it occurred "in the 31st year of Darius the First," who was a Median. Dan. 9: 1. But Darius the Second was a Persian. Ezra 4: 24.

According to Ptolemy, the eclipse of B. C. 502 was "in the twentieth year of Darius, the successor of Cambyses," and Darius the First may have been "the successor of Cambyses," the father of Cyrus; but Darius the Second was "the successor of" the Magus; and if, as Ptolemy declares, the eclipse of B. C. 523 occurred in the one hundred and twenty-fifth year of Nabonassar, it must have been in the reign of Cambyses, the father of Cyrus; and if so, the astronomical controversy may now be at an end; for Ptolemy no longer clashes with the word of God.

3rd. According to the record of the Egyptian monument, the fourteenth of Hezekiah could not have been earlier than B. C. 690; but those who follow Ptolemy make it B. C. 714.

4th. Of all whose writings have come down to us, I know of none who had as good an opportunity of learning the truth as to the time of the beginning of the Captivity, as Demetrius, the Jew; and he gives B. C. 558 for the beginning of the Captivity; hence B. C. 488 for the first of Cyrus, king of Persia.

5th. We have further noticed that the Parian Chronicle cannot be reconciled with Ptolemy's Canon, but may be with the true Bible Chronology. And since Bible Astronomy, Ancient momuments, History, and the Parian Chronicle are all against the Canon, it finds foundation alone in the traditions of men.

WM. C. THURMAN.

For the World's Crisis.

HEIRS OF GOD.—Rom. 8: 17.

What! Heirs of the great King of heaven? Certainly we are, if we are the children of Abraham by faith. For if we believe God as truly and sincerely as did faithful Abraham, then we are adopted into the family of God, by that Almighty Spirit which God has sent forth into our hearts, whereby we can cry, "Abba, Father." But can it be possible that such aliens as we have been can ever be adopted into the family of God, and become joint heirs with this only begotten Son, to an eternal inheritance, incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away? Yes, it is possible; and we may well cry out, with the apostle, "Great is the mystery of godliness."

But let all the strength of your imagination be brought into exercise, and you cannot describe the glory and grandeur of the inheritance that awaits the true-hearted and humble saint of God; and soon to be revealed from heaven, our eternal King will give us that inheritance. St. John tried to tell us something of the reward that awaits us, but could only say, "It doth not yet appear what we shall be;" but "we shall be like Him, and shall see him as he is."

Dear reader, would you not consider yourself in the possession of great honor, if you were an earthly prince, which would make you an heir, by birth, to your father's throne, and to all your father's riches and possessions, and be considered as one of the royal family? Would you not consider it the height of earthly glory to be permitted to walk by the side and in company with an earthly king? Surely you would if you were reaching after earthly fame. But if your eye is single, and centres on that inheritance which is eternal, and will be the abode of the saints when all earthly fame and glory has forever faded and gone; then all things earthly will look very small to you.

Then be sure to keep your title good to that glorious inheritance, by a faithful obedience to our heavenly King; for although the promises of God all centre in Christ, the lawful heir to the eternal inheritance, and are as sure as the pillars of God's throne, if you walk not in Christ you will fail of entering into that rest which remains for the people of God.

Vernon, Vt. B. PERHAM.

PRAYER.

Come, let us pray; 'tis sweet to feel
That God himself is near;
That while we at his footstool kneel,
His mercy deigns to hear.
Though sorrows crowd life's dreary way,
This is our solace—let us pray.

Come, let us pray: the burning brow,
The heart oppressed with care,
And all the woes that throng us now,
Will be relieved by prayer.
Our God will smile our griefs away;
O glorious thought—come, let us pray!

Come, let us pray! the sin-sick soul
Her weight of guilt must feel:
But hark! the glorious tidings roll,
While here we humbly kneel.
Jesus will wash that guilt away,
And pardon grant—then let us pray!

Come, let us pray! the mercy seat
Invites the fervent prayer,
Our heavenly Father waits to greet
The contrite spirit there:
Then loiter not, nor longer stay
From him who loves us—let us pray!

—Selected.

AN ILLUSTRATION.

I was talking with a disciple of Jesus about that perfect love, of which we read so often in the Bible, when she said (giving expression to an idea that she had, that if any one were perfect, there could be no higher attainments for them), "It says in the Bible that we are to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior, Jesus Christ." Yes, I told her; so we are. Flowers will grow and blossom in a garden where there are some weeds, but they will grow faster, and blossom with more fragrance and beauty, after the weeds are all removed. So with the fruits of righteousness, and the graces of the Spirit: though they will grow in a heart where there may be weeds of inbred sin, they will grow much faster and blossom with greater beauty after these weeds are removed. She replied, "You would have the weeds all removed, and every root of bitterness taken out of the heart, and the soil completely sifted from the seeds of sin: then how do they spring up and grow again?"

Let me here give glory to that Spirit who is always ready to help a sincere soul to give a reason, and who prompted me to say, "They will not, as long as the Lord Jesus keeps the garden; but if the enemy gets in, he will sow seeds which will spring up and ripen quickly." God grant that our actual sins may be forgiven, and our hearts cleansed from all unrighteousness, that with surprising beauty and fragrance the flowers of grace may grow and flourish, till transplanted to the banks of the river of life in the garden of the Lord.—Earnest Christian.

CHARLOTTE ELIZABETH.

HER EXPERIENCE IN STUDYING PROPHECY.

I have noticed in previous letters that I did not go with Mr. Howels on the subject of the Second Advent; I could not. In fact, I was a millenarian against my will. The three particulars on which I did not believe myself to be convinced were the vengeful disposition against the Lord's enemies preparatory to the thousand years of blessedness; the literal nature of the first, pre-millennial resurrection, and the personal reign. With regard to the first, I wished to believe that the gospel would be universally victorious, subduing every heart, and bringing the whole world in peaceable submission to acknowledge the Lord as King. I had once, as before stated, been startled by a reference to the sixty-third of Isaiah, and lulled to sleep again by the far-fetched comments of good Matthew Henry; and I confess I had taken up the missionary cause on the gratuitous assumption that we were to convert everybody, and could not agree to a less extensive triumph. Well, I did not choose to bring this to the test of Scripture, because I did not wish to be undeceived; but just after the Irish meeting, one was held in reference to the Jews, at which I was present; and forth stepped my valued friend, McNeil, whom I had not seen for a year, and with his Bible in his hand, preached the doctrine, to my infinite annoyance and conviction! He took up my precise objection wtihout knowing it; he spoke of those who could not see that a part of God's mercy was his judgment; and with that glowing ardor, tempered with deep solemnity, that always gives him so much of the prophetic characteristic, if I may so speak, he read from the 136th Psalm: "To him that smote Egypt in their first-born; for his MERCY endureth forever: and slew famous kings, for his MERCY endureth forever." This was a key-note of a strain that I deeply felt resounded through the whole Scripture, though I had refused to heed it; and then he turned to the 61st of Isaiah, and read the first and part of the second verse, as quoted by our blessed Lord in the 4th of St. John, to where he shut the book, saying, "This day is this Scripture fulfilled in your ears." But did the Scripture end here? No: the first advent fulfilled so much of it; and He who then proclaimed "the acceptable year of the Lord," should at his second coming proceed with that unfinished Scripture, "The day of vengeance of our God." And go on thence "To comfort all that mourn: to appoint unto them that mourn in Zion," and so the whole beautiful picture of Millennial gladness and glory on which Isaiah expatiates rose before me, as consequent upon that "day of vengeance," which Christ has not yet proclaimed. How angry I felt with that dauntless champion of God's whole truth, for trampling upon my darling prejudices! nevertheless he had done it; and thenceforth I opened my mind to drink in the pure, simple meaning of the literal promise.

The first resurrection I considered to be a resurrection of the souls of the martyrs, whose spirits were to animate the happy race of believers during a thousand years. I confess some things puzzled me sorely in this interpretation; for instance, how could a soul be buried; and if not buried, how did it rise? Again, those souls were under an altar in heaven, waiting for the completion of their company by means of a new persecution on earth, and it seemed rather a heathenish doctrine to transmigrate them into other bodies; more especially as their own bodies would need them again. Besides, they were with Christ personally in heaven; and to be without Christ personally on earth, was by no means an additional privilege. I found the thing untenable, and resolved to consider it as wholly figurative; but if so, then the final judgment, described also in that chapter, might be figurative too. I would not look my own inferences in the face, so I wished to let the subject alone; but then a blessing was distinctly pronounced on such as should read or hear the words of that prophecy; and I did not like to lose a blessing.

Thus the matter stood; I had rigidly forborne to read any book, pro or con, or to be talked to about it. One day when the subject forced itself upon me, I resolved to strengthen myself against the modern view (as I wisely supposed it,) by prayerfully reading again what I already so well knew—the 15th chapter of 1st Corinthians. I did so: and was suddenly struck by a recollection of the passage where the "saying" is written, "Death is swallowed up in victory." I turned to Isa. 26, read it, and found it unequivocally a description of the church's blessedness on earth—the millennium—at the onset of which the saying is written which "shall come to pass," when Christ's people shall arise from the dead. But will not all rise then? I went over the apostle's description once more, and found no word of the resurrection unto condemnation. The corruptible then raised would put on incorruption; the weakness power; the mortal immortality; having borne the image of the earthly, they were to bear the image of the heavenly. I was quite overpowered: could I reply against God? The passage that I thought so formidable on my side failed me—"Afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end." . . . From this starting point I explored the Scriptures in reference to a literal resurrection of Christ's people, at a literal coming previous to the thousand years of Satan's binding and the peace of the church. I saw it clearly; I received it fully; and I hold it firmly at this day.

It has often struck me what efforts the enemy has made to stifle this doctrine. . . . But shall the abuse of a sublime truth by the great enemy lead us to reject it? As well may we blot out the ninety-first Psalm, because the devil quoted it, and for a truly devilish purpose. No: he knows that the shedding forth of greater light on this important branch of christian knowledge is one of the signs of Christs actual coming; a token that his own time is short; therefore he endeavors to stifle it; and ere long he will bring us false Christ's, to deceive, if it were possible, the very elect. We have need to be found watching.—Selected.

For the World's Crisis.

HEAVEN AND EARTH.

"What is heaven but a happy home, and what is earth but a dreary waste?"—Homer.

Dear reader, it would take an innumerable series of years to point out the dignified beauty, splendor and joys of heaven, for they will go on and increase throughout eternal ages. But the elemental woes and scenes which we have to contend with here on the earth are many, but they will be of short duration to those who love God and keep his commandments. Now I will endeavor to set before you, as far as my abilities will admit, the contrast of those different elements.

Heaven is an eternal spring of joy and happiness to those who love God; and youth blooms there with unspeakable brightness and glory. For no error, no misery nor sin can enter heaven to blight its joys or mar its beauty. Our minds there will be lighted up, and their march will be on and on in a never-ending progress. No blighted hope is there. No ignorance of God, for we shall see God there in all his glory and perfection—feel his power and goodness.

Truth reigneth in heaven; she is sometimes crushed here on earth, but is never crushed in heaven. Error is often honored and esteemed here on the earth, but she never can enter heaven. O, there is misery on earth! Many a heart has been wrung and ruined here by false-hearted friends. Many an honest spirit has been made to bleed by the heartless ingratitude of an unstable and ungodly usurper. But there are no usurpers in heaven—nothing to annoy our peace nor to annul our happiness.

Here on earth is falsehood and deceit, which keep neighborhoods and ofttimes societies in constant jar and broil. False hearts are encountered almost everywhere. Ingratitude, deep and dark ingratitude is a common crime. But none of those false ingredients that spoil our joys can be found in heaven. Falsehood is not there, nor slander, nor deceit, nor iniquity of any kind. "Holiness to the Lord" is heard there from every tongue. Holiness and goodness of heart is seen to light up every countenance. Virtue is there found in all her dignity, rising, and still rising high in the scale of an unending succession.

And further, heaven hath still other charms than those which I have mentioned. Jesus is there, our greatest Friend, our Redeemer, he who rose from the tomb and led captivity captive. Saints will be there, and all those godly ones who shall have been released from their earthly bondage. But, not to multiply words, heaven has innumerable attractions of a blissful nature which ought to wean us from earth and cause us to feel we are pilgrims journeying to a better land.

Let us consider "we have no continuing city here." Heaven is our home. O, then, let us look to it. Let us feel that heaven has the most inviting attractions that can be named. Let it be our highest meditation through the day and night. Let us think of it as a glorious and better land, and seek ardently to obtain it, that we may be justified in the sight of God, and admitted to partake of those heavenly joys. Thrice happy is that soul which chooses such a theme for meditation! surely it must be illuminated with Heaven's own light, directed by Heaven's own wisdom, and led by Heaven's own Spirit.

Dear reader, think of these things, and meditate upon them if you ever wish to secure your soul's salvation. I have lain before you a similitude both of life and death—happiness and misery. Therefore choose ye this day whom ye will serve—God, or mammon. For the day is fast hastening when we shall be laid in our graves. Therefore, "whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might, for there is no work, nor device, nor knowledge, nor wisdom in the grave whither thou goest." O, prepare in time to meet thy God!

"Remember, Lord, our mortal state,
How frail our life, how short the date!
Where is the man who draws his breath
Safe from disease, secure from death?
Lord, while we see whole nations die,
Our flesh and sense repine, and cry,
Must death forever rage and reign?
Or hast thou made mankind in vain?
Where is thy promise to the just?
Are not thy servants turned to dust?
But faith forbids these mournful sighs,
And sees the sleeping dust arise.
That glorious hour, that dreadful day
Wipes the reproach of saints away,
And clears the honor of thy word!
Awake our souls, and bless the Lord."

Fisherville, N. H. J. ELKINS.

For the World's Crisis.

THE JUDGMENT.

"We shall all stand before the judgment seat of Christ. For it is written, As I live, saith the Lord, every knee shall bow to me, and every tongue shall confess to God." None will be absent, but all, without an exception, shall stand before God, that they may be judged according to the deeds done in the body. "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad."—2 Cor. 5: 10.

This will be a glorious day to the children of God. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first. Then we which are alive and remain, shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and so shall we ever be with the Lord." Let each one ask the question, Am I a child of God? Do I look forward with sweet anticipation to the time when I shall meet my Savior face to face? Let us be up and doing while the day of life shall last, before the night of death comes, when no man work.

Our Savior invites the weary and heavy laden to come unto him for rest, to cast all their cares on him, for he careth for them. We have an advocate with the Father. He looks upon his children with an eye of pity. Christ will plead for them, for he was tempted in all points like as we are, yet without sin. "Behold, happy is the man whom God correcteth, therefore despise not thou the chastening of the Almighty: for he scourgeth every son whom he receiveth." O, may we become more and more established in the love and faith of God. "He maketh sore and bindeth up: he woundeth, and his hands make whole." "He shall deliver thee in six troubles: yea, in seven shall no evil touch thee." Can we trust in God? In famine he shall redeem thee from death, and in war from the power of the sword."

O, how much we have to praise God for! The mercies and blessings we are constantly receiving come from him; his mercy endureth forever. He is mighty, and despiseth not any; he is mighty in strength and wisdom. Although we may be despised and set at nought by the world, if we prove faithful until the end, we shall come up out of great tribulation, having our robes washed, and made white in the blood of the Lamb; and the new earth glowing in the beauty of Eden shall be our everlasting home.

God loves us; can we doubt it, since he gave his only Son to die for us? So let us fight the good fight of faith, and lay hold on eternal life, for we know not what hour our Lord doth come. Jesus says, "When ye see all these things (i. e. signs of my coming), know that it (or my coming) is near, even at the door." Therefore, let us watch, lest it come upon us like a snare, and find us unprepared.

Our hope should be like an anchor to the soul, sure and steadfast. Let us not be weary in well doing: for the wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ. Then let us seek for honor, immortality, and eternal life. We have no promise of these things unless we seek for them; but we have the promise, if we ask, we shall receive; if we seek, we shall find. May we all search the Scriptures as for hid treasures.

We hope to come in possession of eternal life in the morn of the resurrection. God hath promised "that being justified by his grace, we should be made heirs according to the hope of eternal life." But if in this life only we have hope in Christ, we are of all men most miserable. "As the waters fail from the sea, and the flood decayeth, and drieth up, so man lieth down, and riseth not: till the heavens be no more, they shall not awake, nor be raised out of their sleep." "But when Christ who is our life shall appear, then shall we also appear with him in glory." He shall "change our vile body, that it may be fashioned like unto his glorious body." Then we shall "see him as he is."

BETSEY L. HAGGETT.

For the World's Crisis.

WHAT IS A HOBBY?

Many good people who read the Crisis would like to know what is meant by the word "hobby," and also what crime those are guilty of who are called "hobbyists," or "hobby riders."

Most people have one trade or employment that they understand and can work at to better advantage than at any other. Public speakers are like other people in this respect. Most of them have what is sometimes called their "forte"—a subject which they prefer, and feel a particular attachment to; and they often call this subject their "hobby." The subject of temperance is the hobby of the temperance lecturer, while another may take the "woman's rights" question for his hobby, another the subject of slavery, another the crime of using tobacco,—and so on through the whole catalogue of subjects which can engage the tongue or pen. So almost every body has a hobby.

As I view the subject, it is no crime to have a hobby; but the trouble is here: some get an unworthy subject, or a point of dispute for their hobby, and they hold it up before their own eyes till it looks larger and more important to them than all other things; and they are continually harping upon this point, and trying to make everybody else see it as they do.

This constitutes the crime of the hobbyist. He seems determined to know nothing else but "one idea," his favorite topic, or, in short, his "hobby."

There is an all-powerful remedy for this evil. Who is willing to apply the remedy?

Let all foolish and unprofitable questions be laid aside; all "strivings about the law," and subjects that can not profit; and join with Paul and all the holy ones who take "Christ crucified" for their theme; and follow the teachings of the word and the Spirit, and strive to keep the "unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Sutton, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

SCATTERED TRUTHS.

GATHERED BY E. A. A.

Worldly riches are like executioners; they hide men's faces with a covering, that they may not see their end, and then hang them.

A little of worldly possessions will serve a man who is strong in grace; much will not serve a man who is weak in grace; and nothing will serve a man who is void of grace.

Pride thrives on the decay of other sins; a man will grow proud that he is not proud.

Sinful omissions lead to sinful commissions.

Full vessels will bear many a knock, and yet make no noise; and christians, full of the Spirit of the Lord, will bear many a stroke without murmuring.

"Sin lieth at the door." Like some beast that croucheth at the mouth of its cave, seeming to be asleep, but in reality awake and watching, sin waiteth for us. Sinner, beware! if sin sleep a dog's sleep, it may fly furiously in your face when you expect it not.

It is better to have a sore than a seared conscience.

God is on high: yet the higher a man lifts himself, the further he is from God; while the lower a man humbles himself, the nearer he will be to God.

Grace is given to trade with; it is given to lay out, not to lay up.

A lazy christian has his mouth full of complaints, but an active christian has his heart full of comforts.

Christ is bashful, and will not appear in company: if thou wouldst be familiar with him, retire to the closet, or in the fields, and there thou shalt freely enjoy his companionship, and discover the worth of his friendship.

For the World's Crisis.

THE THREE GRAINS OF RYE.

Do not be too careful where you sow your seed. Let it fall any where, and every where. You know not where it may take root. Only be careful that you have the "good seed," then let it drop.

As I strolled in the early morning, I chanced to stop to enjoy the rising sun more fully, and, looking at my feet, I saw a single stalk of rye. It was so low, and the head so small, I was curious to know whether it had really borne grains. To my surprise I found two perfect grains. I then examined the only remaining stock which had been stepped upon and lay on the ground. In it I found a very large kernel.

Now I had three grains of rye gathered in the road. Just as good rye as that in the fields. It could go into the garner and no one would imagine that it grew in the road, without culture, exposed to every enemy.

I was encouraged to hope against hope, as did our Father Abraham, and to go on sowing the seed and hoping for a crop "in the time of harvest."

Let all the sowers be encouraged.

Hammonton, N. J. E. S. WILLARD.

THE EFFECTS OF SMOKING.

The remarkable research made by M. Bouisson upon the danger of smoking has attracted the notice of the Academie, and has been rewarded with high praise. The horrors hitherto unknown, or unacknowledged, with which smokers are threatened, nay more, convicted by M. Bouisson, are sufficient upon bare anticipation, to ruin the revenue, and pipe-makers also. Cancer in the mouth, he declares to have grown so frequent by the use of tobacco that it now forms one of the most dreaded diseases in the hospitals, and at Montpelier, where M. Bouisson resides, the operation of its extraction forms the principal practice of the surgeons there. In a short period of time, from 1845 to 1859, M. Bouisson himself performed sixty-eight operations for cancer in the lips at the Hospital Saint Eloi.

The writers on cancer previous to our day mention the rare occurrence of the disease in the lips, and it has become evident that it must have increased of late years in proportion with the smoking of tobacco. M. Bouisson proves this fact by the relative increase in the French duties on tobacco, which, in 1812, brought an annual amount of twenty-five millions, and now gives a revenue of one hundred and thirty millions, almost that attained by the duties on wines and spirits, and far beyond that rendered by those on sugar. M. Bouisson remarks, justly or not, that "this figure, extravagant as it may appear, fades into insignificance before that attained by the British tax, which, according to Dr. Seymour, amounts to a fabulous sum, in a country where boys smoke from five o'clock in the afternoon till three o'clock in the morning, and where children ten years old are known to consume as many as forty cigars in one day."

M. Bouisson, whose earnestness in the cause does him the utmost credit, advises a general crusade to be preached by the doctors of every country against the immoderate use of tobacco, as being the means of exterminating the habit; because, although the most powerful sovereigns have been powerless to prevent it—although Sultan Amurath threatened in vain to cut off the noses of those who smoked, and Peter the Great vowed direct vengeance against all smokers, and even the thunders of the Vatican had been hurled against them in vain, there is one thing which mankind holds in more horror than a noseless face, or even an excommunicated soul—and that is an untimely death. Let young men be impressed with this truth, and the "Art of Smoking" which one of our best authors has lately extolled as the finest of all the fine arts, will soon be set aside and forgotten.—London Paper.

CHOLERA IN THE EAST.

Much interest and no little apprehension are expressed in England respecting the ravages of what is supposed to be a form of the Asiatic cholera in some parts of the East. During the great Mussulman festivals at Mecca and Mount Ararat, in the first twenty days of May, when half a million of pilgrims are wont to assemble, it is reported that the cholera this year carried off twenty thousand people. This is the official estimate—the popular account puts the loss at two or three times that number. But the most attention has been directed to Alexandria, where one hundred and eighty-four persons died on one day, and two hundred and fourteen cases were reported on another. Seventy cases also were reported in the very healthy city of Cairo. The whole number of fatal cases in Alexandria up to the last advices was between one thousand and fifteen hundred.

Considerable doubt has been expressed as to the cholera, particularly in Alexandria, being of the old Asiatic, migratory type, inasmuch as there may be sufficient local causes to account for it. The city of Alaxandria is noted for the humidity of its atmosphere and the horrible sanitary condition of its whole area. It is said, for instance, that more than seven hundred carcasses of cattle are lying in the Nile Canal alone, from which source the inhabitants are supplied with water. No wonder disease in some shape is abundantly generated.

With regard to its appearance in Mecca, also, sufficient causes might be found in the irregularities, squalor and crowded condition of the pilgrims. But whether it will adhere to its original localities, or will travel westward, remains to be seen. The French and Italian harbors have been shut against vessels coming from Alexandria. Marseilles keeps all the mail boats from that quarter in quarantine; and the English mails transmitted through Egypt are henceforth to be enclosed in boxes, instead of bags, as a precaution against infection. Thus far, there is no evidence of the westward passage of this terrible disease, but its mere possibility may well add another to the already sufficient arguments in favor of complete sanitary precautions during the hot weather.—Journal 14th.

For the World's Crisis.

MY TOUR WEST.

Dear Ben. and Sis.:—As I have been appointed messenger to the Illinois State Conference, I trust you all feel as much interested in this mission as myself; which is to consolidate east and west, north and south, in the great work of proclaiming the gospel of the kingdom. Our last Conference has given us a new impetus in this work. We were much strengthened by the presence and labors of our beloved Bro. Himes, as messenger from the Western conference. There has been too much discord. Let us strike for union.

This is our object in going west. It will cost about fifty dollars besides the expense of my family while gone. Now dear brethren and sisters of this State, I know you are not willing that I should bear this burden alone. Then you who are able, and are interested in this mission, can help bear the burden by sending whatever you feel disposed to give to my address, Syracuse, N. Y., before the middle of August.

I shall take the Lake Shore Railroad going, and the Michigan Central Railroad, returning. Those on these routes desiring my labors will please notify by letter in time to advertise through the Crisis. Looking for Jesus,

Syracuse, N. Y. C. B. Turner.

Voice please copy.

☞ Knowledge and good parts, managed by grace, are like the rod in Moses' hand, wonder-workers; but turn to serpents when they are cast upon the ground, and employed in promoting earthly designs. Learning in religious hearts, like that gold in the Israelites' earrings, is a most precious ornament; but if men pervert it to base and wicked ends, or begin to make an idol of it, as they did a golden calf of their earrings, it then becomes an abomination.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Tuesday, July 18, 1865.

TO OUR DEBTORS.

As the present volume of the World's Crisis will close in September next, we shall, in a few weeks, in accordance with our usual custom, send bills to all who at that time shall be owing $2.00 or more for the same,—and also to those who are indebted for books.

If all such will save us that trouble and expense, by remitting at once the amount of their indebtedness, they will receive our especial thanks, and will no doubt be better pleased themselves. Will you not, brethren and friends, make both yourself and us glad by your prompt and immediate response to this call,—by return mail?

TREMONT CAMPMEETING.

Fare from Boston reduced One Half.

Tickets to the Tremont Campmeeting good July 24th to 31st inclusive, to be had of GEO. T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover Street.

THE FALSE PROPHET.

It appears quite evident from the Scriptures that the power represented by the "false prophet," mentioned in Rev. 19 : 20, will be exerting its influence at the time of Christ's second advent, because it is taken, in connection with the "beast," and "cast alive into a lake burning with brimstone." The fact that the "false prophet" is "alive" when the time of the end comes shows that it is then doing its work, and is one of the last of Christ's opposers.

We are aware that the "false prophet" has been applied to Mohammedanism, but we think that historic events connected with that do not fill the prophetic picture. It is true that Mahomet said there was one God and Mahomet was his prophet; but we have yet to learn that Mohammedans are distinguished at all for their false prophecies; but there is a powerful party now arising, world-wide in its influence, that is noted for its prophetical character. We refer to Spiritualists.

The "false prophet" is also to be known by the "miracles" which it performed. We have not seen proof that the Mohammedans were noted for working miracles; but this is specially applicable to the Spiritualists. They claim that what Jesus did is to be thrown into the shade by the miracles that the spirits will perform through their mediums.

It will be noticed that the "false prophet" and the two-horned beast appear to be associated together, if they are not one and the same; for the two-horned beast of Rev. 13 : 11–18, is noted for the "miracles which he had power to do." It is said of him,—"He doeth great wonders, so that he maketh fire come down from heaven on the earth in the sight of men." We find nothing in the past history of Mohammedanism or Papacy that fulfills this prophecy; hence we believe it to be future, and near at hand to be accomplished.

When the President of the proposed World's Convention of Spiritualists was in our office a short time since, he gave us a brief outline of coming events, as foretold by the spirits. Of course, the demons know the Bible is true, and that its prophecies will all be fulfilled, because the word of the Lord "cannot be broken"; and they also know that "the end of all things is at hand," because prophetic history is nearly run out; and for this reason they know what events are about to transpire; but further than this, they cannot foretell what is coming. But in order to secure the confidence of those whom they are deceiving, they mix in some of the prophetic events of the Bible with their own false prophecies, making a counterfeit chain of events as near like the true one as possible; so that when that is accomplished which is foretold in the Scriptures, which is mixed in with their own prophecy, comes to pass, they say to their familiars, This is just what we told you was coming. By such means they continue to seduce the people away from the Bible, to believe the spirits, and in doing this they are led to believe the lies and false prophecies which form the basis of Spiritualism.

The following prophecies we received from the President of the World's Convention of Spiritualists, which is to be held next spring in Philadelphia. He claims to be a medium for Jesus of Nazareth. He stated that some of these prophecies were received in 1859, others at a later date.

He stated that "a new system of government" is to arise, under a "Christ band." Napoleon is to be the monarch of earth. Christ is about to come, but is coming spiritually in the establishment of the principles taught by the spirits. Napoleon will make a league with the Southern States. A dispute between England and France will result in the overthrow of England in 1866. Aerial navigation will be successful, and men will travel through the air in safety. The Pope will lose his power in 1866, and Napoleon will take it, and unite it to his own. France, England and Spain will unite in opposition to the United States. There will be civil and foreign wars in 1865–6. The prices of provisions will be high in 1866. There will be drouth in 1869 and 1870. The majority will embrace the principles of Spiritualism. No fees will be asked by the officers. A divine order is coming that resembles the Mormon system. Christ will take his people to California. The spot was selected in 1862, and the gathering will begin in 1866–7. The reason why Christ takes his people there is because he can defend them better in that country.

Ten kings, including the Pope, will unite with Napoleon. The Pope will yield next year—1866. There will be three invasions of America: 1. By England, France, and Spain. 2. By Napoleon alone, in 1867. 3. By Russia, which is the willful king of Dan. 11: 36, in 1871. Russia is the last political power of this world. America is to be the hill of Zion. Here the kingdom of heaven is to be set up. Some will yet be martyred; but there will be one universal government established, which will be under the direction of the spirits. Then God will govern through them, and liberty, equality and justice will prevail. Then there will be no contention. Labor will be pleasant; there will be no drones, and people will need to work but a few hours in a day. Then they will beat their implements of warfare into instruments of husbandry, and nations shall not learn war any more, and Christ will reign a thousand years.

The sign of the Son of man will appear in 1871, and first in California. A young man will appear who will restore order. The Spirit of the Lord will rest upon. He will be a type of a perfect man, and the works of Jesus will be eclipsed by his greater works. He will have twelve male and thirteen female mediums. These will constitute the apostolical circle. They will control events.

Russia will subdue Turkey in 1871: also Napoleon; Napoleon the terrible king and antichrist. Pestilence and famine follow the events of 1871. Great hail stones and molten lava will be brought upon the earth by the young man, who is the highest medium. This is to take place after Russia invades America. The 11th chapter of Isaiah applies to this young medium.

At another interview with this gentleman, we received the following particulars:—In 1867, Napoleon will make a seven years' covenant with the Jews, and effect a combination with ten kings and the Pope of Rome. From 1867 to 1868, Napoleon will march against the United States, Mexico and Canada, and slaughter three-fourths of the men between eighteen and sixty years of age that will not acknowledge him as Pope and master of the world. Between Aug. 1866, and Aug. 1867, Christ will remove the 144,000 to California. Some will be carried through the air. Between Aug. in 1871 and Aug. 1872, another gathering will take place of about fifty million to the United States. Napoleon will then be ready to fight the "willful king," which is Russia.

The foregoing are a few of the prophecies we received from the President of the World's Convention of Spiritualists. He claims to have received them from the highest order of spirits, including Jesus. We think the terms "false prophet" is appropriately applied to all these spirits. It is time to "ask for the old paths," and to proceed very cautiously, lest we get into some of Satan's by-paths which lead to death.

ATLANTIC CABLE.

In a few weeks we may expect to have telegraphic communications from Europe. It was purposed to commence laying the wire July 10th, with an expectation of reaching the Bay of Heart's Content, in Newfoundland, in some twelve or fourteen days. The cable is 2,300 nautical miles in length, and is on board the Great Eastern. The entire weight of her cargo is about 18,000 tons, or thirty-six million pounds. The Great Eastern is particularly adapted for this important enterprise. The cable contains some 25,000 miles of copper wire, 35,000 miles of iron wire, and more than 400,000 miles of hemp strands. The strength of the cable is sufficient to hold a weight of 7¾ tons.

The expectations of success are very strong on the part of those who are prepared to judge. We shall wait with interest for the result in laying this immense cable.

"PHYSICAL SINS."

The following remarks on "physical sins" are very truthful, and should receive a candid consideration from every disciple of Christ. It is very evident that there is great need of reform in diet, if people would enjoy good health. This is an age of feasting, as in the days of Sodom. All means are employed to gratify the appetite with rich and unhealthy food, until there is scarcely a well person to be found. We are confident that we speak within bounds when we say that nine-tenths of the sickness in the land is caused by improper eating, and other violations of the laws of health, for which men are responsible. A little self-denial would produce the most happy results. It costs much less to live on healthy food than unhealthy. We think it is high time for those who know the right way to speak boldly on the subject, regardless of the reproach that may follow from the uninformed. We are glad to see many taking a stand in favor of reform.

PHYSICAL SINS.

"We hear a great deal now-a-days about national and individual sins, sins of omission and sins of commission, original sin and acquired sin, sins against the gospel, sins against the State, sins against the community, and so on, through interminable varieties and gradations; but, strange to say, we scarcely ever hear the parent of most of these sins adverted to, much less combatted. Unfortunately theologians have not given that prominence in their systems to the laws written by the Almighty in the human constitution which they should have done, but have regarded health and disease rather as dispensations of a mysterious Providence than as the result of obedience to or sin against unyielding laws. The connection between mind and matter in this life, and the consequent dependence of the former upon the latter, have been too much ignored. It is an indisputable fact that a pure mind cannot occupy a polluted body, nor moral excellence exist along with physical depravity. Until christians pay that respect to the physical and organic laws which they do to the revealed, and get rid of the most pernicious idea, that disease is the arbitrary visitation of an inscrutable Providence, christianity cannot perform half its work, nor the flood-gates of crime and misery be closed. Until then even those who profess to be our moral [illegible]plars will not cease to build up with the one hand what they would demolish with the other. We shall pursue this subject further.

People of the world are taking ground in advance of the church on this subject. They see the necessity for such action, if they would retain health and mental vigor. The demons are also advocating a reform in this direction, and on this account secure the confidence of those they are deceiving. They teach them well on the laws of health, while they poison them morally with false doctrines. As those who follow the advice of the spirits relative to a reform diet receive great benefit physically, they conclude they must be good spirits, and believe their lies on points of doctrine, and are thus led away from the path of life as taught by Jesus. Satan still knows how to transform himself into an "angel of light," and thus seduce the unsuspecting; but let us not be silent because he is trying to steal the march on us.

"GREAT SWELLING WORDS."

It is really painful to listen to much of the popular preaching in these last days. In all the teachings of Jesus we do not find one attempt to use any high-sounding phrases. His instructions are noted for their simplicity. Paul says:—"I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtlety, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ."—2 Cor. 11: 3. We think such an expression is especially applicable at the present time. The following will illustrate the point. One is from Jesus, the other from a D. D:—

"He that hath ears to hear, let him hear."

"He that is accessible to auricular vibration," said the doctor, "let him not close the gates of his tympani."

SATAN TURNED PREACHER.

On account of the low state of christianity, Satan is taking advantage of circumstances, and is making an effort to get up a better system than the popular theology, that he may obtain the confidence of those who have lost it in the theology of the day, hoping thereby to lead men away from all pure religion. He prompts his followers to say some good things, but is sure to introduce a greater error, that he may neutralize all the effects of truth. His followers talk loudly of "Charity" and moral reforms, while they themselves are living in adultery and practising other vile things. They are like the man who has stolen, and raises the cry,—"stop thief," in order that no one shall suspect him.

We clip the following from the Banner of Light:—

"The popular theology directly tends to blunt conscience, darken reason, and pervert and bewilder the entire moral and spiritual nature of children and adults, and to prepare them for any crime against humanity. The statistics of crimes perpetrated by those born and bred under the influence of that theology, are appalling.

The Spiritualists, Friends of Progress, should guard the souls of their children against their corrupting and deadly power, as they would their bodies against the pestilence that walks in darkness, or the virus of the rattlesnake."

GARIBALDI.

The noted Italian leader, Garibaldi, is again aroused, and is arousing all Italy to the work of ridding Rome of the Pope, and the entire priesthood, so far as their control is concerned. There is a prospect of a gigantic movement in Italy soon, in relation to the Papal power. Its death warrant appears to be sealed, and its execution cannot be long delayed. The scenes just preceding the coming of the Son of man are evidently about to open. What a solemn hour is this in which we are living. Are we ready to welcome the Prince of princes? We have no time to lose, if not prepared. Let us consecrate ourselves wholly to him, then all will be well.

The following is a copy of a letter which Garibaldi has addressed to the Ladies' Association at Genoa, relative to the Catholic priesthood:—

"Ladies,—To liberate woman from superstition, and to release her from the clutches of the priest, is now the question of life or death in Italy, and in this manner only can be worked out the true deliverance of our country. Priest! But do you not see him embedded in the heart of this miserable earth, and, in the same manner as the gnawing cancer in the human form, feeding upon its miseries, and everything which is most injurious and disgusting and calculated to ruin his brother man? Many will tell you that there are good priests. But a priest to become good must change the adverse livery that he wears. That livery, is not the livery of the promoters of brigandage in more than the half of Italy? Has it not marched as a vanguard before every stranger that invaded our country? Those who endeavor to retard our progress make a distinction between the temporal power, which should be combated, and the spiritual power which they tell us should be respected. The spiritual power! And from whom does that come? From Antonelli, Schiavone, or Crocco? Spiritual indeed! And are these the leaders by whom you would wish to be conducted into the presence of the Eternal? Will you consent to present yourselves before God under protectors such as these? Ladies, may the divine inspiration of your sex guide you and your companions in the way of truth. Yours, &c.

G. Garibaldi."

PRE-EXISTENCE OF SOULS.

Plato's doctrine of the pre-existence of souls is fully revived by Spiritualism, and it is evident that the heathen received the doctrine from the same source from which it comes at the present day; that is, from the demons. The following question was recently put to one of the spirits and the answer was given in the Banner of Light, June 3d, 1865.

"Q. The question was asked him if the human soul ever had an individualized existence before entering the human body; and I believe the answer was in the affirmative. Now, if this be true, why does not the human soul remember that existence?

A. The soul, as a soul—as an infinite, unlimited intelligence, does remember this; but that memory is not able and cannot project itself into human life. Sometimes, in rare instances, persons receive divine glimmering of the life that has been with God. Swedenborg, and a few others, have had these glimmerings; but in the main, the door in your external lives to this secret place is closed."

"WHO ARE SPIRITUALISTS?"

We find the above question asked in the Banner of Light, May 21, 1865, and the following is part of the answer:—

I. "Those who believe man is an immortal spirit, that human spirits exist after the death of the body, and can and do come back—so to speak—manifesting themselves, and communicating to mortals, in the use of various methods, demonstrating immortality, the reality of the spirit-world, and tangible intercourse with the inhabitants of the earth. All who recognize the fact of spirit-intercourse may be regarded as Spiritualists in theory, without reference to life, character or profession; while practical Spiritualists, the true, the genuine, the reliable, are those who seek to make their lives, characters and professions in harmony with the teachings and inspirations of the purest spiritual intelligences communicating with mortals, and the divinest standards of the unfolded soul."

We are expecting that Spiritualism will absorb all but the true christians. The mass of professors of religion are unconsciously drifting into it; while millions have already plunged into the awful cesspool of infidelity, with no prospect of escape. Satan has most successfully transformed himself into an angel of light, through the teachings of modern Spiritualism. He often uses Scripture in a most cunning and ingenious manner, well adapted to deceive those who are not thoroughly posted in the teachings of the Bible. We think none are prepared to stand against this infernal system, until they are settled in the plain Bible doctrine of the sleep of the dead. This truth stands opposed to Spiritualism as a Gibraltar rock, against which all the efforts of demons and their dupes are as unfruitful as the attempt of the Babylonians at the tower of Babel. Thank the Lord for his word with which to meet this modern anti-christ.

II. "What is Spiritualism?" This is the second inquiry in the article from which we took the one in the first part of the article. The following is the answer:—

"It is a system founded on the cardinal fact of spirit-intercourse with mortals, embracing all truth relating to man's spiritual nature, capacities, relations, duties, welfare and destiny; all that is now known or can be known relative to other spiritual beings, and the occult laws and forces of the universe. It is thus catholic and comprehensive: and Spiritualism, in short, may be regarded as the culmination, the essence of all truths, inspirations and revelations brought down to the present age, and demonstrated by unmistakable manifestations of spiritual power and intelligence. These demonstrations are in direct conflict with the evangelical doctrines denominated "The Fall of man," "Total depravity," "Vicarious Atonement," "The Trinity," "Future Judgment," and "Endless Punishment;" the majority of Spiritualists repudiating these doctrines as they are stated by the sects; and in accordance with their own intuitions, and the teachings they receive from spirits, advocating the law of human progress; the natural tendency to good in humanity; the need of retributive justice mingling with mercy, instead of a scheme of vicarious salvation; the certainty of present judgment, rewards and punishments, administered according to natural law of cause and effect." . . . The grand aim of Spiritualism is the quickening and unfolding of the divine nature in man, to the end that the animal or selfish nature shall be overcome, and all evil or disorderly affections rooted out: in other words, that the works of the flesh may be supplanted in each individual by the fruits of the Spirit, and thus mankind become a brotherhood, and God's will be done on earth as it is in heaven."

III. Spiritualism is in harmony with all sound revelation, reason, philosophy and religion; and, without seeking any direct antagonism with seemingly opposite systems, seeks rather to recognize the good and the true in everything, and to harmonize all things according to the laws of eternal progress."

We do not hesitate to affirm that Spiritualism is opposed to "all sound revelation, reason, philosophy and religion," and is the greatest enemy with which christianity has ever had to contend.

A HORRID DEED.

It is very common for the spirits to direct a man to leave his wife and take another, or to advise a wife to forsake her husband and take another selected by the spirits; but the following horrid affair is still worse:

Horrible Murder in Minnesota.—The St. Paul Press gives an account of a shocking murder recently perpetrated in Sibley county, Minn. A Swede named Johnson deliberately chopped off the head of his son, a boy nine years old, with an ax. The murderer says that the spirits told him to do the deed; and he seemed also to have been impressed with the idea that he could restore him to life again. He is said to be not more than half witted. The murder was committed in a field, the boy obediently laying down upon the ground as his father bid him for the execution of the terrible deed.

Change of Time.—The time for the meeting at the West Brick School-house, near Brimfield, Mass., is changed from the 23d to the 30th of July.

TERMS OF THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

The Young Pilgrim will be continued semi-monthly the ensuing year at the following rates:

For a single copy,—Fifty Cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, or any number of copies under fifty, when sent to one address,—Forty Cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number of copies over fifty, when sent to one address,—Thirty-five Cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers,—at the same rates, with no extra charge for American postage.

All subscriptions for the coming year must be made at the above rates.

We shall send the July numbers of the new volume to all of our present subscribers, and hope to hear from every one before the 1st of August. After that, no more will be sent, except to those who have renewed their subscription.

Clubs.

Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other name on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, 37 cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, 32 cents a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less that ten), from 12 to 21 cents a year on each copy.

Subscriptions may commence with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

All communications, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to the YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

W. B. H., Boston, Mass.	$1.00
James Douglass, West Troy, N. Y.	5.00
A. M. L., North Weare, N. H.	5.00
N. D. B., Hallowell, Me.	2.00
Mrs. L. S. Dinsmore, Hallowell, Me.	1.00
Betsy C. Bancroft, Ashburnham, Mass.	.50
A sister	5.00
M. L. Colton, Shabbona Grove, Ill.	.70
"Tariffville," Ct.	2.00
E. D. Hitchcock, Somersville, Ct.	1.00
Geo E. Hooper, No. Hydepark, Vt.	1.00
"Brunswick," Me.	5.00
Maria Drury, Roxbury, Mass.	1.00
D., Farmington, N. H.	1.00
Geo. S. Harwood, No. Swansea, Mass.	10.00
J. B. Walker, Athol Depot	1.78
Wm. Christian, Norwalk, O.	.50
——, East Weare, N. H.	5.00
A sister in New Hampshire	2.00
Amos Scripture, Mason Village, N. H.	1.00
"Friends"	10.00
Mrs. N. J. Humphrey, Yarmouth, Me.	1.13

RESPONSES.

We are pleased to see the growing interest for the freedmen. It encourages the hope that something will be done. God grant it be done well, and quickly. We are not yet half awake to the importance and urgency of the work, and meanwhile are losing opportunities by delay. We ought to have been in the field long ago, working for Jesus and humanity, like the noble Howards, of the Freedmen's and Christian Commissions, following in the track of every army, planting on the very heels of victory schools and missions, enlightening the ignorant, Christianizing the unregenerate, raising the low, feeding the hungry, clothing the naked, relieving the distressed, and pouring the balm of Christian hope and consolation into the hearts of the sick and the dying. It may not be too late yet. Much remains to be done, and we may have a hand in doing it, if we will. Let us atone for past neglect by greater zeal and earnestness in the work already begun. The brethren in convention at Wilbraham, in August next, will doubtless organize missions for the freedmen, and a score of missionaries and teachers ought then to be sent out at once. But the funds to do it with will be needed. Shall they be on hand? or, shall nothing be done, for want of means? Stewards of the Lord's money, it is for you to answer.

Many now stand waiting, all ready and anxious to go. Will you send them? We have just received the following from a brother in Maine:—

"Respecting the Freedmen's Mission, what is to be done? I feel very much interested in this matter, and, if I can be of any service to the Lord out there, and it is his will, I will go; or, I will furnish money to help others go, as the Lord may direct. I feel that I am not my own, but am bought with a price, even the precious blood of Christ, and I think that we should act at once in the matter, as, in all probability, more good can be done now than at any time to come." M. B. C.

Another writes from Illinois:—

"I feel that I must go South, to teach some of the poor freedmen to read the Bible, and would be glad to go under the direction of the Second Advent Missionary Society, which I am confident will be formed in accordance with the recommendation of W. B. H., in the Crisis and Voice of the West." J. H. C.

And another in Massachusetts writes:—

"Dear Bro. H.:—I received your welcome letter in due time. . . . I have given myself up to the Lord and to his cause. I have solemnly promised him I will go into the field as soon as he shall open the way, and feel happy in contemplating the work, notwithstanding the privations to be endured and the crosses to be borne. The hardest thing I shall have to contend with is the separation from those who are near and dear to me. They are bringing every influence they can to bear against me, to get me away from 'the notion' of going 'missionarying.' O, pray for me, that I may have grace given me to obey God. Sister W. (who has been there), loves the work, and her heart is in it. She says she is ready to go again whenever the door opens, and so am I. There is another here also, of a lovely Christian character, and capable of doing much good, who would like to engage in the work, if needed." W. H. F.

We have responses, also, of a like character, from others. Some of our most devoted evangelists are ready to go,—one with his daughter as a teacher,—if the way opens. Shall they go? In view of the great work to be done, and the shortness of time to do it in, who can withhold the means? Are there not hundreds, and hundreds more, who shall, with golden voices from their purses and their hearts, say—"Go"? Yes! and these voices are beginning to come in from all quarters. Here is one, with a $5.00 pledge, from the Granite State:—

"I do not expect to be called to go myself, but it gives me pleasure to cast in my mite to encourage and sustain those whom God shall call to go, to bear the glad tidings of good things to a people who have been so long kept in darkness and ignorance in this enlightened land."

Here comes another from the same State, with another $5.00:—

"I wish to loan $5.00 to the Lord, so I enclose it for the Freedmen's Mission. . . . O, how I wish the brethren and sisters would take more interest in it, and swell the Fund at once to thousands of dollars. It ought to be done."

So it had, and if ever it was needed to do a quick work, it is now. Here comes one from "Rehoboth," who says the Mission lies near his heart, and gives proof of it by sending $10.00; and here another, postmarked "Lawrence":—

"Enclosed is $10.00 for the Freedmen's Mission Fund. Please acknowledge it simply from 'Friends,' that we may know it has been received."

A hundred more such friends will do much towards putting the Mission in successful operation. Who will be one of the hundred?

Here is another, with $2 00, from a sister in New Hampshire, "poor and sick"; but she loves the poor freedmen, and wants to do what little she can to help them. Another in Connecticut sends $1.00, and her prayers with it, to aid in sending to the poor freedmen news of a soon coming King. Another from the same State with $2.00, and a "God speed the work."

Yes, God speed the work! and let all God's people, in heart and word and deed, say—"Amen!" W. B. H.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTICE.

Dear Friends:—I return you thanks for the interest you have taken in my humble efforts to circulate light on the coming of "the Just One." I have just published new editions of all my works, incurring thereby a heavy printer's bill.

I now solicit the patronage of all who desire to circulate information among their neighbors and friends on The Signs of the Times. "Men of Israel, help!" I am absent sometimes from home for a few days. All orders will be attended to on my return. See book notice in another column. S. S. Brewer.

Ashburnham Depot, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

REMARKS ON ASTRONOMY, CONCLUDED.

We now close that which has been one of the most thrilling, or deeply interesting subjects ever discussed by man, as it involves the all-important question, Is Jesus the Christ? is the Bible the book of God? In order that our efforts to attain to the truth may be profitable, even to those who have not followed us up closely in this investigation, I will now in a very brief manner present to view the position that we occupy.

Prof. Hudson claims "that the eclipses of Ptolemy's Canon were actually observed, recorded, and dated, and were no mere result of Ptolemy's calculation," and promised, saying, "I expect to show in due course that accomplished modern astronomers, employing the best modern applications, do find those ancient eclipses as nearly according to the record of them, as any other ancient eclipses are found." He adds, "Such authorities are among my papers biding their time." He then addresses his friends, saying, "If you want like authority, good friends, please trust that of my word, when I say that the Oracles I have consulted may satisfy some of you, when they come to speak"; so all that remains on his part is to produce those authorities. When he does this, he will have complied with his promise, and established the correctness of Ptolemy's Canon so far that it would betray ignorance on our part to doubt its correctness. But if, among all the Oracles that he has consulted, he cannot find one that even claims to have found one single eclipse of the sun according to the record before B. C. 431, has he not failed to comply with his promise, at least as far as the eclipses of the sun are concerned? and so far from finding one that makes all of the eclipses of the moon, according to the record, his "accomplished astronomer," whom he says "is worthy to be relied on as far as any authority may be appealed to in the case," declares that they can not be made, may we not conclude that he has also failed in this department?

Do not understand me to say that the six months' labor on the part of the learned Prof. is all lost, for he admits that "facts are not our enemies if they may help us to the truth"; and if the truth which those facts establish favor the Bible more than Ptolemy, the Prof. should not object to that, for we all give him the honor of having done more to confirm our faith than all who have written on the subject; for he has not only failed to find the first astronomer that claims to make those eclipses, according to the record, but by giving us those eclipses, which "were carefully observed by Ptolemy," he has given us a means by which we can know for ourselves that they cannot be made. For example, the eclipse of A. D. 136, being the last one of those not only seen but "carefully observed by Ptolemy at Alexandria," is undoubtedly the most reliable authority to which man can appeal; and since all astronomical tables that make this in strict accordance with what Ptolemy claims to have seen with his own eyes, and was "carefully observed by him," will make all of those eclipses, both of the sun and moon, which we offer in proof of our Bible Chronology, Prof. Hudson has the honor of giving us this new light, or clear proof of the correctness of all of our astronomical demonstrations. He further has the credit of enabling us to say for certain that none of the eclipses recorded at Babylon occurred on the 8th of March, B. C. 720; for to suppose that there was an eclipse there is to contradict the express word of Ptolemy, as to that which he claims not only to have seen, but "carefully observed."

Pingre and others made a small eclipse on the 8th of March, B. C. 720; but says Prof. Hudson, "Mr. X. also informed" him "that Prof. Airy says in one of his papers that all computations of eclipses previous to the year 1810 are worthless, for the imperfection of the old tables"; and from the light given us by Prof. Hudson, we learn that this is not far from the truth, for not one of them make the eclipse of A. D. 136 as full as Ptolemy declares that it really was. Their reason for not doing so was, no doubt, the desire on their part to make an eclipse on the 8th of March, B. C. 720; for tables that make the eclipse of A. D. 136 as full as Ptolemy declares that it really was, can make no eclipse on the 8th of March, B. C. 720. For example: according to Pingre, the size of the eclipse of A. D. 136 was five digits, and the size of the one on the 8th of March, B. C. 720, was three-fourths of a digit, and this being at the opposite node, if you make the one of A. D. 136 as full as Ptolemy declares that it really was, we have no eclipse at all on the 8th of March, B. C. 720. Therefore, to say there was one there is to say that Ptolemy is unworthy of credit, even as to what he with his own eyes "carefully observed"; and Prof. Hudson says that "facts are not our enemies if they may help us to the truth." He adds, "If an eclipse is recorded as accurately and credibly as are reliable historical events generally, then it becomes a standard, and the tables will come nearer and nearer to it as they are made more and more accurate."

As the eclipse of A. D. 136 is the last one in the catalogue of those "carefully observed" by Ptolemy, it is undoubtedly the highest authority to which any man can appeal; and according to this standard, the tables that make the eclipse of A. D. 136 one minute less than "four equinoctial hours after midnight," are so far incorrect as to time; and those that make the size of this eclipse of the moon one minute less than "half its diameter" are so far incorrect as to quantity; therefore, to say that the tables used by the "Oracle" are correct, is to contradict the express word of Ptolemy, both as to the time and quantity of this eclipse. And since my tables do not only make this eclipse in strict accordance with what Ptolemy saw with his own eyes, but make all others found on record, nothing but prejudice can condemn them.

Wm. C. Thurman.

[illegible]TTED POSTSCRIPT.

[illegible]ing postcript to Sr. Mathewson's a[illegible]od Words," in the Crisis for July 4[illegible]signed to be appended thereto; b[illegible]g sent separately in a private letter, which failed to reach us till this week, we give it a place here:—

P. S. It just strikes me that some may inquire, do not your church in Castleton contribute money for the freedmen? O yes, about eighteen dollars in money from the church and Sunday School here; but it being my object to acknowledge the receipt of money from afar, I entirely forgot any acknowledgement to my own dear church. B. M.

☞ One bad example spoils many good precepts.

For the World's Crisis.

HERE WE GO.

Where? Why, down the stream of fashion, as fast as the current can carry us. No matter what is got up, if it is only fashion; however ridiculous it may appear, on it goes and away to meeting. What think you John the Baptist, whose raiment was of camel's hair, would say was he introduced to one of our fashionable brothers or sisters. Methinks he would use the language like this, "I am afraid of you. Has fashion bewitched you, that you should not obey the truth?" Read what Peter says: "Whose adorning, let it not be that outward adorning, of plaiting the hair, and wearing of gold, or putting on of apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." 1 Pet. 3: 3, 4.

Think how you would look, brethren and sisters, if the Lord were to come and you dressed up in the latest fashion! Hear what Isaiah says: "In that day a man shall cast his idols of silver, and idols of gold, which they made each one for himself to worship, to the moles and to the bats." Isa. 2: 20.

Much more might be said, but "a word to the wise is sufficient." WM. R. BOYKER.

Casco, Me.

Correspondence.

From Bro. B. Spaulding.

BRO. GRANT:—Once more at home after having been gone three months, and continually visiting families and giving lectures. Visited about twenty townships. Experienced great hospitality and kindness from friends of the cause of Jesus.

My health has been good, and I have enjoyed my labors. I have seen the cause prospering, an interest increasing almost every where. I have seen less contention than formerly, more of a disposition to think and let think, to speak and let speak. I am glad to see the liberty of speech and thought gaining ground. I never expect to see even christians think alike in this state of imperfection, and especially on subjects where tradition has affected our minds. We have been taught a good many things which are contrary to God's word; and some favored individual gets light before his brethren, and perhaps he will feel anxious that his brethren should have the light, and perhaps he will press the subject too hard, so as to hurt their minds; then they on their part feel that he has embraced an error, and are tried with him. Thus contention is produced.

But there is a remedy, thank the Lord. A disposition to think and let think, will cure the evil; and I have cultivated that disposition wherever I have been; and, the Lord helping me, I mean to continue doing so. I think we ought not to set it down that we have got to the end of the book, and have nothing more to learn.

Some boast they continue on the original platform of the Advent faith; they believe just what Father Miller taught and nothing more. Now I think we ought to have learned something since Father Miller's day. Yes, we ought to be daily progressing in the knowledge of Bible truth.

I have been a Bible student from my youth up, and have learned a few things, and find there is much still to learn. Whoever reads the prophecies carefully will see there are many predictions yet to be fulfilled, and it must take time to accomplish all the unfulfilled prophecies. Question. Will they be fulfilled before or after Jesus comes? I would like to see the question answered; yet I do not hesitate to say that from the best light I can get, Jesus will soon come, and these prophecies be filled up after he comes.

I find a great inquiry on this subject generally, among our Advent friends, and something written relative to it might shed light upon the people. We want every Bible subject to be carefully investigated.

I shall be at home some six weeks or more. My post-office address is Chelmsford, Mass.

Yours, B. SPAULDING.

From Sr. M. A. Starr.

BRO. GRANT:—The Lord has carried me safely through many dangers since you have heard from me. I am still an invalid, yet have a faint hope of recovery. I feel that my life has been spared in answer to prayer, and I am very thankful to all who have remembered me at the throne of grace. I enjoy few privileges of hearing the word of God, and it is seldom I see a child of God with whom to converse. Can read but little. I deeply feel the need of more grace and spiritual strength. Have great faith in the fervent prayers of christians. Still continue to pray for me, kind friends, that I may be restored to health, and become a true follower of Jesus. MARY A. STARR.

Brookfield.

From Bro. F. C. Torrey.

BRO. GRANT:—I should like to have some preaching brother come this way and preach. I think there is a chance that the truth might spread, if some one would come. We have no preaching here of any kind. But I could not promise any one much pay. I have not heard an Advent sermon for five years. Would some brother come who could labor for small pay? F. C. TORREY.

So. West Harbor, Me.

From H. M. Fisher.

BRO. GRANT:—With your permission I wish to say through the Crisis that if there are any living in or about Washington, D. C., who are expecting Christ, that, in view of this event, let us establish meetings, that others may hear and be getting in readiness for his return. I have been living here over a year, and during that time have never met with one whose faith was in Christ's personal coming, and that so soon. In view of the times in which we live, the va[illegible]nt of work to be done, and the short [illegible]ich to do it, I would call upon all [illegible]n Washington, to meet for prayer, if [illegible]ot have preaching.

Come, friends, if there is one, two, or three, let us make the effort, and I believe it will not be in vain. You know if there are only two or three met in His name, He has promised to be in the midst.

Do not say that it will be of no use, that you have no talents, and that you can do nothing. I feel that I am one of the weakest of the weak, and that if we began in our own strength we should utterly fail; but I feel also that if we are willing to be made the Lord's instruments and do his will, he will take care of his own work. In our weakness is his strength made perfect.

If there are any willing to work for Christ, let me hear from you. Thy sister,

MRS. H. M. FISHER.

Washington, D. C.

Obituaries.

OTIS. Died in East Windsor, July 2d, 1865, Eld. George A. Otis, aged twenty-nine years, three months.

The subject of this notice did not enjoy good health the last year of his life, and was unusually feeble the last few months. The last three or four weeks he was confined to his bed with rheumatic fever, from which he did not recover. He preached his last sermon in Savoy, four weeks previous to the day of his death; at which time he addressed the people with peculiar earnestness and energy. Those who were intimately acquainted with the deceased need not be told of the faithfulness, earnestness, and fervent zeal with which he sought to prepare his fellow men for a coming judgment.

The funeral was attended by Eld. Healy, assisted by Elds. Stark, McCullock and Morgan. A discourse was preached from Dan. 12: 3,—"They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that turn many to righteousness, as the stars forever and ever."

The watchman sleeps; his labor is finished,
His mission of love is ended now;
But he'll come again with his sheaves, rejoicing,
With glory immortal upon his fair brow.

The husband sleeps; his companion, now lonely,
Bows down 'neath her burden of anguish and woe,
But she hopes in a healthier clime to rejoin him,
Where none ever sickness or sorrow can know.

The father sleeps; Georgie long waits for "Papa,"
He's gone where the travelers cannot return;
But our heavenly Father will watch o'er his offspring,
And give him again in a happier home.

He sleeps: a widowed and grief-stricken mother
Gazed on the cold brow, wept o'er the loved form;
But we heard from her lips no low uttered murmur,
Submissively she bowed, "Thy will, Lord, be done."

Our brother sleeps: our circle is broken,
The eldest has fallen in death and decay;
No parting hand given, no farewell word spoken,
Ere the messenger bore him hastily away.

The tomb ever faithful unveiled its cold bosom;
We gave to its dust a new treasure and trust,
And left the blest form in its sacred reposing,
To sleep with the dead, mouldering back into dust;

Where no pain, anxious care, or fear can disturb him;
His suffering is ended, and no mortal woes
Can reach the loved slumberer in his quiet dwelling,
But angels will guard him and watch his repose.

Rest on, wearied one, in thy undisturbed slumber,
Till the trumpet of God, re-echoing far,
Shall pierce the dark tomb, burst thy bands asunder,
And raise thee in glory, a bright shining star.

LUCY R. OTIS.

HOUGH. Died in Bristol, Ct., June 8th, of quick consumption, Bro. William O. HOUGH, aged fifty-seven years.

After five weeks of severe suffering he fell asleep in Jesus. He leaves a wife and three daughters to mourn the loss of a kind husband and affectionate father. The church in Bristol, that remain like Moses' burning bush, feel their loss, and deeply sympathize with the afflicted family. Our preachers will miss Bro. Hough, as his house has been so long a pilgrim's home, where the weary traveler met a warm welcome; but he rests from his labors, and his works follow him.

His funeral being on the Sabbath was largely attended, and the writer tried to comfort the mourning friends from Rev. 14: 13,—"And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead that die in the Lord."

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep!
From which none ever wake to weep."

IRA MORGAN.

CHISAM. Died at China, Me., June 27th, of consumption, Elbridge Chisam, aged fifty-one years.

Bro. Chisam was a lover of God and his truth. For many years religion with him was a living, active principle. He heard the sayings of Christ and did them. He leaves a wife and daughter to mourn his loss. He died in hope of Christ's soon coming to raise the sleeping saints and to give them eternal life. His funeral was attended by the writer, and was followed to the grave by a large concourse of brethren and friends. We laid him in his grave after singing—

"Unveil thy bosom, faithful tomb,
Take this new treasure to thy trust;
And give these sacred relics room
To slumber in the silent dust."

S. K. PARTRIDGE.

BARRETT. Died in Boston, Mass., July 1, 1865, Bro. Geo. Barrett, aged sixty-two years.

Our brother formerly was a member of the Congregational church in this city; but on hearing the doctrine of the pre-millennial and personal coming of Christ, he readily embraced it, and died in hope of a future life through Christ.

Funeral service by the writer.

A. W. SIBLEY.

GILMAN. Died in South Sangerville, Me., June 17th, Etta L., infant daughter of David and Mary E. Gilman, aged five weeks. S. W. AMES.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

From Liverpool the 22d.

The final arrangments on the Great Eastern were being pushed forward at the Nore to the utmost. She would be ready for sea in a few days, but was not expected to leave the Nore until July 9th or 10th. The shore end of the cable would be laid at Valentia on the 10th, ready for the Great Eastern. Absolutely none but those connected with the laying of the cable will be permitted to sail in the Great Eastern. Signals were daily sent through the entire cable. The insulation and conductivity is pronounced almost absolutely perfect. A message of four words occupied a minute and quarter; but double this speed is expected from new instruments.

The new great African lake, said to be discovered by the explorers up the Nile, lies in North latitude 2 deg. 17 min., and is claimed to be "the second and main source of the Nile."

ITALY.

Negotiations are absolutely broken off. The Austrian minister at Rome is charged with being active in preventing an understanding.

It is reported that negotiations between Rome and Mexico are still progressing.

The spread of the cholera in Alexandria is represented as rather less alarming.

Prince Napoleon will soon proceed on a voyage of circumnavigation or discovery, which is likely to keep him away for a considerable period. He will be escorted by a body of savans.

The (Liverpool) European Times speaking of the modest bearing of our two greatest generals, says:

"Grant, in the pride of his reserve, bears a striking resemblance to our own Duke of Wellington. Will the Americans reward and honor the most successful soldier their continent has produced since the time of Washington with any approach to the distinctions and the substantial wealth which we showered upon the Hero of Waterloo, and, if they are so disposed, will he accept them? A pure republican simplicity, worthy of the best days of ancient Rome, appears to be a characteristic of this great man, and it may be doubted whether he would not, like another Cincinnatus, prefer to follow his plow or his tanning again."

The Russian Government papers are said to continue favorable to the cause of the United States.

Fenianism in Liverpool.

It has been rumored for some time past that Fenian agents had been busily at work among the Irish population in Liverpool, and that numbers of persons were being enrolled amongst the "brotherhood." On Wednesday night police officer No. 7 was called upon to apprehend a man named James Byrne, and other men, employed at Mr. Leech's sugar works, in that town, on a charge of having robbed a fellow-workman named Patrick Burns of £7 7s 6d. The officer took the men to the detective office. On Byrne being searched a piece of ruled paper was found in his pocket. On the officer attempting to look at this paper Byrne snatched it from his hand, tore it, and endeavored to swallow it. He was prevented, however, from doing this. The paper was picked up and the fragments being carefully pasted together it was found to be what there is every reason to believe is the Fenian oath. The writing on the paper is as follows:—I, in the presence of Almighty God, solemnly swear allegiance to the Irish Republic, now virtually established, to take up arms in its defence at a moment's notice; that I will to the best of my power, defend its territory and independence, and implicitly obey the commands of my superior officers; so help me God." Byrne is a pensioner, and a certificate of discharge was also found upon him, which showed that he had served in the 86th regiment of foot, and that he had been discharged from that regiment. It is consequently presumed, from his having served in the army that the Fenians were desirous of taking advantage of his military knowledge, for such persons would no doubt be invaluable for the purpose of initiating in the "goose step" those patriots who are to form the armies for the liberation of Ireland."—Liverpool Mercury, June 8th.

DOMESTIC.

New York, July 11. The Herald's Southern Virginia correspondence represents society and industrial affairs in that section still in a very crude condition, owing to the planters and freedmen not yet fully understanding their altered relations. Planters in many cases insist upon their authority to punish the negroes for disobedience. Many of the negroes desert the plantations. The loyalty of the whites, as a general thing, to the government is not of a genuine type. They still cling to semi-civilized ideas of chivalry, regarding labor as dishonorable.

It is said the late rebel portion of the Cherokee Indians in North Western Texas are in great distress and near starvation. Their Chief, Standwater, who held a commission of Brigadier General in the rebel army, has issued an appeal to the people of Texas for assistance.

Up to July 1, 11,476 bales of cotton were received at Mobile. The first mail train from Montgomery since the beginning of the war left on the 1st inst.

Advices from Shreveport say the crops are looking well. Cotton is arriving there slowly, planters being afraid it will be gobbled up by speculators. Seventeen steamboats arrived within a week with full cargoes.

Washington, July 12. President Johnson granted about seventy-five pardons to-day, principally to North Carolinians, on the recommendation of Gov. Holden.

New York, July 13. A fire broke out at noon in Barnum's Museum, extending rapidly to the adjacent buildings on Broadway, Ann and Fulton streets. The Museum was totally destroyed.

Loss said to be a million, on which there is half a million insurance. The fire originated over the boiler in the Museum.

The flames were stopped at 18 Ann street and 147 Fulton street. The property intervening on Broadway, Ann and Fulton streets was destroyed. Six buildings were destroyed on Broadway, eight on Ann street and five on Fulton street.

The heat was so intense that the front of St. Paul's church, opposite the Museum, took fire, but the firemen saved it from the flames.

Nothing but the glass steam engine was saved in the Museum.

New York, July 14. A correspondent of the Herald, who has lately been through Northern Alabama, says that region is almost a continuous field of cotton. The planters have given as much attention to that culture as before the rebellion, and the crops look finely. The negroes are working for their former master for wages, and the new labor system appears to progress well.

A RIVER ON FIRE.—At Jamestown, Illinois, on the 10th inst., the bonded warehouse was struck by lightning, and the building and 2500 barrels of whiskey, belonging to P. L. Howlett, was consumed. The whiskey ran down the hill-side into the river, one sheet of flame more than a mile in length and the full width of the river, making one of the grandest spectacles ever seen. The bridge of the Great Western Railroad, near the distillery, narrowly escaped destruction, the burning current passing under it, the flames not quite reaching the timbers.

TREACHEROUS INDIANS.—Advices from Fort Laramie, dated July 3, affirm that, beyond all dispute, the Arrapahoe Indians, who for some time have been fed by Government at Fort Halleck, as friendly Indians, have been the perpetrators of most of the outrages committed on the overland mail route west of Denver. They have ascertained that they were suspected, and have now taken the war path openly and defiantly. Troops are in pursuit. The Indians have not, so far, succeeded in inflicting damage upon anything but mail steamers and the telegraph lines.

☞ The statistics of the United States census show that the number of deaths among the colored population of Boston is nearly twice as large as the number of births; and that if it were not for the accessions from the South, the negro population would soon be extinct.

Fruits of the Rebellion.

EXTERMINATION AND RUIN IN GEORGIA.

Gov. Brown of Georgia, a few days before his release from the Capitol Prison, in reply to a question as to the condition of the State of Georgia, bursting into tears, is reported to have said:

"We are utterly broken down and crushed. We are completely at the mercy of our conquerors. Our punishment is terrible; our sufferings are almost greater than we can bear. Nearly all the young men—the educated young men—the sons of the wealthy citizens—have fallen in battle or died of diseases incident to the camp. Most of the middle-aged men have met with a similar fate.

Three-fourths of all the old men have either died broken-hearted, or been driven from their homes. The few that remain are virtually reduced to beggary. The power of the wealthy classes is destroyed. Men who a few years ago, were millionaires, are now forced to accept charity at the hands of our military commanders. The poor white masses are reduced to starvation; the blacks are suffering all the worst consequences of the violent sundering of the old social relations. In short," concluded Gov. Brown, "society is in a condition of anarchy. Could the people of the North know how utter is our ruin, they would pity us in spite of their abhorrence of what they consider our treason against the government."

DESTITUTION IN NORTH CAROLINA.

At all points where Northern merchants have opened trade this fact appears. Those who were formerly classed among the richest have most difficulty in raising money. They are really the paupers to-day. This is especially true of the merchants and manufacturers. Trade of all kinds has been dead for two years, except as a few firms were benefited by the blockade runners. The manufacturers have received their pay in Confederate money, and have invested largely in bonds. Men of capital and stock companies have also put their means in these bonds, and the close of the war finds them penniless. On the other hand, the middle classes have avoided the government bonds in a great degree, have hoarded some gold and specie, and now these, and not the reputed wealthy, are the purchasers in the market.

A single case in point will cover a large class in this region. A family who before the war was rich, lived in splendid style in an elegant house, kept many servants, gave grand entertainments, and had everything that money could buy, a few days since lost a colored man by death. The family desired to bury him in the cemetery, but found that it would cost three dollars, and because they could not raise it were obliged to bury the man on their own grounds. Where there are ten men among those once in this community that can raise fifty dollars, there are hundreds that cannot. A man whose taxable property in 1860 was over a million dollars, and who holds the property to-day, cannot raise a hundred dollars in the city where he resides.

The blacks, old and young, gladly avail themselves of the advantages afforded by the schools established for their benefit, and are learning rapidly.

Large numbers, principally old men and females, apply daily for rations. Many are provided with work, and all show a desire to obtain it. Of the five thousand rations issued daily at Raleigh, fully three thousand go to the whites. On this subject we are told:

"Every day great crowds of both whites and blacks flock into the city for rations, and the number of the whites is constantly increasing. So soon as the harvest is gathered there will doubtless be a temporary decrease, but the winter will not pass without much suffering. The only articles issued are bread and salt meat, yet to secure these many walk fifty miles—a trip that cannot be made in less than a week or ten days. Such things serve as exponents of a very terrible condition of affairs."

DESOLATION OF VIRGINIA.

A correspondent who made a trip on horseback through the counties of Orange, Culpepper and Fauquier, writes of the desolation made in that section by the war:

"With the exception of small enclosures of one or two acres, here and there, there is scarcely a fence worthy of the name from the Rapidan to Bull Run; and the fields, once the pride of the farmers' hearts, and shut in by 'ten rails and a rider,' are now broad commons, with old landmarks obliterated, ditches filled up, quarters, corn-houses and barns in ruins, while the lone and blackened chimneys of the once happy homestead stand like some grim old sentries until the last.

The once majestic forests of oak, hickory, chestnut and pine along the line of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad have disappeared and given place to the rude huts and cabins improvised by the armies of Lee and Meade, and instead of whortleberries, chinquepins and chestnuts, one kicks up canteens, worn-out knapsacks, old shoes, bread boxes, suggestive of the inevitable 'hard tack,' bayonet scabbards, with here and there a stand of grape, a ten-pounder Parrott shell, and everywhere almost the hollow-base 'little Minies,' whose whistling tones are so familiar to us all.

The village of Raccoonford is a village no longer. Stevensburg is Stevensburg only on the military maps. Brandy Station is a brandy smash, and all to pieces at that, and all along the route, crossing and recrossing the railroad, one sees nothing where man's agency is concerned but utter desolation."

DISORGANIZATION IN MISSISSIPPI.

The Herald's Columbus (Miss.) correspondent says he finds the majority of the people in that section exceedingly ignorant, and devoid of enterprise or energy, the poor whites standing on a par with the negroes. What little there was of society before the war was composed of wealthy slaveholders, and now that slavery has ceased to exist, the social establishment is completely disorganized.

SOCIAL CONDITION OF ALABAMA.

A surgeon in the army gives a picture of the state of society in Alabama, since the return of the paroled armies of Lee and Johnson, from which we extract the following:

"They came back breathing vengeance against the 'bomb-proofs'—I was up in the hills, seventy miles from here, alone and without escort or guard, and naturally saw and heard much from both sides. Old citizens were fleeing from their homes, and piteously appealed to me to know if we could not send troops to their rescue. The soldiers were openly defiant to what they themselves called the 'd—d old secesh,' robbing them of mules, cattle and provisions, and with quivering lips telling me of all the long catalogue of wrong and outrage of the last four years. Several murders had already occurred, and many more have since happened. They that took the sword have fallen by the sword. Last Saturday two wealthy and prominent citizens were hung, and the gang have announced a 'proscribed list' of six others. Understand this is not guerilla warfare—it is Corsican vendetta. I can and do go freely through all the country without danger. But the rich cannot.

The slaves, on the other hand, behave well. Through all the debasement and ignorance of the blacks there is a Christ-like element in their character, a gentle and forgiving spirit, which is wonderful. They know and insist upon their freedom, but they have already learned that liberty implies labor, and are mostly at work again for wages. And their terror-stricken masters, hunted down by the returned soldiery, turn timidly to 'the niggers' for protection. The great problem of liberation is by no means solved—it involves infinite difficulties—but we know at least that the blacks are docile, and will be as wax in our hands, if they are only properly and wisely governed."

ITEMS.

☞ The ex-Queen of the Sandwich Islands, who arrived at Panama the other day en route for Europe, came on an English man-of-war and left on the English mail steamer. She is said to be a very intelligent and well educated person. The Queen had some time ago expressed a desire to visit England and the continent, and as soon as the desire became known to the British Government, a first class frigate was placed at her disposal.

☞ The grape crop in the western part of Illinois is very heavy this season, especially in Hancock County, where the estimated yield of wine will be nearly 1,000,000 gallons against about 250,000 gallons last year, when the grape crop was almost an entire failure.

☞ The health of the Emperor Maximilian, now at Puebla, is said to be very poor, and he has transacted but little business during his more than two months absence from the capital.

☞ There were more than one hundred persons prostrated by sunstroke in Cincinnati and vicinity on the 4th July. Several cases proved fatal. The mercury marked one hundred degrees in the shade.

☞ In the terrible tornado at Viroqua, Wis., the house of J. A. Somerby was blown away, and his printing office pied, and the contents of his bookstore distributed for miles.

☞ Pulmonic consumption is said to be more prevalent in Vienna than in any other city of Europe.

☞ The heat in Paris, during the past month, has been intense. Not a drop of rain. The city is literally a fiery furnace, so terrible, that at certain hours of the day the asphalte of the Boulevards is, in some places, in a half-molten state.

☞ A grove of mammoth trees has been discovered in Santa Cruz county, Cal. The largest tree is fifty-four feet in circumference, and two hundred and fifty feet high—the first hundred feet from the ground without a limb.

☞ It is reported that the negotiations between the Mexican Embassy and the Papal Court have been interrupted, and that the Embassy will leave Rome and M. Neglia return from Mexico. Florence papers confirm this rupture.

☞ A Turin journal has published an address of the Italian press to President Johnson, begging him to accord a general amnesty to all the Confederates without distinction.

☞ New York city and county furnished 116,382 men for the war, and expended $17,500,000 for war purposes.

☞ According to the Internal Revenue returns, the sales at A. T. Stewart's wholesale store in New York last year, were over $39,000,000.

☞ The Richmond Republic estimates the Southern loss by the war as $5,800,000,000.

☞ The anti-slavery party in Brazil is increasing rapidly in numbers and influence.

☞ The health of Mr. Frederick W. Seward continues to improve.

Married.

In Whitefield, July 4th, by S. K. Partridge, LEONARD A. HILTON and MELISSA S. HATCH, both of Jefferson.

Notices.

The Wilbraham Campmeeting.

This great annual gathering of God's waiting people will commence on Monday, August 21st, and hold through the week and over the following Sunday. Let preparations be made for a general attendance from all parts of the land. The interests of God's cause call upon you to be there. In the mean time let fervent prayer go up from every closet and from every pulpit and family altar for God's blessing on it. Particulars hereafter.

Wilbraham via. Rutland.

Who desires to go to Wilbraham campmeeting through Rutland? Let churches in Vermont ascertain about how many will go, that it may aid us in getting fare reduced clear through. Write to H. F. CARPENTER, Rutland, Vt.

Tremont Grove and Campmeeting.

This meeting will be held upon the same ground as last year, one-half mile from the Tremont Depot, West Wareham, Mass., on the Old Colony and Cape Cod Railroad, thirty-five miles from Boston, and eighteen from New Bedford. It will commence July 25th, and continue over the Sabbath. We hope to greet the many we have met there before, and many more beside. Shall we not see many from Portsmouth, Concord, Lawrence, and from towns round about Boston? Encouraged by the blessings of God upon this meeting in the past, we expect a larger and a better one this year.

Preachers who may come in the name of the Lord will find a cordial welcome. We, however, assume no responsibilities save with such as are engaged. None are desired who come in their own name, or in the name of some strange doctrine. The objects of this meeting are to comfort and strengthen the saints, and save men "from the wrath to come."

H. MUNGER, for the Committee.

Conference.

Our Eastern Maine Conference will be held in the town of Hermon, to commence Friday, August 18th, at 10 o'clock A. M., and continue over the Sabbath. Friends wishing to attend the meeting will call on Bros. Richard Dore and John Brackett for directions relative to entertainment. By order of the committee, M. YOUNG, Clerk.

Campmeeting Notice.

There will be a campmeeting in New Preston, Ct., commencing Monday, Sept. 4th, and hold over the Sabbath. Particulars hereafter. In behalf of the committee of arrangements. A. ROSS.

Tremont Campmeeting.

The fifth annual campmeeting will commence at Tremont, Tuesday, July 25th, and hold over the following Sabbath. The Committee will make arrangements for boarding. Bro. Hiram Munger will preside, arrange for the preaching, and give due notice of the same. By order of the Committee.

To All Concerned.—Removal.

I have removed my business to a large and commodious office, 19 Lindall St., directly in the rear of the Boston Post Office, where I have a good assortment of tracts, new and old, Bible Students' Libraries, pamphlets, Sunday school books, etc., etc. Several new tracts are ready for the press, and it is hoped that other publications will follow in quick succession. All letters, orders and remittances designed for me, whether for Social Hymns, "Children's Hymns, Lyres, Bibles, Libraries, Concordances, Hebrew, Greek, or English, or any other books published by the Tract Societies or S. S. Unions, or others, in this country or England, which are of use to Bible students, should be directed to H. L. HASTINGS, Scriptural Tract Repository, No. 19 Lindall St., Boston, Mass.

July 10, 1865.

H. L. HASTINGS,
Scriptural Tract Repository, 19 Lindall Street,
Boston, Mass.
OPPOSITE THE POST OFFICE.

Notice.

The Lord willing, we will hold a meeting at Findley's Lake, Chaut Co., N. Y., August 11th, in the evening. Also on Ripley Hill, near Bro. James Thorp's, Saturday and Sunday, 12th and 13th, as Bro. Thorp may appoint, and at the Sherwood schoolhouse, near Union Mills, the 14th, in the evening. Father and Mother Ongley will be with me, and assist in preaching the word.

JOHN T. ONGLEY.

Dedication.

The Free Advent meeting-house at Lake Village will be dedicated July 22d, at ten o'clock A. M. Elds. M. Grant, T. W. Piper, and others, will be present. Meeting to continue over the Sabbath.

J. KNOWLES, for the brethren.

Campmeeting in Wallingford.

There will be a campmeeting on Wallingford Farms, Ct., commencing August 14th, and continuing over the following Sunday. Particulars hereafter. B. HITCHCOCK.

Notice.

Elder Thomas Smith, Bangor, Me., has on hand for sale H. L. Hastings' "Signs of the Times," with an assortment of his various Tracts; also, the Tracts by Miles Grant, on "The Soul," "The Spirit, and "What is Man?" and other Advent tracts.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

Hiram Munger........Sunday, July 23d

East Boston........Sunday, July 23d
C. GOODRICH.

☞ A social meeting of the friends of the Tract work is invited at The Rooms of the "SCRIPTURAL TRACT REPOSITORY," 19 Lindall St., in the rear of the Boston Post Office, at 7½ o'clock P. M., on Monday evening July 23d, 1865. By H. L. HASTINGS.

Pittsfield, N. H., Saturday evening, July 29th, at 6½ o'clock, and over the following Lord's day.
MILES GRANT.

Lowell, Mass........Sunday, July 23d
DR. A. DECKER.

North Adams........Sunday, July 23d
E. MCCULLOCK.

East Stoneham, Me........Sunday, July 23d
Livermore, (Britton's Mills)........Sunday, July 30th
I. C. WELLCOME.

Plymouth, Mass........Sunday, July 23d
W. F.

Augusta, Me........July 30th
H. D. REED.

South Woodscock, Me., (Meeting-house)........July 23d
C. M. CURRIER.
A. O. BURRILL.

Agawam, Mass........Sunday, July 23d
H. PRATT.

West Abington........Sunday, July 23d
S. H. MORRISON.

Rochester, N. H., (Hacket school-house), Sunday, July 23d.
Z. BOODY.
J. W. HORNE.

North Stafford, N. H........Sunday, July 30th
Pearsonfield, (where Bro. Moulton may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 6th.
West Deerfield........Sunday, Aug. 13th
New Durham Ridge........Sunday, Aug. 20th
J. G. SMITH.

Rochester, N. H., (Brick school-house, Lewis McDuffee's district), Sunday, July 23d. J. G. SMITH.
J. PINKHAM.

Camps Mills, Ct........Sunday, July 30th
Yalesville, Ct........Sunday, Aug. 6th
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Portsmouth, N. H........Lord's day, July 23d
Exeter........Lord's day, July 30th
GEO. W. BROWN.

BIDDEFORD, ME.

J. F. Varney........July 23d
A. Stimson........July 30th
R. R. York........Aug. 6th

Portland, Me........July 23d and 30th
J. K. BELLOWS.

South Reading........Friday evening, July 21st
Tremont camp-ground........Monday, July 24th
All letters to me must be directed Chicopee Falls, instead of Chicopee. HIRAM MUNGER.

Manchester, N. H........Sabbath, July 23d
T. M. PREBLE.

Camps Mills, Ct........July 23d
Wallingford Farms, Ct........July 30th
B. HITCHCOCK.

Warner, (Waterloo school-house)........July 23d
Z. FORD.

Holderness, (Brick school-house)....Sunday, July 30th
Manchester........Sunday, August 6th
NELSON HARTSHORN.

Conference in Dover school-house, Saturday, Aug. 5th at 3 P. M.
South Atkinson........Sunday, Aug. 6th
Sebec, Me., (school-house near Bro. Joshua Livermore's) Sunday, Aug. 13th. THOMAS SMITH.

Dover, N. H., (in the old Court House), every Sabbath until further notice. T. M. LATHAM.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine Ground), every two weeks until further notice. S. S. MOONEY.

Danbury, N. H., (Town Hall)........July 23d
Concord, N. H........July 30th
Portsmouth, N. H........Aug. 6th
Worcester, Mass........Aug. 13th and 20th
J. COUCH.

Northfield Farms, Mass........Sunday, July 23d
North Adams........Sunday, July 30th
A. MUSSEY.

Rome, Me........Aug. 5th and 16th
H. B. SEVEY.

Cheshire Street, Ct........Sunday, Aug. 6th
Wallingford Farms........Tuesday evening, Aug. 8th
Yalesville, Ct........Thursday evening, Aug. 10th
Plymouth Hollow........Friday evening, Aug. 11th
Northfield, (where Bro. Humphreville may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 13th. L. BOUTELL.

Philadelphia, Pa........July 23d and 30th
RUFUS WENDELL.

Bradford, N. H., (at Israel Andrews). Saturday evening, July 22d; and Sunday, 23d, at Pond meeting-house. Love feast 9 A. M. Baptism P. M.
North Sutton, Saturday evening, July 29th, and at Israel Andrews' meeting-house Sunday, July 30th. Love feast 9 A. M.
Top of Kearsarge Mountain........Aug. 6th
JOHN G. HOOK.

There will be preaching at the West Brick School-House, near Brimfield, Mass., Sunday, July 30th. Let there be a general attendance. Come, rally in the name of the Lord. S. S. BREWER.

Brookfield, N. H., instead of Bro. Ross........July 30th
Westboro, Mass........Aug. 6th and 13th
A. W. SIBLEY.

Rome, Me........July 23d
E. L. HOWARD.

Newburgh, (school-house near Joseph Smith's), Sunday, July 23d. THOMAS SMITH.

Springfield, Mass........Sunday, July 23d
Palmer........Monday eve., July 24th
Clinton........Wed. eve., July 26th
Holden........Friday P. M., July 28th
Worcester........Sunday, July 30th
A. ROSS.

West Hill, Ct........July 30th
Lovely Street........August 6th
H. ROCKWELL.

Lee........Sunday, July 23d
Dover........Sunday, July 30th
Kennebunkport, Me........Sunday, Aug. 6th
BENJ. P. MANNING.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

S. Hale—Have sent the package to Troy, N. Y. Call at P. O. for it.
I. Kulp—Keep them.
J Pinkham—J. L. G., 15 cents.
L. H. Little—Out of Munger. Sent you others.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 511. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, (if any), charge four cents; for every week since No. 468, if less than 26 weeks, five cents; if over 26 weeks, six cents a week (or $3.12 for the year.) From this sum deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—E W Hall 523, H G Thompson 534, E J Hodges 532, E Elliott 532, C W Richards 503, S Tibbetts what P. O.? G Wheeler 532, Z Snow 540, W M Webster 519, E Barnes 485, E Russell 483, E M Ruggles 530, A Studson 521, J Purinton 505, L Parmelee 505, Mrs. E Welch 501, E T Harding 532, W H S Silvernail 523.

$1.25 each—J H Baguley 536, F Dodge 534, E A Davis 530, B Wheelock 537, N B Weston 535, A Scoville 641, C Richardson 515, G Sheldon 538, W J Cabot 538, J S Clark 538, C H Bradford 535, J G Benton 539, W Straight 529, S D Ackerman 530, S Morse 536, J Kimball 520, J Lord 549, J W Houghton 520, A C Page 535, F H Lee 536, B Cheney 533, I Bickford 526, M F Grant 532, J M Hackett 527, W Farris 545, G G Gasper 484, D C Tourtellot 520, R Boardman 555, C S Wood 541, L A Hyde 520, H Everton 531, S. W. Hersey 535, A. C. Greene 532, J B Cranshaw 520, J A Neal 530, W Justice 473, E Pease 536, J C Smith 536.

$1.50 each—S Torrey 528, G B Whitford 534, E Wilcox 514, J. Messer 538.

$2.00 each—B Ballard 537, G Hall 544, U B Persons 536, T Vogan 509, W McCulloch 560, W Chapman 507, D Gates 532, S C Smith 552, R Snow 508, H Raymond 506, Mrs. J Canterbury 562, A Corliss 499, H K Dunning 493, J C Rice 536.

$2.50 each—S F Field 539, P F Lyman 561, T B Dustin 538, M Chamberlin 569, W H Simmons 561, A S Robie 554, M Mills 516, S Goodhue 537, E Davis 539, A Triplett 537, W. K. Mount 537, L A Saunders 557, F. Corker 563, A Farrow Jr. 563, C Soper 520, E F Snow 562, R Felton 519, A E Bradbury 562, R Westcott 561, M. S. Grinnell 546, J. Parker 561, M. Walters 548, E. Childs 511, M Gawson 576, W Burdick 552, W Christian 546, R Tabor 547, S L Searle 572, A Scripture 5[illegible], G. F. Locke 551, J. Lepard 564, B. B. Hoitt 557, O. P. Redington 559, S Brandenburg 562, G. Safford 507, I. Chase 2nd 560, D H Hart 560, I Ladd 546, H F Goud 561, H Fogg 572, C Chester 648.

$3.00 each—M J Quick 534, A Perry 528, L Whitney 553, C W Stevens 552.

$5 00 each—D Winter 564, S Manning 601, S Hitchcock 614, N Goodell 510, J Oldershaw 520.

Various sums.—J. Staples 25c, 509; S. Rose $4.42, 510; J H Cotton 63c, 519; W F Knowlton $1.97, 535; J. Davis 15c, 510; S. Crispin $1.50, 540; J. A. Bappee $4.43, 494; P. Ames 37c, 509; D. T. Miller $4.50, 541; W A Emery 50c. 510; E Murrow 63c, 521; I Tuttle 50c, 521; E B Scott $3.50, 524; T. M. Crawford 50c, 519; C L Crafts $4.00, 550; A. Wheeler 10c, 508; K. Holt 80c, 520; H G Dearborn $1.90, 511; A Cutting 70c, 532.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

30 cts. each—W. H. S. Silvernail, O. Kendall, D. H. Hart, E T Harding, E C Hersey, E A Benton, H W Dann, D B Waterbury, T J Holdridge.

E W Hall 87c, B Bray $1.50, W H Chapman $5.00, F H Stevens 25c, H McClary $1.00, M B Cyphers 50c, F Tripp $2.30, E B Coon 5 c, M Crabtree 87c, T Smith $1.75, C F Morse 50c, E Wilcox 35c, D M Kinter $9 00, R Westcott 72c, L A Hyde $1.85, E A Cole 70c, A Mallory 75c, F Burt 45c, F D Gilles $2.00, H G Dearborn 40c, J Pinkham $6.10, A Wyeth 50c. D L Hazen 65c, J Fowler 25c, S Hale 80c, E Elliott 50c, J Heady 40c, C C Johnson 60c, G Huntley $1.10, J D Ellis $1.00, J F Boyd $1.50, I R Cook 60, G F Lock 1.18, F O Haskell $1.70. L C Wheeler 1.87, H A Little $1.00, G White 38c, E Childs 25c.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL—S Hale, T Smith, A Benton, H A Billings, H Edgington, C B Keach, G F Locke, J Marqual, P Noka, C F Morse, E. WILCOX, Avon, N. Y., A Schellabarger, F D Gilles, H G Dearborn, F Dibble, E T Harding, D M Kinter, O Kendall, G W Card, G H Cilley, W A Munroe, E W Ayer, L H Little, H Perkins, H Little, W H Silvernail, G White, G F Locke, D H Hart, G Huntley, I R Cook, C C Johnson, J B Whitaker, J F Boyd, E A Cole, M W Dann, J D Ellis, M Chandler.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

L B Weaver, Ira Tuttle, M E Blodgett, L Reimer, D T Taylor, W H Silvernail, C Churchill, W H McDaniels, E Dodgson, C C Ramsey, A Flagg, S P Shepherd, H Munger, M B Czechowski, J Elkins.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library; with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid; $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

THE NEW TESTAMENT of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

WHY THE SHOE PINCHES. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

GLAD TIDINGS; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts.; postage, 2 cts.

THE TAKING OF HUMAN LIFE incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 2 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 5c, postage 2c.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

MULLER'S LIFE OF TRUST. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

DIPHTHERIA: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. Price, 10 cts.; by mail, 12 cts.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. Price $2.50. Postage 36 cts.

NON-RESISTANCE; or, the Spirit of Christianity restored. By W. C. Thurman. Price 20 cts.; postage 4 cts.

CHLOE LANKTON; or, Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75 cents. By mail, 87 cts.

GLAD VOICES; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty-five or less.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.00.

LIKENESS OF WM. MILLER, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

ENGLISH BIBLES.

Sent by mail, postpaid, at the following prices:—

Diamond,	morocco, gilt, marginal references,	$1.75
"	roan, "	1.10
"	roan, " brass rims and clasps,	1.70
"	calf, colored edges, marg. ref.,	1.35
Pearl,	morocco, gilt, reference between verses,	2.40
"	morocco " circuit bind., marg. ref.,	3.20
"	roan, " reference between verses,	1.75
"	roan, " rims and clasps, marg. ref.,	2.00
Nonpareil,	morocco, gilt, circuit bind., marg. ref.,	3.80
"	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.00
Minion,	morocco, gilt, without references,	2.40
"	roan, " without references,	1.90
"	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.50
"	calf, marbled edges, without ref.,	2.15

Address all orders, with the money, to
MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Dr. T. Clapp. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; [illegible]

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 13th chap. [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.00. By Express—1500 pages for $1.00. Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; [illegible]

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers	36 pages.
The Saints' Inheritance	48 "
The New Heavens and New Earth	24 "
The Voice of Warning	24 "
The Advent at Hand	24 "
The Last Days	24 "
The Church not in Darkness	24 "
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one)	24 "
Outline of the [illegible] of Man	8 "

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State	24 pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead	48 "
Ghostology	48 "
Man's Future State	24 "
The Key of Truth	24 "

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved	24 pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment	12 "
Future Punishment Destruction	12 "
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts)	12 "
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Wicked	12 "
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary	12 "
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality	12 "

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one)	36 pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one)	36 "
One Thing	12 "
Judson's Letter on Dress	12 "
Duty of Christians (a peace tract)	12 "
Leaflets for Letters,—6 cents per set.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. [illegible]
2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. [illegible]
3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. [illegible]
4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]
5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]
6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. [illegible]
7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 [illegible]
8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. [illegible]
9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]
10. The History of an Immortal Soul. [illegible]
11. Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C. F. Hudson. [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense of Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. [illegible]

Blain's Tracts.

Price.—1 cent for every 8 pages; [illegible]

Endless Misery not a Bible Doctrine [illegible]
The Wicked not Immortal (with 300 proof-texts) [illegible]
Bible Meaning of the word Hell [illegible]
Bible Meaning of Forever and Everlasting [illegible]
Smoke of Torment and Unquenchable Fire Explained [illegible]
Rev. John Foster's Letter on Future Punishment [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

WE SEEK THE GREAT CITY.

"For here have we no continuing city, but we seek one to come."—HEB. 13: 14.

We seek the great City where life's river is flowing,
Transcendent as crystal from Deity's throne,
And on either side rare fruitage is growing,
And the surrounding lands with sweet flowers are strown.
Its portals are pearl, and the walls are of jasper,
And its mansions are built of the finest of gold;
There the people are safe from all harm and disaster,
And there peace, love, and friendship their pinions unfold.

'Tis richer by far than the cities of nations,
And the meek and the lowly have great treasures there,
And the poor of this world hold exalted stations
In that bright metropolis of Eden made fair.
'Tis the beautiful home of happy redeemed ones,
Who through Jesus shall triumph over death and the grave,
And earth's mourning pilgrims will meet with their loved ones,
As they joyfully walk o'er the bright golden pave.

Bright seraphs and angels now inhabit that city,
Who lovingly wait the redemption of man,
And with faces that beam with love mingled with pity,
They chant their rich praises to God and the Lamb.
Through earth's weeping vale glad tidings are sounding,
That break like sweet music on the lone traveler's ear;
Zion's watchmen now tell that home we are nearing,
And the King in his beauty will quickly appear.

Praise to Jehovah! who the sure word hath spoken;
Hallelujah to Jesus! O let the bride sing,
For the death-bound captives from their graves he will ransom,
And long o'er the new earth shall the victor's song ring.
For lo! the King cometh with power and great glory,
To restore the lost Eden and gather the blest.
By the heart searching Judge may we all be found worthy
To pass through the pearl gates to his mansions of rest.

JANE J. AUSTIN.

Bristol, Ct.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE.

NUMBER FOURTEEN.

TO BRO. D. D. C.—My Dear Brother:—Your favor is received, and I will now notice its several points. You remark that the state of sanctification, as held by myself and others, puzzles you; and say also that, "if a state in which all moral conflict ceases is attainable in this life, it is one to which I have not attained, though I very much desire it."

I will not now attempt to elucidate the state of sanctification, but first reply to your remark touching "moral conflict." I am not aware of having intimated the idea in any of my letters that the christian can attain to "a state in which all moral conflict ceases," and I certainly do not for one moment believe it. Indeed I am of the opinion that none feel the power of temptation so strongly as the wholly sanctified; i. e., the darts of Satan are more fiery in their nature. Temptations that would seem severe to the less advanced christian would have no power over one who was perfected in the love of God, and endued with power from on high. The more strongly fortified is the city, the more powerful are the means employed to take it.

It is not necessary for the christian to be possessed of a sinful natnre in order to be tempted; for, if this were so, our Savior who was without spot, who had no sinful propensities, could not have been tempted. But he endured sore temptations, being for forty days tempted by Satan, yea, for a longer period, for we read that he fasted forty days, during which time he was tempted of the devil; and when that period was ended he became hungry, and then Satan took advantage of his physical need, and tempted him to exercise his divine power by converting the stones into bread for the satisfying of his hunger.

But Jesus defeats the tempter with the sword of the Spirit. He then changes his tactics and conveys Christ to the holy city, and places him on the battlement of the temple. This was probably the highest part of the temple—the royal portico, the pilllars of which, says Josephus, were a hundred cubits high, and the valley beneath four hundred deep. Here he tempted him to a presumptuous act, an unauthorized faith in the promise of angelic care and protection. This temptation is frustrated by an answer from the word of God.

Then the devil takes him to the top of a very high mountain, and shows to him all the kingdoms of the world, and then promises to give them all to him if he will fall down and worship him. O, what an awful temptation was that! The Son of God tempted to worship Satan! Who has had a temptation more fearful, more blasphemous than this? Jesus came to redeem the world from its fall; to ransom the sceptre from the hand of the vile usurper; to gain for himself the crowns of apostate kingdoms. But it was only by a life of toil, of suffering, of shame, and an ignominious death on the cross, that he was to achieve this mighty work, and attain the title of "King of kings, and Lord of lords."

But now Satan will concede all, just for one act of homage. Afar from human ken, alone on the mountain top, he may by this brief worship escape all future sorrows, and the dreadful death, and at once gain to himself the revolted empire with all its glories. Yet once again the sword of the Spirit is wielded, and the devil, finding all of his temptations unsuccessful, leaves him for a season; then the angels come and minister to his wants, and after being thus refreshed, he returns in the power of the Spirit to Galilee, and enters anew upon his ministry.

We have dwelt somewhat largely on this point to show how long and fearfully tempted was the holy Son of God on this occasion, yet without sin. You see that Satan had great power over his physical nature; he had power to take him on to the pinnacle of the temple, and to the top of "an exceeding high mountain"; but he did not have power over the spiritual nature; he could not compel him to obey his wicked suggestion.

Some writers have come to the conclusion that these were all the temptations presented to our Lord, and attempt to reconcile the apostolic declaration that he was tempted in all points like unto us, with the idea that those specified temptations embrace every form of temptation to which the christian is subjected. This cannot be so. For forty days Jesus was tempted; in what way we are not told; it is only of the closing acts we are informed, and of the future conflicts we are ignorant; but the expression that the devil left him for a season shows clearly that he was at other times called to experience the buffetings of his great foe.

The most holy christians have been the subjects of fearful temptations; and against those who are the most active in the cause of Christ, those who hate sin the most, and are devoted to the work of extermination, he wages his most malign arts, he thrusts his most fiery darts; worrying where he can't destroy, with an anecdote illustrative of this point, I will close this epistle.

A christian brother had a dream. He saw three churches; on the roof of one there were many devils, and they were wide awake and very busy chatting together. On the roof of another there were but two or three, and they seemed sleepy and inactive. On the third church there sat one poor devil, fast asleep. He was puzzled at the sight, and desired greatly to understand its meaning.

While thus perplexed, one approached him and gave him this interpretation:

"At that church where you see so many devils, wide awake and active, God is pouring out of his Spirit; a great revival is in progress; the church is in the work, and sinners are converted. Hence many devils are busy to hinder all they can the advancement of the cause of Christ. Where you see but few devils, the church is greatly backslidden, only here and there one who is serving God: therefore Satan deems it unnecessary to appoint many sentinels over that church, and those you see are half asleep at their post. That church where you see one lone devil fast asleep, is where the doctrine of universal salvation is preached; hence Satan's cause is here so flourishing, the sinner is so effectually led on in the broad way, deeming himself sure of final happiness, that his agent finds nothing to do, therefore has fallen asleep."

This is a striking and truthful illustration, not only in its application to churches, but to individuals. We see this exemplified in the life of Luther, and of Bunyan. What sore conflicts they endured with Satan! On one occasion, you know, Luther threw his inkstand at the devil, who appeared to him, and the wall was indelibly marked with its black stain. Bunyan describes such keen anguish from the accusations and blasphemous suggestions of the devil, as but few can comprehend. Against these two reformers he had special spite, for they were doing a mighty work against his kingdom.

The more devoted the christian to his God, the more constant his efforts for high attainments in the divine life, the greater will be the efforts of the enemy of righteousness to defeat his purpose, to discourage his endeavors, to weaken his faith, and separate him from Christ. Every inch of ground gained on the race course is disputed by Satan. Let those therefore who would escape his assaults be content where they are, be satisfied with past experience, and seek for no further progress, and their sentinel will fall asleep at his post. More anon. M. D. W.

For the World's Crisis.

MINNESOTA CONFERENCE.

The third session of the Minnesota Annual Conference of the Advent Christian Church was held at Elliott, July 1, 1865. Eld. Wm. Sweet presided.

The conference chose its officers for the ensuing year, which resulted in the election of Bro. W. Sweet, President, and Bro. T. K. Allen, Secretary. The conference formed itself into two districts or portions, and appointed Bro. W. James Bursell to the northern district and Eld. T. K Allen to the southern district. These brethren were appointed, not as evangelists, but for the purpose of exercising a pastoral care over the churches and the scattered saints within their respective bounds, and to supply the demand for preaching as often as practicable.

The conference deeply lamented the loss of the labors of Eld. Charles L. Page, a faithful and zealous minister, who, during the past year, was so suddenly stricken down by death, feeling assured that he sleeps in Jesus and will rise to immortality when the Life-giver shall come.

The conference was well represented by ministers and delegates, having a larger number of ministers in attendance than any other previous year.

The ministers' reports of their labors in building up the churches, accessions, promulgation of the truth, and the increase of interest on the subject on the part of the people, were encouraging. The report of the churches within the bounds of the conference show that they are in a healthful and prosperous condition.

Bro. W. J. Bursell, pastor of the church at Canton, and a member of the conference, was solemnly set apart by prayer and imposition of hands to the work of an elder in the church of Christ. Bro. W. Sheldon was present with the Western Tabernacle, who will preach every day and evening for a week or more to come.

I do not remember of ever seeing such large and interesting audiences before in Minnesota (except at campmeeting), as attended on the preaching of the word last Sunday. Sister R. M. Rowell, a member of the Conference, preached in the morning from the words—"The wages of sin is death; but the gift of God is eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord." Preaching in the afternoon and evening by Eld. Sheldon. During the afternoon five happy believers were led down to the water and baptized. At the close of the evening service we commemorated the dying love of our blessed Redeemer.

The next Annual Conference was appointed to be held at New Boston, Winona Co., on the last Saturday in June, 1866.

THOS. K. ALLEN, Secretary.

For the World's Crisis.

FROM THE CHURCH AT POULTNEY, VT.

BRO. GRANT:—I sincerely feel that a few words from us, as a church, relative to the late Convention of female laborers among us, is due not only to them, but to the churches at large. Though somewhat late, having waited for others to speak, I will briefly state that viewing the result, we are confirmed in the belief that God was with our Sr. Smith in the call for a convention, and that he favored us in the invitation we extended, and approved of their acceptance of the same. In short, it was to us a "God-send."

It is but just that we acknowledge our low state as a body, many of us laboring under discouragements and disheartening circumstances, while others were coldly indifferent, to say nothing of the opposition felt by some to female laborers. I, with others who hoped for the best, had some secret fears as to the object and result of such a gathering, which were soon removed, and we were made to feel that God was truly with them, requiring but little argument to give power, and but feeble testimony to scatter conviction; thus convincing of the genuineness of their calling and mission; and notwithstanding the numbers from abroad were few, and the winds were adverse at first, Sr. Smith manifested the same zeal which has hitherto characterized her writings, and being placed at the head of the Association, bore the burden and heat of the day with untiring effort, and with an ambition well worthy our imitation; while others brought up in the rear, each cutting their way, till with their variety of gift, by the same Spirit, it would seem that all classes of minds were met.

As proof of their ministry I will say that the church was built up and greatly encouraged, the wandering sheep came bleating to the fold, for the voice of their Shepherd was discernible. We are still rising, and the blessing remains with us. The indifferent are confessing, sinners are trembling, and omens of increasing good hang over us, as a result, through the blessing and approval of God, of the visit of our sisters. I trust we shall be found in harmony with God and his workmen, and help those women who labor in the Gospel, in whatsoever way they have need; and christian sympathy costs but little. We shall ever remember their visit to our church, and feel no reluctance in extending a second invitation in the future.

In conclusion, I would say that Sr. Mussey by invitation tarried with us over three weeks and administered to us in spiritual things. Also, by request, Sr. E. S. Jenning, who was at the Convention, has returned, and is now with us; and I feel that their labors are not only acceptable to God, but are desired and appreciated by us as a church. Your brother in the bonds of peace, ASA J. ROGERS.

Poultney, Vt.

For the World's Crisis.

ABOUT THAT BOOK ON WAR.

To Bro. W. D. C., who addressed me through the columns of the Crisis of last week, in relation to my pamphlet, "Should Christians Fight?"

I am always gratified to learn of others, who agree with me in the great cardinal doctrines of Christ, especially those points which I have studied much, and become thoroughly established in as being the mind and will of God.

The doctrine advocated in my book arrested my attention in 1841, on a parade ground, where I was exercising as a soldier, at a "general muster," a year and a half after I found Christ as my Savior. I had taken great delight in military exercises, and had much of what is called "patriotism" for the United States Government,—had once enlisted in its army to defend its New England boundary.

While on the muster field I was much troubled about my feelings being so much changed from former days. I was gloomy, thoughtful, prayerful, distressed. When the chaplain rode on to the ground and made a prayer, I was awakened to consider what prayer and christianity had to do with training and fighting with carnal weapons. I was disgusted. It was the last day I ever wore a soldier's uniform. I entered upon a careful scriptural study of that matter. God enlightened my mind. My military career ended. I declared it, and received considerable persecution from the Methodist church of which I was a member.

I have studied and observed on this matter, ever since, and from all I have seen or read on Church and State union, only confirms the view I have published. If my views on this are radically wrong, I can say I was never converted to Christ, nor do I know what Christianity is.

Bro. W. D. C. "believes my argument unanswerable." I also think so; not because it is from me, but because it is based on the truth of God, revealed through Christ, and must stand.

Here I will remark that while the book has had a wide circulation among editors, ministers, and others of the various classes of fighting men called Christians, I have not yet known of an instance of an attempt to disprove its positions; while many have confessed it the gospel position, although it was not theirs. One minister, indeed, ventured to slander it by telling his church that "Elder Welcome had written a book against this war," wishing them to believe me in sympathy with the rebellion. But some of his hearers knew it was a libel.

I thank Bro. C. for his kind notice of the work, his criticisms on several texts, his notice of my error in calling those who took Christ "outlaws" and "mob," as also his views on Luke 22: 36, where he thinks I "failed to bring out the full force of the argument." I had noticed my error in using the terms "outlaws" and "mob" after my work was stereotyped. It is true that those who took Christ were men under civil authority, and not outlaws.

Bro. C.'s views of Luke 22: 36, the expression, "And he was reckoned among the transgressors, for the things concerning me have an end," is not new to me. I have often looked at it, and sometimes conversed with those who held that view. But not being satisfied that it was correct I did not advance it, for I endeavored to refrain from teaching anything not susceptible of full proof.

Bro. C. understood the reason why Christ "was reckoned among the transgressors" was because his followers had weapons of defense, and against law, opposed the agents of civil law, and thus became "outlaws." This looks plausible, and may be correct. There is some force in the construction of the text in in that direction. I have, however, supposed he intended to teach his disciples that the authorities were about to arrest him as a transgressor of the laws, and reckon him and treat him as such. His execution "between two thieves" seems to show that he was thus "reckoned," and thus executed.

Bro. C. asks, "Did you ever think, brother, that had those two swords been absent, the whole plan of atonement, by the pouring out of the blood of the Lamb, our passover, must have failed?"

I confess I never did. I have, however, read and thought much if the predictions and fulfillments relating to the atonement. Also much of what men have said about the necessity of Judas, and the priests, and Pilate's course, to fulfill prophecy. But I fail to see any such necessity. I regard prophecy to be a record of what God sees being done, not of what will and must be done. All is present time with him. It is not a record of what will be, and then a fulfillment that must follow to vindicate the record. With the Lord it is first an act accomplished by an actor, or actors, in his all-seeing eye; then he has it recorded for our benefit, and we who are finite and progressive in knowledge are addressed accordingly, and the record stated before the act is accomplished among us who measure time.

I regard that the Father could have caused the shedding of Christ's blood as an effectual atonement for sin, had the high priest and his associates been destitute of thirty pieces of silver, Judas died in childhood, and Pilate never been governor of Judea. But in such case the prophecies relating to them would never have been written, for their conduct in these matters would not have been seen by the Lord.

I am preparing a work on "The Plan of Redemption," in which I hope to bring these points out more fully and clearly than I have ever seen them, except in the Scriptures. May the Lord aid me in seeing and stating the truth plainly, and lead us each and all, his flock, safely into the kingdom of our soon coming Lord and Savior. Yours truly in the blessed hope, I. C. WELLCOME.

Yarmouth, Me., July 7, 1865.

For the World's Crisis.

A SHORT SERMON.

"Let all things be done decently and in order."—1 COR. 14: 40.

How important it is that all things in the church of God should be governed by the unerring word and wisdom of our heavenly Father. But how few that profess to be the followers of the lowly Jesus are willing to become so humble as to be wholly willing to be led by the meek Spirit of Christ. Dear brother, or sister, if you do not cherish the "Spirit of Christ, you are none of his."

If a band of brethren come together for the purpose of worshiping God "in spirit and in truth," and every one of them pray at home before they start to go to meeting, and all try to get the wisdom "that is from above, which is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without hypocrisy, or partiality," they would all be peacemakers; and this would be the "fruit of righteousness, sown in peace" by them.

How hard St. Paul labored in this chapter to show the great importance of doing all things right, so that every one should try to do what they do in such a manner as to edify the church. Now it seems to me that St. Paul must have seen or heard of something wrong among the Corinthian brethren, or he would not have written such clear and pointed instructions to them; and it is evident from what we can learn from other chapters of St. Paul's epistles to the Corinthian church, that there had been many things wrong among them, and there was great need of a reformation. St. Paul tells the brethren to "let all things be done to edifying." Now, my dear brethren, is it always the case, when you meet together for worship, that you pray in the Spirit, and with the understanding? I have been in meetings before now, where I saw the need (in myself and others) of the Spirit of the Lord to come and take the lead of the praying and singing; and whenever I have been in meeting where that lovely agent was present, I have discovered that love was manifested among the brethren, and then the praying, singing and exhorting went off well; and there was harmony in the praying, harmony in the singing, and harmony in the exhortations; and nothing said or done to hurt each other's feelings. Then all things were done decently and in order.

But I have been in meetings where there was not so much of the Spirit of the Lord as there was at other times, and rather too much of the spirit of envy and hatred; and then there was not so much decency and order as was needed to make a good meeting. At such times there is too much of a disposition to say something to hurt or wound some one's feelings.

Brethren and sisters, these things ought not so to be. But this is Satan's hour, and his time to work; and just as sure as we are not on our guard every moment, we shall be deceived and led astray by him; and, if he can, he will create a little jealousy in the minds of some brother or sister, and make them think that some one is getting ahead of them. Then Satan will sometimes succeed in breaking friendship between brethren, and in that way stir up strife in the church.

How many there are who have been praying all their days, and are led astray at last and lost forever. Let us not try to crush each other, brethren, but let us try to lift each other up, and strengthen and encourage each other on our pilgrimage journey; and if we must strive at all, let us strive lawfully; that is, let us strive to be the most humble before God, the most kind towards our brethren and sisters, loving without dissimulation; for the Lord is near at hand. B. PERHAM.

Vernon, Vt.

For the World's Crisis

REPORT.

The Maine Western Central Quarterly Conference met, agreeably to previous notice, at Sister Carr's barn, in Vienna, on Thursday, June 8th, at four o'clock P. M. Prayer and social meeting. The congregation was not large, but the brethren and sisters seemed prepared to labor in the spirit of the Lord. Friday, June 9th, at eight o'clock A. M., prayer and social meeting. A deep solemnity rested upon the minds of the people. At half past ten o'clock A. M., sermon by Eld. L. Rhodes. Subject from Heb. 11: 1, which was clearly presented, and the congregation interested. At one o'clock P. M., Eld. Benj. Spaulding preached a very interesting discourse founded upon Acts 3: 19–23. Subject, The Restitution of all things. The congregation much interested. At four o'clock P. M., social meeting, with good interest.

Saturday, seven o'clock A. M., meeting for business. Bro. H. B. Sevey, of Vienna, was chosen President of this Quarterly Conference for the ensuing year, and D. W. Griffin, of Stark, was requested to serve as Clerk. Watchmen present:—Brn. I. Wight, I. C. Wellcome, H. B. Sevey, L. L. Howard, D. M. Hanscomb, Chas. Stratton, E. M. Haggett, L. Rhodes, B. Spaulding, and J. Goodrich. Eight A. M., social and prayer meeting, at the close of which Bro. Cornell of Michigan arrived. Half past ten o'clock A. M., sermon by I. C. Wellcome. Subject, the Christian's Hope, as presented in 1 Pet. 1: 13. The congregation was large and much interested during this discourse. One o'clock P. M., sermon by Eld. Cornell from Heb. 1: 13–14. The ministrations of good angels. This discourse was very instructive. Five o'clock P. M., prayer and social meeting, which continued quite late, with increasing interest to its close.

Half past seven A. M., Sunday, social meeting, with good interest; time fully occupied. Half past ten, sermon by Eld. Howard, from Matt. 16: 3. The Signs of the Times, which were ably presented. The congregation was estimated to number four hundred and fifty; although the barn was seventy-two feet long, they could not all be comfortably seated. One o'clock P. M., sermon by Eld. Cornell. The One Hope, found in Eph. 4: 4. Five o'clock P. M., prayer and social meeting. A good number present; the time fully occupied in the spirit of love and union. Closed to meet again at the call of the Clerk.

I would here say that Bro. Spaulding labored under a slight mistake in his statement published in the Crisis, that there were but three families who shared in the labors of entertaining the brethren and sisters; as Bro. Prescott, who is a Methodist, administered to the wants of some, taking them to and from the meeting with his own team. Sister Berry also did something, and would gladly have done more if it had been agreeable to the family with whom she is connected. Another family, I think, also entertained some of the brethren. But Bro. Spaulding did not in the least overstate the labor, kindness and generosity of the three families he mentioned; and I would add that their kindness was all tendered with marked cheerfulness, not desiring or expecting the praise of men; but it is natural and proper that we should express our gratitude for such kindness; and let us so live in this age that we may have life everlasting in the world to come.

While it cannot be denied that the agitation of the question of keeping the seventh day, which is now going on in this State, has a tendency to divide rather than unite the brethren, let us endeavor to meet it in the love of truth and the spirit of Christianity, ever looking to the Lord, who is our Lawgiver, our Judge, our Savior, for guidance and direction here, and life and immortality in his soon coming kingdom. D. W. GRIFFIN, Clerk.

Stark, Me., July 7th, 1865.

THE POWER OF A LOVING WORD.

"A word spoken in due season, how good it is!"

Some two or three months since, I was traveling from New York to Boston. Soon after leaving that great city eight or ten soldiers came into the car where I had my seat. They were very noisy, indeed so much so, that I could see very plainly that they had been drinking ardent spirits. "Ah!" I said to myself, "how unseemly is this conduct! Here is this nation, once so prosperous and happy, now torn by cruel war; and here are men, who have sworn to fight for their country, setting aside all laws of God and man!" The most horrible oaths, the most vulgar talk, came from these men, unmindful of the fact that they were in the presence of ladies and pure little children, who could not help hearing such vile words. By and by two of three of them grew more and more noisy, and from words proceeded to blows. The uproar was awful. Children cried, ladies screamed, gentlemen attempted to interfere, but to no effect.

At last the conductor made his appearance. "Now we shall have peace," I thought. But no: on his asking them for their tickets, they fell upon him and abused him shamefully. What could he do among so many? Some gentlemen came to his rescue; and at length peace was in a measure restored, and he went about his duties. No sooner had he left the car than the tumult commenced more frightfully than ever. One soldier, in particular, was more violent than any other. He rose from his seat, and stamped his feet, and strode up and down as though he was possessed by a demon. And so he was, a demon that in time would destroy both soul and body.

Directly before me sat an old lady, who seemed more grieved than terrified. There was nothing about her but her simple and rather old-fashionud appearance likely to attract the attention of any one; and yet when you looked at her closely, you could not help seeing there was something particularly interesting in the soft look in her eyes and the sadness of her smile.

As the drunken man rushed past her in his fury, she put out her aged hand, and caught him by the arm. He stopped at once, looking confused, as though he did not know what to make of it. She looked him fully in the eye. He swore a horrible oath at her; but her eye never quailed, while the mournful expression around her mouth grew deeper and deeper. "My friend," she said quietly, "listen to me a moment. Have you a mother? and can't you think how it would grieve her loving heart to hear such words from the lips of her son, who once, an innocent babe, hung upon her breast?"

He stood a moment irresolute: then the tears came to his eyes, and fell down his cheeks. She drew him down to the seat beside her, then I heard her talking to him for a long time. I could only hear a sentence now and then; but I heard her say, "I gave up one of my dear sons to his country, and he fell upon a bloody battle-field. My poor boy, my poor boy! And yet why do I call him poor? for he died in a glorious cause. How sore my heart is, none can tell; but oh! much sorer it would be if I thought he ever forgot himself or his mother as you have done this morning. But he was a good and pious boy, and I have reason to believe he lived and died as a christian soldier should."

The man listened very attentively, and seemed completely subdued. At length I heard him say, "No one has ever spoken to me as you have done: if they had perhaps I should have been a better man than I am now." "Well," she said, "let this be the beginning of better things in you. If you have no regard for anything higher, think of your mother when you are tempted to drink and swear. Think how her heart would be grieved if she saw you thus treading in the path of sin, and let that be a restraint on your evil passion."

I looked on in amazement, and saw what effect loving, tender words could have in thus taming a lion into a lamb; and I said to myself, "A word spoken in due season, how good it is!"—Ex.

"FORBIDDING TO MARRY."

This is so clearly a mark of modern Spiritualists, that the marriage institution is the subject of every vituperative epithet on their part. And there is even talk among them of getting up petitions to the legislatures for its establishment by law. The shameless manner in which they break their marriage bonds, and take spiritual wives, is said by them to be at the express command of the spirits. Some, who have been remarkable for their moral and correct lives previous to their commerce with Spiritualism, have, by thinking that they must obey the spirits, been induced to leave wives and children that they loved much better than the spiritual wife that they were commanded to take; and were affected to tears when they spoke of those they had left, and of the sacrifice they had to make in doing so; but thought it the greater virtue that they did so in obedience to the spirits.

☞ The golden age never was the present.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

For the World's Crisis.

STORY FOR THE GIRLS.

A mother sits watching, with tear-dimmed eye, her only daughter, as she is sadly and silently preparing herself for a long journey to the 'far west.' The minister who united her to the husband of her choice has just left. The guests, one by one, passed out, and left me alone, to witness a scene over which angels might rejoice. The last glove was on—the carriage at the door, when this young and beautiful bride kneels before that mother who has been until now her dearest earthly friend, and craves a parting blessing. Never did words fall so freely—never was a blessing received so thankfully. The sad farewells are exchanged, and the daughter leaves the room to hide the tears as they gush in torrents from her eyes. The husband now comes forward to say the 'good-by' to his new mother. 'God bless you long, my son. May you long live to protect and cherish her who has been my greatest earthly blessing, for,' said she, as a smile lighted up her pale face, 'she never caused me an anxious thought.'

Now, dear girls, think you! Did you ever stop and think, when you were about making up your mind upon anything, however trivial, will this cause my mother to sigh? Will this trouble her with anxious thoughts? O how many thoughtless girls there are who persist in doing as they please, until death comes, in consequencee of their disobedience, and snatches them from the circle of loved ones on earth, to await their just deserts in another state of existence.

Now-a-days, it is quite 'fashionable' to speak lightly of your parents, and to act regardless of their known wishes. If you would be loved and respected in society, shun such such 'fashions' as you would a deadly poison.

Many allow themselves to use low by-words—sing comic songs—repeat vulgar anecdotes—keep late hours abroad,—or perhaps at home, with ——, but no matter who, your conscience tells you it is wrong; then stop and think; seek forgiveness, and diligently strive to live so that when called to leave father and mother, they can say, 'She never caused me an anxious thought.'

D. F. NEWTON.

For the World's Crisis.

THE LITTLE SPIDER.

There he hung, so small in himself as scarce to be perceptible, suspended by his little thread, quite unseen by the naked eye.

I sat and gazed, and prayed that I might learn a lesson even from that, and I did. It was this: Let me be thus attached to God, and thus detached from every thing else.

Hammonton, N. J. E. S. WILLARD.

HOW TO KILL AN ENEMY.

"Children," said a father to his little family, as he took a seat by the fireside, and gathered them around him for a pleasant talk, "which is the best way to kill an enemy?"

"Why shoot him, to be sure," said one.

"No, stab him," said a second.

"No, starve him," said a third.

"But I think," said the father, "I can show you a better way than this. An enemy may be killed without taking his life, or shedding a single drop of his blood. Let me tell you a story, to show how it may be done."

"There was a farmer once, who was a very cross, surly, disagreeable man. Everybody in the neighborhood knew him, and everybody disliked him. He was sure to make the most of whatever went wrong about him, and the poor offender always met with severe punishment. There was not a boy in all the neighborhood who didn't feel uncomfortable as he passed his gate; and the poor dog that barked at his geese, or the neighbor's rooster that crowed on his wall, was speedily visited either with the lash of his whip or the shot from his gun. The very cat knew his footsteps, and slunk away from him in terror. He was a complete pest, as much so to himself as to those about him. Every day brought him some fresh trouble, and found him in continual 'hot water;' indeed, his very life was made up of broils.

After a time good farmer Green came to live near him, and, as you may suppose, he was soon told the character of his not over pleasant neighbor.

'Well,' says he, 'if he shows off on me I'll very soon kill him!'

This remark of farmer Green's soon got afloat, and all sorts of things were said about it. He seemed the very last man to 'kill' any one, for his looks, and words, and actions, all told of a loving heart which throbbed in his bosom, and directed his life. Nobody could think for a moment of his becoming a murderer. Mr. Green's intentions at length came to the ears of the ill-natured farmer, and you may be sure he was not at all pleased about it. Every thing he could do to tease, annoy, and even injure Mr. Green, was done; but, somehow or other the man who was to 'kill' this ugly tempered farmer, took it all in good part, and spoke as calmly, and looked as kindly as ever.

One day Mrs. Green sent to the wife of our surly friend a basket of nice plums; but her husband would not let her have them. He told the person who brought them, very gruffly, that 'it was only done to get some of his pears in return, and he wasn't going to give any of them away.'

At another time Mr. Green's team of oxen stuck fast in a bog, and when he asked his neighbor for a little help, he told him, in a very rough way, that 'he had enough to do to mind his own business,' and refused to help him.

'Never mind,' said Green, to some one standing by, 'I'll kill him very soon, see if I don't.'

Soon after this the team of the ill-natured man was in the same plight that his neighbor's had been. Mr. Green saw it. He ran for his oxen and chains, and set off to the bog. He spoke kindly, offered his help, and began rendering it; but what did he receive in reply? Why, a fierce look, an angry word—'I don't want your help! take your oxen away.'

'No,' said the other, 'I must help you, for the night is coming on, and what is bad enough by day is ten times worse in the dark.' Away pulled the oxen and the men, and soon all was set right again.

A strange feeling did that rough, cross man, carry home with him that evening,—something which he had never felt before. And a strange look did his wife give him as he said, 'Peg, farmer Green has killed me! He said he would, and he has done it.'

Yes, the 'enemy' was 'killed,' without the loss of a single life, or one drop of blood. He went in the morning to confess his ingratitude to his kind neighbor, and to ask his forgiveness, and the very man who had been noted for nothing but his wickedness, became the friend of all."

There is the greatest difference in the world between conquering by power and conquering by kindness. The former is like building a dam across a stream of water. It may stop its flow for a little while, but presently the dam may give away, and then the stream will rush on with more force and fury than ever. Conquering by kindness is like drying up the spring which feeds the stream. Conquering by power is like keeping a lion from doing harm, by chaining him; conquering by kindness keeps the lion from doing harm, by changing his nature, and turning him into a lamb.—Best Things.

MAKING FACES.

"What did Willie do?" asked Mary.

"He didn't only make faces to Laura," replied Harry.

As I was standing at my door the other day, I heard the above conversation between two children who were passing by.

Why Willie made faces to Laura, I cannot tell; but I thought it was very impolite, and he could not be a very good boy. It seemed from Harry's answer that he did not think there was much harm in it, but that it was a very nice little thing.

Now let us look at it a little, and see if it was such a trifling thing. Christ said in his beautiful Sermon on the Mount, "Therefore, all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them." What little boy or girl would like to have another make faces to them? Would they not feel hurt to be treated so? Would they not think the one who should do so did not love or respect them? It would not be doing as you would like to be done by; so it would be disobeying the command of Christ; and all disobedience is sin, and sin is not a trifling thing. God hates sin, and has threatened to punish every sinner who does not repent and seek forgiveness through Christ.

The Bible tells us to "be courteous;" and it is very uncourteous to make faces. It also says, "Whatsoever things are lovely, think on these things." Think of them, and exhibit them in all your conduct. Making faces is very uulovely, unamiable and unfriendly. It shows a bad spirit,—a spirit, which, if indulged, will lead to unkind words and a great many wicked actions.

So you see it was no trifling thing to "only make faces to Laura."—Well Spring.

FUN AND BAD TEMPER.

"Suppose you should find out that in one corner of the room in which you sleep, there was a nest of young rattlesnakes, and that at any time they might spring out of their nests and bite you; what would you do? Search the room, find out the nest, and have the young ones killed. That would be the only wise and safe course. But let me tell you that in the corner of your heart there may be something worse than a nest of rattlesnakes. Is anger or hatred allowed to dwell there? If so, that is worse than a rattlesnake. If you do not overcome it, it may spring up suddenly, some time or other, and make you a murderer in a moment.

"One of the scholars in a large school, whose name was James, had a terrible temper. The least thing that displeased him would throw him into a rage, and then he would act in a most violent manner. He never seemed to feel how dreadfully wicked it was, or to be afraid of the consequences that might follow from it.

"One day, during the play hour, he stretched himself on a bench to take a nap. One of the boys thought he would have a little fun with James. He took a feather and leaned over the bench and began to tickle him in the ear. James shook his head and cried,—

"'Don't do that.' Presently he felt the feather again.

"'Don't do that, I say!' he exclaimed angrily.

"The boy thoughtlessly went on with his mischief. Then James sprang from the bench, seized a pair of compasses lying on the desk, and threw them at the boy with all his might. They struck him on the side of the head. They entered his brain. He fell down and never spoke again, and was carried home a corpse.

"How dreadful this was! Here was the young serpent, that had been allowed to nestle in this boy's heart, springing up suddenly to its full growth, and making a murderer of him. Oh, watch against these young serpents! and if you find them in your heart, take that heart to Jesus, and ask him to give you his grace to resist and overcome them.—Well Spring.

"WHY, SIR, I BEGGED."—A little boy, one of the Sunday School children in Jamaica, called upon the missionary, and stated that he had lately been very ill, and in his sickness often wished his minister had been present to pray with him. "But, Thomas," said the missionary, "I hope you prayed." "Oh yes, sir" "Did you repeat the collect I taught you?" "I prayed." "Well, but how did you pray?" "Why, sir, I begged."

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..............$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

Single copy, 30 cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

CLUBS.—Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other name on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, [illegible] cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, [illegible] cents a year on each copy; and in smaller clubs (of less than ten), from 12 to [illegible] cents a year on each copy.

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other time. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

POSTAGE [illegible] cents per quarter, on every package of ten copies [illegible] Must be paid quarterly or yearly in advance, at [illegible] is received. Send no money to us for postage.

All COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to YOUNG PILGRIM, Boston, Mass.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all sums due are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and order their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The law declares that any person to whom a periodical is sent, is responsible for payment if he receives the paper, or makes use of it, even if he has never subscribed for it, or has ordered it stopped. His duty in such a case is, not to take the paper from the office, and to notify the publisher that he does not wish it.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 512. BOSTON, TUESDAY, JULY 25, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 19.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

BE OF GOOD CHEER.

Brother, art thou sad and weary?
Is thy pathway full of care?
Does thy lot seem lone and dreary?
Is it sometimes hard to bear?

Do the storm-clouds now surround thee,
Shutting out the light of day?
Has the windy tempest found thee
Home and shelter far away?

Brother, filled with care and sadness,
By temptations sore beset,
There will come a time of gladness,
And thy grief thou shalt forget.

For beyond the vale so lonely,
Rise the glorious hills of light;
Trust the Savior—trust him only,
Through the long and darksome night.

'Mid the danger, 'mid the sorrow,
Let thine eye be upward cast;
From the Savior's fullness, borrow
Strength to bring thee home at last.

There, through all the long forever,
Shall thy longing heart be blest;
Nothing from his love can sever
Humble souls that on him rest.

J. L. GOODHUE.

For the World's Crisis

TRUSTING IN GOD.

"Trust in the Lord, and do good: so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed."—Ps. 37: 4.

What is it to trust in the Lord? this question has been revolving in my mind of late, especially since I began to preach the gospel of my blessed Master. And when I go forth to proclaim the truth, I sometimes hear the experience of others. Some speak of their trials, and God's dealings with them, and how they have been brought safely through the fiery furnace of affliction, by trusting in the Lord. Others seem to think such experiences are all talk and no trust, and tell what they believe trusting the Lord is.

Some hold to the above text and believe that they must do something, (i. e. do good). While still another class, preach trust in the Lord and do nothing. At least they say that we show a lack of faith when we try to help ourselves out of difficulty.

To make this point plain, I will state a case that came under my observation during the rebellion. A friend of mine was drafted, and to him it was a severe trial; for he felt that he could not take the life of his brother. He could not find anything in the words of Jesus that taught him to fight. So he went to the Lord and talked with him, and then to the Provost Marshal, and was accepted, but he had no money, so it was "Stand up for Jesus," and wait for deliverance. But he had not long to wait. The Lord set a good brother to work and he raised the money without the knowledge of the accepted man, and thus deliverance came.

Not long afterwards, while relating God's dealings with him, he remarked that it was good to trust the Lord; when one of the all-trust brethren said that was not what he called trusting in the Lord; that if a man trusted in the Lord he would not pay commutation, but would let the Lord deliver him in some other way. Now I wish to know if the Lord wanted to deliver him in that way, what right any man has to propose another way? God always did work by means, unless he chose to work a miracle. He can make the wrath of man to praise him.

Now it appears to me that these people who like to be delivered by a miracle, would like to be fed and clothed in the same way. They can talk trust, but they are obliged to eat like other people. They trust the Lord, and the grocer trusts them.

But, says one, is it not just as bad to commute as to send a substitute, or go yourself? No, I think not. Let us examine this point one moment. We all believe that man has certain inalienable rights, such as life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness; and that the follower of Christ has these rights, no one will deny. For he has a right to eternal life, liberty of conscience, and the pursuit of everlasting happiness; and the right to do right; and when the commands of men conflict with these rights, he can appeal to a "higher law," for he has a right to worship God according to the dictation of his conscience; and if his conscience will not allow him to do so; and if a body of men seize him against his will, and command him to do that which he believes to be sinful, or demand of him a sum of money to hire some one to do the same act, I believe he will be justified by his sovereign in rendering unto Cæsar the things that belong to Cæsar, and to God the things that belong to Him.

Suppose Austria should wish to recruit her army by conscription, and commence to enforce the act in Hungary. Would not the Hungarians say that they were not the willing subjects of Austria? And would they refuse to pay three hundred dollars if that was the price of their liberty?

So with the christian. He is not a subject of the governments of earth. His King has gone to receive for himself a kingdom, and his subjects are pilgrims and strangers on the earth, looking for a city that hath foundations; and when the King was here he taught his followers to do these things. Being asked by Peter if it was lawful to pay tribute, he said that the children should be free, but rather than offend them, pay. So we have the example set by the Great Teacher, and it is safe to follow him, and preserve our conscience alive.

But does it not help to carry on the war? Most certainly it does, and so does every mouthful of bread you buy; for the government has levied a tax on all we consume. So that those even who disapprove of commutation contribute to the support of the cause. Hence, I think the man who commutes trusts in the Lord as much as the man who pays his taxes and internal revenue.

Then let us trust in the Lord and do good. Doing good is as much a duty as trusting the Lord. That is the condition by which you have a right to dwell in the land and be fed. God does not want his people to be idlers. "Not slothful in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." And "provide things honest in the sight of all men." If we trust him, we shall believe and obey him. To trust, implies to have confidence. Confidence begets trust, for where there is a lack of confidence there can be no trusting reliance in the veracity, integrity, or stability of another.

Mutual confidence is the basis of social happiness. Destroy this foundation and the governments of this world would crumble and fall; anarchy and confusion would reign supreme. The prince confides in his ministers and believes they are worthy of being trusted. The ministers confide in the strength and resources of the nation. Thus the common interests of the people of the United States are committed to the Congress of the same.

But we learn in the word of the Lord that it is better to trust in the Lord than to put confidence in man. Let us look at some instances of trust. Abraham trusted God when he offered up Isaac. Elijah trusted him for something to eat. Daniel trusted him for deliverance. Sampson trusted him for strength. Gideon for victory. Joseph trusted him, for he believed his word, and when he made mention of the departing of the children of Israel, he gave command concerning his bones. Noah also believed the Lord, and trusted him for salvation, and proved his faith by building an ark for the saving of his household. Moses trusted in the Lord when he chose to suffer affliction with the people of God; not fearing the wrath of the King, he forsook Egypt, kept the passover and sprinkling of blood, passed through the Red Sea, and did many wonderful things by trusting in the Lord.

But faith without works is dead. All these worthies that believed God proved their faith by doing what God commanded. Had Elijah remained in Samaria he would have suffered in the famine; but he obeyed God, and went to the brook Chereth, and was fed by the ravens. Had Noah depended on his faith alone, doubtless he would have been destroyed with the others. Had Moses only trusted, he never would have crossed the Red sea. Had Peter refused to have gone out of the prison, after the angel opened the doors and knocked off his chains, he doubtless would have been delivered up to the people the next morning and suffered like James, the brother of John; but he did as he was bidden; binding on his sandals, casting about him his garment, he followed the angel, and was safe. Paul also did not refuse to be let down in a basket that he might make his escape. He trusted the Lord, but he used his legs to get away. So I believe every child of God will embrace every opportunity that is presented to them to escape peril and the violation of their consciences, and thank the good Lord for deliverance.

Blessed be His holy name, he will be with his own in six troubles and not forsake them in the seventh; he will open a way of escape and deliver all those who put their trust in him. And he will bring us off conquerors and more than conquerors through Him that loved us.

Therefore let us not be weary in well doing, for we shall reap in due season if we faint not. Let us remember the comforting words, "Trust in the Lord and do good; so shalt thou dwell in the land, and verily shalt thou be fed."

C. C. RAMSAY.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN RELIGION.

Now in the second series of this subject, I will endeavor to point out the three most essential and leading traits that constitute our present happiness and our final felicity; namely, justification, sanctification and glorification.

If we are not justified and sanctified in our dealings and obligations towards God and in our benevolence towards our fellow-men, when death shall overtake us, or rather when Christ shall come to judge the earth, we shall be weighed in the balance and be found wanting, and cast off with the unjust and unbelieving, and miss of that glory and happiness which is laid up in store for every aspiring christian.

Now in consideration of these things, how essential it is for us to walk humbly, uprightly and godly, and perform every duty that is incumbent upon us, that we may be found worthy, when Christ shall come to set up his kingdom, to partake of those joys that never die, but grow brighter and brighter throughout the rounds of eternity.

True and undefiled religion enlivens the soul. It leads to every good word and work. True religion carries the mind beyond the dark Jordan of death, and like an angel of gladness she speaks forth words of heavenly consolation to a dying world. How important, then, that we seek it as our guide while we are here, that at last, when our mission on earth shall be finished we may share a home among the vast ransomed throng who sing anthems of joy and praise to Him who hath redeemed them.

How strange it is in this enlightened day, when the gospel of Christ is sounded almost throughout the world, to see so many shutting their eyes from those things that pertain to their best good, slighting the precepts of that religion which might secure to them their souls' salvation. Now who can lie still and at ease, who are endued with a christian faith, and see so many going the downward road to perdition without giving them a warning voice to retrace their steps,—deny themselves of sin and unbelief, and prepare to meet those events that are soon to take place here on the earth?

The signs of the times proclaim the closing of this dispensation to be near at hand, and the fiery and flaming signals throughout the world utter a solemn warning that the Savior is soon to come. How soon who can tell? "For as the lightning cometh out of the east, and shineth even unto the west, so shall the coming of the Son of man be." "For, behold (saith Christ) I come quickly, and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his works shall be."

Are we prepared to meet Him? This is a solemn question. Are we prepared for eternity? Let us delay not in making our calling and election sure. Let us watch and pray without ceasing. Our Savior by his word is constantly calling upon us to make ourselves ready to meet him. Shall we not heed his call? Let us awake, and wash our robes in the blood of the Lamb, and be found watching for Christ to come and make up his jewels.

How earnestly and fervently should we pray for this blessed period to arise. "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth, as it is in heaven," should be our daily petition; for when Christ shall come the curse will be removed from the earth, and the whole domain of his kingdom will bud and blossom as the rose. Then the righteous will receive their crowns, the reward of their faith in the service of their Maker. In that great and momentous day, "the wolf shall dwell with the lamb and the leopard shall lie down with the kid; and the calf and the young lion and the fatling together, and a little child shall lead them."

J. ELKINS.

Fisherville, N. H.

For the World's Crisis.

ABSENT FROM THE BODY, PRESENT WITH THE LORD.

"Whilst we are at home in the body, we are absent from the Lord, . . . and (are) willing rather to be absent from the body, and to be present with the Lord."—2 Cor. 5: 6, 8. That the term "body," in the preceding passage, refers to the physical organism, is by no means certain. From chapter three, we learn that Paul was contrasting the law of Moses with the gospel of Christ, the ministration of the letter with that of the spirit, of which the one brought death, and the other procured life and a resurrection from the dead.

The church, or "assembly," under the law was styled "the body of Moses," as is the church under the gospel now styled "the body of Christ." See 1 Cor. 12: 27; Eph. 3: 6, and 4: 12; Col. 1: 18. "He is the head of the body, the church." Heb. 13: 3,—"As being yourselves also in the body; i. e., of Christ, the church.

The law, too, is sometimes designated as "the face of Moses," as is also the gospel, in 2 Cor. 4: 4, 6, "the face of Jesus Christ." "For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts to the light of the knowledge of the glory of God." There is no "give" in the original, and it has no business there, destroying the entire meaning of the instructive sentence, which is simply to give the extent of the shining in our hearts, or minds; and that is, to the knowledge of the glory of God; to the resurrection, for in summing up his argument, he thus comes to its conclusion, in verse 14,—"Knowing (how knowing? by the light of the gospel shining in our hearts;) that he which raised up the Lord Jesus, shall raise up us also by Jesus, and shall present us with you." "Present it (the body) to himself a glorious church."—Eph. 5: 27. "Present you faultless before the presence of his glory."—Jude 24.

But this light is surely thus shining "in the hearts of the "entire body of believers," because they have a "single eye"—the eye of God, and bear about "in the body" (full of light) "the dying of the Lord Jesus"; who "is the head of the body," "filling up in our flesh the afflictions of Christ which are left behind, for his body's sake, which is the church"; "for no man ever yet hated his own flesh," and we (believers) are "members of his body, of his flesh, and of his bones," "baptized into one body," consequently "in the body." "This is a great mystery: but I speak concerning Christ and the church."

Now there is a time coming when the church will no longer be called "the body" of Christ, "the espoused bride of the Lamb"; when "a nation shall be born in a day"; when the church "shall be delivered from the bondage of corruption"; when "the body of Christ," like the living head, shall be "born of the Spirit," "born from the dead"; when the BRIDE "will awake and put on her beautiful garments," "shake herself from the dust"; then shall "she look forth as the morning, fair as the moon, clear as the sun, and terrible as an army with banners"; then will she be arrayed "in fine linen, clean and white"; then will she be no longer "the body of Christ," "absent from her Lord"; for the marriage of the Lamb is come," and "his WIFE hath made herself ready." Her "Lord has returned." She is "accepted of him," and, like the "elder brother," is ever "present with" HIM.

But until that time comes, we as individual members of and "in the body" (the church), must continue walking "by faith, and not by sight," while we look, not at the seen, temporary (by faith), but at the unseen, eternal things, constituting the incorruptible and undefiled inheritance, "that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for us, who are kept by the power of God, through faith, unto salvation ready to be revealed in the last time." These will also constitute the "good things to come," by a "greater and more perfect tabernacle," as also the grace (or favor) that is to be brought unto us at the revelation of Jesus Christ.

Till then, we (individually, "in the body") must be as "men who wait for their Lord, that when he shall return TO the wedding (he has been here to make the espousal, has gone away, and is to return to solemnize the marriage), we may be ready to open unto Him," that we may be "accepted of him," and "go in with him to the marriage," lest the "door be shut," while we be gone "to buy oil"; and we be found standing without, saying, "Lord, Lord, open unto us." Till then we must remain subject to death, "burdened" with mortality, groaning ("for we that are in this tabernacle," in the world, or earthly sanctuary, Heb. 9: 1, "do groan," and not only do we "who have the first fruits of the Spirit," i. e., Christ, groan, for "the whole creation groaneth and travaileth in pain together" with us.) "to be delivered from the bondage of corruption, into the glorious liberty of the children of God"; who, having "received the spirit of adoption," are WAITING for the adoption, i. e., the redemption of our body"; "that mortality might be swallowed up of life."

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

THE GATHERING PLACE OF THE SAINTS,—ARMAGEDDON.

In a recent article (see Prophetic Times, vol. ii., No. 3) we endeavored to show that the popular phrase, "The Battle of Armageddon," is not to be found in Scripture, and is not warranted by it. Armageddon is not the plain of Megiddo, in Central Palestine, nor will the battle of the great day of God Almighty be fought at Armageddon, but in the land of Edom, extending thence north towards Jerusalem.

That Armageddon is a locality, cannot, however, be doubted; and that there is a gathering of some sort there is equally plain. Then the question arises, is it possible to ascertain anything farther respecting it? Can we by collating the Scriptures arrive at any farther conclusions, or is there, at least, room for probable conjecture? Such may readily be the case, for, the more we learn from the Bible, the more comprehensive do we find it to be. It is complete in itself; for "the Lord God will do nothing but he revealeth his secret unto his servants the prophets;" and if we are not able to arrange the chain in its proper symmetry, it is not because any of the links are missing, but only because we have hitherto failed to recognize the marks on them which would enable us to put them into their respective proper places. And hence the need of the prayer: "Open thou mine eyes, that I may behold wondrous things out of thy law."

It has already been indicated that as the gathering at Armageddon (Rev. 16: 16) follows the coming of the Lord as a thief, under the sixth vial (v. 15), it probably has reference to the saints, and not to the kings of the earth, mentioned in verse 14. It is true no particulars of the gathering are mentioned here, but the lack is supplied by other scriptures. Verse 16, then, seems to contain the proposition that when the Lord comes as a thief, he will gather his saints at Armageddon.

Let us look first at the general proposition that the saints shall be gathered to the Lord before the final judgment.

This point is clearly stated in the word of God, and is generally overlooked by the christian community. Popular hymns and the spiritual millennium of Dr. Whitby (invented by him in the beginning of the eighteenth century, and since then almost universally adopted by Protestant Christendom, although confessedly a mere "speculation" on his part), have trained up the churches, who, unlike the Bereans, are too apt to receive such things on trust, in the belief that the judgment of the wicked are simultaneous, and occur after the visible coming of Jesus, and the supposed annihilation of the earth by fire. But this popular belief cannot, for a moment, bear careful examination. It is very easy to show that the saints are gathered to the Lord before he comes to judgment; and that when he comes he brings them with him. "When the Son of man cometh shall he find faith on the earth?"

In 2 Thess. 2: 1, our "gathering together to the Lord"—a subject then perfectly well understood and familiar—is presented as a ground of entreaty. In 1 Thess. 4: 14, we are informed that them which sleep in Jesus will God bring with Jesus; and in verse 17, that after the dead in Christ shall have first arisen, the living saints (whose bodies shall instantaneously have been changed into spiritual bodies like Christ's, 1 Cor. 15: 52, Phil. 3: 21) shall be caught up, at the same time, in company with them, in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air; and this expectation is pronounced to be christian comfort. When Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall we also appear with him, in glory. (Col. 3: 4). All kindreds of the earth shall wail, because of His coming (Rev. 1: 7); hence his people cannot be among them still. When the Lord cometh, it will be with myriads of his saints. (Jude 14). When the Lord our God shall come, he will bring all the saints with him. (Zech 14: 5). God's saints, before the time when he shall shine out of Zion, the perfection of beauty, shall have been gathered together unto him. (Ps. 50).

Next, we may inquire what light, if any, may be derived from the etymology of the word Armageddon. Its meaning must be looked for in the Hebrew tongue, for it is expressly said to be a Hebraistic phrase. (Rev. 16: 16). It is evidently composed of two parts, Ar and Mageddon. That the Greek Ar stands for the Hebrew Har, which signifies "a mountain," is so plain that it may be taken for granted. We have, then, the Mountain of Mageddon. But what is Mageddon? It is evidently a participial form, although it is no regular derivative, and nowhere occurs in the Hebrew Bible as such. It may be derived either from the verb magad, which means "to be precious, costly, glorious," or else, which is more likely, from the verb gadad (not adad, as misprinted in No. 3), which, in the Hithpael, signifies "to assemble." We may therefore translate Armageddon either, "the Mount of Assembling," or "the Mount of Glorious Gifts." Perhaps both meanings are included.—Prophetic Times.

For the World's Crisis.

THE OPPRESSOR.

How often has this petition been presented at the court of heaven—"Break the arm of the oppressor, and let the oppressed go free." And the petition has not been rejected. Sooner than many dared to hope the arm and power of the proud tyrant has been broken, and the slave has been set free.

Where on earth was ever seen such pride and cruelty as among the slaveholders of the South? The pride of the Spanish grandee was quite modest compared with this. The cruelty of the Algerines was surpassed by the supporters of the peculiar institution—truly called the "vilest that ever saw the sun."

The cries of the poor slave were heard, and the God of vengeance has poured out his wrath upon the crown of pride, and wrested the rod from the hand of the oppressor.

Now that the tyrant is overthrown, and the prison doors thrown open, the question comes up, what can we do for these people that are coming out of bondage? Can we point them to the promised land where they may find the liberty, of which the best they can have here is only a shadow?

Here is a field ready to receive the good seed. If GOD has chosen the poor of this world, then indeed these freedmen are his chosen ones. They are poor in the things of this world, yet many of them are even now rich in faith and heirs of the precious inheritance of the saints. Again we ask, "What can we do for them?"

Let those who can reach them by word or deed be forward to do so; while those who can do nothing else can PRAY FOR THEM. Let us all do what we can, and trust that our labor shall not be in vain.

Sutton, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

For the World's Crisis.

THE ORACLE; THE ALMANAC; AND OTHER ORACLES.

When I expressed the hope that this controversy about eclipses might have an end, and resigned the lecturer's chair, I did not abandon my right to correct any errors that might yet be made by Eld. Thurman. And this right is specially good if the authority of another party, who has not wished to appear in this controversy, is unjustly impeached.

I have also just received from Germany a Prize Essay on the eclipses of Ptolemy, for which I sent after failing to get the facts it contains from a copy in the Astor Library, New York. These facts have been promised in a general way, and I am happy in being now able to furnish them.

I shall make no further quarrel on the question whose oracle Mr. X. is, though I have my opinion. I shall not refuse to accept him if Eld. T. wishes to disclaim him. And for the following reasons:

1. I have said that Mr. X. helped Eld. T. to the correction of a palpable error in his book, some weeks after that error was pointed out and acknowledged. Eld. T. published the correction without stating his obligation; and he has not denied the obligation now that I have stated it.

2. I have said that Mr. X. discovered an error in Eld. T.'s deductions from his diagram of the eclipse of B. C. 457. Eld. T. replies to this with the following challenge: "If any astronomer, who has confidence enough in his calculations to suffer his name to be used, [and] will say that my tables do not make the eclipse of Dec. 16th, B. C. 457, total at Celænæ, I will publish it to the world as something reliable." The italics and brackets are mine. And here is the only attempt made to refute the allegation of error in Eld. T.'s deduction from his diagram.

I have plenty to say in reply. (1.) Respectable men have respectable reasons for not wishing their names paraded in some controversies. And Eld. T. knows that Mr. X. at the outset declined to allow his name to appear in the present controversy, which can end respectably only by the fairest statement of facts, and the fairest reasonings. Again, along with the use of his name, Mr. X. declined the expression of any opinion about Eld. T.'s tables or astronomy. This will not prove, indeed, that his opinion was unfavorable. Neither will it prove the contrary. But if Mr. X. had his misgivings, and wished to forbear a censure which might not be merited, it is both ungracious and ungrateful to intimate that he was concerned for his own reputation. I do not think that will suffer at the Nautical Almanac Office, where he is very well known, by any thing said in this controversy. And in this question of "confidence enough," let it be remembered that the results obtained by Mr. X., when first employed to compute some of Eld. T.'s eclipses, were twice called for to be published in the Crisis, and as often were they delayed; the article in which I myself afterwards offered them was refused, until superior authority required its insertion; and these results were not given to the readers of the Crisis until full four months after they were obtained from Mr. X.

(2.) When I showed Eld. T. a copy of Ptolemy's work, full of astronomical diagrams, he seemed to wonder what those figures were for. This may be of little account, or such diagrams may be a labyrinth in which Eld. T. is easily bewildered.

(3.) He is also ignorant of the use of logarithms, which every land surveyor is expected to know, and which are constantly employed by astronomers.

Let Eld. T. submit his diagram, with Mr. X.'s criticism, to any one or more persons who understand trigonometry, and we shall reach a verdict between them much sooner than by the route he proposes, and quite as safely.

3. Eld. T., in turn, alleges certain errors in Mr. X.'s computations or tables. One is in the eclipse of B. C. 431, which Mr. X. finds smaller than other computers, and smaller, he maintains, than the language of Thucydides allows. (Crisis, June 20.) Very likely. Only notice, that Eld. T. cites "six distinguished astronomers, all against Prof. Hudson's 'Oracle,' and all testifying to the correctness of my tables." Whereas two of these six computers make the eclipse total; and how can they prove the correctness of tables which make it partial? Eld. T. has lumped the authorities, which was certainly convenient. One of them, Mons. Pingre, he has elsewhere called "celebrated." Such adjectives are convenient also; but the authority for them would be still better, if we could only prevail on Eld. T. to give it.

To the fact that Eld. T. makes this eclipse much smaller than others do, I reply that such differences in computations often occur without proving the astronomer unskilled nor his tables worthless. Nor does a good hit in one or two eclipses prove the computer or his tables to be correct. A general near agreement of computations with observations or records, is the test of computer and tables too. If Eld. T. makes this eclipse, or that of A. D. 136, as accurately as he claims, calling the latter my "test" and my "standard," though I never named it, why not compute the two other eclipses observed and recorded by Ptolemy himself, just as good tests as that of A. D. 136, and give us his results? Why does Eld. T. parade one or two eclipses claimed to be well made by his tables, while the taking feature and leading merit of his "Book of Daniel Unsealed" consists in his not finding certain of Ptolemy's small eclipses which he admits came very near happening, and in claiming to prove that certain others were too small to have been seen, though the ancient record positively declares that they were seen?

4. In the same article (June 20) Eld. T. endeavors to disparage Mr. X.'s computations by comparing them with Pingre's computations, taking no notice of the recorded times or dimensions of the eclipses. I have not looked to see whether his figures gain or lose by this method, nor do I care. This method is grossly unscientific. It simply proves, in this case, that Mr. X. differs so much from a gentleman who computed 10,000 or 12,000 eclipses very roughly, a hundred years ago; a work which, if he had done it accurately and thoroughly, would have required that he should be living and toiling still at this day. And remember that Pingre found all Ptolemy's eclipses; so that, in constituting him a tribunal for the censure of Mr. X., he also warrants his condemnation of Eld. T. But this method of trying Mr. X. is also a palpable departure from the rule I had laid down, viz., that eclipses credibly recorded should prove the tables, and not the tables the eclipses; on the strength of which rule Eld. T. parades a certain eclipse as my test and standard. If the rule is good, why not consistently follow it? If it is not good, why parade the eclipse as proving his tables? Can Eld. T. tell us on what ground he intends to stand, and then stand there?

5. But another attempt in the same article to impeach Mr. X.'s accuracy calls for more than criticism. It is reprehensible. Mr. X. has computed the eclipse of A. D. 136, probably at Eld. T.'s special request. I care not for the difference of one hour in time between Mr. X. and Ptolemy's record, for reasons that will appear before I end. And Eld. T. can perhaps explain how a change from old style to new style should make a difference of only one day, so far back. But when he calls the difference between 4 3-10 digits and half a diameter or 6 digits, "two digits" for Mr. X.'s error; when he alleges an error of two minutes and thirty-one seconds in changing apparent time to true time, and that as an error "open to the criticism of every school boy that can read an almanac;" and when, to make the most of his fancied advantage, he finds Mr. X.'s variation in a modern almanac two weeks earlier in the year, and so construes the alleged error as being "really one of 14 days,"—I wish to say a word or two.

(1.) "Half a diameter" is round measurement. And Ptolemy never gives the fraction of a digit. The "half diameter" may have been no more than 5½ digits. And aside from this, the exaggeration outright of 1 7-10 digits into 2 digits is worthy only of one who has a purpose to serve; it is unworthy of an astronomer, not to say of a gentleman.

(2.) I have looked into the Almanac, and beyond it. One of the best series of family almanacs, for a period of 8 years, or two leap-year periods (1857 to 1865), gives on the ninth of March a gain of about half a minute in the difference between sun and clock time; and on the 25th of February a gain of seven minutes. A sensible school boy will be bewildered here, and Mr. X. will smile at these errors of the almanac that is so threatened against him. I then looked into the British Nautical Almanac, for which astronomers have some respect. I could not find the data for just 100 years without referring also to the Paris Ephemeris. This I did, taking care that I gained nothing for my argument by a slight difference in the numbers of the two documents. This gave me a gain, in going back, of 3.24 seconds, which carried back to A. D. 136 would be a gain of about 56 seconds, in the difference between apparent and true time, on the 5th of March.

Now I believed that Eld. T. knew nothing of all this. And I knew that Mr. X. did know such facts and much more too. So I was not alarmed for his reputation. Besides, I had a still further conjecture. It lingered in my rusty astronomy that the earth's perihelion, or place nearest the sun, is not always the same, but itself has a motion round the sun. That is, the ellipse in which the earth moves, and which is the cause of the difference between sun time and clock time, is veering round. I have in fact already alluded to this in this discussion. Looking among the books, I found in Olmsted's Astronomy, p. 107, that the period of this revolution is computed to be about 111,149 years.

I know also of another slow motion which I suppose affects the difference of sun and clock time still more rapidly. It is the precession of the equinoxes, by reason of which the north star is not always the north star, but the pole of the earth describes a large circle in a period of about 26,000 years.

I do not know enough to compute, from these data, the difference of sun and clock time on the 5th of March A. D. 136. But Mr. X. does. If any reader thinks that even the Nautical Almanac is against Mr. X., giving him only 56 seconds where he needs 2 minutes and 31 seconds, I reply that Mr. X. has told me that all modern astronomers are agreed that the moon's anomaly should be increased beyond the older estimates. Eld. T.'s tables, he understands, diminish this anomaly. Mr. X., I dare say, can easily account for the 2 min. and 31 sec. in question.

I will readily excuse Eld. T.'s ignorance of all these things I have named. But when he not only alleges Mr. X. to be in error, but exaggerates the alleged errors, both directly and constructively, and calls on a school boy with his almanac to correct an astronomer of forty years' experience, who had found Eld. T. boggling to correct his own palpable error and had kindly told him how to do it,—then I freely submit that while the ignorance is pardonable, the temerity and effrontery are reprehensible.

I do not think that the editor of the Crisis, who so deprecates personalities, duly weighed Eld. T.'s article of June 20. He has once requested me, if I could, to avoid the use of Eld. T.'s name altogether. And I was the more surprised when, shortly after, I offered my own version of a certain affair in which my name was used in a statement I thought inaccurate, and objection was made to my correcting the statement. "Mr. X." is not so pure a fiction, nor does the gentleman reside so far from Boston, that he will feel no emotion on reading Eld. T.'s allegations of error.

When I resigned the lecturer's chair, it was in Eld. T.'s favor. I also named two questions which would be a suitable theme for astronomical information. Eld. T. does not offer the information yet, and I have not time to do so now. But I will say that when I asked those questions of Eld. T., his replies seemed to indicate his entire ignorance or forgetfulness of several elementary facts in astronomy, which make an eclipse of the sun total instead of annular, or vice versa; which seriously affect the size and duration of every eclipse; and which are all regarded and reckoned in all computations of eclipses by astronomers.

It will also be recollected that certain questions have been asked in the Crisis respecting Eld. T.'s knowledge of astronomy. And he has replied, as yet, very little more than to say that he had read such books as can make one wise unto salvation. Whether this reply was a piece of humor, or a way of saying that we need not concern ourselves about his knowledge of astronomy, we have yet to guess, and some of us do guess. Would it not have been well for Eld. T. to answer questions that we thought both pertinent and civil, instead of straining every nerve to get rid of the response of the oracle consulted in his behalf six months ago, concerning whom a certain man said to me in words substantially as follows: "You may not be aware that Eld. Thurman's astronomy has been submitted to men who know more of astronomy than you and I both, and Eld. T. is sustained"? Whose oracle is he? or, is he only a football to be caught and struck as suits the game?

So much respecting the oracle, and the almanac which has been proposed for his tribunal. And now respecting other oracles.

I have promised authority for those who wished it, which would satisfy not a few readers that Ptolemy's eclipses were astronomical facts. In the Crisis of June 27, Eld. T. reminds me of this promise, which I had not forgotten, repeating his assertion so often made, that certain of Ptolemy's eclipses are incompatible. "In defense of our Bible," he says, "I have more than once declared that no astronomical tables can make those eclipses in harmony with Ptolemy's canon, which occurred before the year [B. C.] 431." And he attempts to support this assertion from the fact that Mr. X. fails to make the eclipse of B. C. 491. This fact is now reported for the first time, and we are not told at whose request Mr. X. computed this eclipse, though he is still called my oracle. Nor is any word reported from Mr. X. saying why the eclipse is not made, or whether there is any possible explanation. For once, Mr. X. is made to speak very oracularly: "There was no eclipse at all at that time." Did Mr. X. say just that, and nothing more?

I said my promise was not forgotten. Eld. T. says, "We have with much patience been waiting for him to comply with his promise. Despairing of any proof on his part," etc. Does Eld. T. read the Crisis? Does he recollect that I have told its readers that his "celebrated" astronomer, Pingre, made all Ptolemy's eclipses, and by one set of tables too? Why is it that his celebrity seems very good when it is supposed to help Eld. T., but when it is adverse, Eld. T. appears not to recollect the gentleman? Again, did Eld. T. see in the Crisis of June 13 my statement respecting the computation of Ptolemy's eclipses by Mr. Ideler and Dr. Zech? If so, why does he take no notice of it whatever, and then "despair of any proof" on my part? Were these gentlemen nobody, because Eld. T. knew nothing about them? Did he need that I should call them "distinguished," or "celebrated," so they might be worthy of his regard? When he has seen, in astronomical books, one quarter as many allusions to their names as I have met, I shall know that he reads astronomical books,—and not till then.

I will here add that the older tables, which Ideler found inadequate for some of the eclipses, are those of Burg. They are, say, twenty times as large as Ferguson's or Thurman's. When Eld. T. has read Prof. Airy's paper censuring the use even of Burg's tables, he can tell us if he understands it. Well, Mr. Ideler tried this very eclipse of B. C. 491 by Burg's tables, as well as by Zach's and Mayer's, which are later and regarded as better. Burg's tables give no eclipse. Zech's and Mayer's give a small eclipse, and the small eclipse is recorded so small that Eld. T. would say it was not seen at all, even if his tables made it.

There is no harm in saying here that I have had some correspondence with another astronomer, not Mr. X., about Eld. T.'s book. The Editor of the Crisis has seen his letters, and found in them a compliment to Eld. T.'s industry, which he thought worth publishing. Among other compliments was a comparison of Eld. T. to Goldsmith's Schoolmaster:

"For e'en though vanquished, he could argue still."

If I believed that the readers of the Crisis paid as little regard to the authorities I have given, "celebrated" by Eld. T. or more relied on by myself, as Eld. T. does, I might in reply to his present call, quote a homely text of Scripture and say no more. But I am more hopeful. So I proceed to say that the Prize Essay I have just received from Germany is the work of Dr. Zech to which I referred June 13, being his computations of Ptolemy's nineteen eclipses. Dr. Z. is Professor of Astronomy in Leipsic, and the Prize was awarded by an Astronomical Society of that city. I must defer a fuller account of Dr. Zech's results to another article. But I must here say what will be worth saying a second time. Dr. Z. gives a larger history of former computations than I had found elsewhere, from those of Petavius down to our own day. He says nothing of Struyk or Ferguson, who were doubtless clever astronomers, but their computations not famous. He mentions Ideler, and with respect. I hope to find some of the computations he refers to for my next article.

I said, June 13, that this Essay was referred to in Dr. Z.'s later Essay (also a Prize awarded by the same Society), in such a way as to leave no doubt that the eclipses were found. And they are all found by Dr. Zech. He gives a full account of the methods he used, and of course tells us whose tables he employs. Methods and tables are alike unknown to Eld. T., I dare say. But I can ask the "oracle" to explain them to me.

I happen to be aware, however, that Eld. T. and Dr. Z. differ about the Xerxes eclipse, and this may disparage the astronomical authority of Dr. Z., though it ought not. Supposing, for the sake of argument, that Dr. Z. were wrong in a question of history or of chronology, he is no less reliable in astronomy. Whether he proves that the eclipse of 457 B. C. was that seen by Xerxes army, or not, his computation of that eclipse remains undisputed. And so his computations of Ptolemy's eclipses must be regarded as valid, unless a better astronomical authority shall point out a defect in the tables or methods employed by Dr. Zech.

But Dr. Z., in this Essay, does not speak for himself alone. Besides using the best tables, Hansen's of the sun and Damoiseau's of the moon, and after applying corrections of the "secular motions," by a method well understood among astronomers, he found results closely agreeing with PROFESSOR AIRY'S corrections, deduced from eighty years of the Greenwich observations. He accordingly employs Prof. Airy's corrections, and this astronomer thus becomes a party to his computations; insomuch that his results, in his concluding tables, are given under the name of "Airy." This name has been honored by the Crisis, whose readers now know that Prof. A. holds the highest position known to English astronomy. And this is not all. Astronomers have methods of reducing or balancing the errors of the numerous elements that enter into such computations. This is not a mere guess work, or a shift to press the result nearer to the desired end. I notice one instance in the tables in which the difference of the computation from the observation is made half as large again by this method. It is honest work. Eld. T. need not be at all jealous of it.

Well, two systems of such additional computation are employed, and the results are given. So we have here virtually a threefold computation of these eclipses, by one of the most accomplished astronomers of our day, with the best apparatus, and corrections derived from the most extended observations, by the foremost astronomer in England.

The eclipses are all found. The results agree in the main with the details of Ptolemy's record. The greatest difference is two digits, the next greatest one digit, for dimensions; but generally very much less, in one case only one twentieth of a digit. And for time, the difference varies from three quarters of an hour to only about half a minute.

So that has been done which Eld. T., "in defence of our Bible," has roundly asserted could not be done. I can not guess how he can "argue still," unless by trying to show that the eclipses thus actually found for Ptolemy's, one by one, and so nearly according to the terms of his record, were not Ptolemy's eclipses. But some readers will inquire if the Bible needs any such desperate defence. I trust the astronomical question Eld. T. has raised is now well nigh settled. If any one has feared at all for the Bible in all this controversy about eclipses, I am very sorry, and will say why in another article. C. F. H.

PLEASE INFORM.

Will the sister in Oswego, who wrote me, wishing me to call and see her, write me again, for I have lost her address. I spent half a day in trying to find her, but could not. My daughter was taken very sick with lung fever, so I could not visit her when I talked of it, and my letter was disposed of some way, I do not know how.

LYDIA M. COLLINS.

Scriba, Oswego Co., N. Y.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Tuesday, July 25, 1865.

TO OUR DEBTORS.

As the present volume of the World's Crisis will close in September next, we shall, in a few weeks, in accordance with our usual custom, send bills to all who at that time shall be owing $2.00 or more for the same,—and also to those who are indebted for books.

If all such will save us that trouble and expense, by remitting at once the amount of their indebtedness, they will receive our especial thanks, and will no doubt be better pleased themselves. Will you not, brethren and friends, make both yourself and us glad by your prompt and immediate response to this call,—by return mail? *

TRACTS.

Now is the time to scatter tracts. People are anxious to read them. Send in your orders. We have them all ready to fly on their errands of love and mercy. We hope every minister will become a tract distributor, and help arouse others to the good work. Let all who wish to aid in spreading light and truth send us their address, stating how many they can distribute to advantage, and we will do the best we can to supply the wants of the people with free tracts. While we thus send out the little messengers, let all who can send us the means to keep the stream constantly flowing. Do not let the fountain dry up, but let it come out gushing with abundance of good things.

WILBRAHAM.

Do not forget to pray for our great campmeeting at Wilbraham. We expect it will be one of special interest and importance. We hope to see the largest gathering of Zion's pilgrims we have ever seen together on that consecrated spot. Let it be our prayer that it may be the best.

VISIT TO CANADA.

Our late visit to the Queen's dominions has been both pleasant and profitable. We left home June 22nd, and had a delightful ride through the most romantic section of country we have ever seen. We refer to the route over the Vt. Central R. R. from Concord, N. H., to the Canada line. There is an ever varying change of scenery of the most interesting variety of hills and vales, nice farms on the hill-side, with good meadow lands in the river valley winding among the Green Mountain range; and interspersed are pleasant cottage homes in which reside the thrifty farmers, where they can enjoy the luxury of pure air, good soft water, and tables well spread with fruits and vegetables which their own hands have planted and gathered. We think there is no class of people whose situation is so pleasant as that enjoyed by the farmers in these romantic spots. We felt a longing desire to roam over their hills, through their vallies, into the glens beside the purling brooks, where the deep shade would afford a fit retirement for reflection and devotion, undisturbed by the busy world around; but we had no time nor opportunity for such a privilege. Our rapid speed as we dashed past the beautiful scenery only served to remind us of the spirit of the age—all in a hurry for a change that shall unfold some startling event. The cry is, "Put on the steam, take off the brakes, clear the track, and put us through without delay!"

We left Boston at 8 o'clock A. M., and at the close of the day we were in Canada, pleasantly situated in the quiet home of Bro. Joel Spear, where every want was kindly supplied. How pleasing the change, after riding all day with strangers, to sit down at night among those who love Jesus and his appearing. We never feel so lonely any where as when among those who do not love the Savior and his appearing.

On the following day, we commenced our meetings at North Stanbridge, and held two meetings a day for one week. Bro. C. P. Dow was with us. He is a true and faithful servant of Christ, whose labors are blessed of the Lord. Our meetings in S. continued to improve from the beginning to their close. People took much pains to be present. On the Lord's day, they took out a window, took the door off from its hinges, and fixed the speaker's stand by the open window, so that he could speak to a crowded house and about as many more outside. The people gave the best attention. The Spirit of the Lord was with us. Many were much blessed during the meetings, and several heads of families decided to become the followers of Jesus, and requested prayers. We shall expect to hear that the work is onward in that place. We found the hearts of the people open to receive the truth, and dispositions to put it into practice.

Friday, June 30th, we left Stanbridge for Montreal, C. E., where we commenced meetings that evening, and continued them till the following Wednesday evening. We found the church in need of special efforts, for the enemy had been making an earnest attack upon it, in one of his most artful modes of warfare against the faithful; but the Lord sent all needed aid, as soon as we trusted all in his hands. Prejudice has been much removed, and there are large numbers who sympathize with the truth as it has been presented. People now see that one may believe what we preach, and still love the Lord. The cry of "infidel" is not heard as frequently as it was a year since, from those opposed. Quite a number of intelligent persons are becoming interested in the truth, and are anxious to hear more. We trust much good was accomplished during these meetings. Eight were baptized, and others intend to improve the next opportunity. We have heard glad tidings from M. since we left. We learn that their prayer and conference meetings are excellent, and well attended.

There is an open door for the truth in Montreal, which no man can shut. An earnest battle has been fought with "orthodoxy," so called, but the victory has not turned in its favor. It has the advantage of popular influence, social, political, and ecclesiastical power; but the simple truth accompanied by the Spirit of the Lord is more than a match for all these. Pray for this church, that it may endure to the end. We enjoyed our visit with these friends of Jesus, and left them rejoicing in the hope of speedy deliverance.

Thursday evening, July 6th, we commenced meetings in Danville, C. E., about midway from Montreal to Quebec. We met a very hearty greeting from Bro. J. Porter and family, where we enjoyed, as usual, a real pilgrim's home. We found this church faint, but pursuing. We remained till July 17th, and saw rich fruits of our labors. Some very intelligent persons are becoming deeply interested in our "blessed hope." Prominent members of other churches begin to see the light on the great truths we love so well, which are of more value to us than all the world beside. We have not seen a brighter prospect for Danville for years than at the present time. Several requested prayers during the meetings, and we conversed with several others who were under conviction. We hope to hear they have given their hearts to the Lord. We formed a very pleasant acquaintance with Dr. Hurd, an intelligent physician in the place, who is a lover of light and truth, and is endeavoring to serve the Lord.

Notwithstanding it was a busy season of the year, our audiences were quite large every day. The people take great pains to get out to meeting in Canada. We find them more easily moved from the broad road that leads to destruction, than they are in the States. They do not appear to be so far advanced in wickedness and infidelity, but are more bigoted; especially those who belong to the popular churches in the cities, where we find the real spirit of Phariseeism, that is unapproachable from any stand-point but through their own medium. They will not advance themselves, nor let others who would be glad of the privilege. It is a sad sight to behold, but it is no new thing. It was so when our Savior was upon earth; and human nature has not improved since the time he left the world.

At the close of our last meeting in Danville, we had a pleasant communion season, while seated around the table of the Lord. We parted in bright hopes that we should not have to wait long before we shall see our dear Savior coming in all his glory.

THE NEXT CONGRESS.

The Montreal Telegraph of July 14th says: "The next Congress of the United States will probably be the last in which Republican rule will ever display itself." We do not know the basis of such a conclusion on the partof the Telegraph but we may expect some radical changes in the government of the States before long. There is a great fermentation of opinions, which must soon be dedeveloped by earnest action, confusion and bitter strife, that will of necessity result in a revolution in political matters. It is quite evident that the work of reconstruction is to be a very difficult thing to manage, because each party is determined to have its own way, or separate from the opposing parties. This is a very sad state of society; but is one of the signs of the times, indicating the end of the present dispensation. Confusion, strife, and perplexity, may be expected with a rapidly increasing ratio, from now to the end.

INCREASE OF ROWDYISM.

Wickedness and infidelity are making bold and rapid progress at the present day; while the light of pure christianity is more and more rarely seen shining forth in the lives of those who profess to be the followers of Jesus. How true it is that but little else than cold formality remains.

The following from the Montreal Telegraph presents a gloomy picture of the morals of New York:—

"The New York papers lament the fearful spread of 'rowdyism' in and around the city. Sunday, which is devoted to pleasure-seeking by a majority of New Yorkers, seems to have become a perfect saturnalia of all kinds of iniquities and vices. We read of ladies being set upon, beaten, and horribly maltreated; the street cars seized by ruffians and the passengers insulted, old men beaten and left for dead upon the street, and other atrocities too numerous and too dreadful to be mentioned. All this in open daylight in and adjacent to the city of New York."

Yet there are peace-and-safety criers, who say the world is growing better. Thus it must be in "the time of the end."

VARIOUS READINGS.

The different renderings of obscure passages of Scripture often throw much light on the subject. We consider the various translations as the best commentaries we can have. These very often make a passage which is exceedingly dark in King James' version, quite plain and easy of comprehension. Perhaps the following translations, as given by Wakefield, an able translator, will serve to throw light upon some minds:—

John 1: 1–4, 14, 14—"In the beginning was Wisdom, and Wisdom was with God, and Wisdom was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by it, and without it was nothing made. . . . And this Wisdom became flesh, and dwelt among us, full of favor and truth." Compare the foregoing with Prov. 8: 22–32, where wisdom is the subject, as follows:—

"The Lord possessed me in the beginning of his way, before his works of old. I was set up from everlasting, from the beginning, or ever the earth was. When there were no depths, I was brought forth; when there were no fountains abounding with water. Before the mountains were settled, before the hills was I brought forth; while as yet he had not made the earth, nor the fields, nor the highest part of the dust of the world. When he prepared the heavens, I was there: when he set a compass upon the face of the depth; when he established the clouds above: when he strengthened the fountains of the deep; when he gave to the sea his decree, that the waters should not pass his commandment: when he appointed the foundations of the earth; then I was by him, as one brought up with him: and I was daily his delight, rejoicing always before him; rejoicing in the habitable part of his earth; and my delights were with the sons of men. Now therefore hearken unto me, O ye children: for blessed are they that keep my ways."

THE HERALD OF HEALTH.

We have just received the July number of the Herald of Health, edited by Dr. R. T. Trall, and published by Miller, Wood & Co., 15 Laight Steet, New York. Price $1.50 per year. The volume begins with the July number. Those who wish an excellent health journal will get their money's worth if they take the Herald of Health. It should be in every family.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY, in tract form.—Remember the change of price—40 cents for the set. We had to pay more for them than the former lot.

PTOLEMY'S CANON.

One point we consider most fully established as the result of the examination of Ptolemy's Canon, which is that it is incorrect, and cannot be harmonized with the Bible; and that the reliance on his Canon was the chief cause of all our past mistakes in chronology. Perhaps we cannot better express our feelings than in the following article from the Voice of the West, of June 20th, 1865:—

We this week give the last of Bro. Thurman's articles, for the present on the incorrectness of Ptolemy's Canon. In ninety-four distinct ways* he has sustained his position, and sustained it triumphantly. Never again can it be said by any candid person who has examined the evidence here presented, that Ptolemy's canon "is not to be set aside for the authority of any writing whatsoever." It is still valuable to a certain extent, as a work of reference and historical record: but as a chronological authority it is fallen from the high position it has occupied, and with it fall all those chronological systems based upon it.

Whether Thurman's system be correct or not, he has clearly proven that all systems founded on the Ptolemaic record must be set aside as unreliable.

Truly knowledge has increased. With our present light on the true Bible chronology, we could never have fallen into the error of supposing the prophetic periods would end in 1843. And so strong was the argument for that year, based on the supposed infallible Ptolemaic chronology, that many have supposed that the prophetic periods, or at least a part of them, were then fulfilled; and many fanciful and forced interpretations of Scripture have been resorted to, to sustain this position. Now, all is plain. We (though not intentionally) rejected God's word for the record of a man. The Bible (as we believed) must be interpreted to accord with the chronological sytsem which, being based on astronomy, was as infallible as the Bible itself.

The Bible said, "From the going forth of the commandment to restore and build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks and three-score and two weeks," or 483 years. Both Bible and history showed that the Jews returned to Jerusalem, and commenced work upon their city and temple, by commandment, in the first year of Cyrus; a work God, by Isaiah, had said should be done by Cyrus. But the astronomical record said "Cyrus could not have given this commandment; for sixty-nine prophetic weeks from his reign can in no way be made to reach to the Messiah." So prophesy and history were explained away, and, instead of making Ptolemy (astronomy and all) harmonize with the Bible, the Bible was made to harmonize with Ptolemy. What but error could possibly be the result of such a course? But now, thank God! Ptolemy has been brought to the test. His word has been weighed against God's word, and has been found wanting. Whether Eld. Thurman's views on many points are correct or not; he has clearly demenstrated and established his position, that Ptolemy's Canon is incorrect, and has thus afforded a new proof of the authenticity and inspiration of the Holy Scriptures: for if the Canon had been proved correct, then the word of God must have fallen.

The publication of Eld. Thurman's work is leading to a more thorough investigation of the whole subject of chronology and chronological prophecy than the church and world have, perhaps, ever before seen. We look for light and truth to be elicited for the comfort of God's children: and let us have all the light of truth even, should the lustre be such as to render our private lanterns of no account whatever. "Let God be true, if it makes every man a liar."

* We may give a portion of these to the readers of the Crisis in due time.

GOOD TIDINGS.

We hear more good tidings from our brethern in New York city in the direction of union meetings. Bro. Macdonald writes:—

"Another meeting of all believers in the Second Advent will be held here on the last Lord's day of July. This time it will be at the Cooper Institute, at 2 P. M.

The meeting that took place on the 2d inst. was eminently successful. The numbers were large, the spirit animated and full of love, and so interesting generally that it was with reluctance, after three hours uninterrupted speaking, it was brought to a close. Expression of hearty satisfaction was given by all, without a shade of dissent from any one."

When speaking of the Union meeting, June 26th, Bro. Himes says in his "Journal":—

"In the afternoon, at two o'clock, attended the Union meeting. All the Adventists in the city and vicinity had been invited to meet in a Union Conference meeting. The invitation was accepted in good faith, and the largest nomber of Adventists came together in the unity of the Spirit that I have seen in this city for the last fifteen years. About forty spoke from one to ten minutes each, with singing interspersed between the remarks. The service continued over two and a half hours, without interruption; and with oneness of soul and object. It was "good to be there;" and though each one spoke the honest sentiments of his heart, there was no clashing. All was brotherly and kind. What is to grow out of this I cannot say. Another meeting was provided for, and I can but hope, as I also sincerely pray, for good. If, as we believe, the Lord is soon to come, we should cherish the gathering and uniting spirit among his people. Why should not those who look for the "blessed hope" live in unity and cooperate in the great work of warning the world of the approaching judgment, and preparing a people for the blessed advent and kingdom of Christ? Why?"

POSTAL MONEY-ORDERS.

"How can I send money to the office without any risk of its being lost in the mail?"

All sums under $5.00 may be sent in the usual way, by letter, at our risk. When properly mailed and addressed, they seldom fail to reach us. Larger sums may be sent, in perfect safety, by the new postal money-order system.

"How is it done?"

Hand your money to your postmaster, get his Order for the same, and forward the Order to us. Upon receipt of which the post master here pays us the amount.

"But suppose the Order gets lost in the mail, or purloined?"

If purloined, no one can collect it but those who are authorized so to do; if lost, the Post-Office Department is responsible, and your postmaster will give you a duplicate.

"Can these Orders be obtained at any office?"

They cannot yet. There are at present but 412 Money-Order Offices. Some additions have recently been made to the list, and the system, which has been in operation only a few months, is thus far working so well, that arrangements will doubtless be made as soon as possible to issue them from every office in the United States. Your postmaster will inform you whether your post-office is a Money Order Office or not; if so, you will do well, in sending large amounts, to do it through a Postal-Order. *

TERMS OF THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

The Young Pilgrim will be continued semi-monthly the ensuing year at the following rates:

For a single copy,—Fifty Cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, or any number of copies under fifty, when sent to one address,—Forty Cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number of copies over fifty, when sent to one address,—Thirty-five Cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers,—at the same rates, with no extra charge for American postage.

All subscriptions for the coming year must be made at the above rates.

We shall send the July numbers of the new volume to all of our present subscribers, and hope to hear from every one before the 1st of August. After that, no more will be sent, except to those who have renewed their subscription.

CLUBS.

Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other name on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, 37 cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, 32 cents a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less that ten), from 12 to 21 cents a year on each copy.

Subscriptions may commence with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

All communications, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to the YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS. *

For the World's Crisis.

ATTENTION, WESTERN NEW YORK AND PENN.!!

At the earnest request of my true yoke-fellow, Joseph D. Brown, and the brethren in his section of country, I have concluded to leave my book work at the Tract Repository in the hands of my assistants for a few days after the Tremont campmeeting, and take a brief tour, probably carrying my big tent, and holding meetings for a few days in New York and Pennsylvania.

The time, crowded between the Tremont meeting and the Wilbraham meeting, both of which I hope to attend, will be lamentably short. Still, with God's blessing, we hope to do something. Will the brethren pray that God will be with us? And will friends in these regions report themselves for duty, armed and equipped as the law directs, for service in the army of the Lord?

N. B. Each soldier is required to have—

One "GIRDLE" of Truth, well buckled about the loins.

One "BREASTPLATE"—Righteousness.

Two "SHOES"—the preparation of the gospel of Peace. Many of the soldiers are limping around barefooted. I am glad to announce that there are plenty of shoes in the Lord's armory for all his soldiers. Deserters do not draw them.

One "SHIELD" of Faith, which will quench the fiery darts of the adversaries.

One "HELMET"—Salvation, and "the hope of salvation." Be sure you have both parts; some omit one and have no present salvation, and others omit the other and have no hope of salvation; both complete the shelter for a brain reeling under Satan's heavy blows.

One "SWORD OF THE SPIRIT"—the word of God—the only weapon of offence which is allowed. Bows, sharp arrows, even bitter words, words softer than oil and yet drawn swords, squibs, sky rockets, muskets, blunderbusses, pop-guns to make a noise, squirt-guns to dirty every one who doesn't swallow every new notion, all excluded. No chance for bush fighting. Soldiers must walk up within arms' length, and meet the enemy.

One "All-prayer," with supplication for all saints, and for us also, that we may open our mouths boldly to make known the mystery of the gospel, and speak as we ought to speak.

Bro. Brown's programme, which will be followed so far as seems to be the will of God, is as follows:—

1. Meeting at Carlton, N. Y., west of Rochester, N. Y., beginning on Wednesday or Thursday, August 2d or 3d.

2. Meeting at Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., commencing Tuesday, Aug. 8th.

3. Meeting at Barre, Aug. 16th. Thence, if the Lord permit, to Wilbraham, Alton Bay, etc.

To save freight, I shall not transport the tent frame, and shall need four strong poles, three inches through, fifteen feet long. Fourteen light poles, seven and a half feet long, two inches through; and iron rods, one-eighth to one-fourth of an inch through, driven into the tops of all of them, sticking out about three inches above the top of the pole. Also about five or six hundred feet of plank, twelve or fifteen feet long, for seats, and fire wood enough to make stakes of. It should be pitched on a straight slope, if convenient, and some lamps should be provided for lighting it. Will the friends see to these needs?

July 22d, 1865. H. L. HASTINGS.

☞ Watchfulness and prayer form the christian's entrenchment. These are the lines our enemy cannot break. Be the person who uses them ever so weak, he will be sure to stand; be the person who neglects them ever so strong in himself, he is liable to fall.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$1186.46
J. C. Newhouse	1.00
"D."	1.00
A young brother	3.00
A friend	1.32
J. Morrison	1.32

SCATTER THE TRACTS.

Are brethren and sisters doing all they can in the work of tract distribution? How is it with you, reader? are you doing your duty in this matter? We have several hundred thousand pages of tracts waiting to be sent out preaching, of truth, righteousness, and a judgment to come; and we have just printed several hundred thousand more. With or without money, we want them scattered, like autumn leaves, in all parts of the land. Ho! for a thousand tract distributors!

Come, ye morning stars of the Sun of Righteousness, arise! Go forth with these little messengers on your mission of light and salvation, and thousands, who now sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, will, when He comes before whose face all Darkness and Night and Error and Sin shall forever flee away, rejoice in the bright radiance of Eternal Day. *

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.
Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$1090.26
"D."	1.00
Mrs. Sarah Manning	5.00

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

W. B. H., Boston, Mass	$5.00
James Douglass, West Troy, N. Y.	5.00
A. M. L., North Weare, N. H.	5.00
N. D. B., Hallowell, Me	2.00
Mrs. L. S. Dinsmore, Hallowell, Me	1.00
Betsy C. Bancroft, Ashburnham, Mass	.50
A sister	5.00
M. L. Colton, Shabbona Grove, Ill	.70
"Tariffville," Ct	2.00
E. D. Hitchcock, Somersville, Ct	1.00
Geo E. Hooper, No. Hydepark, Vt	1.00
"Brunswick," Me	5.00
Maria Drury, Roxbury, Mass	1.00
D., Farmington, N. H	1.00
Geo. S. Harwood, No. Swansea, Mass	10.00
J. B. Walker, Athol Depot	1.78
Wm. Christian, Norwalk, O	.50
——, East Weare, N. H	5.00
A sister in New Hampshire	2.00
Amos Scripture, Mason Village, N. H	1.00
"Friends"	10.00
Mrs. N. J. Humphrey, Yarmouth, Me	1.13
A young brother	5.00
Friends, Kennebunk, Me	1.10
N. Shumway, Danielsonville, Ct	.50
Mrs. C. Barnes, Brookfield, Ct	.50
Mrs. M. Sunderland	5.00

FREEDMEN'S SCHOOLS IN SAVANNAH.

The following interesting account of the establishment of schools for the colored people in Savannah soon after its capture, is from the Freedman's Journal of some months since. It will be new to most of the Crisis readers; and while it shows the wonderful change which Providence has wrought in the condition of the colored race South, it also exhibits the fact that schools and missions there may, in a short time, be made self-sustaining, and independent of foreign aid. We may find in it also a silent reproof for our tardiness in the good work, as we read of the promptitude with which others improve the opportunities which God has opened to the labors of us all by the hand of war. W. B. H.

"When Gen. Sherman arrived in Savannah with his army after their wonderful march from Atlanta, Rev. Mr. Alvord, one of the officers of the Tract Society at Boston, went down to meet them, and carried with him a large number of religious books and papers for the soldiers to read. This is one of the ways of keeping them from growing vicious, and of leading them to care for religious things. The Tract Society has given away to the soldiers almost a hundred thousand dollars worth of such reading since the war began.

Mr. Alvord found a good many colored people in Savannah who had some learning, and could teach reading and writing. So he proposed that the freedmen should establish schools there to be taught by these people. To pay the expense of the schools, a society was formed, called the 'Educational Association;' and all who would were invited to join it, each member paying three dollars. So many joined it the first evening, that the money paid in amounted to over seven hundred dollars; and much more is expected. All this was done by the colored people alone.

Then the children—five hundred in number—came together to be formed in schools. They made ten schools, each having fifty scholars; and persons were chosen to be their teachers. Having done this, they concluded to have a procession. So they formed in a line, going two by two, each school with its teacher at its head, and marched through the streets of the city. How the white people looked and wondered! Such a sight was never seen there before. Black children going to school!

The procession marched on till they came to the old slave-market,—a large building, three stories high. Gen. Geary, who now commands the city, said they might have this for a school-house. So they took possession of it, placing the children along the very platforms where the old slave-traders used to set men and women to be examined for sale. The fathers and mothers of the children looked on in wonder to think what a change had taken place; while many wept joyful tears, and shouted praises to God who had done such great things for them.

The great beauty of all this is, that the whole has been undertaken and carried on by the colored people themselves. Mr. Alvord and others have advised and helped them to plan their schools; but the support and management of them will be theirs alone. We are heartily glad of this. If they succeed, as we trust they will, it will show how much the freedmen can do for themselves. It will tend to make them have confidence in themselves, and gain the respect of the Government and of all the loyal people. We hope that, so far as it is possible, they will imitate this good example everywhere."

For the World's Crisis.

NEW WORKS.

JERUSALEM IN GLOOM AND GLORY: with a Review of Rev. G. B. Bucher's "Objections to Error." By John M. Orrock. 46 pp. 12mo.

Excellent, excellent. The Review of B. is the main work. He opens with iron links of logic and argumentation, and proceeds with irrefutable Scriptures, rising often into real eloquence. Elder O., we think, fairly overmatches his opponent. The work advances truths we all hold in common, and should be circulated by all. For sale at 46½ Kneeland Street, Boston, at the office of the Advent Herald.

A TRACT FOR THE TIMES.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the Token of Safety; or the Fall of Jericho a Type, etc. 40 pp., 8vo. By Wm. Shepherd, Newark, N. J.

A fine tract, full of earnest words of warning, in an affectionate spirit. This is a revised and enlarged edition, and worthy of circulation as a last day admonition to an unbelieving and perishing world. D. T. T.

For the World's Crisis.

GOOD THINGS.—NO. 2.

They still come. What? More donations for the Freedmen. Two dollars from a couple of God's daughters in Hawley, Mass. Though not so abundant in mammon as many, they desire to hear it said, "She hath done what she could." If all contribute accordingly, there will be no lack.

Next comes a letter from our friends the Indians, of Southampton, L. I., with six dollors enclosed for the relief of their African brethren. This looks well, and must, methinks, be a sweet savor unto the Lord. God bless them, is my prayer, and bring them into their own land, where their rights will no more be disputed, but with all their Father's family enjoy the present of the kingdom under the whole heavens.

"Hail, happy day!"

Next a letter from P. W. Hough of Cascade, Iowa, is received, with seven dollars enclosed, being the avails of a contribution taken at the Conference at Manchester, June 15. Thank you, dear friends.

I do feel thankful that there is so much interest elicited on this important matter. I hope those who have wisdom on the subject will come to Wilbraham to plan wisely, so that the most can be done with our limited means possible. May we have the most faithful and efficient persons sent.

In my last I mentioned two barrels of clothing sent to my brother in Washington, D. C., for the freedmen. When I received his letter informing me of their heartfelt gratitude, I could not refrain from tears, and immediately felt more than rewarded for all the days of labor I had spent for them, and I presume my sister helpers here enjoy the same emotion. Thank God for the good news we hear from these poor dependent people, from Louisiana to Virginia, of their voluntary industry, both mental and physical, and their patience under the most horrid abuse. In their late abuse in Richmond, Va., see their speedy resort to Him who hath said, "Vengeance is mine, I will repay, saith the Lord."

B. MATHEWSON.

Castleton, Vt., July, 1865.

For the World's Crisis.

WILBRAHAM CAMPMEETING.

Dear Brethren of New York and vicinity: As there is a larger number than usual going from New York and Philadelphia to this meeting, can we not have the fare reduced on this route as well as other routes? What brother will attend to this matter?

Is there any one who has a tent to lend or let to me for the use of the colored people? There are many who have received these truths partially the past year, who are not settled in their minds, and desire to hear preaching on this subject. They would like to attend this meeting, if we can get them a tent to sleep in. If any brother or sister knows of one, will he or she write to me in time? Your sister, waiting for redemption.

ANNA E. SMITH.

No. 128, East 27th St., N. Y.

For the World's Crisis.

THE ITALIAN MISSION.

La Tour Pellice, via Turin, Italy, July 1st, 1865.

DEAR BRO. GRANT:—With the commencement of this month we finish one year of our missionary labor in Italy. We desire to express our grateful thanks to our Heavenly Father for all the blessings of this first year in Italy; for the restoration of our health, and the privilege of laboring in our dear Master's vineyard, and among the Vaudois, his ancient church once so faithful to the grace given them, but now, alas, nearly destitute of the pure gospel in its life and power. And we do not forget, dear brethren and sisters of our dear adopted country, to thank you, as God's instruments, for your charity in giving of your means for our support while laboring with all the ability he has given us to spread the light we have received from the Sacred Oracles, in Europe, where there is such darkness in regard to many of the important truths taught in his word.

We deeply appreciate the sacrifices you have made for this object the past year, under the most trying circumstances, resulting from the war just closed; the great loss upon your contributions by exchange, heavy taxation, and so many pressing objects of charity at home, especially the care and instruction of the late bondmen, whom God through the instrumentality of the war has just freed from their galling chains, (and we pray earnestly that God may put it into the hearts of some in Europe, Asia and Africa, who have means, to contribute also to this noble purpose.) With such urgent and important calls upon your means and sympathies at home, you have remembered also there is a foreign land, who are in need of the light of divine truth. We pray that God may abundnntly bless you and all your sacrifices for his cause, that they may accomplish the desired good.

In regard to the result of our labors the past year, we have much cause for encouragement and gratitude to our Heavenly Father, and we trust that a good foundation is laid here, and with the divine blessing, the work of this building must go forward. We have labored under many discouraging circumstances, and the habits and character of the people of these valleys are averse to religious change, and those who first break away from their established religious forms must needs have much faith and moral courage. There are a few who have already taken up this heavy cross, and these are among the best and most substantial of the people here. Glory be to God!

Many more are convinced of the truths we preach, who do not as yet feel its force sufficiently to break the strong cords that bind them and stand forth as the LORD'S FREEMEN. Many of these, we trust, when this Mission is well established and their way becomes more clear, will have strength given them to walk also in the light.

We have had this evening the most solemn and impressive meeting we have ever enjoyed in Italy. Our beloved brother, Joseph Jones, was buried in baptism, "for the remission of sins" (Acts 2: 38), the commemoration of the death and the resurrection of Christ (Rom. 6: 4, 5, etc.); and the general first resurrection of saints (1 Cor. 20: 29); and after the Lord's Supper, was licensed as a missionary, and, God willing, he expects by-and-by to be set apart as a minister of the "everlasting gospel" of Jesus Christ.

I think you, my dear brethren and sisters, will be interested in a short sketch of the experience of this dear brother whom I have not mentioned in my former reports. Bro. Jones is of middle age and unmarried. He is of Welsh descent, but his family are from Ireland. They belong to the Moravian denomination. We formed an acquaintance with them soon after our arrival in La Tour, they spending the summer here, and this brother attended some of our lectures and became so much interested in the present truths we preach, that for several weeks he visited me nearly every day and studied very carefully all the doctrines of our faith. Somewhat slow to see, but very humble and faithful to the light received, though he left La Tour in September for Florence, where the family spent the winter, he continued his investigations, discussing the subjects of our special faith with the doctors of divinity there, from whom he received no comfort to his troubled mind, as they could not give him Scripture in support of their different theological opinions. He returned here last month well established in the great truths pertaining to the kingdom of God. He had for some years desired to be a gospel missionary, and now feels to give himself fully to the work of the Lord, to spread the present truths so near his heart among the surrounding nations.

He has suffered much opposition from his family on account of his present faith, and finally left his father's house a week ago with forty francs in his pocket, and has since stayed with us. His father now is God, his brethren and sisters are the true church of God, and his field of labor his home. Mark 10: 29, 30.

I have recently received a kind invitation from brethren in the Kingdom of Wurtemburg, Germany, to visit them, with money to meet the expenses of my voyage, and I purpose to leave home, Lord willing, Monday the 3d inst. in company with Bro. Jones, for Turin, where he expects to commence his missionary labors, and from there he will proceed to Tuscany, and I shall go on to Germany. He has resided much on the Continent, and speaks French nearly as well as English.

May kind Heaven bless and prosper us all in laboring for the good of our fellow-men. Dear brethren and sisters, pray for us. Your brother in the faith of the gospel,

M. B. Czechowski.

Voice of the West, please copy.

For the World's Crisis.

LENGTH OF CHRIST'S MINISTRY.

Some of our brethren are still trying to prove that the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem is to be dated from one of the years of Artaxerxes' reign; that this is the point for the beginning of Daniel's seventy prophetic weeks—490 years. Looking to some year of Tiberius Ceasar's reign,—when Pontius Pilate was governor and Caiaphas was high priest in Judea—for the crucifixion, they count back and see 483 years ended. From the cross they reckon seven future years, during which the apostles preached exclusively to the Jews, thus "confirming the covenant" and ending the seventy weeks. From this point the remaining years of the vision are reckoned.

This arrangement has been tried several times during the past twenty-two years, and always failed. A. D. 33, 37, and 42, have each in turn been held up as the date at which Messiah was "cut off." Time has proved such a theory to be wrong.

Bros. Decker and Bishop have recently published a book which contains an excellent argument on the setting up of the "Abomination of Desolation" in A. D. 532. They also present a theory of the 2300 days, somewhat after the old plan, attempting to show that Jesus died, not before A. D. 37, after a ministry of seven years. In proof of this they insert Elder Litch's views on this subject and endorse them. (See Second Advent Library, vol. iv. pp. 38—42. Also, "Truth made Plain," pp. 260—265.)

It is surprising that brethren with the volume of Josephus in their hands, could not see that the testimony on which rests their argument, refers to events which occurred after Pilate had been dismissed from office, and another high priest had been put in Caiaphas' place. Will not such an argument obscure the true beams of light that other pages of the little book may contain? After carefully examining this subject I feel prepared to declare that more than four passovers occurred between the baptism and death of the Savior.

An attempt to make Josephus' testimony (Ant. B. 18, Chap. 5, Sec. 3) prove that our Lord and Tiberius Cæsar died in the same year, shows a very careless reading of that author. The events above referred to took place under Marcellus, who had succeeded Pilate as Procurator of Judea. This fact alone should prevent such an unwarrantable application of history to Bible prophecy.

Newark, N. J. John Lyle.

Correspondence.

From Bro. I. K. Lombard.

Bro. Grant:—I love the weekly visits of the Crisis. Its letters are cheering to the waiting ones, and its articles are instructive to us all. It furnishes food to the hungry, consolation to the sorrowing, comfort to the afflicted, encouragement to the tried and tempted, and medicine to all the spiritually diseased. What a deprivation would it be to have no weekly contribution of food among the household of faith. How needful these words of encouragement in these perilous times. How many lonely ones would thus be deprived of a rich feast. How isolated would the different members of our Father's family become without this medium of communication.

I can say with a full heart, Lord, bless the Crisis! Fill it with spiritual food. Send it to the hungry every where. May the reader be blessed in reading it. May the writer be blessed in writing for it. And may the editor be abundantly blessed in the responsible duties of conducting it. And to this end, may the editor, writers and readers, all, be endued with spiritual wisdom, and know the love of God shed abroad in the heart by the Holy Ghost in this world, and be blessed with eternal life and glory in the world to come.

So. Exeter, Me. I. K. Lombard.

From Sr. L. B. Weaver.

Dear Friends:—How often do I, in the long, tedious night, exclaim, O! when will it be morning? The night of deep distress and mourning has been long, and now the day of sweet rest is about to dawn, and soon the morning of bright glory will be here; and my lone heart is cheered at the thought of soon seeing Him who has done such great things for us. I am so weary, that the hope of soon gaining rest almost enraptures me. I am entirely weaned from the things of this world. I would love to fall asleep in Jesus, and be laid away to rest until the trumpet sounds to wake the slumbering millions, when our reward will be given.

There is nothing of a worldly nature that my heart clings to. I love my dear friends, and the friends of Jesus, and God only knows how much good they have done me by their kind and heart-cheering epistles from time to time, and for the temporal aid they have given me. God bless every one of you who have ministered to my wants, and reward you abundantly, is my daily prayer.

Dear ones in Christ, let us unite in the prayer, "Thy kingdom come, thy will be done on earth as it is heaven." I weep for those who are out of Christ and will not come to him while there is time for repentance; but if they will not heed the warning voice, I am not to blame. I mean to be ready, not having spot or wrinkle on my garments. I fear sometimes, yet the Lord is merciful. I try to be good. Luthera B. Weaver.

No. Dana, Mass.

From Bro. W. H. McDaniels.

Bro. Grant:—I now take this opportunity to inform my brethren and friends in the State of Maine what I think my duty is to God and my fellow men. For the past three years I have been laboring the most of the time in the northern part of N. H. Last fall I felt that it was my duty to go to the State of Maine and labor for the salvation of souls; but like Thomas I doubted, and like Jonah went another way. I have now come to the conclusion that, by the help of God, I will go and preach the preaching that he bids me. If the brethren know of a field where the people are in want of the labors of a minister, please inform me, and I will try and attend to the work of God.

Willard H. McDaniels.

Colebrook, N. H.

For the World's Crisis.

"LET US MAKE MAN."

Upon reading a piece under this caption, in "our paper" of July 11th, I felt as if I would like to write a few thoughts and suggestions on the same point. I do not know what the original words in Gen. 1: 26 will give us to understand by the pronoun "us;" but my mind immediately reverted to John 1st chap.,—"In the beginning was the word, and the word was with God, and the word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him, and without him was not anything made that was made." Was not this Christ? If so, then man was not made without him, for it was in the "beginning" that he was "made." Then Christ spake truly when he said, Before Abraham was, I (was) am." Also Paul's words, Heb. 1: 2. "Hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds." Also Col. 1: 15,—"Who is the image of the invisible God, the first born of every creature, for by him were all things created," . . . and he is before all things, and by him all things consist." In the light of these Scriptures may not the "us" of Gen. 1: 26, mean God and Christ? Your brother in hope, Houghtonville, Vt. O. D. Gibson.

Married.

In Richmond, Me., June 25th, 1865, by H. D. Reed, Mr. James McLellan, of Litchfield, Me., and Mrs. Sarah A. Booker, of Richmond, Me.

In Richmond, Me., July 4th, 1865, by H. D. Reed, Mr. Richard O. Holbrook, of Harpswell, Me., and Miss Maria E. Lancaster, of East Bowdoinham, Me.

Obituaries.

Bassford. Drowned at Thomaston, July 8th, while bathing, Alice, eldest daughter of Bro. William and Sr. Alice Bassford, aged ten years and six months.

Alice was a child beloved by all who knew her. Ever willing to do an act of kindness; always cheerful; naturally of a kind and forgiving disposition; unassuming in manner, she won the respect of friends, associates, and teacher.

But Alice sleeps. We shall see her no more. The place once filled by her is now vacant. The sorrowing family mourn her loss, but not as those who have not the gospel hope to sustain them, for their trust is in Him who giveth consolation when none other can. They firmly believe that the day is not far distant, when they who sleep in Jesus will again come forth. May the Lord give them grace and strength to bear this their affliction, and keep them faithful till Jesus comes, that they may again meet an unbroken family, and sing his praises forevermore. Words of comfort were addressed to the mourners by Bro. S. B. Munn.

M. S. Butler.

Wallace. In Athol, July 8th, 1865, George Wallace, youngest child of Phebe A. and David L. Peabody.

He was sick a long time, but now rests from all pain, and will live again when Jesus comes. Blessed thought! those that sleep in Jesus will God bring with him.

O! mother, weep not o'er his grave,
For Jesus died such ones to save,
And he has triumphed o'er the tomb,
And Georgie soon will wake to bloom.

Death cannot hold the captive long,
For Christ the Lord is very strong;
He has the keys of death and hell,
And in the morning he will tell

An angel to go down and bring
Your Georgie up, that he may sing
The glories of the better land,
As he on Zion's heights shall stand.

Then, mother, dry your tears away,
And rest in Jesus day by day;
For soon your dear one, now "asleep,"
Will wake and live, no more to weep.

Luthera B. Weaver.

Segar. Died in Rochester, N. Y., Bro. Samuel Segar, aged eighty years.

It was about ten months from the time when he followed his wife to a burial place in Mt. Hope Cemetery, where they both now lie together, waiting for the trump of God to sound, which will awake the sleeping dead to life again. They both died in the one faith, expecting to lie unconscious in the grave until the resurrection morn, when they hoped to be clothed with immortality by the mighty power of God. Robert Haskins.

Dutton. Fell asleep in Jesus, near the Village of Decatur, Mich., May 20, 1865, Wm. Dutton, aged seventy-nine years.

Father Dutton was formerly of Castle, Vt., who was one among the first that embraced the doctrine of the second personal coming of our blessed Lord in that vicinity, and ever since then, down to the close of his last day with us, has been a devoted and an exemplary christian always, and under all circumstances evinced a devotional spirit. He left an aged widow of the same faith, and a large number of relatives and friends to lament his loss.

A. B. Swift.

Herald of Life please copy.

☞ The long talked of International bridge at Buffalo seems about to be realized. Two million five hundred thousand dollars has been pledged for the work, which will consist of a durable and elegant iron bridge to span the Niagara at that point, as well as for the construction of a grand union depot building, and the seven mi'es of railway around the city to connect the eastern lines with the bridge.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool July 8th, Queenstown 9th.

The Army and Navy Gazette says: "Every day adds to the difficulty of speedily adjusting the conflicting interests which the war in America between the North and the South has let loose, and of achieving the task, which, whether it be of restoration or reconstruction, is one of the greatest that ever taxed the genius of a statesman or the resources of a nation."

The steamer Caroline, with the shore end of the Atlantic cable, sailed from London for Valencia on the 5th, and the steamers Terrible and Sphynx had both sailed for Valencia, and the Great Eastern would leave the Nore for the same place on the 15th. It was expected the fleet would leave Valencia on the 10th and arrive at Heart's Content in the beginning of August. Messages are constantly sent through the whole cable in the most perfect manner.

England is for the moment without a Parliament, and in the throes of an election contest. The elections will commence on the 10th.

Dr. Pritchard has been found guilty of poisoning his wife and mother-in-law, at Glasgow, and sentenced to death.

A letter from Alexandria, Egypt, dated June 28, furnishes details regarding the cholera, etc. It says the existence of the cholera was officially declared on the 11th of June, on which day three deaths occurred; by the end of the first week the deaths increased to about 100 per day; by the end of the second week they reached about 200 per day; and on the 27th the number was 250. There was much alarm, and about 30,000 people had left the city. Business was generally suspended, but Mr. Hale, the United States Consul General, remained at his post, and the business of the Consulate was transacted as usual. No cases of cholera had occurred among the American residents, or on American vessels.

An Alexandrian telegram of July 5th, reports considerable diminution in the deaths from cholera. There were 118 deaths from cholera on the 4th. The epidemic is stationary at Cairo. The Nile was sensibly rising.

The Journal Di Roma explains that the Papal Representative to Mexico terminated his mission to Mexico by order of the Pope, as he could no longer be permitted to witness the violations of the rights of the Church. Monseignor Meylia was to await fresh instructions from Rome at Gautemala.

There was a fearful hurricane at Cape Good Hope May 17. The English mail steamer Athens, from Mauritius, was totally lost. Seventeen other vessels were wrecked. Seventeen lives were lost in Table Bay.

DOMESTIC.

Cincinnati, July 19. The Commercial says there is to be a grand reunion of all the Turner societies in this city next September, the first reunion of the kind in America.

The piers of the Suspension Bridge across the Ohio river here are nearly completed, and the wires will be suspended in a short time. The span of the bridge is 1057 feet—the longest span in this country.

New York, July 19. The Herald's Charleston correspondence says the majority of the South Carolina planters already look upon emancipation as a benefit to them, and are inclined to the opinion that compensated labor will in the end be far more profitable to land owners generally. All the principal South Carolina crops except rice are yielding abundantly.

New York, July 22. The Herald's New Orleans correspondence says the Teche District of Louisiana is filled with guerrillas, who have thus far defied the national troops and citizens to capture them. They not only plunder rural districts but enter towns and rob the stores.

The order to muster out troops whose terms expire prior to the first of October will send home between 14,000 and 15,000 men from Gen. Sheridan's army.

July 22. Intelligence from Hayti shows that the insurrection is still confined to Cape Haytien. The government is able to take the city, but desires to spare the effusion of blood necessary in a direct attack. President Geffrard has issued a proclamation to his people assuring them that the motto "Liberty and fraternity" of the insurgents is but a sham and deceit. He offers amnesty to the inhabitants of Cape Haytien, and urges them to expel the rebellious leaders. Gen. Morriset had been assassinated by the insurgent leader Solnave. A grand funeral ceremony took place at the Port au Prince cathedral, at which the Archbishop and the President assisted. His widow has been pensioned by the government. The port of Cape Haytien is now in a state of blockade.

Condition of Jeff. Davis—His Daily Prison Habits.—A Fortress Monroe correspondent of the New York Herald gives the following account of the daily habits of Jeff. Davis in prison, and of the great despondency he demonstrates, particularly (as is supposed) since he heard the news of the execution of the conspirators. The writer says that a great and marked change for the worse has taken place since that time:

"Davis rises early in the morning—generally at five—bathes and reads his Bible till half past eight, when he has breakfast, which is brought him by a soldier. Tea, toast and an egg or two, or broiled steak, usually make up his breakfast. His appetite is very variable. Gen. Miles may call in to see him and pass a few words, or the officer of the guard may have something to say; for only these two, except his physician and Craven, and the chaplain, of course, when he calls, are allowed to speak to him. In conversation he has betrayed an anxiety and even determination to discuss the subject of the impossibility of ever convicting him of treason. He throws himself back upon the question of State rights as his main point of defense. For some time, finding that all the discussion was on his own side, he has kept silent on the subject. Except these interruptions in the way of conversation, which, it will be understood, are not daily by any means, he passes most of his time till half past three P. M., his dinner hour, in looking at the window. He smokes his pipe occasionally, but is no great smoker. He says that much smoking makes him too nervous. After dinner he passes the time as before. He has supper at half past eight o'clock, and then directly goes to bed. His food is always of the best quality. He sleeps pretty soundly, but more so formerly than latterly. At first the light kept burning in the room all night troubled him, but he has become used to it and makes no complaint on the subject now, as perhaps he knows it would do no good if he did.

On Sunday last, 16th inst., Davis sent for the chaplain, for the second time since his imprisonment. Chaplain Kerfoot was sent to his cell. He greeted the chaplain with warmth. 'It is to you and to this book' (holding the Bible in his hand) 'I must look,' he said, 'for consolation now.' The chaplain talked to him of his spiritual condition, read to him passages from the Bible and prayed with him. After the chaplain left Davis appeared to be in much better spirits than he has been for some time past. He reads the Bible morning and evening. He confesses his belief in the Bible, and professes to have made it the ruling guide of his life. It is evident, however, that he does not fancy being confined exclusively to reading the Scriptures, for he sometimes clamors for a different style of literature; but his request in this regard thus far has not been complied with. This refusal to extend his reading privileges, and not permitting him to write to his wife or see letters from her, have formed the burden of his complaints. If permission was given him to have all the books he wished he could not read much himself, and for the comfort derived from them would have to rely mainly on others reading to him. One eye is now almost totally blind, and the other gives indication of rapidly becoming so. He has complained lately of seeing objects double. He still wears his goggles during the daytime.

From all sources of information it is gleaned that Jeff. Davis is slowly but surely declining in health from his protracted imprisonment. He will not even avail himself of the opportunities of exercise afforded him, and he has a space of about twenty by twenty feet he could walk about in if he chose; but all the long hours of each weary day he sits at the barred embrasure of his casemate, sullen, silent, speechless. With his chin alternately resting on one hand and then on both, he looks unintermittingly through this opening. Where rest his eyes and what thoughts stir that brain no one can tell. Before him are the bay and the passing ships, and the Rip Raps, growing each day into a wondrous work of impregnable strength; and beyond, the blue sky and fleeting clouds and wild sea birds enjoying the boundless freedom of the outer air. And mingling with these sights comes that perpetual, mournful refrain, the sound of the waves dashing upon the beach. Here he is a prisoner, and under what terrible charges hanging over him! Not a moment is he left alone—not a moment passes that he is not under the vigilant eye of soldiers. There is no egress through these strong iron bars. There is no escape through this cordon of muskets. There can be no attempt at rescue from without. What wonder is it that that form has grown more emaciated, those cheeks more sunken, those eyes more lustrous, that brow more wrinkled—his hair whiter, his words fewer, his spirits sunk in perpetual gloom? Health has left him, hope is gone; that proud spirit is broken, and the end is not far. I am writing no fancy sketch. I have been told to-day, (Monday 17th,) that Jeff. Davis, if he keeps up his present prison habits and despondency, will not live six weeks longer."

Rules for Redemption of Defaced Fractional Currency.—Fractional notes shall be redeemed, if not mutilated, by any Assistant Treasurer or Designated Depository of the United States, in sums not less than three dollars. Defaced notes, if whole, are not considered as mutilated; nor is an evidently accidental injury, not reducing the note by more than one-tenth its original size, regarded as a mutilation.

ITEMS.

☞ Never since New Hampshire became a State was its soil laden with more luxuriant crops. The horn of plenty bids fair to gush out with fatness. The grass crop is heavy almost beyond precedent.

☞ Sixteen years ago Lieut. Gen. Grant was mining for gold in California. He, dressed in a blue flannel shirt and coarse miner's rig, labored for about two years, literally earning his bread by the sweat of his brow. He was not successful, however.

☞ The wheat harvest in Southern Illinois and Indiana has commenced. The yield is enormous and the quality unsurpassed. The weather has been as favorable as could be desired, and the crop has been harvested in the very best condition.

☞ A train of sixty wagons, containing Mormon saints, who, on the ground of political and social differences, are fleeing from Utah, and Brigham Young, is expected to reach Council Bluffs in a few days.

☞ Madame Kossuth, the wife of the famous Hungarian leader, has died at Genoa, after a ten years' illness. Mrs. Livingstone, the aged mother of Dr. Livingstone, the African traveler, died in Scotland on the 18th of June.

☞ A woman was hung on Boston Common about seventy years ago. Her crime consisted of snatching a bonnet and reticule from a lady, on one of the streets leading from Fort Hill. She was indicted for highway robbery, was convicted, and suffered the extreme penalty of the law.

☞ The work on the east end of the Hoosac Tunnel is progressing at the rate of sixteen feet a day into the solid rock of the mountain.

☞ Maine contributed more men during the late war than Great Britain did to the allied army during the Russian war.

Notices.

The Wilbraham Campmeeting.

This great annual gathering of God's waiting people will commence on Monday, August 21st, and hold through the week and over the following Sunday. Let preparations be made for a general attendance from all parts of the land. The interests of God's cause call upon you to be there. In the mean time let fervent prayer go up from every closet and from every pulpit and family altar for God's blessing on it. Particulars hereafter.

Meeting of the Advent Christian Association.

The sixth annual meeting of this Society will be held at Wilbraham Grove, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M., Tuesday, Aug. 22, 1865.

A full representation from all churches co-operating with this Society, and a full attendance of preachers thus co-operating, is desirable at this meeting. Questions too important to admit of neglect or indifference on the part of the churches scattered abroad, or of the ministry, will come before this meeting. Does the Constitution require amendment? Shall there be any change in the editorial management of the Crisis? To whom as officers of the Society shall we intrust the funds and various interests of the same for the coming year? These, among many others that will arise, are questions to be decided at this meeting. Let no trifling pecuniary consideration, nor loss of time, prevent a general gathering of the friends of this Association. Each church (i. e. society of believers in Jesus Christ) co-operating, is entitled to one delegate, and one additional delegate for every fifty members above the number of twenty-five members.

Remember ☞ That all delegates sent by churches to the Advent Christian Association must be furnished with written credentials, or forfeit their right to membership. ☜

Also remember ☞ That preachers offering their names as members of this Association must bring a certificate of good character from a christian church, and show that they themselves are co-operating with this Society.

S. G. Mathewson, President,
H. F. Carpenter, Clerk.

Wilbraham via. Rutland.

Who desires to go to Wilbraham campmeeting through Rutland? Let churches in Vermont ascertain about how many will go, that it may aid us in getting fare reduced clear through. Write to H. F. Carpenter, Rutland, Vt.

Campmeeting at Wallingford, Conn.

A campmeeting, to commence Aug. 14th, and continue over the following Sunday, will be held at Wallingford North Farms, near the Chapel, in a pleasant, convenient grove, with a good spring of water, about two and a half miles from Wallingford Depot, on the N. H., Hartford and Springfield R. R., where teams will be in readiness to convey people to the ground at (not to exceed) 25 cents each.

Good board and horsekeeping will be provided at reasonable rates, under the supervision of the committee, who will spare no pains to make this meeting all the brethren and sisters can wish, so far as good order, good preaching, and good attention to their wants and convenience is concerned. We hope to see a general gathering of all in this region who can come in the Lord's name, and do his work, seeking his glory and the salvation of sinners.

Committee of Arrangements.
Wm. A. Durand, Cheshire.
Dea. D. Platt, Wallingford.
H. A. Cook, "
Wm. Bartholomew, "
H. H. Mix. "

General Western Campmeeting.

This meeting will commence Monday, Sept. 4th, at Amboy, Ill., and continue over the following Lord's day. Our friends will remember how very interesting our meeting was last year, and what an impulse for good was given to the infant cause in the West. We are yet weak and few, and have need of all the means that can be employed to build us up, and enlarge our sphere of usefulness. The campmeeting is one of the most efficient means of promulgating the truth, and building up the general interests of religion among us. Let all who can arrange be there. Let every one encourage his neighbor by a good example of sacrifice and consecration. Elds. Wm. C. Thurman, C. B Turner, and Hiram Munger from the East, and Eld. D. R. and Mrs. M. S. Mansfield, Eld. Wm. Sheldon, and many others of our most interesting speakers from the West, are expected to be present. In view of the increase of light and knowledge upon the time of the Lord's advent, we should act with great earnestness and zeal to prepare for the coming of the kingdom of God.

D. S. Clark,
E. Royce,
D. W. Knight,
Wm. McCullock,
E. K. Burrington,
J. V. Himes,
Committee.

Notice.

There is to be (D. V.) a protracted meeting in Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., commencing Aug. 8th, 1865, and continuing over the next Lord's day. Brn. C. B. Turner and J. Wendell will be present to preach, and it is hoped others. Also Bro. H. L. Hastings, with his tent.

Let the saints around come up to the meeting with warm hearts, having hope that maketh not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in them by the Holy Spirit. And let us seek to honor the Lord in our orderly, fervent worship, coupled with earnest love both to saints and sinners. Our Lord cometh soon. Let us be about our work. Jos. D. Brown.

Conference.

Our Eastern Maine Conference will be held in the town of Hermon, to commence Friday, August 18th, at 10 o'clock A. M., and continue over the Sabbath. Friends wishing to attend the meeting will call on Bros. Richard Dore and John Brackett for directions relative to entertainment. By order of the committee, M. Young, Clerk.

Campmeeting Notice.

There will be a campmeeting in New Preston, Ct., commencing Monday, Sept. 4th, and hold over the Sabbath. Particulars hereafter. In behalf of the committee of arrangements. A. Ross.

H. L. HASTINGS,
Scriptural Tract Repository, 19 Lindall Street,
Boston, Mass.
Opposite the Post Office.

To All Concerned.—Removal.

I have removed my business to a large and commodious office, 19 Lindall St., directly in the rear of the Boston Post Office, where I have a good assortment of tracts, new and old, Bible Students' Libraries, pamphlets, Sunday school books, etc., etc. Several new tracts are ready for the press, and it is hoped that other publications will follow in quick succession. All letters, orders and remittances designed for me, whether for Social Hymns, "Children's Hymns, Lyres, Bibles, Libraries, Concordances, Hebrew, Greek, or English, or any other books published by the Tract Societies or S. S. Unions, or others, in this country or England, which are of use to Bible students, should be directed to H. L. Hastings, Scriptural Tract Repository, No. 19 Lindall St., Boston, Mass.

July 10, 1865.

Notice.

The Lord willing, we will hold a meeting at Findley's Lake, Chaut Co., N. Y., August 11th, in the evening. Also on Ripley Hill, near Bro. James Thorp's, Saturday and Sunday, 12th and 13th, as Bro. Thorp may appoint, and at the Sherwood schoolhouse, near Union Mills, the 14th, in the evening. Father and Mother Ongley will be with me, and assist in preaching the word.

John T. Ongley.

Campmeeting in Wallingford.

There will be a campmeeting on Wallingford Farms, Ct., commencing August 14th, and continuing over the following Sunday. Particulars hereafter. B. Hitchcock.

Notice.

Ministering brethren who may wish to come to Biddeford, Me., to preach, will correspond with J. C. Libby or A. P. Hyde, that appointments may not conflict.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

C. Goodrich....Sunday, July 30th
Miles Grant....Sunday, Aug. 6th

Pittsfield, N. H., Saturday evening, July 29th, at 6½ o'clock, and over the following Lord's day.
Miles Grant.

Biddeford, Me....Sunday, July 30th
Meredith, N. H., (Pottle meeting-house), Sunday, Aug. 6th.
Concord, N. H....Sunday, Aug. 13th
Holden, Mass....Sunday, Aug. 20th
A. Simpson.

Goshen, Mass....Sunday, July 30th
Charlemont, (A. Cudworth's)....Aug. 6th
A. McCulloch.

South Natick, (school-house hall), Sunday, July 30th
J. M. Muhlig.

Hollis, Me....Sunday, July 30th
At Edwin's Towne's school-house....Aug. 1st and 2nd
Kennebunkport, Me....Aug. 3d
Exeter, N. H....Aug. 6th
Portsmouth, N. H....Aug. 13th
J. K. Bellows.

Bristol, Ct.

S. B. Munn....Sunday, July 30th
Ira Morgan....Sunday, Aug. 13th

Benedict school-house, Erie Co., N. Y., at 10½ A. M., and at the Kinny school-house 4 P. M., Sundays, Aug. 13th and Sept. 3d. Kinny school-house is three miles west of Benedict, in Royalton, Niagara Co., N. Y. Darien, (as brethren may arrange). Sunday, Aug. 6th
C. F. Sweet.

Brewer, Me....Sunday, Aug. 9th
in company with Bro. I. K. Lombard.
Portland, Me....Aug. 11th
Biddeford, Me....Sunday, Aug. 13th
Dover, N. H....Aug. 16th
Exeter....Aug. 17th
Lawrence....Aug. 18th
and over the following Lord's day.
From there to Wilbraham campmeeting.
If these appointments should conflict with any, please give me notice at my place in Corinna, or at Biddeford.
Israel Damman.

West Deerfield, N. H....Aug. 6th
J. Knowles.

Lee, N. H....July 30th and Aug. 6th
B. S. Emery.

Branch Mills, China, Me....Aug. 6th
L. L. Howard.

Bond's Village, Mass., (Dunsville Hall), Sunday, July 30th.
Ralph Williams.

Haverhill, Mass....Sunday, July 30th
Great Falls, N. H....Sunday, Aug. 6th
Rochester, (Brick school-house, McDuffee's district), Sunday, Aug. 13th.
J. Pinkham.

Square Pond, Ct....Sunday, July 30th
Springfield, (Gunn's Hall, State Street,)....Aug. 13th
P. S. Butler.

Northwood Narrows, N. H....Lord's day, Aug. 13th
Loudon Ridge, N. H....Lord's day, Aug. 20th
B. P. Manning.

Woodstock, N. H. ....Saturday evening, Aug. 5th at 6 P. M., and Sunday, Aug. 6th.
J. A. Cleaveland.

Danielsonville, Ct....Sunday, July 30th
New York (Cooper Institute)....Sunday, Aug. 6th
Westboro, Mass....Sunday, Sept. 3d
Dr. A. Decker.

Livermore, (Britton's Mills)....Sunday, July 30th
I. C. Wellcome.

Augusta, Me....July 30th
H. D. Reed.

North Stafford, N. H....Sunday, July 30th
Pearsonfield, (where Bro. Moulton may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 6th.
West Deerfield....Sunday, Aug. 13th
New Durham Ridge....Sunday, Aug. 20th
J. G. Smith.

Camps Mills, Ct....Sunday, July 30th
Yalesville, Ct....Sunday, Aug. 6th
O. D. Woodruff.

Exeter....Lord's day, July 30th
Geo. W. Brown.

Biddeford, Me.

A. Stimson....July 30th
R. R. York....Aug. 6th

Wallingford Farms, Ct....July 30th
B. Hitchcock.

Holderness, (Brick school-house)....Sunday, July 30th
Manchester....Sunday, August 6th
Nelson Hartshorn.

Conference in Dover school-house, Saturday, Aug. 5th at 3 P. M.
South Atkinson....Sunday, Aug. 6th
Sebec, Me., (school-house near Bro. Joshua Livermore's) Sunday, Aug. 13th. Thomas Smith.

Dover, N. H., (in the old Court House), every Sabbath until further notice. T. M. Latham.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine Ground), every two weeks until further notice. S. S. Mooney.

Concord, N. H....July 30th
Portsmouth, N. H....Aug. 6th
Worcester, Mass....Aug. 13th and 20th
J. Couch.

North Adams....Sunday, July 30th
A. Mussey.

Rome, Me....Aug. 5th and 16th
H. B. Sevey.

Cheshire Street, Ct....Sunday, Aug. 6th
Wallingford Farms. ....Tuesday evening, Aug. 8th
Yalesville, Ct....Thursday evening, Aug. 10th
Plymouth Hollow....Friday evening, Aug. 11th
Northfield, (where Bro. Humphreville may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 13th. L. Boutell.

Philadelphia, Pa....July 30th
Rufus Wendell.

North Sutton, Saturday evening, July 29th, and at Israel Andrews' meeting-house Sunday, July 30th. Love feast 9 A. M.
Top of Kearsarge Mountain....Aug. 6th
John G. Hook.

There will be preaching at the West Brick School-House, near Brimfield, Mass., Sunday, July 30th. Let there be a general attendance. Come, rally in the name of the Lord. S. S. Brewer.

Brookfield, N. H., instead of Bro. Ross....July 30th
Westboro, Mass....Aug. 6th and 13th
A. W. Sibley.

Worcester....Sunday, July 30th
A. Ross.

West Hill, Ct....July 30th
Lovely Street....August 6th
H. Rockwell.

Dover....Sunday, July 30th
Kennebunkport, Me....Sunday, Aug. 6th
Benj. P. Manning.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. S. Moulton—We cannot answer your question. Perhaps the Postmaster at Portland might. They are mailed here Wednesday afternoon, and should think they ought to reach you by Friday sure.

C. B. Keach—The best S. S. class-books are 15 cents each; the cheapest 6 cents.

J. T. Howland—You have paid to No. 546. Balance due on W. H. W.'s, 54 cents.

Louisa Barber—Chloe Lankton's address is New Hartford, Ct.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 512. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, (if any), charge four cents; for every week since No. 468, if less than 26 weeks, five cents; if over 26 weeks, six cents a week (or $3.12 for the year.) From this sum deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—M C Catlin 531, D Kinsman 534, E Heath 531, J Burgess 510, S A Leete 531, F Parsons 532, Mary (Frances?) L. T. Waters 527, C. E. Conklin 511, A R White 503, S A Macomber 523, S King 528, R Burtenshaw 532, A Johnson 557, Derbyshire 498, N Sagendoph 533, J Davis 520.

$1.25 each.—E Myers 542, O Ormsbee 520, E Greta 520, H A Way 520, R Woodward 520, S Copeland 516, S A McFadden 534, Mrs. G A Otis 286, A Homer 586, C Staples 542, L Mead 526, E Tompkins 521, J M Aldrich 537, J E Wood 325, J Moore 534, M A Elliott 534, M Boyd 517, M Wilkins 529, A Williams 533, E Francher 533, C H Nowell 520, S A Bray 537, J M Howard 538, J. Long 537, J. F. Tandy 537, A Arnold 536, A J Brown 529, A C Hurd 516, L B. Newcomb 535, W. F. Cooper 537, S L Miller 537, T Snow 499, C C Jones 531, F B Tyler 529, E Doyle 537.

$2.00 each—P Foster 468, A Freeman Sr. 488, Z. A. Temple 561, E R Perkins 534, S S Daniels 515, E. A. Prescott 490, M Perry 552, J Bates 533, F Lathrop 563, S A Griffin 536, D Kellum 556, M Mahew 503.

$2.50 each—G W Card 541, T. B. Weeks 546, G. A. Rowe 563, N Hubbard 563, S Coppeck 563, P W Southworth 555, J Whitecar 572, L Stevens 537, O D Gibson 511, C L Moseley 549, S I Moseley 559, H Gray 556, W Wait 563, S Snell 563, C. Axe 547, J. Anderson 577, S Walter 493, A Hook 577, E A Jose 563, P Peaco 563, A Harris 537, R E Cole 549, N Mirick 476, H D Sawyer 557, D Murphy 554, S L Julian 553.

Various sums.—G D Durgin $3.08, 520; T A Greene $2.94, 468; J. C. Gardner $3.00, 561; H. I. Hart $3.00, 562; W G Perry $3.12, 520; S A Jenness 60c, 508; W Lugden $1.50, 542; A Bolles $1.20, 535; R Adams $2.75, 562; W. Williams 3.50, $520; L. D. Carman 55c, what P. O.? H Austin $3.00, 587; A R Garnett 3.93, 512; T Cutton $1.75, 390; J. A. York $3.00, $520; H. Knight $2.60, 506; R W Jordan $2.30, 559; G G Gasper $1.50, 510; G Vanderbeck $2.43, 526; W Snow $3.00, 564; S H Arnold $1.50, 491; P. Williams 25c, 515; H. Adams $3 00, 497; N S Preston 63c, 522; H H Hall $5.00, 522; W F Cooper $5.00, 557; J Houghtaling $2.10, 503.

From Canada Subscribers, by M. Grant.

$1.32 each—J Adams 536, R S Harvey 536, J Welber 491, F D Field 488, L Orcutt 533.

$1.65 each—Mrs. Richardson 563, T Dunlap 513, Mrs. McGowan 501.

$2.64 each—Wm. Johnston 480, John Morrison 553, J Nobb 500, J. McCaughey 525, J. S. Morrison 519, H. Perkins 563, L Chamberlain 569, E Thompson 569

$3.30 each—R Corey 545, J Ward 574, Geo. Jameson 522, C A Gilman 508, W H Hills 515.

Various Sums—J Sargent $1.98, 509; R Corey $3.00, 497; H. Smith $5.00, 529; C. Lawson $3.96, 527; J. Price $2.50, 561; R. L. Jones $3.00, 508; R. E. Jones $3.00, 417; W Richardson $7.64, 494; J Wilson $3.96, 547; T S Mitchell $1.15, 508; J Daniels $3.00, 546; J Wilson $2.00, 474; T. Adams $4.00, 506; G. Snutts $3.67, 623; T Smith $3.67, 623.

For Books and Tracts.

H. A. Billings $1.00, J. P. Marquand 50c, C B Keach $2.00, O Ormsbee $1.75, S H Little 30c, A Schellabarger 85c, S. B. Ensign $1.75, I. Kulp 5c, D D Lathrop 25c, C H Williams $1.10, G. H. Coltry 55c, E W Ager 25c, E. P. Munroe 30c, N. J. Humphrey 87c, T Cook $1.70, D Eastman 85c, I M Aldrich $2.00, A B Morse 30c, S S Daniels 42c, I K Lombard 25c, D W Hull $1.75, A Andrews $1.00, G W Card $1.08, J B Paine 30c, G P Metz 70c, G Vanderbeck $1.57, T. W. Smith 25c, J. M. Howard 20c, N. Sagendoph 30c, J Farland 20c, S L Julian 50c, T G Newman 20c.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By Mail—Garrett, S B Ensign, D Eastman, J Hal's J H Varney, A B Morse, R Snow, E Welch, E B Scott, N Hartshorn, J Parker, J W Finn, L S Julian, I Kulp, A. R., I K Lombard, A Andrews, S D Daniels, D. W. Hall, C Vanderbeck, T W Smith, G P Metz, H Belden, J Taylor, H M Beach, L Nutt, N Sagendolph.

By Express—W Shepherd, J Morrison, G Elden.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J Lyle, H Rockwell, M S Butler, F H Chamberlain, B Perham, C Thacher, R B D, W Forrester, S L Julian, H Munger, L A Solter, B Mathewson, D Campbell, H H Hall, L A Wheeler, W C Thurman, G. Dillabaugh, J A S, O D Gibson, I K Lombard.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The Emphatic Diaglott: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library; with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

Christian Baptism: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid; $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

Rahab the Harlot. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

Dictionary of the Holy Bible, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

The Scriptural Question Book. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

Canon of the Holy Scriptures examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

The Great Symbolic Chart of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

Glad Tidings; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts.; postage, 2 cts.

Fables of Infidelity and Facts of Faith. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.00.

The taking of Human Life incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

Death not Life; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 2 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

Glad Voices; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty-five or less.

The Mission of Suffering. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 5c, postage 2c.

Thurman's Bible Chronology, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

Muller's Life of Trust. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

Diphtheria: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. Price, 10 cts.; by mail, 12 cts.

The Syriac New Testament. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. Price $2.50. Postage 36 cts.

Non-Resistance; or, the Spirit of Christianity restored. By W. C. Thurman. Price 20 cts.; postage 4 cts.

Chloe Lankton; or, Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75 cents. By mail, 87 cts.

Likeness of Wm. Miller, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

ENGLISH BIBLES.

Sent by mail, postpaid, at the following prices:—

Diamond,	morocco, gilt, marginal references,	$1.75
"	roan, "	1.10
"	roan, " brass rims and clasps,	1.70
"	calf, colored edges, marg. ref.,	1.35
Pearl,	morocco, gilt, reference between verses,	2.40
"	morocco " circuit bind., marg. ref.,	3.20
"	roan, " reference between verses,	1.75
"	roan, " rims and clasps, marg. ref.,	2.00
Nonpareil,	morocco, gilt, circuit bind., marg. ref.,	3.80
"	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.00
Minion,	morocco, gilt, without references,	2.40
"	roan, " without references,	1.90
"	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.50
"	calf, marbled edges, without ref.,	2.15

Address all orders, with the money, to
MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton, "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments.

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, Director of the Orphan House of Bristol, England [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, embracing the Scripture argument against fighting, and the testimonies of the Primitive Church. By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. By M. Hull. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 13th chap. of Revelation [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. After the manner of Bunyan. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, the kingdom of Satan, the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ [illegible] By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, as comprehended in the Scriptures of truth. By C. F. Sweet. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the promised Messiah. By Mrs. Mary A. Seymour. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. The Devil: his origin, personality, power, and doom. By Phineas A. Smith. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for preparing all the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated health institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. This is a valuable work, and should be read by all the young. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 14, in connection with Dan. 12: 11-13. By H. K. Flagg. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.00.
By Express—1500 pages for $1.00.
Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; postage, 2 cents. Free to the poor.

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers.	36 pages.
The Saints' Inheritance	48 "
The New Heavens and New Earth	24 "
The Voice of Warning	24 "
The Advent at Hand	24 "
The Last Days	24 "
The Church not in Darkness	24 "
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one)	24 "
Outline of the Coast of Man	8 "

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State	24 pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead	24 "
Ghostology	48 "
Man's Future State	12 "
The Key of Truth	12 "

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved	24 pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment	12 "
Future Punishment Destruction	12 "
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts)	12 "
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Lost	24 "
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary	24 "
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality	12 "

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one)	36 pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one)	36 "
One Thing	12 "
Judson's Letter on Dress	12 "
Duty of Christians (a peace tract)	24 "

Leaflets for Letters,—6 cents per set.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, during which period the Witnesses were slain. [illegible] "Behold the Third Wo cometh quickly." [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the Signs in the Sun, in the Moon, and in the Stars [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, revised, and enlarged. [illegible]

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25 [illegible]

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C. F. Hudson. [illegible] 1 vol. 12 mo., pp. 482, price $1.50—post paid.

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. From Sir James Stephen, with notes. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? With Reply to Dr. Mussel. [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to articles in the Quarterlies, January, April, and September, [illegible]

Blain's Tracts.

Price.—1 cent for every 8 pages; postage, 2 cents on every package of 150 pages, or less.

Endless Misery not a Bible Doctrine	32 pages.
The Wicked not Immortal (with 200 proof-texts)	16 "
Bible Meaning of the word Hell	16 "
Bible Meaning of Forever and Everlasting	16 "
Smoke of Torment and Unquenchable Fire Explained	8 "
Rev. John Foster's Letter on Future Punishment	8 "

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.

To Sr. Luthera B. Weaver.

Dear sister, sick and weary,
My heart goes out for thee,
Whene'er at morn or evening hour
In prayer I bend the knee.
For oh! I know too well, sister,
How long the sad days seem—
How life, O suff'ring sister,
Is as a troubled dream.

While from my full heart's fountain
Wells forth a flood of tears,
As mem'ry backward leads me
Through sad affliction's years;
For oh! God's loving mercy
How plainly there I view!
How 'midst the deep, deep waters,
His hand hath led me through.

I read the earnest lessons
Learned in affliction's school,
While long expectant waiting
The troubling of the "pool,"
Hoping some heaven-sent angel
His shining wing would lave,—
With healing touch the water,
Immerse me 'neath the wave.

O, then my blessed Savior
With me began to talk;
With healing power he touched me,
Bade me arise and walk.
Dost ask me what Physician's
Skill hath made me whole?
'Tis Jesus Christ's, the Blessed,—
With peace he's filled my soul.

Unlike him at "Bethesda,"
I knew him when he spoke—
With joy I took upon me
My Savior's easy yoke.
Oft in prayer's "Holy Temple"
Him I had met before,
I meet—and still he bids me
"Be whole and sin no more."
To God be all the glory!
I'll praise on bended knee
Him who hath healed and blest me,
Hath bled and died for me.

East Roxbury, Vt. ANNA E. MCELLISTER.

For the World's Crisis.

THE LAST STROKE OF THE PRALAT KAFH *

Against the "German Temple." †

BRO. GRANT:—I thank you for the German papers you sent me. In one of them I find some interesting controversy between a member of the "German Temple" it seems on one side, and an eminent minister of the German Lutheran church (who has been known for many years as a very learned and pious man), on the other, the whole controversy however more indirectly than directly, yet bringing to light a good deal of sound truth on one side and fanaticism on the other, which, however, I leave to the unprejudiced reader to decide for himself; the whole of which correspondence I send here, translated for the Crisis, in order that the reader may see and judge how at this time the people in Germany think and talk on the signs of the times, the establishing of the kingdom of God, its location, nature, the coming of Christ, etc. L. REIMER.

The "Christian's Messenger" contains in its twelfth number a copy of two letters, which we give to our readers in the following:—

LETTER OF A SEAMSTRESS TO HER MINISTER.

The undersigned intends to separate herself from the national church of Wurtemberg, and become a member of the "German Temple," for the following reasons:—

1. Because in the national church I do not find any longer the necessary food for my spiritual wants.

2. Because I would like to get into the kingdom of God, and the church confesses its inability to establish it, and has therefore given up her call to establish the same on the earth; therefore I separate myself from her.

3. Because in the church those objects which are to be obtained for men, and which are set apart in prophecy, are not only not taught, but even defeated; as for instance the attainment of the spiritual gifts, the establishing of a pure, perfect church, and the attainment of a perfect life after the manner of Christ, then the rule of the church of Christ over the world, and the establishment of the kingdom of God upon the earth according to the understanding of the prophets. The latter, honored sir, though you have taught me, yet you have not shown me the way to it. It was through the "German Temple" that I became acquainted with the way, which next consists in our seeking after the gifts of the Spirit (1 Cor. 12), and in getting possession of the temple (Rev. 11). Therefore it is my principal effort to walk with all energy in this way which the Lord has shown me, and too in connection with the members of the "German Temple," that are wrongfully persecuted by the church; who also endeavor with all sincerity to obtain the end of the above mentioned way. As my determination is fixed upon, all further demonstration of the church is useless. N. N.

ANSWER OF THE PASTOR.

Beloved Miss N. N.:—With great pain I have read your letter, and send you an answer, though at the close of your letter you say, all demonstration of the church would be useless. Nevertheless, I trust that you have so much common sense and honesty of heart left yet, as to do, what every man of reason will do, namely: to hear the arguments for and against, and to listen not only to the one, but also to the other party. The mentioned closing of your letter, and many other things in it, are found verbally in other written notices of withdrawal from the church, and are without doubt prescribed by the "German Temple." And from this reason, too, I deem it my duty to direct a few words to you.

As one reason of your connecting yourself with the "Temple," you specify: you do not find in the church any longer the necessary food for your spiritual wants. That is a heavy accusation, whose contradiction I leave to others, church-members, many of whom you have loved, and who judge quite differently. But suppose this accusation was just in regard to all pastors of this city? then we are not the church, our congregations also belong to the church, and there you would find much for your heart. But the main thing of the church is that which every one can have in his house: Bible, Catechism, Confirmation book, Confession of Augsburg, sermons, and other books of edification. These are the fountains that flow within the church, and from which you may drink at all times you please.

But it is true, by all the different kinds of food, it depends a great deal upon the taste of him who intends to use it. For many, the simple bread of life (as the above mentioned books and also our churches contain it) is against their taste, because they desire different things.

This leads to your second and third argument: that you would like to get into the kingdom of God, and the church confessed her inability to establish it, and therefore had given up her call to do so; also the church did not teach any more how man could obtain the objects held forth to him in the prophecies, yes, even defeated them; especially the gifts of the Spirit, the establishing of a perfect church, etc. Here you fall in exactly with the unjust and untrue accusations of the "Sued-deutsche Warte," which paper accuses the church of all possible bad, denounces her as the cause of all mischief, and even denies any will on her side to make things any better whatever.

The truth is, that all living servants and members of the church (and there are many left yet) mourn with deep affliction the sunken condition of the church, and pray earnestly for a powerful outpouring of the Holy Spirit, and through it for a new and better time, and above all, desire that they themselves might be fruitful branches on the vine Jesus Christ, and that through them others might be gained for the kingdom of God. But that great masses should be brought in, and the kingdom of God come with power, this the church cannot effect; we cannot force the people to conversion; even the Savior himself had to say to the people of Israel that he would gather them, but they would not. Whenever the apostles preached, some would be converted, as is often said, but the most remained unconverted. Even the mighty Paul fared no better. And among the apostolic churches there were many impure, yes, wicked members, party contentions, and offences of many different kinds.

Now if the apostles themselves were not able to convert the masses, and establish a pure, unspotted church, how can we do it, who occupy a position so much below the Spirit-measure of the apostles, and live in a Christendom that has grown old, wherein the great unconverted mass, that has since many centuries become a great crowd, stands in opposition to us. There are innumerable, whom we cannot operate in the least, who run after earthly things, and suffer themselves to be carried away by the great stream of the world. To this stream we can now and then make some feeble opposition, but to stop it from going on is not in our power.

But this the prophecy says very clear. It tells us that unbelief and sin are more and more to increase, and in the last days Anti-Christendom is to make its appearance and set up the most shameful man-worship in the place of the true worship of God, at which time the faithful will suffer great persecution; then comes the Lord, and destroys his antichristian enemies, binds Satan for a thousand years, and sets up his glorious kingdom, in which peace will never end, and wherein first the Israelites, and then all Gentile nations, will be converted. This is the right prophecy, which the most living members of the church believe.

But that which Chr. Hoffmann* understands by prophecy is partly perfectly foggy, so that nobody knows what to make of it; partly are his ideas, that he and his followers want to set up the kingdom of God themselves, entirely wrong. To say this only betrays incredible boldness. Ridiculous, however, is the idea, to establish the kingdom of God by rebuilding the Temple of Jerusalem. Of this we find nothing in the true prophecy, but the Temple none but the Jews themselves, as such, shall build before the Lord comes; and in this Jewish Temple, in which the Old Testament sacrfices will be re-established again, shall, according to 2 Thess. 2 chap., place himself the man of sin, i. e., the Antichrist, whom the Lord will then destroy by his personal appearing.

Our principal endeavor must be, that we ourselves become living temples of God; that the kingdom first be in us—that kingdom of which Jesus says that it comes not with outward ceremonies,—but that it first must be within us, namely in this way, that Jesus is in us. This is accomplished by conversion, i. e., by repentance, faith, and sanctification, under the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Of this deep work of grace in secret, in parvo, Chr. Hoffman is regardless, as he also thinks little of the atonement and justification. With him all must at once take the form of outward life; great revolutions must arise; every thing must at once become entirely different. How will he effect this? And how much then has he accomplished until now? His principal doing is not building, but tearing down, slandering, scoffing, using sarcastic and mean language, without any love and mercy. This is not the spirit of Jesus, who possessed, besides all truth, also love, humility, and meekness.

If you blame us because we are opposed to any attainment of spiritual gifts, according to 1 Cor. 12, etc., you speak not the truth; we long for these gifts, but we cannot reject the church because she is not in possession of them. Meanwhile, some have them partly. More than we know are, for instance the sick, healed by laying on of hands. But then read also 1 Cor. 12, 31, and 1 Cor. 13, etc. Here Paul places above those extraordinary gifts, love, which Hoffman seems to set aside.

So, without all reason, you say, the church were persecuting Chr. Hoffmann. But he is left perfect liberty; he is not even brought before any worldly tribunal because of his awful slandering; he is perfectly let alone. All the persecution is, because they said that they could not look upon him any longer as a member of the church. This, however, was very natural, because of such slandering.

If you really design to join the Temple, I pray you, after two years, if we should live that long, to write me whether you have really found the kingdom of God, and all the necessary food for your spiritual enjoyment. Many have returned from Kirschenhardthof † because they did not find what they had hoped for.

Wishing you the blessing of the Lord, I am yours, N. N.

After this follows the answer of the Editor of the "Sued-deutsche Warte," or the German temple, which I propose to send hereafter.

Your Bro. in Christ,
LOUIS REIMER.

* The eminent Lutheran minister. L. R.

† A religious society, whose object is to gather all that believe in Christ and his coming together at Jerusalem, to build the city, and especially the temple, and there establish the kingdom of Christ, and then look for his personal appearing, etc. L. R.

* Editor of the "German Temple." L. R.

† A place of a timely gathering of the members of the Temple, something like that of Celesta, it seems.—L. R.

RESPECT THE AGED.—Many an old person has the pain—not bodily, but sharper still—of feeling himself in the way. Some one wants his place. His very chair in the chimney corner is grudged him. O, little do younger persons know their power of giving pain or pleasure. It is a pain for any man still in this world to be made to feel that he is no longer of it—to be driven in upon his own little world of conscious isolation and buried enjoyment. But this is his condition. They grudge the trouble of that raised voice which alone could make him one of them; and when he speaks, it is only to be put aside as ignorant, or despised as old-fashioned.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE.

NUMBER FIFTEEN.

To BRO. D. D. C.—My Dear Brother:—I will now endeavor to reply to your statement of difficulty respecting the subject of sanctification, acknowledging however in the outset that it is difficult to explain it clearly to the comprehension of those who have never experienced this grace.

You cannot explain the mysterious change effected by the regenerating grace of God on the heart at conversion, so that the sinner can comprehend it. It must be enjoyed, in order to be in any degree understood. The natural heart understanding not the things of the Spirit of God, they are foolishness to him, being spiritually discerned. Just so in respect to the higher christian life. There are experiences connected with the attainment of "perfect love," or the "gift of power," that can be understood only by those who have attained. Of course you are willing to admit this.

In "Letter" seven, I have spoken of the reception of this gift of power by the disciples on the day of Pentecost. It was not given to constitute them christians; this they already were. It was not justifying grace they then received, for they were previously in a state of justification. The language of Christ to his disciples on various occasions proves them to have been in a state of acceptance. When the seventy chosen ones returned on one occasion from their mission, and began to tell their Lord with great joy of their success in casting out devils, he says to them, "Rejoice not in this, but rather rejoice because your names are written in heaven." When about to leave them, he promised them a mansion in his Father's house. He tells them that they are branches of the true vine. He says that they are chosen by him out from the world, and are ordained by him to go and bring forth fruit which shall remain.

In his beautiful prayer for them, he tells the Father that they are his, and had kept his word. When promising them the Comforter, which is the Holy Ghost, he does not once hint at their receiving in connection therewith justifying grace, but speaks of the light it would impart to them in that it would take of the things of God and show them unto them. It is not therefore true, as some suppose, that not till the day of Pentecost were the disciples converted. Others teach that the baptism of the Spirit, then given, was to enable them to work miracles; but they already possessed this power; it was given them when first sent forth on their mission.

When the disciples returned to Jerusalem, after the ascension of their divine Lord, it was with "great joy, and they were continually in the temple praising and blessing God." Yet, notwithstanding the devils were subject to them through the name of Jesus, and their names were written in heaven; notwithstanding they belonged to Christ, and had received from him the promise of a throne in his kingdom; notwithstanding they were often filled with "great joy," yet it was deemed essential for them to receive the endowment of power from on high, for the removal of those evil tendencies which we see that they sometimes exhibited—the casting out of that fear which sometimes overcame them, and their establishment in grace, and qualification to witness, labor, and preach effectively for Christ.

Do you not see the change so strongly marked in the future life of the apostles? It was for a specific blessing they waited in that upper room at Jerusalem; for this they unitedly prayed. And its reception was not gradual, but instantaneous, and after its experience they no longer lingered in that chamber—no longer continued their protracted prayer-meeting, but entered at once upon their great work, and the result showed the reality of the change effected in their hearts. With power, and great boldness and clearness, they presented the truth, convincing and converting thousands to the faith. They triumphed over all opposition; they trembled not when brought before rulers and kings; they despaired not when cast into prison and their feet fastened in the stocks; they faltered not when death awaited them. They were not always such men as this. What wrought the change?

What made them glory in the cross? What made them exceeding joyful in all their tribulations? It was the gift of power that energized their whole being on that eventful day of Pentecost! Nothing else. It is what the church of Christ needs to-day, to call into action all of her latent energies, and set her all aglow with the fire of pure, perfect love, that shall thaw the frozen hearts of the impenitent. There is power in the prayers and testimonies and sermons of those who are baptized with the Holy Ghost! Such labor not in vain, nor spend their strength for naught. They wield an influence for good wherever they go. You never see such idle, with hands folded in lazy lock, while the fields are whitening for the harvest. They are earnest workers; in the morning sowing the seed, and in the evening withholding not their hand, expecting that both will be alike good. You never hear them sadly moaning—

"'Tis a point I long to know,
Oft it causes anxious thought,
Do I love the Lord, or no?
Am I his, or am I not?

They have the know so in their hearts from day to day, and can say with Job, "I know that my Redeemer liveth"; with Paul, "We know that if this earthly house of our tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God," etc.; and with John, "We know that we are of God"; "We know that we have passed from death unto life, because we love the brethren"; and, "By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep his commandments."

No more hope so, or guess so in their case, or the Holy Spirit bears witness with their spirit, and they are sealed therewith unto the day of redemption. No complaining of the difficulty in regard to believing God's word to be true; they would find it impossible to doubt. The heart being free from condemnation, they have confidence toward God, and whatsoever they ask they receive of him, because they keep his commandments and do those things which are pleasing in his sight. No complaining of "My leanness, O, my leanness!" for the Spirit within is a living fountain, springing up unto everlasting life. They do not complain of darkness, for they follow Jesus, and in him is no darkness at all.

They do not complain of bondage, for the Son has made them free, and they are free indeed. They murmur not at any of God's providences, however mysterious and incomprehensible they may be, for they know that all things work together for their good. Are loved ones cut down by death? they say with Job, "The Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord!" They count it not a task to labor for God, but with the poet can sing—

"His easy yoke I bear
With delight, with delight."

Such, my dear brother, is the experience of the wholly sanctified one. Is it yours? I have not space now to devote to other items of your letter, but must reserve them for a future time.

May the Spirit guide our hearts in the way of truth and holiness. Yours in Christ,

M. D. W.

For the World's Crisis.

AS IN CHILDHOOD.

Methinks that on thy bosom, mother,
My head is resting now,
And thy hand so tender ever
Rests softly on my brow;

And thy voice I hear, dear mother,
In accents sweet and low;
That the world around goes brighter,
Less, less of earthly woe.

But I know I'm only dreaming,
For the waking tells me so,
When I find thy form is lying
In the silent ground so low.

Then I turn with tears and sadness
From the bitter thoughts which come,
To that land where all is gladness,
To our new eternal home.

Oh! the thought how blissful ever,
That if good we meet again;
Meet to part no more forever,
Where each heart is free from pain.

Machiasport. H. C. AMES.

For the World's Crisis.

MATT. HENRY ON LUKE 16: 19--31.

Matthew Henry, in his Notes, admits the account of the rich man and Lazarus to be a PARABLE. I will give his language verbatim et literatim.

"This PARABLE, by drawing the curtain and letting us see what will be the end of both in the other world, goes very far in prosecuting those two great intentions." Again he says, "Here is an account of what passed between the rich man and Abraham in the separate state, a state of separation one from another, and of both from this world; and though it is probable there will not be, nor are any such dialogues or discourses between glorified saints and damned sinners, yet it is very proper, and what is usually done in descriptions, especially such as are designed to be pathetical and moving, by such dialogues to represent what will be the mind and sentiments both of the one and the other."

E. BLOOMFIELD, in his Life of Christ, printed in 1809, page 267, on this place remarks as follows:

"He now related the PARABLE of the rich man and the beggar; a PARABLE which every one is in duty bound to read," etc.: and on page 268 he quotes or refers to Dr. Macknight's views thus, "By this PARABLE as Dr. Macknight observes," etc. In his explanation he denies that the fire is literal fire.

In parables one class of agents are used to represent another and a differing class. Wheat in the parable does not mean wheat, nor tares tares. Mark the occasion of this parable, and the others associated with it in vindication of Christ's course in receiving sinners and eating with them. Luke 15: 1, 2.

Stanbridge, C. E. C. P. DOW.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN UNION.---No. 12.

Practically Considered.

TESTIMONY OF THE "GOLDEN RULE."

"A band of faithful men,
Met for God's worship in an upper room,
Or canopied by midnight's starry dome,
On hill-side, or lone glen,
To hear the counsels of his holy word,
Pledged to each other and their common Lord.

These, few as they may be,
Compose a church, such as in pristine age
Defied the tyrant's zeal, the bigot's rage;
For where but two or three,
Whatever place, in faith's communion meet,
There, with Christ's presence, is a church complete.

"That they all may be one."—JOHN 17: 21.

"In 1850 I dwelt in a town of about three thousand souls, where Baptists, Methodists, Congregationalists, Presbyterians, Quakers, and I know not how many other sorts of christians laid aside their shibboleths and united in one place of worship, and in one church, and seemed like one great family. Well, what were the benefits of their living together in christian union? I will state some of the beneficial results, praying that the like blessings may be soon enjoyed in all the communities of our happy land.

1. They were strong in missions. They sustained the gospel liberally at home, and sent out many missionaries to the heathen; also teachers, lecturers on temperance, peace, liberty of speech, body, mind and soul, and other reforms, and revival preachers in our own land. This they had strength to do, because they sustained but one church at home, instead of four or more, as other towns of their size did and still do.

2. They had a constant growth—a constant revival; souls added to the church almost daily.

3. None could stay away from meeting. Such was the desire to go where all could be seen, that even those unmoved by a holier motive were constant attendants.

4. Better preaching—because free from sectarian bias. The preachers felt at liberty, in Christ, to declare the whole counsel of God.

5. They were strong in reforms. They could "open the mouth for the dumb" against slavery, war, gambling, infidelity, intemperance, corruption in every form, and whatsoever else is contrary to holiness; and that without fear of popular disfavor—while those feeble, divided churches, four, six, and ten in a village, living as it were upon sufferance, were each and all afraid to "face the music," "speak all the words of this life."

6. Doubtless their christian union pleased God. Evidences might be added here, to a great extent, did time and space permit.

Why, then, shall we not everywhere meet upon some plan of union that will give us the strength, and favor of God, which sectarian churches cannot attain?

Let Bro. A be sent as missionary to some heathen city of ten thousand souls, who never heard of Christ; Bro. B be retained as minister to a congregation now, when united, of one or two thousand; and Brn. C, D, E, etc., employed in equally profitable places in the gaeat field—which is the world.

'That they may all be one!' a blessed pray'r,
Echoed by holy hearts, and felt within,
As answered evermore and every where
Among the souls redeemed from death and sin!

'By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye love one another. This is my commandment, that ye love one another as I have loved you.' And the multitude of them that believed were of one heart and one soul.' See Acts 4: 32. 'Behold how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity.'"

Testimony of the Rev. C. C. Foote, in Philadelphia, addressed to the "Golden Rule":

"Dear Brother Newton:—Yourself and readers will be interested with a brief record of this four days' prayer-meeting in this great city, for the world's conversion.

Subject of prayer and remark: 'Obstacles to the spread of the gospel.'

The testimony was greatly in advance of anything I have ever heard in such a meeting. One brother said, rum, tobacco, and slavery, must be put away; and another brother immediately prayed that God would put away these great sins. Then came the question of all others, the greatest:

The union of christians. An old-school Presbyterian said, 'The world will never know that Christ is the sent of God, till christians are one. This, said he, is the testimony of Christ himself.'

'Don't talk of union,' said another, till you are prepared to give up something to obtain it.'

'I will give up my book of discipline,' said a Methodist.

'And I will lay down my prayer-book for the bible and union,' said an Episcopalian.

'Amen and amen,' ran responsive through the great congregation.

And then a most earnest and pathetic prayer was poured into the ear of God, for the triumph of these precious truths—the oneness of the church.

'God will take us "old fellows" out of the way soon,' said a venerable saint, 'and then, the generation born in these union meetings, will live together in holy harmony.'

Next Saturday is to be the great union meeting of all the ministers of all denominations.

Amidst many imperfections there is surely progress in the right direction."

Zeal for the sect is not the zeal of Christ. Zeal, like all emotional qualities, sometimes deceives its possessor by playing the hypocrite. It often pretends to be in pursuit of the interests of Christ's kingdom and of humanity, when, in reality, it is merely seeking to build up a sect. Hence, many men who fancy themselves zealous for God, are, in reality, only zealous for their sect.

Sectarianism die? Perish forever? When? Never till holiness prevail,—bible religion. This is the first, the last, the only remedy for the bite of this serpent of serpents! You may rail against it,—depict its crimson evils—portray its fearful ravages,—the greatness and destructiveness of this sin of sins,—show what a stumbling block it is to the world,—how it retards justice, mercy, and truth, the onward movement of salvation, point out to its devotees its hatefulness, soul ruinousness, show them from the bible how Paul hated it, how God hates it, frowns upon it. What now? The serpent dead? Is there one head of the monster severed? Even one?

Says the Rev. Rowland Hill, "Sectarianism is a cruel iron wedge, of the devil's own forging, to separate christians from each other."

It is a bitter root, and baneful its effects
Upon the human heart, preying upon,
And eating out, though imperceptibly,
The very life of true religion—love.

D. F. NEWTON, Author of Home Thrusts.

WATERING TREES IN HOT WEATHER.

There is no practice on which we have given repeated instruction that is so little understood as that of watering newly set trees and shrubs during the hot and dry weather of summer. Many persons dash water on the surface and never examine whether it goes down half an inch or an inch, while the roots may be six inches or a foot below, and as little affected by it as a thirsty horse would be by pouring a pail of water on his tail. It would be well worthy of the experiment for any reader of these remarks to give the surface of a hard piece of dry soil a drenching with a watering-pot, and then, a few hours afterward, dig down and examine the depth to which the moisture has penetrated, and compare it with an adjoining spot that has not been watered. The result would be a valuable lesson. Let the experiment be extended. Allow one portion of ground to become hard and crusted, and keep another loose and mellow. Examine the moisture in the soil six inches down, during drouth—the crusted portion will be dry, the mellow part moist and favorable for the growth of plants. Again, examine a portion of the soil which has been allowed to grow with weeds and grass, as compared with the clear and mellow part, and the difference will be surprising to those who have not before witnessed anything of the kind. Grass and other plants pump water up from the soil and scatter it to the air in the form of insensible vapor through the leaves, many times faster than it can evaporate from bare soil; and beneath the grass the earth will sometimes appear as dry as ashes, while that which has been kept pulverized will be found as moist as a wet sponge. Actual observation of these differences, requiring a few minutes occasional examination, will be more convincing than any amount of reasoning. It will show in a most satisfactory manner the importance of keeping the soil clear and constantly pulverized, both for retaining moisture and for favoring the ready extension of roots.

Some years ago an acquaintance set out thirty young cherry trees. Fifteen of them were occasionally and moderately watered, and the remaining fifteen were left untouched. The owner was much surprised to find that seven out of the fifteen watered ones died by midsummer, and only two out of the unwatered ones. The truth was, the water which had been applied never reached half-way down to the roots, while it hardened the surface into a stiff crust, which is especially unfavorable to young and newly set cherry trees. If he had kept the surface constantly mellowed by repeated stirring, and had mulched the ground with grass or old straw for a few weeks at the hottest time of summer, the whole thirty trees would probably have lived and grown well.

As a general rule mulching with pulverized earth would be the most convenient and best way to perform this operation, if well performed. If the top soil is kept completely pulverized, it has about the same mechanical effect as saw-dust and chaff. But soil becomes more quickly packed solid again than either saw-dust, chaff or short straw, and a very few cultivators can be induced to break it up fine frequently enough. Hence, in ordinary practice, the common mode of mulching with hay, straw, etc., succeeds best. A neighbor once made a banter with his hired man as to which should raise the most corn from a quarter acre. The neighbor hoed his piece once a week all summer; yet, in spite of this frequent hoeing, the hired man's corn was much the best. He was puzzled for a time to account for it, until early one morning he found him at work at it—and then found out that he had hoed it every morning before his employer had arisen. It has been common to ascribe the increased growth of constant stirring to the absorption of ammonia from the air, etc., but the true explanation is undoubtedly the preservation of the moisture of the soil by the more perfect mulching thus afforded.—Country Gentleman.

☞ Good nature, like the busy bee, collects sweetness from every herb; while ill nature, like the spider, collects poison from honeyed flowers.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

DEBILITY.

We take the following paragraphs from an article in a late "Herald of Health" on the above subject.

Among the causes of debility, the first and principal ones are referable to

DIETETIC ERRORS.

The alimentary function was instituted for the sole end that the wasted tissues of the living organism might be replenished, and the normal standard of strength and temperature maintained. To subserve such an end it is absolutely indispensable that the aliment be of a proper quality and quantity. If of an improper kind, its introduction into the organism will be attended with injurious consequences; for what the system cannot appropriate, must be retained in the organism until it can be expelled by the enunctories, through the bowels, skin, and respiration. This extra effort on the part of the living organism to rid itself of improper or foreign substances introduced within its domain, is necessarily attended with a large expenditure of vitality, and induces constipation and congestion of the abdominal and pelvic viscera. A persistent practice of improper and excessive alimentation, it is evident, conduces to a permanent congestion of the liver, by imposing upon this important organ more labor than it can perform, in the resulting disease of which a sure foundation is laid for a very large number of the "ills to which flesh is heir." To mention specialities in diet—flesh-food, salted provisions, condiments, and stimulating or nervine beverages—tea or coffee—which tend constantly to produce an inflammatory condition of the whole system as well as a preternatural excitement of the animal propensities. All constipating food is objectionable, whether in the form of fine flour bread, shortcakes, butter-biscuits, doughnuts, old cheese, or in any other shape. Swine-flesh in every form—pork, ham, sausages, lard or gravy—is especially abominable, and not to be for a moment tolerated, being a prolific source of foul humors, erysipelatous eruptions, scrofulous swellings, and other morbid conditions of the living structures.

That all the bodily functions may be performed normally, it is especially important to preserve the purity of the blood, by introducing into the living system only those articles of food which will not deteriorate it. Hence, when we secure a proper dietary, we supply the necessary materials which go to build up healthy structures, and thus lay a sure foundation for constitutional vigor and long life—the best and surest safeguards against disease. Let human beings subsist on wholesome articles of food instead of the prevailing abominations of popular cookery—highly seasoned foods, sweatmeats, rich pastries and gravies, animal food in every shape, and a multidude of other articles—the present fearful tide of disease would be in a great measure checked, and physicians would find comparatively little to do in the capacity of medicating ailments. More than this, very many of the besetting sins of mankind—those demons in the shape of perverted combativeness, destructiveness, licentiousness, acquisitiveness, anger, hate, jealousy, revenge, etc.,—by which the fairest portions of the earth have been converted into dead and dreary wastes, and the noble gifts of man prostituted at the shrine of ambition, power and oppression—would largely disappear. What untold misery and misfortune has fallen to the race in consequence of foul, inflamed blood, dyspeptic and overburdened stomachs, diseased livers, conjestions of the brain, and preternaturally excited propensities, induced by obstructed and foul conditions of the organism generally! A healthier, stronger, better-developed race, with pure blood, clear heads, quiet nerves, and normal functions generally, can only exist upon the earth when these laws of nature and of God are known and obeyed.

HEALTHY SURROUNDINGS.

The word "surrounding" leads the mind first to the door yard. Very important, indeed, is it that the door-yard—the back door-yard—should be sweet and clean. If all the waste of the dwelling in wash water, dish water, and slop, etc., etc., is thrown upon the ground in the back yark, a long spell of warm weather in autumn will daily and nightly—emphatically the last—fill the house with the seeds of deadly disease. The remedy for this is either carrying the slops to a distance from the house and emptying them on a pile of absorbants, or conveying them away by an underground drain. If there is sufficient descent, a drain of six inch tile, I have proved, will answer well, if clear water is occasionally passed through it in quantities, and copperas water used as a deodorizer. A drain of small tile will in a short time fill up with patte, and be useless.

The next want of defect is cleanliness and purity in the cellar. If impure air ascends by every opening from the cellar into the house, how can the inmates expect good health?

The third plea is small, unventilated bedrooms, filled with the emanations from the back door-yard and cellar, and the exhalations from the sleepers' body, and shut tight from night to morning. Typhus fever and malignant dysentery, etc., here find a congenial atmosphere.

There is something, too, in the position and plan of a house. Let the house front the south-east, so that the front apartments may cool in summer afternoons, and the back rooms be in the shade in the fore part of the day. This gives coolness for labor and rest. Two apartments in depth are enough; more than that necessarily excludes from a portion of the house sunlight and fresh ventilation. An apartment thus situated cannot cherish life. How much of our sickness is caused by unhealthy surroundings, which we might remedy or remove, is an interesting subject of inquiry, and might with profit occupy the attention of every farmer.—Rural.

IMPORTANCE OF REST.

In his Herald of Health, Dr. Trall thus sagely advises rest:—

"How much has been written about water, air, food, exercise, dress, and other hygienic materials and influences, and how little about rest! As a remedial measure, rest is of vastly more importance than has been generally supposed. As a therapeutic means its place is at the very head of the hygienic materia medica. Very little skill, comparatively, is required for a practitioner of the Hygeio-Therapeutic school, to know when to do something and what to do. But a vastly greater fund of professional knowledge is required to know when and how to let the patient alone. One-half of the world is drugged to death when sick, and one-half of the remainder is fretted to death. We have frequently saved life by standing between the patients and their friends.

The world has got a bad fashion of making a terrible ado, keeping up a consternation, nursing and fussing continually, while anxious relatives, sympathizing friends, mysteriously gibbering doctors, meddlesome nurses, and whispering watchers, add their mite of mighty influence to the wrong side, and all because somebody is sick and needs rest. And the whole mischief is traceable to a false dogma in medical science in relation to the nature of disease. The authors teach that disease is an entity, a thing which travels about, pervades the air, penetrates our dwellings, and finally attacks us; and this absurd phantasm is easily transmogrified by the ignorant and unthinking multitude (unthinking on this subject, we mean,) into something analogous to a witch, a ghost, a goblin, spook, fiend, or demon, which nothing but the doctor's poisons, dealt out by the doctor's own hand or pen, can assuage, pacify, eradicate, exorcise, kill, or cure.

The charms, incantations, and amulets of the ancients, were not more silly, and the necromancy and pow-wows of the Indian tribes of the present day are not more ridiculous, (and they are predicated on precisely the same false notion of the nature of disease,) than are the dosing and drugging, and slopping, and stuffing, and watching and fretting of the regular physicians of to-day, and the patrons and nurses of their school. Nine out of ten of all the maladies of all the people of the world would get well in a few hours, or days, if left to themselves, with no other appliances than such as instinct would suggest and common sense employ. Yet, in nine cases out of ten the doctor is called, and if he be a drugopathic doctor, one-half his patients are in danger of a protracted illness, and one-half of these are sure of a ruined constitution, not because of the disease, but be-consequence of the drugs.

When we visit a patient in the country, our greatest difficulty is to keep the friends quiet, when nothing but let-alone-ativeness is needed. All are willing to do something; every one is anxious to lend a helping hand; and people generally estimate a physician's knowledge and skill by the extent or variety of his prescriptions. Few can understand the quiet working, yet efficient remedial resources of nature when undisturbed.

EFFECTS OF SMOKING TOBACCO.

The following is an extract from an Essay on Smoking Tobacco, submitted by Dr. Richardson to the British Association for the advancement of science. Being an apology for smoking, the frank acknowledgement of its injurious effects should have weight with all.—Review.

"The water vapor of smoke is not injurious, but the carbon in it settles on the mucous membrane, and irritates the throat. The narcotic effect of tobacco smoke, if received into the lungs, resides in the carbonic acid, the ammonia causes dryness, a biting of the mucous membrane of the throat, and an increased flow of saliva—experiences familiar to smokers, it renders the fluid too thin, causing an angularity of the blood corpuscles, suppression of the billiary secretion, and yellowness of skin, quickening and then reducing the action of the heart. In young smokers it produces nausea.

The empyreumatic substance seems to have little effect except in giving the peculiar taste to tobacco smoke, and after a while of making the breath of tobacco smokers unbearable. Nicotine is rarely ever imbibed by the cleanly smoker. It affects only those who smoke cigars by holding them in the mouth, or dirty pipes saturated with oily matter. When absorbed, its effects are injurious, such as palpitation of the heart, tremor and unsteadiness of the muscles, and great prostration. It will not of itself, produce vomiting; it is the bitter extract which is the cause of this, imperceptibly swallowed and taken into the stomach."

OVER EATING.

All men agree that a glutton and a drunkard are approbrious and ignominious. All men join in decrying them and inveighing against them; and we are perhaps not in danger of becoming drunkards and gluttons. But there are many men who eat beyond the necessities of nature. They obscure their minds. You must take your choice between your brain and your stomach. The two together cannot be populous. If you fill the one, you must relieve the other. If you will work your head, you must carry temperance into your diet. Full-feeding and full-thinking never go hand in hand. There are hundreds of men, who, being of a vigorous physical frame, and of an active appetite, unconsciously eat to repletion, and then, through fevers, and indigestion, and the disturbed functions of their whole system, they labor through the day to discharge their duties, toiling, fretting and troubled, and do not know that the cause of the mischief is a slight excess in eating.

There are many men who, by this simple act of taking too much food, twice or thrice a day repeated, keep all their feelings upon an edge, so that they are irritable and quick, or make themselves stupid and slow. There are many persons who, by mere over-eating, take from sleep its refreshment, and from their waking hours, their peace, by the gnawing of the worm of appetite.—Ex.

EXERCISING THE MUSCLES.—It is a well established fact in physiology that the muscles can only be increased in size and strength by exercising them. In fact, if they are not exercised, they will wither away, and lose what strength they already possess.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.................$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address...... ...$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:
Payable always in advance.

Single copy, 20 cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 35 cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

CLUBS — Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other name on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, 22 cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, 22 cents a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less than ten), from 12 to 21 cents a year on each copy.

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

POSTAGE — Six cents per quarter, on every package of ten copies or less, to one address. Must be paid quarterly or yearly in advance, at the office where the paper is received. Send no money to us for postage.

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

The Law of Newspapers.

1. Subscribers who do not give express notice to the contrary, are considered as wishing to continue their subscriptions.

2. If subscribers order the discontinuance of their papers, publishers may continue to send them until all sums due are paid.

3. If subscribers neglect or refuse to take their papers from the office to which they are directed, they are held responsible until they have paid what is due, and order their papers discontinued.

4. If subscribers remove to other places without informing the publisher, and the paper is sent to the former direction, they are held responsible.

5. The law declares that any person to whom a periodical is sent, is responsible for payment if he receives the paper, or makes use of it, even if he has never subscribed for it, or has ordered it stopped. His duty in such a case is, not to take the paper from the office, and to notify the publisher that he does not wish it.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 513. BOSTON, TUESDAY, AUGUST 1, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 20.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, L. C. WELLCOME, H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

ALL NIGHT IN PRAYER.

"He went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God."—LUKE 6: 12.

All night in prayer the Holy One,
Far from the unbelieving throng,
In a lone mountain's calm retreat,
Held converse with his God alone.

His head was wet with dews of night,
The chilly winds rushed moaning by,
And the pale stars looked sadly down,
While Jesus raised to heaven his cry.

All night in prayer, the sinless One!
What was the burden of that prayer?
Was it a ruined, blighted world,
Which erst was once so good and fair?

Perchance, with clear prophetic eye,
Through the vista of future years
He saw life's weight of misery,
Of pains and groans, and griefs and fears;

And knowing that to him was given
A glorious mission to fulfill,
He supplicates the throne of heaven
For strength to do his Father's will.

Although his voice in Palestine
Is heard no more in vale and hill,
Exalted to his Father's throne,
In heaven above he prayeth still.

He knoweth all our sorrows here,
He sees how weak and frail we are,
And for the humble, contrite soul,
He intercedes with earnest prayer.

He pleads for me, a sinner vile,
Oh, matchless, condescending One!
Oh, weary heart, rejoice, rejoice,
Thou hast the prayers of God's own Son!

And he is coming back again,
No more to pray on Judah's height,
But on his Father's throne to reign,
And take what is his own by right.

Oh, speed the day! Oh, haste the hour!
Oh, resurrection morning, come!
I long to meet the loved and lost,
And with them reach my Eden home.

Farmington, N. H. M. S. HORNE.

For the World's Crisis.

"THE CROWN OF LIFE."

"That death might be swallowed up in victory," "at the last trump, for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be RAISED incorruptible; for this corruptible (body) must put on incorruption, and this mortal (life) must put on immortality;" and that is just what all, that are "in the body," the church, are groaning to "be clothed" with: immortality. Have you got it? Paul intimated quite clearly that he had it not, for he told Timothy (1st 6: 16) that the King of kings, and Lord of lords, ONLY had immortality; and in 2 Tim. 1: 10, he says that "Christ has brought life (eternal life) and immortality to light, through the gospel" (i. e.) through the resurrection. See 1 Cor. 15: 1–4, and 12–18; 2 Tim. 2: 8. In Rom. 2: 7, he says we are "to seek for immortality," by patiently continuing in well doing; and if we thus continue, God will render to us "eternal life." And in 1 Cor. 15: 53, he tells us that we "must put on immortality," at the last trump, by a resurrection from the dead, or by being changed from mortal to immortal, from corruptible to incorruption.

So the resurrection of Jesus Christ becomes the solution of the problem, the demonstration and illustration of the way in which and the time when we are to be "clothed with our house from (not in) heaven." It is "from heaven," because "eternal life is the gift (or favor) of God," and is to be "brought unto us at the revelation of Jesus Christ." In 2 Tim. 4: 8, Paul called it "a crown of righteousness," which the Lord, the righteous judge, will give to him at "THAT day;" . . . unto ALL that love his appearing." It is the reward of "that righteousness which is through the faith of Christ, . . . which is of God by faith," the "POWER of his resurrection, by which we "attain unto the resurrection," that one in which we stand clear out from among the dead ones.

In 1 Cor. 9: 25, Paul styles it an "incorruptible" crown; and the apostle James (1: 12) says it is "the crown of LIFE," which the Lord hath promised to them that love him." In 1 Pet. 5: 4, it is called "a crown of glory," an unfading crown, which "we are to receive WHEN the chief Shepherd shall APPEAR." In Rev. 2: 10, He that "was dead, and is alive says," Be thou faithful UNTO death, and I will give THEE a crown of life;" "for (3: 11) Behold, I come quickly; hold THAT fast which thou hast, that no man take thy CROWN." "Who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit," that we may be clothed with immortality.

Have you got it? Have you even got the earnest, the pledge, the guarantee, of the inheritance, until the redemption of the purchased possession? See Ps. 2: 8; 22: 27; 72: 8; Isa. 45: 18; Prov. 10: 30; 11: 31; and 2: 21, 22; Matt. 5: 5. And without this "through ticket," how do you expect ever to reach the everlasting depot of eternal glory? Without "a check," how do you expect ever to obtain your clothing,—immortality, eternal life? When you reach the terminus at "the other end of the road;" when "the conductor" shall cry "ticket!" what can you say, after having been offered a "free pass," and have none? "And he was speechless." When you stand in that vast crowd of travelers, "on the other side," and call on the "Master" for "clothing to hide your nakedness," what will you do when he says "check," and find yourself without it, "wretched, miserable, poor, blind, and naked"? Why will you not now come to Jesus Christ and obtain, when it is offered to you without money and without price? "From him that hath not (improved what he hath received) shall be taken, even that which he hath"—received. "For every one must receive the things in the body, according to that he hath done, (in body) whether good or bad." "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give to every man according as his WORK shall be." "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ. Now if any man build upon this foundation,—gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, stubble; every man's WORK shall be made manifest: . . . and the fire shall try every man's work; . . . if any man's work abide, (stands the test) he shall receive a reward;" but "if any man's work shall be (wood, hay, stubble) burned, he shall suffer loss: but HE himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire." See Mal. 4: 1; Matt. 3: 10, 12; Matt. 13: 38–43. "For we are laborers together with God: ye are God's husbandry, God's building." We are his "workmanship." 2 Cor. 5; Rev. 22; 1 Cor. 3, and Eph. 2.

Take good care what you work into his building,—into the body, the church, for he will try it by fire, and He "will swallow up death in victory, and the Lord God will wipe away tears from off all faces, and the rebuke of his people shall he take away from off all the earth ("house of this tabernacle," tenting or dwelling); for the LORD hath spoken it." And it shall be said in THAT day, "Lo, THIS is our GOD; we have waited for HIM (not have been with him,—not have gone TO him; but "have waited FOR him;" and, says Job, "If I wait, the GRAVE is my HOUSE; we have waited FOR the adoption," have "waited for HIS SON from heaven," not in heaven), and he WILL save us; THIS is the LORD; we have WAITED for HIM; we WILL be GLAD and rejoice IN his SALVATION." Hear the word of the LORD, ye that tremble at his word: Your brethren that hated you, that cast you out, for my name's sake, said, Let the Lord be glorified; but he shall appear to your joy, and they shall be ashamed." Isa. 66: 5.

On a certain occasion prior to his going away, Jesus said to the Jews (John 7: 34 and 8: 21), "Ye shall die in your sins: Whither I go, ye cannot come," and in chap. 13: 33, he said to his children, "And as I said unto the Jews, Whither I go, ye cannot come." "So now I say unto you." Some seek to evade the force of this, by saying, they could not follow him then, and refer to verse 36, where he says to Peter, "But thou shalt follow afterwards," implying by this reference that they would follow him to glory "when they died. See Barnes' Notes, p. 344. Whereas the true meaning evidently refers to the resurrection. See 1 Cor. 15: 23. "Christ the first fruits: "afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming," and unquestionably among them will be Peter. See also chap. 14: 19, 23. "Because I live, ye shall live also," "and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him and make our abode with him." See chap. 6: 44, 54, 57, and Rev. 20: 11–15, and 21: 3, 4. So only seven verses forward, he is going to prepare a place for them, and if he went, . . . he would come again; WHEN? when the place was prepared, and THEN he would receive them unto himself, "that where I AM—when he comes again—THERE ye may be also."

Now he has not yet "come again," the second time;" consequently the place is not yet prepared, and he has not yet "received them to himself." But when he does "come again," then he will be here, in the earth, in the "tabernacle of the congregation," the earthly sanctuary, the "building of God," eternal in the heavens;" which he will prepare, and when ready, "he that will come, shall come and will not tarry." Look at Lev. 16: 16, and you will find the law by which He is to prepare the place; until that is accomplished NO MAN "in the body" or "out of the body," can "be present with the Lord;" for HE "is absent," gone away into heaven," "beyond the vail," to appear in the presence of God for US," and has positively affirmed that "whither I go, ye cannot come;" because we are loaded with death, and must remain subject of it and to it, and under it, until he returns to ABOLISH death, and because then "present with the Lord," be accepted of him and receive from him A CROWN OF LIFE. Amen.

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

For the World's Crisis.

THE PASSOVER.

As we are not all agreed in regard to the Passover, or Lord's Supper, I propose by the help of the Lord to say a few words. Truth is what we ought to seek after, and should receive it let it come from whatever direction; whether from the high towering synagogue, or the country school-house; whether from the man that can read Hebrew and Greek, or from those who cannot: it is truth we want.

Now to the question. Is the supper that we find mentioned in John 13: 2, the same as that in Matt. 26: 19, 20, and Luke 22: 1, and Mark 14: 12? It is claimed that supper recorded by John 13 is not the same, or was not on the same night; let us see if that is so. For the sake of getting at the truth, suppose that it was not, that it was one, two, or three days, or more, before, as claimed. What took place on that night as recorded by John 13? In the first place, was Jesus betrayed that night? Read the twenty-first verse. "When Jesus had thus said, he was troubled in spirit, and testified, and said, verily, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me." Who was it? Read the twenty-sixth verse. "Jesus answered, he it is to whom I shall give a sop (or morsel) when I have dipped it. And when he had dipped the sop he gave it to Judas Iscariot, son of Simon." Do you think they learned that night who would or who did betray him? If so, let us look for awhile to the passover in Matt. 26, where he partook of the bread and wine, which is claimed was after the supper, as spoken by John 13. "Now when even was come, he sat down with the twelve. And as they did eat he said, verily, I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me." Now does it not look strange that they should ask who it was, if they knew, or if they were informed one, two, or more nights before? Read the twenty-second verse. "And they were exceeding sorrowful, and begun every one of them to say unto Him, Lord, is it I?"

You will take notice in the twenty-third verse, "And he answered and said, he that dippeth his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me;" not did betray before at that supper, as it would have been if there were two suppers; for it is positive that he was betrayed on that night, and they knew who it was. Now to have all this acted over, as it must have been if there were two separate meals, or passovers, or suppers,—whatever you may please to term them, to my mind does not look reasonable.

Again, I will call your attention to one other fact, that is, what he told Peter in John 13: 38. "Jesus answered him, Wilt thou lay down thy life for my sake? Verily, verily, I say unto thee, the cock shall not crow till thou hast denied me thrice." Now turn to Matt. 26: 34. "Jesus said unto him, verily, I say unto thee, that this night before the cock crows, thou shalt deny me thrice." To all those seeking for truth, bear in mind that the passover, or supper, was in the night, or evening. You will see that this is the supper mentioned by John, which is claimed took place before the one where they partook of the bread and wine. Now who believes there was no crowing of the cock from the time they partook of the supper as recorded by John 13, until the night in which Peter denied his Lord? Why not believe Jesus? He said, "this night." The cock usually crows every morning, and Peter heard and remembered. I do not think they kept silent for the sake of accommodating me or you, or any one who wants to make two separate suppers, or feasts, or passovers. I choose to let it stand as it is.

Whoever reads this I hope will not think I throw away any who do not believe as I do. I must believe for myself. If I heard to every one who comes along, I should have more than I could do; but it is enough for me to hear the Master. So I will close, praying the Lord to lead and guide us in the ways of truth, hoping we may all land safe on that beautiful shore.

One word more. Read The Emphatic Diaglott's translation of John 13, and onward; perhaps it will help to reconcile the matter. May God help us to search the Scriptures, and to practice what we see to be truth. Your brother in Christ,

Concord, N. H. JOHN T. KIMBALL.

For the World's Crisis.

THE YEAR OF THE CRUCIFIXION.

On p. 193 of the "Book of Daniel Opened," we observed that Tiberius died A. D. 37. Josephus says when Herod heard of the death of Tiberius, he "recalled his army," and sent them back into "their winter quarters." Hence the passover, during which Herod, being at Jerusalem, first heard of the death of Tiberius, must have been an early one; and the passover of A. D. 37, being on the 20th of March, was about the earliest one that the Jews could have; but the passover of A. D. 38 was on the 8th of April.

If this proves that Tiberius died A. D. 37, all that remains to enable us to know the year of the crucifixion is to learn whether it occurred on the fifth or sixth day of the week. If on Thursday, it was on the 6th of April A. D. 30; but if on Friday, it occurred on the 3d of April, A. D. 33; for there is no other year within the limits of the disputed point of time, in which the passover occurred on either of those days.

Some suppose that the crucifixion may have occurred as late as A. D. 37; but the passover of 37 fell on Wednesday, the day on which no one says that our Lord was crucified. All admit that Tiberius died before the passover of A. D. 37. And before the death of Tiberius, Pilate, having lost his authority as governor, was sent by "the orders of Vitellius" to Rome (Jose. Ant., b. 18, c. 4, s. 2) which proves that the crucifixion could not have been later than A. D. 36, for Pilate was governor when our Lord was crucified (Matt. 27: 2).

At the time our Lord was crucified, Caiaphas was the "high priest" (Matt. 26: 3), and before the 20th year of Tiberius, Vitellius "deprived this Caiaphas of the high priesthood, and appointed Jonathan to succeed him" (Jose. Ant., b. 18, c. 4, s. 3 and 6), and Herod "deprived this Jonathan of the high priesthood when at Jerusalem, at the time when he heard of "the death of Tiberius" (Jose. Ant., b. 18, c. 5, s. 3). This proves that the time Luke speaks of Herod's being at Jerusalem was at least three years before the death of Tiberius; for Caiaphas, who was at that time high priest, was deprived of his priesthood, and this Jonathan succeeded him before the twentieth of Tiberius. Hence the crucifixion could not have been later than A. D. 33.

As Herod died B. C. 4, our Lord's birth could not have been later than that time, hence he could not have been less than 37 years old in A. D. 34, and I believe all are willing to admit that he was not over 37 when crucified.

The twentieth of Artaxerxes, according to Ptolemy, was B. C. 445. If from this we reckon Daniel's 69 weeks, or 483 years, we have A. D. 39. If we reckon from Artaxerxes' 19th year, that is, B. C. 446, we have A. D. 38. Those who forget that in crossing the christian era, we should always diminish one, make it A. D. 37. But if from April, A. D. 37, we run back 483 years, it will bring us to April B. C. 447; that is, to the 18th of Artaxerxes, according to Ptolemy. Thus, if to 447 we add 37 diminished by one, we have 483.

The 32d year of Artaxerxes, according to Ptolemy, was B. C. 433. And if from April, B. C. 433, we reckon 2300 years, we have April A. D. 1868; but since some say "this would terminate the 2300 days no later than A. D. 1867," it would be well to test the matter by using the Julian period. The Julian period for B. C. 433 is 4281; to which add 2300, and we have 6581, which is the Julian period for A. D. 1868.

WM. C. THURMAN.

For the World's Crisis.

THE LAST TRUMP.

"Behold, I show you a mystery. We shall not all sleep, but we shall all be changed. In a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trump: for the trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised."—1 COR. 15: 51, 53.

When the last trump shall sound all earth shall hear,
The sea's wide trembling waves be fixed with dread,
The startled mountains turn their iron ear,
The hills shall flee away and hide their heads.
Leviathan shall plunge into his cave,
His deepest cave; the lion to his den;
In the black clouds the birds their wings shall wave,
And screaming loud, respond the cries of men;
And men, poured forth from cot and splendid hall,
Shall mingle with the cattle in the fields,
While, tost and breaking at the trumpet's call,
The rending ground beneath their footstep yields.
When all is changing, all in horror mixed,
"The christian's soul remains, believing, calm and fixed."

LAURIE J. SWETT.

Kennebunk, Me.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRISTIAN UNION.—No. 13.

Catholicity of Eminent Witnesses for Christ. Their Love to all Saints.

Hear John Wesley:—"If we take this word in its strictest sense, a man of a catholic spirit is one who gives his hand to all whose hearts are right with his heart; one who knows how to value and praise God for all the advantages he enjoys—for the knowledge of the things of God, and the true scriptural manner of worshiping him; and loves as friends, as brethren in the Lord, as members of Christ and children of God, as joint partakers now of the present kingdom of God, and fellow heirs of his eternal kingdom; all, of whatever opinion, or worship, or congregation, who believe in the Lord Jesus Christ, who love God and man; who, rejoicing to please and fearing to offend God, are careful to abstain from evil and zealous of good works."

Hear the noble-hearted Hannah More:—"My very soul is sick of religious controversy. How I hate the little narrow names of Arminian and Calvinist. Christianity is a broad basis. Bible christianity is what I love. It does not insist on opinions indifferent in themselves—a christianity practical and pure, which teaches holiness, humility, repentance, and faith in Christ, and which, after summing up all the evangelical graces, declares that the greatest of these is charity."

Rev. Geo. Whitfield, on the "Warfare of Sects," says:—"Though we all profess to own one Lord, one faith, one baptism; though Jesus Christ never was, and never will be, divided in himself; yet the followers of Jesus Christ have in all ages been sadly divided among themselves; and what has rendered the case the more to be pitied is, that they have generally been divided about the circumstantials of religion; they have generally received one another to doubtful disputation, and embittered one another's hearts by talking about those things which they might either do or not do, either know or not know, and yet at the same time be the true followers of the meek and lowly Jesus. I am verily persuaded that this is the great artifice and engine of the devil."

The Rev. R. Ryle, whose praise is in all the churches, speaking of the one church above and the one church below, says:—

"The one true church is composed of all believers in the Lord Jesus. It is made up of all God's elect, of all converted men and women, of all true christians. In whomsoever we can discern the election of God the Father, the sprinkling of the blood of the Son, the sanctifying work of the Spirit, in that person we see a member of the one true church.

It is a church of which all the members have the same marks. They are all born again of the Spirit. They all possess "repentance toward God, faith towards our Lord Jesus Christ," and holiness of life. They all hate sin and they all love Christ. They are all led by one Spirit. They all build upon one foundation. They all draw their religion from one single book—that is the Bible. They are all joined to one great centre—that is, Jesus Christ. They all, even now, can say with one heart and voice, "Amen and amen."

The following was adopted at the meeting of an association of Congregational ministers in Nothern Ohio:—

"Believing sectarianism, or the division of the christian church into diverse and rival denominations to be not only inconsistent with the spirit of christianity, but exceedingly disastrous to the cause of Christ, therefore,

"Resolved, That we esteem it to be the sacred duty of all christians to labor for the total extinction of the spirit of sect, and both by precept and example to show that they regard as totally erroneous those views of the ordinances of church organization which lead to such divisions, and that we regard as invalid and unscriptural every plea that may be urged in justification of the act of severing into parties, the militant church of Christ."

In harmony with the above, we call to mind the proceedings of a religious assemblage still further East on an earlier occasion.

"And the apostles and elders came together for to consider of this matter. And when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up, and said unto them, Men and brethren, ye know now that a good while ago God made choice among us, that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel and believe. And God, which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us; and put no difference between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith. Now therefore why tempt ye God, to put a yoke upon the neck of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we were able to bear? But we believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved, even as they."

"And after they had held their peace, James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me: Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name. And to this agree the words of the prophet; as it is written, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down: and I will build up again the ruins thereof, and I will set it up: That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things. Known unto God are all his works from the beginning of the world."

Also a prayer offered on a very similar occasion by one whom the whole christian church are wont to revere.

"Neither pray I for these alone, but for them also which shall believe on me through their word; That they all may be one; as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be one in us: that the world may believe that thou hast sent me. And the glory which thou gavest me I have given them; that they may be one, even as we are one; I in them, and thou in me, that they may be made perfect in one; and that the world may know that thou hast sent me, and hast loved them, as thou hast loved me."

And reader, forget not the great object of God's gracious purpose, through Christ's atoning sacrifice, as stated by the chief of the apostles.

"That in the dispensation of the fulness of times he might gather together in one all things in Christ, both which are in heaven and which are on earth; even in him: in whom also we have obtained an inheritance, being predestinated according to the purpose of him who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will: in whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation: In whom also after that ye believed, ye were sealed with the Holy Spirit of promise, which is the earnest of our inheritance until the redemption of the purchased possession, unto the praise of his glory. Wherefore I also, after I heard of your faith in the Lord Jesus, and love unto all the saints, cease not to give thanks for you, making mention of you in my prayers; that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of Glory, may give unto you the spirit of wisdom and revelation in the knowledg of him: the eyes of your understanding being enlightened; that ye may know what is the hope of his calling, and what the riches of the glory of his inheritance in the saints; and what is the exceeding greatness of his power to us-ward who believe, according to the working of his mighty power, which he wrought in Christ, when he raised him from the dead, and set him at his own right hand in the heavenly places, far above all principality, and power, and might, and dominion, and every name that is named, not only in this world, but also in that which is to come: and hath put all things under his feet, and gave him to be the head over all things to the church."

Do not all these witnesses agree as to the unity of the household of faith?

D. F. NEWTON, Author of Home Thrusts.

For the World's Crisis.

EXCELLENT TESTIMONY.

As I was reading Dr. Adam Clarke's Notes on the eighth chapter of Proverbs, which is sometimes quoted to prove the tri-unity of God, I found the following choice testimony, which I reproduce for the benefit of those who are inclined to believe certain unscriptural doctrines, now quite popular, mainly because the Fathers of the dark, darker, darkest ages of the Christian dispensation, believed and taught them. On the application of the eighth of Proverbs to the Trinity, as proof of that doctrine, although he regards it as simply being a personification of wisdom, he remarks:

"As to the Fathers in general, they were not all agreed on this subject, some supposing Christ, others the Holy Spirit, was meant in this chapter. But of these we may safely state, that there is not a truth in the most orthodox creed that cannot be proved by their authority; nor a heresy that has disgraced the Romish church that may not challenge them as its abettors. In points of doctrine their authority is WITH ME NOTHING. The word of God ALONE contains MY creed. On a number of points I can go to the Greek and Latin Fathers of the church to know what they believed, and what the people of their respective communion believed; but after all this, I must return to God's word to know what HE would have ME to believe.

No part of a Protestant's creed stands on the decision of Fathers and Councils. By appealing to the Bible ALONE as the ONLY rule for the FAITH and practice of christians, they confounded and defeated their papistical adversaries who could not PROVE their doctrines but by Fathers and Councils. Hence their popular doctrines stand in their ultimate proof upon these, and those of Protestantism on the Bible." How just these remarks. In Dr. John Cumming's discussion with Brown, the Romish barrister of London, Cumming contended against the traditionary teaching of the church as proof of any doctrine, standing on the Protestant ground of "the Bible alone" as proof; when in reply, Brown, shrewd enough to do it, wounded him between the joints of his armor, by accusing him of contending against the teaching or tradition of the church as proof of doctrine, in argument, but at the same time tenaciously holding doctrines as a part of his church creed which rested on no higher authority, and could be proved by no other means, viz., the doctrines of Infant Baptism, and the observance of the first day of the week as the christian Sabbath, or Sabbath of the Lord, challenging him to prove them by the Bible, his only admitted rule of faith, without reference to the Fathers. Cumming parried off the blow, and evaded the point, by saying that the reference was irrelevant. Perhaps it was the best he could do, unless he admitted himself beat in this instance, which would have been humiliating.

While on this point allow me to quote from Adam Clarke's Christian Theology, page 329. He says: "Bodies of Divinity I do most heartily dislike; they tend to supersede the Bible; and, besides this, they are exceedingly dangerous. They often give false notions, and by their mode of quoting isolated texts of Scripture, greatly pervert the true meaning of the word of God. This is my opinion of them."

Let us "cease from man, whose breath is in his nostrils;" and cleave to the word of God, "hold fast the faithful word," "the word of life," that we may rejoice in the day of Christ.

Stanbridge, C. E. CHARLES P. DOW.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRONOLOGY.—No. 1.

I believe that Josephus is the most reliable historian that we can find for facts and dates connected with the history of Jerusalem, during the reigns of Augustus Cæsar and several succeeding emperors of Rome. His manner of recording events, the reflections he makes on the lives of rulers, and his recognition of an overruling providence in the affairs of men, give me confidence in his truthfulness. This feeling is greatly confirmed by reading in Eusebius' Ecclesiastical History. That early christian chronologer quotes largely from Josephus and calls him "the distinguished historian among the Hebrews." Therefore in searching for the date of the birth of our Savior, I come to Josephus to find the year in which Herod the Great died, and consequently the time of Jesus' death. Though I were able to read heathen Roman historians, I would pass them by and prefer the pages of the Jewish historian.

Dr. Jarvis has shown, in his great work on chronology, that computations of the most eminent early christian writers, Eusebius not excepted, cannot be harmonized with themselves, much less with each other. There is no such inconsistency in Josephus, at least not from the one hundred seventy-ninth Olympiad (B. C. 64), down to the destruction of Jerusalem. His record of events, during this space of time, is harmonious in its dates throughout his various "Books." I have not found a single instance of disagreement.

The only question I have heard on referring to Josephus is, whether those Olympiads are correctly adjusted to our Anno Domini. I believe they are. If Sir Isaac Newton, and the most able scholars since his day have confided in the adjustment (the first Olympiad began 776 B. C., and the 195th O. begins with our Vulgar Era, or A. D. 1), why should we doubt this matter any sooner than we doubt the date of any ancient event that is confirmed by history and astronomy? Indeed Dr. Jarvis has proved that this arrangement is thus made, if astronomy and history can decide any question.

Worcester defines the word Olympiad:—"The space of four years, reckoning from one celebration of the Olympic games to another. From the celebration of those games the Greeks computed their time."

I intend to present, in the next article, some extracts from Josephus, in which those Olympiads are named that have a bearing on our subject, which will enable our brethren to form a simple, but I trust satisfactory, table of chronology. JOHN LYLE.

Newark, N. J., July, 1865.

For the World's Crisis.

BORN OF WATER.

"Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God."—JOHN 3: 5.

As some think the expression "born of water" has reference to water baptism, I would like to present a few thoughts that seem to me to be truth; if they are not, I hope no one will receive them as such.

In the verse following this text Christ briefly explains what he had just been saying to Nicodemus concerning the new birth by saying, "that which is born of flesh is flesh, and that which is born of the Spirit is spirit." As much as to say, you have had one birth, born of the flesh, or, as Paul expresses it, when talking about the resurrection, "The first man Adam was made a living soul, the last man Adam was made a quickening spirit. Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual. The first man is of the earth earthy, the second man is the Lord from heaven. As is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy; and as is the heavenly, such are they also that are heavenly; and as we have borne the image of the earthy, we shall also bear the image of the heavenly."

Nicodemus thought Christ a teacher from God, because of those miracles that he did, and Christ was instructing him that every one must have that same power begotten in them that would when matured and born enable them to go unseen, like the wind, as Christ did, when after he had his glorified body, on the first day of the week, when the doors were shut, where the disciples were assembled, he came and stood in the midst, and said unto them, "Peace be unto you." That fifth kingdom that the God of heaven is going to set up, which shall never be destroyed, is designed for a race of beings that have been first generated and then regenerated, and for no other. Christ himself the King of that future kingdom did not take on him the nature of angels, but the seed of Abraham,—went through the same fitting process, and is now waiting in a state of expectation until his enemies shall be made his footstool.

If "born of water" means baptism, how can the thief on the cross, and a great many others that we have good reason to believe will be saved, having repented and received the indwelling of the Spirit of God, while on their death-beds (although it never ought to be put off until then), infants, too, and little children, of whom Christ said of such are the kingdom of heaven, enter there, if it is baptism?

Baptism is all important where it can be administered, like every other command of God; for there are no non-essentials given by inspiration of God.

LAURA ANN WHEELER.

Hawley, Mass.

RELIGIOUS ARISTOCRACY.

Our nation has just closed a most distressing war, brought upon us by a social aristocracy. Had our governments, national and state, been true to their own principles and given to every man his rights, without regard to race or complexion, what an untold amount of suffering would have been avoided! It is never safe to withhold from others their God-given rights. Yet this is done by the churches. It is done systematically, and by almost common consent. Christianity greatly suffers in consequence. Our free institutions—our civil and religious liberties, are endangered thereby. A reformation is loudly demanded. The point to which we specially refer is this. The poor, as a body, are deprived of their right of hearing the gospel. This right belongs to them. It is theirs by virtue of the common brotherhood of man. The gospel belongs to man, as man—not because he can pay for it—but because he needs it,—therefore it belongs to them. But it is theirs by special bestowment. Jesus said, The poor have the gospel preached unto them. This was the crowning proof that he was the Messiah. The gospel then was especially designed for the poor. It is for all—for it is to be preached to every creature—but their claims are paramount. If there is any preference they must have it. So it was in the days when its Author taught upon the earth. So it was in Paul's day. For he says, "Ye see your calling brethren, how that not many wise men after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble are called; but God has chosen the foolish things of the world to confound the wise; and God hath chosen the weak things of the world to confound the things which are mighty; and base things of the world, and things which are not, to bring to naught things that are; that no flesh should glory in his presence." A church of which such a description is true could not possibly have founded a religious aristocracy based upon money. The poor must have been the special objects of their attention. The testimony of St. James is to the same effect. "Hath not God chosen the poor of this world, rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him?" It is plain, then, that the poor have a right to the gospel. It belongs to them just as much as freedom belongs to humanity.

The system of selling or renting pews in houses of worship deprives the poor as a class of the right to hear the gospel preached. Where can they hear it preached if not in houses specially set apart for this purpose? How can they hear it preached there if they have not the right of admission? What right have they there if others have paid for the exclusive privilege of occupying its seats? They feel that they are intruders. Seats may be reserved for the poor, but who, in this country especially, wishes to advertise his poverty to a church full of people? Those who have sufficient humility for this purpose must be saints already. Men generally do not like thus to accept as a gratuity what others claim as a right. The church has no authority to make any such conditions of hearing the gospel. She has no right to require that a man should be either tolerably rich or exceedingly humble to be allowed to listen to the glad tidings of salvation. The provisions of gospel grace are free—without money and without price; so too, should the proclamation of this gospel be free. Let the ministry be supported by voluntary contributions, as they were in the days of the apostles, and as they have been ever since, until within a few hundred years. But as it is now, the masses are practically excluded, especially in the cities, from Protestant houses of worship. Roman Catholic churches are generally open to all worshipers. Here the rich and the poor meet together—the millionaire and the hod-carrier listen to the same instructions, kneel side by side at the same altar, and are partakers of the same communion. It is this which enables her to retain her hold upon her masses, and to increase in wealth and numbers and influence with a rapidity unequalled by any other denomination.

If we would not see the power of the Pope predominant and Romanism established by law, the Protestant churches must come back to gospel principles. Let the pew doors be taken off, let pride and aristocracy be laid aside in the house of God, and let vital godliness take the place of cold formality, and the regenerated American churches would check the progress of Romanism and infidelity, and send forth a pure christianity to bless the nations of the earth. Some wealthy churches have been partially awakened to the importance of this matter. While they retain their own exclusiveness they build or rent a chapel in a destitute neighborhood and sustain a preacher there. This arrangement answers but little purpose except to quiet the consciences of the benefactors and to give offence to those whom they would especially benefit. "It is because they do not want us in their grand churches that they keep this up," said some common people of a free seat chapel sustained by the contributions of the wealthy churches. They would not enter it. The so-called mission was a failure. To reach the masses we must go among them, as of them, and not as patrons. There should be no caste in the house of God. All ye are brethren. The petty distinctions of society have no right among the followers of the despised Nazarene. "And this I say to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think, but soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith."—Earnest Chris.

For the World's Crisis.

VISIT TO LOW HAMPTON, FATHER MILLER'S GRAVE, AND THE OLD HOMESTEAD.

Monday morning, July 3d, in company with Srs. Rogers and E. S. Jennings, we left Poultney Village for a pleasant ride of seven miles, to visit the memorable Low Hampton farm, house, and grave of our much esteemed and lamented Bro. Wm. Miller. Our ride was pleasant through the beautiful scenery. We stopped to dine with the family of Bro. Phelps, and after an agreeable chat and rest, in company with Sr. Phelps (a niece of Father Miller), we repaired to the burying ground, and soon made our way to the grave of the man of God, who had done his work so faithfully and died at his post.

I stood by the grave of the man whom of all others in his life I had the greatest desire to see and hear, but which privilege I never enjoyed, while thousands listened to his voice and received with gladness the precious truths that fell from his lips. He has done the work God assigned him, and done it well. Here he sleeps, resting in hope, and will arise in the morning, with Abraham and all the old patriarchs, prophets, apostles, and martyred hosts, when every "jewel" in the dust and on the earth will mingle their voices in one grand chorus, and help swell the triumphant song of victory over death and the grave. God help me, that I may be there with that white-robed company.

His tombstone is a plain white marble, with an open Bible at the head. Then follow his age and death, with a verse of scripture found in the 12th chapter of Daniel. "But go thy way, till the end be; for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days." At the top is another verse engraved, found in Dan. 8: 15. "And he said unto me, unto two thousand three hundred days; then shall the sanctuary be cleansed"; with some other scriptures from Daniel's prophecy touching the time. Query. Did God send his angel Gabriel down to earth to instruct his servant Daniel, and to make this man understand? The subject was definite time. And did the angel obey? and did Daniel write it down? and if so, for what? never to be understood? shall we charge our Creator God with folly? Never! it is written as with an iron pen and lead in the rock forever: "The wise shall understand"; and if the sum is not now correctly understood, it will be, for God's word cannot be broken, no more than the bones of Jesus could be broken; and may God forgive our brethren who have cast so much dust upon this great and glorious subject of time, and would have us throw away all the light that has shined upon our pathway in the past, calling it a delusion, false light and glory.

We believed, and therefore have we spoken. And what if the point of time then believed did pass, and the time was not reckoned correctly? shall we call it all a delusion of the brain? No, never. God moved upon his servants to search the prophecies, when the light on the time of our Lord's return was due to the church, and the midnight cry to be sounded; and those that have never eaten of the book know not of its sweetness, and may never taste of its bitter; but those of us who have are willing to eat both the bitter and the sweet, knowing this is in the order of God, and are willing to suffer the consequence; and we mean to walk in the prophetical light that has shone in our pathway for more than twenty years in the past, believing it will shine more and more, and we shall have the true time to lighten us into the perfect day and the everlasting kingdom. Amen.

After standing by the grave and meditating upon the last twenty-three years, we withdrew from the cemetery, and repaired to the Low Hampton farm and homestead. In a few moments we were in full view of a large two-story house, painted white, with green window blinds. A son, who lives on the farm, kindly greeted us at the door, took care of our team, and a lady waited upon us into the house. We took a seat in the dining room, to rest a moment, and then were invited to the front rooms. As I entered the room where the good man had studied the sacred pages for years, searching for the truth as for hid treasures, with the spirit of prophecy in heart, I made for the corner of the room where his desk had stood, with his Bible and Concordance, and as I sat me down in a chair, I remarked—"O that his mantle might fall upon me!" The feelings of my heart at that moment my pen cannot describe, but I wept like a child.

How quickly my mind was carried back twenty-eight years ago, when first I heard the name of William Miller and the sound of Jesus' coming in 1843. O the great burning day! so near, and I unprepared. I rested not till I had made Christ my friend. Then I loved his appearing, and could respond with the church, "Amen, even so, come, Lord Jesus"; and although so many years have intervened, and the Master has not yet appeared, I as firmly believe to-day as I did then that God was in that great move of the church in 1843, and what we do not fully understand now we shall know hereafter. I thanked God for the privilege of sitting in that sacred spot, and I never felt more like holding fast to the light I had, and enduring unto the end that no man take my crown, than at that moment.

We repaired to the other room, and sat down to view the likeness, large as life, of Bro. Miller, and also of his worthy companion. And this is all I shall see of this worthy couple until I meet them in the paradise of God.

I thought of the barrel of jewelry, the stone wall, etc. As for the jewelry, there was none to be found, but we could go out and view the farm, and see the stone wall I had heard so much about in '42 and '3, as being built in those years. I looked for the wall, and behold, a few rods of old brown sunken wall near the house, which looked as if it might have been built fifty years ago. I inquired of the son,

"How long has this wall been built?"

"Oh! when I was a boy."

"And where is the wall that was built in 1843?"

"Over across the way."

"And who built that?"

"O, the man that owned it, a neighbor of ours."

"Very well, I am satisfied now as I ever have been. Father Miller lived out his faith, notwithstanding all the lies told about him, and rests in hope." I ran down to the wall (as I was in the enclosure), found a loose piece, snatched it from its hiding place, and took it along with me as a relic of Father Miller's "stone wall."

I left the place and returned to Poultney, feeling thankful I had been permitted to enjoy the privilege of viewing the old homestead and grave of Father Miller.

ABIGAIL MUSSEY.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Aug. 1, 1865.

TAKE NOTICE.

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable in advance, at the rate of $2.50 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $3.00 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

FRACTIONAL CURRENCY.—In sending us fractional currency, be careful to send only that which is good. There are many counterfeits in circulation, and much that is sent us is so dim, dirty and defaced, that we cannot pass them. Please send us none such, and save us the trouble and expense of returning them to the sender.

DEDICATION AT LAKE VILLAGE.

The dedication of the North meeting-house, in Lake Village, N. H., July 22d, passed off very pleasantly. The house has a very desirable location, on a hill, overlooking beautiful scenery around. We rarely see a pleasanter place than Lake Village; and we have a very fine view of it from the meeting-house.

Bro. T. W. Piper was with us to assist in the exercises, also Brn. A. Hartshorn, Glidden and J. Knowles. The two Baptist preachers in the place were also present. Our meetings on Saturday were really refreshing. The Spirit of the Lord was in our midst to comfort and strengthen the saints. Several came long distances in order to be present on this interesting occasion. It seemed like "old times," as was frequently remarked. The children of the Lord felt specially free in him, and could truly say it was good to be there.

Lord's day was one of special interest. The weather was very fine, and a large number assembled to unite in the worship of the God of our fathers. Two hundred and forty came up from Concord, a distance of twenty-nine miles. The presence of the Concord church added much interest to the meeting. It was a joyful occasion. At 9½ o'clock, our house was crowded with those who had come in to enjoy the love-feast, which was a heart-cheering scene. Fifty spoke in three-quarters of an hour. Many hearts were made to rejoice in the lively expectation of soon being at the great love-feast in the kingdom, when all the saints will be present.

As the house would not accommodate only about one-half that wished to hear, we went into a pleasant grove near by, where everything passed off very agreeably, while the people listened attentively to the evidences which show that we are very near the end of the present dispensation. We found the brethren and sisters here possessed of large hearts. One family fed about one hundred of those who came from other towns to the meeting, and others took large numbers. The meeting reminded us of some of the blessed seasons enjoyed years ago with those who were anxiously looking for the coming of the Son of man. We found a goodly number who are holding fast the profession of their faith, who are striving to be ready for the coming of the King of kings.

Monday we visited Hill, N. H., and preached in the Union meeting-house to a very attentive audience. We found the people very kind and friendly in their feelings, and willing to hear before they judge. There is evidently an open door in H. for the faithful laborer in the vineyard of the Lord.

While at Hill, we visited Dr. W. T. Vail's excellent Water Cure, where patients receive very kind and faithful attention. We were very much pleased with the appearance of things. Dr. V. has had a long experience, and appears to be well posted in the laws of health, and the best methods of treating disease. We wish him much success in his noble enterprise. Hill is a pleasant and quiet village, about twenty-five miles north of Concord, on the Bristol Branch Railroad, six miles from Franklin, which is on the Northern (N. H.) Railroad. We think those out of health will do well to visit Dr. Vail's Water Cure. We found several there who love the appearing of Jesus. There appeared to be a good religious influence connected with the institution. It is pleasant to find the family altar in such places, and the word of the Lord respected and observed. We felt quite at home, and believe the conductors of this Cure have a lively sympathy with whatever they see to be for the glory of God.

THOUGHT WITHOUT AN ORGANISM.

"You know we have argued that organization of this corporeal body was necessary for the development of thought, or mind if you please. Now if demons without this organism can produce intelligence, why not human beings?" GARDNER HALL.

We do not understand from the Scriptures that demons are beings without organism, any more than men; only that they are not made of dust as we are. Demons are "the angels that sinned," consequently are physically like the angels who have not sinned. But good angels resemble men in their personal appearance, and have been sometimes mistaken for men. Hence we are instructed to "be not forgetful to entertain strangers; for thereby some have entertained angels unawares." Heb. 13: 2. It is not to be supposed that persons have entertained immaterial beings, supposing they were material, or real persons; for the idea of an immaterial person is an absurdity. The angels who visited Lot to warn him of the approaching destruction of the cities of the plain, were material beings,—not mere thoughts. He washed their feet, and "made them a feast, and did bake unleavened bread, and they did eat."—Gen. 19: 3. The angels that assisted at the resurrection of Christ were real persons, and one of them was seen sitting upon the stone, and talked with the women. The angel who was sent by the Savior to instruct John upon the isle of Patmos was a material being, and the good man says:—"I fell down before the feet of the angel which showed me these things."—Rev. 22: 8.

Angels are called spirits. Jesus says, "A spirit hath not flesh and bones as ye see me have." But this does not prove they are immaterial beings, if it were possible to have such. A book is "not flesh and bones," but it is a material object. When speaking of Christ, Paul says:—"He took not on him the nature of angels; but he took on him the seed of Abraham."—Heb. 2: 16. As he took our nature, he was "flesh and bones," which is not the case with angels; yet they are personal, material beings, as truly as are men; but are not composed of "flesh and bones."

These scriptures are sufficient to prove that angels are as truly personal organisms as are men. As demons are the wicked angels, they too are of the same physical nature as the good ones, and are consequently material persons; hence influence men by the same laws by which men influence one another.

THE FENIANS.

The Fenian Brotherhood is attracting considerable attention. This society has already become a powerful body, and is growing bold in its language. The Fenians held a great picnic at Jones' Wood, New York, July 25th. The number present was estimated at 30,000. They had a variety of amusements, good order, and the whole affair was said to have been "a great success." Mr. Wm. B. Roberts, of New York, delivered an oration, in which he said:—

"Is Parliamentary agitation, and such despicable juggling, going to give liberty or justice to Ireland, when to do so would be giving up a part of the very foundation upon which the British governmental structure is raised? Is the blood and treasure which England draws from Ireland, and which she requires to supply the drain upon her own resources, so as to keep the English people from discontent and revolution, going to be relinquished through fear of big words and threatening speeches? Are any or all of these methods going to loosen the jaws of the hungry beast whose teeth have been sinking deeper and deeper into the very vitals of the nation, until now there remains but one sound artery through which the blood and hopes of our race flow pure and true—the Fenian Brotherhood? We are tired of shams, we are sick of cant, we stretch forth our arms across the Atlantic, and grasping a brother's hand of every creed, Catholic, Episcopalian, Presbyterian, Jews, Turks, if there are such things in Ireland—aye, even those of repentant Orangemen (for the Son of God forgave his murderers)—and swear, by the blood that has been shed, and the victims that have suffered—by the sacred dust in which the bones of her martyrs lie, dishonored and unavenged—by the millions of nameless dead, who from the first have sufiered for her and nourished with their blood the soil they so fondly loved—by every hope that men can cherish and angels give—Ireland shall be free, and we must free her. You have begged long enough, you have prayed, you have fawned until you have made freemen all over the earth despise you; you have flattered until your sycophancy became disgusting to friend and foe alike; you have tried all these and failed, miserably failed, and now there is not a heart-throb left in the nation that you can revive with your drums and quack nostrums.

Now, step aside and let the earnest sons of toil, the bone and sinew of the land, the true representatives of the men who fought at Limerick, Benburb and Fontenoy—let them see what they can do now. You have been tried in the balance and found wanting; we will step into the scales and be weighed; you have tried clods, we will try what virtue there is in rifles instead of Parliamentary protests. We will try powder and ball; the sword shall now be the arbiter of her destinies and her children, and may God defend the right! If we fail once with honor in a noble fight, try again and again; blood must wash out what blood and crime have stained. I would not destroy the life of a fly without a necessity; neither would I sacrifice the life of a human being without an adequate cause; but brave men are not afraid to die, and what holier cause did ever man fight for than freedom? What death more glorious than that of the patriot-soldier who dies for his country and his race?"

MORMONS.

The Mormon settlement at Utah has become quite extensive, and from what we can gather, is gaining power and numbers. Mr. Bowles, of the Springfield Republican, (Mass.,) has recently made them a visit, in company with Speaker Colfax, and gives some items of interest in the Republican, among which are the following:—

"How do the Mormon women like and bear polygamy? is the question most people ask as to the institution. The universal testimony of all but their husbands is that it is a grievous sorrow and burden; only cheerfully submitted to and embraced under a religious fanaticism and self-abnegation rare to behold and possible only to women. They are taught to believe, and many of them really do believe, that through and by it they secure a higher and more glorious reward in the future world. 'Lord Jesus has laid a heavy trial upon me,' said one poor, sweet woman, 'but I mean to bear it for his sake, and for the glory he will grant me in his kingdom.' This is the common wail, the common solace. Such are the teachings of the church; and I have no doubt both husbands and wives alike often honestly accept this view of the odious practice, and seek and submit to polygamy as really God's holy service, calculated to make saints of themselves and all associated with them in the future world. Still a good deal of human nature is visible, both among the men in embracing polygamy and in their wives in submitting to it. Mr. Young's testimony on this point is significant. Other signs are not wanting in the looks and character of the men most often anointed in the holy bonds of matrimony, and in the well-known disagreement of the wives in many families. In some cases they live harmoniously and lovingly together; oftener, it would seem, they have separate parts of the same house, or even separate houses."

When speaking of their meetings, he says:

"The gatherings and the services, both speaking and singing, reminded me of the Methodist camp meetings fifteen or twenty years ago. The singing, as on the latter occasions, was the best part of the exercises, simple, sweet and fervent. 'Daughters of Zion,' as sung by the choir last Sunday, was prayer, sermon, song and all. The preaching last Sabbath was by Mr. Samuel W. Richards, who was of Massachusetts origin, but has been a Mormon leader and missionary for many years. Beyond setting forth the superiority of the Mormon church system, through its presidents, councils, bishops, elders and seventies, for the work made incumbent upon christians, and claiming that its preachers were inspired like those of old, his discourse was a rambling, unimpressive exhortation. . . The Bible, both Old and New Testament, is used with the same authority as by all Protestants; the Mormon Scriptures are simply new and added books, confirming and supplementing the teachings of the original Scriptures. The rite of the sacrament is administered every Sunday, water being used instead of wine, and the distribution proceeding among the whole congregation, men, women and children, and numbering from three to five thousand, while the singing and the preaching are in progress. The prayers are few and simple, undistinguishable, except in these characteristics, from those heard in all Protestant churches, and, the congregation all join in the Amen."

In compliance with Mr. Colfax' request, Brigham Young preached a sermon upon Mormon doctrines, which Mr. Bowles describes as

"A curious medley of scriptural exposition, exhortation, bold and bare statement, coarse denunciation and vulgar allusions, cheap rant and poor cant. So far as his statement of Mormon belief went, it amounted to this: That God was a human, material body, with like flesh and blood and passions to ourselves, only perfect in all things; that he begot his Son Jesus in the same way that children are begotten now; that Jesus and the Father looked alike, distinguishable only by the former being older; that our resurrection would be material, and we should live in Heaven with the same bodies and the same passions as on earth; that Mormonism was the most perfect and true religion; that those christians who were not Mormons would not necessarily go to hell and be burned by living fire and tortured by ugly devils, but that they would not occupy so high places in Heaven as the latter Day Saints."

SCRIPTURE READING.

The following readings of Scripture are from Purver's translation:—

"Then I heard a certain holy one speaking, whom another holy one asked by name, how long the vision would be of the continued offering and the transgression that would make desolate, causing both the sanctuary and army to be trod down? And he said to me, till there is evening and morning two thousand and three hundred times, when the sanctuary shall become right." Dan. 8: 13–14.

"Understand, man; for the end of the vision will be at the time."—verse 17.

"Seventy sevens are determined for thy people and holy city, to stop transgression, to finish sins, to make atonement for iniquity, to bring in everlasting righteousness, to seal up the visions and prophets, and to anoint the very holy one. So thou art to know and consider, that from the coming out of the commission to restore and build Jerusalem, to the Messiah the Ruler, will be seven sevens, and sixty-two sevens; the street and ditches will be restored and built also in the shortest of the times. After those sixty-two sevens the Messiah will be cut off, though not for himself, (and the Ruler's people that shall come, will destroy the city and sanctuary, whose end will be with a flood, and till the end of the war there will be what is determined of desolations.) However, he will make the covenant strong to many in the one seven, in the half of which he will abolish the sacrifice and offering; making desolate afterwards by reason of the overspreading of abominations, even till consuming and that which is determined is poured out upon the desolate."—Dan. 9: 25–27.

"Those who consider will understand."—Dan. 12: 10.

Purver's translation was printed in London, in 1764.

Mr. Purver says Newton makes four distinct periods of the weeks.

WICKEDNESS ABOUNDS.

The reports of crime from the various sections of the country are truly horrifying; and they appear to be rapidly increasing. Human life is but little respected, men are acting out their beastly passions, as never before, in our day. Restraint is scarcely felt. Magistrates are bribed or intimidated so that they pass the vilest crimes unnoticed. Justice has fallen in the streets and finds none to help her up. The crowd stand rejoicing over her downfall, triumphing in their wickedness.

The following news item gives a glimpse of the state of things in many places beside the one named:—

MARTIAL LAW IN SPRINGFIELD, ILL.—Springfield is so overrun with blacklegs, burglars, garroters and loose characters that the Mayor, unable to stay the flood of crime, has requested Gen. Cook, with the military force under his command, to undertake the government of the city, and to deal with the villains in a summary manner. Gen. Cook consented to do so, and on the 21st instant took possession of the city with a few companies of soldiers, who are acting as patrolmen or military police."—Boston Journal, July 26th, '65.

"THE MONROE DOCTRINE."

It is inquired, "what is the Monroe doctrine?" about which so much is said, especially in relation to the occupation of Mexico by Napoleon. We will give it as stated by Mr. Monroe, in his message, Dec. 2nd, 1823, as follows:—

"With the existing colonies or dependencies of any European power we have not interfered, and shall not interfere. But with the governments who have declared their independence, and maintained it, and whose independence we have on great consideration and on just principles acknowledged, we could not view any interposition for the purpose of oppressing them, or controlling in any other manner their destiny, by any European power, in any other light than as a manifestation of an unfriendly disposition toward the United States."

CORRECTION.—In Bro. Lyle's communication of last week, in fourth paragraph, eleventh line, read "no more than four passovers," etc.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTICE.

To the waiting ones at, or near New Preston, we wish to say to you, that there will be an opportunity for all who wish, to meet for prayer at our house, every Lord's day. Come, all who will, in the name of the Lord,—for two reasons: to do good, and to get good.

"Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another. . . . And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels."

HIRAM & MARY BALDWIN.

For the World's Crisis.

INFORMATION WANTED.

Parker Swasey, Jr., of Cabot, Vt., who belonged to the 2d Vt. Reg't., Co. I, and was wounded in the battle of the Wilderness, has not been heard from since. Any person knowing of his captivity, or death, would do his bereaved friends a great favor by giving information of the same, directing to PARKER SWASEY, Marshfield, Washington Co., Vt.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$1183.46
A friend	1.32
J. Morrison	1.32
S. D. Ackerman	1.00
J. L. Chute	1.00
—— Hall	5.00
A young brother	5.00

OUR TRACT GIVERS

Are waking up, with new zeal, and taking hold of the work of tract distribution nobly. In answer to calls, we have sent out over $40.00 worth of Tract Fund tracts, for free distribution, the past week, besides those paid for, and orders are still coming in. Let them come. We have scattered two or three millions of pages the past year, and have one or two millions more which ought to be now flying everywhere on the wings of the wind. Send in your orders, and keep the work moving.

A brother in Maine, to whom we sent $3.00 worth in April, writes that they are all gone, and as the result, "Many are coming to the knowledge of the truth,—praise the Lord." He wants to put in his "mite to help send light and truth abroad," and encloses $1.00 for the Tract Fund, with a request for another grant of Tracts, "Send me more! send all you can: for there is great need for truth this way." We have sent you $5.00 worth. Scatter them widely and well, and pray for showers of God's grace to water the seed sown, and bring forth an abundant harvest.

A brother in New Hampshire, rich only in faith and in the will to work for his Master, thinks that "tract preaching will reach the hearts of some who cannot be reached from the pulpit;" and, "as I have but little of this world's goods," says he, "I propose to send you 50 cents, asking you to send me one or two dollars worth of tracts, that I may sell to those who will buy, and give to those who will not. Every cent received, if any, shall be forwarded to you." We have mailed to your address $2.00 worth, and when those are gone, send for more. The Lord guide your steps into the way of those who shall give a willing ear to these little voiceless preachers, till many shall be brought by their means into a knowledge and love of the truth.

A sister in the Pine-tree State writes that she is in want of tracts, but has nothing to pay. "If you will send me such as are intended to stir up the minds of the impenitent, and will trust me, I think I shall be able to pay for them sometime. I want to scatter them among my impenitent friends. If I cannot pay you, God will."

We have no fear of the pay; so we will send you a package, and charge it to His account. "Please send them as quick as you can, for there is no time to be lost." There is, indeed, no time to be lost; but how few, even among ourselves, realize it. May God wake us up to do all that we can in the brief time that remains.

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$1090.26
"D."	1.00
Mrs. Sarah Manning	5.00
L. M. Veazey	1.00

Shall we stop it?

An aged sister in Northern New York sends $2.00 to pay up her indebtedness for the Crisis, and says:—"We are sorry to say we cannot take your paper any longer, unless you think you can send them free. I do not want to do without them, if I could get them. We are old people, seventy years old, and poor, and take a great deal of comfort in reading them, and are the only ones who take them in the place where we reside. I would have sent the money before, but sickness prevented.

MRS. J. H."

ITALIAN MISSION.

Previous donations	$184.57
A young brother	2.00
C. Barnes	.50
T. E. W	2.00

MUNIFICENT DONATIONS.

Hon. Asa Parker of Pennsylvania gives $500,000, and sixty-seven acres of land, to establish a college near Bethlehem in that State.

George Peabody, the London American banker, has presented 3500 volumes of standard books to the Peabody Institute, at South Danvers, Mass.

The late Mrs. Sylvia Ann Howland of New Bedford made the following noble bequests: $20,000 to the Orphan's Home; $100,000 toward the introduction of pure water into the city, and the encouragement of manufacturers; $50,000 for the relief of aged and infirm females, and like sums to other charities. Of an estate valued at two and a half millions, she gives away, in legacies of various amounts, about one million.

Miss Mary A. N. Swaim, daughter of the late Rev. Dr. Swaim, made the following liberal bequests just before her death: to the Massachusetts Baptist Charitable Society, for the relief of the widows and children of deceased Baptist ministers, $1000; to the American Baptist Home Missionary Society, $10,000; and other bequests, amounting in all to at least $25,000.

To do good and communicate, forget not.

TERMS OF THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

The Young Pilgrim will be continued semi-monthly the ensuing year at the following rates:

For a single copy,—Fifty Cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, or any number of copies under fifty, when sent to one address,—Forty Cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number of copies over fifty, when sent to one address,—Thirty-five Cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers,—at the same rates, with no extra charge for American postage.

All subscriptions for the coming year must be made at the above rates.

CLUBS.

Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other name on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, 37 cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, 32 cents a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less that ten), from 12 to 21 cents a year on each copy.

Subscriptions may commence with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

All communications, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to the YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

W. B. H., [illegible]	$5.00
James [illegible], N. Y.	5.00
A. M. L., North Weare, N. H.	1.00
N. D. B., Hallowell, Me.	2.00
Mrs. L. S. Dinsmore, Hallowell, Me.	1.00
Betsy C. Bancroft, Ashburnham, Mass.	.50
A sister	5.00
M. L. Colton, Shabbona Grove, Ill.	.70
"Tariffville," Ct.	2.00
E. D. Hitchcock, Somersville, Ct.	1.00
Geo E. Hooper, No. Hydepark, Vt.	1.00
"Brunswick," Me.	5.00
Maria Drury, Roxbury, Mass.	1.00
D., Farmington, N. H.	1.00
Geo. S. Harwood, No. Swansea, Mass.	10.00
J. B. Walker, Athol Depot	1.78
Wm. Christian, Norwalk, O.	.50
——, East Weare, N. H.	5.00
A sister in New Hampshire	2.00
Amos Scripture, Mason Village, N. H.	1.00
"Friends"	10.00
Mrs. N. J. Humphrey, Yarmouth, Me.	1.13
A young brother	5.00
Friends, Kennebunk, Me.	1.10
N. Shumway, Danielsonville, Ct.	.50
Mrs. C. Barnes, Brookfield, Ct.	.50
Mrs. M. Sunderland	5.00
Louisa Barber, River Point, R. I.	1.00
S. Cooper, Windsor, Ct.	2.00
L. M. Veasey	1.00
J. W. Sharick, Thedford, Mich.	1.50
Husband and Wife, Yarmouth, Me.	5.00
A friend, Providence, R. I.	3.00

Pledges.

There are doubtless many who are intending to contribute to the Fund for the Freedmen's Mission, but are not able to do it now. Any such, who may have occasion to write to the office, can send on their pledges, if they are pleased to do so, to any amount, from $1.00 to $100.00.

MISSION TO THE FREEDMEN.

This subject is now being agitated with much interest among Adventists. Our sympathies have been aroused for a people long trodden down in this professed christian land. Few have a true idea of their spiritual and moral condition. The slaveholders themselves had the best knowledge and the most correct views of the matter.

Thirty years ago, when the abolition movement had hardly begun, and the slaveholders were not irritated with that movement, as afterwards, they spoke out upon this subject with great freedom and truth.

In 1832 the Rev. C. C. Jones, in a sermon delivered before two associations of planters, in Georgia, said:

"Generally speaking, they [the slaves] appear to us to be without God and without hope in the world, a nation of heathens in our very midst. We cannot cry out against the Papists for withholding the Scriptures from the common people, and keeping them in ignorance of the way of life, for we withhold the Bible from our servants, and keep them in ignorance of it, while we will not use the means to have it read and explained to them. The cry of our perishing servants comes up to us from the sultry plains as they bend at their toil—it comes up to us from the midst of their ignorance, and superstition, and lewdness. We have manifested no emotions of horror at abandoning the souls of our servants to the adversary, the roaring lion that walketh about seeking whom he may devour."

Again: About this time the Synod of South Carolina and Georgia, in a report on the condition of the colored population in respect to religious instruction, said:

Who would credit it, that in these years of revival and benevolent effort, in this christian republic, there are over two millions of human beings in the condition of heathen, and, in some respects, in a worse condition. From long-continued and close observation, we believe that their moral and religious condition is such, that they may be justly considered the heathen of this christian country, and will bear comparison with heathen in any country of the world. The negroes are destitute of the gospel, and ever will be under the present state of things. In the vast field extending from an entire State beyond the Potomac, to the Sabine river, and from the Atlantic to the Ohio, there are, to the best of our knowledge, not twelve men exclusively devoted to the religious instruction of the negroes. In the present state of feeling in the South, a ministry of their own color could neither be obtained nor tolerated."

Again: The editor of the Charleston (S. C.) Observer, speaking on this subject, said:—

"Let us establish missionaries among our negroes, who, in view of religious knowledge, are as debasingly ignorant as any one on the coast of Africa; for we hazard the assertion that throughout the bounds of our Synod there are at least one hundred thousand slaves, speaking the same language as ourselves, who never heard of the plan of salvation by a Redeemer."

The Western Luminary, then published in Lexington, Ky., a religious paper, said:—

"We proclaim it abroad to the christian world, that heathenism is as real in the slave States as it is in the South Sea Islands, and that our negroes are as justly objects of attention to the American and other boards of foreign missions, as the Indians of our western wilds. What is it constitutes heathenism? Is it to be destitute of a knowledge of God—of his holy Word—never to have heard scarcely a sentence of it read through life—to know little or nothing of the history, character, instruction, and mission of Jesus Christ—to be almost totally devoid of moral knowledge and feeling, of sentiments of probity, truth, and chastity? If this constitutes heathenism, then are there thousands, millions, of heathen in our beloved land. There is one topic to which we will allude, which will serve to establish the heathenism of this population. We allude to the universal licentiousness which prevails. It may be said emphatically that chastity is no virtue among them—that its violation neither injures female character in their own estimation, or that of their master or mistress. No instruction is ever given—no censure pronounced. We speak not of the world; we speak of christian families generally."

To these we add the testimony of the Rev. James A. Thome, of Kentucky, a converted slaveholder, with whom we had an intimate acquaintance at the time of which we write. He says:—

"Licentiousness. I shall not speak of the far South, whose sons are fast melting away under the unblushing profligacy which prevails. I allude to the slaveholding West. It is well known that the slave-lodgings,—I refer now to village slaves,—are exposed to the entrance of strangers every hour of the night, and that the sleeping apartments of both sexes are common. It is also a fact, that there is no allowed intercourse between the families and servants after the work of the day is over. The family, assembled for the evening, enjoy a conversation elevating and instructive. But the poor slaves are thrust out. No ties of sacred home thrown around them; no moral instruction to compensate for the toils of the day; no intercourse as of man with man; and should one of the younger members of the family, led by curiosity, steal out into the filthy kitchen, the child is speedily called back, thinking itself happy if it escape an angry rebuke. Why is this? The dread of moral contamination. Most excellent reason; but it reveals a horrid picture. The slaves, cut off from all community of feeling with their master, roam over the village streets, shocking the ear with their vulgar jestings and voluptuous songs, or opening their kitchens to the reception of the neighboring blacks, they pass the evening in gambling, dancing, drinking, and the most obscene conversation, kept up until the night is far spent, then crown the scene with indiscriminate debauchery. Where do these things occur? In the kitchens of church members and elders!"

This testimony strips away the curtains and opens the naked heart of the South to full view. And let it be observed, that this is not done by Northern men, who are supposed to be both ignorant and prejudiced; but the revelation is made by the slaveholders themselves.

Behold the picture! It was as truly drawn as ever was a photograph by the light of the sun.

But it will be asked, if thirty-four years may not have changed the condition of the South, in these respects, for the better? We wish it were possible to answer in the affirmative; but all the facts in the case go to show that there has been no improvement, but things have, rather, been growing worse!

Behold the field! Who can contemplate it without the deepest emotions? Whose heart is not stirred? Who among the people of God is not in heaviness and sorrow for our suffering and degraded countrymen? Will it be any wonder that the attention of Adventists should be called to this field; and that they should put forth some effort to prepare from among them a people for the Lord, at his coming?

Bro. Herron has called our attention to the subject, in some very able and interesting articles, which we have noted; and he has suggested that something be done at Wilbraham in August. . . .

A plan has been proposed by Bro. H. for the formation of two Missionary Associations; one East, and the other West; with auxiliaries to these in all the churches. This will be well; for both can work to good advantage.

But we are all ready for the work. The Western Association was organized with a missionary department. And all we have to do is to raise means and go to work. We have commenced the distribution of tracts, and are ready to send missionaries as soon as we have the means to do so. . . .

Remember! The time is short, and what we do must be done quickly.—Voice of the West.

For the World's Crisis.

THE FLOCK OF GOD.

"Feed the flock of God that is among you, taking the oversight thereof not of constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind. Neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock; and when the Chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive the crown of glory that fadeth not away."

I. The flock of God is precious in his sight. God careth for them. They are the purchase of the blood of his Son. They are all that will be left of all the race of man that have ever lived. All the rest of men are but the chaff, to be burned up at the last day. Then what an exalted office are God's ministers called to fill. Angels may well desire to fill such a station.

THE DUTY OF THE ELDERS.

1. Feed God's flock. This is the especial charge given to Peter after he was reclaimed. John 21: 15–17. They are to be fed with food congenial to their nature, and the word of the Lord will only meet the case, as they are begotten by the word, and by the truth are they to be sanctified. Then, of course, nothing but the living word can place and keep the flock in a healthy, growing condition. Like begets like. Like priest, like people. Brethren, as we sow, so shall we reap.

2. We are to do it willingly, and not of constraint, but of a ready mind; not for gain of a worldly nature; yet the minister must live, and if he gives himself wholly to the work, the church must see to it that he is fed. "But bread or no bread," says the man taught of God, "woe is me if I preach not the gospel." Preaching the gospel is his element.

II. There are many discouragements in the way.

1. The flock may get worldly, and they may feel that we ought to be governed by human policy for the sake of gaining some outsiders, and thus clip the word. "But woe is me if I preach not the gospel," is the feeling still of the God-fearing man. You may be forsaken by friends, and set aside by others whom you thought would have plucked out their eyes and given them unto you. You may say, "If it had been an enemy, I could have borne it." Under this you may be tempted to sink into despondency. Remember Christ said, "Feed my sheep," and endeavor to do it, and leave the consequences with God, and he will feed you; if one refuses to do so, he will let some others have the blessing in doing it.

2. So little success, and so many rebuffs. So it was with God's dear ones of old, and it will grow worse and worse as we approach the end. Satan has almost gotten the upper hand. Sin will increase, and the love of many will wax cold.

III. The encouragement is great.

1. If we overcome and endure to the end, when the Lord, the Chief Shepherd, appeareth, a crown which is due to those that conquer will be given you. Jesus will not forget you, although men may pass you by.

2. It is a crown of glory—such glory as earthly conquerors never enjoyed, or man ever saw. Shame and want may be yours now, but there is bliss enough ahead.

3. This glory is fadeless. The most that we have put our hands to here has ended in grief; but once in glory, tears shall be known no more. Then labor on a little while longer; although the way be rough, it will soon be over; then glory forevermore. Amen.

MATTHEW BATCHELOR.

For the World's Crisis.

CONSECRATION.

O thou who art the true and living God, help me to bring all the tithes into the storehouse, and help me to lay all on the altar that sanctifieth the gift. In me, that is in my flesh, dwelleth no good thing. The gift I offer is all I have, all I am, all I ever may have, all I ever can be. From henceforth I am nothing—CHRIST is all. For his dear sake accept the offering, unworthy as it is. I commit myself to thee; do thou direct my steps. I do hunger and thirst after righteousness, and claim the blessed promise that such "shall be filled." O for Jesus' sake let the Holy Spirit take full possession of me, and let me be indeed henceforth and for ever a living temple of God. All results, all consequences now must rest with thee.

I have nothing, I am nothing, and can do nothing. Thou hast all things, and canst do all things. All praise and glory is thine for ever. I am poor in spirit, and of a broken and contrite heart. My desires are all before thee. My prayer is that thou wouldst make me perfect in love, perfect in obedience, and fill me with all the fruits of the Spirit, and all the fulness of God. "For thine is the kingdom, and the power, and the glory, for ever." Amen. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Sutton, Mass.

Correspondence.

From Sr. A. E. Smith.

Bro. Grant:—As the Crisis seems to be the paper in which our sisters all look to hear from each other, with your permission I would like to say a few words in regard to the last Convention. Though it was called by a colored woman, yet there were more white than colored there, fifteen to one. There were four sermons a day, three in the grove, one at 10 A. M., one at 2 P. M., one at 5; also one at eight o'clock in the church. The preaching was most excellent,—not one poor one all the week. It was a pretty sight to see the old colored women from Philadelphia with their Quaker caps, plain three-cornered white handkerchiefs, and drab gowns, all sitting in a row on the stand. Some of them were very old. One of them had been a licensed preacher over thirty years. She was licensed by the pastor of her church. So it seems that in those days women had license to preach. As old as she was, she could preach with that power and energy that would leave some of our young folks all in the shade.

The first four days, the congregations were small, especially in the mornings, as it was right in harvest time; but the Spirit got amongst the people, and they left their work and came to the meetings. Several begged of us, with tears in their eyes, not to close the meetings. On Sabbath they came from twenty miles around the country, and paid excellent attention. Every body seemed to like the preaching. One man said he had not heard such preaching for fifteen years. Another said he had not heard the like since '43. There are many things I might say, but I forbear.

The second Sunday we were there, they told me the churches were all empty, as the people were all in the grove. There were a good many white families who brought extra provision, so that the missionary ladies should have plenty to eat. They had not learned the secret that the less we eat, the better we can labor. The invitations came from every direction for us to dinner and to tea. We did not wish any to feel hurt, so we declined, by sending them word that we could not eat so much. We were laboring in spiritual things. It seemed they all wished to make us comfortable.

Praise the Lord, he can raise up friends, even among strangers. I am satisfied that this meeting will never be forgotten. Seed was sown there which will bring forth fruit thirty, sixty, and a hundred fold. The meeting was a success in every way. All opposition was removed, and the door opened to bring in the truth. The morning I left, there were three white churches offered me, as soon as I could make it convenient, to come and preach on the signs of the times in which we are living. One was the M. E. church, one the Wesleyan Methodist, and the Free Methodist church. I would say just here, I believe that it is my calling to take the truth into the church. Now if I had about twenty good preaching women, that have discretion, so as not to tear the churches to pieces where they first go, till the people get the light, and then lead them step by step into the whole truth, I could find places for them all. I find the door is opening in every direction for the truth, and I have more than I can attend to. But the trouble is in our Advent ranks, every one has their own hobby to ride, and church members don't understand them, and the people become disgusted, and will not listen, even to the truth, from such persons.

But a word about the Poultney Convention. I have heard from many of our sisters, who wished to know more about it. I would say to all such, I have had five hundred of the minutes struck off, and all can have a copy at ten cents each.

Another word to the sisters. I have had several invitations to hold our next convention. One from Indiana, one from Ohio, one from Wisconsin, and one from Philadelphia, Pa. Now, sisters, all of you be ready to say where it shall be held, when you come to Wilbraham camp.

Another word. If there is a good representation at this meeting, will it not be wisdom to do all our business then, and then adjourn to the May session, on account of our sisters being so scattered? Sisters, think over these things, and let me know. Now, sisters, the door is open, and I want to see if you are going to take hold. In union is strength. Let us see how strong we are. Let us make one grand rally at Wilbraham, because there we can rest and hear good preaching from our brethren. I heard there were some who did not come to the convention for fear they would have to preach. Now you can have no excuse on that ground, for you can sit still and hear three sermons a day.

Now, sisters, I expect a good time at this meeting. Let us pray at 12 o'clock every day, especially for this meeting. Your sister in the vineyard of the Lord,

Anna E. Smith.

From Bro. H. M. Bryant.

Bro. Grant:—I had the Crisis stopped nearly a year ago because I didn't feel able to take and pay for two papers. I preferred the Herald of Life, sincerely believing the views it advanced to be truth. I searched the Scriptures daily to see if these things [i. e., the non-resurrection of the wicked] were so. I thought the word so taught and so I believed, expecting to see the work demonstrated by the Spirit and power which always attend the truth. But my expectations have never been realized, and I have watched in vain for an agreement of the Spirit with what I understood to be the word, and as far as my observation extends I know of no good resulting from the doctrine. I have never known an instance where a sinner has been converted, or a backslider reclaimed, and those that I have been intimately connected with are made no better by believing it. I speak of things I do know, having had a personal experience in the matter. I do not say this, however, in disparagement of the honest children who believe.

I see the importance of walking more closely, praying more earnestly and testing the spirits more carefully. Your late discussion opened my eyes somewhat. The critical examination of Dan. 12: 2, John 5: 29, and Acts 24: 15, is proof that I dare not gainsay, and I sincerely hope others may have the scales taken from their eyes, sleep no longer, trim their lamps, get some oil in their vessels, walk out on the truth due this generation, and help swell the glad cry, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh!"

As I have held meetings in several places, and advocated the above doctrine, I wish to make my confession as broad as the offence. I shall continue to visit the highways and hedges, as the Lord may open the way; for the house must be filled. H. M. Bryant.

Northwood Narrows, N. H.

Obituaries.

Stanwood. Died in Lake Village, N. H., May 27th, 1865, Sr. Belinda, wife of Bro. A. D. Stanwood, aged thirty-four years.

She died in the blessed hope of having a part in the first resurrection. Bro. H. Bundy attended the funeral, and spoke words of comfort from John 11: 25.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool July 15th, Queenstown 16th.

It was finally settled that the Great Eastern would leave the Nore early on the 15th and Valentia about the 19th.

Ab Del Kader has had an interview with Napoleon and rumor again connects him with the future government of Algeria.

Liverpool July 20th, Queenstown 21st.

The steamship Great Eastern arrived off Valentia Bay on the morning of the 19th, having towed from Falmouth the steamer Caroline with the shore end of the cable.

The cholera in Egypt is rapidly decreasing.

A Valentia telegram of July 19 says: "The Great Eastern and Caroline have arrived off here, all well. The former goes to Banting to-day, while the latter is laying the shore end of the cable, which will be accomplished on the 21st or 22d, if the weather moderates. The war steamers Terrible and Sphinx are also here."

A dispatch relative to the recognition of Italy by Spain left Madrid on the 15th, and is said to contain no conditions or restrictions of an essential character.

A Progressist meeting was soon to be held at Madrid to determine the course to be pursued at the next election.

An earthquake occurred on the 18th in Catania, district of Giarrel, Italy. Several lives were lost and great damage done to property.

Advices from Alexandria, Egypt, to the 14th, show a gratifying daily diminution of cases of cholera. At Cairo there was also a decrease, although the mortality continued high. There were 156 deaths on the 14th.

In Constantinople strict sanitary measures have been adopted against the cholera.

The Persian Gulf cable has been repaired, and telegraph communication is re-established.

The cholera has broken out in the workhouse at Birmingham, and a large number of paupers are said to have been attacked.

DOMESTIC.

New York, July 20. Advices from Hayti represent that the rebels were extremely bitter against President Geffrard, and say they will be buried in the ruins of the town before they will submit to his rule.

The Herald's Texas correspondent says the national troops reached their destination along the Rio Grande on the 12th. The line of posts extends from the mouth of the river above Brownsville. The cavalry columns under Merritt and Custar are expected to reach Texas early in August. The rebel merchants at Brownsville have all left after making immense fortunes in cotton speculations.

The battery guns sold to the Imperialists by the rebels were returned to the United States on the 10th by order of Maximilian.

Rebel paroled soldiers keep the people of the interior in constant terror by their depredations.

Twelve hundred French troops had landed at Tampico, and it was expected that 12,000 were coming.

New York, July 25. A note from Mr. Cyrus W. Field, dated London, July 11th, says: "I leave on Thursday, the 13th inst., and the Great Eastern will sail from the Nore on Saturday, the 15th. We expect to leave Valentia about the 19th and to arrive at Heart's Content during the first week in August. Everything is going on to our entire satisfaction."

New York, July 24. The Herald's Washington dispatch says the elections in Virginia have gone so strongly in favor of secessionists that even guerilla Mosby is encouraged to become a candidate for Congress.

The Herald's correspondence says Mason and the other rebel agents to Europe have recrossed the Atlantic and are now residing in Canada.

San Francisco, July 20. The whaling barque Milo has arrived in twenty-eight days from the Arctic with the crews of several whalers destroyed by the pirate Shenandoah last month. The whalers Edward Casey, Hector, Abigail, Euphrates, William Thompson, Sophia Thornton, Jireh Swift and the Swan were captured and most of them burned.

The Milo was bonded for the purpose of taking off the crews. The Shenandoah was continuing her wholesale destruction of whalers, and would probably soon destroy another fleet, numbering sixty vessels. Her commander was informed of Lee's surrender and of the collapse of the rebellion, but did not believe it. He believed in Mr. Lincoln's assassination, for he expected it. The Shenandoah coaled last at Melbourne. She was manned by English and Irish sailors. Some of the captured whalemen joined her.

New York, July 31. The Herald's Toronto correspondence says the feeling of the Canadians in favor of annexation to this country is gradually gaining and strengthening, and it is said that unless the Provincial Parliament does something at the next session to improve business the annexation storm will break out with fury.

The Herald's Washington dispatch says since Mr. Chase has returned from the South his friends predict, from his observations of the society there, that the blacks are destined to be the ruling race throughout the late slaveholding States.

Concord, N. H., July 27. There was great excitement here in Concord until a late hour last night, caused by riotous demonstrations on the part of returned soldiers, who came very near clearing out the well-known clothing-house under the Eagle Hotel.

The proprietor accused one of the soldiers of stealing a suit of clothes, which led to a general dispute, and the returned veterans were with difficulty restrained from committing serious depredations. Late in the evening two hundred soldiers went to the jail on Washington Street and demanded the release of two of their number there confined on criminal charges. The rioters, after breaking in some of the windows, scattered to Main Street to collect their guns, and were met by a company of soldiers from Hancock's corps who were marching to the jail with loaded muskets and bayonets.

This strong force intimidated the veterans, who scattered in different directions, but with fierce threats to demolish the jail before morning. Throughout the night one company of Hancock's corps was under arms at the jail and another company rendezvoused at the Provost Marshal's office, while two companies of Veteran Reserves were on duty at the military camp, but happily their services were not required. A strong guard will still be kept in view of further disturbance.

Mission Chapel Burnt.—The Freedmen's Mission Chapel and Schoolhouse, used by the Missionaries of the American Millennial Association, at Edgefield, Tenn., was burnt by incendiaries on the night of the 12th inst. Threats had been previously given to burn it, unless they desisted from their work of teaching the colored people; and upon the departure of the military authorities, the threats were carried into execution. They have applied to the authorities in Nashville for protection from further damage or injury, and will doubtless receive it. This is a serious loss to the Mission, but the zealous and devoted missionaries are not discouraged. Brn. Leslie and Childs have started a subscription among the colored people for the purpose of building another, hoping to raise six or seven hundred dollars from them alone, and they appeal to the friends of the Mission for help to make up the deficiency. W. B. H.

Riot in Chicago.—The Chicago Tribune of Saturday says that a riot took place in the northern division of that city on Friday morning, which threatened the peace and safety of the whole city, and furnished another example of the impropriety of permitting returned soldiers to carry their arms with them after being mustered out of the service, when, of course, their officers lose all control of them.

It appears that a party of the 9th Iowa Infantry were passing through the city on their way to Davenport to be paid off and dismissed, when some of them went into the saloon of Henry Mehring and demanded liquor. This was furnished them, and they then broke his tumblers and glasses, refused to pay, and finally assaulted him. Mehring lifted a piece of wood and knocked one or two down, when the party set upon him and beat him badly. One of them drew a pistol and fired it, but shot a comrade through the head, killing him instantly. Mehring escaped, and the drunken and excited soldiers went in search of him. Foiled in finding him they fired into his apartments, gutted his saloon and committed all the destruction that men insane from the use of liquor could think of. An attempt to fire Mehring's house was frustrated. The police were assaulted and threatened with the bayonet. The soldiers took possession of the jail, in which they sought to find Mehring to lynch him, threatening to hang the Captain of the police, and behaved themselves like very fiends. Meanwhile all law was set at defiance, and the city was likely to be given over to the mercy of these armed drunkards and savages, when one of their officers came up and told them that the train was ready to start, and if they didn't go instantly they would be left behind. The infuriated crew then left. It is believed that many of them can be identified, and if so their punishment will be certain. An examination of the case was proceeding on Saturday.

The Late Flood in Minnesota.—The Ontonagon Miner says the saddest incident of the disasters occasioned by the recent flood is the drowning of five children in one family, and the almost superhuman efforts of the mother to save them. The father, Bethuel Draper, living on the west side of the Ontonagon, near the crossing of the Wisconsin road, was out on the L'Anse railroad survey, and his two eldest children were away; the mother, an Indian woman, and her five youngest children being at home, and were asleep when the water came into their shanty. One of the children, it is said, was drowned before the terrified mother could get them out, but she lashed its body and three of the others on her back and to her sides, and took the fifth in her arms, and struck out for a tree near by, to which she managed to tie the corpse, in the vain hope of preserving it for burial, but the tree soon gave way and swept down the resistless torrent, and in her maternal efforts to save the rest by swimming to a second place of safety the frantic mother felt the child in her bosom expire and saw the others swept under by the foaming billows and buried from her sight forever. The mother climbed a small tree, where she remained over two days for the river to subside, and on Saturday reached the Forest Landing, almost exhausted with cold and hunger.

Slavery in Mexico.—News from Mexico states that Maximilian has made a contract with a foreign speculator for the introduction into Mexico of several thousands of negroes, who are to be kept in slavery; that they will be obliged to work during ten years for the benefit of their masters, and made to renounce the right of complaint before the magistrates in case they may be ill-treated or abused. Their temporary bondage can be renewed, and they can be transferred by sale without consulting them. It is doubtful that Maximilian will dare to outrage the public sentiment of this continent and of the world by such an arrangement. When Spain is talking of emancipating her slaves, it will not do for Mexico to inaugurate a system of bondage.—Boston Journal.

The Population of Utah.—The recent visit of Speaker Colfax and party to the Mormon world has made the public familiar with many facts concerning the condition and progress of that people. A writer from Salt Lake City says:

"Now a population of 100,000 is claimed for Utah and 20,000 for this city. Perhaps the last figures are too large, but already this is the most populous, as it is the most beautiful, town between St. Louis and San Francisco. During the year ending June 1st, Ben. Holladay's Overland Express took $1,612,979.67 in gold dust hence to the States—though only a small fraction of the gold goes in by express. Last year a single merchant sold upward of $1,000,000 worth of goods, and paid for freight alone from the Missouri River over $150,000."

To Measure Corn on the Cob.—A correspondent of the Canada Farmer says: "To estimate the quantity of shelled corn on the cobs in any given space, level them, and measure the length, breadth and depth; then multiply these dimensions together, and the product by four. Cut off the last figure, and you will have the number of bushels of shelled corn, and the decimal of a bushel. If you desire to know the number of bushels of ears, multiply by eight instead of four."

Oil Cloths.—Oil Cloths may be cleaned with a mixture of magnesia, only milk-warm, followed by warm water in the same manner that carpets are cleaned. They should be rubbed with a dry flannel till nearly dried, then again wet over with a sponge dipped in milk, and immediately dried and rubbed with a flannel till the polish is restored. Very hot water should never be used in cleaning floor-cloths, as it brings off the paint.

Bookbinder's Paste.—Take four ounces of wheat flour and a gill of cold water, beat into a smooth batter, then add another gill of the cold water; stir well, and pour the mixture into a pint of hot water, to which you have previously added quarter of an ounce of alum; stir over a brisk fire until it comes to a boiling point, straining it afterwards if lumpy.

ITEMS.

☞ A fat cattle epidemic has broken out in Woodstock, Canada. A number of cattle and horses died within a week. In hogs it first shows itself by a swelling of the throat, and terminates fatally in about twelve hours. In cows and horses, they are sick only ten or twelve hours, and in every case where they have been attacked the result has been fatal.

☞ There is in Reading, Pa., a sailor, who was struck by lightning on one of the West India Islands, who is lame in one leg, blind in one eye, entirely speechless, and not a hair on his head, arms or any part of his body to be seen—all from the effects of the stroke. He had previously a long and strong beard, which entirely disappeared.

☞ A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, writing July 11, says that in Southern Illinois the wheat is so badly damaged by smut, rust and spot that many of those fields which were the most promising will not be cut at all, and those that will be harvested will not produce near half a crop.

☞ A correspondent of the Chicago Tribune, writing July 11, says that in Southern Illinois the wheat is so badly damaged by smut, rust and spot, that many of those fields which were the most promising will not be cut at all, and those that will be harvested will not produce near half a crop.

☞ There are but four revolutionary pensioners living: Lemuel Cook, born in Connecticut, Sept. 10, 1769; Samuel Downing, born in New York, Nov. 21. 1761; James Barham, birthplace unknown, May, 1764; William Hutchins, born in Maine, 1764.

☞ Hens may be cured of eating their eggs by blowing out the contents of an egg, and filling it with mustard made into a paste. Make a hole in each end and then blow the contents out, and when filled, paste paper over the hole. One taste of the mustard effects a cure.

☞ It is said that eighty plantations in Louisiana have recently been confiscated. These embrace many of the finest sugar estates of the Southern country. Mr. Conway, the government agent, is making arrangements to divide up these estates into forty acre lots for freedmen and poor whites.

☞ Crime is rapidly increasing in Savannah. Robberies and assaults on the person occur at all hours of the day and night, and render life and property insecure. It is thought the military will be obliged to adopt extra preventive measures.

☞ Letters from Americans traveling in Germany state that the fields are parched by drouth, and groups of persons are everywhere seen in which clergymen and people are imploring heaven to refresh the suffering earth with copious rains.

☞ When Abd-el-Kader reached Paris, he was accompanied by three wives, five Arabs in Oriental costume, and a pet bear—the whole forming an exhibition which created quite a ferment among the excitable Frenchmen.

☞ Forty-three miles of the Central Pacific Railroad have been completed from Sacramento to Clipper Gap, an elevation of 1800 feet in the Snowy Mountains. The summit to be overcome is 7000 feet high.

☞ The gap in the Pacific Railroad is now but twenty-five miles wide. As soon as it is completed we will have rail communication with the heart of Kansas. The engineers on the road are now on a strike against a reduction of prices.

☞ The crop of apples around Northampton this year is almost an entire failure. Some orchards will yield hardly a bushel, where many barrels are usually picked.

☞ Robert Brown, aged sixty-five, and a leading citizen of Brooke county, Pa., has been sentenced to Fort Delaware for one year, for rejoicing over Mr. Lincoln's death.

☞ Street cleaning in New York, under the old system, cost about $1,200,000 a year. The new contractors agree to do it for $300,000.

☞ Whitewashed walls which are to be papered should previously be well brushed over with strong vinegar, or the paste will not adhere.

☞ Instead of 10,000 it is between 7,000 and 8,000 Missourians and Texans who are on their way to Mexico. They are organised and armed.

☞ No more five cent postage stamp currency is to be issued.

☞ England imported three hundred million eggs last year, and the number is still increasing.

Notices.

GENERAL CAMPMEETING AT WILBRAHAM, MASS.

Providence permitting, a general campmeeting will commence at Wilbraham, on the old ground upon the hill, Monday, August 21st, and continue one week.

Ample accommodations will be provided for board and horse keeping. Board at 70 cents per day. Single meal,—breakfast or supper,—25 cents; dinner 30 cents. The boarding department is under the charge of the Committee, and any profits accruing from the same will go to the support of the meeting.

Those going from Boston to the campmeeting can take the 4.45 A. M. train at the Boston and Worcester depot, and arrive at the camp-ground at 7.27 A. M., or they can take the 2.30 P. M. express train, and arrive in Worcester at 4 P. M., and then change to an accommodation train, which leaves Worcester at 4.15, and arrives at Wilbraham at 6.23 P. M.

Arrangements have been made with the Eastern R. R. Co., by which those taking the cars from Portsmouth and intermediate places for Boston, paying full fares at the ticket offices, can have free return passes by application to Geo. T. Adams, 167 Hanover street, Boston, or to him on the campground.

On the Conn. R. R. from South Vernon, and intermediate places to Springfield, those going to campmeeting will buy a common ticket, and be sure and ask the Conductor for a return Check from Wilbraham campmeeting. This Check must be endorsed by Geo. T Adams, at the Wilbraham campmeeting. As it is most likely that the R. R. Co. from Bellows Falls to South Vernon will do the same as the Conn. R. R., all who come from Bellows Falls will also please ask the Conductor for a return pass.

On the Western R. R. and also the Worcester, the fare has been reduced one third. Tickets good Aug. 19th to Sept. 1st, to be obtained at the various R. R. ticket offices, on the Western R. R., and at the Westboro', Framingham and Boston offices, on the Worcester R. R. Fare from Boston to Wilbraham and return $3.90. Please remember to call for Campmeeting Tickets at the offices on the Western and Worcester Roads.

The cars leave Springfield for the camp-ground, (distance nine miles), at 7.15 and 11.15 A. M., and 5 P. M.

S. G. Mathewson, Miles Grant, Geo. T. Adams, H. Munger, J. Hemenway, } Committee of Arrangements.

Rhode Island to Wilbraham.

Brethren in Rhode Island who are going to the Wilbraham Campmeeting, can obtain through tickets, (good from Aug. 19th to Sept. 1st,) at a reduction of one-third of the usual fare, by applying at the Providence and Worcester depot, Providence, R. I. Call for Campmeeting tickets.

I. C. Humes, for the Brethren.

Wilbraham via. Rutland, Vt.

I have just seen the Superintendent of the Rutland and Burlington R. R. He gave me authority to advertise that any who wish to attend the campmeeting at Wilbraham, can go over that road from Rutland for one fare there and back.

M. Batchelor.

Meeting of the Advent Christian Association.

The sixth annual meeting of this Society will be held at Wilbraham Grove, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M., Tuesday, Aug. 22, 1865.

A full representation from all churches co-operating with this Society, and a full attendance of preachers thus co-operating, is desirable at this meeting. Questions too important to admit of neglect or indifference on the part of the churches scattered abroad, or of the ministry, will come before this meeting. Does the Constitution require amendment? Shall there be any change in the editorial management of the Crisis? To whom as officers of the Society shall we intrust the funds and various interests of the same for the coming year? These, among many others that will arise, are questions to be decided at this meeting. Let no trifling pecuniary consideration, nor loss of time, prevent a general gathering of the friends of this Association. Each church (i. e. society of believers in Jesus Christ) co-operating, is entitled to one delegate, and one additional delegate for every fifty members above the number of twenty-five members.

Remember ☞ That all delegates sent by churches to the Advent Christian Association must be furnished with written credentials, or forfeit their right to membership.

Also remember ☞ That preachers offering their names as members of this Association must bring a certificate of good character from a christian church, and show that they themselves are co-operating with this Society.

S. G. Mathewson, President,
H. F. Carpenter, Clerk.

Campmeeting at Wallingford, Conn.

A campmeeting, to commence Aug. 14th, and continue over the following Sunday, will be held at Wallingford North Farms, near the Chapel, in a pleasant, convenient grove, with a good spring of water, about two and a half miles from Wallingford Depot, on the N. H., Hartford and Springfield R. R., where teams will be in readiness to convey people to the ground at (not to exceed) 25 cts. each.

Good board and horsekeeping will be provided at reasonable rates, under the supervision of the committee, who will spare no pains to make this meeting all the brethren and sisters can wish, so far as good order, good preaching, and good attention to their wants and convenience is concerned. We hope to see a general gathering of all in this region who can come in the Lord's name, and do his work, seeking his glory and the salvation of sinners.

Committee of Arrangements, Wm. A. Durand, Cheshire. Dea. D. Platt, Wallingford. H. A. Cook, " Wm. Bartholomew, " H. H. Mix. "

A Call to All.

Dear brethren and sisters, from far and from near,
I ask your attention, and pray you give ear.
To Wallingford Campmeeting you all I invite;
Come, strong in the Lord and the power of his might;
With tents and provisions, your friends and your sword,
And hearts full of prayer, come to work for the Lord.
The harvest is ripening, and laborers are few,
The storm-cloud is gathering, 't will soon burst in view.
Come work in this vineyard while yet it is day,
Come over and help us, and plead no delay.
Leave business and pleasures and dogmas behind,
And work to save sinners with one heart and mind.
'Tis a beautiful grove, where the birds love to sing,
'Neath whose shadows there bubbles a pure crystal spring.
God grant that its tabernacles may be so blest,
That, like the disciples, you'll there choose to rest.
Brethren Munger, Boutell, and Albion Ross,
And other good preachers who stand by the cross,
We expect there to comfort and teach us the word,
To encourage and warn in the name of the Lord,
And to rouse unprepared ones for swift coming doom.
Then come to this meeting,—again I say, come!
And to those whose surroundings shall keep them away,
I've this favor to ask,—for it fervently pray,
That God's blessing may rest on that dear little band;
And remember your sister, Mrs. M. L. Durand.

Cheshire, Conn.

General Western Campmeeting.

This meeting will commence Monday, Sept. 4th, at Amboy, Ill., and continue over the following Lord's day. Our friends will remember how very interesting our meeting was last year, and what an impulse for good was given to the infant cause in the West. We are yet weak and few, and have need of all the means that can be employed to build us up, and enlarge our sphere of usefulness. The campmeeting is one of the most efficient means of promulgating the truth, and building up the general interests of religion among us. Let all who can arrange be there. Let every one encourage his neighbor by a good example of sacrifice and consecration. Elds. Wm. C. Thurman, C. B Turner, and Hiram Munger from the East, and Eld. D. R. and Mrs. M. S. Mansfield, Eld. Wm. Sheldon, and many others of our most interesting speakers from the West, are expected to be present. In view of the increase of light and knowledge upon the time of the Lord's advent, we should act with great earnestness and zeal to prepare for the coming of the kingdom of God.

D. S. Clark, E. Royce, D. W. Knight, Wm. McCullock, E. K. Burrington, J. V. Himes, } Committee.

Notice.

There is to be (D. V.) a protracted meeting in Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa., commencing Aug. 8th, 1865, and continuing over the next Lord's day. Brn. C. B. Turner and J. Wendell will be present to preach, and it is hoped others. Also Bro. H. L. Hastings, with his tent.

Let the saints around come up to the meeting with warm hearts, having hope that maketh not ashamed, because the love of God is shed abroad in them by the Holy Spirit. And let us seek to honor the Lord in our orderly, fervent worship, coupled with earnest love both to saints and sinners. Our Lord cometh soon. Let us be about our work. Jos. D. Brown.

Notice.

The Lord willing, we will hold a meeting at Findley's Lake, Chaut Co., N. Y., August 11th, in the evening. Also on Ripley Hill, near Bro. James Thorp's, Saturday and Sunday, 12th and 13th, as Bro. Thorp may appoint, and at the Sherwood schoolhouse, near Union Mills, the 14th, in the evening. Father and Mother Ongley will be with me, and assist in preaching the word.

John T. Ongley.

Conference.

Our Eastern Maine Conference will be held in the town of Hermon, to commence Friday, August 18th, at 10 o'clock A. M., and continue over the Sabbath. Friends wishing to attend the meeting will call on Bros. Richard Dore and John Brackett for directions relative to entertainment. By order of the committee, M. Young, Clerk.

Conference.

There will be a Second Advent Conference at Northwood Narrows, N. H., commencing Wednesday, Aug. 16th, to hold over the following Sunday. All, both saint and sinner, are invited to attend.

S. W. Bishop.
D. S. Holt.

Lawrence, Mass.

Preaching brethren who may desire to preach to the church in Lawrence, Mass., will please correspond with the undersigned, before putting their appointment in the Crisis. The pulpit is already engaged till after the Alton Bay Campmeeting.

G. H. Churchill.

Campmeeting Notice.

There will be a campmeeting in New Preston, Ct., commencing Monday, Sept. 4th, and hold over the Sabbath. Particulars hereafter. In behalf of the committee of arrangements. A. Ross.

Campmeeting in Wallingford.

There will be a campmeeting on Wallingford Farms, Ct., commencing August 14th, and continuing over the following Sunday. Particulars hereafter. B. Hitchcock.

Notice.

Ministering brethren who may wish to come to Biddeford, Me., to preach, will correspond with J. C. Libby or A. P. Hyde, that appointments may not conflict.

H. L. HASTINGS,
Scriptural Tract Repository, 19 Lindall Street, Boston, Mass.
Opposite the Post Office.

To All Concerned.—Removal.

I have removed my business to a large and commodious office, 19 Lindall St., directly in the rear of the Boston Post Office, where I have a good assortment of tracts, new and old, Bible Students' Libraries, pamphlets, Sunday school books, etc., etc. Several new tracts are ready for the press, and it is hoped that other publications will follow in quick succession. All letters, orders and remittances designed for me, whether for Social Hymns, "Children's Hymns, Lyres, Bibles, Libraries, Concordances, Hebrew, Greek, or English, or any other books published by the Tract Societies or S. S. Unions, or others, in this country or England, which are of use to Bible students, should be directed to H. L. Hastings, Scriptural Tract Repository, No. 19 Lindall St., Boston, Mass.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

Miles Grant....................Sunday, Aug. 6th

East Boston.

C. Goodrich....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
B. S. Emery....................Sunday, Aug. 20th

Haverhill, Mass..........Saturday evening, Aug. 12th and over the following Lord's day.
Miles Grant.

Concord, N. H....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
Westboro, Mass..........Thursday evening, Aug. 10th
H. F. Carpenter.

Rutland, Vt..........Sundays, Aug. 6th and 20th
M. Bachelor.

Rutland, Vt....................Sunday, Aug. 13th
Poultney, Vt....................Sunday, Aug. 20th
Benj. S. Batchelor.

New Britain Ct....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
R. Williams.

Warner, N. H., (Schoodoc school-house)......Sabbath, Aug. 6th.
Manchester, N. H..........Sabbath, Aug. 20th
T. M. Preble.

Worcestar, Mass....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
Geo. A. Streeter.

New York, (Bro. Samuel Curry's congregation, 24th Street)....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
Rocky Brook, R. I....................Sunday, Aug. 13th
J. Blain.

South Ashburnham, Mass., Wednesday eve., Aug. 16th
Lunenburg....................Sunday, Aug. 20th
Worcester..........Thursday evening, Aug. 22d
S. C. Hancock.

Bradford, N. H..........Sunday, Aug. 6th and 13th
Joseph W. White.

North Adams, Mass....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
Savoy....................Sunday, Aug. 13th
A. Mussey.

On the summit of Kearsarge Mountain..........Aug. 6th Love feast 9 A. M.
Canaan Street, (where Bro. Jones may appoint), Aug. 13th. Love feast 9 A. M. John G. Hook.

Springfield, Mass., (Gunn's Block, corner of State and Walnut Street)..........Sunday, Aug. 6th
H. Pratt.

Tent meetings, Edinboro, Erie Co., Pa..........Aug. 8th
Albion, or Barre, N. Y..........Aug. 16th and continue over the next Lord's day.
H. L. Hastings.

Danielsonville, Ct....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
Am at liberty the next Sabbath to preach as the way opens. Address me at Danielsonville, Ct.
H. K. Flagg.

Frankfort Mills, Me....................Aug. 13th
Hermon Conference the week following.
No Name.

Meredith, N. H., (Pottle meeting-house), Sunday, Aug. 6th.
Concord, N. H....................Sunday, Aug. 13th
Holden, Mass....................Sunday, Aug. 20th
A. Simpson.

Charlemont, (A. Cudworth's)..........Aug. 6th
A. McCulloch.

Exeter, N. H....................Aug. 6th
Portsmouth, N. H....................Aug. 13th
J. K. Bellows.

Bristol, Ct.

Ira Morgan....................Sunday, Aug. 13th

Benedict school-house, Erie Co., N. Y., at 10½ A. M., and at the Kinny school-house 4 P. M., Sundays, Aug. 13th and Sept. 3d. Kinny school-house is three miles west of Benedict, in Royalton, Niagara Co., N. Y.
Darien, (as brethren may arrange). Sunday, Aug. 6th
C. F. Sweet.

Brewer, Me....................Sunday, Aug. 9th in company with Bro. I. K. Lombard.
Portland, Me....................Aug. 11th
Biddeford, Me....................Sunday, Aug. 13th
Dover, N. H....................Aug. 16th
Exeter....................Aug. 17th
Lawrence....................Aug. 18th
and over the following Lord's day.
From there to Wilbraham campmeeting.
If these appointments should conflict with any, please give me notice at my place in Corinna, or at Biddeford.
Israel Damman.

West Deerfield, N. H....................Aug. 6th
J. Knowles.

Lee, N. H..........July 30th and Aug. 6th
B. S. Emery.

Branch Mills, China, Me....................Aug. 6th
L. L. Howard.

Great Falls, N. H....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
Rochester, (Brick school-house, McDuffee's district), Sunday, Aug. 13th. J. Pinkham.

Springfield, (Gunn's Hall, State Street,)..........Aug. 13th
P. S. Butler.

Northwood Narrows, N. H..........Lord's day, Aug. 13th
Loudon Ridge, N. H..........Lord's day, Aug. 20th
B. P. Manning.

Woodstock, N. H..........Saturday evening, Aug. 5th at 6 P. M., and Sunday, Aug. 6th.
J. A. Cleaveland.

New York (Cooper Institute)..........Sunday, Aug. 6th
Springfield, (Barnes' Hall)..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
Westboro, Mass....................Sunday, Sept. 3d
Dr. A. Decker.

Dover, N. H., (in the old Court House), every Sabbath until further notice. T. M. Latham.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine Ground), every two weeks until further notice. S. S. Mooney.

Portsmouth, N. H....................Aug. 6th
Worcester, Mass..........Aug. 13th and 20th
J. Couch.

Rome, Me..........Aug. 5th and 16th
H. B. Sevey.

Cheshire Street, Ct....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
Wallingford Farms..........Tuesday evening, Aug. 8th
Yalesville, Ct..........Thursday evening, Aug. 10th
Plymouth Hollow..........Friday evening, Aug. 11th
Northfield, (where Bro. Humphreville may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 13th. L. Boutell.

Westboro, Mass..........Aug. 6th and 13th
A. W. Sibley.

Lovely Street....................August 6th
H. Rockwell.

Kennebunkport, Me....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
Benj. P. Manning.

Biddeford, Me.

R. R. York....................Aug. 6th

Manchester....................Sunday, August 6th
Nelson Hartshorn.

South Atkinson....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
Sebec, Me., (school-house near Bro. Joshua Livermore's) Sunday, Aug. 13th. Thomas Smith.

Pearsonfield, (where Bro. Moulton may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 6th.
West Deerfield....................Sunday, Aug. 13th
New Durham Ridge....................Sunday, Aug. 20th
J. G. Smith.

Yalesville, Ct....................Sunday, Aug. 6th
O. D. Woodruff.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

S. A. Kidder—The postage on your 21 copies of the Pilgrim will be 12 cents per quarter, payable in advance at your office. The subscription price does not include postage.

J. N. Snyder—Have not.
J. Blain—Did not reach us.
C. A. Hastings—67 cents.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 513. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, (if any), charge four cents; for every week since No. 468, if less than 26 weeks, five cents; if over 26 weeks, six cents a week (or $3.12 for the year.) From the sum deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1 00 each—S Cooper 538, L Barber 533, J Small 533, J White 492, D Libby 478, R Valentine 531, M Cumiskey 563, J K Cobb 515, J B Johnson 523, M A Baker 540, J Richards 492.

$1.25 each—C Murray 537, O B Crandall 530, W H Wildey 504, E P Snow 540, M Mcgquire 520, L Jackman 536, E Blaisdell 533, H M Bryant 539, E I McDole 490, A P Bradley 537, T M Redhead 538, M Breed 541, W. C. Clark 532, A. D. Stanwood 553, J. A. Cole 538, S Pike 578, H Sunderland 539, T P Williams 538, M Patterson 538, J A Hanson 536, C P Johnson 532, H Russell 521, L D Cook 538, A Wynans 508, J E Smith 535, F D Andrew 539, M Vaughn 535, J. H. Walters 538, J. H. Vanderberg 538, J De Boer 538, B H Van Spanckeren 538, J H H Van Spanckeren 537.

$2.00 each—J Sarle 525, A Herrick 530, C T Whitney 563, J R Colbath 549, A M Alvord 531, J D C Wheeler 512, M L Blodgett 515, W Payne 530, G. L. Raymond 536, R Shaw 509.

$2.50 each—H Young 547, R Addison 593, C Barnes 570, N. J. Streeter 548, L. Chamberlin what P. O.? H Beach 574, M A Davis 565, S A Peters 565, A H Saltmarsh 550, H H Davis 564, M Young 559, W H Ordway 554, N Sleeper 551, M. Terry 529, J. Keyes 563, A. W. Fisk 521, M C Damman 564, M Allen 529, P Bogardus 551, E Tripp 544, D T Mores 570, J G Bush 604.

$3.00 each—M J Pease 518, J Marden 507, J K Smith 503, T Caswell 557, E Stetson 497, A H Liswell 562, A Russ 520.

$5.00 each—S. W. Sargent 532, B. Taylor 488, D. W. Griffin 573, C H Wyman 521, G E Brown 520, H Griswell 509.

Various sums.—G F Chapman $1 50, 494; J C Townsend 45c, 513; J E Clark 50c, 522; L Chamberlin $1.50, 514; A Devereux $1.15, 536; A Stillman $2.25, 524; E Blood $1.50, 530; J Wadsworth $2.25, 514; J N Snyder 50c, 513; E Squires $4.00, 556; J A Sidell 75c, 515; N Pease 62c, 517; N Sagendoph 40c, 541; E Bachelder 50c, 522.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

N Stedman 50c, T. Apthorp 50c, J A Norton 25c, J Small $1.00, L. Jackman 60c, J. W. Thomas 30c, H. Rockwell 85c, J Dent $13.50, J G Bush 20c, E Bachelder 20c, A B Tanner 50c, S F Small $2.08, G F Locke 88c, A Devereux $1.85, T Smith $1.00, J Keyes 25c, D W Fuller 50c, T E Day 60c.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J. Lyle, A. Mussey, B. Perham, D Campbell, M. G. S, Geo. A. Streeter, I. A. Thayer.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The Emphatic Diaglott: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library; with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

Christian Baptism: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid; $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

Rahab the Harlot. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

Why the Shoe Pinches. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

Dictionary of the Holy Bible, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

The Scriptural Question Book. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

Canon of the Holy Scriptures examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

The Great Symbolic Chart of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

Glad Tidings; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts.; postage, 2 cts.

Fables of Infidelity and Facts of Faith. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.00.

The taking of Human Life incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

Death not Life; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 2 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

Glad Voices; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty-five or less.

The Mission of Suffering. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 5c, postage 2c.

Thurman's Bible Chronology, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

Muller's Life of Trust. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

ENGLISH BIBLES.

Sent by mail, postpaid, at the following prices:—

Diamond,	morocco, gilt, marginal references,		$1.75
"	roan,		1.10
"	roan,	" brass rims and clasps,	1.70
"	calf, colored edges, marg, ref.,		1.35
Pearl,	morocco, gilt, reference between verses,		2.40
"	morocco,	" circuit bind., marg. ref.,	3.20
"	roan,	" reference between verses,	1.75
"	roan,	" rims and clasps, marg. ref.,	2.00
Nonpareil,	morocco, gilt, circuit bind., marg. ref.,		3.80
"	roan,	" ref. between verses,	2.00
Minion,	morocco, gilt, without references,		2.40
"	roan,	" without references,	1.90
"	roan,	" ref. between verses,	2.50
"	calf, marbled edges, without ref.,		2.15

Address all orders, with the money, to
MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to
MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jas. T. Curry. "Do the Scriptures teach the Resurrection of the Wicked?" [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. "Do the Scriptures teach the eternal conscious suffering of the Wicked?" [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton, "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 3 cents single, [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments.

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; an exposition of Matthew 10: 28, Genesis 35: 18, &c.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture, of which only a single word is remembered, [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England, [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, embracing the Scripture argument against fighting, and the testimonies of the Primitive Church. By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. By M. Hall. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 18th chap. of Isaiah, [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. After the manner of Bunyan. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, the kingdom of Satan, the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ; or, a view of this world as it was, as it is, and as it is to be. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, as comprehended in the Scriptures of truth. By C. F. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the promised Messiah. By Mrs. Mary A. Seymour. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. The Devil; his origin, personality, power, and doom. By Phineas A. Smith. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for preparing all the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated health institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. This is a valuable work, and should be read by all the young. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 14, in connection with Dan. 12: 11-13. By H. K. Flagg. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.00.
By Express—1800 pages for $1.00.
Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; postage, 2 cents. Free to the poor.

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers	36	pages.
The Saints' Inheritance	48	"
The New Heavens and New Earth	24	"
The Voice of Warning	24	"
The Advent at Hand	24	"
The Last Days	24	"
The Church not in Darkness	24	"
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one)	24	"
Outline of the Coast of Man	8	"

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State	24	pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead	24	"
Ghostology	48	"
Man's Future State	12	"
The Key of Truth	12	"

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved	24	pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment	12	"
Future Punishment Destruction	12	"
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts)	12	"
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Lost	24	"
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary	24	"
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality	12	"

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one)	36	pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one)	36	"
One Thing	12	"
Judson's Letter on Dress	12	"
Duty of Christians (a peace tract)	24	"

Leaflets for Letters,—6 cents per set.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets. [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the Signs in the Sun, in the Moon, and in the Stars; [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, revised, and enlarged. [illegible]

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C F. Hudson. A most learned and valuable work, [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. From Sir James Stephen, with notes. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? With Reply to Dr. Maxwell. [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to articles in the Quarterlies, [illegible]

Blain's Tracts.

Price.—1 cent for every 8 pages; postage, 2 cents on every package of 150 pages, or less.

Endless Misery not a Bible Doctrine	32	pages.
The Wicked not Immortal (with 200 proof-texts)	16	"
Bible Meaning of the word Hell	16	"
Bible Meaning of Forever and Everlasting	16	"
Smoke of Torment and Unquenchable Fire Explained	8	"
Rev. John Foster's Letter on Future Punishment	8	"

For the World's Crisis.

DISAPPOINTED, YET HOPING.

"O! ever thus, from childhood's hour,
I've seen my fondest hopes decay;
I never loved a tree or flower,
But 'twas the first to fade away."
T. Moore.

O, truly doth my weary heart
Re-echo such sad strain;
For oh! 'twas o'er my fate to part
With all I loved, but loved in vain.
Oh! ne'er a bright plant rare I nursed,
Its fair buds watching day by day,
But, e'er in glorious bloom they burst,
A blight fell on them, and decay.

I never reared a tiny bird,
That cheered my heart with gushing song
Till all its inmost chords were stirred,
But soon 'twas gone—mine, oh! not long.
I never loved a happy form,
The glance of bright, love-answering eye,
A soul with kindred feeling warm,
Whose love was mine, but soon 'twould die.

O, Earth! hast thou no joy in store,
Heartfelt, abiding joy, for me?
To mourn o'er hopes that are no more—
My fate oh! must it ever be?
List! in my sad plaint's echo tone,
An anwering voice seems given:
"Earth no abiding joy may own,
Till in the clouds of heaven

He comes whose right it is to reign
O'er all the earth 'neath heaven,
To burst the tomb, when the icy chain
Of the tyrant Death is riven;
When Christ the curse of death removes,
Then earth restored knows no alloy;
Not death, but resurrection, proves
To us 'the gate of endless joy.'"

East Roxbury, Vt. ANNA E. MCELLISTER.

THE CHURCH DYING OF THE REFINEMENTS.

BY REV. R. V. LAWRENCE.

This age, with the church, and especially the Methodist church, is an age of refinement. It has passed through one of converting and sanctifying grace, but it has now reached the era of refinement. And (I would write so plainly as to be understood), the church is NOW DYING OF THE REFINEMENTS. Not however of genuine refinement—that does not kill. Sins refined and kept in the church are doing the mischief. You may, if you will look, see this sort of refinement in the ministry. It would hardly do for ministers to aspire to the pride of position and circumstantial pomp of government officials and persons of high places in worldly honor. This would be too gross a departure from the example of the meek and lowly Jesus and his humble disciples. But this sin is refined. Under the name of refinement of manners, many, oh, how many of our preachers put on such a pompous and formal address in saluting those they meet, that the common people, who generally hear the gospel gladly, are forced away from them, while the upstart, petroleum asistocrats gather about them as if they were angels just down from the skies. How very few of our ministers have that honorable title among the masses—"he is the poor man's preacher." This kind of refinement is withering up the influence of the ministry now—it has already transformed large numbers of the ministers of republican America into parlor fops, to the very great delight of as many sentimental, boarding-school misses.

This refinement has also secured a place in the language of the pulpit. To call the people together on the Sabbath and preach to them in Latin or Greek, all acknowledge would be a sin. But this sin is refined and kept in the pulpit. Professedly the preaching is done in the language of the people, but what with uncommon, high-sounding words, long sentences, and involved, interlaced sort of sentences, not more I think than one-fourth of the people get the meaning, and in the case of many whom I have heard, there is no meaning to be caught, for the words, after going round and round, run off into some different idea from that with which they started, and so the whole is spoiled. And yet this is refinement. After a man has been talking in this stilted way for an hour, you will see the special advocates and devotees of refinement drawing together and lauding the preacher's "enunciation," "profundity," "refinement of language," etc., when common sense is sick, and the multitudes go away unfed. This is one of the refinements of which the church is now dying. A preacher not long since said, "It would not do for ministers to preach in these days in the style of Wesley, as given to us in his published sermons." It would n't? Indeed! It would n't do the devil's work so well—it would n't put people to sleep so soon. But would it not be refreshing to the churches if our preachers would go forth in his spirit and with his simplicity of style, telling the story of the cross? It would be like a northwest wind after a July drouth. Under its influence the vineyard of the Lord would be green again. A company of young men, none of them christians, were conversing one evening. The subject matter was the excellence of a Baptist minister who had lately died. "Oh," said one, "I did like to hear him preach, he spoke in such plain language; we could always understand him." There is many an empty seat in the churches that would be filled if it were not for the unintelligible refinement of pulpit language.

Look up in the choir in many a church and you see the quartette, screaming opera tunes, refined by having hymn-books in their hands, and so sanctified to sing the praise of God, though they may sing in the theatre or opera all the week, and have hearts that have never had the slightest touch of the grace of God. Yet this is refinement. The pew is also a refinement in the Methodist church. It would not be agreeable for our wealthy, upper-crust christians to have plainly-dressed, hard-working people to sit by them in churches; nor would it do to make public proclamation that the poor might stay away, especially when it is said in the Bible that in the house of God "the rich and poor meet together"; such proclamation would be sinful; but the pew does it. The poor cannot rent, they will not allow their poverty to be advertised every Sunday by taking the poor seats; thus the church gets rid of them altogether. The pew is a refined winnowing machine, and it does its work well, as the hundreds of select congregations testify. Are our pewed Methodist churches crowded? Did you ever hear of such a thing? Methodism once had the masses, but the refining process has so thinned our congregations that we can hardly make that claim now.

In the matter of dress we also have a sin-refined church. The pagan world—the female part of it—had a simple way of dressing. Rings in the nose and ears, on the toes, ankles, wrists, and fingers; feathers, wild, unrefined eagle feathers in the hair; a very poor article of paint on the face, and many other crude decorations on the person. Of course this was wrong, vain, unchristian. Our Methodist ladies have refined very much on the aforesaid style. Rings in the noses are not tolerated; but the ears [illegible] those of very refined workmanship, while the wrists and fingers are loaded with bracelets and rings far superior to any ever worn by the prettiest squaw of the most bloody Indian chief. The common feathers of the Indian head-dress are not tolerated by our Methodist belles; that would be sinful; but they have fine plumes and top-knots, and wings on the head (to help them cut the pigeon-wing perhaps), and all so refined! As to paint for the face, our women have a very superior article to that used by the heathen. They had naught but clay or ochre, but our modern, christian cosmetic preparations are very refined. Then as to dress, we have in the church, and at the communion rails, the costliest silks, satins, laces, embroideries, diamonds, pearls, and gold and silver ornaments, though they may be unpaid for, or though to pay for them the treasury of the Lord is robbed. The female portion of the Methodist church now carries in foolish superfluities of dress and ornament enough to feed a large part of the poor of the land, to build homes for widows and orphans, to send the gospel to those who are now perishing for lack of knowledge, and to provide decent clothing for hundreds of poor in our own towns and villages, who fain would go to the house of God but for their rags, and because no one searches them out to encourage them to attend the house of prayer. And yet this I believe goes for refinement. The Scripture given by Paul—"I will that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shame-facedness and sobriety, not with braided hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array"—the most of our Methodist ladies laugh at, and many of our Doctors of Divinity set aside as of no account. Notable Doctors of Divinity, when they can doctor the divinity given by St. Paul! But these are days of refinement. You see many sins in the church now that our modern christians are refining into graces.

In addition to this, there is in the church now a refined stoicism, that shuts off all expression of religious emotion or peace or joy. If the Lord blesses you, or blesses a dear friend in the house of God, or if you hear a truth from the sacred desk that you approbate, you must give no sign thereof—no tear, no hearty "Amen," no expression of praise to God; that would be vulgar—show a want of refinement. Mrs. Exquisite, whose father was a rumseller, or rag-picker, but is herself a very fine lady, would become very nervous—may be would have to go out, and might give up her pew if you manifest any emotion. The stillness of death must reign, in these refined days, in the house of God, broken only by the refined tones of the minister, and the operatic quartette in the gallery. If you should be in Wall street when the news comes of the fall of Richmond, or the surrender of Lee, you might shout and sing "Praise God" with a bounding heart, and the papers would herald it all over the land as a very proper thing; but if in the house of God you should in a suppressed tone say "Amen," or "Praise God," you would be marked by the would-be aristocrats, who are creeping into our church, as "vulgar"—"not refined"—"very common kind of people." And that what little responding may be necessary in a refined church may be done "decently and in order," we are soon to have a ritual for the pews, so that the silver-tongued Methodists may intone the Amens at the right time. All this is false refinement, the refinement of which the church is dying.

But there is a refinement that I hope to see shedding its graces all through the church. There is One who sits upon the human heart as a "refiner of silver," and purifies the same from all unholy passions, throws the grace of perfect love over all the actions of the life, and creates in the soul a relish for things pure and heavenly,—in short, adorning the whole body, spirit and soul, with the "beauty of holiness." The etiquette of this refinement is as graceful as love, as sincere as honesty. It softens the manners of the uneducated, and lends attraction to the educated that they never found in the schools. A heart cleansed by the blood of Jesus, and refined in the fires of the Holy Ghost, is in a state of the very highest order of refinement. This is a genuine refinement. What if one has education, and according to the judgment of the world polished manners, but a sinful heart; is this refinement? It is what passes for it. I know such a man, one who prates much of his refinement in the church, and can find but very little good society in the church—poor man! and yet a dozen times a day, if he is provoked that many times, he will get angry, every feature of his face being disfigured with his unholy flame. And this is refinement! refinement when the heart is the seat of such a low passion as anger! I have almost blushed with shame to hear a Methodist lady, in bad grammar, and with a sentimental whine, speak of refinement—refinement in the church; and then in a little while see her fling her head haughtily at some fancied insult.....

Dear reader, let us possess ourselves of genuine refinement, which is christian holiness, then we will be fit for the society of the good on earth, and the angels in glory. And let us pray that the Methodist church, and all other churches, may become refined in this higher sense.—Earnest Christian.

For the World's Crisis.

A LESSON FROM NATURE.

How many important lessons the careful observer may derive from nature. So full of instruction, and so fragrant to the memory, I marvel that we do not study her voluminous library with more diligence and care.

Recently, while gazing at some annual volubilates, commonly known as morning glories, (a sweet remembrancer of childhood's happy days), I observed a bud struggling to unfold its bright petals, but its situation rendered it entirely impracticable. Simple as it may appear, the sight deeply impressed me. This bud was situated between the strong, thrifty strands of its mother vine, three under and two over its centre, compressing it closely. Its calyx gave evident consent for the beautiful bud to display its bright colors, while the unexpanded flower struggled to do so, but all in vain. These coils held it with a serpentine grasp; and all that could be perceived was a looseness sufficient to disclose what its beauty might have been had it been free to obey the law of its Creator.

I watched it a few days to see it wither and die; and the strong coils which had so rudely murdered it, had entirely covered it; receiving nourishment from the earth they grew lustily, also their comrades, which had been a little behind now came up, and passed this depot of murder, lending their influence to conceal the matter.

Ah! thought I, how many get entangled and compressed in this way by the world, the flesh, and the Devil, until spiritual life is extinct. The Spirit is faithful to convince men of their need of Christ, bringing to bear upon their mind the promises and threatenings of Jehovah, and they resolve to serve God; but, alas! worldly business presses upon one side; and love of fame, a name and standing in the world, unite in compressing their spiritual life, yet they struggle on for a little, but these worldly cords increase their strength like the vine, and their comrades, pride, and self-conceit hasten on, until the last vestige of spiritual life becomes extinct; and in a little time, so effectually cover this promising bud that no trace of the real cross-bearing religion can be discerned.

Now what is to be done? Is there no way by which this promising bud may be extricated? Only one way, and that may seem so expensive to those who know not how to value eternal life as to cause them to hesitate too long. The one and only way is, to cut the vines right off, just where they begirt the bud of spirituality; whether it be at the shrine of fashion, or at the gate of wealth and fame, or at the cess-pool of fleshly ease and indulgence; sever this cord at once, that if permitted to grow will forever bind you outside of the kingdom. God has provided a sword sharp enough to do it at once, only suffer the application, and according to apostolic injunction, abstain from any thing that hinders or wars against our spiritual life.

But can I give up my name and position, to associate with God's humble flock? Can I perform all my business only to the glory of God? Can I receive a religion that has a daily cross in it? Ah! this is the question. WILL you? You can, but WILL you? The flesh will cry out against it, if Paul's comparison of crucifixion is pertinent.

These vines of gain and fame, etc., may look flourishing and beautiful now, but really which is the most profitable, honor and riches in this life, where all is so fleeting, or eternal life, where riches and honor never end?

Castleton, Vt. B. MATHEWSON.

For the World's Crisis.

WHERE IS HOME?

Where is home? Where, oh where?
Foxes have holes, and birds of the air
Are sheltered in their well lined nest,
But where will the child of God find rest?

Where is home? O, tell me where,
That I may rest, away from care,
Away from toil, away from grief,
A home where the weary find relief.

O, where is home? that I may go
Where peace and plenty always flow,
Where love and harmony unite,
Where might can never rule the right.

Beyond death's valley, some will say;
No, we look for a better way;
A land that's beautiful and fair,
Where all is love, our home is there.

Bath, Me. J. A. S.

THE SUEZ CANAL.

It is known to most of our readers, that there has been in making, for some years past, an attempt to unite the waters of the Mediterranean and Red Seas, by means of an immense ship canal across the northern part of Egypt. It is now so far completed, that, since 1864, a daily boat has been run from Port Said to Suez; and a large barque, towed by a steamer, and conveying twenty to thirty passengers, has passed from sea to sea by means of it within a space of twenty-four hours. On the fifth of April last, it was to have been formally opened with appropriate ceremonies. An article in the London Times says, that about thirty of the principal Chambers of Commerce in the world, and four of the largest companies were represented on the occasion, which, it says, might have justified even a larger, a more magnificent, more public and universal gathering. The work was commenced in 1859, on a subscribed capital of some $40,000,000; and its final completion and opening to navigation for large vessels is promised for 1866,—that year so long and generally designated for so many wonders in Church and State. It is under the protection of Napoleon, and in the immediate direction of M. Ferdinand de Lesseps. It is undoubtedly one of the most stupendous works of modern times, and destined (if successful) to change things to an extent which can hardly be conceived. There is an English railroad, passing from Alexandria, through Cairo, to Suez, which has been in operation for years; but a French ship canal, severing Africa from Asia, and opening a direct way to India, at once realizes the dream of ages, and throws open the door to commercial, political, and social results as vast as the achievement is surprising. It will rejuvenate some of the oldest of countries, alter materially the relations of the east and west of the Old World, establish the French power in Egypt, put France between England and India, change the balances of power in Europe, and add advantages and eclat to the Napoleonic schemes more potent than the arms of the first Napoleonic Emperor.

The importance of such a connection of these seas was observed from the remotest ages. Nor was this the first attempt to accomplish it. Almost before the days of authentic history, while Greece had lawgivers, and Rome had kings, Necho, the son of Psammeticus, and the conqueror of King Josiah, set about the formation of a navigable canal from the Pelusaic branch of the Nile to the head of the Gulf of Suez. Necho was a man of energy as well as enterprise, and he pushed the work with such zeal that a hundred and twenty thousand men are said to have perished in it before he desisted. And strange to say, he was induced to relinquish it in consequence of a prophecy that, when completed, it would yield nothing to him, but render all its profits to a stranger. Darius, perhaps thinking himself to be that stranger, undertook to finish that great work; but whether it ever was of any advantage to him, or any one else, history does not inform us. It has at any rate remained to our days of steam navigation and telegraphs to bring the great canal into shape for practical use; and the stranger to be more especially benefited is none other than the subtle and sagacious Louis Napoleon.

One of the most remarkable things in connection with this great work is its completion in entire independence of England, her government and her capitalists, who, of all others, are the most deeply affected by it. Though invited to place confidence in M. Lesseps, and though the best English engineers reported favorably on the scheme, the moneyed men of Britain declined to invest in it, apparently supposing that nothing would be accomplished without their concurrence. But in spite of all discouragements, and all the opposition from English diplomacy at Constantinople and in Egypt, the astute Democratic Emperor of the French has managed to have the work brought to a state of forwardness which now seems to insure a final success, which will flank Gibraltar, cut the British lines of communication in its rear, and give to Napoleon command of the situation, to control Eastern commerce, and to order peace or war at will. The hand that holds possession of a ship canal between the Mediterranean and Red Seas, must needs direct the destinies of Egypt, draw Palestine under its sway, compel the acquiescence of England, and is already far on the way to sustain a general dictatorship for the nations. And if that hand should be Louis Napoleon's, as it will be, he will thus have a mighty instrument to aid him in his ambition to encircle the globe with his power. And whatever may happen to the canal, whether it is ever completed or not, whether fleets or not a single keel pass through it, the Times admits that it has now already given the French a footing upon the most central and commanding point of the Old World. It has been found with regard to the famous Barrage of the Nile that, though its beneficent operation is not so certain or so well under control as was hoped, it can do a world of mischief on an emergency, and is, in fact, the stronghold, the key, the citadel of the Delta. In like manner, says this writer, he who occupies the position now established in the Isthmus, can at least maintain a force in the face of three opposing continents, and stop the road to India, as well as exert a moral force rendering his friendship a thing to be coveted even at a sacrifice.

A recent editorial in the New York Herald directs attention to the fact that the completion of this canal must insure the supremacy of France in the Mediterranean, having now two great naval arsenals on the coast of that Sea, in higher condition than any other European power, and is likely to have a third at Algiers, she will possess a preponderance of naval strength in that region with the advantage of sudden concentration of large fleets, impossible to be effected by her neighbors across the channel. By stationing her ships off or at Corfu, she would command the Straits of Otranto, and intercept all communication between the Adriatic and the Egyptian coast, while the British at Malta would have as much as they could do to guard the channels westward which extend over a breadth of three hundred and sixty miles from the African shore to the Straits of Messina. And should Italy become the ally of France—as in all probability she will—as soon as Rome is left to herself, a common rendezvous of the squadrons of the two nations in the Adriatic would insure the success of their joint operations.

It is certain that the opening of this canal will do much for several Italian ports, which cannot long remain under the Austrian government; that the French influence in Egypt is rapidly increasing, and is now dominant there; and that Sir Henry Bulwer finds his time and strength fully occupied at Constantinople in endeavoring to combat the hourly augmenting growth of French diplomacy and power over the East in general. It is also worthy of note that Linant Bey, an eminent engineer, a man of great ability, and the principal director of the public works of Egypt, is a Frenchman; and that the fortifications at Alexandria, and at the apex of the Delta, are the work of the French.

Another item of importance, in this connection, referred to by the Herald article is, that the French have also taken possession of a strong point just outside of the Straits of Babel Mandel, which has been, or is to be, strongly fortified, and which will countervail the British station at Aden. A line of French steamers and regular mail-packets also plies between Suez and some of the French possessions in the East Indies. And the French influence thus developed is already predominant throughout Asiatic and European Turkey, as well as in Egypt, as we have ourselves personally witnessed within the last year. There is hardly a point at which the French consuls have not more influence than the Pashas themselves. Large extents of fertile territory have also been purchased by the Suez Company, which are being profitably cultivated; towns and villages are everywhere springing up upon them; and everything is tending to arrange itself under French control and to the augmentation of French supremacy. The ideas of the first Napoleon are thus being realized; and, in the event of a rupture with England, the Pyramids may be again invoked to look on the victories of the soldiers of France; whilst French iron-clads are found equal to the task of maintaining themselves against their foe, though even another Nelson should arise to attempt another Aboukir.

On the supposition, then, that this canal will be completed in 1866, as promised; that the Atlantic cable will be successfully laid during this summer by the Great Eastern; that all nations and people in the world will then be in close telegraphic communication; that the Pope is divested of all temporal dominion, and lodged near the palace of the Tuilleries; that French monitors and iron-clads, now multiplying in secret, are found in all the great harbors of the seas; with England at war with the enemies of her colonies, and troubled with the deep-seated spirit of revolution at home; with the revolutionists of Italy, Germany, Greece, and Turkey putting forth their ideas of Democracy and Unity, and organizing for separate political life under the protection of France; with the Jews, in universal emancipation, accepting the Napoleons as their great deliverers; with Jerusalem, reviving under the combined influence of the superstitions of its ancient owners, the encouragements of a new-born commerce, and the protectorate of a power received as the subject of ancient promise; and with everything constituting the stabilities of society yielding to the revolutionary outburst of a wholly new order of things; what then will be the aspect of the world in relation to its predicted future? What then will people think of the warnings, derived from Scripture, which we have been giving them, and which they now so much despise and revile? Will men then continue to laugh at the idea of Napoleon, peradventure, being the personal Antichrist, and go on preaching the fable of a Millennium of universal liberty and peace, wrought by the ordinary agencies of so-called human progress? Alas, for the blindness that is upon the eyes of a rationalized and secularized church! Alas, for the delusions with which many good people are bewitched! Happy those who are not left unawakened till then! Happy those whose eyes are open to behold the signs of the times, and to make ready for what is at hand! God's plans are ripening fast. The great mysteries of his providence will soon be finally unfolded. His word is fulfilling with wonderful rapidity and literalness. And woe be to the one who does not specially secure a sure footing upon God's immutable promises by a genuine penitence and a true faith in Christ Jesus.

"Acquaint thyself quickly, O sinner, with God,
And He shall be with thee, when fears are abroad;
Thy safeguard in dangers that threaten thy path,
Thy joy in the valley and shadow of death."

—Prophetic Times.

For the World's Crisis.

REST.

I long to rest where pain is o'er,
And with the Lord dwell evermore,
Where nothing can disturb our peace,
And live where sorrows ever cease.

I long to rest. O, Savior, come!
And gather all the dear ones home;
And give thy saints eternal life,
And let us live where there's no strife.

L. B. WEAVER.

For the World's Crisis.

DIALOGUE BETWEEN ELD. FAITHFUL AND BRO. HOPEFUL.

Eld. F. Good morning, Bro. Hopeful. How have you been since we last met?

H. I have been, some of the time, in the furnace of affliction. And as the Book says, "No affliction for the present seemeth to be joyous, but rather grievous."

Eld. F. Was you enabled to bear your affliction patiently?

H. Sometimes I groaned in agony, and cried out, "My punishment is greater than I can bear." Yet I constantly hoped that it would soon be over, as these words came to mind, "Our light affliction, which is but for a moment, worketh for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory."

Eld. T. Precious words, precious words, truly. But sometimes in great bodily agony it seems difficult to compose the mind sufficiently to apply the words of consolation which are written for us.

H. And I have found it still more difficult to find consolation in trials of another kind.

Eld. T. Do you refer to reverses of fortune, when every avenue seems closed, and you can see no prospect of bettering your condition?

H. Not that. I am not apt in such times to dwell on the dark side of the picture. To be sure I have had trials of that kind, when I have sunk so low that some of my friends didn't seem to know me. But it is natural for me to expect better days. The time in which I have found it most difficult to draw consolation from any source is when I have been overcome by some besetment, and a sense of guilt oppresses me. It is then that I am covered with "thick darkness that may be felt."

Eld. T. Does any such sense of guilt cling to you now?

H. I feel now that all my sins are forgiven me for His sake who died for me. But there is something like a shadow of guilt, or the scars that have been made by sin. I have seen some who seem to feel as free as though they had never sinned. There seems to be no burden of guilt resting upon them. The very scars of sin seem to have been removed from them. But I still remember the "wormwood and the gall." I think it is David who says, "My sins are ever before me."

Eld. F. There is a verse in the one hundred and third Psalm which I will repeat to you. "As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us." For whose consolation do you think that was written?

H. It must apply to all the people of God. Let me dwell a moment upon that passage. "As far as the east is from the west, so far hath he removed our transgressions from us." You say that is in the one hundred and third Psalm. I know I have read that many times, but it comes home to me now with more force than ever before.

Eld. F. Now believe that Scripture is for you. Take your Bible and read that whole Psalm; and if you can adopt it all—believe it all—and feel that it is all for YOU, I trust you will speedily find the blessing you are seeking. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

Sutton, Mass.

THE GREAT JUBILEE.

The year of Jubilee was a definite period of time. So we conclude the anti-type will correspond. The great trumpet will be blown which will usher in the world's great Jubilee, when the people of God will return to their possessions, and "the meek will inherit the earth." "The trumpet shall sound, and the dead shall be raised." In the type, all who paid attention to the method of reckoning time as enjoined by God himself, knew when the year of Jubilee would commence. So in the anti-type. Those who believe God's word, and make it the man of their counsel, must endorse God's most positive assertion, "The wise shall understand." They will know when the year of Jubilee shall be proclaimed. They now see the day approaching. May God help us all to be prepared to enter into the joy of our Lord.—Voice of the West.

A HOME-MADE HEARTH RUG.—A lady subscriber writes: "Procure a coffee sack, tack it tightly on a frame the size you wish your rug. Get a blacksmith to make you a crotchet needle about the size of a husking peg, tapering rather more. With charcoal and rule 'lay out' on the sack the figure you wish for your rug. Gather all the old woolen rags such as are too much worn for carpet, thumbs, bits of wool, etc. Tear these in strips, and with the hook in the right hand, hold the strip beneath in the left, thrust the hook through the meshes of the sack, catch the rag and pull it through the meshes of the sack a half inch, then through again as near to the first as possible. By sorting the different colors and following the patterns, a very beautiful article can be made. After it is all filled up in this way, take a pair of sheep shears or common scissors, large size, and shear it all off to an even surface. Old dresses are the best; heavy cloth will not work in well. I have seen such rugs in handsome parlors, and when tastefully made they are equal to any."

CATCHING HORSES.—The time to learn a horse to be caught easily is when he is young. When you go into the field, go towards him on the near side, act as indifferent as possible, speak to him confidently and kindly, pass your hand along his neck until you can get hold of his head; but do not do it suddenly, as it tends to excite his fear. By practising this method, you will in the end so overcome all his feelings of timidity that he will allow himself to be caught at all times, even when he is full of glee and playfulness.—Rural American.

TO CURE HOOVE IN CATTLE.—A writer in the Irish Agricultural Gazette mentions a case of this disease that was cured by pouring a couple of cans of cold water upon the loins of the animal. He also speaks favorably of this treatment in other instances.—Scientific American.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

KING HABIT.

"I won't write this letter! I can't do it! This hateful old paper!" and Frank Ray took up the sheet and tore it in pieces, and threw it down with a twitch and jerk, which brought to his mother's lips a smile, though a saddened one, at the quick-coming thought of her boy having gained so little self-control.

"Why, Frank, my boy, what troubles you so much?" she said, rising and stroking back the long, wavy hair from his white forehead. "What is it disturbs you so as to draw out this display of wrong temper?"

"This ugly paper, with not a line in it! I can't write a straight word; it's enough to try an earthly saint, like you, mother, let alone an impatient school-boy, who wants to be off to play. I wish there was not a sheet of unruled paper in the world."

"What should I do, then, Frank, and many others who never write upon ruled paper? Why, when I was a little girl,—you need not look so incredulous, for I was a little girl once, and as uneasy and restless as any little girl could be,—but what I was going to say was, then it was not considered very creditable to depend upon lines. If we had them to slip under our paper we were very apt to hide them if our teacher or parents came near."

"Why, what's the harm in lines or ruled paper, mother? I can't see it."

"It is far bettter to accustom the eye to form its own line; it gives a habit of precision and correctness which is invaluable; but the most important thing is that we should never allow ourselves to become dependent upon anything; we should strive to be free of every shackle but those of right and duty. Now in the matter of writing,—if I may judge by your effervescence of temper,—you are a perfect slave to lines. I have often seen you give up a letter which you should have completed, or growl over a composition, because you could not write in a straight line across the paper. Now are you willing to have King Lines to rule over all the writing you expect to do in your day?"

"I don't see but you are just as much of a slave, mother to no lines, for you don't like to write on ruled paper, any more than I do on unruled.

"Yes, my boy, but I can write with lines; though, I must confess, I am more apt to write between them, from the force of early teachings; but I am not dependent upon unruled paper, therefore I have no King No lines to control me. But I want you to think how many masters you will have if you allow yourself to feel you can't do this, and that you must have things so-and-so, or you can do nothing. If I was Frank Ray, I would say at once that I would be king over myself; and that no impertinent little habit should rule over me. I would not let the young fox in, which, when it gets old, would gnaw out all the vitality and strength of my will. Depend upon it, Frank, it is these little things, the conquering your own yielding to obstacles, the determination to go straight on to the mastery of every difficulty,—which will form the only true foundation of a manly, self-relying character; one dependent only upon his God, and his own strength baptized into firm principle by religious faith and trust. Now try, my boy, and write your letter. See what you can do."

"O, mother, I don't believe I can do anything with it."

"If you begin with that idea, Frank, you can't do anything; fear and doubt beget inability. 'I can,' 'I will,' are much better words for a motto than 'I can't.'"

"Well, mother, suppose I take it and say, 'I will' play truant, and see the show to-morrow; is it a good motto then?"

"I can't jest on such things, Frank. You have been brought up to know right from wrong. You can tell when the 'I will' should be used, and know that it never should be for any self-indulgence which leads to the neglect of any known duty. 'I won't' is the word then. But if you lay your track rightly now, you will find you will not be obliged to put on the brakes of 'I won't' very often; but your car of life will run smoothly along on the track of active duty. It all depends upon your laying the sleepers and the rails, which you are doing now every day—aye, hour."—Christian Register.

THE TWO RULES, AND HOW THEY WORKED.

"Here are two rules for you, Fred," said Giles Warner, looking up from the paper he was reading and addressing a younger brother, who was sitting by the fire, playing with a favorite dog.

"Well, what are they?" said Fred, suspending his sport with the dog.

"The first is, "Never get vexed with anything you can help." The second is, "Never get vexed with anything you can't help."

"Cannot these rules be as useful to you as to me?" inquired Fred, archly.

"No doubt of that," replied Giles, good humoredly, "but then it is so much easier to hand over a piece of good advice to another than to keep it for one's own use. It is a kind of generosity that doesn't require any self-denial." Fred laughed.

"But what say you," continued Giles, "to these rules? How would it work if we should adopt them?"

"I think they take a pretty wide and clean sweep," said Fred. "They don't leave one any chance at all to get vexed."

"That might be an objection to them," said Giles, "If any one were wiser, better, or happier for getting vexed. I think they are sensible rules. It is foolish to vex ourselves about what can be helped, and it is useless to vex ourselves about what can't be helped. Let us assist each other to remember and obey these two simple rules. What say you?"

"I'll agree to it," said Fred, who was usually ready to agree to anything his brother proposed, if it was only proposed good humoredly.

"That's too bad!" exclaimed Fred, the next morning, while making the preparation for school.

"What is the matter?" inquired Giles

"I have broken my shoe-string, and it is vexatious; I am in such a hurry."

"It is vexatious, no doubt," replied Giles, "but you must not get vexed; for this is one of the things that can be helped. You can find a string in the left corner of the upper drawer in mother's room."

"But we shall be late to school," said Fred.

"No, we shan't," said Giles. "We shall only have to walk a little faster. Besides, if you keep cool, you will find the string, and put it in, much sooner than you can if you become vexed and worried."

"That's true," said Fred, as he started for the string, quite restored to good humor.

Several opportunities occurred during the day for putting into practice the newly adopted rules. The last was this:—

"In the evening Giles broke the blade of his knife, while cutting a hard piece of wood.

"It can't be helped," said Fred, "so you must not get vexed about it."

"It might have been helped," said Giles, "but I can do better than to fret about it. I can learn a lesson of care for the future which may some day save a knife more valuable than this. These rules work well. Let's try them to-morrow."

"The next morning Fred devoted an hour before school to writing a composition. After he had written half a dozen lines, his mother called him off to do something for her. During his absence, his sister Lucy made use of his pen and ink to write her name in a school book. In doing this she carelessly let fall a drop of ink on the page he was writing. Fred returned while she was busily employed in doing what she could to repair the mischief.

"You have made a great blot on my composition," he exclaimed, looking over her shoulder.

"I am very sorry. I did not mean to do it," said Lucy.

Fred was so much vexed that he would have answered his sister very roughly, if Giles had not interposed.

"Take care Fred; you know the thing is done, and can't be helped."

Fred tried hard to suppress his vexation.

"I know it was an accident," he said pleasantly, after a brief struggle with himself.

Lucy left the room, and Fred sat down again to his composition. After a moment he looked up. "No great harm has been done after all," he said. "Two or three alterations are much needed, and if I write it over again, I can make them."

So much for a cool head, and not getting vexed," said Giles, laughing. "Our rules work well."

At night Fred tore his coat while climbing over a fence.

"That's too bad," said he.

"It can't be helped," said Giles; it can be mended."

"The way to help it is what troubles me," said Fred. I don't like to ask mother, she has so much to do."

Giles proposed that Fred should get over this difficulty by asking Lucy to do it for him, as her mother had taught her to mend very neatly. Fred was not at first disposed to adopt this measure. He knew that Lucy disliked mending very much, and was afraid she would be cross if he asked her to do it; but at last he decided to run the risk of that. They found Lucy busily employed with a piece of embroidery, and quite absorbed with her work. Fred looked significantly at Giles when he saw how his sister was occupied; but he concluded he had gone too far to retreat, and must make a bold push.

"I wish to ask a great favor of you, Lucy," said Fred; "but I fear I have come at a wrong time."

"What do you want?" said Lucy.

"I am almost afraid to tell you. It's too bad to ask you to leave that bewitching work to do what you dislike."

"You are a great while getting at what is wanted," said Lucy, laughing. "Come, out with it."

Fred, thus encouraged, held up his arm and displayed the rent.

"Well, take it off, and I will do my best," said Lucy, cheerfully.

"You are a dear good sister," said Fred. "When I saw what you were about, I thought that you would not be willing to do it."

"My uncommon amiability quite puzzles you, does it?" said Lucy, laughing. "I shall have to let you into a secret. To tell the truth, I have been thinking all day what I could do for you in return for your not getting vexed with me for blotting your composition. So now you have the cause of my willingness."

"So much for our rules," exclaimed Giles, triumphantly. They work to a charm."

"What rules?" inquired Lucy.

We must tell Lucy all about it," said Giles.

They did tell her about it, and the result was that she agreed to join them in trying the results.—Child's Paper.

"BLUE SKY SOMEWHERE."

Children are eloquent teachers. Many a lesson which has done our heart good have we learned from their lisping lips. It was but the other day another took root in our memory. We were going to a picnic, and, of course, the little ones had been in ectasies for several days; but the appointed morning broke with no glad sunshine, no songs of birds, no peals of mirth. There was every prospect of rain. Even Hope hid her face and wept.

'Shan't we go, mother?' exclaimed the youngest boy with passionate emphasis.

'If it clears off.'

'But when will it clear off.'

'Oh, look out for the blue sky!'

And so he did, poor little fellow! but never a of blue sky gladdened his eyes.

'Well, I don't care, mother,' said he, when the tedious days had at length numbered all its hours; 'if I haven't seen it, I know there is a blue sky somewhere.'

The next morning there was blue sky,—a whole heaven full of it,—clear, glorious blue sky, such as only greets us after a weary storm.

'There, mother! didn't I tell you so?' cried a joyous voice; there is blue sky!'

The little head dropped for a moment in silent thought.

'Mother,' exclaimed the child when he again looked up, 'there must have been blue sky all day yesterday, though I never saw a bit of it; for, you see, there isn't any place where it could have gone to. God only covered it up with clouds,—didn't he?'

'And so it is in God's dealings with his children here on earth:—

'Behind a frowning providence
He hides a smiling face.'

—Exchange.

☞ Three things to love—courage, gentleness, and affection. Three things to pray for—faith, peace, and purity of heart.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance.................$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months.....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.00.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

Single copy, 30 cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 25 cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

CLUBS—Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other name on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, [illegible] cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, [illegible] cents a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less than ten), from [illegible] cents a year on each copy.

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

POSTAGE—Six cents per quarter, on every package of [illegible] copies or less, to one address. Must be paid quarterly or yearly in advance, at the office where the paper is received. [illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 514. BOSTON, TUESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 21.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

HYMN.

When shall I wear the crown of life,
Be free from sorrow, sin and strife,
And see the Sun of endless day
In that bright world so far away?

When shall I hear those notes of praise,
And with the saints and angels raise
The heavenly song so pure and sweet,
In melting strains at Jesus' feet?

When shall I walk the streets of gold,
And see their glories all unfold,
And hear the heavenly arches ring,
Where nations do their honors bring?

When shall I see the crystal stream,
And all the trees in sunlight gleam
On either side, with fruit to give,
And leaves to heal that all may live?

When shall I see the King all crowned,
And hear from arch to arch resound,—
"Most glorious art Thou, the King,
Honor and praise to Thee we bring"?

Soon, soon I'll wear the crown so bright,
And strike the harp on glory's height,
And see the Sun of endless day
In that bright world not far away.

Peru, Ind. H. H. HALL.

THE FIRST RESURRECTION.

BY JOS. M. WEAVER.

The doctrine of a two-fold resurrection is denied by many of those who are teachers of the gospel. Many good men believe it to be a falsehood—some are bitter in their opposition to it, as though there was something in it hurtful to man, or dishonoring to God. They look upon those who believe and teach this doctrine, either as weak-minded or knavish, or at least fanatical.

Why they should so hate this doctrine is a mystery to me It is honorable to God, and it honors the saint of God in thus resurrecting him before and separate from the wicked. But the question to be decided is, Does the Bible teach it? If it does, we must receive it—if it does not, we, as Protestants, must reject it. "To the law and to the testimony." The Scriptures teach that there shall be a first resurrection—a resurrection of the just—of the saints—separated from the wicked in time a thousand years.

1. There is a first resurrection. "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection." "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection" (Rev. 20: 5, 6). Here is a plain statement of the doctrine—as plain as could be made. It is a recognized canon of interpretation of Scripture, that we shall take the plain, obvious meaning of a passage, in its statement, unless the context, or some other parts of the word, plainly demands otherwise. Does the context require us here to depart from the plain, obvious meaning of the text? Let those prove it who so assert. Are there other parts of the word requiring us to depart from the plain meaning of the passage? We have not found them. No truth established by God's word runs counter to this revealed truth. Why not then receive this text in its plain import—that there is a first resurrection. This first resurrection, of course, implies a second resurrection. The idea of this two-fold resurrection is found in all parts of the Bible; and also the idea of the just rising first. Let us examine a few passages.

Christ himself, in speaking to certain ones concerning a feast, tells them to "call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind," and gives as a reason, that they could not recompense them, but they should be blessed, "for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14: 14). Why the resurrection of the just, if at the same time all—just and unjust—shall be raised? Why not say simply at the resurrection?

Again: Jesus, in answering the Sadducees, who denied the resurrection of any, used this language, "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead (from among the dead, the original has it,) neither marry, nor are given in marriage" (Luke 20: 35). Why should Christ speak of a "worthiness" for a resurrection, if all were to be raised? Worthy, or unworthy, all shall be resurrected, but only those who are accounted worthy to obtain that world, or age (the millennial period), will be raised at the first resurrection. Paul, in writing to the Philippians, tells them of his efforts to reach a certain kind of resurrection. "If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead" (Phil. 3: 11). (In the original it is much stronger, ek toon nekroon, from among the dead). Why did Paul strive after the resurrection if all should reach it without effort? He knew that he would be resurrected whether he lived a christian life or not, but he also knew that it was necessary to struggle to reach the resurrection—the first resurrection, since it was confined to the righteous or just. So might we quote many other passages of the word to prove this point, but we deem it unnecessary. You may take your Bible and a Concordance, and examine, at your leisure, every passage which treats of the resurrection, and you will find this idea of a first resurrection—prior to the second—confined to the people of God. Wherever the two classes—the wicked and just—are mentioned together, you will invariably find the just mentioned first. Can you believe that this is by chance, or without design by the Holy Spirit? The Bible is inspired. All of it is truth. It was dictated by the Spirit of Wisdom. Each passage proceeded from infinite wisdom. No part of it—no passage—was simply thrown in to fill up, but each meant what was said—each is pregnant with instruction and important truth. Hence, when we find this truth mentioned in it, always and invariably, in the same order, we can but draw the conclusion that the Spirit intended to convey the idea of a two-fold resurrection—the first confined to the just, the second to the wicked.

2. The first resurrection is a thousand years prior to that of the wicked. This is plainly stated in the Bible. It requires no inference to obtain it from the word—no argument—no straining of Scripture—it is plainly stated. After the first resurrection, the Bible states there shall be the reign of Christ and his saints for a thousand years, and then the "rest of the dead," as distinguished from the saints raised, should be raised. "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished" (Rev. 20: 5). But we are told this is the only place where such a doctrine is taught. Well, is it not sufficient that God should state a truth once? Shall we require Him to state and re-state truth before we receive it? If God says it here, and in plain words, why not receive it? What is there so terrible in the thought of a first resurrection—a thousand years before the wicked? Does it take any joy from the christian? Does it make men worse? By no means. It is a joy to the weary one of earth, stricken by the hand of death, in the person of his best friend. It leads men to seek unto it as was the case with Paul. It thrills the heart of the christian as he contemplates the hour when with all the just he shall "come forth" at the call of his Lord, at his second advent. Let us receive the fact, then, as a revealed one—revealed for our comfort and our information. The dead in Christ shall rise first at the coming of Christ, and be forever with him. Joy and bliss shall be theirs, for "blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection."—Western Recorder.

For the World's Crisis.

OPENING OF THE BOOKS.

"And the books were opened, and another book, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged out of those things written in the books, according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged every man according to their works."—REV. 20: 12, 13.

Dear reader, here is a plain declaration of God that you will one day be brought into his presence, and certain books will be opened which will decide your future destiny. Would you like to know what books these are, and peruse them a little before that solemn event takes place? if so, listen a few moments, and we will endeavor to tell you. They are not like the plates that the Book of Mormon was found written on, snatched up into heaven, but are with us, or at least some of them are, enough for us to examine to see how the matter will appear with us at that time. If you will turn to John 12: 48, you will read, "He that rejecteth me and my words hath one that judgeth him; the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." At another time we hear Christ saying to his followers, "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth."

By this language we learn that Christ did not tell them all that they would be judged by, but only a part; and that he says he did not speak of himself, "but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment what I should say and what I should speak." Forty-ninth verse. Hence we find the apostles after the baptism of the Holy Spirit, which came from the same source as Christ's commands, finishing up the instructions from time to time as they could bear it; and lastly, he sent his angel to John on the Isle of Patmos to recapitulate some of the most prominent features of that book, which, dear reader, is no other than the one that will be brought forward at that time when all nations will be gathered into one grand assembly, and you and I shall be judged according as our works have been. The prophet Malachi tells us about the book of remembrance being written before Him, which no doubt will constitute another book at the judgment. How will that book show our daily walk to have been when laid beside Christ's teaching and the apostles'? Look into this matter. Do not put it off, waiting for a more convenient time, until you have put it off once too often; for these things are truth, or else they are not truth.

When Christ said "love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you," did he mean what he said, or did he speak at random, think you? When he said, "If any man sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also," and "give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away," was it not direct language, easy to understand? When he said "Whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart," will he hold those guiltless that are in the habit of doing it daily?

The Psalmist says "the words of the Lord are pure words, as silver tried in a furnace of earth seven times." Hide them in thy heart, dear reader, that they may purge out the old leaven. "Abstain from all appearance of evil." Remember that whoremongers and adulterers God will judge; and that we are not under a mere outside law, but the spirit, the inner man, must love purity. Christ said that "whosoever putteth away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery, and whosoever marrieth her that is divorced committeth adultery." Many at the present time are putting away their companions, some in the letter and spirit both, others in the spirit only, but they are as much put away in the eyes of God as though they were a thousand miles apart, and will as really cause their companion to commit adultery in the heart, if nothing more. The human heart, the world over, seeks for a response to its own outgushings, and if it fails to find it in the companion it will go somewhere else. These are matters of fact known to all, and why not look the thing fair in the face, even if it is a delicate subject? We find it written in the book, and by that we shall be judged.

Can one become a member of Christ's body who does not first become a good member in his own family, faithful and true? If we may judge from appearances, we should say some who profess to love God would argue in this way: My natural propensities are so strong to do evil that I think the Lord will let me off a little, for "is it not a little sin?" Now Paul tells us that where the Spirit of the Lord is there is liberty. Not liberty to sin, but a liberating from sin. So we infer that all such need more of the Spirit of God. Are you in any way bound to sins through the lusts of the flesh, or the the lusts of the eyes, or the pride of life? Think of our forefathers, when bound under the government of England, they first declared their independence, then struggled long years until they got it. Think of our own loved country when rebellion was raised, the effort it took to put it down. Think of the tears, the blood, the pains, and the groans, and these for earthly things, which pass away; and shall not we count the cost and make an effort to be free, who are striving not for a corruptible crown but for an incorruptible one? Jesus said he gave them a new commandment, "That ye love one another." A precious command; but the enemy has set a trap here to catch souls; beware of it. Do not swallow down the wild grapes, thinking you are eating the fruit of the good olive tree; the distinction is easily made; the wild grapes are quite particular about the complexion, the features, the sex, and so on, while the fruit of the good olive tree has no regard for these things at all; but wherever the stamp of Christ is there will the heart of the true child of God go, and they have not got power enough to keep it from going there, neither have they power to bestow this kind of love that is a fruit of the Spirit without seeing a counterpart.

Other books will be opened at the judgment, but they do not so much concern us. That book that contains the law of Moses, or the law given to Moses, will decide for that people; and those that have had no written law, but have heeded the silent whisperings of the Spirit, and have in this way become a law unto themselves, will be rewarded accordingly; and so all will have justice done them. Those that have had the most light will be the most responsible, and surely no people ever had so much light as the present generation, having had the history and experience of the church from its infancy to its manhood.

LAURA ANN WHEELER.

Hawley, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRONOLOGY.—No. 2.

In searching for the time of our Savior's birth, we first apply to the Scriptures and then to history. In Matthew we read of the birth of Jesus, and the attempt of "Herod the King" to destroy him. Joseph and Mary fled into Egypt with the "young child," and did not return till the king died. Jesus must have been about a year old at this time. As the Scriptures give us no account of Herod's life, we must turn to history for the information. Josephus records Herod's promotion to the throne of Judea by the Romans; minutely describes his acts and the circumstances attending his death. He also mentions the dates of his kingship, its duration, and his age when he died.

As we are trying to produce a harmonious chronology from Josephus, we forbear making any quotations concerning Herod, except where some event in his life is mentioned in connection with an Olympiad. In the extracts, it will be noted that Herod's kingship has two dates; first, the Romans (Mark Antony and Augustus Cæsar) gave him the kingdom. From this point, he reigned thirty-seven years. But a rival king named Antigonus reigned in Jerusalem, supported by the Parthians; consequently Herod had to fight for three years, assisted by the Romans, before he took Jerusalem and overthrew Antigonus. From this point, he reigned thirty-four years. Here Herod's reign properly begins.

For the convenience of those who have not Josephus' works, we will make some extracts, beginning twenty-seven years before Herod's conquest, when Pompey the Great captured Jerusalem. This has a bearing on the subject of our inquiry, for it enables us to commence an Olympic table.

"So Pompey sent his lieutenant Piso with an army, and placed garrisons both in the city and in the palace, to secure them, and fortified the houses that joined to the temple. * * * And any one may hence learn how very great piety we exercise toward God, and the observance of his laws, since the priests were not at all hindered from their sacred ministrations by their fear during this siege; but did still, twice a day, in the morning, and about the ninth hour, offer their sacrifices on the altar; nor did they omit those sacrifices, if any melancholy accident happened by the stones that were thrown among them; for although the city was taken in the third month, on the day of the fast, in the one hundred seventy-ninth Olympiad, when Caius Antonius and Marcus Tullius Cicero were consuls, and the enemy then fell upon them, and cut the throats of those that were in the temple; yet could not those that offered the sacrifices be compelled to run away," etc. (Ant., b. xiv., c. 4, s. 2, 3.

HEROD RECEIVES HIS KINGDOM.

"But when the senate was dissolved, Antony and Cæsar went out of the senate house, with Herod between them, in order to offer sacrifices, and to lay up their decrees in the capitol. Antony also feasted Herod the first day of his reign. And thus did this man receive the kingdom, having obtained it in the hundred and eighty-fourth Olympiad, when Caius Domitius Calvinus was consul the second time, and Caius Asinius Pollio [the first time]. (Ant., b. xiv., c. 14, s. 5.)

HEROD'S REIGN OF THIRTY-FOUR YEARS BEGINS.

"This destruction befel the city of Jerusalem when Marcus Agrippa and Caninius Gallus were consuls at Rome, on the hundred eighty and fifth Olympiad, in the third month, on the solemnity of the fast, as if a periodical revolution of calamities had returned, since that which befel the Jews under Pompey, for the Jews were taken by him on the same day, and this was after twenty-seven years' time. So when Sosius [the Roman general] had dedicated a crown of gold to God, he marched away from Jerusalem, and carried Antigonus with him in bonds to Antony. * * * These men lost the government by their dissensions one with another; and it came to Herod the son of Antipater, who was of no more than a vulgar family, and of no eminent extraction, but one that was subject to other kings." Ant., b. xiv., c. 16.)

Although it may be a digression, it seems to be necessary to notice the word "consuls" which Josephus names with Olympic dates. They were two of the highest magistrates in Rome, next to the emperor in dignity. They entered upon their office on the first day of the year, and that year was known by their names. Dr. Jarvis has shown us that from the birth of Augustus to the death of Tiberius Cæsar, there were, including both extremes, one hundred pairs of consuls, or one hundred years. Various ancient lists of the "succession of consuls" are given which which agree with each other and confirm the record of our historian. Before arranging a table, I wish to give a few more extracts.

Newark, N. J. JOHN LYLE.

For the World's Crisis.

"IN THE BODY OR OUT OF THE BODY."—2 Cor. 12: 3.

But there surely must be some place called paradise this side of the new earth, for Paul said he knew a man above fourteen years previously, that "was caught up into paradise," and he there "heard unspeakable"—not unpronounceable—"words which it was not lawful for a man to utter." True, and in the first verse, 2 Cor. 12, he says, "I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord." So it seems that Paul had seen a vision, or had received a revelation from the Lord about that time, relating to scenes of paradise, and if you will follow him back in history, you will find him by Kuinorl's Chronology, A. D. 43, in Jerusalem, after his escape from Damascus, praying in the temple, where he falls into "a trance," and "sees the Lord."—Acts 9: 26, and 22: 17; Gal. 1: 18.

The second epistle to Corinth was written A. D. 57, according to Lardiner, and A. D. 43 taken from A. D. 57 leaves 14. See Robinson's Calmet, pp. 731 and 732, Art. Paul. So it might have been above 14 and less than 15, or about 14, as Dr. A. Clarke has it in his N. T. Commentary. Now admitting that it was during this "trance" when Paul was "rapt in visions," and he might well say, he could not tell whether he was "in the body" or "out of the body"; for when any one is in a trance and sees a vision, they cannot tell whether they are transported coporeally to the scene of action, or translated mentally to behold it; and to a living man either of these is probable enough, and have more than once occurred; but not to a dead man, for "the dead know not anything," and it is not even intimated that Paul was dead; consequently there was a vast difference between his case and the thief's; for it is claimed that the malefactor was dead, and the entire case may fail on the invalidity of that claim.

The phrase "caught up" is rendered by Geo. Campbell and Dr. McKnight, who was for forty years "president of the Westminster assemby of Divines," "conveyed away," i. e., transported, or translated, and this harmonizes perfectly with Dr. Adam Clarke's criticisms on a parallel sentence found in 2 Pet. 1: 21. Holy men of God spake "as they were moved" by the Holy Ghost. Crit. "So far were they from inventing these prophetic declarations concerning Christ, or any future event, that they were carried away 'OUT OF THEMSELVES' and out of the whole region as it were of human knowledge and conjecture." N. T. Com. p. 840.

Now there is not the remotest intimation that the "spirit of Paul was separated from his body," any more than in this case of the "holy men" who, like him, were "conveyed away" out of themselves. Paul's condition would seem to have been analogous to that of Peter, when "in a trance," on the housetop. Acts 10: 9–11. From verse 7, we learn that these revelations had been abundant with Paul, some of which he had uttered. See 1 Cor. 11: 23–27, and 15: 3; Gal. 1: 1, 11, 12, as samples: but this particular one he had kept secret. Some, who pretend to know, claim that Paul was a Freemason, and with such, this might satisfactorily account for his having kept it to himself; but there are doubtless other reasons.

It was unlawful for the Son to make known "the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power" (Acts 1: 7); for Christ to tell Paul what he would have him to do (9: 6), after committing the same to "faithful witnesses," and therefore sent him to Ananias, who was one of them, and he gave him the desired information.

Besides this, the time was not yet come for the scenes of paradise to be revealed, and it was reserved for the "beloved John" to give utterance to those words which it was unlawful for a man to utter in Paul's time; and John could not record all that he heard in vision; for when the seven thunders—of the Vatican—"uttered their voices," it was said to him, "Write them not." Paul, like John, and Isaiah (65: 66, and 2 Pet. 3: 6–13), makes the third heaven and paradise one and the same place. The first perished by water; the second are now "reserved unto fire"; the third are still future, and exist as yet in the purposes and plans of God only; but will be paradise to which Paul was in vision, "caught up," "conveyed away," "carried forward"; and whether in himself, or out of himself, was somebody and somewhere; but how are you going to get something TO nothing, or somebody to nowhere; and yet this is the very thing that all are trying to do; who will have it that Paul was literally carried off, "in body or spirit," to a place which is not yet in existence. Undoubtedly, it was either "a vision, or a revelation." May the Lord hasten the reality and bring you and me "into PARADISE."

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

For the World's Crisis.

UNFULFILLED PROPHECY.

MR. EDITOR:—In your last paper was an article of much interest, over the signature of "B. Spaulding," in which a statement is made that many of the prophecies are yet unfulfilled; and the question is asked, "Will they be fulfilled before or after Jesus comes?" And the writer adds, "I would like to see the question answered." Now with your leave, Mr. Editor, "I would like" to make a few suggestions leading towards an answer to this all important question. If we cannot turn to the page of history on which is plainly written the fulfillment of any one of the "lively oracles of God," then it is safe to consider every one such part of the prophecies unfulfilled. By this test, it will be easy to learn what prophecies relate to the past and the future.

Then to the point in question;—how much of the unfulfilled portion is to be accomplished before Jesus comes? By a careful comparison of "Scripture with Scripture," we need not be long in the dark. There is much harmony among the students of prophecy on the three principal references I shall give, or rather the harmony of views in relation to the "great tribulation" of Dan. 12th and Matt. 24th chapters. It is for me to point out how completely these compare with Rev. 6th chapter. That "time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation, nor ever shall be afterwards," must be in the future. And it must be after the Lord enters upon the work of "judging the living (nations) at his appearing." The dead (individually) are to be "judged in (or during) his kingdom." This latter is outside of our question for the present.

I suppose the real question to be,—in what stage of this work of "judgment of the quick," living, will the Lord Jesus come for his saints? Are there not two aspects of his coming fairly presented in the Bible? One coming is represented as private—as a "thief in the night," and the other a public coming, as "in the clouds of heaven, and every eye shall see him." I have given three passages for comparison, and wish to add a fourth. Ezek. 14: 13, 17, 19, 21, God announces his judgments on the wicked nations by means of four instrumentalities, viz., WAR, FAMINE, PESTILENCE and "NOISOME BEASTS." Now see in the reference to Matthew's account, how exactly our Lord says these judgments should be accomplished at his coming! Now turn to the 6th of Revelation, and we find these identical judgments are to follow each other in the precise order given by Ezekiel and Matthew. At the opening of the first seal the Lord is seen on a white horse, having but one crown on his head; in chapter 19th, on the same white horse, many crowns, but "riding forth from conquering to conquer." Then follow the four forms of judgments in the opening of the three next seals. I will not remark on the opening of the fifth seal, relating to the terrible persecution, referred to by Christ in connection with the time of his coming.

My desire is to relieve, if possible, this question from unnecessary obscurity arising from our preconceived opinions. Does not the Lord give christians of the Philadelphia stamp, the express promise that "they shall escape all these things, and stand before the Son of man"? He says "when these things begin to come to pass, then look up and rejoice, for your redemption is nigh." However the Laodicean christians must pass through the fire of persecution under the fifth seal, all who have the Philadelphia characteristics are to be "kept from this hour of temptation which is coming upon all the world." They are to "enter into their chambers and hide themselves till the storm is overpast." To all "who look for him," will he "thus appear," though to the world it will be as unobserved as the "thief in the night." If two are in the mill one will be taken and the other left; if two in one bed one will be taken, the other left; and so of two in the same field, "the one be taken and the other left." In some parts of the world it will be in the night time, so that the "two will be in one bed," while in other parts of the world, daytime, when men are in the field together, and women at their ordinary avocations. This, I apprehend to be the immediate question for us; so soon as the great signs of "distress of nations" begin to come, then we are to look up.

D. CAMPBELL.

REPROOF.—The nail of reproof, says an old writer, must be well oiled in kindness before it is driven home. It should fall like the gentle dew, and not like the rushing hailstorm. Our manner must be tender and winning. The Scriptures recommend gentleness and kindness. When St. Paul has a reproof to administer to delinquent christians, how does he temper it with gentleness and praise!

For the World's Crisis.

WAIFS.

In religion, as well as in other spheres of knowledge, we love novelty, and as far as the consistency of our lives is concerned, it is no innovation to try our hands and hearts at the work of saving men in new fields, subject only to the tenets of our Great Teacher, who is "over all, God blessed forever."

In this quiet work of christianity men may and do honestly differ respecting the ways and means of advancing its merits. The following opinions are my own, governed and restrained only by the happy character of the work and its blessed results.

The right of private judgment is indisputable in religion as in secular matters, while the scope, power, and tendency of the gospel is the only limitation of this umpire of reason. That man is confessedly a bold, independent thinker, who in this age of conventional orthodoxy and Bridgewater treatises dare think and avow that the world, or a part, may be saved without being pillowed and cradled in a hammock of orthodox-credo-genealogy, and fortunate, too, if in some unguarded hour, he be not unceremoniously arraigned before an orthdox tribunal.

Principles are immortal, and though often wretchedly perverted are still the levers of society, and preserve the balance of power in regenerating a lost and alienated world, and bringing it back to God. In our amiable character of missionaries, religious economy is as necessary as patience; therefore charitably bestow on us liberal latitude for ingenuity of thought in working out our earthly mission in the good of the race. Trusting that this "occasional waif" may not all result in tares, I submit in brief style these thoughts as they occur.

Superficial minds may see a resemblance between the religion of Jesus Christ and the superstitious worship of the idol and his priest, but it should be remembered that while mythology cradled in her lap the philosophic history of races, whose political security and ultimate renown rested upon the permanent amalgamation of civil and divine law, we should not forget that the religion of Christ in his character of Savior, is nothing but a simple digest of reasonable influences left in the world and made palpably elevating and saving through a recognition of a divine sovereignty, whose power and glory in the universe changes all the current of history, overrules the machinations of his enemies, brings light out of darkness, order out of confusion, and urges forward the mighty tide of events towards a grand and glorious consummation.

This view of religion will, no doubt, elicit flaming shouts of dissension from the parasites of doctrine and dogma; but the three brief years of missionary toil of this man, who was in that age of idolatry regarded by some as the Son of God because his profound wisdom rendered the philosophy of the heathen indefensible, convincing not a few that such a source of "reason" (see Luke 2: 46) must be the fountain of all law, may prove to the skeptical that his influence alone was the religion of heaven, when they view it mirrored through history in the growth of public and private morals, in a higher tone of fidelity and duty. See Rom. 13: 1–4. Hence is felt that happy truism—"Virtue brings her own reward," and is seen in the happy effects of social intercourse, resulting in inherent longing after the unseen and the beautiful. This is the internal beauty of his life and power among man.

"The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God;" but this false and dangerous liberalism, accompanied by the sacrifice of a quiet independence, a virtuous self-respect, a crucifying self-restraint, and a total repudiation of the spirit of patience. He who hath so eclipsed God from the soul, as to be conversant with the written life of Jesus of Nazareth, and who cannot—will not behold anything wonderful in his poverty, wonderful in his zeal, wonderful in his faith, wonderful in his fortitude, and wonderful in his death, hath in his pride and self-sufficiency despised humiliation, only lives to prove his own existence, and that that existence is something besides gross, miserable matter. He may with Plato contemn the foul deeds, the degrading transformation which Homer imputes to the gods of Greece, but to contemn the palpable evidences of divinity in one whose advent among nations and their consequent revolutions, gave credit to his absolute will over the morals which governed the world, is inchoate heathenism.

Let this man, whose moral statue has shrunk into a miserable and hideous decrepitude, witness the sanguinary struggle between the spirit and the brutality of sense which shook the world for three hundred years. Let him then graciously view him whom we call Christ in his miracles of life and death, when Pagan Rome, amid the pomp and pride and the "noise of her viols," caught sight of his fleshly habiliments, and heard the whisper of her destiny from the shore of Galilee, looked at the grains of sand beneath her feet and beheld the archtype of herself.

Let him follow "this man" in his march across the realms and through the ages, the pathway of his chariot be flooded with the philosophic host whose sensual idoology had dictated laws and vassaled kings; tell him to hear this "Bethlehem plebian" speak, and the r boasted theocrary would die in a scene of moral debauchery. Can he perceive any delicious gleam of sunlight here, or is it only a vulgar curiosity, a novel and barbaric superstition?

Alexander used to acknowledge his origin in the abodes of divinity, and Gibbon, who never bent the knee to God in prayer, could sit amid the ruins of the capitol and contemplate its august remains, owning the intervention of a superior destiny. Let the man who will not acknowledge God, descend with me into the lists whither historians have invited us, and it is a miracle if he does not deny his own identity.

But the victorious proselyte is no standard for admiration, not to say of emulation. It is said that—"From sedition's waves, the worst of mortals may emerge with honor," and we may add, with a quiet independence, too.

But if we invite reinforcements to defend truth, we must not rehearse the particular discouragements, nor exercise the right to frighten by excessive zeal. The standard of Rome floated over her little cantons, waving hither the floating refugee and exile for protection; but no deputation of knighthood heralded the immense obstacles to overcome by passing the lines of her enemies. So in the converson of mankind from idolatry. The intellectual forces of human nature must not only be cultivated but restrained. The slave removed from his shackles and his chains feels himself "nature's nobleman," and accordingly is held in obeyance by a manly and respectful fear of law. Renowned warriors, with proud, impetuous spirits, never in the absence of a vigorous self-restraint form the heroes of brilliant biography, seldom if ever becoming more than beacon lights of the world. Tell the infidel that Hannibal, Cæsar and Alexander, in their scuffles with armed men, acquired their triumph incomparably easier than they could restrain the passion which dictated and urged the struggle, he will tell you "I believe it"; but not less true is that elemental principle of Christianity—"The love of Christ constraineth us"; not in the sense of exceptional exhibitions of his miraculous power over men, but the uniform method of its application.

For the infidel to believe there is a God, is a speciality; but for him to believe in his perfections and attributes is quite another, neither of which properly spring from scholastic lore, but rather from an intellectual education acquired through a free and liberal observation of his handiwork. This truth is seen in history as well as in the life of nations. And though this precious "constraint" (see 2 Cor. 5: 14) may not be worth a straw in the estimation of him who feels that he needs no God to welcome and introduce him to a higher life when this earthly greatness shall be lost in the general wreck of nature, yet let that man engrave in letters of living light upon his soul this fact, that all his boasted sagacity and arrogant assumption, that infidelity is no fable, neither the religion of Christ a grand finality, will expire with the life which bartered away its manhood by crushing the better feelings of his humanity without disguise.

Self-restraint, then, is the first step into the vestibule which leads to the life beyond. "He that ruleth his spirit is greater than he who taketh a city," implies a lofty exercise of Christian Influence. God helps those who help themselves, and is ever near with his helping hand when a spark of virtue is struggling for a brighter life. Whether saint or sinner, we just begin to know ourselves, our capacity for wisdom and its acquirement, and dare begin upon the introduction of a new moral existence, by learning the voice of God in history, his presence in existence, and his divine appointments in the world to come.

In the case of the Atheist, no better cause for a new-born faith in God's existence, no better sight of his hand in the disposing of earthly events, or the character of his ministry need be felt, than to sit amid the scattered fragments of Romulus, the sculptured marbles of Aurelius, the busts of Cicero and Virgil, the statues of Cæsar and Augustus, Pompey's horses, and the trophies of Trajan, and reflect upon the progress of civilization. But to love God for the unspeakable gift of his Son; to realize in his creative and providential goodness that though aliens we have been made nigh by the "blood of Christ"; to acquire a conscientious faith in the divine theory that though it is not the property of every son to be a father, yet it is for every father to have a son, and that Christ is God's Son; to believe and confess these ethics of christianity, is to become acquainted with God; and through the affinity of a new-born faith and his properties as a father, we approach that bound of life where the veil of moral darkness is rent asunder, and the alphabet of a new and heavenly life is syllabled in golden words that will outlive all sorrow.

The deist, the atheist, and the mere skeptic, may believe it without insulting or shaming his manhood. They have long lived upon the suffrage of a superior Power, which has kept watch and ward over them in all of life's vicissitudes. Thrice happy will they be when the "disgusting thought" that the "coarse and sense-bound tribe" of earth, who adored the fisherman of Galilee as the herald of a world's salvation, shall vanish, and they shall dare, though breathless and blinded with joy, to be found upon their knees in utter helplessness, as they feel themselves but dead leaves swept by the winds of the universe. Thus they will never have occasion to sigh for national liberty as the clergy with uncovered heads ascend the tribune, denying the existence of God, abjuring the religion of the Savior, and calling on all men everywhere to dethrone them. The emblem of men's lives is the character of their sacred office, while the virtue of a nation is its reverence for a superior destiny. Whether it be an individual or nation, let them fail in this representative spirit of worship, and when the morning stars shall again sing together, and all the sons of God shout for joy, that constellation of national honor which shall bring the glory of their principalities within the gates of that celestial city, will show one star blotted from her galaxy for ever.

C. G. CARRE.

☞ Know the true value of time. A wise man counts his minutes. No idleness, no laziness, no procrastination. The present moment is only ours. Seneca observes, "we all complain of the shortness of time, but spend it in such a manner as if we had too much."

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 514. BOSTON, TUESDAY, AUGUST 8, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 21.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

HYMN.

When shall I wear the crown of life,
Be free from sorrow, sin and strife,
And see the Sun of endless day
In that bright world so far away?

When shall I hear those notes of praise,
And with the saints and angels raise
The heavenly song so pure and sweet,
In melting strains at Jesus' feet?

When shall I walk the streets of gold,
And see their glories all unfold,
And hear the heavenly arches ring,
Where nations do their honors bring?

When shall I see the crystal stream,
And all the trees in sunlight gleam
On either side, with fruit to give,
And leaves to heal that all may live?

When shall I see the King all crowned,
And hear from arch to arch resound,—
"Most glorious art Thou, the King,
Honor and praise to Thee we bring"?

Soon, soon I'll wear the crown so bright,
And strike the harp on glory's height,
And see the Sun of endless day
In that bright world not far away.

Peru, Ind. H. H. HALL.

THE FIRST RESURRECTION.

BY JOS. M. WEAVER.

The doctrine of a two-fold resurrection is denied by many of those who are teachers of the gospel. Many good men believe it to be a falsehood—some are bitter in their opposition to it, as though there was something in it hurtful to man, or dishonoring to God. They look upon those who believe and teach this doctrine, either as weak-minded or knavish, or at least fanatical.

Why they should so hate this doctrine is a mystery to me It is honorable to God, and it honors the saint of God in thus resurrecting him before and separate from the wicked. But the question to be decided is, Does the Bible teach it? If it does, we must receive it—if it does not, we, as Protestants, must reject it. "To the law and to the testimony."

The Scriptures teach that there shall be a first resurrection—a resurrection of the just—of the saints—separated from the wicked in time a thousand years.

1. There is a first resurrection. "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished. This is the first resurrection." "Blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection" (Rev. 20: 5, 6). Here is a plain statement of the doctrine—as plain as could be made. It is a recognized canon of interpretation of Scripture, that we shall take the plain, obvious meaning of a passage, in its statement, unless the context, or some other parts of the word, plainly demands otherwise. Does the context require us here to depart from the plain, obvious meaning of the text? Let those prove it who so assert. Are there other parts of the word requiring us to depart from the plain meaning of the passage? We have not found them. No truth established by God's word runs counter to this revealed truth. Why not then receive this text in its plain import—that there is a first resurrection. This first resurrection, of course, implies a second resurrection. The idea of this two-fold resurrection is found in all parts of the Bible; and also the idea of the just rising first. Let us examine a few passages.

Christ himself, in speaking to certain ones concerning a feast, tells them to "call the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind," and gives as a reason, that they could not recompense them, but they should be blessed, "for thou shalt be recompensed at the resurrection of the just" (Luke 14: 14). Why the resurrection of the just, if at the same time all—just and unjust—shall be raised? Why not say simply at the resurrection?

Again: Jesus, in answering the Sadducees, who denied the resurrection of any, used this language, "But they which shall be accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection from the dead (from among the dead, the original has it,) neither marry, nor are given in marriage" (Luke 20: 35). Why should Christ speak of a "worthiness" for a resurrection, if all were to be raised? Worthy, or unworthy, all shall be resurrected, but only those who are accounted worthy to obtain that world, or age (the millennial period), will be raised at the first resurrection. Paul, in writing to the Philippians, tells them of his efforts to reach a certain kind of resurrection. "If by any means I might attain unto the resurrection of the dead" (Phil. 3: 11). (In the original it is much stronger, ek toon nekroon, from among the dead). Why did Paul strive after the resurrection if all should reach it without effort? He knew that he would be resurrected whether he lived a christian life or not, but he also knew that it was necessary to struggle to reach the resurrection—the first resurrection, since it was confined to the righteous or just. So might we quote many other passages of the word to prove this point, but we deem it unnecessary. You may take your Bible and a Concordance, and examine, at your leisure, every passage which treats of the resurrection, and you will find this idea of a first resurrection—prior to the second—confined to the people of God. Wherever the two classes—the wicked and just—are mentioned together, you will invariably find the just mentioned first. Can you believe that this is by chance, or without design by the Holy Spirit? The Bible is inspired. All of it is truth. It was dictated by the Spirit of Wisdom. Each passage proceeded from infinite wisdom. No part of it—no passage—was simply thrown in to fill up, but each meant what was said—each is pregnant with instruction and important truth. Hence, when we find this truth mentioned in it, always and invariably, in the same order, we can but draw the conclusion that the Spirit intended to convey the idea of a two-fold resurrection—the first confined to the just, the second to the wicked.

2. The first resurrection is a thousand years prior to that of the wicked. This is plainly stated in the Bible. It requires no inference to obtain it from the word—no argument—no straining of Scripture—it is plainly stated. After the first resurrection, the Bible states there shall be the reign of Christ and his saints for a thousand years, and then the "rest of the dead," as distinguished from the saints raised, should be raised. "But the rest of the dead lived not again until the thousand years were finished" (Rev. 20: 5). But we are told this is the only place where such a doctrine is taught. Well, is it not sufficient that God should state a truth once? Shall we require Him to state and re-state truth before we receive it? If God says it here, and in plain words, why not receive it? What is there so terrible in the thought of a first resurrection—a thousand years before the wicked? Does it take any joy from the christian? Does it make men worse? By no means. It is a joy to the weary one of earth, stricken by the hand of death, in the person of his best friend. It leads men to seek unto it as was the case with Paul. It thrills the heart of the christian as he contemplates the hour when with all the just he shall "come forth" at the call of his Lord, at his second advent. Let us receive the fact, then, as a revealed one—revealed for our comfort and our information. The dead in Christ shall rise first at the coming of Christ, and be forever with him. Joy and bliss shall be theirs, for "blessed and holy is he that hath part in the first resurrection."—Western Recorder.

For the World's Crisis.

OPENING OF THE BOOKS.

"And the books were opened, and another book, which is the book of life; and the dead were judged out of those things written in the books, according to their works. And the sea gave up the dead which were in it; and death and hell delivered up the dead which were in them; and they were judged every man according to their works."—REV. 20: 12, 13.

Dear reader, here is a plain declaration of God that you will one day be brought into his presence, and certain books will be opened which will decide your future destiny. Would you like to know what books these are, and peruse them a little before that solemn event takes place? if so, listen a few moments, and we will endeavor to tell you. They are not like the plates that the Book of Mormon was found written on, snatched up into heaven, but are with us, or at least some of them are, enough for us to examine to see how the matter will appear with us at that time. If you will turn to John 12: 48, you will read, "He that rejecteth me and my words hath one that judgeth him; the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." At another time we hear Christ saying to his followers, "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now. Howbeit, when he, the Spirit of truth, is come, he will guide you into all truth."

By this language we learn that Christ did not tell them all that they would be judged by, but only a part; and that he says he did not speak of himself, "but the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment what I should say and what I should speak." Forty-ninth verse. Hence we find the apostles after the baptism of the Holy Spirit, which came from the same source as Christ's commands, finishing up the instructions from time to time as they could bear it; and lastly, he sent his angel to John on the Isle of Patmos to recapitulate some of the most prominent features of that book, which, dear reader, is no other than the one that will be brought forward at that time when all nations will be gathered into one grand assembly, and you and I shall be judged according as our works have been. The prophet Malachi tells us about the book of remembrance being written before Him, which no doubt will constitute another book at the judgment. How will that book show our daily walk to have been when laid beside Christ's teaching and the apostles'? Look into this matter. Do not put it off, waiting for a more convenient time, until you have put it off once too often; for these things are truth, or else they are not truth.

When Christ said "love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you and persecute you," did he mean what he said, or did he speak at random, think you? When he said, "If any man sue thee at the law, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also," and "give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away," was it not direct language, easy to understand? When he said "Whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart," will he hold those guiltless that are in the habit of doing it daily?

The Psalmist says "the words of the Lord are pure words, as silver tried in a furnace of earth seven times." Hide them in thy heart, dear reader, that they may purge out the old leaven. "Abstain from all appearance of evil." Remember that whoremongers and adulterers God will judge; and that we are not under a mere outside law, but the spirit, the inner man, must love purity. Christ said that "whosoever putteth away his wife, saving for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery, and whosoever marrieth her that is divorced committeth adultery." Many at the present time are putting away their companions, some in the letter and spirit both, others in the spirit only, but they are as much put away in the eyes of God as though they were a thousand miles apart, and will as really cause their companion to commit adultery in the heart, if nothing more. The human heart, the world over, seeks for a response to its own outgushings, and if it fails to find it in the companion it will go somewhere else. These are matters of fact known to all, and why not look the thing fair in the face, even if it is a delicate subject? We find it written in the book, and by that we shall be judged.

Can one become a member of Christ's body who does not first become a good member in his own family, faithful and true? If we may judge from appearances, we should say some who profess to love God would argue in this way: My natural propensities are so strong to do evil that I think the Lord will let me off a little, for "is it not a little sin?" Now Paul tells us that where the Spirit of the Lord is there is liberty. Not liberty to sin, but a liberating from sin. So we infer that all such need more of the Spirit of God. Are you in any way bound to sins through the lusts of the flesh, or the the lusts of the eyes, or the pride of life? Think of our forefathers, when bound under the government of England, they first declared their independence, then struggled long years until they got it. Think of our own loved country when rebellion was raised, the effort it took to put it down. Think of the tears, the blood, the pains, and the groans, and these for earthly things, which pass away; and shall not we count the cost and make an effort to be free, who are striving not for a corruptible crown but for an incorruptible one? Jesus said he gave them a new commandment, "That ye love one another." A precious command; but the enemy has set a trap here to catch souls; beware of it. Do not swallow down the wild grapes, thinking you are eating the fruit of the good olive tree; the distinction is easily made; the wild grapes are quite particular about the complexion, the features, the sex, and so on, while the fruit of the good olive tree has no regard for these things at all; but wherever the stamp of Christ is there will the heart of the true child of God go, and they have not got power enough to keep it from going there, neither have they power to bestow this kind of love that is a fruit of the Spirit without seeing a counterpart.

Other books will be opened at the judgment, but they do not so much concern us. That book that contains the law of Moses, or the law given to Moses, will decide for that people; and those that have had no written law, but have heeded the silent whisperings of the Spirit, and have in this way become a law unto themselves, will be rewarded accordingly; and so all will have justice done them. Those that have had the most light will be the most responsible, and surely no people ever had so much light as the present generation, having had the history and experience of the church from its infancy to its manhood.

LAURA ANN WHEELER.

Hawley, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRONOLOGY.—No. 2.

In searching for the time of our Savior's birth, we first apply to the Scriptures and then to history. In Matthew we read of the birth of Jesus, and the attempt of "Herod the King" to destroy him. Joseph and Mary fled into Egypt with the "young child," and did not return till the king died. Jesus must have been about a year old at this time. As the Scriptures give us no account of Herod's life, we must turn to history for the information. Josephus records Herod's promotion to the throne of Judea by the Romans; minutely describes his acts and the circumstances attending his death. He also mentions the dates of his kingship, its duration, and his age when he died.

As we are trying to produce a harmonious chronology from Josephus, we forbear making any quotations concerning Herod, except where some event in his life is mentioned in connection with an Olympiad. In the extracts, it will be noted that Herod's kingship has two dates; first, the Romans (Mark Antony and Augustus Cæsar) gave him the kingdom. From this point, he reigned thirty-seven years. But a rival king named Antigonus reigned in Jerusalem, supported by the Parthians; consequently Herod had to fight for three years, assisted by the Romans, before he took Jerusalem and overthrew Antigonus. From this point, he reigned thirty-four years. Here Herod's reign properly begins.

For the convenience of those who have not Josephus' works, we will make some extracts, beginning twenty-seven years before Herod's conquest, when Pompey the Great captured Jerusalem. This has a bearing on the subject of our inquiry, for it enables us to commence an Olympic table.

"So Pompey sent his lieutenant Piso with an army, and placed garrisons both in the city and in the palace, to secure them, and fortified the houses that joined to the temple. * * * And any one may hence learn how very great piety we exercise toward God, and the observance of his laws, since the priests were not at all hindered from their sacred ministrations by their fear during this siege; but did still, twice a day, in the morning, and about the ninth hour, offer their sacrifices on the altar; nor did they omit those sacrifices, if any melancholy accident happened by the stones that were thrown among them; for although the city was taken in the third month, on the day of the fast, in the one hundred seventy-ninth Olympiad, when Caius Antonius and Marcus Tullius Cicero were consuls, and the enemy then fell upon them, and cut the throats of those that were in the temple; yet could not those that offered the sacrifices be compelled to run away," etc. (Ant., b. xiv., c. 4, s. 2, 3.

HEROD RECEIVES HIS KINGDOM.

"But when the senate was dissolved, Antony and Cæsar went out of the senate house, with Herod between them, in order to offer sacrifices, and to lay up their decrees in the capitol. Antony also feasted Herod the first day of his reign. And thus did this man receive the kingdom, having obtained it in the hundred and eighty-fourth Olympiad, when Caius Domitius Calvinus was consul the second time, and Caius Asinius Pollio [the first time]. (Ant., b. xiv., c. 14, s. 5.)

HEROD'S REIGN OF THIRTY-FOUR YEARS BEGINS.

"This destruction befel the city of Jerusalem when Marcus Agrippa and Caninius Gallus were consuls at Rome, on the hundred eighty and fifth Olympiad, in the third month, on the solemnity of the fast, as if a periodical revolution of calamities had returned, since that which befel the Jews under Pompey, for the Jews were taken by him on the same day, and this was after twenty-seven years' time. So when Sosius [the Roman general] had dedicated a crown of gold to God, he marched away from Jerusalem, and carried Antigonus with him in bonds to Antony. * * * These men lost the government by their dissensions one with another; and it came to Herod the son of Antipater, who was of no more than a vulgar family, and of no eminent extraction, but one that was subject to other kings." Ant., b. xiv., c. 16.)

Although it may be a digression, it seems to be necessary to notice the word "consuls" which Josephus names with Olympic dates. They were two of the highest magistrates in Rome, next to the emperor in dignity. They entered upon their office on the first day of the year, and that year was known by their names. Dr. Jarvis has shown us that from the birth of Augustus to the death of Tiberius Cæsar, there were, including both extremes, one hundred pairs of consuls, or one hundred years. Various ancient lists of the "succession of consuls" are given which which agree with each other and confirm the record of our historian. Before arranging a table, I wish to give a few more extracts.

Newark, N. J. JOHN LYLE.

For the World's Crisis.

"IN THE BODY OR OUT OF THE BODY."—2 Cor. 12: 3.

But there surely must be some place called paradise this side of the new earth, for Paul said he knew a man above fourteen years previously, that "was caught up into paradise," and he there "heard unspeakable"—not unpronounceable—"words which it was not lawful for a man to utter." True, and in the first verse, 2 Cor. 12, he says, "I will come to visions and revelations of the Lord." So it seems that Paul had seen a vision, or had received a revelation from the Lord about that time, relating to scenes of paradise, and if you will follow him back in history, you will find him by Kuinorl's Chronology, A. D. 43, in Jerusalem, after his escape from Damascus, praying in the temple, where he falls into "a trance," and "sees the Lord."—Acts 9: 26, and 22: 17; Gal. 1: 18.

The second epistle to Corinth was written A. D. 57, according to Lardiner, and A. D. 43 taken from A. D. 57 leaves 14. See Robinson's Calmet, pp. 731 and 732, Art. Paul. So it might have been above 14 and less than 15, or about 14, as Dr. A. Clarke has it in his N. T. Commentary. Now admitting that it was during this "trance" when Paul was "rapt in visions," and he might well say, he could not tell whether he was "in the body" or "out of the body"; for when any one is in a trance and sees a vision, they cannot tell whether they are transported coporeally to the scene of action, or translated mentally to behold it; and to a living man either of these is probable enough, and have more than once occurred; but not to a dead man, for "the dead know not anything," and it is not even intimated that Paul was dead; consequently there was a vast difference between his case and the thief's; for it is claimed that the malefactor was dead, and the entire case may fail on the invalidity of that claim.

The phrase "caught up" is rendered by Geo. Campbell and Dr. McKnight, who was for forty years "president of the Westminster assembly of Divines," "conveyed away," i. e., transported, or translated, and this harmonizes perfectly with Dr. Adam Clarke's criticisms on a parallel sentence found in 2 Pet. 1: 21. Holy men of God spake "as they were moved" by the Holy Ghost. Crit. "So far were they from inventing these prophetic declarations concerning Christ, or any future event, that they were carried away 'OUT OF THEMSELVES' and out of the whole region as it were of human knowledge and conjecture." N. T. Com. p. 840.

Now there is not the remotest intimation that the "spirit of Paul was separated from his body," any more than in this case of the "holy men" who, like him, were "conveyed away" out of themselves. Paul's condition would seem to have been analogous to that of Peter, when "in a trance," on the housetop. Acts 10: 9–11. From verse 7, we learn that these revelations had been abundant with Paul, some of which he had uttered. See 1 Cor. 11: 23–27, and 15: 3; Gal. 1: 1, 11, 12, as samples: but this particular one he had kept secret. Some, who pretend to know, claim that Paul was a Freemason, and with such, this might satisfactorily account for his having kept it to himself; but there are doubtless other reasons.

It was unlawful for the Son to make known "the times or the seasons, which the Father hath put in his own power" (Acts 1: 7); for Christ to tell Paul what he would have him to do (9: 6), after committing the same to "faithful witnesses," and therefore sent him to Ananias, who was one of them, and he gave him the desired information.

Besides this, the time was not yet come for the scenes of paradise to be revealed, and it was reserved for the "beloved John" to give utterance to those words which it was unlawful for a man to utter in Paul's time; and John could not record all that he heard in vision; for when the seven thunders—of the Vatican—"uttered their voices," it was said to him, "Write them not." Paul, like John, and Isaiah (65: 66, and 2 Pet. 3: 6–13), makes the third heaven and paradise one and the same place. The first perished by water; the second are now "reserved unto fire"; the third are still future, and exist as yet in the purposes and plans of God only; but will be paradise to which Paul was in vision, "caught up," "conveyed away," "carried forward"; and whether in himself, or out of himself, was somebody and somewhere; but how are you going to get something TO nothing, or somebody to nowhere; and yet this is the very thing that all are trying to do; who will have it that Paul was literally carried off, "in body or spirit," to a place which is not yet in existence. Undoubtedly, it was either "a vision, or a revelation." May the Lord hasten the reality and bring you and me "into PARADISE."

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

For the World's Crisis.

UNFULFILLED PROPHECY.

MR. EDITOR:—In your last paper was an article of much interest, over the signature of "B. Spaulding," in which a statement is made that many of the prophecies are yet unfulfilled; and the question is asked, "Will they be fulfilled before or after Jesus comes?" And the writer adds, "I would like to see the question answered." Now with your leave, Mr. Editor, "I would like" to make a few suggestions leading towards an answer to this all important question. If we cannot turn to the page of history on which is plainly written the fulfillment of any one of the "lively oracles of God," then it is safe to consider every one such part of the prophecies unfulfilled. By this test, it will be easy lo learn what prophecies relate to the past and the future.

Then to the point in question;—how much of the unfulfilled portion is to be accomplished before Jesus comes? By a careful comparison of "Scripture with Scripture," we need not be long in the dark. There is much harmony among the students of prophecy on the three principal references I shall give, or rather the harmony of views in relation to the "great tribulation" of Dan. 12th and Matt. 24th chapters. It is for me to point out how completely these compare with Rev. 6th chapter. That "time of trouble such as never was since there was a nation, nor ever shall be afterwards," must be in the future. And it must be after the Lord enters upon the work of "judging the living (nations) at his appearing." The dead (individually) are to be "judged in (or during) his kingdom." This latter is outside of our question for the present.

I suppose the real question to be,—in what stage of this work of "judgment of the quick," living, will the Lord Jesus come for his saints? Are there not two aspects of his coming fairly presented in the Bible? One coming is represented as private—as a "thief in the night," and the other a public coming, as "in the clouds of heaven, and every eye shall see him." I have given three passages for comparison, and wish to add a fourth. Ezek. 14: 13, 17, 19, 21, God announces his judgments on the wicked nations by means of four instrumentalities, viz., WAR, FAMINE, PESTILENCE and "NOISOME BEASTS." Now see in the reference to Matthew's account, how exactly our Lord says these judgments should be accomplished at his coming! Now turn to the 6th of Revelation, and we find these identical judgments are to follow each other in the precise order given by Ezekiel and Matthew. At the opening of the first seal the Lord is seen on a white horse, having but one crown on his head; in chapter 19th, on the same white horse, many crowns, but "riding forth from conquering to conquer." Then follow the four forms of judgments in the opening of the three next seals. I will not remark on the opening of the fifth seal, relating to the terrible persecution, referred to by Christ in connection with the time of his coming.

My desire is to relieve, if possible, this question from unnecessary obscurity arising from our preconceived opinions. Does not the Lord give christians of the Philadelphia stamp, the express promise that "they shall escape all these things, and stand before the Son of man"? He says "when these things begin to come to pass, then look up and rejoice, for your redemption is nigh." However the Laodicean christians must pass through the fire of persecution under the fifth seal, all who have the Philadelphia characteristics are to be "kept from this hour of temptation which is coming upon all the world." They are to "enter into their chambers and hide themselves till the storm is overpast." To all "who look for him," will he "thus appear," though to the world it will be as unobserved as the "thief in the night." If two are in the mill one will be taken and the other left; if two in one bed one will be taken, the other left; and so of two in the same field, "the one be taken and the other left." In some parts of the world it will be in the night time, so that the "two will be in one bed," while in other parts of the world, daytime, when men are in the field together, and women at their ordinary avocations. This, I apprehend to be the immediate question for us; so soon as the great signs of "distress of nations" begin to come, then we are to look up.

D. CAMPBELL.

REPROOF.—The nail of reproof, says an old writer, must be well oiled in kindness before it is driven home. It should fall like the gentle dew, and not like the rushing hailstorm. Our manner must be tender and winning. The Scriptures recommend gentleness and kindness. When St. Paul has a reproof to administer to delinquent christians, how does he temper it with gentleness and praise!

For the World's Crisis.

WAIFS.

In religion, as well as in other spheres of knowledge, we love novelty, and as far as the consistency of our lives is concerned, it is no innovation to try our hands and hearts at the work of saving men in new fields, subject only to the tenets of our Great Teacher, who is "over all, God blessed forever."

In this quiet work of christianity men may and do honestly differ respecting the ways and means of advancing its merits. The following opinions are my own, governed and restrained only by the happy character of the work and its blessed results.

The right of private judgment is indisputable in religion as in secular matters, while the scope, power, and tendency of the gospel is the only limitation of this umpire of reason. That man is confessedly a bold, independent thinker, who in this age of conventional orthodoxy and Bridgewater treatises dare think and avow that the world, or a part, may be saved without being pillowed and cradled in a hammock of orthodox-credo-genealogy, and fortunate, too, if in some unguarded hour, he be not unceremoniously arraigned before an orthdox tribunal.

Principles are immortal, and though often wretchedly perverted are still the levers of society, and preserve the balance of power in regenerating a lost and alienated world, and bringing it back to God. In our amiable character of missionaries, religious economy is as necessary as patience; therefore charitably bestow on us liberal latitude for ingenuity of thought in working out our earthly mission in the good of the race. Trusting that this "occasional waif" may not all result in tares, I submit in brief style these thoughts as they occur.

Superficial minds may see a resemblance between the religion of Jesus Christ and the superstitious worship of the idol and his priest, but it should be remembered that while mythology cradled in her lap the philosophic history of races, whose political security and ultimate renown rested upon the permanent amalgamation of civil and divine law, we should not forget that the religion of Christ in his character of Savior, is nothing but a simple digest of reasonable influences left in the world and made palpably elevating and saving through a recognition of a divine sovereignty, whose power and glory in the universe changes all the current of history, overrules the machinations of his enemies, brings light out of darkness, order out of confusion, and urges forward the mighty tide of events towards a grand and glorious consummation.

This view of religion will, no doubt, elicit flaming shouts of dissension from the parasites of doctrine and dogma; but the three brief years of missionary toil of this man, who was in that age of idolatry regarded by some as the Son of God because his profound wisdom rendered the philosophy of the heathen indefensible, convincing not a few that such a source of "reason" (see Luke 2: 46) must be the fountain of all law, may prove to the skeptical that his influence alone was the religion of heaven, when they view it mirrored through history in the growth of public and private morals, in a higher tone of fidelity and duty. See Rom. 13: 1–4. Hence is felt that happy truism—"Virtue brings her own reward," and is seen in the happy effects of social intercourse, resulting in inherent longing after the unseen and the beautiful. This is the internal beauty of his life and power among man.

"The fool hath said in his heart, there is no God;" but this false and dangerous liberalism, accompanied by the sacrifice of a quiet independence, a virtuous self-respect, a crucifying self-restraint, and a total repudiation of the spirit of patience. He who hath so eclipsed God from the soul, as to be conversant with the written life of Jesus of Nazareth, and who cannot—will not behold anything wonderful in his poverty, wonderful in his zeal, wonderful in his faith, wonderful in his fortitude, and wonderful in his death, hath in his pride and self-sufficiency despised humiliation, only lives to prove his own existence, and that that existence is something besides gross, miserable matter. He may with Plato contemn the foul deeds, the degrading transformation which Homer imputes to the gods of Greece, but to contemn the palpable evidences of divinity in one whose advent among nations and their consequent revolutions, gave credit to his absolute will over the morals which governed the world, is inchoate heathenism.

Let this man, whose moral statue has shrunk into a miserable and hideous decrepitude, witness the sanguinary struggle between the spirit and the brutality of sense which shook the world for three hundred years. Let him then graciously view him whom we call Christ in his miracles of life and death, when Pagan Rome, amid the pomp and pride and the "noise of her viols," caught sight of his fleshly habiliments, and heard the whisper of her destiny from the shore of Galilee, looked at the grains of sand beneath her feet and beheld the archtype of herself.

Let him follow "this man" in his march across the realms and through the ages, the pathway of his chariot be flooded with the philosophic host whose sensual idoology had dictated laws and vassaled kings; tell him to hear this "Bethlehem plebian" speak, and the r boasted theocrary would die in a scene of moral debauchery. Can he perceive any delicious gleam of sunlight here, or is it only a vulgar curiosity, a novel and barbaric superstition?

Alexander used to acknowledge his origin in the abodes of divinity, and Gibbon, who never bent the knee to God in prayer, could sit amid the ruins of the capitol and contemplate its august remains, owning the intervention of a superior destiny. Let the man who will not acknowledge God, descend with me into the lists whither historians have invited us, and it is a miracle if he does not deny his own identity.

But the victorious proselyte is no standard for admiration, not to say of emulation. It is said that—"From sedition's waves, the worst of mortals may emerge with honor," and we may add, with a quiet independence, too.

But if we invite reinforcements to defend truth, we must not rehearse the particular discouragements, nor exercise the right to frighten by excessive zeal. The standard of Rome floated over her little cantons, waving hither the floating refugee and exile for protection; but no deputation of knighthood heralded the immense obstacles to overcome by passing the lines of her enemies. So in the converson of mankind from idolatry. The intellectual forces of human nature must not only be cultivated but restrained. The slave removed from his shackles and his chains feels himself "nature's nobleman," and accordingly is held in obeyance by a manly and respectful fear of law. Renowned warriors, with proud, impetuous spirits, never in the absence of a vigorous self-restraint form the heroes of brilliant biography, seldom if ever becoming more than beacon lights of the world. Tell the infidel that Hannibal, Cæsar and Alexander, in their scuffles with armed men, acquired their triumph incomparably easier than they could restrain the passion which dictated and urged the struggle, he will tell you "I believe it"; but not less true is that elemental principle of Christianity—"The love of Christ constraineth us"; not in the sense of exceptional exhibitions of his miraculous power over men, but the uniform method of its application.

For the infidel to believe there is a God, is a speciality; but for him to believe in his perfections and attributes is quite another, neither of which properly spring from scholastic lore, but rather from an intellectual education acquired through a free and liberal observation of his handiwork. This truth is seen in history as well as in the life of nations. And though this precious "constraint" (see 2 Cor. 5: 14) may not be worth a straw in the estimation of him who feels that he needs no God to welcome and introduce him to a higher life when this earthly greatness shall be lost in the general wreck of nature, yet let that man engrave in letters of living light upon his soul this fact, that all his boasted sagacity and arrogant assumption, that infidelity is no fable, neither the religion of Christ a grand finality, will expire with the life which bartered away its manhood by crushing the better feelings of his humanity without disguise.

Self-restraint, then, is the first step into the vestibule which leads to the life beyond. "He that ruleth his spirit is greater than he who taketh a city," implies a lofty exercise of Christian Influence. God helps those who help themselves, and is ever near with his helping hand when a spark of virtue is struggling for a brighter life. Whether saint or sinner, we just begin to know ourselves, our capacity for wisdom and its acquirement, and dare begin upon the introduction of a new moral existence, by learning the voice of God in history, his presence in existence, and his divine appointments in the world to come.

In the case of the Atheist, no better cause for a new-born faith in God's existence, no better sight of his hand in the disposing of earthly events, or the character of his ministry need be felt, than to sit amid the scattered fragments of Romulus, the sculptured marbles of Aurelius, the busts of Cicero and Virgil, the statues of Cæsar and Augustus, Pompey's horses, and the trophies of Trajan, and reflect upon the progress of civilization. But to love God for the unspeakable gift of his Son; to realize in his creative and providential goodness that though aliens we have been made nigh by the "blood of Christ"; to acquire a conscientious faith in the divine theory that though it is not the property of every son to be a father, yet it is for every father to have a son, and that Christ is God's Son; to believe and confess these ethics of christianity, is to become acquainted with God; and through the affinity of a new-born faith and his properties as a father, we approach that bound of life where the veil of moral darkness is rent asunder, and the alphabet of a new and heavenly life is syllabled in golden words that will outlive all sorrow.

The deist, the atheist, and the mere skeptic, may believe it without insulting or shaming his manhood. They have long lived upon the suffrage of a superior Power, which has kept watch and ward over them in all of life's vicissitudes. Thrice happy will they be when the "disgusting thought" that the "coarse and sense-bound tribe" of earth, who adored the fisherman of Galilee as the herald of a world's salvation, shall vanish, and they shall dare, though breathless and blinded with joy, to be found upon their knees in utter helplessness, as they feel themselves but dead leaves swept by the winds of the universe. Thus they will never have occasion to sigh for national liberty as the clergy with uncovered heads ascend the tribune, denying the existence of God, abjuring the religion of the Savior, and calling on all men everywhere to dethrone them. The emblem of men's lives is the character of their sacred office, while the virtue of a nation is its reverence for a superior destiny. Whether it be an individual or nation, let them fail in this representative spirit of worship, and when the morning stars shall again sing together, and all the sons of God shout for joy, that constellation of national honor which shall bring the glory of their principalities within the gates of that celestial city, will show one star blotted from her galaxy for ever.

C. G. CARRE.

☞ Know the true value of time. A wise man counts his minutes. No idleness, no laziness, no procrastination. The present moment is only ours. Seneca observes, "we all complain of the shortness of time, but spend it in such a manner as if we had too much."

For the World's Crisis.

NOTES BY THE WAY.

It is interesting to our Advent brethren and friends to know how the work is going in other places.

In Boston we found them in a good, solid condition, as usual. In Lynn, a blessed good time. Portsmouth, holding on yet. Biddeford, growing in grace and numbers.

Carthage, Me. This is a new field, lately broken up by Bro. John Wheeler. God blessed the feeble instrument in giving the light and truth to the whole town, many of which, seeing the truth, embraced it, and were converted to it and to God, before the devil and sectarianism got fortified, and truth triumphed; although there was an attack made, but too late to work a flank movement, for God had got some of the most active and best qualified men enlisted in his cause. We found a young, strong team, ready to work. We arrived on Thursday. Found the brethren had come from other places ready to work.

The meeting was held in Bro. Staples' new barn, one hundred and twenty-five feet long and forty-five wide; a large hay rack for a pulpit, and all things in the best order. After the curiosity was satisfied, we had a blessed time in presenting the truth, which took both ears and hearts, so the chippering of the barn swallows, the cock crowing, the ass braying, and children crying, did not distract the attention. On Saturday P. M. we introduced the subject of "church order" in a mild form, of which no one was afraid, and twenty-eight joined at once; others will soon. About forty partook of the sacrament in the evening. Sunday it rained without, and within God helped and blessed the people. Not a jarring string of discord, although different elements were present. I never saw Moses' disciples so quiet so long before, without even introducing their hobby. Many owe their thanks to Bro. Staples' family for the good accommodation and provision so willingly given. All the brethren in town were very generous. Bro. Wheeler has reason to thank God for the great work done in Carthage; but look out, Bro. Wheeler, as the ground is broken up, and the wheat is well growing, look out for tares; the devil knows where to work.

Weld Pond. Although it was Monday, and in the midst of haying, the town hall was well filled. After preaching, a number of good warm testimonials from young converts were given, which did me good. They had the glorious sound. Three of them went down under water at three o'clock, and were resurrected praising God.

At Britton's Mills. Had an intellectual congregation. A good time in presenting our hope. Went home with Bro. Hagget up on Bear mountain, seven hundred feet rise in one mile; but there was one blessing there for me, i. e., I did not have to fight musquitoes as I had the three nights before; either the hill was so steep they could not get up, or so cold they were stiff. We had to build a fire to be comfortable July 5th, but I found a good home with Bro. Hagget and wife.

South Livermore. Preached to a few at five P. M. Next day started for West Poland, calling on a number scattered on the way. Found them friends indeed, holding on and standing out from the popular current of pretended christianity.

West Poland, the old homestead for pilgrims ever since 1840. Bro. Megquier has stood through the tarrying times, with others that are ready to start again. Sunday morning was pleasant, and the teams came from all quarters. It looked like an old fashioned Methodist quarterly meeting to see them come from twenty miles around. The Lord blessed the meeting wonderfully. The signs of the times and prophetic arguments were received with joy by the brethren, and many praised the Lord for the privilege of being present. Three started anew, and a Methodist who was visiting in the place got burnt out in the third meeting, and confessed that the preacher had hit him when he told them he believed there were thieves in the congregation stealing Advent preaching. Said he, "I have stolen three sermons before to-day, and to-day three more, and now I am detected," and confessed for the first time amid the shouts of those that knew him. There were other thieves present that showed guilt, and will have to confess or be kept in the dark dungeon until they will. Poland will not forget this meeting very soon. God owned his word.

Mabrey Hill in Casco. Here the Lord has done a great work since I was there last fall. Thirty have come out and been baptized. Nine in one family, and seven in another. They are in a good state to work for the Lord, and are at it, Bro. Libby taking the oversight.

Mechanic Falls. Visited the few here that have been opposed every step, but yet live. We made an attack on the enemy and wounded a number. The brethren felt encouraged.

Portland, an old, fortified place, with experienced officers, that have stood through the battle of '43, and will not flinch when called into another battle, which will be soon; for the church must prophecy again, or the Scriptures will be broken.

Seabrook, N. H. This is a providential opening. Over three hundred at the first meeting. I never saw better attention. There not being any meeting in either meeting-house, it was a favorable time. I think the seed will take root. Now is the time to hunt up new places.

H. MUNGER.

For the World's Crisis.

TAKE NOTICE.

A private letter from a christian brother at the South, informs me that a large and prosperous Freedmen's school and meeting is now, through the malice of Satan, who "has come down in great wrath, knowing that his time is short," and who "worketh in the hearts of the" rebel "children of disobedience," broken up because they have no place to continue their meetings. Meetings are held out of doors, when the weather permits. If their work is continued they must purchase or build a place. Would it not be a pleasant thing to have those poor oppressed and persecuted christians mention your name before the Lord, saying, "He loveth our nation, and hath built us a synagogue"? Those who wish to take hold of this matter practically, now have an opportunity. "I propose to move immediately on" the Devil's "works" in this or other directions, and will gladly aid in putting the offerings of contributors into the hands of distributors, but without publishing lists of names, or going into great and complicated machinery to do it. Yours, truly,

H. L. HASTINGS.

Scriptural Tract Repository, 19 Lindall St., Boston, July 22, 1865.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Aug. 8, 1865.

☞ Bills!, Bills!!

Our subscribers in the New England States who are owing $2.00 and over, will find bills in their papers this week for the amount due at the close of the volume in September. We trust they will receive a prompt and generous response from all concerned. Bills to those indebted in other States will be sent out next week.

A Fast.

As the time of our great annual campmeeting at Wilbraham is at hand, we would propose to those who are interested in its welfare, that Friday, August 18th, be a day of fasting and special prayer to the Lord in behalf of this important meeting, that it may be the most profitable of any one ever held in that consecrated spot.

Camp Wilbraham.

We purpose to have a meeting on the camp-ground at Wilbraham, Lord's day, Aug. 20th, (provided the weather is favorable), at 10½ o'clock A. M., and one o'clock P. M. Those who can, will do well to come on Friday or Saturday, 18th and 19th, and put up their tents, so as to be all ready at the great meeting the following week. If any wish to come before Saturday, Aug. 19th, they will find good company there all the week before the commencement of the campmeeting. But in case they come before Saturday, they will do well to bring their provision.

☞ Appointments.

As we purpose to get our paper off one day earlier than usual campmeeting week, those who wish to have appointments inserted, should send them so that they may be received as early as Monday morning, August 21st.

"WRITTEN CREDENTIALS."

Those who come as delegates or preachers, to the annual meeting of the Advent Christian Association, at Wilbraham, Aug. 22d, should not forget to comply with the following regulations adopted by the Association. We give them as inserted in the call for the meeting. See notice in another column.

Remember ☞ That all delegates sent by churches to the Advent Christian Association must be furnished with written credentials, or forfeit their right to membership. ☜

Also remember ☞ That preachers offering their names as members of this Association must bring a certificate of good character from a christian church, and show that they themselves are co-operating with this Society.

The following might answer as a form for a delegate:—

This is to certify that ——— was duly appointed by the church in ——— to act as a delegate at the annual meeting of the Advent Christian Association, to be held Aug. 22d, at the Wilbraham Campmeeting.

The following for a preacher:—

This is to certify that ——— is a preacher of the gospel, sustaining a christian character.

The foregoing certificates should be signed by the elders, or any others authorized by the church.

NOT SATISFIED.

It appears that some are still disposed to agitate the spirit of strife between the North and South. People in these last hours of peril seem to be very uneasy unless they are in the midst of exciting scenes. It is evidently Satan's policy to have it so, in order that they shall not have time to stop to look at the signs of the times, which are now speaking so plainly that our Savior is about to appear in glory, to set up his everlasting kingdom. The blind are leading the blind, and must fall together.

A meeting of the friends of Jeff. Davis was held in New York, July 31st, for the purpose of devising means to obtain a "fair and full defense" of him and his associates. The reporter of the meeting says, "they regarded the failure of the rebellion as but temporary; the spirit that originated it still lives, and by the assistance of their friends at the North it can be successful in another way."

No doubt many would be glad to hear the cannon roar again upon the field of blood and carnage. The political skies look threatening, dark and gloomy.

THE VOICE OF THE WEST.

We are much pleased with the "Voice of the West," edited by Bro. Himes. There is not a paper among our many exchanges that we are so glad to see as that. It is a live paper, and should have a world-wide circulation, because it is adapted to the times in which we live. Those who take it will get the worth of their money.

IT MUST BE PUBLISHED.

The second personal coming of Christ must be published to the world. It must be warned, and if the popular ministers will not preach it, then some other medium will be chosen to sound the alarm. These thoughts have been suggested by the following from the New York World of July 25th, 1865:—

CHRIST'S SECOND COMING. Is it Pre or Post-Millennial? with a Reply to Prof. Shedd on Eschatology. By the Rev. R. C. Shimeall, of the New York Presbytery. New York: Trow. 1865.

It is probably impossible to over-estimate the importance of the subjects which Mr. Shimeall discusses and exhausts in this volume of some five hundred pages. The first part of the work is devoted to the somewhat unreasonably vexed question of the second coming of Christ. The author addresses an argumentative appeal to ten clergymen of eminence, including the late Bishop Potter, who cannot, certainly, and Mr. Henry Ward Beecher, who probably will not, answer him, to reconsider their habitual "post-millennialism," and ascertain, while there is yet time, whether they may may not be wholly in the wrong; and it is very certain that if these clergymen, failing to respond to his appeal, should eventually prove to have been in the wrong, the consequences both to themselves and to their congregations must be such as it is by no means agreeable to contemplate.

We are standing now, according to Mr. Shimeall, within some three years of the most eventful period of human history. Historic chronology will close, as this devoted student of the mystical "second coming" assures us, with the year 1868, a circumstance in the highest degree worth considering by all those political characters who are now "fashing their souls" overmuch with consultations and devices concerning the next presidential election. Who can, with any complacency, anticipate the Millennium coming upon us, "as a thief in the night," while men are advocating the claims of General Butler to the suffrages of the Union, and Secretary Stanton still occupies the War office? If men are to be judged according to the company they keep, how will the people of this country fare, if the dreadful day of final account, when "solvet sæclum in favilla," shall find them indorsing either of these worthies?

It should be said that Mr. Shimeall, however, while he asserts the "pre-millennial" coming of Christ, argues earnestly against the pre-millennial" conflagration of all things. He postpones, indeed, the rolling up of the heavens and the earth as a scroll to the year 2868; and although he regards the existing coal beds of the earth and the exuding petroleum in which Pennsylvania now heedlessly rejoices as the destined agents of the awful eventual change which awaits our pleasant globe, his arguments cannot possibly be used by unprincipled speculators to affect the markets in respect either of anthracite wines or of naptha wells.

Perhaps the most interesting part of Mr. Shimeall's work, and that with which "post millennial" divines will find it hardest to deal, is the fourth section of the third chapter of his "Eschatology," in which he recites and considers the "authentic history of Chiliasm" since the Reformation. In this section he confronts Professor Shedd with the illustrious and almost inspired Joseph Mede, and with millennarian authorities of no less weight than John Wesley, Charles Augustus Toplady and Bishop Heber.

Such men as these may have been utterly in the dark, mad, crude and incompetent, but if this was the case why does their spirit rule in the churches, and why are their psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, in all lands where the English tongue is spoken, the delight and consolation of believers?"

POPULAR EXTRAVAGANCE.

The extravagance manifested by American people at the present time is alarming, because it is so unchristian, and so destructive financially as well as morally. And yet it is rapidly advancing. What is worse than all the rest, very many professors of religion are giving their sanction, and adopting the costly apparel, food, and all other luxuries, so called, that can be obtained. The Bible instruction on this point seems to be almost utterly disregarded, as a matter unworthy of their notice.

There is a general conformity to the world, and the consequence is, a cold, dead formality in the service of the Lord; which results in keeping the unconverted from seeking the Lord. This great evil is increasing rapidly, and we may expect to see more instead of less, as we approach the day of the Lord.

Says a New York correspondent of the Boston Journal:—

"The truth is, extravagance is becoming chronic with us, not by reason of the difference between currency and gold—for we were paying less for most market articles when gold was at 250 than we are to-day—but by reason of the indifference with which our easy going people regard an advance in prices. We desire to assail this indifference as a social evil, especially where it is practiced by the rich. They can afford it. The vast population, living from hand to mouth on their daily earnings, cannot afford it.

When the country has fairly settled into a condition of peace, and the different industries have reverted to their normal state, the mere cost of living in New York ought not be over half what it is in London. At present, it is about from fifty to seventy-five per cent. higher. England is one vast workshop. The United States comprise one grand farm. This will be their true relative condition for the time of the living generation at least. If the Lancashire operative is sometimes pinched for his loaf of bread, you can account for it in the fact that it has to be imported for him. No such reason can be urged for famine prices in New York."

INQUIRY.

BRO. GRANT:—Will you please inform through the Crisis which would be the best and cheapest way to go to Alton Bay from Augusta and vicinity? Will there be any reduction of fare from Boston or Portland?

Your Bro., HORACE G. SMILEY.

The best route is from Portland, Me., to Dover, N. H., then on the Winnipiseogee R. R. to Alton Bay. There will probably be a reduction of fare from Portland and Boston, which will be announced through the Crisis.

SLAVERY ENDED.

We think the abolition of slavery in the United States is nearly accomplished, but a large number of the slaves are in a sad condition, especially on the large plantations.

The slave-holders admit that slavery is at an end.

The Mobile Register, which was the leading paper in the Gulf States before the rebellion, excepting New Orleans, and said to be the most influential, has the following from its editor, Hon. John Forsyth, who is now returned to his post:—

"In respect to the emancipation oath, we give the counsel to our readers upon which we have acted ourselves. Whether the act of emancipation has been legally and constitutionally completed or not, slavery is as dead as Julius Cæsar. No human power can resurrect it, and we candidly admit that if that power rested in our single hand, we would not, under present circumstances, exert it. And we can say this much without changing one of our life-long opinions on the benificence of the institution as the very best form of organized labor, for mankind at large, and for the well-being of the slave in particular. But what are opinions worth against the fixed and unalterable sentiments of the civilized and semi-civilized world? What do they avail when the sword has just declared against them? The inexorable fact is, that the institution of slavery is uprooted in the land, and if we had the power to re-establish it, it would be through such a process of conflict and turmoil as to make the game not worth the candle. It is the part of good sense to accept facts, and the death of African slavery at the South is one of those unchangable and unchallengeable facts we accept without a moment's hesitation. The deed is done; let us make the best of it, and shape our course upon it as a stern fait accompli. Now, the deed being virtually done and beyond recall, let it be constitutionally done, and let every Southern State in convention at once endorse the decree which the will of God, the edge of the sword, and the voice of the nations of the earth seem to have united in promulgating."

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$1206.10
A friend	1.00
Collected by A. Ross	3.68
C. and H. Smith	5.00
A young brother (to scatter tracts to the poor.)	10.00
—— Hall	5.00

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$1096.26
L. M. Veasey	1.00
C. & H. Smith	4.50
Sammy Morrill	.05
A. W. B	2.00
H. McClary	1.00

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

W. B. H., Boston, Mass	$5.00
James Douglass, West Troy, N. Y	5.00
A. M. L., North Weare, N. H	5.00
N. D. B., Hallowell, Me	2.00
Mrs. L. S. Dinsmore, Hallowell, Me	1.00
Betsy C. Bancroft, Ashburnham, Mass	.50
A sister	5.00
M. L. Colton, Shabbona Grove, Ill	.70
"Tariffville," Ct	2.00
E. D. Hitchcock, Somersville, Ct	1.00
Geo. E. Hooper, No. Hydepark, Vt	1.00
"Brunswick," Me	5.00
Maria Drury, Roxbury, Mass	1.00
D., Farmington, N. H	1.00
Geo. S. Harwood, No. Swansea, Mass	10.00
J. B. Walker, Athol Depot	1.78
Wm. Christian, Norwalk, O	.50
———, East Weare, N. H	5.00
A sister in New Hampshire	2.00
Amos Scripture, Mason Village, N. H	1.00
"Friends"	10.00
Mrs. N. J. Humphrey, Yarmouth, Me	1.13
A young brother	5.00
Friends, Kennebunk, Me	1.10
N. Shumway, Danielsonville, Ct	.50
Mrs. C. Barnes, Brookfield, Ct	.50
Mrs. M. Sunderland	5.00
Louisa Barber, River Point, R. I	1.00
S. Cooper, Windsor, Ct	2.00
L. M. Veazey	1.00
J. W. Sharick, Thedford, Mich	1.50
Husband and Wife, Yarmouth, Me	5.00
A friend, Providence, R. I	3.00
John Stockwell, Jr., Lancaster, N. H	5.00
Sarah M. Brown & sister, E. Walpole, Ms	.60
A friend	1.50
Mrs. A. Hovey, Quincy, Mass	5.00
A sister, through E. Owen	1.00
Bennie, a little freedman, N. J	.13

For the World's Crisis.

WILBRAHAM CAMPMEETING.

For the information of those that have written me about the tent ground, and enlarging the circuit, etc., I would say, the circuit will not be enlarged, and all will have their former places kept for them, in the circuit, until Wednesday morning, as usual. Some of the small ones in the rear, sometimes have to be set back to make room for a larger one, but there is plenty of good tent room in rear of the circuit for family tents, and will be, any time. None need to fear the ground will all be taken up. If there any who are not going to occupy their ground this year, they would do us a favor to inform me as early as possible, so that we can accommodate others with their location earlier than Wednesday, as we want the circuit filled Tuesday.

We expect a great and good meeting. The community are looking forward to the meeting with interest. We are putting backs to the seats, so that you will sit more comfortably. "To hear a long, tedious discourse, without something to rest the back against, is too bad," said a hearer last year. Well, we will put a back to the seat this year, and try to select such preachers as will give the meat without the shucks. Don't make us listen to sermons one and a half hours long. One sister told me she sat and heard one man preach six hours in one day, and it made her sick of hearing him. Don't, for heaven's sake, my brother, intrude upon patience, good manners, and long suffering. We don't expect it at campmeeting. So come and see, for time is short, and we shall have but few, if any more campmeetings.

H. MUNGER.

For the World's Crisis.

EXPLANATION.

Having said what was necessary to satisfy the unprejudiced mind, I feel no disposition to add anything more on the subject of astronomy. But if Prof. Hudson thinks that I had any idea of "impeaching" "Mr. X.," a word of explanation is required, for it would much grieve me should one think me capable of resorting to abuse while employed in defense of the cause of Christ.

As I wish to be brief, if the reader will refer to what I have said, he will save me the trouble of copying it here; so I will only add that I did not mean to convey the idea that "Mr. X." was not a good astronomer, but that the tables he used were incorrect. In proof of which, it will be remembered that before seeing the result of his calculations, I asked whether he had proved his tables or not? and being informed that he had not, I at once remarked that his work then amounted to nothing; for, however correct his tables may be in making the eclipses of the present day, they must be tested by ancient eclipses, before they can be relied on in making those of that age. But this is no little trouble. It is more than most astronomers are willing to undertake; which accounts for the incorrectness of most tables in making those eclipses. I spent nearly two years in calculating test eclipses, before I had confidence enough in my tables to know whether they could be relied on in making those ancient eclipses.

I remarked at the time, that the mistake which "Mr. X." made of two minutes and thirty-one seconds, in changing apparent to true time, was unworthy of notice; but when I called to mind that though Prof. Hudson had put me down as too "ignorant" to be worthy of notice, he, in his six months' effort to expose my errors, had not yet discovered a real error of a single minute, it appeared a little remarkable that there should have been such an obvious mistake on the part of this distinguished astronomer. But slight mistakes like this, which "Mr. X." can correct, should not lessen him in our estimation as an astronomer.

I admit that we do not always know ourselves, but I am disposed to believe that I am ready to acknowledge any error into which I may have fallen, as soon as any one may be able to point it out.

I learn that Prof. Hudson has "just received from Germany a Prize Essay on the eclipses of Ptolemy," by which I am told that he "is enabled to prove the correctness of Ptolemy's Canon"; and since it is well known that I am no prophet, in order to enable the reader to judge whether I know any thing about the calculation of eclipses, I will now, before his article comes out, promise the reader that he will neither in that, nor any other book on earth, find any astronomer that claims to make all of the eclipses of Ptolemy, according to the record. As this is my last article, I wish the reader to understand me distinctly; I mean that Bro. Hudson will never find any astronomer that claims to make the eclipse of Mar. 6th, A. D. 136, as full as Ptolemy calls for, that is, six digits, or "half its diameter"; and with the SAME TABLES make another of "three digits" on the 8th of March, B. C. 720. Now, reader, bear this in mind; for as soon as Prof. Hudson does this, we all, with him, will admit that Thurman knows nothing about eclipses.

Those who carelessly run over Prof. Hudson's articles conclude that we differ widely; but by careful discrimination it will be discovered that, so far as the question at issue is concerned, we have been together throughout the examinations. For that which I affirm is, that no astronomical tables can make Ptolemy's eclipses according to the record, which Prof. Hudson does not positively deny. That which he claims is, that astronomers do make Ptolemy's eclipses; which, so far from denying, I had published to the world long before this examination commenced. I only contend that they do not, and cannot make them according to the record. For example: "Mr. X." makes the eclipse of Mar. 8th, B. C. 720, near the record, but can make no eclipse at all on the 25th of April, B. C. 491. My tables make this about correct, but cannot make the one at the opposite node, in B. C. 720; neither can any other tables that make the one in A. D. 136 as full as Ptolemy declares that it really was. We hope we are now fully understood.

WM. C. THURMAN.

For the World's Crisis.

AN APPEAL TO THE BENEVOLENT.

Friends of Jesus, who have this world's goods, we appeal to you for help. We want means to pay for the new power press for the Western Publication Association. The Lord's stewards have already given about $800, and we need about $500 more. Will you help? Any sum will be acceptable. One hundred, or fifty, or twenty, or ten dollars, or less, would be good investments in this cause. The press will be of the greatest value to the cause, both in the printing of the Voice of the West, and books and tracts, to be spread far and wide in this great western field.

We want help on the Voice also. We need five hundred new subscribers to sustain the Voice, and carry us through the present year. We, in the West, give a large support to the Crisis. We value it much, and give it a liberal support. In turn, we think it right that our friends in the East should help support the Voice in its early struggles for life. A little help now will keep us on our feet. We well remember, but a few years ago, the Crisis had about the same number of subscribers that we now have, and was in debt over $200. But by your timely liberality it was assisted, and carried over the hard spot in the road, and has gone on ever since, under its present able editor, with wonderful prosperity. Well, we are at the foot of the hill now, and have got to get over a hard spot in the road. We have got our shoulders at the wheel, and our cry is, "Men of Israel, help!" There are more than three hundred towns and cities in the East in which we have no subscribers. If we could get but one subscriber in each of these places, it would help us up the hill.

I shall be at the Wilbraham campmeeting in August, to receive any help that may be sent, or be given there. But do not wait. Send at once. Address ELD. J. V. HIMES, Buchanan, Mich., Agent of the Western Publication Association.

For the World's Crisis.

A TRACT FOR THE TIMES.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the Token of Safety, or The Fall of Jericho a Type of the Fall of "the Cities of the Nations," with Babylon the Great.

The above is the title of a tract, written by Bro. Wm. Shepherd, of Newark, N. J. He kindly sent me one, and I have perused it carefully, and find that it does in truth contain "words of solemn warning; both to the sinner, and to the self-righteous, like the Scribes and Pharisees of olden times, as well as modern times. We think it one of the best of tracts to put in the hands of both classes we have named. Few tracts of its size embrace such a field of thought. Like his tract—"analogy of the first and second advents"—he compares the past with the present, and shows their striking similarity.

In a short notice, these tracts cannot be represented as they deserve. It takes time as well as deep searching to put together so much valuable instruction in such a small work. Then it takes money to get them printed, and they should not lie idle, but like the leaves of autumn should be scattered.

Now is the time to sow the good seed. The Devil and his agents are losing no time, and sparing no money, in sowing their seed. The harvest time is near; then it will be known who has labored the most successfully for the best reward.

No people with such limited means have scattered in books and tracts such a vast amount of light and knowledge before the world in a few years as the Advent people, and yet there is no time for any of us to slacken our efforts. Soon the faithful will hear the welcome voice, "Come, ye blessed of my Father;" "ye have been faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many things."

All who love good things to read, send in your orders to Bro. Shepherd, or to the Crisis office. Also keep the "Signs of the Times" by H. L. Hastings, moving.

Seneca Falls, N. Y. G. DILLABAUGH.

For the World's Crisis.

THE NEW BOOK ON THE SABBATH QUESTION.

BRO. GRANT:—According to present indications, my work on the Sabbath question will be ready for the press about the time of the Wilbraham Campmeeting. I expect to attend this meeting, and then make arrangements for its publication. Will those who are interested in this matter please write to me, directed to Wilbraham Camp-Ground, Care of Eld. H. Munger, and let me know about how many copies of this book they will be likely to take, so we may be able to judge about how large an edition to get printed. The work will probably contain about 450 or 500 pages. We intend to reduce it to less size if possible. The price will probably be about $1.00, or $1.25.

T. M. PREBLE.

East Weare, July 31, 1865.

Post Office Addresses.

Private persons sometimes send us a request to give their post office address in the Crisis. This is to inform such that the notices of post office address, given from time to time on the third page, are designed for our preachers, so that those who may wish their services may know where to address them.

For the World's Crisis.

DR. ZECH'S COMPUTATIONS.

Dr. Zech's Prize Essay, of which I spoke in my last article, contains doubtless the most careful computation of Ptolemy's eclipses that has ever been made. The prize was offered in order that these old eclipses might shed their light, if any they could, on questions respecting the moon's motions, especially the motion of its nodes. It was to settle these questions more accurately that Dr. Z. made the two additional estimates that I spoke of. One important conclusion reached is that the "secular" motion of the moon, or its acceleration in long ages, is to be increased half a minute beyond the estimate given in Damoiseau's Tables.

If Dr. Z. wished this suggestion to be respected by astronomers, he was bound to proceed very carefully at every step of his process. And he appears to have done so. He first gives Ptolemy's account of the eclipses. He computes all the "perturbations" except those which are periodical, which are of course slight and their effects soon past. If there are any difficulties in reconciling his results with the record, they are fairly canvassed. Thus, according to the first computation, the eclipse of Dec. 22, B. C. 383, was not visible in Babylon, the moon being already set. What then? Eld. Thurman would, if I may judge from his book, either say that there was no eclipse then seen and recorded; or he might find an eclipse in some other year and call it the one recorded. In this way he has once, in his "Proofs" of Ptolemy's incorrectness, given Ptolemy a total eclipse where he only asks a partial eclipse; as if a total eclipse could have been recorded as partial in a record worthy of any notice.

But in the present case a moment's consideration assures us that if an eclipse is found in the very day and year recorded, and within half an hour of the time, then the record, if generally reliable, may be as good as any tables. The eclipse is, at least, identified. And there is probably some fair adjustment to be made. Now the original computation of the nineteen eclipses made some a little too large, others a little too small; some a little too early, others a little too late. Dr. Z. applies two methods of what is called the "equation of errors"; by which errors of computation, inevitable to such difficult problems, are balanced against each other. These methods are not invented for a special purpose. They are based on mathematical principles, and have been tried and approved before. And by one of these methods, or "systems," the eclipse of Dec. 22, B. C. 383, appears as visible in Babylon.

I might give, in a table, the times and dimensions of the eclipses as recorded, and as found by Dr. Zech, with his additional computations. But I doubt if the tables will give any more accurate information than that I gave in my last article, viz: that the greatest variation in dimensions is about two digits, and the least about one twentieth of a digit. The first of these is in the eclipse of Mar. 8, B. C. 720, and the second in that of April 5, A. D. 125. These are among Eld. T.'s incompatible eclipses. But Dr. Z. finds both of them by all three of his methods, and very much alike by each method. Eld. T. may say if he will that if the eclipse of Mar. 8, B. C. 720, is found only one digit, instead of three digits, that spoils the eclipse. But will he then please to account for the record?

The greatest difference found in time is about three quarters of an hour, and the least about half a minute. The first of these is in the eclipse of Dec. 22, above named, and by the first system of equating the errors. By the second system the difference is about eighteen minutes. That is not bad for any one eclipse so far back. If this eclipse had not happened so near sunrise, no one would have thought of rejecting it for even the difference of three quarters of an hour. But because it did happen so near sunrise, I shall speak of it again.

The least difference in time is for the middle of the eclipse of Sept. 11, B. C. 200.

For those who would like to see the tables, I have sent for a dozen copies of the Essay, which will probably arrive in two or three weeks. Those who can read German astronomy, or get it read for them, can have the privilege for $1.00.

In my last article I stated that Dr. Z. gives more full references to previous computations of Ptolemy's eclipses than I had before seen. He names nine persons, some of them eminent astronomers, who have given these eclipses their attention. And in the Library of Harvard College I have happily found all the documents referred to except the first, which is also of the least account. They are as follows:

1. Petavius, in his Doctrina Temporum. His purpose was chronological and not astronomical. His work was published in 1627, which was long before astronomy became very accurate.

2. Cassini, "Elements of Astronomy," Paris, 1740. He computed the eclipse of Mar. 8, B. C. 720, recorded as of three digits, and found the moon's distance from the node 8 degrees, 24 minutes, 50 seconds. The greatest eclipsing distance is 12½ degrees. Cassini's number is 4 degrees within this distance, which would give an eclipse more than three digits, I think. Eld. T.'s tables give no eclipse. Cassini found the distance from the node in Sept. 1, B. C. 720, 8½ degrees. The eclipse is recorded as of more than six digits.

3. Halley. His conjecture of the moon's acceleration, based on a comparison of Ptolemy's eclipses with those of Albategnius, about A. D. 880, is referred to by Lalande. (See below.) That which the Crisis has called "Disorder in the Heavens" is now regarded by all astronomers as a very orderly thing.

4. Dunthorne, in the "Philosophical Transactions," vol. 46, computes the rate of this acceleration. He speaks of Ptolemy's eclipses as "loosely described," but says, "there are indeed two or three of them attended with such lucky circumstances as not only plainly prove that there has been such an acceleration, but also help us to guess at its quantity." Among the eclipses luckily described is that of Dec. 22, B. C. 383, the very one which Dr. Zech's first estimate found to be a little after the moon was set on Babylon, but which heaves in sight, if I may so speak, by his second system of additional estimates. Dunthorne estimates this eclipse as of 1 hour and 37 minutes duration, and its middle time 4 hours and 4 min. after midnight. He also computed that of Mar. 19, B. C. 721, total, at 10 h. 26 m. Also that of Sept. 22, B. C. 201, at 7 h. 44 m., lasting 3 h. 4 m.

5. Mayer, author of astronomical tables much used in their day. In the "Commentaries of the Royal Society of Gottingen," 1752, he computes an increase of the estimate of the moon's motion. His results are not given in shape for our present purpose.

6. Lalande, in a paper on the moon's mean motion, in the "Memoirs of the Academy," 1757, treats the same question. He freely criticises Ptolemy's observations in some of their details, but does not think of calling his eclipses fictions or estrays. And he finds the moon accelerated.

7. Laplace. Our own Dr. Bowditch was thought almost a prodigy in mathematics because he mastered, translated, and somewhat simplified Laplace's "Mechanique Celeste." Laplace employed a new and careful computation of Ptolemy's nineteen eclipses, to be made by Bouvard, and reports the results in the "Connaisance des Tems," which is the French Nautical Almanac, 1799–1800. He not only finds the acceleration, but deduces the cause of it; and what is still more, he finds the cause equal to the effect. I have alluded to his theory heretofore. But I am not a tithe of Dr. Bowditch, and I can not translate his results for the Crisis just now. Only I guess, if Laplace had thought Ptolemy's eclipses to be hay, wood, and stubble, he would n't have ventured to build any reputation upon them.

8. Ideler, in the "Transactions of the Berlin Academy," in a paper on the astronomy of the Chaldeans, computes seven of Ptolemy's eclipses. I have already spoken of them. Dr. Zech speaks of Ideler's criticism on Burg's tables, as giving some of the eclipses too small, or small ones not at all. Ideler finds by Mayer's tables the eclipse of Mar. 8, B. C. 720, to be of three digits. By the by, were the Chaldeans no star-gazers, that eclipses of three digits or less should be quite "invisible in that age"?

9. Wurm, in Lindenau and Bohenberger's "Astronomical Times," vol. 3, computes ten of Ptolemy's eclipses with reference to the moon's acceleration and the motion of its nodes. His results are not in such a shape that I can give them. I can only say that he derives his conclusions with a plain confidence that the eclipses were no myth.

I trust that little more need be said about Ptolemy's eclipses. I should allude to a remark of Eld. T. that, by some mistake either of Ptolemy or of my translation, one of the eclipses is put in the wrong sign of the Zodiac. I do not recollect just what the error was, nor do I care enough to hunt it up just now. I see that Ptolemy's editors find errors in his text, and I know I am at least as human as Ptolemy's transcribers.

I still think that all Ptolemy's eclipses are fairly found and identified by astronomers. But while I retain my faith in his eclipses, my faith in God, or in Christ, or in revelation, is not based on those eclipses, never was, and I trust never will be. Even my faith in chronology was never based on them, nor is that of some eminent writers on prophecy. But chronology is not my forte. I hope, in a concluding paper, to show the folly of offering any alternative between Ptolemy's Canon and the word of God.

C. F. H.

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE SISTERS SCATTERED ABROAD.

As so many of you have written to know who preached, and what were the subjects at the Poultney Convention, I will answer you all through the Crisis, and save time in writing. The meeting was opened on Wednesday afternoon. Preaching by A. E. Smith. Text, Acts 2: 1, 44. Subject,—"One accord;" "and all that believe were together." This was followed by conference and prayer. Truly, we had a pentecostal shower. In the evening, preaching by the same. Text, Luke 14: 23. Subject,—"Highway and hedge call," the last call this world will ever get.

Thursday Evening, preaching by Sr. A. Mussey, 2 Tim. 4: 6–8. Subject,—"Crown of righteousness."

Friday Morning, ten o'clock, preaching by Sr. Jane Benson, of New York, from Luke 24: 32—"Did not our hearts burn"? A most excellent discourse. Preaching at one o'clock, by Sr. Jennings. Text, Ps. 17: 15, —"Awake with Thy likeness." Preaching in the evening by A. E. Smith. Text, Isa. 52: 3. Subject,—"A man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief."

Saturday Morning, ten o'clock, Sr. Brown, from New Bedford, preached. Text, Rev. 3: 20,—"Behold I stand at the door and knock." Two o'clock, preaching by Sr. Mussey. Text. 1 Thess: 18. Subject,—"Words of comfort to the church." In the evening, Sr. Benson preached. Text, Ex. 12: 11. Subject,—"The Lord's passover."

Sunday Morning, preaching at 10½ o'clock, by Sr. Mussy. Text, Rev. 6: 17. Subject, —"The great day of His wrath." At two o'clock, Sr. Jennings preached. Text, Rom. 1: 16. Subject,—"Not ashamed of the gospel of Christ." At 3½ o'clock, we had the Lord's Supper. Truly it was the Lord's Supper. O how he did meet with us, and melt our hearts to tenderness.

In the evening, at 7½ o'clock, Sr. Mussey preached. Text, 2 Pet. 3: 13. Subject,—"New heavens and new earth."

Monday Evening, love-feast. Tuesday evening, Srs. Mussey and Jennings preached in the school-house in the south part of the town. Wednesday evening, Bro. Preble preached, which closed our Convention. It was one of the happiest weeks I ever spent in my life. Now, sisters, get your reports ready for our Wilbraham meeting; those of you that wish me to take your reports to that meeting, I must receive them not later than Friday, the 18th; and you that wish to join the Association, and can't attend there, send me your names and money, or send them to the meeting by your friends that are going.

Now, sisters, make an extra effort to get to this meeting. It may be this will be our last meeting before Jesus comes. Glory to God. I hope so with all my heart. If it is, sisters, is your work done? Be careful that He does not come and find you sleeping. God help you to be up and doing. Let us come to this meeting to work for Jesus, to hunt up sinners, and warn them to flee from the wrath to come. I would say to one and all, come to this meeting. I want to see you, and hear what you have to say for Jesus. Your sister, hoping soon to see Jesus.

ANNA E. SMITH.

☞ We read of a philosopher who declared that the first year he entered upon the study of philosophy he knew all things; the second year something; the third year nothing. The more he studied, the more he declined in the opinion of his own knowledge, and saw more the shortness of his understanding. Did we but know ourselves, how humble it would make us, and happy would it be for us if we did.

Correspondence.

From Bro. J. Taylor.

BRO. GRANT:—Our meeting came off according to notice; on July 2d and 3rd, in Town Hall; but owing to some misunderstanding respecting the engaging of preaching brethren, we had little help from that quarter; the labor principally depended on Elder Seavey. The above disappointment, with the inclemency of the weather, caused but few to attend.

Saturday forenoon was profitably spent in conference and prayer. In the afternoon, sermon by Elder H. B. Seavey, on christian duty and the hope of the church. It was a good discourse. In the evening, sermon by Bro. Meader, on 1 Cor. 15: 22, "For as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive."

Sunday forenoon was spent in prayer and conference. In the afternoon we had a good house, as the Methodist minister, Elder J. Ladd, dispensed with his meeting in order to attend ours. A discourse on Matt. 6: 10. "Thy kingdom come," was given by the writer, giving a review of the four universal empires, treating on the nature of the coming kingdom, closing by reviewing the signs of the times, showing thereby that the next grand event is the kingdoms of this world becoming the kingdom of our Lord and his Christ, or the establishment of the fifth kingdom of Daniel, "The kingdom of God," or, as expressed in our Lord's model prayer, "Thy kingdom come." Elder Seavey followed by timely remarks on the times. Elder Ladd also spoke with much christian liberality. He said that—

"It was too late in the day now to ridicule Second Adventism, as there were too many great minds who were believers in it." "He liked to worship with them, as they appeared to be good christian people." He said that "if he had not always spoken in a scriptural understanding of things, he would always be willing to be taught by the least," etc.

The evening was devoted to a union prayer and conference meeting. Bro. Ladd was much interested, many of his congregation taking part. Thus closed our first Advent meeting here for twenty years past. May much good come out of it.

New Sharon, Me. JOHN TAYLOR.

From Bro. Geo. Streeter.

BRO. GRANT:—Another watchman has fallen; our much esteemed and dearly beloved Bro. Geo. A. Otis, is resting from his labors, in the silent grave. He was a zealous man for the cause of God and truth. Never lived there a more honest soul. He was with me five evenings in May last, and his whole aim was the salvation of man and a soon coming judgment; but he has gone to rest from his labors. Rest, dear brother. Jesus, thy Master, will soon come and call for thee; and then we shall sing and talk together more sweetly than when on earth.

Dear brethren and sisters, many of you have been fed while you heard from his lips the words of Jesus. You can never hear him again. You cannot do any more for him here, but remember he has left a dear wife and a darling boy to mourn his loss. Sr. Otis is of feeble health. She will need help. Brethren and sisters, send your mite to her. Ye who have much of this world's goods, and ye who have little, send your mites; they will be thankfully received. Direct your letters to Mrs. Geo. A. Otis, West Cumington, Mass.

GEO. A. STREETER.

From Sr. A. H. Smith.

DEAR BRETHREN AND SISTERS:—Through the Crisis, I will talk a little while with you. As the call for teachers to go South and instruct the contrabands has gone forth, I feel for one like saying, if the Lord wants me there, I will go. Are there not some of our Advent sisters that are willing to leave home and friends, and go and teach the poor Africans to read, and tell them about our soon coming King? Methinks I hear a response, I will go. O how glorious to meet some of them in the kingdom, and feel that we labored for them. I do believe the Lord would bless us abundantly, if we should go there. It is time we commence this great work, for time is short, and what we do must be done quickly. It will cost something to carry out this work, but other denominations are sending teachers, and are supporting them, and why cannot we send a few? I have not got money, but I have got health and strength, which shall be spent in the service of God. I hope the brethren and sisters will pray over the matter, and act in the fear of God. I remain your unworthy sister, hoping to meet you in the kingdom when Jesus comes.

E. Hawley, Mass. A. H. SMITH.

From Sr. S. Brown.

BRO. GRANT:—I love to hear from the children who try to serve God, and are looking for that blessed hope. That hope is what cheers my heart to-day, and makes me rejoice in God,—the hope of eternal life through Christ at his appearing and kingdom. It is but a short time ago that I gave myself to the Lord. I felt that I was a sinner in his sight, and that if I did not begin to build upon that Rock (Christ Jesus), I should at last be destroyed with all the wicked. My sister, too, is trying to be a good girl. Pray for us, that when Christ shall come in glory, with all the holy angels, we may all meet in that happy land never to part.

We have no meetings here; we see none of like precious faith. It would do my heart good to meet with the dear children that are looking for the glorious deliverer. One great desire of my heart is to obey the commands of my Master, and be buried with him in baptism, that I may rise in the likeness of his resurrection, and walk in newness of life. I should rejoice, the Lord willing, that myself and father could be able to meet the brethren and sisters at Camp Wilbraham to enjoy a feast of fat things. Brethren and sisters pray for us. SARAH M. BROWN.

East Walpole, Mass.

From Bro. Wm. G. Davison.

BRO. GRANT:—I have just received a letter from the son of Sr. N. M. Henry, stating that his mother had been long sick, nigh unto death; but when he wrote, they had some hope of her recovery. They live at Bunker Hill, Macoupin Co., Ill. I was requested to send this to be published that the friends might hear of her sickness.

WM. G. DAVISON.

Blooming Valley, Pa., July 29, 1865.

Voice of the West, please copy.

From John Brown, Jr.

BRO. GRANT:—My heart swells with gratitude to-day, while I realize how good the Lord is to such a poor, unworthy child as I am. He still remembers me, and is still bestowing blessings upon me every day. I have great reasons to rejoice that he has given me two of my children to journey on with me to the land of glory. Praise the Lord for his great goodness to me. I shall be glad when we all get home. Praise God, we are almost there.

I have still two more yet out of Christ. I ask the prayers of God's children that they may be brought into the fold of Christ, and that God, who has promised to hear prayer, may have mercy upon me, unworthy as I am, that I may not be entirely blind. Nevertheless, the will of God be done.

East Walpole, Mass. JOHN BROWN, JR.

From Bro. Wm. Forrester.

BRO. GRANT:—I have been very much edified, also my family and others much benefitted, in reading your excellent paper, and I may well say one of the best of all religious papers in the land.

I am much interested yet in my Master's return. I want to see him, and I expect to then be made like him by receiving an immortal nature, or this mortal will then put on immortality when Jesus comes again. Glory be to God for such exceeding great and precious promises as his word every where holds out to the christian. May God help us all to rightly appreciate them. Yours in christian love, WM. FORRESTER.

Dundee, N. Y.

From Bro. Milton Miles.

BRO. GRANT:—It is with pleasure I hail the weekly visits of the Crisis. It is just the paper the children of God need in this time of peril, to keep them from the spirit of war and carnage and covetousness and intemperance of all kinds. I pray that God may imbue its conductors with wisdom from on high, and that it may have a wide circulation.

Mannsville, N. Y. MILTON R. MILES.

Bro. Martin Allen writes:—"If any preaching brethren pass through West Salem, Wis., please call. We would be very happy to hear the word once more."

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool July 22d, Queenstown 23d.

The Empress and Prince Imperial left Paris on the 20th for Fontainbleau.

Prince Napoleon had arrived at Bristol in his yacht.

Advices from Smyrna state that half the town of Cassado had been destroyed by fire. Many lives were lost, and the damage is estimated at twenty million piastres.

Liverpool, July 27th.

The shore end of the Atlantic cable having been successfully submerged on the night of the 22d, the splice with the main cable was completed at 4.25 on Sunday afternoon, 23d, and the Great Eastern commenced paying out. The testing through the whole length was perfect and the weather was very fine. On the 24th defects of insulation were discovered and the Great Eastern was hove to in lat. 52, long. 10, about eighty miles from the shore. The latest dispatch is as follows.

"Valentia, July 25, 1865. The Great Eastern telegraphs from lat. 52, long. 12, that a small fault in the cable has been discovered and cut out. She is now paying out again and signalling is perfect. Weather very fine."

A committee of workingmen has been formed in Berlin, Prussia, for the purpose of organizing monster meetings to assert their right of publicly meeting. The authorities suppressed the banquets which they were to give in honor of the Liberal deputies at Cologne, Dantes and in Nassau. The military dispersed the workingmen quietly. The public order was not disturbed.

The Government of Italy has received an official dispatch from the Spanish Cabinet recognizing the kingdom of Italy and expressing the most friendly feelings toward it.

France and Spain have exchanged treaty ratifications for reducing customs tariffs.

The cholera in Alexandria, Constantinople and Cairo is subsiding.

It is asserted on good authority that Lord Palmerston will retire before Parliament meets, and and that Mr. Gladstone will decline the Premiership in favor of Lord Granville.

It is reported that a civil war is commencing in Japan.

London, July 27. The political news is unimportant. The steamship Great Eastern was 300 miles out this morning. The signals through the Atlantic cable were good.

ONE DAY LATER.

The advices from the steamship Great Eastern are auspicious. At ten o'clock on the morning of the 27th the Great Eastern was about 450 miles out from Valentia and had paid out 500 miles of cable. The signals were good and the weather fine.

DOMESTIC.

Cairo, Ill., August 3. The steamer Niagara, from New Orleans 25th ult., has arrived. The New Orleans True Delta's advices from Brownsville say that Cortinas has been defeated in an engagement with Lopez, between Matamoras and Camargo. Cortinas returned to the Texas side of the river, leaving all his forces in the hands of his enemy. Gen. Steele and three of his officers are very sick with backbone fever. There is a great deal of sickness among our troops, scurvy being the prevailing disease.

Yellow fever is developing itself rapidly at Matamoras. Many planters are bringing in their corn crop. Five thousand colored troops occupy the coast from Indianola to Victoria, many of whom are engaged in rebuilding the railroad.

A party of Kickapoo Indians recently made a raid on the Texan frontier, killing and wounding a number of persons and stealing many horses.

New York, Aug. 4. A significant meeting in honor of the Mexican Republic, represented in the United States by Gen. Ortega, was held in this city last evening. The gathering was large and enthusiastic. An extract from a letter from Gen. Sheridan was read in which he said: "There is no use to beat around the bush in this Mexican matter. We should give a permanent government to that Republic. Our work in crushing the rebellion will not be done until this takes place. The advent of Maximilian was a portion of the rebellion and his fall should belong to its history. Most of the Mexican soldiers in Maximilian's army would throw down their arms the moment we crossed the Rio Grande. The French influence has governed by sheer impudence."

These expressions were greeted by all present with pleasure and delight.

Aug. 5. The treaty between the South American States is published. It is binding fifteen years, and provides for a common defense against foreign intervention in the affairs of either and each, binding itself to non-intercourse with any nation attacking either. It is to counteract the aggressions of Napoleon and Maximilian. The States included are Salvador, Bolivia, Columbia, Chili, Equador, Peru and Venezuela.

Baltimore, Aug. 4. The Richmond Republic of to-day says a riot took place at Aquia Creek on Tuesday last, between the whites and blacks employed there. The latter tried to drive the former away, and partially succeeded. The military interfered, killing one colored man and wounding many others. Fifteen colored men were taken to Richmond and turned over to the military authorities.

☞ There is an old saying, that when a Pope reigns twenty-five years the end of the world is at hand, and it is singular that, although there have been as many as two hundred and fifty-eight Popes, not one has reigned for that period. If his present Holiness (who has just commenced the twentieth year of his reign) should live till the year 1871, he will complete the twenty-five years. This prophecy is as likely to come to pass as Dr. Cummings'.

☞ The whole expense at Washington of President Lincoln's funeral was a little over twenty-five thousand dollars.

ELECTRICAL EXPERIMENTS ON THE GREAT EASTERN.—In the hurry of departure there is not time to enter into details, but I may briefly indicate the result of recent experiments which have been tried with the cable since the vessel has occupied her present moorings. These have been chiefly directed to testing the value of different sending instruments, and the speed at which it is possible to transmit signals through the wire. Practically they resolved themselves into a trial of the new "curb key," invented and patented by Professor Thompson and Mr. Varley. By means of this beautiful instrument a very much higher speed is attainable than by the simple contact senders hitherto in use; for although its action appears at first sight to be complicated, the alternate use of positive and negative currents produces a sharper signal, and, by making the deflections of the ray of light on the mirror galvanometer sharper than they would be if obtained by means of a simple contact key, renders the signal much easier of comprehension. Last Tuesday some trial messages were transmitted through the entire cable at a speed of 5.6 words a minute, while the old fashioned sending instrument only gave 1.94 words a minute. So long as the cable lies in a coil the magnetic induction seriously embarasses the transmission of signals, and a rate of five words a minute obtained in the face of this disadvantage promises with certainty a speed of more than eight words a minute when the cable lies in a straight line along the bed of the ocean.—London Telegraph, July 17.

THE WESTERN CROPS.—The tenor of accounts from the West relative to the incoming crops has suddenly changed from gloomy assertions and prognostications to enthusiastic reports of fine weather and splendid harvests. This is bad for the speculators, but fortunate for the people, who are everywhere anxiously longing for a time when they will not be compelled to pay double prices for everything they eat, as they now are. A dispatch dated Dubuque, Iowa, Aug. 1, says: "The weather is favorable, and immense crops are being secured in good condition."

Another from Indianapolis, Indiana, same date, says: "The weather continues magnificent. Corn looks unusually splendid. Apples will be extraordinarily abundant."

A Springfield (Ill.) dispatch of 2d, says: "The weather continues most propitious for harvesting purposes. I think it may be safely concluded that little if any grain or hay is now unharvested in this part of the State; it is now generally conceded that, though the damage to these crops is very material, yet its extent has been greatly over estimated."

THE BOOTH REWARD.—None of the reward offered for the capture of Booth and his associates has yet been paid, and it is not likely to be at present. The delay arises from the length of time necessary to hear and decide on the claims of the multitude of persons who claim a share in the reward, there being no less than one hundred and fifty applicants. The Secretary of War, being unable to look into and decide on the applications himself, has appointed Judge Holt, Adjutant General Townsend and Assistant Secretary Eckert to examine and pronounce on the claims; and, though they have been at work at it for two months, there are many applicants yet to be heard, and the board will hardly be able to make their award before September.

A TEMPLE DISCOVERED AT POMPEII.—Letters from Naples describe a temple of Juno, just discovered among the recent excavations at Pompeii. Three hundred skeletons were found crowded within the sanctuary, a propitiary service having evidently been held in the hour they were overwhelmed. The statue of the goddess with its attendant peacock, the tripod in front of the altar, the golden censer, the jewels on the person of the priestess, the rich vessels holding the deposit of animal blood, are the main particulars dwelt on. The eyes of Juno were of the most vivid enamel, her arms and her whole person richly decorated with gold trinkets, her gaudy bird resplendent with a cluster of glittering gems. Aromatic ingredients lay calcined within the censer, while gorgeous lamps and bronze ornaments strewed the tesselated pavement.

SILKS TO BE MORE COSTLY.—The London Pall Mall Gazette says:

"The silk-breeders of France are, we are told, in a position of the greatest distress. A strange disease, which has reappeared among the worms from time to time—notably in 1688 and 1710—has, since 1860, recommenced its ravages, till the price of seed has risen ten fold, and the demand for mulberry leaves has so fallen off that the planters threaten to cut down the trees and use the lands for some more profitable cultivation. The disease shows itself, according to a petition analyzed in the China Telegraph, just as the worm is about to begin the cocoon, so that the breeder has the trouble of rearing for nothing, and has to purchase seed, as it were in the dark. Repeated experiments seem to prove that the only seed which can be trusted is that from Japan, and the breeders therefore pray the State to aid them by bringing home their supplies in men-of-war. It seems probable that this request will be granted, and also that the evil which has spread through all silk growing countries, except Japan, is not temporary, but may last as long as the potato-rot and the odium. The real obstacle to silk growing seems to be the slow growth of the mulberry. The worms will live and work in most countries, but they want mulberry leaves, and nobody is willing to plant orchards which will not begin to bear for five-and-twenty years. It would be no matter of surprise if silk in the next generation became as costly as under the Roman empire, and a silk dress as complete a test of wealth as it was two hundred years ago."

ITEMS.

☞ It came out in a case before an English Police Court lately, that a practice exists among beggars to keep their children from growing, by feeding them with gin, so as to ensure always having a baby to attract compassion. In the case before the court, a child four years old was stunted so as not to appear more than twelve months old.

☞ In a trial now in progress in one of the Courts in Sweden, a series of the most appalling crimes has been brought to light. A clergyman named Lindback is charged with murder of several of his parishioners by administering to them poison in their sacramental wine. The proof is so conclusive against him that not the slightest doubt of his guilt is entertained.

☞ In Bath, New York, a dwelling house was burned, on one of the shade trees in front of which a robin had built her nest. While the flames were in progress the mother flew back and forth, calling her little brood, in the greatest distress. But when all proved unavailing, she took her place on the nest, and perished in the flames with her young.

☞ The apple crop in Western New York will be enormous—larger than ever before. And this implies a great deal when it is remembered that from some stations on the New York Central Railroad 200,000 barrels were shipped last year.

☞ On the morning of June 17th, the cannon of St. Angelo announced the beginning of the twentieth year of the reign of Pope Pius IX. Only seven of the 258 Popes who have occupied the chair of St. Peter have had a greater or an equal duration of power.

☞ There are two ways of making blackberry wine—one to boil the juice, and the other to set it away for fermentation without boiling. Both plans have been tried. The wine that was boiled turned sour and unfit for use, while the other was delicious.

☞ Ten miles an hour is the greatest speed now attained upon the North Carolina railroads, and as the connections are frequently broken, long and frequent delays weary the traveler's patience and deplete his pockets.

☞ The Charleston, S. C. Courier says hundreds of citizens are perishing in that city for want of food and raiment.

☞ The number of arrests made in the city of New York during the last three months was over 20,000!

☞ The people in the interior of South Carolina are reported to be in a suffering condition—without money, food or employment.

☞ Don Pedro Candamo, the richest capitalist in South America, recently died at Lima, leaving a fortune which, it is asserted, exceeds the sum of £16,000,000 sterling.

☞ The seventeen year locusts are devouring everything that is green in some parts of New York.

☞ Twenty-five thousand men are busily engaged in pushing forward the Pacific Railroad on the California side.

☞ A Grand Industrial Exhibition is to be held at Calcutta in 1867.

☞ The next Canadian Parliament is expected to meet at Ottowa.

☞ The crops in Canada, which a few weeks ago promised so well, have been materially injured by the recent rains. The weevil and wheat fly have also made their appearance in some sections, and it is feared that when the crop is gathered it will be found to be a short one.

Notices.

GENERAL CAMPMEETING AT WILBRAHAM, MASS.

Providence permitting, a GENERAL campmeeting will commence at Wilbraham, on the old ground upon the hill, Monday, August 21st, and continue one week.

Ample accommodations will be provided for board and horse keeping. Board at 70 cents per day. Single meal,—breakfast or supper,—25 cents; dinner 30 cents. The boarding department is under the charge of the Committee, and any profits accruing from the same will go to the support of the meeting.

Those going from Boston to the campmeeting can take the 4.45 A. M. train at the Boston and Worcester depot, and arrive at the camp-ground at 7.27 A. M., or they can take the 2.30 P. M. express train, and arrive in Worcester at 4 P. M., and then change to an accommodation train, which leaves Worcester at 4.15, and arrives at Wilbraham at 6.23 P. M.

Arrangements have been made with the Eastern R. R. Co., by which those taking the cars from Portsmouth and intermediate places for Boston, paying full fares at the ticket offices, can have FREE RETURN PASSES by application to Geo. T. Adams, 167 Hanover street, Boston, or to him on the camp-ground.

On the Conn. R. R. from South Vernon, and intermediate places to Springfield, those going to campmeeting will buy a common ticket, and BE SURE AND ASK THE CONDUCTOR for a return CHECK from Wilbraham campmeeting. This Check must be endorsed by GEO. T ADAMS, at the Wilbraham campmeeting. As it is most likely that the R. R. Co. from Bellows Falls to South Vernon will do the same as the Conn. R. R., all who come from Bellows Falls will also please ask the Conductor for a return pass.

On the Western R. R. and also the Worcester, the fare has been reduced one third. Tickets good Aug. 19th to Sept. 1st, to be obtained at the various R. R. ticket offices, on the Western R. R., and at the Westboro', Framingham and Boston offices, on the Worcester R. R. Fare from Boston to Wilbraham and return $3.90. Please remember to call for Campmeeting Tickets at the offices on the Western and Worcester Roads.

The cars leave Springfield for the camp-ground, (distance nine miles), at 7.15 and 11.15 A. M., and 5 P. M.

S. G. MATHEWSON,
MILES GRANT,
GEO. T. ADAMS,
H. MUNGER,
J. HEMENWAY,
Committee of Arrangements.

Rhode Island to Wilbraham.

Brethren in Rhode Island who are going to the Wilbraham Campmeeting, can obtain through tickets, (good from Aug. 19th to Sept. 1st,) at a reduction of one-third of the usual fare, by applying at the Providence and Worcester depot, Providence, R. I. Call for Campmeeting tickets.

I. C. HUMES, for the Brethren.

Wilbraham via. Rutland, Vt.

I have just seen the Superintendent of the Rutland and Burlington R. R. He gave me authority to advertise that any who wish to attend the campmeeting at Wilbraham, can go over that road from Rutland for ONE FARE there and back.

M. BATCHELOR.

Meeting of the Advent Christian Association.

The sixth annual meeting of this Society will be held at Wilbraham Grove, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M., Tuesday, Aug. 22, 1865.

A full representation from all churches co-operating with this Society, and a full attendance of preachers thus co-operating, is desirable at this meeting. Questions too important to admit of neglect or indifference on the part of the churches scattered abroad, or of the ministry, will come before this meeting. Does the Constitution require amendment? Shall there be any change in the editorial management of the Crisis? To whom as officers of the Society shall we intrust the funds and various interests of the same for the coming year? These, among many others that will arise, are questions to be decided at this meeting. Let no trifling pecuniary consideration, nor loss of time, prevent a general gathering of the friends of this Association. Each church (i. e. society of believers in Jesus Christ) co-operating, is entitled to one delegate, and one additional delegate for every fifty members above the number of twenty-five members.

Remember ☞ That all delegates sent by churches to the Advent Christian Association must be furnished with written credentials, or forfeit their right to membership. ☜

Also remember ☞ That preachers offering their names as members of this Association must bring a certificate of good character from a christian church, and show that they themselves are co-operating with this Society.

S. G. MATHEWSON, President,
H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

General Campmeeting at Alton Bay, N. H.

Providence permitting, a general campmeeting will commence at Alton Bay, N. H., Sunday, Aug. 27th, holding through the week, and over the following Sunday. Ample accommodations will be provided for board and horse keeping. Board at 60 cents per day; single meal, breakfast or supper, 25 cents; dinner, 35 cents. The boarding department and general lunch stand will be under the charge of Bro. J. S. Moulton. A Graham table will also be set for all who choose that way of living.

Arrangements have been made with the railroad and steamboat companies as follows: Passengers from Boston, and on the line of the Boston and Maine R. R., by taking trains that leave Boston at 7.30 A. M., 12 M., or 3 P. M., via. Dover and Winnipiseogee R. R., will go through to Alton Bay without change of cars, fare one way.

Passengers from Portland, and on the line of the P. S. and P. R. R., will take the trains leaving Portland at 8.45 A. M. or 3 P. M., and change cars at Dover. Fare reduced one third.

Passengers from Concord, and on the line of the Boston, Concord, and Montreal R. R., by taking trains that leave Concord 10.31 A. M., will connect at Wier's landing with steamers for Alton Bay, half fare.

Arrangements have been made with Captain Sanborn of the Steamer Lady to take all from the Wier's at two o'clock, Monday, Aug. 28th, direct to Alton Bay, so that those leaving Concord 10.31 A. M., by stopping at the Wier's until the 2 o'clock train comes down, can go to the camp-ground with those that come from above the Wier's.

Passengers who take the cars at Newport Monday morning, will arrive at Alton Bay at 3½ P. M. the same day.

Please remember and call for campmeeting tickets at the several ticket offices. Be sure and bring under beds to fill with straw on the ground; also other bedding. All who can will provide themselves with tents; but let none stay away that are without, for we will see that they have a place to lodge.

J. G. SMITH, in behalf of the Committee.

General Western Campmeeting.

This meeting will commence Monday, Sept. 4th, at Amboy, Ill., and continue over the following Lord's day. Our friends will remember how very interesting our meeting was last year, and what an impulse for good was given to the infant cause in the West. We are yet weak and few, and have need of all the means that can be employed to build us up, and enlarge our sphere of usefulness. The campmeeting is one of the most efficient means of promulgating the truth, and building up the general interests of religion among us. Let all who can arrange be there. Let every one encourage his neighbor by a good example of sacrifice and consecration. Elds. Wm. C. Thurman, C. B Turner, and Hiram Munger from the East, and Eld. D. R. and Mrs. M. S. Mansfield, Eld. Wm. Sheldon, and many others of our most interesting speakers from the West, are expected to be present. In view of the increase of light and knowledge upon the time of the Lord's advent, we should act with great earnestness and zeal to prepare for the coming of the kingdom of God.

D. S. CLARK,
E. ROYCE,
D. W. KNIGHT,
WM. MCCULLOCK,
E. K. BURRINGTON,
J. V. HIMES,
Committee.

Notice.

The Lord willing, we will hold a meeting at Findley's Lake, Chaut Co., N. Y., August 11th, in the evening. Also on Ripley Hill, near Bro. James Thorp's, Saturday and Sunday, 12th and 13th, as Bro. Thorp may appoint, and at the Sherwood schoolhouse, near Union Mills, the 14th, in the evening. Father and Mother Ongley will be with me, and assist in preaching the word.

JOHN T. ONGLEY.

Campmeeting Notice.

There will be a campmeeting in New Preston, Ct., commencing Monday, Sept. 4th, and hold over the Sabbath. Particulars hereafter. In behalf of the committee of arrangements. A. ROSS.

Campmeeting at Wallingford, Conn.

A campmeeting, to commence Aug. 14th, and continue over the following Sunday, will be held at Wallingford North Farms, near the Chapel, in a pleasant, convenient grove, with a good spring of water, about two and a half miles from Wallingford Depot, on the N. H., Hartford and Springfield R. R., where teams will be in readiness to convey people to the ground at (not to exceed) 25 cts. each.

Good board and horsekeeping will be provided at reasonable rates, under the supervision of the committee, who will spare no pains to make this meeting all the brethren and sisters can wish, so far as good order, good preaching, and good attention to their wants and convenience is concerned. We hope to see a general gathering of all in this region who can come in the Lord's name, and do his work, seeking his glory and the salvation of sinners.

Committee of Arrangements,
WM. A. DURAND, Cheshire.
DEA. D. PLATT, Wallingford.
H. A. COOK, "
WM. BARTHOLOMEW, "
H. H. MIX. "

Campmeeting at New Preston, Ct.

There will be a campmeeting in New Preston, Ct., commencing Sept. 4th, and hold over the next Lord's day. Board by the day or single meal can be had on the ground, also horse keeping on reasonable terms.

Those coming to this meeting by railroad, will take the stage at New Milford on the Housatonic Railroad. The fare from New Milford is seventy-five cents. We hope to see a general rally at this central campmeeting. The last day is just before us. The signs are thickening fast. Soon we shall have a meeting that will not break up. Come, then, brethren and sisters, in the name of the Lord. Lay by the cares and labors of this life, and let us "strengthen the things that remain."

RUFUS WHITEHEAD,
H. J. BALDWIN,
JOHN ACKERMAN,
C. M. REYNOLDS,
H. M. BOLLES,
Committee.

Meeting in Darien, N. Y.

There will be a two days meeting in Darien, Genesee Co., N. Y., at the Baptist house, commencing Friday evening, Sept. 8th, and continue over the Sabbath. It is also the quarterly meeting of the Christian Conference of Western New York. Brethren coming from the East will find a conveyance at Croft's Station, on the New York Central, five miles west of Batavia, at 1½ P. M. Also, for those coming from the West, at Corfu Station, at 4 P. M., Friday. Do not forget the empty straw ticks. A general attendance is looked for. B. C. SIMONDS.

Conference.

The next Annual Maine Advent Conference will be holden in Belgrade, to commence Sept. 7th and continue over Sunday. The meeting will be in the Baptist house, one mile from the depot. We hope there will be a general rally to this meeting, and that brethren will come filled with the spirit of Christ, and in earnest to unite their efforts to spread the truth, build up the cause of Christ, and save sinners. Those coming to the meeting may call on Brn. Wesley Greely, Thomas Rowlins, Thomas Eldridge, and Eld. Joseph Cumming.

H. B. SEVEY, Pres.
W. H. MITCHELL, Sect.

Conference.

Our Eastern Maine Conference will be held in the town of Hermon, to commence Friday, August 18th, at 10 o'clock A. M., and continue over the Sabbath. Friends wishing to attend the meeting will call on Bros. Richard Dore and John Brackett for directions relative to entertainment. By order of the committee, M. YOUNG, Clerk.

Campmeeting in Wallingford.

There will be a campmeeting on Wallingford Farms, Ct., commencing August 14th, and continuing over the following Sunday. Particulars hereafter. B. HITCHCOCK.

Conference.

There will be a Second Advent Conference at Northwood Narrows, N. H., commencing Wednesday, Aug. 16th, to hold over the following Sunday. All, both saint and sinner, are invited to attend.

S. W. BISHOP.
D. S. HOLT.

Notice.

Eld. William Stewart, from the city of Philadelphia, who has been preaching the gospel of Christ for more than twenty years in that place, as well as in other parts of the country, intends the Lord willing, to visit the camp-meeting at Wilbraham, commencing Aug. 21st; and from there to go to any place in the New England States, where an opportunity may be offered to him, to preach the gospel of the kingdom. Eld. Stewart is highly beloved and esteemed among all christian brethren in Philadelphia as well as elsewhere, and will therefore come well recommended. Any Advent church in those States desiring good and sound gospel preaching (no hobbies), would do well to engage Eld. Stewart's service while at the campmeeting at Wilbraham. LOUIS REIMER.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

A. W. Sibley..........Sunday, Aug. 13th

EAST BOSTON.

B. S. Emery..........Sunday, Aug. 20th
H. F. Carpenter..........Sunday, Aug. 27th

Haverhill, Mass..........Saturday evening, Aug. 12th
and over the following Lord's day.
MILES GRANT.

West Barre, N. Y..........Aug. 16th
Eld. Sweet conveys from Albion free.
H. L. HASTINGS.

Danielsonville, Ct..........Sundays, Aug. 13th and 20th
Will friends from around gather in?
Abington, Ct..........Wednesday evening, Aug. 16th
West Woodstock, Ct..........evening, Aug. 17th
H. F. CARPENTER.

New Britain, Ct..........Sabbath, Aug. 13th
HENRY L. BRADLEY.

Haverhill, Mass..........Friday evening, Aug. 25th
Lee, N. H..........Sunday, Aug. 27th
L. BOUTELL.

Richmond, R. I., (Clark's Hall)..........Sunday, Aug. 20th
JOHN T. DIXON.

Stark, Me..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
Chesterville, (Reth's Mills)..........Sunday, Aug. 20th
Belgrade, (Baptist meeting-house)..........Sunday, Aug. 27th
H. B. SEVEY.

Hermon Conference..........Aug. 19th and 20th
Lincoln half township and vicinity, from Aug. 22d to the 29th. Will some brother meet me at Lincoln when the stage comes in the 22d?
Burlington, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings, Aug. 30th, 31st, and Sept. 1st.
Lowell..........Saturday evening, Sept. 22d
and over the following Lord's day.
J. S JORDAN.

New Durham, Conn..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
J. W. HORNE.
J. H. F. VARNEY.

Great Falls, N. H..........Sunday, Aug. 20th
J. PINKHAM.

Walbridge..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
Hall in Three Rivers 5 o'clock. C. GOODRICH.

West Stafford..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
A. M. HIGGINS.

Rutland, Vt..........Sunday, Aug. 20th
M. BACHELOR.

Rutland, Vt..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
Poultney, Vt..........Sunday, Aug. 20th
BENJ. S. BATCHELOR.

Manchester, N. H..........Sabbath, Aug. 20th
T. M. PREBLE.

Rocky Brook, R. I..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
J. BLAIN.

South Ashburnham, Mass., Wednesday eve., Aug. 15th
Lunenburg..........Sunday, Aug. 20th
Worcester..........Thursday evening, Aug. 22d
S. C. HANCOCK.

Bradford, N. H..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Savoy..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
A. MUSSEY.

Frankfort Mills, Me..........Aug. 13th
Hermon Conference the week following.
L. L. HOWARD, D. M. HANSCOM.

Concord, N. H..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
Holden, Mass..........Sunday, Aug. 20th
A. SIMPSON.

Portsmouth, N. H..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
J. K. BELLOWS.

Rochester, (Brick school-house, McDuffee's district), Sunday, Aug. 13th. J. PINKHAM.

Springfield, (Gunn's Hall, State Street)..........Aug. 13th
F. S. BUTLER.

Northwood Narrows, N. H..........Lord's day, Aug. 13th
Loudon Ridge, N. H..........Lord's day, Aug. 20th
B. P. MANNING.

Biddeford, Me..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
Dover, N. H..........Aug. 16th
Exeter..........Aug. 17th
Lawrence..........Aug. 18th
and over the following Lord's day.
From there to Wilbraham campmeeting.
If these appointments should conflict with any, please give me notice at my place in Corinna, or at Biddeford.
ISRAEL DAMMAN.

Dover, N. H., (in the old Court House), every Sabbath until further notice. T. M. LATHAM.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine Ground), every two weeks until further notice. S. S. MOONEY.

Worcester, Mass..........Aug. 13th and 20th
J. COUCH.

Northfield, (where Bro. Humphreville may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 13th. L. BOUTELL.

Sebec, Me., (school-house near Bro. Joshua Livermore's) Sunday, Aug. 13th. THOMAS SMITH.

West Deerfield..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
New Durham Ridge..........Sunday, Aug. 20th
J. G. SMITH.

BRISTOL, CT.

Ira Morgan..........Sunday, Aug. 13th

Benedict school-house, Erie Co., N. Y., at 10½ A. M., and at the Kinny school-house 4 P. M., Sundays, Aug. 13th and Sept. 3d. Kinny school-house is three miles west of Benedict, in Royalton, Niagara Co., N. Y. Darien, (as brethren may arrange), Sunday, Aug. 6th
C. F. SWEET.

Canaan Street, (where Bro. Jones may appoint), Aug. 13th. Love feast 9 A. M. JOHN G. HOOK.

Springfield, (Barnes' Hall)..........Sunday, Aug. 13th
Westboro, Mass..........Sunday, Sept. 3d
DR. A. DECKER.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

M. G. S.—Two sent July 24th.
T. M. Preble—Ours.
N. Ladd—It was for J. Ladd.
Mary E. Otis—Is credited to you. Pays to No. 530.
A. W. B—He is paid to No. 541.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 514. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, (if any), charge four cents; for every week since No. 468, if less than 26 weeks, five cents; if over 26 weeks, six cents a week (or $3.12 for the year.) From the sum deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—J. D. Schofield 520, M. A. Pribble 541, S. Harding 520, S Graves 513, J Spackman 522.

$1.25 each—M. T. Osgood 549, J. H. Langley 530, R. Call 536, F S Hoag 539, W G Davison 535, C H Holly 539, C W Clark 540, M A Mason 540.

$2.00 each—D. Wilson 537, H. M. Butters 531, W. P. Bartlett 515, J H Osgood 541, E S Mudgett 533, D A Bean 542, E N Overlock 503, J. Chandler 531, J. A. Trowbridge 571, H. McClintock 513.

$2.50 each—A. R. Green 562, S. C. Davis —, D. L. Green 549, L Green 525, T B Davis —, L J Sargent 580, J S Green 543, J B Willard 523, F Murphy 563, W Bachelder 552, R A Fowler 565, J. L. Swain 507, L C Glazier 562, A Brown 565, E G Sprague 546, A Edgecomb 572, C & H Smith 562, J S Heath 561, I Hodgkins 572, O S Gibson 566, J R Sturtevant 530.

$3.00 each—L A Janvrin 520, M Hemenway 525, D. Graffum 520, K D Crook 565, M Andrew 2nd 552, L. J. Elliott 569, M A Philbrick 517, E K Stockman 499.

Various Sums—L. E. Saulpaugh $2.80, 553; T A Roberts $5.00, 525; K Baker $1.50, 518; D Garland $5.01, 538; S Knight $1.50, 510; L Saltmarsh $5.00, 573; W T. Doremus $2.20, 559; W. D. Murphy 3 c, 519; J. M. Squier $2.75, 539; J O Kelly $2.40, 512; S Gray 13c, 512; W Holsinger 50c, 524; W H Wildey 75c, 513.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

A H Clifford 50c, J Taylor 25c, M Willard 75c, R L Jones $4.33, P Sorenson $2.35, A T St. Clair 50c, G S Hatch 75c, J C Stowe $1.35, W Morrill 25c, W S Raymond $1.00, A. S. Moore 25c, H H Johnson 50c, R R Gaither 50c, M Sheldon $1.00, W T Doremus 25c.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL—A H Clark, R B Dockum, M D Stedman, T Apthorpe, M A Mundle, D M Kinter, N S Ketchum, W McCulloch, A Bowen, A B Tanner, S D Ackerman, D W Fuller, T L Day, J. G. Bush, L. Jackman, J. W. Thomas. A M Fowler, H Rockwell, J Small, A Devereux, S F Small, R M Sailles, L Dewitt, J Keyes, J W Von Hieda, A H Clifford, M Willard, G B Hatch, A T St. Clair, C Lovis, P Sorenson, J C Howard, W Morrill, W S Raymond, H. H. Johnson, R. L. Jones, A. Gibson, W Sheldon, M D Murphy.

BY EXPRESS.—A A Hoyt.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

M M Weaver, E S Willard, J V Himes, David Campbell, J Lyle, M R Miles, M. D. W., J Taylor, M Glidden, J Croffut, L Reimer, C G Carre, S J Howard, W C Thurman, A E Smith, B Perham, E Owen.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

Mrs. George A. Otis—West Cummington, Mass.
Eld. D. J. Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
Maria Mathews Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library; with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid; $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

THE NEW TESTAMENT of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

WHY THE SHOE PINCHES. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

GLAD TIDINGS; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts.; postage, 2 cts.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.00.

THE TAKING OF HUMAN LIFE incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 2 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

GLAD VOICES; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty-five or less.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 5c, postage 2c.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

MULLER'S LIFE OF TRUST. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

DIPHTHERIA: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. Price, 10 cts.; by mail, 12 cts.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. Price $2.50. Postage 36 cts.

NON-RESISTANCE; or, the Spirit of Christianity restored. By W. C. Thurman. Price 20 cts.; postage 4 cts.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jn. T. Curry. "Do the Scriptures teach the Resurrection of the Wicked?" Phonographically reported by H. P. Woodward. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. "Do the Scriptures teach the eternal conscious suffering of the Wicked?" [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton, "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments.

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; an exposition of Matthew 10: 28, Genesis 35: 18, &c.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture, [illegible] Price $1.75, postage [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, embracing the Scripture argument against fighting, and the testimonies of the Primitive Church. By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. By M. Hull. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 18th chap. of Isaiah, [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, the kingdom of Satan, the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ; [illegible] By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, [illegible] By C. F. Sweet. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the promised Messiah. By Mrs. Mary A. Seymour. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God, [illegible] Devil: his origin, personality, power, and doom. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for preparing all the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated health institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 14, in connection with Dan. 12: 11-13. By H. K. Flagg. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.00.
By Express—1800 pages for $1.00.
Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; postage, 2 cents. Free to the poor.

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers	36 pages.
The Saints' Inheritance	48 "
The New Heavens and New Earth	24 "
The Voice of Warning	24 "
The Advent at Hand	24 "
The Last Days	24 "
The Church not in Darkness	24 "
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one)	24 "
Outline of the Coast of Man	8 "

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State	24 pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead	24 "
Ghostology	48 "
Man's Future State	12 "
The Key of Truth	12 "

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved	24 pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment	12 "
Future Punishment Destruction	12 "
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts)	12 "
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Lost	24 "
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary	24 "
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality	12 "

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one)	36 pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one)	36 "
One Thing	12 "
Judson's Letter on Dress	12 "
Duty of Christians (a peace tract)	24 "
Leaflets for Letters,—6 cents per set.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—in its present condition, as viewed by the light of Revelation. [illegible]
2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. [illegible]
3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Wo" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, [illegible]
4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]
5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]
6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." [illegible]
7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" [illegible]
8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, [illegible]
9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]
10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; [illegible]
11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, [illegible]

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25 . . .

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C F. Hudson. [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. From Sir James Stephen, with notes. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? With Reply to Dr. Monod. [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to articles in the Quarterlies, [illegible]

Blain's Tracts.

Price.—1 cent for every 8 pages; postage, 2 cents on every package of 150 pages, or less.

Endless Misery not a Bible Doctrine	32 pages.
The Wicked not Immortal (with 200 proof-texts)	16 "
Bible Meaning of the word Hell	16 "
Bible Meaning of Forever and Everlasting	16 "
Smoke of Torment and Unquenchable Fire Explained	8 "
Rev. John Foster's Letter on Future Punishment	8

For the World's Crisis.

"BEHOLD, I STAND AT THE DOOR, AND KNOCK."

Hark! methinks I hear one knocking,—
'Tis the Savior at the door;
See, he pleads with arms extended
For your heart,—he asks no more.
Will you give it, gladly, freely,
Have it washed and purified
In the stream of crimsoned water,
Flowing from his wounded side?

Yes, ye knocks for you, poor sinner,
Saying, "Bruis'd one, come to me";
Will you still resist his pleadings,
And scorn his death on Calvary?
Linked by love in chains of promise,
The cruel cross he bore for you;
Hear him there so sweetly saying,
"Oh, they know not what they do!"

Hear him, in a gentle whisper,
Lisping, "Dear one, come this way,
'Tis the path where I will lead you
To a bright and endless day;
Lead you where the living waters
Ever sparkle, ever roll;
Where the tree of life is wafting
Gentle zephyrs o'er the soul."

Oh! dear sinner, will you listen
To the Savior's yearning plea?
He has suffered death and anguish,
All to make redemption free.
He will give you rest when weary;
He will give you sight when blind;
Riches, honor, power and glory,
All for you he has designed.

Come to Jesus while he's knocking,
Soon his pleadings will be o'er;
The millennial morn is dawning,
Jesus soon will knock no more.
Then we'll wear the pure white robes,
Sing with harps the sweetest lays;
Golden crowns upon our heads,
Chanting o'er our Savior's praise.

Dundee, N. Y. WM. H. SILVERNAIL.

HURRY! HURRY! HURRY!

From whatever stand-point you look at the world at the present time, you observe a restless, impatient spirit, impelling men onward. There is a power behind, like the hidden power that impels the railroad car, little understood, and little thought of. Impatience is the order of the day; no man would be satisfied with the slow rate at which all the machinery connected with the business of this world moved fifty years ago. A new era has dawned upon the world. Of the final result of this state of things men differ as widely as upon any other subject. Probably the great mass think they see through the mist and fog, the dust and smoke raised by this rapid train, a golden era, a dawn of a golden future; that wealth and power, honor and worldly grandeur and greatness, with the most liberal institutions, and solid and liberal government, are to be the result of the advance of science and literature.

But let us examine this matter, not only in the light of divine truth, but also by facts thus far developed. Half a century ago, a man thought he was doing well if he could travel six miles an hour; now, he is impatient traveling four times six. Then, if intelligence from a distance of one hundred miles reached us in two days, it was doing well; now, we are hardly satisfied to wait an hour for news from a thousand miles away. Then, our mothers and grandmothers thought they were doing well to spin and weave the cloth to clothe a family in three or four months; now, the buzzing of a thousand spindles and the clatter of a thousand looms, turning off and finishing its thousands of yards a day, hardly satisfies. Then, if a young man could by the strictest economy afford to go to school about three months in the year, he could fit himself at twenty-one to enter college, and by teaching a part of the time and boarding himself on one dollar per week, he would graduate a scholar and gentleman; now, a young student, by spending all his time at school, and drawing a thousand a year from his father's purse, is a dunce at twenty-one, and if not expelled from college before, graduates with no honor, and, in too many cases, a profligate. Then, young ladies thought it an honor to help mother in the kitchen, and the mark of a lady to be gentle, quiet, and chaste in her manners, and amiable in her disposition; now, the character of a lady is to be bold and impudent, to talk loud, and act very independent and selfish, to spend her time in the parlor for fear of soiling her hands, or spinning street yarn, or perusing the last yellow-covered novel.

Then, men and women, husbands and wives, married because they loved each other, and considered the solemn obligations they had taken upon themselves; now, fancy and fashion govern the choice, and the marriage covenant, with all its solemn and sacred obligations, is put on as we put on slippers, to be thrown entirely aside. Then, young married men, after their day's labor, quietly and happily spent the evening by their own firesides, storing their minds with useful knowledge, or in quiet enjoyment of domestic happiness; now, the meal is hastily swallowed, and away hurries the young husband to join a company of profane and profligate associates at the dram shop, billiard saloon, bowling alley, theatre, club-room, and frequently, what is worse yet, some den of infamy too degraded and low hardly to name before a respectable audience. Then, wives made homes pleasant and attractive, were gentle and kind, chaste, keepers at home, loving their husbands; now, company, gayety, pride, affectation, peevishness, indolence, slander, selfishness, and finally hatred, make home a hell, and matrimony a bondage.

Then, children loved and obeyed their parents; now, father is called the old man, and mother's counsels are disregarded. Obedience is a thing not thought of, parental authority set at naught, and profanity and immorality, drunkenness and revelry, ignorance and crime are the result. Then, parents watched the moral training of their children, knew where they spent their evenings, as also their days; counseled, admonished, instructed, conversed with, amused, and loved them; now, they are neglected. Fathers and mothers are too busy; hurry! hurry! hurry! If the children keep out of their way, and are not an annoyance, no matter where they are. Then, neighbors were kind, obliging, and peaceable; now, slander, hatred, wrath, strife, are characteristics of every community.

Then, men could transact business without fear of being swindled; now, the most trifling transactions have to be witnessed by a third party, or put in writing. Then, murders were so seldom, our whole country was shocked at such an occurrence; now, not a day hardly passes, but we read or hear the recital of the most brutal murders and outrageous crimes.

Then, ministers were faithful in the work of preaching the gospel in its simplicity, faithfully pointing out the sins of the people, showing the final result of living in sin, and urging vehemently the abandonment of the same, sowing in tears, reaping in joy; now, hell is too vile a word for mealy-mouthed hirelings to speak, and the language of the Bible too commonplace for pulpit oratory. Fashion and folly are advocated as indispensable for the prosperity of the church, and fables are substituted for the gospel. License to indulge in fashionable sins, round-turned periods, and rhetorical flourishes, are the qualifications of a fashionable minister, and are mistaken by a pleasure-loving church for religion.

Then, professors of religion were honest in their dealings, chaste in their conversation, grave in their deportment, dignified in their manners, and loving and kind in their natures; now, the question is often asked by those making no professions of religion, Who are christians? Love of the world and its pleasures, love of gain, pride, division and strife, are the lot of nearly every church. But why need I multiply the instances? no thoughtful man but will say the picture is life-like and true. What then are the conclusions?

The advance of science and art is no assurance of the advancement of morality or religion, but facts prove the reverse. "Many shall run to and fro, and knowledge shall be increased, but the wicked shall do wickedly." Dan. 12:4. "This know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come," etc.—2 Tim. 3:1; marking faithfully the characteristics of the present time.

Such being the facts, as we look at the moral condition of the world, harmonizing so completely with prophecy, we look for no permanent, peaceful, happy state here. Wicked men and seducers will wax worse, deceiving, and being deceived. The devil has come down in great wrath, because his time is short. Such a state of society marks the end. Wickedness, like the rapid rolling river, gains volume and rapidity as it nears the great falls, until down like a mighty millstone, with the bewildering wail of everlasting despair. O world, dreaming of peace upon the crumbling brink of everlasting despair! O church, in its pride saying, I sit a queen, rich and increased in goods, and have need of nothing! Decked in glittering baubles, thou wilt soon realize suddenly thou art poor, and filthy, and blind, and naked. O virgins, sleeping, ruined virgins, weary in waiting for the return of the Bridegroom, soon shall the midnight cry, "too late," awaken you from your death-like sleep to the awful realization—the door is for ever shut, and you barred out! Knock,—weary yourself with the cry, "Open, oh! open unto us,"—wring the helpless hands; until a voice shall pierce your soul with everlasting despair, "I know you not; depart to everlasting fire, prepared for the devil and his angels."

"Fly, fly, on wings of morning,
Ye who the truth can tell,
To sound the awful warning,
To rescue souls from hell."

H. BUNDY.—Adv. Herald.

THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH.

HOW MADE AND LAID—1858 AND 1865.

Just seven years ago England spoke to America through the depths of the sea—spoke, and that was all. The Electric Cable, which had been laid at vast expense of mechanical skill, scientific wisdom, and moneyed interest, gasped a few words down among the microscopic shells which line the bed of the Atlantic, and then lapsed into sudden dumbness, from which it has never been awakened. Three efforts were made before the mere mechanical problem of laying that long submarine wire was solved; and, when solution came, disaster followed closely after it. A new company was formed, capital was again procured, popular distrust of deep-sea enterprises was gradually overcome by a judicious use of cogent argument and potent printer's ink; and, within five years from the day of the death of the ancient cable, another was preparing to take its place.

HOW THE CABLE IS MADE.

The new cable consists of copper, iron, gutta-percha, jute, Manilla yarn, and tar, woven, twisted, and fused into a solid, homogeneous cylindrical rope. In describing briefly the process of its manufacture, we shall specify the differences between the cable of 1858 and that of 1865, in order to exhibit at a glance, the progress made in the construction of ocean telegraphs in the space of seven years.

1. The core, or conductor for the electric current, is composed of eight copper wires, seven of which are tightly twisted around the central one. Each of these wires was first coated separately with a patent compound, invented by Mr. Chatterton; then passed through a solution of gutta-percha; then subjected to electrical tests, and again coated, until four layers each of the patented compound and the gutta-percha had been applied. The constituents of the Chatterton compound remain a secret. The conducting wires having been thus insulated, the diameter of the core was increased to half an inch:—in the old cable, the diameter was only three-eighths of an inch, and but three coatings of insulating material were applied. The size of the copper wires in the new cable is No. 18 (guage 048,) and their weight is three hundred pounds per nautical mile:—in the old cable, the strand was No. 22, and the weight was only one hundred and seven pounds per mile. The weight of the new cable is, therefore, three times greater than that of the old.

2. The second process was the coating of the core with a layer of jute yarn, forming a padding around which the external wires were spun. In the old cable, the fibrous coating consisted of five-thread rope-yarn, saturated with a mixture of pitch, tar, oil, and tallow; but in the new one the jute yarn is simply tanned to preserve it from decay, thus admitting the water to search out every part of the cable. By means of this contrivance, the core is constantly surrounded with a wrapping of wet yarn, no tar or oil being present to conceal minute flaws.

3. The external covering consists of ten wires, of the size known as No. 13, guage 095. Each wire is coated with Manilla yarn, saturated with a solution of tar and gutta-percha, and all are twisted tightly around the insulated core. The wires are heavier than those used in 1858.

These are the component parts of the new cable. The iron wires were manufactured expressly for this purpose in Birmingham; the union of all the parts took place in Greenwich, England, at the establishment of Glass, Elliott & Co., to whom the work of construction and shipment was intrusted.

HOW TESTED.

The completed cable, having been coiled in huge tanks, each of which held a length of one hundred and forty miles, was subjected to the most searching electrical tests—the standard of insulation being fixed at a resistance per nautical mile equal to 150,000,000 of Siemen's units, at a temperature of seventy-five degrees—a standard wholly unprecedented in any former work of the kind. The most trying and continuous test was that of allowing no part of the cable to be out of the water, except while merely in transitu from one reservoir to the other; and another was conducted by the use of a mirror galvanometer, an instrument so sensitive that it betrays the faintest movement of an electrical current. Signals were repeatedly sent through the whole length of the cable before and after its shipment; and, so far as we are now advised, the ingenious appliances of the makers have insured an insulation which seems to be absolutely perfect.

HOW LAID.

If the reader will now imagine himself at sea, witnessing the operation of laying the cable, we will try to explain the process.

But one vessel in the world is capable of containing the enormous bulk of a trans-Atlantic Cable. That vessel is the Great Eastern. A craft which men wondered at and then laughed at; which consumed two or three gigantic fortunes; which encountered more mishaps, and caused the deaths of more human beings than any other ship that continued to float—this unlucky and tremendous vessel at last found her place as the carrier of the cable. She was placed at the service of the Telegraph Company, and Capt. James Anderson, of the Cunard steamer China, who had proved himself a careful and capable officer, was appointed to the command. For several reasons, it was considered inexpedient to repeat the plan of 1858 by employing two vessels in the service. The capacity of the Great Eastern being equal to the carriage of the cable, the directors of the company determined to try the experiment of a direct run from the Irish shore to Newfoundland, instead of halving the work in mid-ocean as was done by the Niagara and Agamemnon. The proposed termini of the route remain as before—viz.: Valentia Bay in Ireland, and Trinity Bay in Newfoundland. The distance between these points is sixteen hundred and forty nautical miles, or nineteen hundred and fifty statute miles.

The cable, having been completed and satisfactorily tested, was ready for shipment on board the Great Eastern at the beginning of this year. Hulks were employed to convey it from the works to the ship, and the shipment began on the 19th of January, continuing at intervals until the middle of June.

Three huge wrought-iron tanks, resembling gasometers, are fitted up in the Great Eastern for the storage of the cable. The first of these, containing a coil of six hundred and thirty miles, is fifty-one feet in diameter, and occupies the forward part of the ship. The second, situated amidships, is fifty-six feet in diameter, and contains eight hundred and forty miles; the third, fifty-eight feet in diameter, is aft, and holds eight hundred and thirty miles. All the tanks are filled with salt water, and the cable is connected throughout its length, while electrical currents are continually passed as it lies submerged.

The machinery for paying out the cable is erected at the stern of the ship, and is constructed wholly of wrought-iron. It consists of six "leading wheels," deeply grooved, around which the cable passes before reaching a "drum" or main-wheel, from which it is passed overboard into the sea. Each groove is surmounted by a "jockey-pulley," or solid wheel, which protects the cable from overriding or displacement. The drum is seven feet in diameter, and the cable is thrice coiled around it. An arrangement of brakes regulates the velocity of the cable, and a dynamometer indicates the degree of strain to which it is subjected. The simplicity of the apparatus for opening and shutting the brakes is very beautiful "Opposite the dynamometer," says a London Journal, "is placed a tiller-wheel, and the man in charge of this never lets it go, nor slackens in his attention for an instant, but watches the rise and fall of the dynamometer as a sailor watches his compass.

A single movement of this wheel to the right put the brakes on; a turn to the left opens them. A good and experienced brakesman will generally contrive to avoid either extreme of a high or low strain, though there are few duties connected with the laying of submarine cables which are more anxious and more responsible while they last than those connected with the management of the brakes."

In order to guard against any possible sources of accident, every preparation has been made, in the event of very bad weather, for cutting the cable adrift and buoying it. For this purpose a wire-rope of great strength, and no less than five miles long, having a distinctive mark at every one hundred fathoms, is provided.

Although the direct route from Ireland to Newfoundland is less than seventeen hundred nautical miles, twenty-three hundred miles of cable are coiled up on board the Great Eastern. The excess is provided to guard against the risk of losing the course in storms, cross-currents, or other accidents. Over one part of the route, the depth of water is from two thousand to twenty-five hundred fathoms, or nearly three miles. The average depth is about two miles.

The cable, however, is sufficiently strong to sustain eleven miles of its own weight; so that no apprehension of breakage during the process of immersion is entertained. The breaking strain, by actual test, is seven and three quarters tons; in the old cable it was only three and a quarter tons. The new cable, therefore, possesses more than double the strength of the old one.

The Great Eastern, now probably half way across the Atlantic, steams slowly, not exceeding six miles an hour, in order not to imperil this great enterprise. She carries an enormous weight, the cable alone being seven thousand tons. The iron tanks and the water in which the cable is immersed weigh two thousand tons. In addition to this, the ship carries eight thousand tons of coal; and her total weight, including engines, at the moment of starting, was twenty-one thousand tons, and her draught was thirty-one and a half feet.

A very limited number of persons accompany the great ship in her adventurous voyage, and all newspaper reporters are rigorously excluded—the reason assigned for this decision being the propensity of correspondents to talk; a habit which is regarded as perilous to the cable, for a conversational engineer or brakesman might be tempted to forget the wire he is hired to lay gently beneath the waves. It is gratifying to know, nevertheless, that a journal of the voyage will be furnished to the press immediately after the arrival of the Great Eastern at the western terminus of the line. Such a narrative may be open to the objection of an ex parte statement, especially if anything goes ill; but as it will probably be the best we shall get, there is no remedy. Intelligence of the results of this great voyage may be expected about the first of August.—Independent.

LUTHER ON THINGS TO COME.

Once, as his little dog was begging before the table, some one proposed the question, whether there would also be irrational animals in yonder world, as there are in this? "Assuredly," said he, "for the new heaven and earth will not be desolate and waste, but filled with beautiful creatures. The redeemed from among men will be adorned with true and perfect wisdom, righteousness, splendor and glory of the Lord Christ, which as yet no eye hath seen, nor ear heard, and no heart conceived."

In the year 1541, when, during a very beautiful spring, everything flourished and bloomed, Luther said to Justus Jonas, "If only sin and death were absent, we would be satisfied with such a paradise. But it will be much more beautiful when the world and the old state of things will be entirely renovated, and an eternal spring begin, which will be and continue forever."

The computation of those who confidently fixed the year and the day of the final judgment being once referred to, he said, "No, verily, the text is too plain in Matt. 24: Concerning the day and the hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels in heaven, but alone my Father; therefore neither I, nor any man, nor angel, can fix the day or the hour. I believe, nevertheless, that all the signs which are to precede the last day have already happened. The gospel is preached throughout the world; the child of perdition is revealed, and destroyed in the hearts of many; the kingdom of Rome is declining to its fall; all the elements and creatures are in commotion, and declining; there is no longer any love or fidelity on earth, and Christ may come when he may, he will find but a small flock of believers; excess in eating and drinking, the practice of usury, anxious cares, covetousness, extravagance in dress and building, and all manner of irregularity, verily being as prevalent now as they were at the times of Noah; wherefore I conceive that the signs preceding the last day are fulfilled. Unless it should be that Gog and Magog, together with the Papacy, should yet be crushed and destroyed previously, in a temporal respect, too, and that particular and supernatural darkness should perhaps be witnessed in the sun and moon, as was the case at the death of Christ, and that the gospel should, previously to the last day, be banished from all the churches, schools, and be found only with pious heads of families, within their four walls, as it was at the times of Elijah, and as it verily almost seems it will be now. Otherwise, everything is fulfilled which is to precede the last day. Methinks Christ our Lord is already publishing his summons in heaven, and the angels are preparing for the journey, and because during these six hundred years all the great and marvellous events of which Elijah prophesied have occurred in the spring and about Easter, I trust Christ will also appear about Easter, and cause his voice and thunder to be heard in a morning tempest, and then with one stroke, confounding the heavens and the earth, in a moment of time transform the living, raise the dead, create a new heaven and earth, hold his judgment in the clouds, wholly fulfill the Scriptures, together with his last: It is finished; THIS WE AWAIT."—From Muerer's "Life of Luther," pp. 572–574.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.

BRO. GRANT:—The following lines were composed on the death of Bro. Glidden's son and daughter-in-law, by his mother, Mercy Glidden, at the age of ninety-six years. If you consider them worthy of a place in the Crisis, you will by inserting them confer a favor on the bereaved family. JULIA A. SIBLEY.
East Boston.

Death entered our peaceful dwelling,
And bore two youths away;
Age or youth are not exempted,
All the summons must obey.

Suddenly they both were taken,
But few days did intervene,
When five weeks had scarcely ended,
This young pair in death were seen.

Parents, your stroke is heavy now,
You mourn for daughter and son;
O! murmur not when chastened,
But say "God's will be done."

Though you feel so sad and lonely,
Jesus hears your bitter cry,
He will bear your burden for you,
He's a friend that's ever nigh.

Brothers, reconciled you should be,
In God only put your trust,
Till those friends he kindly lent you,
Shall awake from sleeping dust.

Sisters, those you loved so fondly,
To the grave are borne away,
Where no choking, no more coughing,
Wear their feeble frames away.

There's a broken-hearted brother,
He is left to weep alone;
His tears fall in secret places,
Where no earthly friend is known.

Speak kind words to that lone brother,
To your heart he's very dear;
Often ask him to your dwelling,
Try his mournful heart to cheer.

Jesus did not chide for weeping,
But did weep at Lazarus' grave;
With compassion on his sisters,
Unto him new life he gave.

He will bless you too, dear brother,
If you follow his command;
And now may his Holy Spirit
Guide you in this dreary land.

All ye mourning ones, be patient,
Jesus said he'd come again,
To heal all the broken-hearted,
And he promised not in vain.

Soon will dawn the glorious morning,
Then you'll meet those gone before,
And with them enter the kingdom,
There to dwell forevermore.

Tuftonborough, N. H. MERCY GLIDDEN.

HOW TO GET HEARERS.

The following account of John Ashworth, a zealous and successful missionary to the poor outcasts in Rochdale, England, will be read with interest: He took a small room in Baillie street, and published two thousand small placards containing the following invitation:

CHURCH FOR THE DESTITUTE,
BAILLIE STREET, ROCHDALE.

Ye that have no house, no home, no friends, no money—Come! In your poor and ragged clothing—Come! Ye, the poor, the maimed, the lame, the blind—Come! Of whatever color or nation, with or without any belief—Come! Jesus loves you! Jesus loves you! He gave up his life to save you!

"Come, ye weary, heavy laden,
Lost and ruined by the fall,
If you tarry till you're better,
You will never come at all."

NO COLLECTIONS.

All that we seek is your welfare, bodies and souls.
Service every Sabbath evening at 6½ o'clock.
Come, poor sinners, come and welcome!

One Sabbath morning he went out with about five hundred of these papers in his pockets, and walked through the back streets and lanes, in the poorest and dirtiest quarters of the town, and when he met a ragged man or woman, he gave each one of the papers, and respectfully invited them to the service. If they could not read, he read the papers to them. Some mocked, others stared, but very few promised to attend. After dinner he went to one of the lodging-houses for the poor, and asked permission to see those who lodged there at the time. He was led to a large room containing sixteen persons. He took off his hat, bowed to the company, and then began to distribute his papers. One young man took the paper to light a short pipe which he had in his mouth, and breaking out into boisterous laughter, began to dance on the floor. "You can dance well," said Ashworth, "can you do something else equally well?" "O, I am a first rate hand for everything," was the reply. "Well, then, let me hear you read this paper as well as you dance."

He took the paper, pulled the pipe from his mouth, ascended an old wooden chair, and began to read aloud, and with theatrical tones; but when he came to the words, "Jesus loves you! Jesus loves you! He gave up his life to save you," his voice trembled; he came down and placed the paper on the chair, remarking as he did so, "I would have been glad had I not read that, because it recalled to my mind better days."

After he had failed to read the paper through, the rest called forward one that was nicknamed by them "Jenny Lind." She was at the time drinking tea in the corner of the room. She earned her living by singing in the streets and bar-rooms. Jenny took the paper and read it through, and then returned amidst great applause to finish her meal. A crabbed man, with a snub nose and red eyes, said, "I thought that no one in heaven, earth or hell cared anything about us, but it now appears that some one cares." "Yes," said Ashworth, "that paper is true; Jesus does love you. He died to save you, and I, his servant, have come here to tell you of his love. Now, which of you will first promise to come to the church for the destitute to-night?" They all laughed, and one said, "That is a fine joke!"

Failing to receive a single promise from the company, Ashford placed his hands upon a thin man, who was trying with much care to part his hair before a bit of broken looking glass, and requested him to challenge the others.

"Well done," said all immediately, "if you have him, you'll have the worst one of the lot; we'd like to see Bill Guest in a church."

"Yes," said the man with a wooden leg, "if Bill goes, I'll go."

"And I," said the snub nose.

"And I," said the red shirt.

"And I," said Jenny Lind.

"And I, too," said the big spectacles.

"You had better mind," said Bill, "lest I astonish you."

But they all reiterated their willingness to go if he went.

"I'll go then," said Bill, "and let us see now which of you will turn coward."

Ashworth promised to call for them in season to lead them to the place of worship. So he did, and found all the sixteen ready to follow him, no one showing the least desire to back out of the arrangement.

Ashworth and the boy led the way, and the others followed them two by two. They attracted much attention as they passed through the streets. Some inquired if they were going to the rag shops; and others shouted, "This beats all!" But tears filled Ashworth's eyes, and his earnest prayer was, "O Lord, help me!" His congregation that evening numbered twenty-seven.

DON'T NEGLECT.

Do not neglect—what? Why that stitch broken in the heel of your stocking; that seam that has started in your husband's coat; that little rent in your child's frock; that peep hole in the elbow of your boy's spencer; that stitch that is broken, wherever it is found. "A stitch in time saves nine." "An ounce of prevention is better than a pound of cure." A destitute boy had given him a pair of new shoes. In a day or two the strings broke. He carelessly failed to replace or repair them. In two weeks the shoes were ruined, which ought to have lasted him six months, and all for the neglect of not keeping them tied. Was not this the characteristic of the lad which made him so poor?

A neighbor of mine bought a new harness. In a few weeks a stitch broke here; a little longer, and a strap gave way there; soon a buckle failed. One place he tied up with a string; another was taggled with a wire; another was left. By and by one of the strings gave way at a critical time; his horse took fright; his buggy was badly broken; his harness nearly ruined, himself hurt; and all for the neglect to keep his harness in repair. I know a woman who seldom mends anything. She generally has a ragged family, and large bills. I know a poor widow who keeps a large family always trim and neat on a very small income. She is a vigilant watcher of the little things. She never lets a button come off, or a button hole break. She puts in a stitch just before the deed is done. I know another woman in easy circumstances, whose carpets never get dirty, and her furniture seldom jammed. She keeps her eyes open to the liabilities of both. If a crumb is dropped, she picks it up before it is trod in. If a grease spot is made, she has it washed out at once. If one come in with dirty feet she is on their track. She attends at once to all the little soilings; and so her house seems never to get dirty or out of order. Our great losses are from little rents or breaks. A sharp eye to the stitches, will save an immense amount of time, money and patience.—Ex.

USEFUL RECIPES, ETC.

A Fence that will withstand Spring Freshets.—"A subscriber," of Chatham, sends us the following:—"In building the fence sink the posts three feet deep, and within about six inches of the bottom of the post insert a cross-piece two inches square and two and a half feet long. Then nail the boards firmly on the posts, and you have a fence that will defy the violence of any ordinary freshet.—Three years ago I built a fence on some bottom lands near the river Thames, and on the lower part of the ground I put cross pieces through all the posts. This spring we were visited with a freshet of more than ordinary magnitude, which destroyed nearly all that part of my fence which was built without the cross-pieces, but failed to injure the portion on which they were, although the water was two feet above the top of the fence."—Canada Farmer.

Turnips for fattening Cattle.—I am feeding three head of cattle with turnips, cutting them up and mixing them with meal. I never saw cattle feed better. I think there is no danger of cloying cattle fed in this way. Turnips digest soon, and must assist in digesting the meal; at any rate the cattle are ever ready for their mess, and are laying on fat as fast as any cattle I ever fed, or have seen fed.—C. H. STONE in Country Gentleman.

Remedy for the Rose Bug.—Whale oil soap is a sovereign remedy for this bug. Put half a pound in a pail of boiling hot water, and stir it till it is dissolved. Pour this into two or three pails of soft water, and syringe the bushes with it. You will, in a few days, be astonished at the glossy and healthy appearance of the leaves, and will be abundantly rewarded for the slight trouble and expense.—Genesee Farmer.

Important, if true.—In the Irish Gardener's Magazine it is stated that a decoction of the leaves of the camomile will not only destroy insects, but that nothing contributes so much to the health of a garden as a number of the plants dispersed through it. Either the stalks or flowers will answer. If a plant is drooping and apparently dying, in nine cases out of ten it will recover if you place a plant of camomile near it.

Preparation for Preserving Leather.—Take twenty-one parts of tallow and melt them in a vessel; add three parts of rosin, and when both are melted mix well together. In another vessel dissolve seven parts of good washing soap in seventy parts of pure rain water. After it is dissolved and heated to the boiling point, add the part prepared before, let it gently boil once more, and the preparation is ready for use. It is especially adapted to boots, harness leather and belting.

A Cure for the Canker Worm.—Muriate of lime is considered a sure cure for the canker worm. It should be applied immediately after the worm goes into the ground, from a peck to half a bushel to each tree, according to size. It is also a sure remedy for that great pest of the farmer, sorrel.—Scientific Amer.

To preserve Grain.—Pits in the earth, lined with masonry coated with sheet-iron, have been successfully tried in France for the preservation of grain. The English War Department had five hundred and seventy-six quintals of wheat buried for twenty-five months and a half, and it only lost fifteen pounds in its weight.

Cement for Brick Walls.—Bricks are very porous and absorb moisture freely, hence brick gable walls exposed to storms are usually covered with a thick coat of plaster, put on with a brush. One of the best water-tight compositions that can be employed for such walls is a mixture of hydraulic cement and boiled linseed oil. When dry it is perfectly water-proof.

Barley for Hens.—There is no grain so well suited as food for hens. Barley, when fed with oats and corn, will often be gathered first by the fowls, and hens fed with more or less barley, are said to lay more freely.

To set Colors in Calico.—All colors in calico may be set by the use of the following mixture: Dissolve one teaspoonful of ox gall in a gallon of warm water, and wash the article in it, without soap.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

For the World's Crisis.

NATURAL LAW.

BY IRA A. THAYER, M. D.

"Unerring Nature—still divinely bright—
One clear, unchanged, and universal light—
Life, Force and Beauty must to all impart,
At once the source, and end, and test of Art."
—Pope.

Natural law is God's law; we violate natural law, therefore we violate God's law. "Sin is the transgression of law." We transgress the law, therefore we sin. "The wages of sin is death." We sin, therefore we shall die. Who will deny the premises? then who can deny the conclusions?

Many people seem to think that if they obey the commandments of the Bible,—or, more generally, the precepts of the priests,—all is done. Should that be done—were people to live up strictly to the true meaning of the injunctions of Holy Writ, they would live a much different life than they do, both morally and physically. But I am of the opinion that the Scriptures only supply what we cannot learn from natural phenomena. I believe that man is to look both to the laws of nature as written on the open world around us, and to the Bible for his complete instruction.

We are placed here under natural laws which govern us; and we are in the possession of the faculties of observation and reason. We are capable of determining the nature of these laws, and the penalty attached to their violation. God never reveals by his word what we can learn from his works. We are just as much bound to investigate and obey this portion of his law as any other portion. And this seems to be our first duty,—for the physical is first, and therefore the laws which govern this portion should be first understood and obeyed, that we may have a foundation upon which to build our spiritual structure. So long as we neglect to cleanse and strengthen our physical structure, we need not expect to bring the spiritual to that state of cultivation which is acceptable in the sight of Heaven. Would you expect to obtain a clear and brilliant light from a candle composed of poor and filthy material? Would you not expect that the light would be in proportion to the clearness and goodness of the material by which it was fed?

There is a connection between mind and matter much talked about, and poorly understood. I do not attempt the solution. But enough is known to show us that the strength, clearness, and purity of the mind's action is in proportion to that of the body. Almost every day we see instances of a diseased body producing various mental diseases, such as insanity, delirium, hysteria, and certain hallucinations. We notice that certain physical ailments produce peculiar mental disorders; and that general debility, or weakness of the vital force, produces a corresponding weakness of the mind. We observe, also, that when the mind becomes thus reduced, it is extremely liable to a perverted action; and that certain diseases produce a perverted action of mind and feeling: e. g., in dyspepsia, or disease of the liver, there is generally a gloomy, morose, melancholy condition of mind, an indescribable feeling which is favorable to anything but pure, clear and steady mental action and moral feeling. The passions are apt to become morbidly excited, the patient is fretful and irritable, is finding fault with himself and everybody else. And so with most diseases. Ask an observing minister where his preaching takes deepest root, and where he succeeds best; whether among a dyspeptic, sickly congregation, or where nature is in full bloom, and the hearers alive and hearty.

In vain do you preach perfection of character until you have brought around a health reform, and aroused the people to the investigation of natural laws and facts as connected with their own beings. You might as well think of raising the dead, as of producing a healthy mental and moral action from an unsound body. Reformation of character can never be thoroughly brought about while the health laws are so utterly disregarded.

Here I think is a great mistake committed by the religious world generally. People often think that to be christians men must lay aside all thoughts and cares of this world; that they must despise everything earthly; that they must put on an extremely long and doleful countenance, make long, sleepy prayers, sing slow and solemn songs, and look and act like death generally. We are told to shun the things of this world, and seek enjoyment only in the world to come. The evil that is in the world should be shunned; but has God placed this beautiful world here for his children to despise and long to leave? Has he created so much for naught? But thus runs popular teaching. I have heard a great many persons say that they are longing to leave this world; that they will rejoice to see death come. I do not believe it. No person unless mentally diseased wishes to die. Our systems naturally cling to life and this world, and it is right they should.

The laws of God were to be obeyed, else they would not have been made. And there is no clashing between what is termed natural and moral law; both are equally binding upon us; neither can be disregarded with impunity. The great book of nature is open before us; in it we can read invaluable lessons. We can read there the character of the Creator, the nature of our own beings, and the laws governing matter. Over these beautiful pages we should devote much of our time. Here we can dig down deep into the beauties and mysteries of nature, and study with benefit and satisfaction the Author of the Universe.

"Lo, the poor Indian, whose untutored mind Sees God in the clouds, and hears him in the wind."

Should we thus live in close communion with nature, we would approach nearer to God, and understand much better his will.

I know I shall be opposed for thus speaking out my mind against popular opinion, but it matters not; such is my conviction, and so I teach. I am glad to see some manifestations of life in the east, and that occasionally they speak out. I heartily approve of the plan of the Crisis in appropriating a portion of its space to the subject of health; and would be glad to see the whole fourth page devoted to it. The subject occupies too small a space in religious publications, and too little time in the pulpit. Being so intimately connected with—in fact being so great a part of, christianity, and the very foundation of all reforms and all goodness and greatness, it should receive much more attention than it now receives. Too much valuable time is spent in unholy dissensions and argument upon unimportant topics and technicalities, and too little upon every day life, and natural laws and facts as relate to our duty.

Allow me to suggest that among the many tracts, doctrinal and otherwise, that are daily sent to all parts of the country, there be at least a few pages upon this subject, if for no other purpose than to call the attention to the importance of the subject. But why not to instruct?

Bristolville, O.

For the World's Crisis.

DIPHTHERIA GARGLE.

I have felt for some time that Sawin's Diphtheria Gargle ought to be advertised. With the knowledge of its utility in my own family, and from my neighbors, I will say, Try it.

Doctor Sawin, when in the army, had to try experiments when they were dying all around with this awful disease, and succeeded in getting a medicine that would take off the white blisters in the throat, gargling or swallowing two or three times.

I had a two ounce vial with me last winter for my own protection. On learning of a young woman away from neighbors, in a bad snow storm, who had it very badly, her father gone, and no doctor near, I was induced to let mine go, which was all, I think, that saved her life. The neighbors seeing the effect sent for a bottle, and it cured all who used it.

I have sent it to a number of our brethren, by request, who have heard what it has done. I think it ought to be more fully known. It is very powerful, and it takes but a little to do the work. The Doctor does not peddle it or advertise it, but cures the disease. He has sent me three bottles, by my request, and told me if I wrote him he would send it to me. One dollar's worth is the smallest quantity sent. That would answer for five or six cases. In some places they have sent in company for a quart bottle, to save express, and then divided it. Directions come on the bottle. I get nothing for my trouble. I do this for the good of others, for I have the utmost confidence in it. Direct to me at Chicopee Falls, Mass. HIRAM MUNGER.

CLEANLINESS.

Few persons seem to have a proper idea of the full import of this term. Being next to godliness, the term, cleanliness, implies perfect purity in all our mental and organic relations. Many persons who are exceedingly nice and fastidiously neat in their attentions to the external skin, and in matters of apparel, bedding, rooms, furniture, etc., are, notwithstanding, extremely heedless in regard to internal conditions and external surroundings. They will continually take into their stomachs and lungs such aliments and miasms as poison the blood and befoul the secretions; while they will permit the elements of contagion to accumulate to any extent in their cellars, yards, cess-pools and out-buildings. I have known half a dozen members of a family to be prostrated with typhus fever, the chief cause being stagnant water and rotting vegetables in the cellar. Offal and garbage—dead and decomposing vegetable and animal matters of all kinds—in or around any dwelling, are a prolific source of disease.

The hog-pen of many of our farmers causes more strange, putrid, and even fatal diseases than most persons suspect. I can hardly conceive of a fouler concentration of malignant and pestilent miasms than those which always emanate from a den of swine while undergoing the process of fattening. If people will persist in keeping piggeries, they should be located so far from the dwelling-house that the abominable stench thereof will not be offensive to noses polite.

WOOLLEN CLOTHING.

It is not generally understood how clothing keeps the body cool in hot weather and warm in cool weather. Clothes are generally composed of some light substance, which do not conduct heat; but woolen substances are worse conductors than those made of cotton or linen. Thus, a flannel shirt more effectuallly intercepts or keeps out heat than a linen or cotton one; and whether in warm or cold climates, attains the end of clothing more effectually. The exchange of woolen for cotton undershirts in hot weather is, therefore, an error. This is further proved by ice being preserved from melting when it is wrapped in blankets, which retard for a long time the approach of heat to it. These considerations show the error of supposing there is a positive warmth in the materials of clothing. "The thick cloak which guards a Spaniard against the cold of winter, is also in summer used by him as a protection against the direct rays of the sun, and while flannel is our warmest article of dress, yet we cannot more effectually preserve ice than by wrapping the vessel containing it in many folds of the softest flannel." Black clothes are known to be very warm in the sun; but they are far from being so in the shade, especially in cold weather, when the temperature of the air is below that of the surface of the skin. We may thus gather the importance of attention to children's clothing. It is an absurd idea that, to render young limbs hearty, the body must be exposed to the undue influences of our capricious climate.

☞ Diet cures more than the doctor.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance............... $2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months.... $3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address.......... $5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address.......... $10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:
An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper
FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:
Payable always in advance.

Single copy, [illegible] cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, [illegible] cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, [illegible] cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

CLUBS.—Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other names on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, [illegible] cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, [illegible] cents a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less than ten), from [illegible] to [illegible] cents a year on each copy.

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

POSTAGE.—Six cents per quarter, on every package of ten copies or less, to one address. Must be paid quarterly or yearly in advance, at the office where the paper is received. Send no money to us for postage.

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 515. | BOSTON, TUESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1865. | VOL. XXI.—NO. 22.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

GOING HOME.

I'm going home; the tidings come,
And sweetly fall upon my ear;
A little longer here I'll roam,
And then my Savior will appear.

I'm going home; this wilderness
Grows brighter, when my mind recalls
The glorious mansions ready made
Within fair Zion's jasper walls.

I'm going home, and cold pale death
Has lost its terrors, since I know
My long lost friends shall meet me there,
Where Life's fair tree shall ever grow.

I'm going home! I'm going home!
My heart leaps high while thus I sing;
O, happy day, it soon will come,
And I shall see our glorious King.

Hail, happy day! hail, holy rest!
Hail! angels, saints, and Savior too,
I'm going home! ye sighs and tears,
I bid you now a long adieu.

MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

Danville, C. E.

"PROGRESS OF TRUTH."

Under the above heading we find an interesting article, in the July number of the Rainbow, a Magazine of Christian Literature, published in London, Eng. The following is the first portion of the article:—[ED.]

Since the commencement of this magazine we have never for one moment doubted the absolute soundness of its fundamental principle—the pre-millennnial advent of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ Years ago, a careful examination of the only book in the world that speaks with authority on the sublime theme, convinced us that this doctrine is true, a rock which cannot be moved from its place in the divine programme, in relation to the future of our world, by any process of interprettaion or criticism that has the virtue of honesty. By honesty, of course, we do not mean in the intention of the interpreter or critic, but in the mental reception of Biblical truth as a REVELATION of things to come, and not as an enigma intended to tax the ingenuity of fancy and the resources of imagination. We give the full credit of honesty of purpose even to the mystic in his baseless dreams, and to the spiritualizer in his reinless wanderings; but to credit them with this is merely to believe charitably that they mean what they say, when their sayings have any tangible meaning at all. To believe, however, that their sayings illustrate the oracles of God, or make clearer the utterances of divine revelation, is a vastly different thing. We repeat, therefore, our settled conviction that the reception of Biblical words in their obvious meaning necessitates the conclusion that the Son of man will personally return to his own world and take possession of his rights as the Second Adam and Sovereign of humanity before "the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." That is our position, all opinions, theories, sermons, books, commentaries to the contrary notwithstanding.

There are many of the excellent of the earth, devoted disciples of Christ, men whom we love unfeignedly as brethren in the Lord, who totally differ from us in this conclusion; and the cross we have to bear daily—and it is no light one— is the fear that they may think our teaching a reflection upon either their loyalty to Scripture, or clearness of perception. If the possibillity of this could be avoided consistently with our deep convictions, it should be avoided; for we instinctively shrink from even appearing to assume the office of teacher in relation to men whose superiority to ourselves is not only readily admitted, but so cheerfully granted that we should gladly sit at their feet to learn much from their superior stores of education, knowledge, and wisdom. But we must bear this cross as patiently as we can. Our testimony, and the reasons for it, must be given. We have no choice in the matter. To be silent, seeing that the Lord in his providence has given us the opportunity of speaking, were to be disobedient and, consequently, miserable. If any think that we hereby gratify a desire for singularity, or wish to appear better informed on a subject of the very first importance than some others, who have had advantages such as never fell to our lot, they do us grievous wrong. We avow with deep sincerity that neither of these unworthy and unmanly motives actuates us, and that the possibility that any may think otherwise is our burden in this labor. Let it be remembered, however, that the element of personality should have no place in this all-important discussion, The question of the pre-millennial coming of the Head of the Church to invest his saints with glory, and rule his enemies with a rod of iron, until power shall have crushed the rebellion that would not yield to the amnesty of grace, is infinitely too great be be circumscribed within the miserable circle of personal opinion or denominational theology. It is strictly a question of divine revelation, and is to be discussed as such, Is it so written, or is it not? That is the question. We believe that it is, and because we believe we speak.

But, upon the other hand, the existence of this magazine has been the means of acquainting us with facts of which we had little conception. It has revealed to us that there is deep dissatisfaction with current teaching on the doctrine of the advent in the minds of many christians; and, what is most suggestive, this dissatisfaction is on the part of thoughtful, earnest, devout, Christ-loving men. It is not among the half-sceptical, the constitutional fault-finders, or the small creatures of the church, whose only chance of importance lies in stinging their pastors, but on that of high-principled, educated, holy men, who are the ornaments of the church and a blessing to its ministers. We submit that this fact is full of meaning, and that it therefore deserves careful consideration. The very class of men who wish to give a reason of the hope that is in them furnish many whose faith in the evangelization of the world by the church is greatly shaken, and who are consequently impatient of our pulpit and platform assurances of the great things ecclesiastical agency is about to perform for sin-smitten humanity. Is it right, is it wise, to ignore the feelings of these men, and to repress their longing for greater light on the awful problem, by a foolish sneer at millenarianism or the still more foolish quotation of a text that has nothing to do with the subject? Depend upon it these yearnings of the heart in men who are the temples of the Holy Ghost, are among the most significant spiritual phenomena of these remarkable times.

We have also discovered that there are several "secret disciples" of the doctrine we advocate scattered among the churches. The confidence that has been reposed in us in relation to this matter is one of the things that has cheered us in toil, and suggested the hope that Second Advent doctrine—the doctrine of prophets and apostles—will ere long gather around it a noble fellowship of saints whose sublime position, in the midst of a sleeping church and a godless world, it will be to stand "looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ."

Some of these secret disciples have been encouraged by the existence of this magazine to avow their faith. The Rainbow has spoken out the cherished sentiments of their hearts, and they have loved it accordingly, have become brave enough to say that they believe in it, and have been amongst its most zealous friends in procuring for it new subscribers.

We have likewise received intelligence from time to time that the perusal of the Rainbow has conquered prejudice, removed difficulties, and made converts to its fundamental doctrine, in a very considerable number of instances. Our readers need not be told that this kind of intelligence is most precious to us. We look upon it as a hallowed proof that we are called to a very important ministry by the press, and it fails not to suggest the hope that we shall be sustained in our labor by the willing help and hearty sympathy of some of those who look for the kingdom which God hath promised to them that love his Son. The doctrine of the pre-millennial advent is making progress in many directions. We believe the Spirit of the Lord is graciously at work; and we are very thankful to the Holy Head of the Church, and to those of his people who have helped us by their gifts, subscriptions, sympathy, and prayers, that we have been permitted to establish this monthly magazine, whose special work it is to speak of the revealed future of church and world.

For the World's Crisis.

COMING OF CHRIST.

BRO. GRANT:—To such of us as are looking for the speedy coming of the Lord, how chilling it is to have people continually telling us "no man knoweth the day nor the hour," as though that was the only passage in the whole Bible on the subject, and that, too, from the very class from which we have a right to expect help and encouragement; for the most opposition that we have comes from those who profess to love Jesus. How is it? do they love Jesus, and not love the thought of seeing him?

But is it true that Jesus Christ, angels or man, do not, and cannot know anything about the time when Jesus will come? what saith the Scriptures? Jesus says, "but of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only." Matt. 24: 36. "There," say they, "that's plain, certainly, and yet you Adventists say he is coming within a few years." Read the next verse. "But as was in the days of Noah, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." How was it in the days of Noah? Did any know the time? yes, all that were saved knew it in time to get into the ark. But who was the great company that was overtaken by the flood and destroyed? Those who did not know the time. They might have known; but they would not understand that God was going to destroy the world with a flood, any more than the great majority of people will understand now that he is about to destroy it by fire. It will be as it was in the days of Noah. We read that at that time the earth was filled with violence; how is it now?

"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Amos 3: 7. When speaking of the coming of the Lord and the resurrection of the dead, the apostle tells us to comfort one another with these words; that is, the coming of the Lord, etc.; but these words are no comfort to such as have no hope to be realized at his coming. Again he says, "But exhorting one another, and so much the more as you see the day approaching." Heb. 10: 25. But if we can tell nothing about it by signs or revelation, how can we see it approaching? The apostle knew that there would be those who would seek for truth as for hid treasures, and thereby know something of the time, as they did in the days of Noah. We are often told that we have no business to pry into the secrets of the Almighty, and yet the apostle says, "We have also a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place." 2 Pet. 1: 19. Not by calling it all a mystery, nor by throwing it aside and saying "it was never designed to be understood;" but by searching the Scriptures. The Master told his disciples "that when the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth, and he will show you things to come." John 16: 13. That "Spirit of truth" is now in the hearts of the willing ones, showing them things to come, by giving them an understanding of his word; thus any who are willing may know something of the "things to come;" but the unwilling, those who know all about it, or do not choose to take heed to the "sure word of prophecy," can remain in ignorance about the time of Christ's coming. But if it is to be as it was in the days of Noah, I do not see why all that are not ready and expecting it will be swept away.

"But ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief." 1 Thess. 5: 4. It certainly would if we could not see it coming. But, thanks be to God, we can see that day but a little in the distance. God has given us signs there is no mistaking. But there is a large class who profess to love Jesus, who cannot see any sign of his coming, whose very acts are proofs that the day of the Lord is near; for they say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" Such we are told should come in the last days.

O how little faith there is among the professed followers of Christ; how few are looking for his appearing. Let us who have heard the welcome cry, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh," be faithful in all things, that our light may shine, that others may be led to Christ. Believing as we do that time is short, that very soon Jesus will come to gather his elect, how it becomes us to have our every day life correspond with our profession. Are we keeping ourselves unspotted from the world? Are we and all that we have dedicated to the Lord fully? These are serious questions, but what we all need to ask ourselves in these times of peril.

The judgment is just before us. Very soon our loved ones will come from the land of the enemy. What a blessed hope is this! Let us be faithful a little longer, until Jesus shall come and give us a crown of life. Even so, come, Lord Jesus. H. J. BALDWIN.

New Preston, Conn.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRONOLOGY.—No. 2.

THE TWENTY-EIGHTH OF HEROD'S REIGN OF THIRTY-FOUR YEARS.

"About this time it was that Cæsarea Sebaste, which he had built, was finished. The entire building being accomplished in the tenth year, the solemnity of it fell in the twenty-eighth year of Herod's reign, and into the hundred and ninety-second olympiad: there was accordingly a great festival," etc.—Ant. b. xvi. c. 5.

THE BATTLE OF ACTIUM.

"Hereupon, Herod held himself ready to go against the king of Arabia, because of his ingratitude to him, and because, after all, he would do nothing that was just to him; although Herod made the Roman war an occasion of delaying his own, for the battle of Actium was now expected, which fell into the hundred and eighty-seventh olympiad, when Cæsar and Antony were to fight for the supreme power of the world."—Ant. b. xv. c. 5.

THE ACTIUM BATTLE IN HEROD'S SEVENTH YEAR.

"At this time it was that the fight happened at Actium, between Octavius Cæsar and Antony, in the seventh year of the reign of Herod; and then it was also there was an earthquake in Judea," etc.—Ant. b. xv. c. 5.

Mr. Whiston, the translator of Josephus, who was also a chronologist, remarks on the above: "The reader is here to take notice, that this seventh year of the reign of Herod, and all the other years of the reign, in Josephus, are dated from the death of Antigonus, never from his first obtaining the kingdom at Rome."

HEROD'S SEVENTH YEAR. Note by Whiston.

"But as he was avenging himself on his enemies, there fell upon him another providential calamity; for in the seventh year of his reign, when the war about Actium was at the height, at the beginning of the spring, the earth was shaken, and destroyed an immense number of cattle, with thirty thousand men; but the army received no harm because it lay in the open air."—Wars, b. 1, c. 19.

Whiston remarks on the above extract:—"This seventh year of the reign of Herod [from the conquest or death of Antigonus] with the great earthquake in the beginning of the same spring, which are here fully implied to be not much before the fight at Actium, between Octavius and Antony, and which is known from the Roman historians to have been in the beginning of September, in the 31st year before the Christian era, determines the chronology of Josephus as to the reign of Herod, viz., that he begun in the year 37, beyond rational contradiction," etc.

HEROD'S DEATH. "So Herod having survived the slaughter of his son five days, died, having reigned thirty-four years since he had caused Antigonus to be slain, and obtained his kingdom; but thirty-seven years since he had been made king by the Romans." Wars, b. 1, c. 33; also Ant. b. xvii., c. 8.

Elder Sheldon's argument on the date of Messiah's birth (Crisis, April 11th, 1865), will help the reader in arranging the above testimony in chronological order, and the artiæles of Elder Grant on the year of Augustus Cæsar's death (Crisis, May 9th and 16th), will make the table I present easily understood. I trust that the brethren will patiently examine what has cost some labor to present to them. May we have the blessing promised to the friends of Jesus, who, in fellowship with the angels, desire to look into the revelations of prophecy. JOHN LYLE.

CHRONOLOGY BY OLYMPIADS OF JOSEPHUS.

	OLYMPIADS.		Each contains four years.
B. C. 64.	179	*111	Pompey took Jerusalem.
	180	1111
	181	1111
	182	1111
	183	1111
	184	111*	Herod's 37 years' reign begins.
	185	11*1	Herod's 34 years' reign "27 years after Pompey."
	186	1111
B. C. 31.—Astronomy—	187	1*11	Actium battle in Herod's 7th year.
	188	1111
	189	1111
	190	1111
	191	1111
	192	11*1	Herod's 28th from Antigonus' death.
	193	111*	"Messiah the Prince" born.
B. C. 4.	194	*111	Herod dies.
A. D. 1 begins.	195	*111
	196	1111
	197	11*1	Tiberius associated A. D. 11.—Dr. A. Clarke.
A. D. 13.	198	*111	Augustus dies the 43d from Actium.
	199	1111
	200	1111
	201	1*11	Jesus baptized A. D. 26. The 15th of Tiberius.
A. D. 30.	202	1*11	Crucifixion. The fourth Passover from A. D. 26.

J. L.

* The stars denote the year of the particular olympiad in which the event occurred. For instance, the first star is at the top of the second column, which signifies that Pompey took Jerusalem in the first year of the 179th olympiad. Each year of the olympiads is represented by the figure 1.

For the World's Crisis.

"MOSES IN THE MOUNT."
Matt. 17: 3.

The transfiguration is admitted to be a miniature representation of the kingdom of God, as it shall come; consequently must have representatives from the translated, from the dead, and from the living; the last of which are to represent those who "shall never die," but are "alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord."—John 11: 26; 1 Thess. 4: 15. These were Elias, Moses, and the apostles Peter, James and John. The point assumed, and to which exception is taken, is that what is called Moses means, and must be, his SOUL; because it is recorded in Deut. 32: 49, and 34: 5, and Josh. 1: 2, that Moses died in Mount Nebo, "in the land of Moab," hundreds of years before. Now it is very doubtful if there can be produced in all the Bible a single instance, not excepting the case of Samuel and the witch of Endor, where the spirit, or soul, of any person is ever designated by the proper name of that individual. When the prophet prayed for the widow's child to be restored to life, he said, "Let this child's soul [life] come into it again." The child was that which was dead. When Lazarus was commanded to "come forth," that which was dead obeyed the command; and Christ said plainly, "LAZARUS is dead"; and so it is written that MOSES died; and if it was not as it says, in Matt. 17: 9, "a vision," then was Moses resurrected, if he was actually there; for it took "soul, body, and spirit" combined to constitute a Moses that could die; and any thing less than what constituted Moses that died, neither would or could constitute Moses alive, on the mount of transfiguration, and there is not the remotest intimation that his soul, or spirit, appeared, but MOSES.

To say that Moses could not have been resurrected, because Christ was to be "the first fruits of them that slept," is foolishness in the extreme, and betrays either the simplicity or duplicity of the affirmant. Resurrection is defined by Webster to be "a rising again"; and Paul, in Heb. 11, speaking of the faithful from Abel to Christ, says in v. 35, "Women received their dead raised to life again"; and we know that after Christ came, the widow's only son (Luke 7: 12–15), Jairus' only daughter (Luke 8: 49–55), and Lazarus (John 11: 43), were raised from the dead—were resurrected before His resurrection, as Moses might have been, but not, as is insinuated, to immortality and eternal life; and no body claims that he was, for the Bible expresly teaches, and all admit, that Christ must be the "first fruits" of immortality and eternal life from them that were dead. But it says, in Luke 9: 31, that he "appeared in glory"; and so Christ appeared in glory, for he was "transfigured" before them; nevertheless he was in the mortal state, and afterwards died at Jerusalem, and at that very time was conversing with those two MEN of the accomplishment of his decease. But a soul, or life, or a spirit, is not a man, but something possessed by or belonging to the man; besides this, man was made "of the dust of the ground."—Gen. 2: 7. Man "was made a living soul," or person. 1 Cor. 15: 45; and here in the mount there talked with him two men, and the glory was put on for the occasion, and that was to show to the apostles, Peter, James and John, the kingdom; for he had said to them all, only eight days before, "There be some standing here which shall not taste of death till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom"; and they did see it in "the vision." Luke 9: 23, 27; Matt. 17: 9. But Peter and they that were with him—James and John—were heavy with sleep; and when they were awake they saw his glory, and the two MEN that stood with him. That was a resurrection scene; and when that "glory" came, oh! how it made those old "bare, gray rocks, and bleak mountains smile." Ah! it was good to be there,—so thought Peter, and thus will it be when that same glory shall fill the whole earth as the waters of the sea cover the vast deep; and so we shall think when the kingdom is come.

But we must return to the resurrection of Moses; for he said truly, "A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren LIKE unto me;" and in this likeness there may be found a necessity of Moses' resurrection. As the Israelites were in subjection to the Egyptians when Moses was born and concealed among the bulrushes, so were the Jews in bondage to their "father the devil," taken in his snare, and led captive at his will, when Christ was brought forth and cradled in a manger. As Pharaoh sought to kill the one, so Herod sought the life of the other. As Moses was tempted to be a prince in Egypt, so was Christ tempted to be a prince of this world. As the one had respect to the recompense of reward, so had the other to the will of his father. As the one smote the Egyptian, so has the other smitten sin. As fled the one into the land of Midian, so fled the other into Egypt. As Moses was called out of that land to be a leader and a deliverer to the Hebrews, so was Christ called out of Egypt to be a leader and deliverer of his people from the bondage of sin and corruption. As the one destroyed the Egyptians, so will the other "destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage."—Heb. 2: 14, 15. As the one led Israel through the sea and through the wilderness to Jordan, so the other leads his people through the sea of blood and persecution and the wilderness of sin to the banks of deliverance. As shone the face of Moses in Mount Sinai, so shone the face of Jesus in the mount of transfiguration. And as Moses viewed the promised land from Pisgah's top, so viewed Jesus the promised possession and the inheritance from Mt. Zion. As died Moses on Mt. Nebo, because of his trespass at Meribah-Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin; so died the Son of God, because he "took on him the seed of Abraham" (Heb. 2: 16), "sinful flesh" (Rom. 8: 3), in the wilderness of the people, on "Calvary's mountain." And as Moses was buried in the valley of death, so was Christ buried; and now, as he must "rise again" before he could enter the land promised to him for a possession—before he could be glorified with that glory which he had with the Father, so must MOSES rise again before he could enter the promised land—before he could be glorified, in the mount of transfiguration, with that glory which he had with the Lord in Mt. Sinai; for the Lord had said, in Deut. 32: 52, "Thou shalt see the land" "with thine eyes (34: 4), but thou shalt not go over thither." As was the type, so must be the antetype. Has God left the type incomplete,—made "the pattern" imperfect and defective? Nay, verily; for a prophet "like unto me" "shall the Lord your God raise up unto you." Like Moses, Jesus was "reproached"; like him, he bore it in meekness; like him, he reviled not; like him, he was an instructor to the people; like him, he died; like him, he was buried; like him, he was raised again; like him, he appears in glory; and like him, he is a faithful and true witness in all his house. Heb. 3: 2, 5. But if Moses was NOT resurrected and made to appear in glory at the transfiguration, THEN was the type NOT complete; then was the pattern imperfect and defective; NOT made in "ALL things" like that shown in the mount; and the glory that shone in Moses' face did not reach to the end of the law, to the resurrection; and the "schoolmaster" failed to solve one of his most interesting and instructive problems.

But there were two men in the mount; and there were two sent "to spy out the land"; and there were two hid; and there were two "let down by a cord"; and the same two had to go to the mountain and hide themselves "three days," and she that hid them was not to reveal their business any more than were Peter, James and John to tell the vision until after THE SON OF MAN WAS RISEN FROM THE DEAD. So the law required at the least two witnesses; and as we find two men in the mount, so we find two at the resurrection (Luke 24: 4); and there were two at the ascension, and probably two at the crucifixion. Now as Moses and Elias talked with Jesus about "his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem," and thus showed themselves interested in it, there is room for a just inference that they WITNESSED that fulfillment.

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

"PLEASE READ THIS."

We have received a little tract of four pages, entitled, "Does the soul live in death?" with the request, written in pencil, on the margin, "Please read this." With this request we have complied most cheerfully. In reading we learned that the tract was published at 46½ Kneeland street, Boston, for the "Messianian Tract Committee." We do not know who this committee are, but we are well acquainted with the Messianian brethren. They left the Adventists a few years since under the lead of Eld. J. Litch, then in Pennsylvania, and formed a new conference. They took the name of Church of Messiah in the place of Adventist, and so are called Messianians. One of their reasons for leaving the Advent body was, that they did not like to be mixed up with those who held to the sleep of the dead and destruction of the wicked. And the tract before us, from the pen, as we suppose, of Eld. J. Litch, is published to sustain their view of the consciousness of the soul between death and the resurrection, without "final reward or punishment in that state." It is an adroitly written argument, and well calculated to mislead those who are disposed to receive the popular and unscriptural idea of the immortality of the soul.

We shall notice several points.

I. The definition of the word soul, or psuche. He says it "means the animal life, which is one of the three elements of man's being: which are body, soul and spirit." He quotes Matt. 10: 28,—"Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul," and remarks, "Then the soul does not die with the body. I say this on the authority of Christ, and do not fear contradiction." But let us see all that Christ said. From the sixteenth to the forty-second verse we have one discourse to the newly appoined apostles. (Matt. 10: 1–5). In v. 28 he guards them against the fear of death by martyrdom, and so he said to them, "Fear not them that kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell;" assuring them, in the conclusion of his address (v. 39),—"He that findeth his life [or soul] shall lose it: and he that loseth his life [or soul] for my sake shall find it." So when we take all that Christ says on the subject, and in the connection, it will be seen that he had no reference to the Platonic idea, that when a man is dead and disorganized, that one of the original elements or parts of the man is more alive than when he existed in the comparatively full perfection of his being. Christ was comforting them against the idea of the loss of the present life. And how did he seek to console them? Was it with the thought that they should not die? Not at all. They should be killed. What, then, was the ground of consolation? It was that the disciple who should lose his life by man for Christ's sake should FIND IT again. When? Let the Savior answer. "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. For whosoever will save his life [soul] shall lose it: and whosoever shall lose his life [soul] for my sake, shall find it. For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul [life]? or what shall he give in exchange for his soul [life]? For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with the holy angels: and THEN shall he reward every man according to his works." (Matt. 16: 24–27).

So, then, Jesus teaches that his people were not to fear them that killed the body, or took away the present life, and could do no more than this: for if they lost their life for Christ and the truth's sake, they should find it again at the coming of the Son of man; at the resurrection of the just. (v. 27). Men could not prevent this.

It should be understood, that Christ makes no reference to an intermediate state in anything that he promised the apostles. In Matt. 19: 27–29, Mark 10: 28–30, and Luke 18: 28–30, in answer to the question of the apostles who had forsaken all and followed him, What shall we have? he answered, There is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdom of God's sake, who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting. And Jesus says: "They which are accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection [out] from the dead," etc, "can die no more—they are equal to the angels." (Luke 20: 35, 36).

In the language of the tract, "We say these things on the authority of Christ." And though we may be contradicted, and called a materialist, yet we have the truth in this case beyond all contradiction.

Let us recapitulate. First, it is stated by our Savior, that if his disciples should be killed for his and the truth's sake, that it would only affect the body, or the present life.

Men could go no further. They could not kill the soul, or psuche. Laying Plato and his philosophy aside, let the Savior now explain what he means by this. "He that loseth his life [psuche] for my sake shall find it." (Matt. 16: 39). So, then, in case of death by martyrdom, man would have no power over them, only so far as this mortal life is concerned. Fear them not, therefore. Why not? He that loseth his life, in this way, shall find it in the resurrection at the coming of Christ. And to this Paul's letter to the Colossians (ch. 3: 1–3) agrees, when he declares, "When Christ who is our LIFE shall appear, then shall we appear with him in glory." This was the apostolic hope. The idea of the soul being alive when it is dead is not even hinted at; while the teaching of the Messiah is irreconcilable with it.

II. How can a man lose his soul for Christ and the truth? They argue the soul is immortal and cannot die—cannot be killed: man can not kill it. How, then, can a soul be lost, according to the teaching of this tract, which agrees with the popular theology? Plainly, in one way, and only one: by sin. But Jesus says, "he that loseth his life (psuche—soul) for my sake shall find it." (Matt. 10: 39.) In this case a man has only to sin and destroy himself for Christ's sake, in order to be saved! Will they accept this conclusion? They can not use the word psuche here in the sense of the natural life; because their argument rests on the sense of the psuche being more alive when the body is killed than before. So, then, if in this case the man does not lose his psuche, or soul, by being killed, it is because there is an immortal part that can not be killed. But Jesus explains his own word, and says (Luke 9: 25), "Whosoever will save his psuche [life] shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his psuche [life] for my sake, the same shall find it. For what is a man advantaged if he gain the whole world and lose HIMSELF, or be a castaway?"

"Himself" must include his body, soul and spirit. And "in whatever sense the Messiah used the word DIE, that is the true sense."

III. This view is further confirmed by the fate of those who fear man, and seek to save their own lives by a cowardly course. The punishment of such is the destruction of "soul and body in hell," or gehenna. This is what the Savior means, when he says, He that seeks to save his life shall lose it. It is the loss of life in gehenna; or, destruction in gehenna. Mark! the Messiah does not say that they shall have eternal life in gehenna, or in misery; but they shall be destroyed both soul and body in hell.—Voice of the West.

For the World's Crisis.

WHAT JOSEPHUS SAYS.

Josephus informs us, in Ant. b. 18, ch. 4, Sec. 2, that Vitellius "ordered Pilate to go to Rome, to answer before the emperor to the accusations of the Jews. So Pilate when he had tarried ten years in Judea, made haste to Rome, and this in obedience to the orders of Vitellius, which he durst not contradict; but before he could get to Rome, Tiberius was dead. But Vitellius came into Judea, and went up to Jerusalam; it was at the time of that festival which is called the Passover."

Now, there are two things in the above statements of Josephus, which we wish the reader to particularly observe; the first is, that before Pilate could get to Rome, in obedience to the orders of Vitellius, Tiberius was dead; the second is, that after Vitellius ordered Pilate to go to Rome, "he came into Judea, and went up to Jerusalem," at the time of the Passover, at which time Josephus informed us (Sec. 3), he (Vitellius) "also deprived Joseph, who was also called Caiaphas, of the high priesthood," and appointed Jonathan to succeed him. Now we have thus proved, according to Josephus, that Caiaphas was not deprived of his high priesthood, until after Pilate was ordered to Rome; and since Pilate could not get to Rome before Tiberius was dead, and since, according to chronologers, Tiberius died on the 16th of March, which was just before the Passover; and further, since Caiaphas was deprived of the high priesthood at the first passover after Pilate was ordered to Rome, we have, therefore, proved that Caiaphas, instead of being deprived of his high priesthood before the 20th year of Tiberius, as some have supposed, he was not deprived of it until the passover after his (Tiberius') death.

In regard to the high priest which succeeded Caiaphas, the Bible and Josephus do not agree; for while Josephus says that Jonathan succeeded Caiaphas, Acts 4: 6 proves that no later than the pentecost, which was about fifty days after the crucifixion, Annas was the high priest." Therefore, as the Bible must be admitted to be correct, in this matter, Josephus must be mistaken in regard to Jonathan being the successor to Caiaphas. But one thing is clearly proved in this connection; and that is, that Caiaphas was deprived of the high priesthood at that same passover, and therefore immediately after, our Lord was crucified. And having proved that Caiaphas, according to Josephus, was deprived of his high priesthood at the passover, immediately following the death of Tiberius, we have therefore been able to fix the cross in the same year in which Tiberius died, and therefore in A. D. 37.

Now it is evident that it took Pilate some little time to settle up his affairs and get ready to go to Rome, after he had his orders from Vitellius so to do, and therefore he did not get off until after the passover; that is, until after he had given sentence against Jesus. He might have then started for Rome, and have got several days journey before he heard of the death of Tiberius. This, we are satisfied, is the only way that the statements of Josephus can be at all harmonized with the Bible, in reference to these matters; for Caiaphas was not deprived of the high priesthood, until the passover following the death of Tiberius, and Acts 4: 6, and 5: 17, 24, 27, proves unmistakably that Caiaphas was deprived of the high priesthood, immediately after the crucifixion of our Lord. We would here simply say that there is nothing in Ant. b. 18, ch. 4, Sec. 6, to which reference has been made that at all touches the question under consideration. That section is speaking wholly of another matter, that has no relation whatever to the high priesthood. Josephus proves, in the clearest manner, that Caiaphas was deprived, as we have already shown, of his high priesthood at the passover, immediately following the death of Tiberius; and no amount of special pleading can do away with the clear testimony of Acts 4: 6, and 5: 17, 27, in regard to the change of the high priesthood immediately after the crucifixion. Therefore the death of Christ could not have taken place neither earlier nor later than A. D. 37, as that is the year agreed upon by all chronologists for the death of Tiberius. In our work entitled "The Truth made Plain," etc., we have shown that 470 years of the 2300, ended at the cross, which, deducted from the 2300, leaves 1830 to be fulfilled this side of the cross, to which, if we add the 37 years of our A. D; which extended to the cross at the death of Tiberius, we have 1867, as the end of the 2300 days. And tihs we are satisfied is the latest point to which the 2300 days can be made to extend, as no chronologist, that we know of, places the death of Tiberius this side of the spring of A. D. 37.

That the 2300 and the 1335 days or years end at the same time, we think, there is nothing more susceptible of proof in the Bible. The 2300 days are shown to end with the termination of treading under foot, by the "little horn," or Roman power, of the "sanctuary and the host," thus showing that the sanctuary and the host are both "trodden under foot" by the "little horn," or Roman power, the same length of time. Now as the "little horn" must cease to tread under foot the sanctuary and the host, at the coming of Christ and the resurrection, therefore the 2300 days must end at that time, and, by consequence, with the 1335 day. And this position is further proved by the last verse of Dan. 11, and the first verse of ch. 12, where it is clearly shown that this Roman horn or power comes to "his end" at the standing up of "Michael," and, by consequence,, he ceases then to tread under foot the sanctuary and the host. The 2300 days therefore must end at the standing up of Michael and the resurrection in common with the 1335 days. Therefore as we cannot extend the 2300 days beyond 1867, we should then look for the coming of our long absent and much desired Redeemer,—our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. DR. A. DECKER.

P. S. We would say to the readers of the Crisis, that we have a few more books on hand yet, which we will continue to send to all who may desire them on the terms first proposed. All orders must be addressed to DR. A. DECKER, Newark, New Jersey.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 515. BOSTON, TUESDAY, AUGUST 15, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 22.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

For the World's Crisis.

GOING HOME.

I'm going home; the tidings come,
And sweetly fall upon my ear;
A little longer here I'll roam,
And then my Savior will appear.

I'm going home; this wilderness
Grows brighter, when my mind recalls
The glorious mansions ready made
Within fair Zion's jasper walls.

I'm going home, and cold pale death
Has lost its terrors, since I know
My long lost friends shall meet me there,
Where Life's fair tree shall ever grow.

I'm going home! I'm going home!
My heart leaps high while thus I sing;
O, happy day, it soon will come,
And I shall see our glorious King.

Hail, happy day! hail, holy rest!
Hail! angels, saints, and Savior too,
I'm going home! ye sighs and tears,
I bid you now a long adieu.

MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

Danville, C. E.

"PROGRESS OF TRUTH."

Under the above heading we find an interesting article, in the July number of the Rainbow, a Magazine of Christian Literature, published in London, Eng. The following is the first portion of the article:—[ED.]

Since the commencement of this magazine we have never for one moment doubted the absolute soundness of its fundamental principle—the pre-millennnial advent of our Lord and Saviour Jesus Christ Years ago, a careful examination of the only book in the world that speaks with authority on the sublime theme, convinced us that this doctrine is true, a rock which cannot be moved from its place in the divine programme, in relation to the future of our world, by any process of interprettaion or criticism that has the virtue of honesty. By honesty, of course, we do not mean in the intention of the interpreter or critic, but in the mental reception of Biblical truth as a REVELATION of things to come, and not as an enigma intended to tax the ingenuity of fancy and the resources of imagination. We give the full credit of honesty of purpose even to the mystic in his baseless dreams, and to the spiritualizer in his reinless wanderings; but to credit them with this is merely to believe charitably that they mean what they say, when their sayings have any tangible meaning at all. To believe, however, that their sayings illustrate the oracles of God, or make clearer the utterances of divine revelation, is a vastly different thing. We repeat, therefore, our settled conviction that the reception of Biblical words in their obvious meaning necessitates the conclusion that the Son of man will personally return to his own world and take possession of his rights as the Second Adam and Sovereign of humanity before "the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the Lord as the waters cover the sea." That is our position, all opinions, theories, sermons, books, commentaries to the contrary notwithstanding.

There are many of the excellent of the earth, devoted disciples of Christ, men whom we love unfeignedly as brethren in the Lord, who totally differ from us in this conclusion; and the cross we have to bear daily—and it is no light one— is the fear that they may think our teaching a reflection upon either their loyalty to Scripture, or clearness of perception. If the possibillity of this could be avoided consistently with our deep convictions, it should be avoided; for we instinctively shrink from even appearing to assume the office of teacher in relation to men whose superiority to ourselves is not only readily admitted, but so cheerfully granted that we should gladly sit at their feet to learn much from their superior stores of education, knowledge, and wisdom. But we must bear this cross as patiently as we can. Our testimony, and the reasons for it, must be given. We have no choice in the matter. To be silent, seeing that the Lord in his providence has given us the opportunity of speaking, were to be disobedient and, consequently, miserable. If any think that we hereby gratify a desire for singularity, or wish to appear better informed on a subject of the very first importance than some others, who have had advantages such as never fell to our lot, they do us grievous wrong. We avow with deep sincerity that neither of these unworthy and unmanly motives actuates us, and that the possibility that any may think otherwise is our burden in this labor. Let it be remembered, however, that the element of personality should have no place in this all-important discussion, The question of the pre-millennial coming of the Head of the Church to invest his saints with glory, and rule his enemies with a rod of iron, until power shall have crushed the rebellion that would not yield to the amnesty of grace, is infinitely too great be be circumscribed within the miserable circle of personal opinion or denominational theology. It is strictly a question of divine revelation, and is to be discussed as such. Is it so written, or is it not? That is the question. We believe that it is, and because we believe we speak.

But, upon the other hand, the existence of this magazine has been the means of acquainting us with facts of which we had little conception. It has revealed to us that there is deep dissatisfaction with current teaching on the doctrine of the advent in the minds of many christians; and, what is most suggestive, this dissatisfaction is on the part of thoughtful, earnest, devout, Christ-loving men. It is not among the half-sceptical, the constitutional fault-finders, or the small creatures of the church, whose only chance of importance lies in stinging their pastors, but on that of high-principled, educated, holy men, who are the ornaments of the church and a blessing to its ministers. We submit that this fact is full of meaning, and that it therefore deserves careful consideration. The very class of men who wish to give a reason of the hope that is in them furnish many whose faith in the evangelization of the world by the church is greatly shaken, and who are consequently impatient of our pulpit and platform assurances of the great things ecclesiastical agency is about to perform for sin-smitten humanity. Is it right, is it wise, to ignore the feelings of these men, and to repress their longing for greater light on the awful problem, by a foolish sneer at millenarianism or the still more foolish quotation of a text that has nothing to do with the subject? Depend upon it these yearnings of the heart in men who are the temples of the Holy Ghost, are among the most significant spiritual phenomena of these remarkable times.

We have also discovered that there are several "secret disciples" of the doctrine we advocate scattered among the churches. The confidence that has been reposed in us in relation to this matter is one of the things that has cheered us in toil, and suggested the hope that Second Advent doctrine—the doctrine of prophets and apostles—will ere long gather around it a noble fellowship of saints whose sublime position, in the midst of a sleeping church and a godless world, it will be to stand "looking for that blessed hope, and the glorious appearing of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ."

Some of these secret disciples have been encouraged by the existence of this magazine to avow their faith. The Rainbow has spoken out the cherished sentiments of their hearts, and they have loved it accordingly, have become brave enough to say that they believe in it, and have been amongst its most zealous friends in procuring for it new subscribers.

We have likewise received intelligence from time to time that the perusal of the Rainbow has conquered prejudice, removed difficulties, and made converts to its fundamental doctrine, in a very considerable number of instances. Our readers need not be told that this kind of intelligence is most precious to us. We look upon it as a hallowed proof that we are called to a very important ministry by the press, and it fails not to suggest the hope that we shall be sustained in our labor by the willing help and hearty sympathy of some of those who look for the kingdom which God hath promised to them that love his Son. The doctrine of the pre-millennial advent is making progress in many directions. We believe the Spirit of the Lord is graciously at work; and we are very thankful to the Holy Head of the Church, and to those of his people who have helped us by their gifts, subscriptions, sympathy, and prayers, that we have been permitted to establish this monthly magazine, whose special work it is to speak of the revealed future of church and world.

For the World's Crisis.

COMING OF CHRIST.

BRO. GRANT:—To such of us as are looking for the speedy coming of the Lord, how chilling it is to have people continually telling us "no man knoweth the day nor the hour," as though that was the only passage in the whole Bible on the subject, and that, too, from the very class from which we have a right to expect help and encouragement; for the most opposition that we have comes from those who profess to love Jesus. How is it? do they love Jesus, and not love the thought of seeing him?

But is it true that Jesus Christ, angels or man, do not, and cannot know anything about the time when Jesus will come? what saith the Scriptures? Jesus says, "but of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only." Matt. 24: 36. "There," say they, "that's plain, certainly, and yet you Adventists say he is coming within a few years." Read the next verse. "But as was in the days of Noah, so shall also the coming of the Son of man be." How was it in the days of Noah? Did any know the time? yes, all that were saved knew it in time to get into the ark. But who was the great company that was overtaken by the flood and destroyed? Those who did not know the time. They might have known; but they would not understand that God was going to destroy the world with a flood, any more than the great majority of people will understand now that he is about to destroy it by fire. It will be as it was in the days of Noah. We read that at that time the earth was filled with violence; how is it now?

"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." Amos 3: 7. When speaking of the coming of the Lord and the resurrection of the dead, the apostle tells us to comfort one another with these words; that is, the coming of the Lord, etc.; but these words are no comfort to such as have no hope to be realized at his coming. Again he says, "But exhorting one another, and so much the more as you see the day approaching." Heb. 10: 25. But if we can tell nothing about it by signs or revelation, how can we see it approaching? The apostle knew that there would be those who would seek for truth as for hid treasures, and thereby know something of the time, as they did in the days of Noah.

We are often told that we have no business to pry into the secrets of the Almighty, and yet the apostle says, "We have also a more sure word of prophecy, whereunto ye do well that ye take heed, as unto a light that shineth in a dark place." 2 Pet. 1: 19. Not by calling it all a mystery, nor by throwing it aside and saying "it was never designed to be understood;" but by searching the Scriptures. The Master told his disciples "that when the Spirit of truth is come, he will guide you into all truth, and he will show you things to come." John 16: 13. That "Spirit of truth" is now in the hearts of the willing ones, showing them things to come, by giving them an understanding of his word; thus any who are willing may know something of the "things to come;" but the unwilling, those who know all about it, or do not choose to take heed to the "sure word of prophecy," can remain in ignorance about the time of Christ's coming. But if it is to be as it was in the days of Noah, I do not see why all that are not ready and expecting it will be swept away.

"But ye, brethren, are not in darkness that that day should overtake you as a thief." 1 Thess. 5: 4. It certainly would if we could not see it coming. But, thanks be to God, we can see that day but a little in the distance. God has given us signs there is no mistaking. But there is a large class who profess to love Jesus, who cannot see any sign of his coming, whose very acts are proofs that the day of the Lord is near; for they say, "Where is the promise of his coming?" Such we are told should come in the last days.

O how little faith there is among the professed followers of Christ; how few are looking for his appearing. Let us who have heard the welcome cry, "Behold, the Bridegroom cometh," be faithful in all things, that our light may shine, that others may be led to Christ. Believing as we do that time is short, that very soon Jesus will come to gather his elect, how it becomes us to have our every day life correspond with our profession. Are we keeping ourselves unspotted from the world? Are we and all that we have dedicated to the Lord fully? These are serious questions, but what we all need to ask ourselves in these times of peril.

The judgment is just before us. Very soon our loved ones will come from the land of the enemy. What a blessed hope is this! Let us be faithful a little longer, until Jesus shall come and give us a crown of life. Even so, come, Lord Jesus. H. J. BALDWIN.

New Preston, Conn.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRONOLOGY.—No. 2.

THE TWENTY-EIGHTH OF HEROD'S REIGN OF THIRTY-FOUR YEARS.

"About this time it was that Cæsarea Sebaste, which he had built, was finished. The entire building being accomplished in the tenth year, the solemnity of it fell in the twenty-eighth year of Herod's reign, and into the hundred and ninety-second olympiad: there was accordingly a great festival," etc.—Ant. b. xvi. c. 5.

THE BATTLE OF ACTIUM.

"Hereupon, Herod held himself ready to go against the king of Arabia, because of his ingratitude to him, and because, after all, he would do nothing that was just to him; although Herod made the Roman war an occasion of delaying his own, for the battle of Actium was now expected, which fell into the hundred and eighty-seventh olympiad, when Cæsar and Antony were to fight for the supreme power of the world."—Ant. b. xv. c. 5.

THE ACTIUM BATTLE IN HEROD'S SEVENTH YEAR.

"At this time it was that the fight happened at Actium, between Octavius Cæsar and Antony, in the seventh year of the reign of Herod; and then it was also there was an earthquake in Judea," etc.—Ant. b. xv. c. 5.

Mr. Whiston, the translator of Josephus, who was also a chronologist, remarks on the above: "The reader is here to take notice, that this seventh year of the reign of Herod, and all the other years of the reign, in Josephus, are dated from the death of Antigonus, never from his first obtaining the kingdom at Rome."

HEROD'S SEVENTH YEAR. Note by Whiston.

"But as he was avenging himself on his enemies, there fell upon him another providential calamity; for in the seventh year of his reign, when the war about Actium was at the height, at the beginning of the spring, the earth was shaken, and destroyed an immense number of cattle, with thirty thousand men; but the army received no harm because it lay in the open air."—Wars, b. 1, c. 19.

Whiston remarks on the above extract:—"This seventh year of the reign of Herod [from the conquest or death of Antigonus] with the great earthquake in the beginning of the same spring, which are here fully implied to be not much before the fight at Actium, between Octavius and Antony, and which is known from the Roman historians to have been in the beginning of September, in the 31st year before the Christian era, determines the chronology of Josephus as to the reign of Herod, viz., that he begun in the year 37, beyond rational contradiction," etc.

HEROD'S DEATH. "So Herod having survived the slaughter of his son five days, died, having reigned thirty-four years since he had caused Antigonus to be slain, and obtained his kingdom; but thirty-seven years since he had been made king by the Romans." Wars, b. 1, c. 33; also Ant. b. xvii., c. 8.

Elder Sheldon's argument on the date of Messiah's birth (Crisis, April 11th, 1865), will help the reader in arranging the above testimony in chronological order, and the articles of Elder Grant on the year of Augustus Cæsar's death (Crisis, May 9th and 16th), will make the table I present easily understood. I trust that the brethren will patiently examine what has cost some labor to present to them. May we have the blessing promised to the friends of Jesus, who, in fellowship with the angels, desire to look into the revelations of prophecy. JOHN LYLE.

CHRONOLOGY BY OLYMPIADS OF JOSEPHUS.

	OLYMPIADS.	Each contains four years.
B. C. 64.	179	*111	Pompey took Jerusalem.
	180	1111
	181	1111
	182	1111
	183	1111
	184	111*	Herod's 37 years' reign begins.
	185	11*1	Herod's 34 years' reign "27 years after Pompey."
	186	1111
B. C. 31.—Astronomy—	187	1*11	Actium battle in Herod's 7th year.
	188	1111
	189	1111
	190	1111
	191	1111
	192	11*1	Herod's 28th from Antigonus' death.
	193	111*	"Messiah the Prince" born.
B. C. 4.	194	*111	Herod dies.
A. D. 1 begins.	195	*111
	196	1111
	197	11*1	Tiberius associated A. D. 11.—Dr. A. Clarke.
A. D. 13.	198	*111	Augustius dies the 43d from Actium.
	199	1111
	200	1111
	201	1*11	Jesus baptized A. D. 26. The 15th of Tiberius.
A. D. 30.	202	1*11	Crucifixion. The fourth Passover from A. D. 26.

J. L.

* The stars denote the year of the particular olympiad in which the event occurred. For instance, the first star is at the top of the second column, which signifies that Pompey took Jerusalem in the first year of the 179th olympiad. Each year of the olympiads is represented by the figure 1.

For the World's Crisis.

"MOSES IN THE MOUNT."
Matt. 17: 3.

The transfiguration is admitted to be a miniature representation of the kingdom of God, as it shall come; consequently must have representatives from the translated, from the dead, and from the living; the last of which are to represent those who "shall never die," but are "alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord."—John 11: 26; 1 Thess. 4: 15. These were Elias, Moses, and the apostles Peter, James and John. The point assumed, and to which exception is taken, is that what is called Moses means, and must be, his SOUL; because it is recorded in Deut. 32: 49, and 34: 5, and Josh. 1: 2, that Moses died in Mount Nebo, "in the land of Moab," hundreds of years before. Now it is very doubtful if there can be produced in all the Bible a single instance, not excepting the case of Samuel and the witch of Endor, where the spirit, or soul, of any person is ever designated by the proper name of that individual. When the prophet prayed for the widow's child to be restored to life, he said, "Let this child's soul [life] come into it again." The child was that which was dead. When Lazarus was commanded to "come forth," that which was dead obeyed the command; and Christ said plainly, "LAZARUS is dead"; and so it is written that MOSES died; and if it was not as it says, in Matt. 17: 9, "a vision," then was Moses resurrected, if he was actually there; for it took "soul, body, and spirit" combined to constitute a Moses that could die; and any thing less than what constituted Moses that died, neither would or could constitute Moses alive, on the mount of transfiguration, and there is not the remotest intimation that his soul, or spirit, appeared, but MOSES.

To say that Moses could not have been resurrected, because Christ was to be "the first fruits of them that slept," is foolishness in the extreme, and betrays either the simplicity or duplicity of the affirmant. Resurrection is defined by Webster to be "a rising again"; and Paul, in Heb. 11, speaking of the faithful from Abel to Christ, says in v. 35, "Women received their dead raised to life again"; and we know that after Christ came, the widow's only son (Luke 7: 12–15), Jairus' only daughter (Luke 8: 49–55), and Lazarus (John 11: 43), were raised from the dead—were resurrected before His resurrection, as Moses might have been, but not, as is insinuated, to immortality and eternal life; and no body claims that he was, for the Bible expressly teaches, and all admit, that Christ must be the "first fruits" of immortality and eternal life from them that were dead. But it says, in Luke 9: 31, that he "appeared in glory"; and so Christ appeared in glory, for he was "transfigured" before them; nevertheless he was in the mortal state, and afterwards died at Jerusalem, and at that very time was conversing with those two MEN of the accomplishment of his decease. But a soul, or life, or a spirit, is not a man, but something possessed by or belonging to the man; besides this, man was made "of the dust of the ground."—Gen. 2: 7. Man "was made a living soul," or person. 1 Cor. 15: 45; and here in the mount there talked with him two men, and the glory was put on for the occasion, and that was to show to the apostles, Peter, James and John, the kingdom; for he had said to them all, only eight days before, "There be some standing here which shall not taste of death till they see the Son of man coming in his kingdom"; and they did see it in "the vision." Luke 9: 23, 27; Matt. 17: 9. But Peter and they that were with him—James and John—were heavy with sleep; and when they were awake they saw his glory, and the two MEN that stood with him. That was a resurrection scene; and when that "glory" came, oh! how it made those old "bare, gray rocks, and bleak mountains smile." Ah! it was good to be there,—so thought Peter, and thus will it be when that same glory shall fill the whole earth as the waters of the sea cover the vast deep; and so we shall think when the kingdom is come.

But we must return to the resurrection of Moses; for he said truly, "A prophet shall the Lord your God raise up unto you of your brethren LIKE unto me;" and in this likeness there may be found a necessity of Moses' resurrection. As the Israelites were in subjection to the Egyptians when Moses was born and concealed among the bulrushes, so were the Jews in bondage to their "father the devil," taken in his snare, and led captive at his will, when Christ was brought forth and cradled in a manger. As Pharaoh sought to kill the one, so Herod sought the life of the other. As Moses was tempted to be a prince in Egypt, so was Christ tempted to be a prince of this world. As the one had respect to the recompense of reward, so had the other to the will of his father. As the one smote the Egyptian, so has the other smitten sin. As fled the one into the land of Midian, so fled the other into Egypt. As Moses was called out of that land to be a leader and a deliverer to the Hebrews, so was Christ called out of Egypt to be a leader and deliverer of his people from the bondage of sin and corruption. As the one destroyed the Egyptians, so will the other "destroy him that had the power of death, that is, the devil; and deliver them who through fear of death were all their lifetime subject to bondage."—Heb. 2: 14, 15. As the one led Israel through the sea and through the wilderness to Jordan, so the other leads his people through the sea of blood and persecution and the wilderness of sin to the banks of deliverance. As shone the face of Moses in Mount Sinai, so shone the face of Jesus in the mount of transfiguration. And as Moses viewed the promised land from Pisgah's top, so viewed Jesus the promised possession and the inheritance from Mt. Zion. As died Moses on Mt. Nebo, because of his trespass at Meribah-Kadesh, in the wilderness of Zin; so died the Son of God, because he "took on him the seed of Abraham" (Heb. 2: 16), "sinful flesh" (Rom. 8: 3), in the wilderness of the people, on "Calvary's mountain." And as Moses was buried in the valley of death, so was Christ buried; and now, as he must "rise again" before he could enter the land promised to him for a possession—before he could be glorified with that glory which he had with the Father, so must MOSES rise again before he could enter the promised land—before he could be glorified, in the mount of transfiguration, with that glory which he had with the Lord in Mt. Sinai; for the Lord had said, in Deut. 32: 52, "Thou shalt see the land" "with thine eyes (34: 4), but thou shalt not go over thither". As was the type, so must be the antetype. Has God left the type incomplete,—made "the pattern" imperfect and defective? Nay, verily; for a prophet "like unto me" "shall the Lord your God raise up unto you." Like Moses, Jesus was "reproached"; like him, he bore it in meekness; like him, he reviled not; like him, he was an instructor to the people; like him, he died; like him, he was buried; like him, he was raised again; like him, he appears in glory; and like him, he is a faithful and true witness in all his house. Heb. 3: 2, 5. But if Moses was NOT resurrected and made to appear in glory at the transfiguration, THEN was the type NOT complete; then was the pattern imperfect and defective; NOT made in "ALL things" like that shown in the mount; and the glory that shone in Moses' face did not reach to the end of the law, to the resurrection; and the "schoolmaster" failed to solve one of his most interesting and instructive problems.

But there were two men in the mount; and there were two sent "to spy out the land"; and there were two hid; and there were two "let down by a cord"; and the same two had to go to the mountain and hide themselves "three days," and she that hid them was not to reveal their business any more than were Peter, James and John to tell the vision until after THE SON OF MAN WAS RISEN FROM THE DEAD. So the law required at the least two witnesses; and as we find two men in the mount, so we find two at the resurrection (Luke 24: 4); and there were two at the ascension, and probably two at the crucifixion. Now as Moses and Elias talked with Jesus about "his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem," and thus showed themselves interested in it, there is room for a just inference that they WITNESSED that fulfillment.

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

"PLEASE READ THIS."

We have received a little tract of four pages, entitled, "Does the soul live in death?" with the request, written in pencil, on the margin, "Please read this." With this request we have complied most cheerfully. In reading we learned that the tract was published at 46½ Kneeland street, Boston, for the "Messianian Tract Committee." We do not know who this committee are, but we are well acquainted with the Messianian brethren. They left the Adventists a few years since under the lead of Eld. J. Litch, then in Pennsylvania, and formed a new conference. They took the name of Church of Messiah in the place of Adventist, and so are called Messianians. One of their reasons for leaving the Advent body was, that they did not like to be mixed up with those who held to the sleep of the dead and destruction of the wicked. And the tract before us, from the pen, as we suppose, of Eld. J. Litch, is published to sustain their view of the consciousness of the soul between death and the resurrection, without "final reward or punishment in that state." It is an adroitly written argument, and well calculated to mislead those who are disposed to receive the popular and unscriptural idea of the immortality of the soul.

We shall notice several points.

I. The definition of the word soul, or psuche. He says it "means the animal life, which is one of the three elements of man's being: which are body, soul and spirit." He quotes Matt. 10: 28,—"Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul," and remarks, "Then the soul does not die with the body. I say this on the authority of Christ, and do not fear contradiction." But let us see all that Christ said. From the sixteenth to the forty-second verse we have one discourse to the newly appoined apostles. (Matt. 10: 1–5). In v. 28 he guards them against the fear of death by martyrdom, and so he said to them, "Fear not them that kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell;" assuring them, in the conclusion of his address (v. 39),—"He that findeth his life [or soul] shall lose it: and he that loseth his life [or soul] for my sake shall find it." So when we take all that Christ says on the subject, and in the connection, it will be seen that he had no reference to the Platonic idea, that when a man is dead and disorganized, that one of the original elements or parts of the man is more alive than when he existed in the comparatively full perfection of his being. Christ was comforting them against the idea of the loss of the present life. And how did he seek to console them? Was it with the thought that they should not die? Not at all. They should be killed. What, then, was the ground of consolation? It was that the disciple who should lose his life by man for Christ's sake should FIND IT again. When? Let the Savior answer. "Then said Jesus unto his disciples, If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me. For whosoever will save his life [soul] shall lose it: and whosoever shall lose his life [soul] for my sake, shall find it. For what is a man profited if he shall gain the whole world and lose his own soul [life]? or what shall he give in exchange for his soul [life]? For the Son of man shall come in the glory of his Father with the holy angels: and THEN shall he reward every man according to his works." (Matt. 16: 24–27).

So, then, Jesus teaches that his people were not to fear them that killed the body, or took away the present life, and could do no more than this: for if they lost their life for Christ and the truth's sake, they should find it again at the coming of the Son of man; at the resurrection of the just. (v. 27). Men could not prevent this.

It should be understood, that Christ makes no reference to an intermediate state in anything that he promised the apostles. In Matt. 19: 27–29, Mark 10: 28–30, and Luke 18: 28–30, in answer to the question of the apostles who had forsaken all and followed him, What shall we have? he answered, There is no man that hath left house, or parents, or brethren, or wife, or children, for the kingdom of God's sake, who shall not receive manifold more in this present time, and in the world to come life everlasting. And Jesus says: "They which are accounted worthy to obtain that world, and the resurrection [out] from the dead," etc, "can die no more—they are equal to the angels." (Luke 20: 35, 36).

In the language of the tract, "We say these things on the authority of Christ." And though we may be contradicted, and called a materialist, yet we have the truth in this case beyond all contradiction.

Let us recapitulate. First, it is stated by our Savior, that if his disciples should be killed for his and the truth's sake, that it would only affect the body, or the present life.

Men could go no further. They could not kill the soul, or psuche. Laying Plato and his philosophy aside, let the Savior now explain what he means by this. "He that loseth his life [psuche] for my sake shall find it." (Matt. 16: 39). So, then, in case of death by martyrdom, man would have no power over them, only so far as this mortal life is concerned. Fear them not, therefore. Why not? He that loseth his life, in this way, shall find it in the resurrection at the coming of Christ. And to this Paul's letter to the Colossians (ch. 3: 1–3) agrees, when he declares, "When Christ who is our LIFE shall appear, then shall we appear with him in glory." This was the apostolic hope. The idea of the soul being alive when it is dead is not even hinted at; while the teaching of the Messiah is irreconcilable with it.

II. How can a man lose his soul for Christ and the truth? They argue the soul is immortal and cannot die—cannot be killed: man can not kill it. How, then, can a soul be lost, according to the teaching of this tract, which agrees with the popular theology? Plainly, in one way, and only one: by sin. But Jesus says, "he that loseth his life (psuche—soul) for my sake shall find it." (Matt. 10: 39.) In this case a man has only to sin and destroy himself for Christ's sake, in order to be saved! Will they accept this conclusion? They can not use the word psuche here in the sense of the natural life; because their argument rests on the sense of the psuche being more alive when the body is killed than before. So, then, if in this case the man does not lose his psuche, or soul, by being killed, it is because there is an immortal part that can not be killed. But Jesus explains his own word, and says (Luke 9: 25), "Whosoever will save his psuche [life] shall lose it; but whosoever will lose his psuche [life] for my sake, the same shall find it. For what is a man advantaged if he gain the whole world and lose HIMSELF, or be a castaway?"

"Himself" must include his body, soul and spirit. And "in whatever sense the Messiah used the word DIE, that is the true sense."

III. This view is further confirmed by the fate of those who fear man, and seek to save their own lives by a cowardly course. The punishment of such is the destruction of "soul and body in hell," or gehenna. This is what the Savior means, when he says, He that seeks to save his life shall lose it. It is the loss of life in gehenna; or, destruction in gehenna. Mark! the Messiah does not say that they shall have eternal life in gehenna, or in misery; but they shall be destroyed both soul and body in hell.—Voice of the West.

For the World's Crisis.

WHAT JOSEPHUS SAYS.

Josephus informs us, in Ant. b. 18, ch. 4, Sec. 2, that Vitellius "ordered Pilate to go to Rome, to answer before the emperor to the accusations of the Jews. So Pilate when he had tarried ten years in Judea, made haste to Rome, and this in obedience to the orders of Vitellius, which he durst not contradict; but before he could get to Rome, Tiberius was dead. But Vitellius came into Judea, and went up to Jerusalam; it was at the time of that festival which is called the Passover."

Now, there are two things in the above statements of Josephus, which we wish the reader to particularly observe; the first is, that before Pilate could get to Rome, in obedience to the orders of Vitellius, Tiberius was dead; the second is, that after Vitellius ordered Pilate to go to Rome, "he came into Judea, and went up to Jerusalem," at the time of the Passover, at which time Josephus informed us (Sec. 3), he (Vitellius) "also deprived Joseph, who was also called Caiaphas, of the high priesthood," and appointed Jonathan to succeed him. Now we have thus proved, according to Josephus, that Caiaphas was not deprived of his high priesthood, until after Pilate was ordered to Rome; and since Pilate could not get to Rome before Tiberius was dead, and since, according to chronologers, Tiberius died on the 16th of March, which was just before the Passover; and further, since Caiaphas was deprived of the high priesthood at the first passover after Pilate was ordered to Rome, we have, therefore, proved that Caiaphas, instead of being deprived of his high priesthood before the 20th year of Tiberius, as some have supposed, he was not deprived of it until the passover after his (Tiberius') death.

In regard to the high priest which succeeded Caiaphas, the Bible and Josephus do not agree; for while Josephus says that Jonathan succeeded Caiaphas, Acts 4: 6 proves that no later than the pentecost, which was about fifty days after the crucifixion, Annas was the high priest." Therefore, as the Bible must be admitted to be correct, in this matter, Josephus must be mistaken in regard to Jonathan being the successor to Caiaphas. But one thing is clearly proved in this connection; and that is, that Caiaphas was deprived of the high priesthood at that same passover, and therefore immediately after, our Lord was crucified. And having proved that Caiaphas, according to Josephus, was deprived of his high priesthood at the passover, immediately following the death of Tiberius, we have therefore been able to fix the cross in the same year in which Tiberius died, and therefore in A. D. 37.

Now it is evident that it took Pilate some little time to settle up his affairs and get ready to go to Rome, after he had his orders from Vitellius so to do, and therefore he did not get off until after the passover; that is, until after he had given sentence against Jesus. He might have then started for Rome, and have got several days journey before he heard of the death of Tiberius. This, we are satisfied, is the only way that the statements of Josephus can be at all harmonized with the Bible, in reference to these matters; for Caiaphas was not deprived of the high priesthood, until the passover following the death of Tiberius, and Acts 4: 6, and 5: 17, 24, 27, proves unmistakably that Caiaphas was deprived of the high priesthood, immediately after the crucifixion of our Lord. We would here simply say that there is nothing in Ant. b. 18, ch. 4, Sec. 6, to which reference has been made that at all touches the question under consideration. That section is speaking wholly of another matter, that has no relation whatever to the high priesthood. Josephus proves, in the clearest manner, that Caiaphas was deprived, as we have already shown, of his high priesthood at the passover, immediately following the death of Tiberius; and no amount of special pleading can do away with the clear testimony of Acts 4: 6, and 5: 17, 27, in regard to the change of the high priesthood immediately after the crucifixion. Therefore the death of Christ could not have taken place neither earlier nor later than A. D. 37, as that is the year agreed upon by all chronologists for the death of Tiberius. In our work entitled "The Truth made Plain," etc., we have shown that 470 years of the 2300, ended at the cross, which, deducted from the 2300, leaves 1830 to be fulfilled this side of the cross, to which, if we add the 37 years of our A. D; which extended to the cross at the death of Tiberius, we have 1867, as the end of the 2300 days. And tihs we are satisfied is the latest point to which the 2300 days can be made to extend, as no chronologist, that we know of, places the death of Tiberius this side of the spring of A. D. 37.

That the 2300 and the 1335 days or years end at the same time, we think, there is nothing more susceptible of proof in the Bible. The 2300 days are shown to end with the termination of treading under foot, by the "little horn," or Roman power, of the "sanctuary and the host," thus showing that the sanctuary and the host are both "trodden under foot" by the "little horn," or Roman power, the same length of time. Now as the "little horn" must cease to tread under foot the sanctuary and the host, at the coming of Christ and the resurrection, therefore the 2300 days must end at that time, and, by consequence, with the 1335 day. And this position is further proved by the last verse of Dan. 11, and the first verse of ch. 12, where it is clearly shown that this Roman horn or power comes to "his end" at the standing up of "Michael," and, by consequence,, he ceases then to tread under foot the sanctuary and the host. The 2300 days therefore must end at the standing up of Michael and the resurrection in common with the 1335 days. Therefore as we cannot extend the 2300 days beyond 1867, we should then look for the coming of our long absent and much desired Redeemer,—our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. DR. A. DECKER.

P. S. We would say to the readers of the Crisis, that we have a few more books on hand yet, which we will continue to send to all who may desire them on the terms first proposed. All orders must be addressed to DR. A. DECKER, Newark, New Jersey.

For the World's Crisis.

"WHO SHALL BE ABLE TO STAND?"

A solemn question this; for the night is passed, the morning seems to dawn. The old ship of Zion, having weathered the storm, is about to land, "For the great day of his wrath is come, and who shall be able to stand?" "He shall recount his worthies." "He knows who are his." "By grace are ye saved, through faith, and that not yourselves, it is the gift of God."

Says one, "I believe that Jesus is the Christ." "But wilt thou know, oh vain man, that faith without works is dead?" "What doth it profit, my brethren, though a man say he hath faith, and have not works? can faith save him?" James 2: 14. "Though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity [love] I am nothing." "For God is love," and "He that loveth not, knoweth not God." "This commandment have we from him, that he who loveth God love his brother also." "God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him." "Herein is our love made perfect, that we may have boldness in the day of judgment, because as he is so are we in this world." 1 John 4: 8, 16, 17, 21. If "perfect, even as your Father which is in heaven is perfect," we must not only love the brethren; but "love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you." "For if ye love them which love you, what reward have ye? do not even the publicans the same? And if ye salute your brethren only, what do ye more than others? do not even the publicans so?"—Matt. 5: 44-48.

"The great day of his wrath is come," and "he that feareth is not made perfect in love," for "there is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear."—1 John 4: 18. If we love Christ, we love his appearing; and if we love his appearing, we wish to know the time; and if we wish to know the time, we inquire of the Lord; and if "according to his will, he heareth us"; and if he has given us a "sure word of prophecy" (2 Pet. 1: 19), it is according to his will; therefore "the wise," that is those who are the reverse of the wicked, "shall understand." But understand what? Understand that which Daniel having heard understood not; that is, the "times" given in answer to the question, "How long shall it be to the end of these wonders"? For unto him "it was revealed that not unto themselves, but unto us they did minister the things which are now reported unto you." 1 Pet. 1: 2.

WM. C. THURMAN.

For the World's Crisis.

HEALTH AT CAMPMEETING.

BRO. GRANT:—I want to say a word to the brethren and sisters on going to campmeeting, as many almost fear to go from the danger of sickness. But I think there need be no fears on that account if all would bear in mind one or two things.

1st. Remember that, as they often say at home, their food must be in accordance with the labors to be performed. Now when you are going to campmeeting, and all physical exercise is nearly suspended, let the food be correspondingly light, and yet not altogether a change in diet. A few thoughts on this point will show the necessity of being governed by principle, instead of feeling and appetite.

Living in the open air produces an extra sharp appetite, and as the bodily exercise is far less than usual, or merely nothing, you see the wastes of the body are far less also; and if the extra appetite is indulged, the stomach, as well as the whole system, is soon overloaded, and nature makes an effort to clear itself; in doing which a mass of morbid matter is thrown into the bowels, which produces the dysentery, cholera morbus, etc.; and if the system cannot in this way get rid of the surplus, it soon generates fever, rheumatism, and other inflammatory diseases. Then eat in quantity and quality according to the real requirements of nature.

2d. You clog the blood and body, and to the same extent the mind, and hence unfit yourself for the work and worship of God; hence it is that you will always see so many drones lying about on the straw, like so many fat swine. And even some of the preachers will be found in this class; and what is worse still, they act so swinish whenever they do arouse, it is only to grunt or grumble. God grant that we may be spared from a large class of this sort this coming campmeeting.

If there was less feasting, and more fasting, I should have less to do in my profession, and more time to enjoy the meetings. A word to the wise is sufficient.

From your brother in the Lord,

A. M. HIGGINS.

For the World's Crisis.

THE DARIEN MEETING.

Dear Brn. and Srs. of Western New York and vicinity:—Let us not forget the Darien meeting now pending; but remember that it is in one sense both an annual and quarterly meeting. This is the fourth meeting that we have had there annually, and the first quarterly of this conference year. Let us remember that the three past annual meetings held there have been gloriously good in results, as well as largely attended; and now let us all pray that this may be the best of all meetings there; that the saints may be made to rejoice and sinners made to tremble, fear, repent and turn to God.

Let us all begin now to pray that our hearts may be warmed up with the love of God shed abroad therein by the Holy Spirit; so that when we all come together there we may be all ready for labor, and not need to be burned out like some old filthy pipe, before we are fit for use. May the Lord stir us all up, and may we stir ourselves, and wake up to a sense of duty to God, duty to ourselves, and duty to our fellow-men. This meeting may, and should be, a sin-killing, self-converting and God-honoring occasion. It will be, if we all are awake, and do our duty. Let us be there on the first train, and at the commencement. Let all who can, remember, as formerly, the dinner basket and the straw tick, and then we can all camp near the meeting.

C. F. SWEET.

A REQUEST.—If any brother or sister can make it convenient to come to Andover, Vt., and preach the gospel of the kingdom, they will find a pilgrim's home at Rufus Jackson's.

☞ Liberality is never so beautiful or engaging, as when the hand is concealed that bestows the gift.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Aug. 15, 1865.

☞ Appointments.

As we purpose to get our paper off one day earlier than usual campmeeting week, those who wish to have appointments inserted, should send them so that they may be received as early as Monday morning, August 21st.

A Fast.

As the time of our great annual campmeeting at Wilbraham is at hand, we would propose to those who are interested in its welfare, that Friday, August 18th, be a day of fasting and special prayer to the Lord in behalf of this important meeting, that it may be the most profitable of any one ever held in that consecrated spot.

THE GREAT FEAST OF TABERNACLES.

We expect a great and good meeting at "Camp Wilbraham" this year. It is a rich privilege to be allowed to meet so many dear saints as annually assemble at this "feast of tabernacles." They are a foretaste of the coming kingdom. O what happy greetings are witnessed as the pilgrims meet upon that consecrated spot, after traveling perhaps ten or fifteen hundred miles to enjoy this feast. Thank the Lord for a religion that binds hearts together in love, without adopting a sectarian creed; a religion that makes all one in Christ Jesus.

We are glad to learn that our brethren are coming from Nova Scotia with a large tent. Come, from the north, the south, east and west; and let us make the camp upon the hill-top echo with the praises of our coming King.

BAPTISM.

We would remind those coming to campmeeting, who have not been baptized, that there is a very nice place near the camp ground to administer the ordinance of baptism, where many in past years have been buried with Christ in baptism, and received very rich blessings. We hope many more will come prepared to follow their worthy example, thus showing to an infidel world that they believe Jesus died and rose again; and that their only hope of a future life, if they die, is in "the resurrection of the dead."

THE COMING MEETING.

Our campmeetings at Wilbraham are the largest held in the United States by those who are looking for the speedy coming of Christ; and the one about to be held, we may expect to be one of more than usual interest. All things indicate that we shall not meet in that hallowed spot many times more before the coming of our King. The coming one may be our last. We shall expect to see a large number of christian soldiers at camp Wilbraham next week. Let all come fully equipped, having on "the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." Be sure and "have your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace." Without these shoes, we shall be unable to march upon the rough ways of the enemy. See that every part of the armor is in good order before you leave home. Come determined to do your whole duty, and you will receive great strength.

Those who go to campmeeting should go as early in the week as they can, and remain to the close, if they expect to get a rich benefit. By no means go as a spectator, if you wish to get any good. We know of but one sure way to enjoy a campmeeting, and that is to take an active part in the prayer-meetings; and by all means do it as soon as you can after you go upon the ground. Those who have had experience need not be told the importance of this course. It is very seldom that a spectator enjoys a campmeeting. Make some tent your home for meetings instead of wandering around to all. Dr. Franklin said, "a rolling stone gathers no moss;" we may say, a campmeeting rambler is a religious spendthrift. If you do your duty at the meeting, you will find it a heavenly place. Resolve, in the strength of the Lord, to consecrate all to his service. Let there be no reserve whatever. Our work is short but earnest. Feeble resolves and heartless efforts accomplish nothing in these days. Now is the time for brave men, and daring deeds like those of Shadrach, Meshach and Abednego. Let none fear the fiery furnace or the lion's den.

CAMP FURNITURE.

Those who have not attended campmeetings may need a little advice. All should bring their overshoes, umbrellas, overcoats and shawls. You will find them very useful, no doubt, during the meeting. Always go prepared for rain. Bring your own bedding. A quilt for each individual will be sufficient. You can put one-half under you and cover yourself with the other half. Bring a pillowcase and fill it with straw, or leaves, after you get there. Some bring bed-ticks and fill them with straw; but you can fix a pretty good bed in the straw of the tents, without the bed-ticks,—much better than soldiers have.

Put a piece of soap, and a towel or two into your bag, a hair-brush and comb.

Each tent's company will need a washbasin, wooden pail, looking-glass, some nails, hammer, small cord; and if you can bring a crowbar, an inch-and-a-half, or two-inch augur, you will find them convenient in pitching your tent, and for other purposes. Bring a few tacks and matches. Lamps and oil will be furnished on the ground.

There will be extra tent room for those who cannot provide tents; but we hope all who possibly can, will bring them. Wear plain clothing that you will not be afraid of soiling by sitting on the straw. If you wear jewelry—hope you do not—you will do well to leave it at home, as you will be liable to lose it on the camp-ground. Have stout boots or shoes that will be a match for sticks and stubs. Come to work for the Lord, and you will go home rejoicing.

"WRITTEN CREDENTIALS."

Those who come as delegates or preachers, to the annual meeting of the Advent Christian Association, at Wilbraham, Aug. 22d, should not forget to comply with the following regulations adopted by the Association. We give them as inserted in the call for the meeting. See notice in another column.

Remember ☞ That all delegates sent by churches to the Advent Christian Association must be furnished with written credentials, or forfeit their right to membership. ☜

Also remember ☞ That preachers offering their names as members of this Association must bring a certificate of good character from a christian church, and show that they themselves are co-operating with this Society.

The following might answer as a form for a delegate:

This is to certify that —— was duly appointed by the church in —— to act as a delegate at the annual meeting of the Advent Christian Association, to be held Aug. 22d, at the Wilbraham Campmeeting.

The following for a preacher:

This is to certify that —— is a preacher of the gospel, sustaining a christian character.

The foregoing certificates should be signed by the elders, or any others authorized by the church.

FARE TO WILBRAHAM.

Those coming to the Wilbraham campmeeting from Castleton, Vt., Sandy Hill, N. Y., and vicinity, will please notice the instruction about reduced fare, advertized by Bro. Hale. See under the notice of the Wilbraham meeting, on the third page.

ENDING OF THE SIXTY-NINE WEEKS.

In Dan. 9: 25, we read:—"Know therefore, and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks and threescore and two weeks."

Here are two noted events named and the length of time between them. This is an important prophecy which the church is to "know and understand." To our own mind, this subject is now very plain; but we find some who are yet in "doubting castle" concerning the events that mark the commencement and end of these sixty-nine weeks. We wish to assist such if we can.

We are fully satisfied that they begin with the decree of Cyrus, B. C. 488, and end at the birth of "Messiah the Prince," B. C. 5, the commonly received date of his first advent. But we will suppose they do not begin nor end at the points named; then where is their beginning and end? That these sixty-nine weeks are weeks of years, we suppose all admit; that is, that the sixty-nine weeks, or 483 days, represent 483 years. We see no room to doubt this conclusion.

1. In relation to their commencement, many think that they begin with the 2300 days of Dan. 8: 14, and that they end at the crucifixion, instead of the birth of Christ. If we follow the dates according to Ptolemy's Canon, they cannot begin with the decree of Cyrus, as recorded in the first chapter of Ezra, for that is put down at B. C. 536; and 483 years from that date would end B. C. 53. If the 2300 days had commenced at the same time, they would have ended A. D. 1765.

2. Several years since, many thought the 2300 days and sixty-nine weeks began 457 B. C. This was Bro. Miller's position. If they had commenced there, the sixty-nine weeks would have ended in A. D. 27, and the 2300 days in 1844. Time has proved this position incorrect. Besides, this date for the beginning does not make the Savior old enough to correspond with the Bible and history.

3. Others began the 2300 days and sixty-nine weeks in the 20th of Artaxerxes, which, according to Ptolemy's Canon, was 446 B. C. If they began there, the sixty-nine weeks would have ended A. D. 38, and the 2300 in 1855. As our A. D. did not begin till the Savior was over four years of age, as shown by all standard chronologers, then he would have been certainly over FORTY years of age in 38, where the sixty-nine weeks would have ended, had they commenced B. C 446, the date for the 20th of Artaxerxes, according to Ptolemy.

But it seems clear, from the Scriptures and history, that our Savior was a little over thirty-three and one half years of age at his crucifixion. He was baptized when he "began" to be about thirty years of age."—Luke 3: 23. The word "began," as used in this passage, shows he was not quite thirty at his baptism. Epiphanius, who wrote in the fourth century, says Christ "was twenty-nine years and ten months old when he came to baptism; thirty years old, but not fully."

Our Savior attended four passovers, the first of which was some months after his baptism; and the fourth was at the time of his crucifixion; consequently his ministry was less than four years; which proves that he was over thirty-three years of age, but under thirty-four, at the time of his crucifixion; hence the latest possible date for beginning the 2300 days and sixty-nine weeks, if we have them commence together, and make the sixty-nine weeks end at the crucifixion, was B. C. 454. Beginning at that date, the 483 years would have ended A. D. thirty, when our Lord was a little over thirty-three and one half years of age; and the 2300 days, beginning at the same time (B. C. 454,) would have ended in 1847.

4. Again, if we begin the sixty-nine weeks and 2300 days together, and end the latter period in 1866, then they must commence B. C. 435, and the sixty-nine weeks would end A. D. 49, which make the Savior over fifty-two years of age.

If we have the 2300 days end in 1867, then they began B. C. 434; and if the sixty-nine weeks commenced at the same time, they would have ended in A. D. 50, at which time our Lord would have been over fifty-three years of age, or TWENTY years older than the Bible and history make him.

5. From the foregoing facts, we come to the conclusion that there is no possibility of connecting the sixty-nine weeks and 2300 days, making them begin together, and ending the weeks even at the crucifixion. But as we think it may be most clearly shown that the 483 years end at the birth of the Messiah, instead of the crucifixion, the difficulty of connecting the sixty-nine weeks and the 2300 days, is increased by over thirty-three years, or the entire age of the Messiah.

We believe the seventy weeks and 2300 begin together, but not the sixty-nine and 2300. It appears plain to us that the sixty-nine, seventy and sixty-two weeks are three periods distinct from each other; and that some of our important mistakes, years ago, were made in consequence of attempting to have all these periods included in the seventy weeks. The evidence is now clear to our mind that the sixty-nine weeks began at "the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem," according to Dan. 9: 25, which was in the first year of Cyrus, B. C. 488, (see Ezra 1: 1-5) and end B. C. 5 at the birth of "the Messiah the Prince;" also that the sixty-two weeks of Dan. 9: 26, began at the completion of the wall at Jerusalem, in the thirty-second year of Artaxerxes, B. C. 406, and end at the crucifixion, A. D. 30, when Christ was thirty-three years, seven months and twenty-three days of age; and that the 2300 days and seventy weeks began with the pushing of the ram, in the twelfth year of Artaxerxes, B. C. 426; consequently the seventy weeks would end A. D. 65, where "the transgression of desolation" was let loose on Daniel's people, which had been restrained for seventy weeks, or four hundred ninety years from the time the ram pushed at them with the intention "to destroy, to kill, and to cause to perish, all Jews, both young and old, little children and women, in one day."—Esther 3: 13. When these seventy weeks expired, the "transgression of desolation" was no longer restrained, but let loose upon the Jews, and they were completely desolated, during the seven years' war that followed and Jerusalem has been "trodden down of the Gentiles" until this day. According to this arrangement, the 2300 days would end in A. D. 1875, when the sanctuary is "cleansed."

HE SPEAKS AS A DRAGON.

Napoleon III. appears to be carrying out the teachings of the demons, and is endeavoring to put all religions upon the same basis, making all alike important, and thus secure the protection of them all, while he is completing his marvelous career. He shows remarkable craftiness in all his movements, and rarely makes a failure.

When he returned to Paris, he at once went to work to remodel things in Algiers. The following will give an idea of what he is doing in that direction:—

"1. The religion of the Arabs is to be respected and put on one footing with the religion of Catholics and Protestants and Jews in France. 2. The secular law of France is to be extended over them, and its adminstration made accessible to the people. 3. The French inhabitants of the colony are to be encouraged, not at the expense of, but co-ordinately and in concert with the natives. 4th. The ports of Algiers are to be thrown open; its frontier custom houses in the desert are to be abolished. Credits Mobilier, on the model of those which have contributed to the prosperity of France, are to be established. 5th. Steps are to be taken toward the complete organization of a system of communal independence and local self-government; roads are to be opened; unnecessary expenditures on military posts fortifications are to be abandoned, and the funds thus wasted heretofore are to be applied to the real wants of the country."

The foregoing shows that Mohammedanism is to be put on one footing with the religion of Catholics and Protestants and Jews." This is in harmony with what the spirits have been teaching for several years. We know of no other man who has so much power to exert in favor of Spiritualism as Napoleon III. When men like him have power, we may expect it will be exercised in due time. He is not ignorant of his exalted position before the world, and he knows how to turn it to good advantage. His favor upon the Mohammedans will make him popular with them; while at the same time he will protect the Jews, Catholics, und Protestants, to obtain their support. Truly, he is a "WONDERFUL MAN."

For the World's Crisis.

TREMONT CAMPMEETING.

It was my privilege to be present a part of the time. Arriving Thursday evening, while the meeting preceding preaching was in progress, I found the brethren and sisters engaged in the good work of prayer and testimony. Eld. Timothy Cole in his earnest and faithful manner then preached to the people, and was followed by the brethren in exhortation, closing the labors of the day.

Friday morning at eight o'clock Bro. Munger called the people together for prayer and conference, and for two hours every moment was improved, and it was a meeting, of which Brother Paul himself would not have been ashamed. After dinner and until preaching, the good work of the morning continued, with the addition of a young people's prayer-meeting. After preaching until supper the work went on with increased interest; then after supper for an hour and a half, until preaching, it was a glorious victory, (both meetings uniting). The Spirit of the Lord ran and was glorified. Then testimonies increased and prevailed—not to have been privileged to speak would have been almost a calamity. It reminded me of the campmeetings of thirty years ago, and, upon the whole, was as good a day as I have spent at campmeeting for many years.

SAMUEL CURRY.

New York.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$1230.78
G. L.	1.00
John McClellan	1.00
A young brother	5.00
N. Chase	1.00
A sister	.25

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$1104.71
Mrs. E. G. O.	2.00
F. T.	3.00
G. L.	1.00

Keep it Going!

The work goes well! $125.00 worth of tracts have been sent out for free distribution the past two weeks, in answer to calls from the Tract Givers, and orders are coming in for more from every quarter. Keep the work moving, brethren. Keep the truth flying. Scatter wide the good seed. It is but a short time to harvest, and then, how joyful to come in before the Lord of the harvest bringing your sheaves with you.

W. B. H.

A Thousand Tract Givers!

A sister in Hingham, writing for tracts to scatter, says:—

"I am trying, among the churches, by personal effort and humble prayer to God, to interest Christians in the great and glorious doctrine of the soon coming of the Savior. Pray for me, that I may be enabled to present the subject with clearness and power, and in the spirit of meekness and love, that good may be done and souls saved."

Six dollars' worth have been sent you, and when these are scattered, please send for more. The blessing of the Lord go with you, and with every tract given.

O! for a thousand devoted workers like this sister. With one such in every neighborhood, how much good might be done, and how many souls saved, before the Lord comes. A thousand workers for Jesus! A thousand christian tract givers! Who will volunteer? Who, with hearts burning to save the lost and arouse a slumbering church, will go forth, armed with faith and prayer, to win souls to Christ, and convince an unbelieving world of his near coming and kingdom?

You, gentle reader, will you be one? Come, send for tracts, and begin the good work,—now! Go forth, tract in hand, from house to house, and shop to shop, and store to store, and hovel to hovel. Scatter them, in the highways and hedges, in the street and the lane, in garret and cellar, in the vessel and the car. Speak to that friend, and that neighbor, and that kinsman, and that stranger in the way. Ask them to read, and bid them come to the Marriage Feast. Tell them the Bridegroom invites,—"Whosoever will, let him come." The high and the low, the rich and the poor, the noble and the outcast,—in the name of the Master, urge them all to come. Persuade, exhort and entreat them, with all meekness and love, and with prayers and tears, to come to Jesus, before the door of mercy is closed forever.

Do this, and God will be glorified, and you rewarded. Time is flying, and the judgment coming! Be up and doing now! He who wins one soul to Christ, is nobler than a prince, greater than a king. He is a king, and shall wear a glorious crown when the KING of kings comes.

W. B. H.

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

Previous donations	$104.94
The Advent Society in Exeter, N. H., $15.25, as follows:
Geo. T. Stacy	5.00
Mrs. D. Lang	1.00
Miss Anna Lang	1.00
N. Churchill	1.00
J. B. Safford	1.00
Chas. Haley	2.00
Mrs. E. Leavitt	1.00
Mrs. W. Eaton	.25
Sarah A. Thurston	1.00
Widow Elizabeth Keyes	1.00
John M. Weeks	1.00
Mrs. S. M. Cornell, New London, Ct.	.40
Hannah L. Hastings, Riverton, Ct.	.50
A sister in South Reading, Mass.	5.00
From her little daughter	.50
G. L., Thomaston, Ct.	1.00
John McClellan, Font Hill, C. W.	1.00
D. Cogswell, Dansville, N. Y.	3.00

A VOICE FROM THE SOUTH.

The mission-work South needs help, and it needs heroes,—men and women who can endure hardship, as good soldiers of the cross of Christ. The following extract from a private letter to a brother in this city, from an intelligent and devoted missionary among the Freedmen, will give the reader some idea of what the missionary may expect who goes South, where, in many places, the hatred of the former slave-holders towards the North has been made more intense and bitter by their late defeat:—

"My whole heart is in the work, and I am ready to die in it if it is His will,—am happiest when laboring hardest. But let me tell you, dear brother, it is no holiday life, no gliding smoothly down the current. Rather, it is constant, excessive toil; a weary breasting of the rough tide that is ever pressing against you. You will be despised, and shunned, and hated. No servants of Christ were ever treated with more contempt than are we. You will have to bear hardship and suffer self-denial, such as has been endured by few of the servants of Christ in this generation."

Not a very encouraging picture for those who are contemplating missionary work. But will this deter any from going? Not one whom God calls. To such, He will give strength to endure the buffetings of Satan, and the persecutions of his followers, and death and martyrdom, if need be, for the sake of Christ and the poor freedman now rising from his dungeon and his chains to the light and joy of a better day.

The missionary referred to is a reader of the Crisis, and has watched the beginning and progress of missionary effort among us with much interest. A word from him, therefore, in reference thereto, coming from one already in the field, who knows and feels the great need and importance of mission labor there, and sympathizes with every well-directed effort in that direction, may not be out of place here, in reminding our brethren of the great work which Providence calls upon us to do. He that hath ears to hear, let him hear what this voice from the mission-field South saith unto the churches:—

"Every thing in the Crisis in relation to the Freedmen is deeply interesting to me. I do hope that, at the anticipated campmeeting, a great thing will be done towards sending out more laborers into this vineyard. Yet I fear the interest among the Advent people is not equal to the call of our heavenly Father in this last great work of evangelization. The responses to Bro. Herron's thrilling calls for help in this field are not what they should be. It does seem to me that if I had, as some have, the means at hand to help this work forward, I could not be silent and inactive under such appeals as he has put forth. God bless him for his true Christian benevolence and efforts in this good cause."

And God bless the mission-work! raise up friends to it everywhere! open wide all hearts and purses to the poor freedmen, and send forth men and means at once, to DO QUICKLY "this last great work of evangelization"!—and to Him, whose work it is, be all the glory!

Books at Wilbraham.

We shall have a full assortment of our various books and tracts for sale in front of the preacher's stand:—English Bibles, Concordances, Bible Dictionaries, Christian Lyres, Question Books, Bible Student's Libraries, Tracts, and other works advertised in our columns.

Subscriptions for the Crisis and Pilgrim will be taken also at the same place; subscriptions to the Tract and Poor Funds, and the Freedmen's Mission. A good opportunity to pay up arrearages, and contribute your mite to the advancement of the good cause.

For the World's Crisis.

INQUIRIES ANSWERED.

We shall have two tents for strangers, but no bedding. Bring a blanket.

You shall have hot water, if you will take the trouble to heat it, or come when we are not at meals.

All cannot preach at a general meeting of seventy-five or eighty preachers, nor one-fourth.

I don't know who will be editor,—probably some one, or the one that is willing to be put in with the understanding he is to be kicked out when all get a kick at him. Do you want it?

We shall have all kinds of provisions for sale,—cooked, or not, for the accommodation of the camp. You can buy there as cheap as at home, and save transportation, and risk of its spoiling.

Probably you can get boards for a tent as late as Tuesday. There are places enough to set it on.

We cannot consent to have another boarding tent on the ground, except to board your tent's company.

It is doubtful whether it is expedient for me to come out West to the campmeeting, as the time is so short to get there, and so many are going from here. Perhaps Oct. and Nov. will be better.

The campmeeting choose their committee every year. Perhaps you will get a chance this year to speak. Do let me get breath before answering the rest.

HIRAM MUNGER.

For the World's Crisis.

ALTON BAY CAMPMEETING.

We expect a goodly number of preachers and brethren at this meeting the first Sunday, (Aug. 27t,h) and a large reinforcement from "Camp Wilbraham" on Monday. And now, brethren, while we have seen God's power displayed the two past years on that ground, shall we not see more this? While there are those that will no doubt rejoice in the kingdom of God that they ever attended the campmeeting at Alton Bay, shall not more rejoice this year through the salvation of God, and finally be permitted to sing amid Eden's lovely bowers? To this end, brethren, let all come together to labor for God, and to consecrate ourselves anew to his blessed work; instead of joining with an ungodly world, in saying there is more evil than good done; and expense might be devoted to conferences, in different parts; look at it as a wholesale store, where the preachers and brethren can come and get their stores filled. Instead of thinking how much it costs, look at the good example of the church of God under the law. They went up to worship (when they were not backslidden,) three times a year; and can we not once? Look at the long travel, the fat beasts slain, and their poor brethren looked after. Come, say to the poor, "Come, go up to the campmeeting. Help them along, and get God's blessing. Let prayer go up to God for this meeting.

J. G. SMITH, for the Committee.

For the World's Crisis.

WHY DO I BELIEVE THE BIBLE?

Fifty years ago it was generally believed that the earth was only about 6000 years old; and that in six days of twenty-four hours each the material of the earth was brought out of chaos into its present habitable form. Such seemed to be the meaning of the first chapter of Genesis, before the facts of Geology were extensively and generally known.

But when it was discovered that the strata of the earth's surface are in all about ten miles in thickness, that many of them bear every mark of slow and quiet formation, while there must have been numerous convulsions, lifting up these strata and in places overturning them, and forming the mountain ranges, it began to be doubted whether this could all have occurred in 144 hours. Geologists began to say that the old and literal interpretation of the first chapter of Genesis must be given up; and infidels began to boast that science had proven the Bible false, as they have been ready to boast ever since the imprisonment of Galileo and long before.

Upon this many Christians were disturbed, and a few were alarmed. The suggestion of the geologists that the "day" of Gen. i. must mean more than 24 hours, was not at first well received. There came what has been called the battle between "Moses and the geologists." But that war was ended years ago. It is now generally conceded that the material of the earth is many thousands if not millions of years old. But Christians, holding firmly their faith in the Bible, are not yet agreed how to reconcile this fact with Gen. i. Some take the word "day" to denote an age or period, long enough for the geological change. Others take the six days as literal days, of some great change preparing the earth for the habitation of man, after the strata had been formed as geologists affirm. And others still regard the account in Gen. i. not as a scientific history, but rather as a series of pictures designed to impress the all-important fact that creation is not the work of blind nature, or of chance, but the work of an intelligent design, of a personal God.

Suppose now that Christians generally had said, fifty years ago, If the geologists prove that the earth is so much more than 6000 years old, we will give up the Bible: where should we have been now? If such an alternative had been made and persistently adhered to, scarcely any faith in the Scriptures would now be left on earth.

But we all say at once that Christians would have had no right to make such an alternative, nor should they do so now. The Bible has a larger basis of faith and confidence than any agreement of one chapter of it, perceived or supposed, with a certain branch of science. Though we may not now reconcile the chapter with the science, the broad foundations of our faith in the Scriptures are still unshaken. There is so much else to prove that we have heard from our heavenly Father, in what we devoutly call his Word, that we need have no anxiety about an immediate adjustment right here. If the cobble stone does not seem to fit well in its place, so as positively to support this great Rock, still we are not in the least afraid it will ever overthrow the Rock.

We believe that Science and Revelation are consistent. As the new Astronomy of Copernicus and Galileo did not damage the Christian Faith, nor did the recent Geology, so it will not suffer detriment by any Chronology. Hence we have feared no controversy in which Ptolemy's Canon was fairly arrayed on one side, and the Bible on the other. But the past controversies have clearly taught one thing—that Science may put new interpretations upon the Bible. And for this reason, when we have been told that we must either give up Ptolemy's Canon or the Bible, and this by those who insist on a certain interpretation of one or two texts in the Bible, then I think it time to remonstrate.

I have examined Eld. Thurman's alleged refutation of Ptolemy's Canon "by the truth-testing powers of astronomy," not because I have wished to oppose the '68 time, or to establish the Canon, but because I have regarded the alleged refutation as a fallacy; a fallacy so patent to every one sufficiently versed in astronomy that it must in due time bring discredit on the cause in which it is employed. And the same principle which forbids me to "lie for God," forbids me to employ or to allow a fallacious argument. No true or worthy end can sanctify such means, so treacherous to all who use them.

And here I may say that Ptolemy's Canon, of which I have not been the partizan, has been criticized by able prophetic writers, before Eld. T. ventured his peculiar method of refuting it. In one of my own articles I have said that if I were to suspect it erroneous, it would be on the ground that the eclipses were probably all right, but the events wrongly connected with them. I am not sufficiently versed in chronology or in prophecy to offer any opinion on this question. Ptolemy's Canon may stand or fall, and I shall have nothing to say or to unsay. But, most of all, though my interpretation of some texts may be affected, my faith in the Scriptures will remain just as it was.

"We must give up Ptolemy's Canon or the Bible," we are told. Let us look at this alternative, as it has been offered, and see what it means.

On the one hand is the text in Dan. 9: 25, with its prophetic period. Several parallel passages are cited, to fix the date connected with this period, or to settle the length and termination of the Babylonian captivity. But these all depend, in the argument, on the one text, Dan. 9: 25, if I mistake not. And, more than all, an interpretation or application of this period is made, at least not universally accepted by good prophetic writers, and this insisted on in the same general argument in which we are asked to reject Ptolemy's Canon or the Bible. This alternative is offered with the expectation that we will cling to the revelation, for some reason or reasons not stated, and that we will reject Ptolemy's Canon as a matter of course.

But, on the other hand, beyond Eld. T.'s interpretation of Dan. 9: 25, and a few passages which he cites as parallel, the direct argument against Ptolemy's Canon seems to me of the weakest kind. It consists in not finding certain of Ptolemy's eclipses which it is confessed came very near happening; in finding others too small to have been seen in Babylon, though the Chaldeans and astrologers were there; and in finding one of them (of the moon) a few minutes after sunrise. This failure to find is by tables never examined by astronomers, tables not based on ten thousand observations as other modern tables are, but by altering some of the oldest and most obsolete tables, "empirically" and with a theological purpose to serve. And this failure is in face of the fact that all astronomical literature, so far as I know, admits the eclipses as historical; they have been found over and over again, and are found now by the most careful computation of them ever made, based on the best tables, along with the reduction of 80 years' observations, by the Astronomer Royal.

Besides the astronomy, Eld. T.'s chronology leads him to reduce a period of fifty years, plainly stated by Thucydides, to one of twenty five years, first under the plea of punctuation, and then of interpolation. It also leads him to put the invasion of Greece by Xerxes twenty years later than any other writer has done, and to locate an eclipse in the fall which Herodotus plainly records as occurring in the spring, and 100 miles east of the place where Herodotus plainly puts it.

And now we are asked to reject either Ptolemy's Canon, thus boldly controverted, or else the Bible. Is it considered, when this alternative is put, whether the "Book of Daniel Unsealed," or the Crisis, may fall into the hands of sceptics who will not of course cling to the Bible? And if this style of prophetic argument is extensively relied on, and the alternative is still put, will not sceptics have occasion to say that the Bible stands opposed by the plain histories of Thucydides and Herodotus, and by the authority of astronomers at large? Is not the alternative now offered just such a weapon as infidels are glad to accept, and to employ in disturbing or even undermining the faith of others?

The danger created by this alternative is made still more serious when one professes a readiness to reject the Bible if the Canon of Ptolemy is sustained, or to stand in doubt if the Lord does not come in 1868. I do not know how far either of these things has been done. I design no personal allusion in what I now say. And I know that people often say what they will do in order to affirm a strong confidence in their present opinion, and when we are glad to believe that the sober, second thought will restrain them from doing so. Yet such speeches are generally unwise; and the kind of alternative I now speak of is especially injurious, because it makes a false issue, and thus misrepresents the true grounds of faith in the Christian Revelation. And of this I wish to say a few words in conclusion.

Such an alternative as this between Ptolemy's Canon and the Bible, I say, makes a false issue. It surrenders the Bible on a condition that is wholly inadequate. Suppose, for the sake of the argument, that the Canon of Ptolemy is sustained. What then? Will that destroy all the evidences of Christianity or of revelation? Are there no supports of our precious faith, aside from its agreement or disagreement with a document of which millions of Christians know nothing? This feature of the case is too clear for argument. And many readers will see at once that if the Canon is sustained, and if that is proven not to agree with Dan. 9 : 25, it is not the BIBLE that is overthrown, but only the passage or the book in question. There are devout men who think the book of Daniel is not inspired. I am sorry they think so. But if I should press Dan. 9 : 25 against the Canon as Eld. T. has done, I fear I should add to the number of those who reject the book of Daniel. And then comes the question, Is it better to retain one's faith in the Scriptures generally at the expense of a single book, or to reject the whole, and be a confirmed sceptic? The example of Martin Luther alone would answer the question, if it needed an answer.

But I find no occasion for making even this alternative. In so large a book as the Bible we may expect difficulties of interpretation, down to the end of time. And all professed "unsealing" of any book must abide the Day itself, that shall try all things. And the Bible can well afford thus to wait for the solution of the "things hard to be understood," because the proofs of its divine origin are so ample and so manifold. To me it seems as a pyramid, resting firmly on its broad base. You may remove a single great stone if you will—the pyramid does not begin to tremble. And if the stone removed was a proper part of the pyramid, essential to its symmetry, it will be put back in its place soon enough. The pyramid has not quaked, and I need not quake. I need not recapitulate the many kinds of evidence on which the Bible rests. First of all, its power to convert men from bad into good—the Spirit of God working with it, as with no other book in the world, to convince the world of sin, of righteousness, and of judgment. Then its adaptation to develop and to meet the true wants of man, so that it is the Bible of Christendom, best known in the fairest portions of Christendom, and suppressed or forbidden a free reading only by spiritual despots, tyrants, and slaveholders. These are accompanying proofs. Then there is its internal evidence, the words not merely pretending to be from God, and always put in God's mouth, as in the Koran, but bearing the tone of inspiration itself, so that the literary critic has thought he stood here on holy ground. Then its history, and the well attested history of its early confessors and martyrs. And for the Old Testament the history of the Jewish people, and how to account for the Old Testament as their ancient book; the fulfillment of prophecy in this people, and other fulfillments of prophecy. Then the general agreement of manners, customs, and places described in the Bible, with what is otherwise well attested. Inwoven with the texture of books thus generally credible, are accounts of miracles; most important of all that of Christ's resurrection, which also alone accounts for his Supper and its promise of his Return.

Such is the pyramid. And on more or fewer of these supports it rests safely in the faith of Christian men. Thus may it rest, as it surely will.

To stake this blessed book on the agreement of one text, or even a half dozen texts, with any document whatever, and to say that one or the other must be given up, seems to me like turning the pyramid upside down, resting it on its apex, and then bidding it to stand in defiance of all that may come against it. Luckily, such is the very weight of its authority and power that in this false position it will settle down into the common-sense acceptance of its readers, and thus find an apology of a base. It abhors resting on a single point. But in minds of a more hard and logical structure, this false position which is given it may prove fatal to its acceptance. Unless it has already received good props and supports from other sources than the point in question, it is almost sure to topple and fall.

Those who have unwittingly made this alternative between Ptolemy and Isaiah, have doubtless done so with the sincere desire to make men believers, and not sceptics. And the common sense of which I have spoken will, I trust, prevent most men from accepting this or any similar false issue. Still the proneness of zealous believers to make such alternatives justifies an occasional warning against them. We can easily investigate the prophecies—though the mastery of so great and intricate questions will require labor—without making such alternatives. Let us indulge no rash confidence, but faith that clings to the whole of God's word, and finds support, edification, and joy in it all. C. F. H.

TERMS OF THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

The Young Pilgrim will be continued semimonthly the ensuing year at the following rates:

For a single copy,—Fifty Cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, or any number of copies under fifty, when sent to one address,—Forty Cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number of copies over fifty, when sent to one address,—Thirty-five Cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers,—at the same rates, with no extra charge for American postage.

All subscriptions for the coming year must be made at the above rates.

CLUBS.

Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other name on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, 37 cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, 32 cents a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less that ten), from 12 to 21 cents a year on each copy.

Subscriptions may commence with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

All communications, orders, and remittances, should be addressed to the YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

☞ One unquiet disposition distempers the peace and unity of a whole family, or society; as one jarring instrument will spoil a whole concert.

Correspondence.

From Mrs. R. B. D.

BRO. GRANT:—I have been a reader of the Crisis since the first of January last, and I can truly say it is the best reading, except the Bible. It gives light, and strength, and courage to go on in this blessed way. Although it has been but a short time since I believed in this truth, I love the doctrine, and because it is taught in the word of God.

Ten years ago last spring I was shaken off from the belief of an eternal life in misery. Last fall, with several others, under the influence of Bro. Munger, my eyes were opened to see the light in full; and my heart was ready to receive light in these last days of darkness, blindness and superstition. I am almost fifty-seven years of age, and have been a member of the Freewill Baptist church between thirty and forty years. Now I feel I have the greatest reason to be thankful to God that I have received this light and truth; and I mean by his grace and strength to live out the examples his word teaches.

There are a few of us here trying to hold on by faith to the Son of God, and believe in his soon coming. We feel the importance of walking as we received the Lord, and being ready for that day of days, which is at the door. Brethren and sisters, let us be awake, and not sleep as do others, for it is not every one that saith "Lord, Lord," who shall enter the kingdom of heaven, but "he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." There are many who seem to be at ease in Zion, having a name to live while they are dead. O may the light that God has given us shine more and more unto the perfect day, and I believe it will.

The way looks good to me, and grows brighter every day. I find his yoke is easy and his burden light, and feel that God is my Father, that I am his child, and if he is for me, he is greater than all that can be against me; and though afflictions abide me, yet his grace is sufficient. Thanks be to his name who giveth the victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. Let us all who love the appearing of the Blessed One, not love in word only, but in deed and in truth, and be faithful to the end. Then when he comes, we shall receive a crown of life that will never fade away in the kingdom of our blessed Lord, where peace, joy and happiness forever reigns. Yours in hope to meet again,

South Poland, Me. MRS. R. B. D.

From Bro. Geo. Thomson.

BRO. GRANT:—Through the efficacy, power, and goodness of the Great Physician, I am just recovering from a severe illness; and while thus through you making known the fact to my dear brethren in Montreal and elsewhere, I would publicly acknowledge in heartfelt gratitude my indebtedness to Almighty God for his infinite goodness and mercy to me and mine, in preserving us through many dangers and afflictions, and above all for keeping us steadfast in the truth, although much deprived of christian communion, and beset with discouraging surroundings. I greatly rejoiced in reading the account of your visit to Montreal, and successful labor there among the dear brethren, to whom my heart is knit in closest bonds of christian union and love—God bless them,—and in which place I feel a deep and abiding interest for the prosperity of the cause of Christ.

As I hear the clarion trumpet sound of preparation for the great Wilbraham campmeeting, feelings of large expectation are awakened in my breast for the accomplishment of much good at that gathering; but we cannot all be there; and let me ask of you, while you are working and happy, remember us who are scattered over the far West, isolated, and deprived of those great re-unions, and offer up a prayer for us, that these scattered elements may be combined, and these conflicting interests be consolidated; for there seems to be quite a number in these parts who are looking for the coming of the Lord, but who, unfortunately, are broken up into small fragments, by hobbyisms, and whose efforts seem to tend more especially to tearing down each others' peculiarities, than to the building up of the cause of Christ. O that all who love Jesus would heed his ever memorable prayer—"O Father, that they (my disciples) may be one."

Yours in Christ, GEO. THOMSON.

From Bro. L. C. Sweeney.

BRO. GRANT:—I have placed my spectacles across my nose, and taken my pen in a somewhat palsied hand (made prematurely so by the sinful indulgence of tobacco, tea and coffee), to address you a few lines. I feel that you must have a very laborious and trying path to travel in your pilgrimage; you need all the sympathy and prayers of the children of God. I presume you are often by them presented at the throne of grace. I have no reason to doubt that I was truly converted long years ago, and with all the power I could command at times have tried to live a christian life. But how difficult I found the road to travel. Often like Paul, I was led to exclaim, "when I would do good, evil is present with me," and sometimes felt like giving up entirely. But the goodness and tender mercy of God, that waiteth with long patience and leadeth us gently in paths which we know not of, has attended me.

It was the Lord led me to the Advent people. I heard the truth. I heard the glorious plan of salvation. I found the key that unlocks the treasure house of the blessed Bible, the gospel of Jesus Christ. I found it in the third chapter of Genesis. Now I feel there is something worth seeking for, and, by the grace of God assisting me, I hope to obtain the prize "by patient continuance in well doing." L. C. SWEENEY.

Merrimac, Wis.

SR. M. M. WEAVER, Danville, C. E. writes: "Brethren and sisters, ye who in secret places are "sighing over the abominations of the land," weep on, pray on, cry aloud to the Lord. O pray for the watchmen. May the spirit of truth and peace fill their hearts. Amen. God is good. My trust is in him and his merciful kindness. I hope to live when the Life-Giver comes. Let us be faithful, prayerful. Remember the poor around you. Carry them blessings. God be with you all, is my prayer.

BRO. H. MCCLINTOCK writes from West Salem, Wis.:—"There are a few scattered round here who take the Crisis, but we have no preaching of the Advent faith. Salem is a thriving village, with three churches, Methodist, Baptist, and Congregationalist; but their doors are locked to an Adventist. If you have any young man who can preach for small pay, we would be glad to have him come here. We will do the best we can for him.'

Obituaries.

WILDEY. Died in New York city, July 29th, Bro. Wm. H. Wildey, in his thirty-sixth year.

Bro. W. was for the last twelve years a firm believer in the soon coming of Christ, and a consistent and persevering follower of the Lamb. He was a kind and affectionate husband and father, a warm and generous friend, and a bright ornament to the church. He died in the full possession of the faith and hope of the gospel, believing that his Redeemer would stand in the latter day upon the earth, and that those who then slept in Jesus, God will bring with him. He leaves an aged mother, five brothers and sisters, and a wife and two sons, to mourn his loss; but they sorrow not as others who have no hope.

A short discourse was delivered at his late residence, on Sabbath evening, by the writer from the words selected by Bro. H. himself,—"Jesus and the Resurrection." His remains were taken to Peekskill, on Monday morning.

273 W. 22d St. THOMAS J. COX.

MARCY. Died in the General Hospital Slough, Alexandria, Va., July 18, 1865, of the typhoid fever, James S. Marcy, aged thirty years.

After three weeks' sickness, and three days in the hospital, Bro. Marcy ended this mortal life in the christian expectation of an immortal life when Jesus comes. I was with him when dying, and as no chaplain could be obtained, I attended the services at his grave. He leaves a wife and children to mourn. V. P. SIMMONS.

KELLY. Died in Belgrade, Me., May 31, Bro. Wm. Kelly, aged fifty-two years.

Bro. Kelly embraced the lively hope about seven years ago, and lived a sober life. He sleeps in Jesus, and leaves a wife and three children to mourn his loss. H. B. SEVEY.

Married.

In Philadelphia, Aug. 5th, 1865, by F. H. Burbank, Mr. JOHN S. SCHELLINGER, of Lewiston, Del., and Miss MARTHA V. REEVES, of Philadelphia.

In North Bennington, Vt., Aug. 5th, 1865, by William J. Blanchard, Mr. RUEL N. ORTON, of North Bennington, Vt., and Miss NETTIE R. JENKINS, of Northland Grove, Vt.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool Aug. 3d, Queenstown 5th.

Communication with the steamer Great Eastern ceased at noon on the 2d inst., and has not been resumed; cause unknown.

Latest dispatches from the Great Eastern to the morning of the 2d inst. report all going on well and 1200 miles of cable paid out. On Wednesday the following was received:

"Valentia, Aug. 2–8 P. M. Signals from the Great Eastern became unintelligible at noon. No communication has been had with the ship since and no information received—cause unkown."

Nothing additional has transpired, the land lines between Valentia and Killary having been out of order on the 3d inst.

The London Herald says: "The state of affairs in connection with the Atlantic cable has led to an advance of the insurance premium of twenty-five guineas to fifty and sixty guineas on the Atlantic cable. Up to the middle of Wednesday the signals received were singularly distinct. The Great Eastern was then nearly two-thirds of the way to Newfoundland. She was in the deepest water of the whole route—2400 fathoms, a little over two and a half miles. It was at this time that the signals to Valentia became unintelligible and gradually ceased."

The Times infers that the disaster occurred after the cable left the vessel, from the fact that it was unknown to those on board, who were sending their messages as usual when their signals became unintelligible at Valentia, and at last ceased entirely. As to the chances of recovering the impaired part of the cable and repairing it, it may be said that this process cannot be accomplished at the rate of more than a quarter of a mile an hour, while the slightest wind or rough sea would at once put an end to it, by its being cut adrift to avoid the certainty of its breaking if it continued fast to the great ship. For such eventualities the Great Eastern is amply provided. She has many buoys on board, equal altogether to a weight of fifty tons, and she has at least four or five miles of powerful wire buoy ropes which can support all that the buoys themselves can float. This effort to buoy, however, will not be resorted to until the last extremity, owing to the danger and the improbability of finding the cable again. The Times, in conclusion remarks that should the Great Eastern make a successful effort to haul in the cable and repair it, a clear renewal of the signals may be looked for at the latest within a couple of days. If, on the contrary, that time should pass without the cable giving signs of life, we fear the case must be considered hopeless as far as regards success this year.

Liverpool, Aug. 6. Nothing has transpired concerning the Atlantic cable, which remains in the same state. It is stated that the earth currents are returning stronger, showing that they had been in contact with the earth 1200 miles from Valentia. Sixty-seven per cent. had been offered, but no insurance was effected.

A telegram dated St Petersburg, July 26th, says that the plan for a telegraphic line between Russia and America has been approved and signed by the Czar. The Russian government undertake to complete the line as far as Nicolajewsk, the remaining portion, from Nicolajewsk to San Francisco, being at the charge of the American company.

ITALY.

The Italia denies the rumors of an early interview between the King of Italy and the Pope, and says it is generally believed that such personal meeting will in no case take place before the evacuation of Rome by the French troops.

SPAIN.

Thirty cases of cholera are reported at Valencia. The cholera has also appeared in the camp at Gibraltar.

An alarming cattle disease was reported spreading rapidly in the vicinity of London. Serious ravages are noted. The government has taken action to check the contagion, if possible.

DOMESTIC.

New York, Aug. 10. The Herald's Washington dispatch says there were 1,050,000 men in our national armies on the first of May last. Since which time something over 700,000 have been discharged, leaving still in the military service of the country about 350,000. The recent order from the War Department will probably muster out about half of Gen. Sheridan's troops, and Paymaster Wilson leaves to-morrow with five million dollars to pay them off.

New York, Aug. 11. Private dispatches from Buffalo this morning have announced the loss of the lake steamer Pewabic, bound down Lake Huron, having collided with propeller Meteor. One hundred lives were reported lost.

A letter from Constantinople, dated July 17th, says that the ravages of the cholera at Alexandria and Cairo are frightful. Nearly one thousand deaths a day are officially reported at these places and in the chief towns between them. Every one who can obtain the means is flying from the country. The Viceroy himself is in Constantinople.

A St. Louis dispatch states that most gratifying accounts come up from all parts of the State as to the harmonious relations between the negroes and their former masters. It is said that the present crop will be raised with more profit and satisfaction between farmers and negroes than any yet produced under the system of slavery. Negroes are being generally remarried, including old people who have raised large families of children.

Detroit, Mich., Aug. 11. The propellers Meteor and Pewabic, of Lake Superior line, collided on Wednesday night, in Thunder Bay, Lake Huron. The Pewabic sunk in two minutes. Seventy-five or one hundred lives were lost.

IMPORTANT FROM TEXAS—Gov. Hamilton's Proclamation.—News from Galveston to the 29th ult. says that Gen. Merritt's cavalry command had arrived at Austin, on their march across the country from Shreveport, La., and had reraised the national flag over the State Capitol, where it had not before waved in four years. Provisional Governor Andrew J. Hamilton reached Galveston on the 21st ult., where, on the 25th, he issued his proclamation to the people announcing his appointment by the President, and foreshadowing his designed course of procedure in the performance of his duties. He fixes no time for the election or convention, but states they would be held as soon as practicable.

SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN.—Alarming rumors had been current of the total failure of the negotiations between Austria and Prussia relative to the Duchies, and the Vienna Bourse was so affected that all funds were falling. The latest dispatches say that all negotiations have not been broken off, but that they have merely entered upon a new phase.

Notices.

GENERAL CAMPMEETING AT WILBRAHAM, MASS.

Providence permitting, a GENERAL campmeeting will commence at Wilbraham, on the old ground upon the hill, Monday, August 21st, and continue one week.

Ample accommodations will be provided for board and horse keeping. Board at 70 cents per day. Single meal,—breakfast or supper,—25 cents; dinner 30 cents. The boarding department is under the charge of the Committee, and any profits accruing from the same will go to the support of the meeting.

Those going from Boston to the campmeeting can take the 4.45 A. M. train at the Boston and Worcester depot, and arrive at the camp-ground at 7.27 A. M., or they can take the 2.30 P. M. express train, and arrive in Worcester at 4 P. M., and then change to an accommodation train, which leaves Worcester at 4.15, and arrives at Wilbraham at 6.23 P. M.

Arrangements have been made with the Eastern R. R. Co., by which those taking the cars from Portsmouth and intermediate places for Boston, paying full fares at the ticket offices, can have FREE RETURN PASSES by application to Geo. T. Adams, 167 Hanover street, Boston, or to him on the camp-ground.

On the Conn. R. R. from South Vernon, and intermediate places to Springfield, those going to campmeeting will buy a common ticket, and BE SURE AND ASK THE CONDUCTOR for a return CHECK from Wilbraham campmeeting. This Check must be endorsed by GEO. T ADAMS, at the Wilbraham campmeeting. As it is most likely that the R. R. Co. from Bellows Falls to South Vernon will do the same as the Conn. R. R., all who come from Bellows Falls will also please ask the Conductor for a return pass.

On the Western R. R. and also the Worcester, the fare has been reduced one third. Tickets good Aug. 19th to Sept. 1st, to be obtained at the various R. R. ticket offices, on the Western R. R., and at the Westboro', Framingham and Boston offices, on the Worcester R. R. Fare from Boston to Wilbraham and return $3.90. Please remember to call for Campmeeting Tickets at the offices on the Western and Worcester Roads.

The cars leave Springfield for the camp-ground, (distance nine miles), at 7.15 and 11.15 A. M., and 5 P. M.

S. G. MATHEWSON,
MILES GRANT,
GEO. T. ADAMS,
H. MUNGER,
J. HEMENWAY,
Committee of Arrangements.

Rhode Island to Wilbraham.

Brethren in Rhode Island who are going to the Wilbraham Campmeeting, can obtain through tickets, (good from Aug. 19th to Sept. 1st,) at a reduction of one-third of the usual fare, by applying at the Providence and Worcester depot, Providence, R. I. Call for Campmeeting tickets.

I. C. HUMES, for the Brethren.

Wilbraham via. Rutland, Vt.

I have just seen the Superintendent of the Rutland and Burlington R. R. He gave me authority to advertise that any who wish to attend the campmeeting at Wilbraham, can go over that road from Rutland for ONE FARE there and back.

M. BATCHELOR.

☞ Campmeeting Information.

BRO. GRANT:—I have made arrangements with the R. and Saratoga R. R. Co., and the Saratoga, Whitehall and Rutland R. R. Co., through their Superintendent, J. V. Baker, to carry over their road to Albany and return at half price. Tickets can be purchased at Castleton, Vt., of Mr. Isaac M. Guy (the former station master), with his name endorsed, and pay fare one way. Tickets must be endorsed at the camp-ground by Bro. Adams. Brethren from Castleton will have to take the midnight train from Rutland, and stop over one train at Saratoga, and go by the way of Albany (instead of Troy), when they will arrive in time to connect about nine o'clock with the Western R. R. train for Springfield.

Tickets can also be purchased at Fort Edward of the Station Agent. His name must be endorsed on the ticket, and it must also be endorsed by Bro. Adams on the camp-groudd, and it will entitle a return passage from Albany.

The Fort Edward, or Sandy Hill brethren, by taking the 7 o'clock train A. M., will meet the Castleton brethren, who take the midnight train, and stop over at Saratago, one train in the morning early. SOLOMON HALE.

Meeting of the Advent Christian Association.

The sixth annual meeting of this Society will be held at Wilbraham Grove, commencing at 4 o'clock P. M., Tuesday, Aug. 22, 1865.

A full representation from all churches co-operating with this Society, and a full attendance of preachers thus co-operating, is desirable at this meeting. Questions too important to admit of neglect or indifference on the part of the churches scattered abroad, or of the ministry, will come before this meeting. Does the Constitution require amendment? Shall there be any change in the editorial management of the Crisis? To whom as officers of the Society shall we intrust the funds and various interests of the same for the coming year? These, among many others that will arise, are questions to be decided at this meeting. Let no trifling pecuniary consideration, nor loss of time, prevent a general gathering of the friends of this Association. Each church (i. e. society of believers in Jesus Christ) co-operating, is entitled to one delegate, and one additional delegate for every fifty members above the number of twenty-five members.

Remember ☞ That all delegates sent by churches to the Advent Christian Association must be furnished with written credentials, or forfeit their right to membership. ☜

Also remember ☞ That preachers offering their names as members of this Association must bring a certificate of good character from a christian church, and show that they themselves are co-operating with this Society.

S. G. MATHEWSON, President,
H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

General Campmeeting at Alton Bay, N. H.

Providence permitting, a general campmeeting will commence at Alton Bay, N. H., Sunday, Aug. 27th, holding through the week, and over the following Sunday. Ample accommodations will be provided for board and horse keeping. Board at 60 cents per day; single meal, breakfast or supper, 25 cents; dinner, 35 cents. The boarding department and general lunch stand will be under the charge of Bro. J. S. Moulton. A Graham table will also be set for all who choose that way of living.

Arrangements have been made with the railroad and steamboat companies as follows: Passengers from Boston, and on the line of the Boston and Maine R. R., by taking trains that leave Boston at 7.30 A. M., 12 M., or 3 P. M., via. Dover and Winnipiseogee R. R., will go through to Alton Bay without change of cars, fare one way.

Passengers from Portland, and on the line of the P. S. and P. R. R., will take the trains leaving Portland at 8.45 A. M. or 3 P. M., and change cars at Dover. Fare reduced one third.

Passengers from Concord, and on the line of the Boston, Concord, and Montreal R. R., by taking trains that leave Concord 10.31 A. M., will connect at Wier's landing with steamers for Alton Bay, half fare.

Arrangements have been made with Captain Sanborn of the Steamer Lady to take all from the Wier's at two o'clock, Monday, Aug. 28th, direct to Alton Bay, so that those leaving Concord 10.31 A. M., by stopping at the Wier's until the 2 o'clock train comes down, can go to the camp-ground with those that come from above the Wier's.

Passengers who take the cars at Newport Monday morning, will arrive at Alton Bay at 3½ P. M. the same day.

Please remember and call for campmeeting tickets at the several ticket offices. Be sure and bring under beds to fill with straw on the ground; also other bedding. All who can will provide themselves with tents; but let none stay away that are without, for we will see that they have a place to lodge.

J. G. SMITH, in behalf of the Committee.

Campmeeting at New Preston, Ct.

There will be a campmeeting in New Preston, Ct., commencing Sept. 4th, and hold over the next Lord's day. Board by the day or single meal can be had on the ground, also horse keeping on reasonable terms.

Those coming to this meeting by railroad, will take the stage at New Milford on the Housatonic Railroad. The fare from New Milford is seventy-five cents. We hope to see a general rally at this central campmeeting. The last day is just before us. The signs are thickening fast. Soon we shall have a meeting that will not break up. Come, then, brethren and sisters, in the name of the Lord. Lay by the cares and labors of this life, and let us "strengthen the things that remain."

RUFUS WHITEHEAD,
H. J. BALDWIN,
JOHN ACKERMAN,
C. M. REYNOLDS,
H. M. BOLLES,
Committee.

General Western Campmeeting.

This meeting will commence Monday, Sept. 4th, at Amboy, Ill., and continue over the following Lord's day. Our friends will remember how very interesting our meeting was last year, and what an impulse for good was given to the infant cause in the West. We are yet weak and few, and have need of all the means that can be employed to build us up, and enlarge our sphere of usefulness. The campmeeting is one of the most efficient means of promulgating the truth, and building up the general interests of religion among us. Let all who can arrange be there. Let every one encourage his neighbor by a good example of sacrifice and consecration. Elds. Wm. C. Thurman, C. B Turner, and Hiram Munger from the East, and Eld. D. R. and Mrs. M. S. Mansfield, Eld. Wm. Sheldon, and many others of our most interesting speakers from the West, are expected to be present. In view of the increase of light and knowledge upon the time of the Lord's advent, we should act with great earnestness and zeal to prepare for the coming of the kingdom of God.

D. S. CLARK,
E. ROYCE,
D. W. KNIGHT,
WM. MCCULLOCK,
E. K. BURRINGTON,
J. V. HIMES,
Committee.

Meeting in Darien, N. Y.

There will be a two days meeting in Darien, Genesee Co., N. Y., at the Baptist house, commencing Friday evening, Sept. 8th, and continue over the Sabbath. It is also the quarterly meeting of the Christian Conference of Western New York. Brethren coming from the East will find a conveyance at Croft's Station, on the New York Central, five miles west of Batavia, at 1½ P. M. Also, for those coming from the West, at Corfu Station, at 4 P. M., Friday. Do not forget the empty straw ticks. A general attendance is looked for. B. C. SIMONDS.

Conference.

The next Annual Maine Advent Conference will be holden in Belgrade, to commence Sept. 7th and continue over Sunday. The meeting will be in the Baptist house, one mile from the depot. We hope there will be a general rally to this meeting, and that brethren will come filled with the spirit of Christ, and in earnest to unite their efforts to spread the truth, build up the cause of Christ, and save sinners. Those coming to the meeting may call on Brn. Wesley Greely, Thomas Rowlins, Thomas Eldridge, and Eld. Joseph Cumming.

H. B. SEVEY, Pres.
W. H. MITCHELL, Sect.

Notice.

As I purpose being at the Wilbraham campmeeting this year, I wish, through the Crisis, to request brethren in the East who owe me for books to come prepared to pay, or, if not coming themselves, to send it by some brother who is coming. These dues have stood seven and eight years, and my age and wants require a release from such cares and delays. If life and health are prolonged, I shall labor in the West in future, and so cannot call on brethren at their homes for pay, and I have found to my sorrow that writing effects but little.

J. BLAIN.

Notice.

The Lord willing, the "big tent" will be pitched in West Barre, Orleans Co., N. Y., Aug. 16th, and meetings to continue over the following Lord's day. West Barre is eight miles from Albion. Brethren will please write to Eld. C. F. Sweet at Albion, and let him know how many may be expected, and what days and trains they will come on, and teams will be in readiness to convey them to the meeting. H. L. HASTINGS.

Conference.

Our Eastern Maine Conference will be held in the town of Hermon, to commence Friday, August 18th, at 10 o'clock A. M., and continue over the Sabbath. Friends wishing to attend the meeting will call on Bros. Richard Dore and John Brackett for directions relative to entertainment. By order of the committee, M. YOUNG, Clerk.

Campmeeting Notice.

There will be a campmeeting in New Preston, Ct., commencing Monday, Sept. 4th, and hold over the Sabbath. Particulars hereafter. In behalf of the committee of arrangements. A. ROSS.

Conference.

There will be a quarterly conference at South Hope, Me., to commence Sept. 8th, at 2 o'clock P. M., and hold over the Sabbath. Preaching brethren and all lovers of truth are cheerfully invited to attend. S. K. PARTRIDGE.

Notice.

Eld. William Stewart, from the city of Philadelphia, who has been preaching the gospel of Christ for more than twenty years in that place, as well as in other parts of the country, intends the Lord willing, to visit the camp-meeting at Wilbraham, commencing Aug. 21st; and from there to go to any place in the New England States, where an opportunity may be offered to him, to preach the gospel of the kingdom. Eld. Stewart is highly beloved and esteemed among all christian brethren in Philadelphia as well as elsewhere, and will therefore come well recommended. Any Advent church in those States desiring good and sound gospel preaching (no hobbies), would do well to engage Eld. Stewart's service while at the campmeeting at Wilbraham. LOUIS REIMER.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

S. S. Brewer............Sunday, Aug. 20th

EAST BOSTON.

B. S. Emery............Sunday, Aug. 20th
H. F. Carpenter............Sunday, Aug. 27th

Wallingford Campmeeting, Ct......Aug. 17th and 18th
Wilbraham campmeeting............Aug. 19th to 28th
MILES GRANT.

East Canaan, N. H............Aug. 20th
JOSEPH W. WHITE.

Brockport, N. Y., (as the church there may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 27th. C. F. SWEET.

Would like to preach somewhere within 25 miles of Wilbraham camp-ground Sunday, Aug. 20th. Address me at Collins' Depot, Mass. H. K. FLAGG.

Bro. A. Decker is requested to withdraw his appointment for Westboro, Mass., Sept. 3d, as we are supplied for the present. V. STREETER.

West Abington............Sunday, Aug. 20th
SIMEON H. MORRISON.

Milvia Village, (for baptism)............Aug. 20th
T. W. PIPER.

Lovely Street, Ct............Sunday, Aug. 20th
Expect Bro. Seth Woodruff to be with me.
SAMUEL M. TATRO.

Thomaston............Aug. 20th
New Britain............Sept. 3d
R. WILLIAMS.

Taunton, (Trescott Street meeting-house), Sunday, Aug. 20th and 27th. W. E. HATHAWAY.

Freeport, (Swamp school-house)....Aug. 20th, 2 P. M.
Richmond, (Reed meeting-house)...Sept. 3d, 10½ A. M.
Evening, Reed school-house, or where H. D. Reed may appoint. R. R. YORK.

Danielsonville, Ct............Sunday, Aug. 20th
Will friends from around gather in?
H. F. CARPENTER.

London Ridge, N. H............Lord's day, Aug. 20th
B. P. MANNING.

Lawrence............Aug. 18th
and over the following Lord's day.
From there to Wilbraham campmeeting.
ISRAEL DAMMAN.

Dover, N. H., (in the old Court House), every Sabbath until further notice. T. M. LATHAM.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine Ground), every two weeks until further notice. S. S. MOONEY.

Worcester, Mass............Aug. 20th
J. COUCH.

Haverhill, Mass............Friday evening, Aug. 25th
Lee, N. H............Sunday, Aug. 27th
L. BOUTELL.

Richmond, R. I., (Clark's Hall)....Sunday, Aug. 20th
JOHN T. DIXON.

Chesterville, (Reth's Mills)......Sunday, Aug. 20th
Belgrade, (Baptist meeting-house)...Sunday, Aug. 27th
H. B. SEVEY.

Holden, Mass............Sunday, Aug. 20th
A. SPRAGUE.

Hermon Conference............Aug. 19th and 20th.
Lincoln half township and vicinity, from Aug. 22d to the 29th. Will some brother meet me at Lincoln when the stage comes in the 22d?
Burlington, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings, Aug. 30th, 31st, and Sept. 1st.
Lowell............Saturday evening, Sept. 2d
and over the following Lord's day.
J. S. JORDAN.

Great Falls, N. H............Sunday, Aug. 20th
J. PINKHAM.

Rutland, Vt............Sunday, Aug. 20th
M. BACHELOR.

Poultney, Vt............Sunday, Aug. 20th
BENJ. S. BATCHELOR.

Manchester, N. H............Sabbath, Aug. 20th
T. M. PREBLE.

Lunenburg............Sunday, Aug. 20th
Worcester............Thursday evening, Aug. 22d
S. C. HANCOCK.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

"A Young Brother."—The fare from New York to Boston, via. Wilbraham, is $6.00. From Boston to Alton Bay, on campmeeting ticket and return, $1.30, which is half the ordinary fare. The fare from New York to Springfield, Mass., is about $3.00, thence to the camp-ground (7 miles) about 50 cents for campmeeting ticket for both ways.

R. Buttershaw—His address is Keswick, C. W.

S. J. Parsons—It was acknowledged, and paid to No. 492.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 515. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, (if any), charge four cents; for every week since No. 468, if less than 26 weeks, five cents; if over 26 weeks, six cents a week (or $3.12 for the year.) From the sum deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—M B Miles 543, J R Towle 526, J S Hawkins 518, J Elkins 553, S W Worthington 523, S W Howe 522, Mrs. B Orton 519, E Orton 519.

$1.25 each—S H Cudworth 529, B Hammond 537, M Swaine 538, L. Allen 536, S. Batbey 521, J. T. Merrill (what P. O.?) J Clothey 539, F. Tripp 535, G. S. Hastings 508, D. F. Kendall 520, M L Bickford 534, J. M. Corliss 520.

$2.00 each—Mrs. P D Hood 554, Mrs. C Hall 548, F C. Northrup 551, W. Brewster 478, G. Butt 537, N. J. Kingsbury 494, W Baker 571.

$2.50 each—H J Hunt 532, A. Messer 541, O. Weed 552, C Gaines 542, G F Fowler 562, E L Hough 566, L F Gray 568, T S Owens 564, A D Thoits 505, J M Wyman 545, H A Bateman 565, P T Watson 546.

$3.00 each—D Fetch 505, M W Payson 428, A Barrett 524, S L Parsons 532, J A Snell 528, A J Mayhew 518.

Various sums.—T. Burdick $4.19, 514; H. Thackrey $2.75, 566; J Crawford $2.75, 566; D L Larkin $1.73, 513; S C Berry $3.00, 562; F M Berry $3.00, 581; H R Carter 50c, 524; J. A. Stickney $5.00, 496; J. Berry $5.00, 562; R N Orton $1.50, 544; O Wright $2.77, 520.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

T Burdick 81c, H McClary $1.00, S M Cornell 87c, S M Worthington $5.00, F Tripp $1.75.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

BY MAIL.—W Knight, H McClary, R R Gaither, T Burdick, S Bragg, M E Howes, R Urich, P E Williams, O S Knapp, L Briggs, N Branch, Mr. Wright, M W Payson, J Weston, G B Emerson, H W Morrille, J P Marquand, H Wood.

BY EXPRESS.—E A Prescott, J T Jordan, S Hall.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J Leslie, L T Cunningham, B Mathewson, D F Newton, D Campbell, H S Mitchell, L B Weaver, B Perham, M. D. W., A Decker, J Elkins, A M Higgins, L B Weaver, W C Thurman, J Lyle, J Taylor, S Curry, E G Osgood, F H Chamberlain, Geo. Thompson, C. F. H., J B Cleaveland, S E Stewart, L S Speights, B Perham, P Alling, M. G. S.

MONEY RECEIVED FOR THE FREEDMEN.—Frank Wilkins $1.00, Carrie and Bernie Willard 40c, Mrs. Goodnow $1.00, Mrs. Clark $1.00, Eunice Clark 25c, Abbie Clark 25c. B. MATHEWSON.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

Mrs. George A. Otis—West Cummington, Mass.
Eld. D. J. Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
Maria Mathews Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library; with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome. Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid; $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

THE NEW TESTAMENT of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

WHY THE SHOE PINCHES. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

GLAD TIDINGS; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts.; postage, 2 cts.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.00.

THE TAKING OF HUMAN LIFE incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 2 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

GLAD VOICES; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty-five or less.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 6c, postage 2c.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

MULLER'S LIFE OF TRUST. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

DIPHTHERIA: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. Price, 10 cts.; by mail, 12 cts.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. Price $2.50. Postage 36 cts.

NON-RESISTANCE; or, the Spirit of Christianity restored. By W. C. Thurman. Price 20 cts.; postage 4 cts.

CHLOE LANKTON; or, Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75 cents. By mail, 87 cts.

LIKENESS OF WM. MILLER, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

ENGLISH BIBLES.

Sent by mail, postpaid, at the following prices:—

Diamond,	morocco, gilt, marginal references,	$1.75
"	roan, " "	1.10
"	roan, " brass rims and clasps,	1.70
"	calf, colored edges, marg. ref.,	1.35
Pearl,	morocco, gilt, reference between verses,	2.40
"	morocco " circuit bind., marg. ref.,	3.20
"	roan, " reference between verses,	1.75
"	roan, " rims and clasps, marg. ref.,	2.00
Nonpareil,	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.00
Minion,	morocco, gilt, without references,	2.40
"	roan, " without references,	1.90
"	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.50
"	calf, marbled edges, without ref.,	2.15

Address all orders, with the money, to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Eld. T. Cheny. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. "On the State of the Dead, and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, 35 cents per dozen, $2.50 per hundred. Postage 2 cents for every 4 copies.

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments.

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; an exposition of Matthew 10: 28, Genesis 35: 18, &c.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture, of which only a single word is remembered, can be found. [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England. [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, embracing the Scriptural argument and the testimonies of the Primitive Church. By I. C. Wellcome. Price 10c.

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 13th chap. [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, [illegible] By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, [illegible] By C. F. Sweet. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the promised Messiah. By Mary A. Seymour. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. The Devil; his origin, personality, power, and doom. By Palmer A. Smith. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for preparing the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated health institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 14, in connection with Dan. 12: 11-13. By H. K. Flagg. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.00.
By Express—1800 pages for $1.00.
Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; postage, 2 cents. Free to the poor.

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers. 36 pages.
The Saints' Inheritance..........48 "
The New Heavens and New Earth..........24 "
The Voice of Warning..........24 "
The Advent at Hand..........24 "
The Last Days..........24 "
The Church not in Darkness..........24 "
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one)..........24 "
Outline of the Coast of Man..........8 "

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State..........24 pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead..........24 "
Ghostology..........48 "
Man's Future State..........12 "
The Key of Truth..........24 "

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved..........24 pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment..........12 "
Future Punishment Destruction..........12 "
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts)..........12 "
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Lost 24 "
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary..........24 "
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality..........12 "

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one)..........36 pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one)..........36 "
One Thing..........12 "
Judson's Letter on Dress..........12 "
Duty of Christians (a peace tract)..........12 "
Leaflets for Letters,—6 cents per set.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies. [illegible]
2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts [illegible]
3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Woe" [illegible]
4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]
5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]
6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument [illegible]
7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" [illegible]
8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal [illegible]
9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. Price 4 cts., postage 2 cts.
10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology [illegible]
11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, [illegible]

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C. F. Hudson. [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? With a Reply to Dr. Manuel. [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to articles by the Quarterlies, January, April, and September, 1862, and April and October, 1863. [illegible]

Blain's Tracts.

Price.—1 cent for every 8 pages; postage, 2 cents on every package of 100 pages, or less.

Endless Misery not a Bible Doctrine..........32 pages.
The Wicked not Immortal (with 200 proof-texts)..........12 "
Bible Meaning of the word Hell..........16 "
Bible Meaning of Forever and Everlasting..........12 "
Smoke of Torment and Unquenchable Fire Explained..........8 "
Rev. John Foster's Letter on Future Punishment..........8 "

For the World's Crisis.

TO CHLOE LASKTON.

Poor lone and helpless Chloe,
My heart it bleeds for you;
What long, long years of sorrow
Indeed you have been through;

On a bed of constant suffering,
For more than thirty years,—
When I think of your condition,
My eyes are filled with tears.

Yet, dear afflicted sister,
There is a rest for you,
And it will be far sweeter
For the suffering you've passed through.

O yes, the time is nearing,
When Jesus, who was slain,
Will come in all his glory,
And free you from all pain.

I trust to meet you, sister,
When our dear Lord appears,
And greet you in the kingdom,
Where there will be no tears.

Ye that abound in blessing
With this world's goods and health,
Remember suffering Chloe,
And share with her your wealth.

You'll never be the poorer
For lending to the Lord,
He surely will repay you,
He is faithful to his word.

Troy Grove, Ill. LOUISA A. DEWEY.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE.

NUMBER SIXTEEN.

To BRO. D. D. C.—My Dear Brother:—I will now notice some of your interrogations. You ask, "When God for Christ's sake forgave my sins, he forgave them all. Was I not then perfectly cleansed from all unrighteousness?"

I doubt not the fact that when pardoned you were forgiven all, but if your heart was then cleansed from all unrighteousness; if then you were sanctified wholly; if there remained no roots of bitterness which afterwards sprung up and troubled you; if you never felt any workings of inbred sin; then your experience was different, and more thorough, than is usual. Have you never felt corruption working within you since that hour? If you reply in the affirmative, then, according to your view of the matter, you must have fallen from grace, backslidden from Christ, in order for it to have a place in your heart. Are you prepared to take this position?

"Did not God make me pure when he first forgave my sins, or did he do a partial work?" For what, my brother, were you seeking, praying? Was it for pardon, or purity? Were your convictions for sins committed against God? Did you feel that you had broken his holy law, and was therefore condemned by that law; and without forgiveness, without justifying grace, you must perish? Probably this was the case. When you cast yourself with all your guilt on the atonement Christ had made for you, you were accepted; all of your sins were pardoned, and you stood as fully justified before God as though you had never committed a sin. The Holy Spirit testified to your justification and adoption into the family of God. You had peace in believing. You loved your Savior who had done so much for you, and his holy Word, and prayer. Whereas sin once had dominion over you, and you fulfilled the lusts thereof, now it no longer reigns; its power is broken, and the graces of the Spirit are implanted.

But did you not ere long find another law in your members warring against the law of your renewed mind, and sometimes bringing it into captivity to various sinful propensities? Was it not sometimes exceeding difficult for you to keep these passions and evil tendencies in subjection, so that pride, unbelief, self-love, and anger, might not lead you into sin? or were these wholly dead, so that they never stirred within exciting to evil? When temptation assailed you, did it meet with any sympathy from inward foes? Did you never feel a longing desire to be inwardly cleansed, so that you might reflect more clearly the image of your Lord?

The apostle Paul exhorts believers to cleanse themselves from all filthiness of the flesh and of the spirit, in order to perfect holiness. He calls them "dearly beloved." He prayed for the Thessalonian church, that they might be sanctified wholly, and preserved blameless unto the coming of Christ. To the Corinthians he says, "This also we wish, even your perfection." To some of them whom he addresses as brethren he says, "I could not speak unto you as unto spiritual, but as unto carnal, even as unto babes in Christ." "For whereas there is among you envying, and strife, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men?" Some say these were backsliders, but so does not Paul. They are acknowledged as "brethren," and "babes in Christ," though the carnal mind has not been put off, and its workings are apparent. These same traits were exhibited by the disciples before the day of Pentecost. They occupied the same position of modern disciples previous to their receiving the endowment of power. No wonder he exclaims, "This also we wish, even your perfection." This would remove those blemishes from the heart which were apparent in the outward life.

It is possible for the justified individual to keep these workings of inward depravity in subjection, so that they shall not lead him to actual transgression, and thus become sin; for so long as they are controlled by the will, and not cherished, not obeyed, they do not produce guilt, but they are constant obstacles to growth in grace, and are ever liable to betray the heart to its outward foes. God wills that they should be cleansed away, eradicated, and their places supplied with the fruits of righteousness. Then the individual can say with the Savior, "Satan cometh, and shall find nothing in me." Nothing inward disposed to yield to his suggestions, the strong man is not only bound, but cast out. Then there is a mighty repelling power within operating against the temptations of the devil.

In reply to another question, I would say that the Savior had no "inclination" to sin, though strongly tempted to sin. So it does not follow that if the heart be cleansed from "inbred sin," "all moral conflict" must needs terminate, and "all growth in grace also."

You remark, "All the experiences I have read in regard to sanctification show to me that the individuals had backslidden—forsaken their first love, and that their sanctified state is but a reclamation from a backslidden one, etc."

I have given quite a number of brief experiences of the blessing in recent "Letters," of those who, while in the enjoyment of justifying grace, were convicted for, and obtained, the baptism of the Holy Ghost. Abbott, Hamlin, Mrs. Rogers, Mrs. Palmer, and others, were enjoying a high degree of justifying grace previous to its reception. Very many have experienced this blessing within a few days, or weeks, or months of their conversion, without losing for a moment in the interim a consciousness of their acceptance. I have read of hundreds of such instances. That there are those who have become measurably backslidden, and see their duty to be holy, and, with enlightened views of the character of the blessing, are led to seek for it, and do enter upon its enjoyment, I have no doubt; but there is a wide difference between the experience of a backslider reclaimed simply from his wanderings, and that of one convicted for, and made a partaker of, the full salvation.

Whether I shall succeed in prying you out of the "rut" or not, I cannot tell. If you wish to ask any more questions, I hope you will freely do so. The difficulties you state are not peculiar to yourself. It is truth that sets us apart for God, not error. It is not necessary, however, to have all of the truth, in order to be entirely consecrated, and saved from sin; if so, none perhaps would be saved; for who has all of the truth unmixed with any error? Your sister in Christ, M. D. W.

For the World's Crisis.

REPORT.

R. I. and East. Conn. Quar. Conf.

Met, as notified by the President, at Natick, R. I., on Wednesday, July 5th, 1865, at 2 P. M. President in the chair. There not being a sufficient number of members and delegates present to form a quorum, no business was done, but spent the afternoon in prayer and exhortation. The Lord was with the few that had met in his name, and we all felt truly that a good beginning had been made. Evening, preaching by Eld. A. Durfee. Subject, The cause of the low state of religion now existing in the churches of R. I.

Thursday, 9 A. M., met for business. The President in the chair. Minutes of the previous conference read and adopted. Treasurer's report read and accepted. Reading of letters received from the churches. C. Cady reported the Abington church by letter. He says, "Brethren, since our last conference the church in Abington has been blest with a revival, under the labors of Brn. Streeter, Morse, Bellows, Phetteplace, Hopkins, and Sr. Otis. Eleven conversions; eight baptized, three united with the church. We have three prayer meetings weekly. A Sunday school organized with about thirty scholars. Have made an addition to our library. We think the church is in a healthy state. Meetings are well attended."

J. W. Thomas reported the Lafayette church in rather a low state at present. There have been two added since last reported. Brn. Wood, Dixon, and Hastings have preached to us. Sabbath School interesting.

Delegates. N. Shumway reported the Danielsonville church. Since our last conference we have had preaching most of the time, from the following brethren: B. Butler, H. Pratt, E. Bellows, and Sr. Otis. Prayer and conference meetings are almost deserted. In short, the power of godliness has become almost extinct. The Sabbath School is very well attended. Hope it will continue to prosper.

Preachers reported their labors. E. Bellows. Since the last conference, have been at Lafayette church. In rather a low state. At Abington the Lord has been at work. At West Gloucester, preached three times with good interest. There is a chance for laborers to do good. I love to preach the whole truth, not for the sake of getting some one converted to a particular theory, but to get some, if possible, to embrace the truth, that they may rejoice in the blessed hope. Have labored with the Danielsonville church. Been to Clayville. There is no Advent church there, but they love to hear the word preached.

P. C. Rodman. I was not at the conference. Have been laboring in the field of the Lord in a particular manner for the past three months. Am strong in the faith of the Second Advent at hand.

M. R. Phetteplace. Have broken off my connection with the Freewill Baptist church at Chepachet. The last Sabbath that I was with them, I baptized two. Last spring I came to Natick. Have preached three times at River Point. This church is in rather a low state.

A. Durfee. Have labored in Mohegan, Natick, and Richmond. The cause in Mohegan is in rather a low condition. We have no church in that place. Some good meetings; see but little chance for an increase of interest at present.

Moved, That the Conference invite the preaching brethren present, who are not members, to take part in our deliberations. Carried.

E. Bellows. The committee appointed at the last conference for the purpose of inquiring, either personally or by letter, of P. C. Rodman, in relation to the charges brought against him as set forth in the resolution offered by H. F. Carpenter, was called upon to report. The committee reported that he had been dilatory in the work assigned him. Had not seen nor written to Bro. Rodman, but was glad that he was present to speak for himself.

Bro. Rodman was inquired of as to whether he had any thing to say in relation to the charges brought against him at the last conference; who replied that he had been wrongfully charged in the resolution as published in the "World's Crisis," and denied as to the truth of it. After some explanations upon both sides, it was moved that the resolution be altered so as to read as follows:

"Resolved, That a delegate be appointed to confer with Bro. P. C. Rodman as to the propriety of remaining a member of this conference, while officially employed to labor as a missionary by the Seventh-day Advent Association." Carried.

Moved, That the resolution that was laid upon the table at the previous conference be taken up, and the discussion be resumed. Carried. Moved, That the brethren, in the further discussion of this resolution, be limited to ten minutes. Carried. Brn. E. Bellows, A. Decker, and A. Durfee were the speakers. The discussion occupied upwards of two hours.

Moved, That Brn. Shumway and Card be a committee to act in connection with the Chair to arrange preaching at the conference. Carried. Moved, That we adjourn the business part of this conference to Friday, at nine A. M. Carried.

Two P. M., met for social worship. At three, sermon by E. R. Wood. At seven, an interesting prayer and conference meeting. At eight, sermon by A. Decker, from Matt. 24: 15, showing that we are living in the last days of time's probation, and that we may safely look to the year 1867 for the return of the Lord.

Friday, nine A. M. Met according to previous adjournment. Prayer by the President. E. R. Wood reported the Exeter church. I preach to them two Sabbaths per month. I do not think there is that friendly union and feeling now as previously existed among us. Bro. P. C. Rodman had preached there, and succeeded in making some believe that the seventh-day Sabbath was the one to be observed. On the whole, I do not think that he did us much good. There is a dividing element among us. Pray for us, that we may be kept by the power of God until the day of his coming. Three are decided upon the Sabbath question.

Bro. E. R. Wood. Labor with the Exeter church two Sundays in a month; also two Sabbaths with the Lafayette church. The interest in both of these churches is not as good as heretofore. Held a public discussion with P. C. Rodman upon the Sabbath question.

A. Decker. Have labored in various places. Have preached to the brethren in New York. The truth took deep root in that place. Preached at Worcester with good success; also in Lynn and Providence. These are old churches; and some of them were in the '44 movement, and seemed to understand what I talked about. The Salem church closed the door against me, but I hired a hall and commenced meetings, and many of the old Adventists were out and heard the truth. I think the cause of the low interest in the churches at the present time is, some particular doctrines have been preached, or forced upon them, and they have lost sight of the grand truth of the second coming of Christ.

After the brethren had finished their reports, Bro. E. Bellows introduced the following resolution, Resolved, That the promulgation of the seventh-day Sabbath, as a day to keep by authority from the Mosaic law, has a deleterious effect on the spirituality of God's children, and tends to divide and distract, and to unprepare them for the second coming of the Lord.

Moved, That the brethren in the discussion of this resolution be limited to ten minutes' time. Carried. Brn. E. Bellows, A. Decker, and E. R. Wood, spoke upon the affirmative, and P. C. Rodman upon the negative. The best of feeling was manifested by the disputants. After the discussion it was moved that this resolution be adopted. Carried.

As there was no invitation from any of the churches for the next conference, it was moved that it be left with the Chair to provide a place for its next session. Carried. Adjourned to meet again on the first Wednesday in October.

The Clerk feeling it duty to return home, he can not report the proceedings of the conference any later than Friday noon. Preaching brethren present:—E. Bellows, M. R. Phetteplace, P. C. Rodman, E. R. Wood, A. Decker. WM. H. CHAPMAN, Clerk.

For the World's Crisis.

THAT WALK BY THE WAY.

On a certain occasion, two men started out from Jerusalem one Sunday morning, in a very disconsolate mood; and we will imagine the general course of their conversation, indicated by a few of their words found on record. The subject is so fruitful of suggestions that many other things than the record contains must have been alluded to.

In order to come to the drift of their discourse, we must revert to some of their antecedents. The two men referred to were among the twelve chosen friends of Jesus of Nazareth. They had been promised great things, but now supposed all was lost, and were in utter despair, and it is not difficult to imagine the nature of their conversation.

They could recur to several other occasions when things looked dark. Jesus had at one time preached so plainly to the multitude that the offense was great; his reputation suffered exceedingly; all forsook him, only the twelve. To encourage their hopes, he said, "Fear not, little flock, it is my Father's good pleasure to give you the kingdom." They could say on this occasion, "Did not our hopes revive then? But how foolish we were soon afterwards to get into a dispute among ourselves which of us should be the greatest when we got into that kingdom! When Jesus heard of this dispute he rebuked us, though kindly; and afterwards renewed the promise—that in the regeneration, or reconstruction, we should sit on twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.

"Soon after this Peter got us into another dispute,—he was ambitious of being leader, and wanted his choice of the twelve thrones. He would not accept of the judgeship for the tribe of Dana way up north; besides that was the meanest of all the tribes. James and John did not dare to say much in this dispute, but got their mother to go and intercede with Jesus; and this exposed us all. No wonder if Jesus did get disgusted with our folly. He was a little displeased at this occurrence. But how he mingled his rebukes with kindness! But all these hopes are gone now!"

After walking on in silence for a time, one said, "Well, he never intended to deceive us. You recollect when we were coming into Jerusalem the last time, how our expectations were raised! we expected the kingdom would immediately appear! There were encouraging indications of the long looked-for event. Jesus was making preparations to ride into the city just in the manner Zechariah said he would—as king. True, he dampened our expectations some by his parable of the Nobleman going into a far country to receive a kingdom and to return to set it up. But this need not delay the work longer than to go to Rome and back. That was the only place where any opposition to his setting up his kingdom could avail any thing. If Cæsar gave consent, Herod or Pilate could not prevent. But the opposition of the Jews! that prevented it, for had he gone to Rome Cæsar would have said, Your own nation regard you as an impostor; and he might not have escaped the Roman gibbet even in that renowned city.

"Those were dark days for us again! But again our hopes revived at the Passover for a time. He there renewed all his promises. True, he talked of leaving us, but we hoped he only alluded to his journey 'into a far country,' which could not be further than Rome. He repeated on this occasion his pledges,—said we should sit on thrones in his kingdom; that we should eat and drink with him again in his kingdom. So this, we little thought, was to be our last supper together. There can be no doubt he intended to redeem all these pledges, but now he is murdered."

Another moody silence, but soon broken by the question of one to the other,

"What do you think of the stories afloat in the city this morning when we left?"

"I do not know what to think," said the other, "the reports are so contradictory. I fear the story told by the Roman soldier is too true. That part of the statement, that the disciples stole him away, is of course false, but might have been intended to cover up some other plot. The story which Mary told is too improbable for belief. No doubt she honestly believed it herself, poor woman, but she is so worn down by watching and cruel anxiety that her imagination could be easily wrought upon. But oh! what shall we do in all this uncertainty?"

At this stage of the conversation a stranger approached and interrupted them. He said in a sympathizing, friendly manner, which impressed them in his favor,

"What manner of communications are these that ye have one with another, as ye walk and are sad?"

And Cleopas (for that was the name of one of them) answered, "Art thou a stranger in Jerusalem, and hath not known the things which are come to pass there in these days?"

"And he said unto them, What things?"

"And they said unto him, Concerning Jesus of Nazareth, which was a prophet mighty in deed and word, before God, and all the people. He made us great promises of a kingdom to be restored to Israel; told Nathaniel, one of our number, that he should hereafter see the angels of God ascending and descending upon the Son of man. We trusted it had been he who should have redeemed Israel."

D. C.

(To be continued.)

THOUGHTS BENEATH CHASTISEMENT.

I'll meekly bear the chastening rod,
And never more repine;
And if I'm laid beneath the sod,
I'll in Thy image shine.

I'll strive to do God's holy will,
And bear my trials here,
And calmly meet all earthly ill,
And live with him secure.

My chastening has been long;
I'd love to rest from pain;
My hope in Jesus now is strong,
And with the Lord I hope to reign.

O! come, Lord Jesus, come,
And raise the sleeping ones,
And take thy saints to that sweet home,
And let us live with thy dear Son.

North Dana, Mass. LUTHERA B. WEAVER.

HELL-FIRE.

For successive generations the literality, as well as the eternity, of hell-fire has been tenaciously maintained by so-called orthodox theologians. But, recently, innumerable facts are compelling many of them to recede from their old position. Fire is perpetuated only by feeding upon fuel of some kind, and when the fuel is consumed, the fire is extinct. Hell-fire must CONSUME something, if literal; and if it is eternally to burn, it must be eternally consuming some kind of fuel; hence, God must either be eternally putting fuel in hell, to keep the fire up, or the wicked must constitute the fuel upon which the fire feeds; and literal fire would make rather awkward work in feeding upon invisible, intangible ghosts. But as literal fire has an invariable tendency to consume that upon which it preys, though sometimes at a slow rate, if the wicked are the fuel of hell, they must ultimately be consumed. If God does not eternally furnish fuel to put into hell to feed the fire; and if the fire does not consume sinners as its fuel, then there is no fuel for the fire to live on, and, consequently, it must expire. If the fire does not consume the wicked in the least degree, then it cannot inflict the least pain upon them (for pain is the road to death); consequently, a man would be as well off in that fire as out of it, and could sleep as soundly in the heart of such a hell as in Paradise on a feather bed! If hell makes no impression on the wicked, what hurt can it do them?

These obvious absurdities are now compelling many to deny the literality of hell-fire, and inducing them to claim that conscience is the tormenting element of the damned, represented by the figure of fire. Well, this is like "jumping out of the frying-pan into the fire," for sin benumbs the human conscience, so that the Scriptures speak of some as "having their consciences seared" by an overplus of sin. Thus, if conscience is the only fire that scorches the damned, it follows that those of many crimes (who have their "consciences seared") will suffer the least, while those of few sins will suffer the most. To escape the keen torments of that hell, we have only to sin much!! Rather let me believe that the fire of hell is literal, and that it will literally "burn up" the sinful rubbish of God's universe. W. SHELDON.

For the World's Crisis.

FRIENDSHIP.

True friendship will lead one to stand by another through all the changing scenes of life, through adversity as well as prosperity. We see the rich thronged with friends, while the poor have but few; but are those true friends who flock around the rich because they are such? Let those people become poor, and all will desert them but their real friends. A true friend will not desert in time of need. How many hearts have been wounded and their lives made unhappy by false friends. Treat your friends with respect, and never believe evil reports about them. Always speak kindly and affectionately, and never wound their feelings with unkind words. Be kind and affectionate to all. All are made of flesh and blood; one as well as another. Love, and you will be loved; not only by your friends, but God's love will be with you; He created the heavens and earth, and all that is therein, and made his creatures to love each other. L. A. SALTER.

Plymouth, Vt.

SAGGING DOORS.—After doors have been long in use, they sometimes pinch near the top, and the usual remedy is to plane them off at the sticking point. But this planing removes the paint or graining, and is a great evil. The cause of the pinch is the sagging of the door; and this comes from the wearing down of the hinges by long use. Instead of planing off the doors, a better way is to go to the tinners and get some tin or sheet-iron washers made which will just fit the central rod or pivot of the hinge. This will remedy the evil at small expense, and save the mutilation.—Amer. Agriculturist.

TO PREVENT STOVES RUSTING.—Oil them with sweet oil. This does not make a bad smell when the stoves are heated again. They should be very clean when the oil is applied. Coal-scuttles may be oiled with boiled linseed oil.—Ibid.

To remove Lime Spots from Cloth.—First use a stiff brush to remove any adhering lime, then rub the spots with a cloth wet in cold vinegar and dry the garment.

JEWISH INTELLIGENCE.

THE GATHERING WILL SOON COMMENCE.

The following letter will be read with interest:—

FURTH, June 8th, 1865.

Editor of the "Israelite Indeed":—

Before I proceed, I must tell you that I am one of the sons of Jacob, of the tribe of Levi, and from the family of Aaron the Priest; but, though I am still within the pale of the synagogue, I am, for many years, a disciple of Jesus of Nazareth, whom I believe to be the Son of God, and the glorious Messiah of Israel. Of the how, when, and where I became convinced of that saving truth, I shall, the Lord permitting, inform you in another communication, should you think it worth your while to acknowledge the receipt of the present by a few lines. You will, no doubt, ask: Why then are you still a member of the synagogue; and why do you not publicly profess Jesus as your Messiah and Savior? In anticipation of these questions I answer you, that I do publicly profess my belief in the Redeemer, Jesus; and there is no Jew, in this and other places, who knows me not as a believer in Christ. But, as I do not separate myself from them, and, as I do not believe that a converted Jew must at once throw off everything that smells Jewish, as I therefore keep myself within the limits of Judaism as far as the law is concerned, my brethren reckon me their equal; they believe me to be a pious, but in one point, erring brother, who must be kindly treated. In this position, my dear sir, I think I do more good among our brethren than you or any missionary can ever do; for upon you they mostly look with contempt, and treat you with scorn; while I speak to them, proving to them, from Moses and the prophets, that none else but Jesus of Nazareth is the glorious Messiah of Israel; and that whether they will or not, the time will surely come, when all Israel will acknowledge His Lordship over them; when he will come, the second time, to deliver them from the hand of the multitude of nations, gathered and arrayed in hostility against them. I tell you, sir, that, by the help of God, I have made a good many converts, who live like myself, and like the first disciples of Jesus, and the apostles in Jerusalem, in harmony with our unbelieving brethren, within the pale of the synagogue. . . . I prefer to attend the synagogue, and mingle my prayer for the coming of the Son of David with my brethren of Israel; for, indeed, I am fully convinced—and I derived this conviction from the Scriptures of truth—that the world will remain in sin and wickedness, until the Son of David shall appear to take possession of the throne of his Father, and reign over all the earth.

But I must return to the main object of my letter. I was sitting in my room in London, when a man entered, handed me a four page tract, and asked me at the same time, whether I knew Jesus? I replied that I did, and thus an interesting conversation ensued, in the course of which he found that I was a Hebrew. He then took from his pocket another pamphlet, and presenting it to me, said: "This is a monthly magazine, published by a converted Jew in New York, North America." He added that he would let me have the copy for some days, if I would promise him to return it. Of course, I promised it cheerfully, and enjoyed the reading of "Nathaniel," written by one of my own people, who is not ashamed to tell the world that he is a Jew.

In perusing your magazine, I found that you are deeply interested in the affairs of that land, which, though possessed and trodden under foot by the Gentiles, is still ours, by virtue of a grant made by Jehovah to our fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and confirmed by repeated oaths, which cannot be broken, as they proceeded from the mouth of the Almighty, Creator of the universe. I endorse your views and your hopes with all my heart, and, therefore, I will give you some information about things going on here and elsewhere in Europe, which will confirm you, and all those who believe with you, that the coming of our most glorious Messiah is nearer than the world thinks.

That the gathering of the Jews—at least to a great extent—to the land of their fathers, . . . can only be denied by those who are blinded by their preconceived spiritualizing notions. This re-gathering of the Jews is now beginning to take place. Not only many single families immigrate into Palestine, but there have been formed a number of societies in almost every land on this continent, to prepare an emigration on a large scale, provided with all possible means, money, implements, and tools of every kind, to commence the cultivation of the long desolated land, at once, and with the utmost vigor. There are men of considerable wealth among them, and not without some means, enough at least to defray the expenses of the journey, and to purchase a plot of ground. I am happy to state that I am one of the leading members of a society forming here in Bavaria, which numbers already over nine hundred heads of families, besides a number of young people, who would not form an alliance with the other sex, until settled in the Holy Land, upon the soil of their rightful heritage. . . .

I doubt whether the desire to return to Canaan manifests itself among the Jews in your country, the New World. There they do not feel any necessity for going into a land desolated and infested by savage tribes of the sons of Ishmael, leaving the well-filled fleshpots, that is their money making business, behind in America. No matter, let them stay there; the time will surely come when they too will go, and, perhaps, under less favorable circumstances than the present. Who can tell what, in the course of time, will become of the great Republic of the United States of North America? Solomon wisely said: "That which hath been is now; and that which shall be hereafter hath already been." Your free Republic may yet become an absolute monarchy; a tyrant may erect his throne in the midst of it, and rule the people with an iron rod, and persecute the scattered children of Jacob, as in the days of past ages. Why not? Rome was the mightiest Republic that ever existed; and yet it was, at once, turned into a monarchy; and cruel Neros, Caligulas, etc., ruled over the proud Romans. All this had to come to pass in order that prophecies, made by the Seers of Israel, might be fulfilled. Rome, the fourth beast in Daniel's vision, and the iron legs of Nebuchadnezzar's image, had to become a kingdom, for the prophet had so named it.

The Gentiles hereabouts—that is in the petty German Protestant Kingdoms and principalities—are even more astir about Palestine than the Jews. Many centuries before our days, christians were informed by their teachers and leaders that they were the spiritual Israel, and that all the promises made to that people are to be understood as spiritual, and, consequently, the Jews had to expect nothing of them, except by embracing christianity—not Christ—if they would enjoy the same blessings, formerly promised, and then really in possession of christians; that is, have churches instead of synagogues, priests instead of Rabbies, be citizens here, and go to heaven hereafter.

In our days, however, knowledge has increased; the study of Scriptures has lifted the thick veil from the eyes of many learned Gentiles, who now see that the revealed word of God must be understood literally, and that, consequently, the promises, as well as the people to whom they were made, cannot consist of gas and vapor, but are realities. . . .

I remain, dear sir, yours truly,
VERITAS, the Priest.
—Israelite Indeed.

☞ Criticise upon nothing more than your own actions, and you will soon see reason enough to pardon the weakness of others.

SEMBLANCE AND REALITY.

The semblance of religion is often dearer to men than religion itself. As one saith, many a man has spent five hundred pounds upon a picture of a beggar, by Murillo, or a brigand by Salvator Rosa, who would not give a penny to a real beggar, and go out of their wits at the sight of a brigand. The picture of religion, the outward name of it, men will give much to maintain; but the reality of religion—ah! that is quite a different thing. Many of our churches are surmounted with the cross in stone, but how few of the worshipers care to take up the cross of Christ daily and follow him. We know religious men who are respected by the ungodly, not for their religion, but on account of some adventitious (or accidental) circumstance. It was not the religion itself they cared for. If you should take a bear in a cage into a town, men will pay their money to see it, but let it loose among them and they will pay twice as much to get rid of it. So sometimes if a religious man hath gift or ability, there are many who will regard and admire him, but not for his religion. Let the religion itself come abroad in the daily actions of his life, and then straightway they begin to abhor him.

There is much false love to Jesus—much unhallowed profession. Let us remember, however, that the day is coming when all false profession will be destroyed. The fan in Christ's hand will leave none of the chaff remaining upon the wheat-heap, and the great fire will not suffer a single particle of dross to be unconsumed. Happy shall that man be whose faith was a real faith, whose repentance was sincere, whose obedience was true, who gave his heart, his whole heart, to his Master's cause!—Spurgeon.

HOW TO BECOME UNHAPPY.—If you want to be miserable, be selfish. Think all the time of yourself. Have no feeling for any one but yourself. Never think of enjoying the satisfaction of seeing others happy. Envy every one who is better off in any respect than yourself. Be constantly afraid lest some one should encroach upon your rights. Never yield a point. Be very sensitive, and take every thing that is said to you in playfulness in the most serious manner. Be constantly afraid lest some one should encroach upon your rights; and if any one comes near your things, snap at him like a mad dog.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

THE IRON BOOT.

"There's poor Johnny Truman with his iron boot. I think it is real cruel in his mother making him wear it when he hates it."

An iron boot! A boot with no give to it must be terribly cramping. How hard to the soft flesh; how rigid to the flexible muscles! Can the joints turn on their sockets? With an iron boot on, can a boy play? Can he run? It must be dragging work even to walk. Poor Johnny! Did his mother put it on for a punishment? Did she do it to fetter him, as Mr. Day does his horse to hinder him from running away?

"O mother," cries Johnny, "do take this iron boot off. It almost kills me. I don't care if I am lame. I don't care if my legs are crooked. I don't care if my ankle is out of joint. I don't care how I am when I grow up. All I want is this off now;" and Johnny worried and fretted until almost the whole house was out of patience. He behaved as if his mother made him wear it on purpose to trouble him. Did she? Oh, no, no.

The bones in the little boy's right foot and ankle were soft. The bones were bent and growing out of their proper proportions, when his mother consulted a physician, who put his foot into an iron boot. It was done to support the bones, and keep them in place, until they should grow strong and healthy as bones in general. But Johnny had no faith. He did not believe it would do any good. He was sure, he said, it was no use; and therefore, instead of trusting his mother and doctor, and trying to be patient, he kept complaining. "Why don't you pull it off, and let him take the consequences?" said a woman, quite worn out by Johnny's unreasonable conduct; "I would."

His mother looked grieved; but with eyes of pitying affection she stroked her little boy's hair, and said, "I must act for the future good of my child. Johnny will one day thank me for it. If he would not dwell on it so, it would not be so hard to bear. Johnny has a great deal to make him good and happy in spite of his iron boot, and that won't last long."

Johnny hung down his head. He felt a little ashamed, for he well knew in how many thousand ways his mother tried to soothe and make him happy; and as for the boot it was only for his good.

This year of sorrow and discipline at length passed away, and Johnny grew up to be a tall, handsome man, with strong limbs and a firm tread. And what do you think he oftenest said to his mother? "Mother, I can't be too thankful that you persisted in making me wear that iron boot. I should have been a poor cripple to-day but for you, mother, who bore so patiently with my complaining."

Have you an iron boot on, my dear child? Every little trial which you have—and children have their trials—is the iron boot which your Father in heaven puts on you. Many a time you feel it pinching, and are ready to cry. Do you fret and worry, and try to kick it off? Such conduct grieves God. He wants you to trust him and be patient. And as in numberless other ways he tries to make you happy, he desires you to dwell on the mercies which crown your days. That will cause you to exclaim, "Bless the Lord, O my soul; and all that is within me bless his holy name," and make you happy, very happy in spite of trial. By-and-by you will know why he tries you, and see and acknowledge how good and gracious were his purposes in every iron boot he caused you to wear.—Child at Home.

TWO KINDS OF ADVICE.

"Freddy, what's the matter?"

Freddy White could hardly answer his father's question, he was sobbing so violently; but at length he cried,—

"Will Merchant and Frank Bennett have been calling me names and throwing snowballs that hurt me ever so much, and I never troubled them."

"Ball 'em back, ball 'em back; that the best way to get along in the world," said the indignant father.

Mr. White's advice was somewhat different from that which Luther Hovey's mother gave him, when he was badly treated. I wonder which the children will think was the best. Let me tell them the story, and then they can decide.

One bright, beautiful May morning, Luther stood at the gate, waiting for the teacher of the primary school to come along, that he might go with her, for the first time. His primer was held tightly in his hand, his luncheon was stowed away in his pocket, and he was a proud and happy boy of the important age of five years.

Mis Browning greeted her new pupil kindly, and under her protection he got on bravely. But recess put a different face on school-life.

"Here's a new-comer! He is so little that he couldn't come alone. Wonder how he could leave his mother!" shouted one of the larger boys, as he gave Luther's hair a sly pull. Many of the other boys were ready to join in teasing the defenceless child, until he grew very angry, and began to cry, which only made them shout the more, and torment the longer.

"I hate school! I'll never go again till I'm big enough to fight the boys," he said wrathfully, after he reached home, and was telling his grievances to his mother.

"I would much rather fight against myself, and do as the Bible says, 'heap coals of fire on their heads,'" said Mrs. Hovey quietly.

"Does the Bible say that, ma? then I guess I'll go to-morrow, and take a shovelful."

The mother could scarcely restrain a smile at her little son's literal rendering of the precept; but she tried to, while she explained to him the real meaning.

"Treat them kindly; do good to them whenever you can, till you make them ashamed of their naughty actions. In this way you will burn them with coals of kindness, and at the same time fight against yourself for you will fight against a heart which says, 'Pay them in their own coin; give them as good as they send;' and many other wrong suggestions."

Now, my little friends, which boy received the best advice? Which, if acted upon, would make them the happiest children?—Well Spring.

DON'T UNCHAIN THE TIGER.

A tiger is a very fierce and dangerous animal. If he is well caged, or confined by a strong chain, he may be kept from hurting any one; but it is not safe to unchain him or set him loose for a moment.

Some of you children have seen a tiger, and you have thought, how dreadful it would be to have him get loose! It would be terrible. He might tear in pieces several persons before he could be slain or secured. We have seen in a picture where one of these fierce creatures has got loose, and is about to spring upon a dear little child.

But have you thought, children, that each one of you has something like this fierce creature shut up in your heart, and that if you let him loose he will do very much hurt? You are sometimes tempted to get angry. If you give way to the temptation you unchain the tiger and open the door of his cage, and let him out; and how much damage he may do, before he is caught and confined again, you cannot tell! Anger is a terrible monster! Solomon says, "Anger is outrageous," and that it "resteth in the bosom of fools." Of such he adds, "Let a bear robbed of her whelps meet a man, rather than a fool in his folly."

When you get angry, you do very foolish as well as very wicked things; anger then makes a fool of you, and often does great wrong and injury to others.

And when this tiger is unchained, you cannot control it. It gets the complete control of you, and causes you to foam and rage like one possessed with a demon. If you get angry you are sure to do something of which you will be greatly ashamed, after you get over your passion. You make yourself appear very contemptible to others; you lose their respect, and perhaps gain their ill-will. You will feel mean and condemned yourself.

To get angry often will injure your health, shorten your life, and make both yourself and others unhappy. It is a great sin to get angry. You cannot please God with such a spirit.

Then ask God to forgive you and help you to control your temper. He will help you, if you are in earnest. If tempted to be angry, do not speak for a time, but think how God would have you do.

You may entirely conquer a violent temper after a while. You can chain up the tiger in a strong cage, and keep him there. Once get him there, bear in mind what you are told: Don't unchain the tiger.—Well Spring.

BOORISH BOYS AND GIRLS.

Did you ever see a well dressed boy or girl compel a poor woman carrying a big basket or bundle to step off the sidewalk? I have, and I have also seen a glossy coated boy or a silk clad miss give such poor person a look of scorn which seemed to say:

"I am china, you are delf. Get out of my way! How dare you presume to stand in my path?"

"You civilized little boor," I have said to myself, at such a sight, "you haven't a particle of politeness in you. If you had, you would pity that burdened woman, and get out of her way."

If I have such an impolite boy or girl among my readers, I wish he would take a lesson from the life of Napoleon. When he was on the island of St. Helena, he walked out with a lady one day. A poor man with a heavy pack met them. The lady kept straight on, but the ex-Emperor gently waved her on one side, saying:

"Respect the burden, madam."

Respect the burden! That's a good motto. You will find that most of your schoolmates and friends carry burdens of some sort. Not on their backs, perhaps, but in their hearts. Little Maggie, for example, carries a burden of bashfulness. Respect it by being kind and gentle to the little dearie. Your friend Robert, whom you call a "slow coach," carries a burden of dullness. Respect it by explaining his lessons to him. Your mother carries a burden of sickness, your father of care and work. Respect their burdens by giving them love, and obedience, and help. In short, you must respect everybody's burden whom you know, and thus help make the world happier. Do you understand? Yes. Very good. Then mind you respect the burden.—Sunday School Advocate.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance...............$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to
MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE,
Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

Single copy, [illegible] cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, [illegible] cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, [illegible] cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

CLUBS.—Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with the other names on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, [illegible] cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, [illegible] cents a year on each copy; in smaller clubs (of less than ten), from [illegible] cents a year on each copy.

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

POSTAGE.—Six cents per quarter, on every package of ten copies or less, to one address. Must be paid quarterly or yearly in advance, at the office where the paper is received. Send no money to us for postage.

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 516. BOSTON, TUESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 23.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME, H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

THE BELOVED.

The bride is sitting lonely,
In the absence of her lord;
This cheers her heart, this only,
His bosom-treasured word:
"I come quickly."

She trims her lamp to meet him,
And clasps her garments white,
And thus prepares to greet him,
Soon as he comes in sight,
To fetch her home.

The world that lies beneath her,
It hath no charms for her;
Beyond the mounts of Bether,
The fragrant hills of Myrrh,
Her heart is gone.

She sighs for his appearing,
Through the long shadowy night;
His nuptial chaplet wearing,
Bringing her joy and light
To earth again.

She lifts her eyes to heaven,—
Those dove-like, virgin eyes,
And longs to see it riven,
And her day-star arise,
Healing all pain.

Yet through her night of watching,
Her vigil dark and long,
A beam from glory catching,
She pours her hopeful song,
Her joyous strain.

Beloved, my heart is waking,
Help me to watch and pray,
Till morning lustre breaking,
I rise and come away,
By thee embraced.

See, on the mountains leaping,
How the young hart is fleet;
Oh! thus to end my weeping,
Swift be thy beauteous feet,—
Make haste! make haste!

And does her lord forget her,
While dwelling thus apart?
No, he hath fondly set her
A seal upon his heart,
In suffering trained.

Wait on, hope on, my fairest,
The marriage feast is nigh;
Soon every grief thou bearest,
And every cloud shall fly
At my glad voice.

Then shall mine arm embrace thee,
My love, my reconciled;
Then on my throne I'll place thee,
My dear, my undefiled,—
Rejoice! rejoice!

TO SEEKERS OF HOLINESS.

You would choose for your happy and everlasting motto, "Holiness," or "wholeness," to the Lord.

Then, first of all, you will dedicate all to him. Not but what all you have is his, and has been from the beginning, but you have not so regarded it. You have taken your portion and gone your way heretofore, wasting your Father's gifts in selfish living. Let all this cease at once; and let it be your language, the language of your heart, "What wilt thou have me to do?" In a word, consecrate all to your Heavenly Father. How will you do this? We answer,—consent and decide, that all, whether act, word, thought, desire or possession shall not be as self, or men may will, but as God wills. This, you say, I have tried to do, again and again. Doubtless you have, and done it acceptably, too. But here you halted; you did not believe. Believe what? you ask. I answer,—the word of God to you at that point. That word is that he "accepted" and "received" you. Hear him,—"Be ye separate and I will receive you." You separated yourself, "presented yourself a living sacrifice;" but did not believe, on the assurance of his word, that you were accepted. No, you waited for some sign, some sensible manifestation, to come up in your feelings, to assure you that all was received, thus making some preconceived emotion the ground of faith. God does not say, faith cometh by feeling, joyous, peaceful, or otherwise, else you would be right in expecting it to rise and inspire you with faith. Nay, "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Therefore, when you consecrate all, as well as you are enabled, you have God's word for the fact that he "receives you." This faith will inspire you with feelings of peace, gladness, and great quiet of soul. In God's order, faith gives rise to feelings, and not feelings to faith, as you have erroneously supposed. Hence, you may take God's word and rest upon that.. There is no error in this. It is the only way of success; as has been tried and proved by hundreds after having struggled and floundered in this same error.

To illustrate: suppose the Lord had said, in his abiding word, "If any man will place twelve stones upon the earth, and put a lamb thereon, and burn it to ashes, I will receive him, and be a Father unto him, and he shall be my son." Now I ask, if you should do this, and the lamb be consumed to ashes, would you not have God's word for your assurance? Yea, as convincingly as if heard audibly from heaven,—that he "received you."

The Lord has not said this; but he has said, as shown above, that if we "come out from among them, and be separate, and touch not the unclean thing, he will receive us." Now, I ask, if we thus do, have we not the testimony of the Spirit, written in the word, that we are accepted? Do not fall into the common error of separating the letter of the word from the spirit of the word. You must by faith regard the letter as the testimony and expression of the mind and spirit of God to you; just as you believe the letter of a friend to be the expression of his mind and spirit. It is through this written word, directly or indirectly, that the Spirit speaks, testifies, or witnesses to us. To regard the word as a dead letter, is to remain in darkness and unbelief. To faith, "these words are spirit and they are life." Let us therefore, believe, nothing doubting.

But, says one, "How am I to know the consecration is complete?" I answer, if you see nothing to the contrary, it is; for the Lord has said, "If in anything ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you." The question is not, what will come up in the future to sacrifice and to suffer. In this, "Take no thought for the morrow," applies as well as in anything else. But do you accept of the will of God as it is made to appear at the present moment? If this is so, this is all that the King requires. Only let this continue, moment by moment, and all will continue acceptable to him. How great the rest of soul gained by him who thus comes into the truth.

But you ask into what state or degree of godliness may I now apprehend the Lord has brought me? Are my inward foes all dead? Shall I feel the roots of sin no more from this time?

This is an important question—one, the understanding of which, may have to do with your future peace and success in the way of holiness. Many who have dedicated all, and believed, have been disappointed in finding, after a while, the old self-nature stir within them, and either took it as an evidence that they were deceived, or soothingly called it "only temptation"; and have continued to try to believe that all was entirely pure within.

We forget that there are two parts, or elements, in entire sanctification. The one is the placing of the creature, or sacrifice, upon the altar,—Consecration. The other is the consuming of it to ashes, or its primitive elements, by God's own fire. The gold must first be put into the crucible; and then melted, and purified, by separating all its inner dross.

We must first consent and covenant to give up "all things," and then suffer the loss of all. First be nailed to the cross and then "die daily," till "the world is crucified to us," and "we live not, but Christ in us."

I trust you have now complied with the first. If so, you are sanctified," but perhaps not "wholly"; you are "holy," but not "perfected." You are now as the gold in the crucible, and can begin to say, "though he slay me yet will I trust in him"; and hence ready to "abide the fire." "Abide his coming," as a refiner and purifier. If so, you are fully in the hands of the "potter," and he can now begin to mould you as he will, for you will now be able to "abide," and not "draw back," as you once did when trial came, erroneously considering it an evidence that God was displeased, and no longer accepted you.

We often make a joyous and gladsome state of mind the only evidence of our acceptance with the Father. This is a very mischievous error. To do this, is to make the faith of our acceptance depend upon our emotions or feelings, as we saw above; whereas "the word" is the only true basis of faith; on compliance with which all the promises become ours. We forget the Savior endured this, and yet was just as acceptable to the father as when his emotions were the opposite. And now, as we are called to "endure hardness," and it is given to us to "suffer with Christ," and also to bear some "afflictions for a moment," we must certainly not consider any one state of feeling the only acceptable one. For if, "when need be," we are in heaviness, then heaviness must be felt. If to endure hardness, then hardness must be felt. And if we are to have "afflictions," then we must sometime feel "afflicted." You therefore see that if you take one class of emotions to be the evidence of your acceptance, when you feel thus, your faith in God will abound. But, since our feelings necessarily change and vary, as we have seen above, our faith in this case will sometimes be lost, and we fall into consequent weakness and sadness, if not into gloom and total discouragement. Nay, such anchor-ground is too unstable. We need the immovable promise of God, which holds "both sure and steadfast," amid all the varying storms, winds, and rolling billows that come upon us.

The only true test point required of us is in the will. If this be true,—if it be in the heart to say, "Thy will be done," we are accepted, let our feelings be what they may; "for where there is a willing mind, it is accepted." Ah, this living by feeling, instead of by faith, has made sad havoc of many a promising disciple. It reverses the order of God, and keeps the soul off its only true and immovable foundation—the promise of the Father. It is being much as the spoiled child, who, because it is not permitted constantly to feed upon confections, pastries, and sweetmeats, but is called by its parent to partake of substantial fare, and sometime to take that which is bitter, and also to go forth and endure that which is "hard and afflicting," loses confidence in the love and wisdom of its father, and sadly refuses to do his will.

Oh! my brother, let your motto be,—"Not my will but thine be done." "Do unto me as seemeth unto thee good," and all will be well.

Remember, he sitteth as a refiner and purifier of silver," whose business it is, not to see there is no fire to try us, and no dross revealed, but to see that the fire gets not too hot, lest it injure and destroy; nor too cool, lest it do not accomplish its end, the purification of the heart from all its selfish nature.

Neither is he at a loss for fuel from which to make these purging fires. They come from any and every circumstance around us, that is needful to cross our wills; from many little things connected with ourselves, our families, our tenderest friends, and the common business of life, and even from our religious services. He will cause a fire to glow forth, giving us a sense of the cross, mortification and death which are necessary to the perfect submission of our wills, and entire acquiescence with God. And if these fiery trials which are to try you, reveal hidden selfishness and sin, as the lance reveals offensive matter not before seen, because lying hid deep within, be not disheartened. It is your physician at work wisely, and accomplishing the object of your desire, a perfect cure. Courage, brother! Keep your confidence! The ore must be fused before the dross can separate and pass off. We must die in order to live. And his soothing encouragement to you is, "And after he have suffered awhile, I will strengthen, establish and perfect you."—Earnest Christian.

For the World's Crisis.

"THE SOULS UNDER THE ALTAR."

"The souls under the altar" (Rev. 6: 9) do not in the least conflict with the views herein before presented, for those souls, like the soul of Christ that "was not left in hell," refer simply to the persons or bodies of those "believers in Christ" who had been "faithful unto death" (2: 10); who "loved not their lives unto death" (12: 11); who "had been beheaded for the witness of Jesus" (20: 4).

In Lev. 17: 11, we are informed that "the life of the flesh is in the blood"; and it "is given to us upon the altar, to make an atonement for our souls, for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul"; and verse 14 says "it is the LIFE of all flesh, the blood of it (the flesh) is for the life thereof." That is, the blood is given to make an atonement for the souls of all men, or for the life or lives of all flesh. This is evident when we recall the fact that Jesus shed his blood for the remission of sin, and in doing so died for all, because all were dead; and this he did to save men; and in Matt. 25: 22, these men are termed flesh,"—"Except those days be shortened, there should no flesh be saved"; i. e., no man.

But man cannot be saved without his soul is saved, and that was the very thing Christ came to do; for in Luke 9: 56, Christ himself says he is not come to destroy men's LIVES, but to save them; i. e., save their souls, and thereby save men, save flesh, by raising it again to life from the dead, raising it incorruptible and immortal; and this he does by giving his own flesh, his own blood, his own life, his own soul, his own body; by giving HIMSELF for us; because the LAW demanded our life, our soul, and our blood,—demanded us in forfeiture for its transgression.

The law also demanded "an eye for an eye," "a tooth for a tooth"; "life for life"; "soul for soul"; "blood for blood"; "body for body:" and the law also of necessity brought death; for the absence of life is death; and death is represented as a monster, swallowing us up; which is to be, at last, itself swallowed up in victory. But death is insatiable; it leaves of us nothing, not a crumb; body, blood, soul, life—all, all gone; clean, as if licked up by fire. See, understand what Christ had to do when he satisfied the craving demands of that law; when he gave his blood upon the altar to make an atonement for our souls; when he gave his body on the cross; when he gave his flesh for the life of the world; when he gave his life for the flock; when his soul was made an offering for sin; when "he poured out his soul unto death"; when "he gave himself a ransom for all; when he died, his flesh for ours; his blood for ours; his life for ours; his soul for ours; his body for ours; HIMSELF for us. It was Christ that died; it is Christ that is RISEN again.

O divine compassion! O love incomprehensible! O unsearchable judgments! O depth of riches! But death, oh, ravenous monster; oh, cruel death; oh, feared and dreaded foe; oh, hated tyrant; oh, just and holy law; oh, righteous retribution; oh, king of terrors; oh, terror of kings; oh, how shalt thou in turn be swallowed too, till death shall be no more!

Under that figure of speech called synecdoche, in which a part is put for the whole, the soul, the blood, the life, etc., is frequently used in the Scriptures for the entire person; and those terms are also used interchangeably, or as synonyms, of which we give a sample, found in Mark 8: 35-37,—"For whosoever will save his LIFE shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life, for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it. For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own SOUL? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" The "souls under the altar" are thus spoken of, a part being put for the whole, or souls used synonymously with persons; these were seen under the altar of sacrifice, on the earth, upon which they had been slain for persisting in testifying for Jesus, contrary to the edicts of the persecuting power that caused them to be put to death; and they are represented as "crying with a loud voice," like the blood of Abel, for vengeance, i. e., justice, recompense, retribution, on their persecutors.

By attentively examining Rev. 20: 4, 5, it will be plainly seen that these souls are dead; for it says, "I saw the souls (persons) of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, . . . and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the DEAD lived not again until the thousand years were finished." This living again of the beheaded souls (verse 4) is the "first resurrection." Those of c. 6: 9, who were killed under Nero and Domitian, the pagan emperors, "having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise," God having provided something better, that they without their brethren that should be killed by the papal hierarchy, as they were by the pagan, should be fulfilled; and then they with them should be made perfect. Heb. 11: 39; Rev. 6: 11. So they received "white robes" of righteousness in Christ, and they are resting "for a little season," sleeping in Jesus. Blessed sleep!

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRONOLOGY.—No. 4.

Says Joseph Scaliger, (the inventor of that admirable adjuster of eras, the Julian period rule,) "Josephus was the most diligent, and the greatest lover of truth of all writers; it is more safe to believe him, not only as to the affairs of the Jews, but also as to those that are foreign to them, than all the Greek and Latin writers, and this because his fidelity and compass of learning are everywhere conspicuous."

By the olympiads, which Josephus has named for Pompey's capture of Jerusalem, and Herod's capture of it "twenty-seven years afterward," we learn that Pompey took the city in the first year of the 179th olympiad. As Herod received the gift of the kingdom in the 184th olympiad, it must have been in the last year of it. Then, as we before remarked, he had to fight three years for it. This would bring us to the third year of the 185th olympiad, which exactly completes the twenty-seven years from Pompey's time. Herod lived and reigned thirty-four years from his victory over Antigonus. In the seventh year of Herod's thirty-four, the battle of Actium occurred. Seven years, from the third of the 185th olympiad, would bring us to the second year of the 187th olympiad, or 31 years before the beginning of A. D. 1, of our present vulgar era.

The date of Actium's battle, placed beyond dispute in 31 B. C., shows us that Herod died in B. C. 4, and that Jesus must have been born about a year previous, or in B. C. 5. Augustus Cæsar lived nearly 44 years, according to Roman historians, from his victory at Actium; which would give us A. D. 13 for the date of his death.

After Dr. Jarvis had spent much time and labor in reading histories in their original language; consulting astronomical tables, and ancient inscriptions; harmonizing epochs by the Julian period; selecting the true and rejecting the false of Latin and Greek writers; the following is the result as far as the date of the battle of Actium is concerned:

"Thus have we, by this harmonized view of the Greek and Latin historians of Rome, ascertained the exact date of the battle of Actium; from which time Augustus, when he had nearly completed his thirty-third year, was, by the unerring providence of God, sole emperor and arbiter of the destinies of the world. The date of this great event was Sept. 2d, A. J. P. 4682, A. U. C. 722, the first year of the 187th olympiad, and the 14th of the reformed calendar of Julius Cæsar." Dr. Jarvis' Church History, p. 197.

By strictly adhering to Josephus' testimony, and the dates he gives, we are compelled to fix upon one year later for "this great event." Josephus says that Archelaus, who succeeded Herod his father (Matt. 2: 22), was banished from Judea in his tenth year, and this was "in the thirty-seventh of Cæsar's victory over Antony at Actium," (Ant. b. 18, c. 2). As Herod died B. C. 4, Archelaus was banished in A. D. 6; and as "Cæsar's victory" was gained B. C. 31, the thirty-seventh year was in A. D. 6. "Robbins' Outlines of History" gives A. D. 6 for the banishment of Archelaus, (Vol. 2. p. 41).

As further proof of the harmony of Josephus' dates, we give an extract concerning one of Herod's sons. It will also show us the year in which Tiberius Cæsar died. Josephus does not say anything about Tiberius' associate reign, two years before Augustus died, (but that fact is beyond dispute, as we may show hereafter,) he tells us he reigned twenty-two years and a half from Augustus' death. Here is the extract:

"About this time it was that Philip, Herod's brother, departed this life, in the twentieth year of the reign of Tiberius, after he had been tetrarch of Trachonitis . . . thirty-seven years." (Ant. b. 18, c. 4, s. 6. Luke 3: 1.) Philip and his brother Herod Antipas were made tetrarchs when their father died, in B. C. 4, and thirty-seven years from that would end in A. D. 33. As the sole reign of Tiberius began in A. D. 13, his twentieth year was in A. D. 33; and as his reign was twenty-two years and a half long, he died in A. D. 36.

Josephus relates the events that took place under Augustus and Tiberius, in the order of their occurrence. After naming the appointment of Caiaphas as high priest, and Pilate's appointment to the government of Judea, Josephus records a few instances of Pilate's tyranny, and then makes that remarkable statement concerning our Lord.

"Now there was about this time Jesus, a wise man, if it be lawful to call him a man; for he was a doer of wonderful works, a teacher of such men as receive the truth with pleasure. He drew over to him both many of the Jews and many of the Gentiles. He was (the) Christ. And when Pilate, at the suggestion of the principal men among us, had condemned him to the cross, those that loved him at the first did not forsake him; for he appeared to them alive again the third day; as the divine prophets had foretold these and ten thousand other wonderful things concerning him. And the tribe of christians, so named from him, are not extinct at this day. (Ant. b. 18, c. 3, s. 3.)

Now let it be observed, that this account of our Savior's life and death is given long before the death of Philip is noticed, which is an evidence that the crucifixion took place some years before the death of Tiberius Cæsar. JOHN LYLE.

☞ Everywhere endeavor to be useful, and everywhere you are at home.

For the World's Crisis.

SNAKES IN THE GRASS.

"How shall I speak thee, or thy power address?
Thou God of blind idolatry, the press!
Like Eden's dread, probationary tree,
Knowledge of good and evil is from thee."

Friends of a pure literature, would you know, in some measure, the reading taste of the public generally? Look into our printing and publishing houses and clerk's offices; examine the mail-bags that are carried out daily from our city post-offices, heaps on heaps; go into our book-stores, theological and miscellaneous. In one book-store in N. Y. city, on viewing the catalogue, we found the whole assortment made up of light, popular readings, novels, and romances!

We have seen it stated that in 1851, the purely infidel press of London issued publications to the amount of more than 12,000,000; the issues of avowed atheism during the same period exceeded 640,000; in addition to these were issued 17,500,000 of a negative or corrupting character; and these were exclusive of what are properly denominated newspapers, many of which are published on the Lord's day, and are decidedly immoral in their tendency.

Cast your eyes on centre tables and into family and public libraries and reading rooms; examine the book and paper stands by the way-side and in the public market places; the daily, weekly, and monthly issues from the press. What do you see? things pure, virtuous, edifying, and soul-saving,—ministering grace to the reader? What the redeeming qualities of the whole batch of these mixed publications, sugar-coated poisons?—anything good or praiseworthy? Excellent! beautiful! The old serpent, the devil, the father of lies and of liars, intermingles the bitter with the sweet, the sweet with the bitter, the precious with the vile. This is his policy; to entrap the unguarded and unstable, the enemy of all good transforms himself into an angel of light.

Never did Satan devise a more artful stratagem to decoy the unwary, as when he set on foot these fascinating popular weeklies and monthlies that are flooding the land, darkening the heavens like the flies, frogs, lice and locusts of Egypt, but far more dangerous. They "go up and come into thine house, and into thy bed-chamber, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thine ovens, and into thy kneading-troughs." Thus—

"Crimes in every shape increase,
Judgments stalk throughout the land;
Signs are borne on every breeze,
That destruction is at hand."

"While men slept, the enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way."—Matt. 13: 25.

We inquire frequently of these paper and book dealers, why they do not separate the good from the evil, the precious from the vile; keep for sale only those publications that tend to good, that elevate, purify the morals, sanctify the heart, cast out Satan altogether and forever, and have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them? They inform us invariably that these popular works of fiction that are cursing the world are the only ones for which they can find sale. The solid, the pure, the holy, the undefiled, are shoved aside, scarcely looked at. Seldom on these stands for books, papers, and magazines, you find one that you can safely place in the hands of children and youth.

"We must live," say they, "kill or no kill; to sell is our business; every tub stands on its own bottom." Furthermore, these same dealers in these reptiles tell us that professing christians, members of orthodox churches, church officers, indeed, not a few, select from their stands a "Ledger," a "Harper," a "Goday," a "Leslie," a "Peterson,"—some light, frothy publication, for themselves and families, and pass by food for the soul, the life-giving, soul-kindling. Is it a marvel, then, that many church members are dead, twice dead, plucked up by the roots, having the form of godliness, but denying the power thereof? A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump. Tell us what a man's mental food is, and we will tell you where his heart is, for "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

"When the fool, the wise man plays,
Fools and wise both let him be;
But when the wise man plays the fool,
Both with pleasure stop to see."

Books and papers have souls. They think, speak, and act, for evil or for good. A bad book or a bad paper is just as dangerous as a bad man or a bad woman, a bad boy or a bad girl. Reading a bad book is keeping bad company, and reading a good book is keeping good company. Friends, which will you keep? parents, which will you choose for your children? The soul of the author, when spread over the pages of a book, acts upon its readers as truly as when acting directly. As the tree is, so is the fruit;—"Do men gather grapes of thorns, and figs of thistles?" Can a man take fire into his bosom and his clothes not be burned? Parents, would you admit a stranger to your house, your parlor, your bed-rooms; allow him to mingle freely with your sons and daughters, without knowing his character, whether he was a good or a bad man, virtuous or licentious? Would not the admission into your family of a loose or vile publication be as unwise, unsafe, and improper?

"The number of infidel and immoral publications weekly and monthly issued in our country is enormous. Their name is legion. They come creeping stealthily into communities, every where diffusing their accursed influence, with an effect as deadly to the soul as is any mortal poison to the body after it has once, though never so small a wound, gained a lodgment in the system."

What so clearly and forcibly confirms the fact, that the present age and society are awfully, fearfully corrupt? And where is hope of change for the better, so long as ministers hold their peace, and religious editors continue to advertise and puff these "serpents in the grass," these satanic transformations? Will this evil be done away, till the conductors of the religious press cease to give them favorable notice?—until christian professors and ministers banish them from their side-boards and centre-tables?

Here lies the mischief, the stumbling-blocks, the perpetuity of the curse. What rational hope of its abandonment till the piety of God's people is elevated, rises to the apostolical, till God's Book becomes the text-book, the standard, the hope, the joy, the life?

"The serpent's brood increase,
The powers of hell grow bold;
The conflict thickens, faith is low,
And love is waxing cold."

And yet, in the midst of death, there are signs of life.—Editors are beginning to see the ravages of this light bread. A correspondent of one of the best weeklies in our city writes thus:—

"I hope, dear brother, that you will succeed in checking the tide of falsehood which now floods the world in the shape of "fine stories," "polite literature," "religious fiction," and all the dreamy scribbling, that so burden the books and papers of our day. Does not religion suffer by this legion of fashionable tales, a loss which can not be repaired? If the genius of novelists is to be thus encouraged, where shall be found the funds to patronize sound and useful literature? Or when the time to read the Holy Scriptures, and the needful books and periodicals designed to accomplish permanent good?"

Another religious editor speaks in this wise: "We cannot, in good conscience, insert in our paper, notices of novels, or of papers which contain them. The practice of editors and publishers puffing one another,—"tickle me, and I'll tickle you"—has become so common, that he who refuses to fall in with that practice, especially at the polite request of another, is esteemed censurably churlish, or, perhaps, laughably bigoted. Nevertheless, we are constrained to utter protest against the publication and circulation of all that class of works calculated to corrupt the taste and deprave the morals of the reader. The press already teems with fictitious writings—our literature is becoming more and more light and spurious—community is floated with frothy trashy novels; and so much has the taste of the American reading people become corrupted or vitiated by the circulation of papers, pamphlets and books of this kind, that those who engage in publishing works of a more substantial and useful character, can scarcely gain even a reasonable remuneration, and most generally, are serious losers. Those publishers only, who pander to the corrupt taste, which has been formed by the circulation of novels, make a 'good living.'

Another blessed man in the editorial chair says:—"We are obliged to displease many book-makers and book-publishers, because we can not, conscientiously, go into a system of indiscriminate puffing. 'Novels' and tales of fiction, as a general rule, we pay no attention to, as we do not read them, nor wish others to. This is our 'platform' on the subject of 'puffing.'"

We give one other testimonial. A godly editor, in a recent editorial, warns his readers against these "snakes in the grass," saying:

"Whenever we find one interested in novel reading, we are sure they have lost their love for truth. Are your parlor tables loaded with the poisonous trash? Are the minds of your children pampered with such destructive food? Are you a professed christian and setting them the example? No wonder you have lost your love for the prayer-meeting and the preaching of the simple truth of the scriptures, and have been seeking entertainment in mere pulpit eloquence adorned with flowery fables. You too, are making progress; but in the way to death, and may soon expect to reap ruin as the wages of such a course. As a friend, we exhort you to quit such reading at once, and begin to store your mind with the rich treasures in the sacred Scriptures and other good books of truth.

Novel-reading is to the mind, what rum-drinking is to the body: intoxicating and ruinous. We should as soon expect to find an amiable whiskey-drinker, as a novel-reader. As soon expect the former as the latter growing in grace. Dear reader, if you have spent your fleeting hours in reading fiction, resolve now, in the strength of the Lord, to quit the bad habit forever. If there were not positive evils resulting from such reading, our lives are too short to be wasted in treasuring up falsehood. Hours thus spent will afford no joys on a dying bed or at the judgment scene. Wasted! wasted! must be the answer for time thus employed. Come, clean your house of novels, as you would of infidel books, cards, and rum. Let no more be poisoned by their baneful influence."

D. F. NEWTON, Author of Home Thrusts.

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE TALEBEARERS.

There have been some excellent articles in the Crisis of late on "Evil Speaking." I hope they will be heeded, especially at the campmeetings; for too much of it is practiced there, so that many good brethren dread their approach.

Traveling quite extensively the past year, I have heard of many a tale of scandal and slander, told, too often, by preachers, of each other, where they happened to differ in doctrine; and frequently when asked where these tales were first heard, "Why, at Wilbraham."

These things ought not so to be. The campmeetings are for a far different object. We profess to believe the Lord's coming is near. Let us prove it by our godly conversation, if we cannot see alike on time and other questions of doctrine. We cannot be Christians while we hate and tattle about each other.

Do you "think" your brother or sister a hypocrite? Don't fret about it, nor blab your "evil surmisings" all over creation. Remember that we see not as God seeth, and be careful of your brother's reputation, lest by a wrong thought or word, you destroy the influence for good of one of your heavenly Father's children. Seek that charity that neither thinketh nor speaketh evil of a brother, and leave the matter with God. He will soon unmask the hypocrites and vindicate his chosen. Talebearers and evil speakers are the little foxes which do great harm in the vineyard. Let all beware of the FOXES.

J. T. DIXON.

☞ Yielding tempers pacify resentments.

For the World's Crisis.

THAT WALK BY THE WAY.

We last took leave of the two disconsolate disciples on their way to a neighboring village. They had left Jerusalem early that morning; they had been accosted in a kind manner by Jesus, in the guise of a stranger. They had related to him some of the circumstances of the crucifixion of their supposed Messiah, as the cause of their disappointment and sadness, and continued their account in these words:

"And how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him to be condemned to death, and have crucified him. But we trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel. Yea, and certain women, also, of our company made us astonished, which were early at the sepulchre. And when they found not his body they came, saying, that they had seen a vision of angels, which said he was alive."

Then said he unto them, "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken. Ought not Christ to have suffered these things and to enter into his glory?"

We can imagine the thoughts, if not the words, with which these men would reply, "Rather a hard saying, stranger; we are not unbelievers, we have listened earnestly to the words of the prophets read in the synagogue every Sabbath day from our youth up, till called to follow Jesus, and did not understand them to say anything about the 'sufferings of Christ; it was all 'glory to follow,' as you call it. And our parents always dwelt upon the glowing pictures of the prophets, about our Messiah coming to 'reign in Jerusalem and in Mount Zion, and before his ancients gloriously.' Yes, it was all glory. And when we followed Jesus, in the expectation that he was the Messiah, we wondered he did not fulfill some of these expectations. We were continually tantalized by our former friends and associates, for believing in such a man, so opposed to all the plain teaching of the prophets, as they considered it. Jesus did himself sometimes stumble us by intimating that he might be set at naught by the chief priests, and even slain. Do you say the prophets were mistaken?"

"And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself." Wonderful discourse, this! How shall we get at an adequate conception of it? But by this time they drew nigh unto the village whither they went; perhaps they will give us some idea of the exposition at another time, and then we will see how the shock upon their lifetime prejudices affected them; and what was the effect upon them of a stranger calling them "fools"!

The stranger made as though he would have gone further, but they constrained him, saying, "Abide with us, for it is towards evening, and the day is far spent"; and he went in to tarry with them.

Before listening further to their conversation, I wish to ply the imagination a little, as to the nature of that extraordinary interview, and as to its influence upon the minds of these two men. I do not know the thoughts and prejudices of the reader of these lines,—whether he ever had any very severe struggles with those prejudices and honestly preconceived opinions so common to most men. The writer has a vivid recollection of his own struggles,—how he had to give up one cherished opinion after another, and one prejudice after another. They were all imbibed under the most orthodox preaching,—backed up by the instruction and example of pious parents. How could I be mistaken?

I was just as much mistaken as were these two honest, disconsolate disciples, and on the same great subject, too, only reversed. When I read the prophets I saw the "glory of Christ and the sufferings to follow." I could understand all those passages in the Old Testament which these men did not understand, but could not understand those which were so clear in the minds of these men and their associates. I saw how they understood the nature of the future kingdom of their Messiah, but was taught to believe and did believe they were mistaken. I never dreamed that Christ encouraged them to retain and cherish the views entertained on the future glory of their kingdom—but that they retained them in spite of Christ's teachings.

When I say the views of the disciples of Christ were reversed in my mind, the glory of Christ and the sufferings to follow, I did not understand there would be any future glory, but that it all would be elsewhere than on this earth. Herein the disciples were ahead of us all, notwithstanding all their foolish prejudices on other points. I will not stop to relate how, or by what process, I was corrected, any further than to state that I sympathized with the patience of these disciples when contradicted. I might be, and was, called "infidel" and "fool," but that failed to disturb me. It was emphatically true, that I was "slow to believe ALL that the prophets had said concerning Christ."

In closing these thoughts for the present, let me kindly say to readers in general, may it not be true of us, that we have something more to learn yet about the "glory which is to follow?" In going over Moses, the Psalms, and the Prophets, our Lord could not expound more than one hundred passages relating to the "sufferings of Christ," whereas, in reference to the glory which is to follow, there are one thousand, at least, yet to be fulfilled.

D. C.

☞ To shake off trouble we must set about doing good to somebody. Put on your hat and go out and visit the poor; inqure into their wants and administer unto them; seek out the desolate and oppressed, and tell them of the consolation of religion. I have often tried this, and found it the best medicine for a heavy heart.—Howard.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 516. BOSTON, TUESDAY, AUGUST 22, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 23.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, I. C. WELLCOME,
H. F. CARPENTER.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
C. F. HUDSON, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

THE BELOVED.

The bride is sitting lonely,
In the absence of her lord;
This cheers her heart, this only,
His bosom-treasured word:
"I come quickly."

She trims her lamp to meet him,
And clasps her garments white,
And thus prepares to greet him,
Soon as he comes in sight,
To fetch her home.

The world that lies beneath her,
It hath no charms for her;
Beyond the mounts of Bether,
The fragrant hills of Myrrh,
Her heart is gone.

She sighs for his appearing,
Through the long shadowy night;
His nuptial chaplet wearing,
Bringing her joy and light
To earth again.

She lifts her eyes to heaven,—
Those dove-like, virgin eyes,
And longs to see it riven,
And her day-star arise,
Healing all pain.

Yet through her night of watching,
Her vigil dark and long,
A beam from glory catching,
She pours her hopeful song,
Her joyous strain.

Beloved, my heart is waking,
Help me to watch and pray,
Till morning lustre breaking,
I rise and come away,
By thee embraced.

See, on the mountains leaping,
How the young hart is fleet;
Oh! thus to end my weeping,
Swift be thy beauteous feet,—
Make haste! make haste!

And does her lord forget her,
While dwelling thus apart?
No, he hath fondly set her
A seal upon his heart,
In suffering trained.

Wait on, hope on, my fairest,
The marriage feast is nigh;
Soon every grief thou bearest,
And every cloud shall fly
At my glad voice.

Then shall mine arm embrace thee,
My love, my reconciled;
Then on my throne I'll place thee,
My dear, my undefiled,—
Rejoice! rejoice!

TO SEEKERS OF HOLINESS.

You would choose for your happy and everlasting motto, "Holiness," or "wholeness," to the Lord.

Then, first of all, you will dedicate all to him. Not but what all you have is his, and has been from the beginning, but you have not so regarded it. You have taken your portion and gone your way heretofore, wasting your Father's gifts in selfish living. Let all this cease at once; and let it be your language, the language of your heart, "What wilt thou have me to do?" In a word, consecrate all to your Heavenly Father. How will you do this? We answer,—consent and decide, that all, whether act, word, thought, desire or possessiou shall not be as self, or men may will, but as God wills. This, you say, I have tried to do, again and again. Doubtless you have, and done it acceptably, too. But here you halted; you did not believe. Believe what? you ask. I answer,—the word of God to you at that point. That word is that he "accepted" and "received" you. Hear him,—"Be ye separate and I will receive you." You separated yourself, "presented yourself a living sacrifice;" but did not believe, on the assurance of his word, that you were accepted. No, you waited for some sign, some sensible manifestation, to come up in your feelings, to assure you that all was received, thus making some preconceived emotion the ground of faith. God does not say, faith cometh by feeling, joyous, peaceful, or otherwise, else you would be right in expecting it to rise and inspire you with faith. Nay, "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Therefore, when you consecrate all, as well as you are enabled, you have God's word for the fact that he "receives you." This faith will inspire you with feelings of peace, gladness, and great quiet of soul. In God's order, faith gives rise to feelings, and not feelings to faith, as you have erroneously supposed. Hence, you may take God's word and rest upon that. There is no error in this. It is the only way of success; as has been tried and proved by hundreds after having struggled and floundered in this same error.

To illustrate: suppose the Lord had said, in his abiding word, "If any man will place twelve stones upon the earth, and put a lamb thereon, and burn it to ashes, I will receive him, and be a Father unto him, and he shall be my son." Now I ask, if you should do this, and the lamb be consumed to ashes, would you not have God's word for your assurance? Yea, as convincingly as if heard audibly from heaven,—that he "received you."

The Lord has not said this; but he has said, as shown above, that if we "come out from among them, and be separate, and touch not the unclean thing, he will receive us." Now, I ask, if we thus do, have we not the testimony of the Spirit, written in the word, that we are accepted? Do not fall into the common error of separating the letter of the word from the spirit of the word. You must by faith regard the letter as the testimony and expression of the mind and spirit of God to you; just as you believe the letter of a friend to be the expression of his mind and spirit. It is through this written word, directly or indirectly, that the Spirit speaks, testifies, or witnesses to us. To regard the word as a dead letter, is to remain in darkness and unbelief. To faith, "these words are spirit and they are life." Let us therefore, believe, nothing doubting.

But, says one, "How am I to know the consecration is complete?" I answer, if you see nothing to the contrary, it is; for the Lord has said, "If in anything ye be otherwise minded, God shall reveal even this unto you." The question is not, what will come up in the future to sacrifice and to suffer. In this, "Take no thought for the morrow," applies as well as in anything else. But do you accept of the will of God as it is made to appear at the present moment? If this is so, this is all that the King requires. Only let this continue, moment by moment, and all will continue acceptable to him. How great the rest of soul gained by him who thus comes into the truth.

But you ask into what state or degree of godliness may I now apprehend the Lord has brought me? Are my inward foes all dead? Shall I feel the roots of sin no more from this time?

This is an important question—one, the understanding of which, may have to do with your future peace and success in the way of holiness. Many who have dedicated all, and believed, have been disappointed in finding, after a while, the old self-nature stir within them, and either took it as an evidence that they were deceived, or soothingly called it "only temptation"; and have continued to try to believe that all was entirely pure within.

We forget that there are two parts, or elements, in entire sanctification. The one is the placing of the creature, or sacrifice, upon the altar,—Consecration. The other is the consuming of it to ashes, or its primitive elements, by God's own fire. The gold must first be put into the crucible; and then melted, and purified, by separating all its inner dross.

We must first consent and covenant to give up "all things," and then suffer the loss of all. First be nailed to the cross and then "die daily," till "the world is crucified to us," and "we live not, but Christ in us."

I trust you have now complied with the first. If so, you are sanctified," but perhaps not "wholly"; you are "holy," but not "perfected." You are now as the gold in the crucible, and can begin to say, "though he slay me yet will I trust in him"; and hence ready to "abide the fire." "Abide his coming," as a refiner and purifier. If so, you are fully in the hands of the "potter," and he can now begin to mould you as he will, for you will now be able to "abide," and not "draw back," as you once did when trial came, erroneously considering it an evidence that God was displeased, and no longer accepted you.

We often make a joyous and gladsome state of mind the only evidence of our acceptance with the Father. This is a very mischievous error. To do this, is to make the faith of our acceptance depend upon our emotions or feelings, as we saw above; whereas "the word" is the only true basis of faith; on compliance with which all the promises become ours. We forget the Savior endured this, and yet was just as acceptable to the father as when his emotions were the opposite. And now, as we are called to "endure hardness," and it is given to us to "suffer with Christ," and also to bear some "afflictions for a moment," we must certainly not consider any one state of feeling the only acceptable one. For if, "when need be," we are in heaviness, then heaviness must be felt. If to endure hardness, then hardness must be felt. And if we are to have "afflictions," then we must sometime feel "afflicted." You therefore see that if you take one class of emotions to be the evidence of your acceptance, when you feel thus, your faith in God will abound. But, since our feelings necessarily change and vary, as we have seen above, our faith in this case will sometimes be lost, and we fall into consequent weakness and sadness, if not into gloom and total discouragement. Nay, such anchor-ground is too unstable. We need the immovable promise of God, which holds "both sure and steadfast," amid all the varying storms, winds, and rolling billows that come upon us.

The only true test point required of us is in the will. If this be true,—if it be in the heart to say, "Thy will be done," we are accepted, let our feelings be what they may; "for where there is a willing mind, it is accepted." Ah, this living by feeling, instead of by faith, has made sad havoc of many a promising disciple. It reverses the order of God, and keeps the soul off its only true and immovable foundation—the promise of the Father. It is being much as the spoiled child, who, because it is not permitted constantly to feed upon confections, pastries, and sweetmeats, but is called by its parent to partake of substantial fare, and sometime to take that which is bitter, and also to go forth and endure that which is "hard and afflicting," loses confidence in the love and wisdom of its father, and sadly refuses to do his will.

Oh! my brother, let your motto be,—"Not my will but thine be done." "Do unto me as seemeth unto thee good," and all will be well.

Remember, he sitteth as a refiner and purifier of silver," whose business it is, not to see there is no fire to try us, and no dross revealed, but to see that the fire gets not too hot, lest it injure and destroy; nor too cool, lest it do not accomplish its end, the purification of the heart from all its selfish nature.

Neither is he at a loss for fuel from which to make these purging fires. They come from any and every circumstance around us, that is needful to cross our wills; from many little things connected with ourselves, our families, our tenderest friends, and the common business of life, and even from our religious services. He will cause a fire to glow forth, giving us a sense of the cross, mortification and death which are necessary to the perfect submission of our wills, and entire acquiescence with God. And if these fiery trials which are to try you, reveal hidden selfishness and sin, as the lance reveals offensive matter not before seen, because lying hid deep within, be not disheartened. It is your physician at work wisely, and accomplishing the object of your desire, a perfect cure. Courage, brother! Keep your confidence! The ore must be fused before the dross can separate and pass off. We must die in order to live. And his soothing encouragement to you is, "And after he have suffered awhile, I will strengthen, establish and perfect you."—Earnest Christian.

For the World's Crisis.

"THE SOULS UNDER THE ALTAR."

"The souls under the altar" (Rev. 6: 9) do not in the least conflict with the views herein before presented, for those souls, like the soul of Christ that "was not left in hell," refer simply to the persons or bodies of those "believers in Christ" who had been "faithful unto death" (2: 10); who "loved not their lives unto death" (12: 11); who "had been beheaded for the witness of Jesus" (20: 4).

In Lev. 17: 11, we are informed that "the life of the flesh is in the blood"; and it "is given to us upon the altar, to make an atonement for our souls, for it is the blood that maketh an atonement for the soul"; and verse 14 says "it is the LIFE of all flesh, the blood of it (the flesh) is for the life thereof." That is, the blood is given to make an atonement for the souls of all men, or for the life or lives of all flesh. This is evident when we recall the fact that Jesus shed his blood for the remission of sin, and in doing so died for all, because all were dead; and this he did to save men; and in Matt. 25: 22, these men are termed flesh,"—"Except those days be shortened, there should no flesh be saved"; i. e., no man.

But man cannot be saved without his soul is saved, and that was the very thing Christ came to do; for in Luke 9: 56, Christ himself says he is not come to destroy men's LIVES, but to save them; i. e., save their souls, and thereby save men, save flesh, by raising it again to life from the dead, raising it incorruptible and immortal; and this he does by giving his own flesh, his own blood, his own life, his own soul, his own body; by giving HIMSELF for us; because the LAW demanded our life, our soul, and our blood,—demanded us in forfeiture for its transgression.

The law also demanded "an eye for an eye," "a tooth for a tooth"; "life for life"; "soul for soul"; "blood for blood"; "body for body:" and the law also of necessity brought death; for the absence of life is death; and death is represented as a monster, swallowing us up; which is to be, at last, itself swallowed up in victory. But death is insatiable; it leaves of us nothing, not a crumb; body, blood, soul, life—all, all gone; clean, as if licked up by fire. See, understand what Christ had to do when he satisfied the craving demands of that law; when he gave his blood upon the altar to make an atonement for our souls; when he gave his body on the cross; when he gave his flesh for the life of the world; when he gave his life for the flock; when his soul was made an offering for sin; when "he poured out his soul unto death"; when "he gave himself a ransom for all; when he died, his flesh for ours; his blood for ours; his life for ours; his soul for ours; his body for ours; HIMSELF for US. It was Christ that died, it is Christ that is RISEN again.

O divine compassion! O love incomprehensible! O unsearchable judgments! O depth of riches! But death, oh, ravenous monster; oh, cruel death; oh, feared and dreaded foe; oh, hated tyrant; oh, just and holy law; oh, righteous retribution; oh, king of terrors; oh, terror of kings; oh, how shalt thou in turn be swallowed too, till death shall be no more!

Under that figure of speech called synecdoche, in which a part is put for the whole, the soul, the blood, the life, etc., is frequently used in the Scriptures for the entire person; and those terms are also used interchangeably, or as synonyms, of which we give a sample, found in Mark 8: 35-37,—"For whosoever will save his LIFE shall lose it; but whosoever shall lose his life, for my sake and the gospel's, the same shall save it. For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own SOUL? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" The "souls under the altar" are thus spoken of, a part being put for the whole, or souls used synonymously with persons; these were seen under the altar of sacrifice, on the earth, upon which they had been slain for persisting in testifying for Jesus, contrary to the edicts of the persecuting power that caused them to be put to death; and they are represented as "crying with a loud voice," like the blood of Abel, for vengeance, i. e., justice, recompense, retribution, on their persecutors.

By attentively examining Rev. 20: 4, 5, it will be plainly seen that these souls are dead; for it says, "I saw the souls (persons) of them that were beheaded for the witness of Jesus, . . . and they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years. But the rest of the DEAD lived not again until the thousand years were finished." This living again of the beheaded souls (verse 4) is the "first resurrection." Those of c. 6: 9, who were killed under Nero and Domitian, the pagan emperors, "having obtained a good report through faith, received not the promise," God having provided something better, that they without their brethren that should be killed by the papal hierarchy, as they were by the pagan, should be fulfilled; and then they with them should be made perfect. Heb. 11: 39; Rev. 6: 11. So they received "white robes" of righteousness in Christ, and they are resting "for a little season," sleeping in Jesus. Blessed sleep!

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRONOLOGY.—No. 4.

Says Joseph Scaliger, (the inventor of that admirable adjuster of eras, the Julian period rule,) "Josephus was the most diligent, and the greatest lover of truth of all writers; it is more safe to believe him, not only as to the affairs of the Jews, but also as to those that are foreign to them, than all the Greek and Latin writers, and this because his fidelity and compass of learning are everywhere conspicuous."

By the olympiads, which Josephus has named for Pompey's capture of Jerusalem, and Herod's capture of it "twenty-seven years afterward," we learn that Pompey took the city in the first year of the 179th olympiad. As Herod received the gift of the kingdom in the 184th olympiad, it must have been in the last year of it. Then, as we before remarked, he had to fight three years for it. This would bring us to the third year of the 185th olympiad, which exactly completes the twenty-seven years from Pompey's time. Herod lived and reigned thirty-four years from his victory over Antigonus. In the seventh year of Herod's thirty-four, the battle of Actium occurred. Seven years, from the third of the 185th olympiad, would bring us to the second year of the 187th olympiad, or 31 years before the beginning of A. D. 1, of our present vulgar era.

The date of Actium's battle, placed beyond dispute in 31 B. C., shows us that Herod died in B. C. 4, and that Jesus must have been born about a year previous, or in B. C. 5. Augustus Cæsar lived nearly 44 years, according to Roman historians, from his victory at Actium; which would give us A. D. 13 for the date of his death.

After Dr. Jarvis had spent much time and labor in reading histories in their original language; consulting astronomical tables, and ancient inscriptions; harmonizing epochs by the Julian period; selecting the true and rejecting the false of Latin and Greek writers; the following is the result as far as the date of the battle of Actium is concerned:

"Thus have we, by this harmonized view of the Greek and Latin historians of Rome, ascertained the exact date of the battle of Actium; from which time Augustus, when he had nearly completed his thirty-third year, was, by the unerring providence of God, sole emperor and arbiter of the destinies of the world. The date of this great event was Sept. 2d, A. J. P. 4682, A. U. C. 722, the first year of the 187th olympiad, and the 14th of the reformed calendar of Julius Cæsar." Dr. Jarvis' Church History, p. 197.

By strictly adhering to Josephus' testimony, and the dates he gives, we are compelled to fix upon one year later for "this great event." Josephus says that Archelaus, who succeeded Herod his father (Matt. 2: 22), was banished from Judea in his tenth year, and this was "in the thirty-seventh of Cæsar's victory over Antony at Actium," (Ant. b. 18, c. 2). As Herod died B. C. 4, Archelaus was banished in A. D. 6; and as "Cæsar's victory" was gained B. C. 31, the thirty-seventh year was in A. D. 6. "Robbins' Outlines of History" gives A. D. 6 for the banishment of Archelaus, (Vol. 2. p. 41).

As further proof of the harmony of Josephus' dates, we give an extract concerning one of Herod's sons. It will also show us the year in which Tiberius Cæsar died. Josephus does not say anything about Tiberius' associate reign, two years before Augustus died, (but that fact is beyond dispute, as we may show hereafter,) he tells us he reigned twenty-two years and a half from Augustus' death. Here is the extract:

"About this time it was that Philip, Herod's brother, departed this life, in the twentieth year of the reign of Tiberius, after he had been tetrarch of Trachonitis . . . thirty-seven years." (Ant. b. 18, c. 4, s. 6. Luke 3: 1.) Philip and his brother Herod Antipas were made tetrarchs when their father died, in B. C. 4, and thirty-seven years from that would end in A. D. 33. As the sole reign of Tiberius began in A. D. 13, his twentieth year was in A. D. 33; and as his reign was twenty-two years and a half long, he died in A. D. 36.

Josephus relates the events that took place under Augustus and Tiberius, in the order of their occurrence. After naming the appointment of Caiaphas as high priest, and Pilate's appointment to the government of Judea, Josephus records a few instances of Pilate's tyranny, and then makes that remarkable statement concerning our Lord.

"Now there was about this time Jesus, a wise man, if it be lawful to call him a man; for he was a doer of wonderful works, a teacher of such men as receive the truth with pleasure. He drew over to him both many of the Jews and many of the Gentiles. He was (the) Christ. And when Pilate, at the suggestion of the principal men among us, had condemned him to the cross, those that loved him at the first did not forsake him; for he appeared to them alive again the third day; as the divine prophets had foretold these and ten thousand other wonderful things concerning him. And the tribe of christians, so named from him, are not extinct at this day. (Ant. b. 18, c. 3, s. 3.)

Now let it be observed, that this account of our Savior's life and death is given long before the death of Philip is noticed, which is an evidence that the crucifixion took place some years before the death of Tiberius Cæsar. JOHN LYLE.

☞ Everywhere endeavor to be useful, and everywhere you are at home.

For the World's Crisis.

SNAKES IN THE GRASS.

"How shall I speak thee, or thy power address?
Thou God of blind idolatry, the press!
Like Eden's dread, probationary tree,
Knowledge of good and evil is from thee."

Friends of a pure literature, would you know, in some measure, the reading taste of the public generally? Look into our printing and publishing houses and clerk's offices; examine the mail-bags that are carried out daily from our city post-offices, heaps on heaps; go into our book-stores, theological and miscellaneous. In one book-store in N. Y. city, on viewing the catalogue, we found the whole assortment made up of light, popular readings, novels, and romances!

We have seen it stated that in 1851, the purely infidel press of London issued publications to the amount of more than 12,000,000; the issues of avowed atheism during the same period exceeded 640,000; in addition to these were issued 17,500,000 of a negative or corrupting character; and these were exclusive of what are properly denominated newspapers, many of which are published on the Lord's day, and are decidedly immoral in their tendency.

Cast your eyes on centre tables and into family and public libraries and reading rooms; examine the book and paper stands by the way-side and in the public market places; the daily, weekly, and monthly issues from the press. What do you see? things pure, virtuous, edifying, and soul-saving,—ministering grace to the reader? What the redeeming qualities of the whole batch of these mixed publications, sugar-coated poisons?—anything good or praiseworthy? Excellent! beautiful! The old serpent, the devil, the father of lies and of liars, intermingles the bitter with the sweet, the sweet with the bitter, the precious with the vile. This is his policy; to entrap the unguarded and unstable, the enemy of all good transforms himself into an angel of light.

Never did Satan devise a more artful stratagem to decoy the unwary, as when he set on foot these fascinating popular weeklies and monthlies that are flooding the land, darkening the heavens like the flies, frogs, lice and locusts of Egypt, but far more dangerous. They "go up and come into thine house, and into thy bed-chamber, and upon thy bed, and into the house of thy servants, and upon thy people, and into thine ovens, and into thy kneading-troughs." Thus—

"Crimes in every shape increase,
Judgments stalk throughout the land;
Signs are borne on every breeze,
That destruction is at hand."

"While men slept, the enemy came and sowed tares among the wheat, and went his way."—Matt. 13: 25.

We inquire frequently of these paper and book dealers, why they do not separate the good from the evil, the precious from the vile; keep for sale only those publications that tend to good, that elevate, purify the morals, sanctify the heart, cast out Satan altogether and forever, and have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather reprove them? They inform us invariably that these popular works of fiction that are cursing the world are the only ones for which they can find sale. The solid, the pure, the holy, the undefiled, are shoved aside, scarcely looked at. Seldom on these stands for books, papers, and magazines, you find one that you can safely place in the hands of children and youth.

"We must live," say they, "kill or no kill; to sell is our business; every tub stands on its own bottom." Furthermore, these same dealers in these reptiles tell us that professing christians, members of orthodox churches, church officers, indeed, not a few, select from their stands a "Ledger," a "Harper," a "Goday," a "Leslie," a "Peterson,"—some light, frothy publication, for themselves and families, and pass by food for the soul, the life-giving, soul-kindling. Is it a marvel, then, that many church members are dead, twice dead, plucked up by the roots, having the form of godliness, but denying the power thereof? A little leaven leaveneth the whole lump. Tell us what a man's mental food is, and we will tell you where his heart is, for "out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh."

"When the fool, the wise man plays,
Fools and wise both let him be;
But when the wise man plays the fool,
Both with pleasure stop to see."

Books and papers have souls. They think, speak, and act, for evil or for good. A bad book or a bad paper is just as dangerous as a bad man or a bad woman, a bad boy or a bad girl. Reading a bad book is keeping bad company, and reading a good book is keeping good company. Friends, which will you keep? parents, which will you choose for your children? The soul of the author, when spread over the pages of a book, acts upon its readers as truly as when acting directly. As the tree is, so is the fruit;—"Do men gather grapes of thorns, and figs of thistles?" Can a man take fire into his bosom and his clothes not be burned? Parents, would you admit a stranger to your house, your parlor, your bed-rooms; allow him to mingle freely with your sons and daughters, without knowing his character, whether he was a good or a bad man, virtuous or licentious? Would not the admission into your family of a loose or vile publication be as unwise, unsafe, and improper?

"The number of infidel and immoral publications weekly and monthly issued in our country is enormous. Their name is legion. They come creeping stealthily into communities, every where diffusing their accursed influence, with an effect as deadly to the soul as is any mortal poison to the body after it has once, though never so small a wound, gained a lodgment in the system."

What so clearly and forcibly confirms the fact, that the present age and society are awfully, fearfully corrupt? And where is hope of change for the better, so long as ministers hold their peace, and religious editors continue to advertise and puff these "serpents in the grass," these satanic transformations? Will this evil be done away, till the conductors of the religious press cease to give them favorable notice?—until christian professors and ministers banish them from their side-boards and centre-tables?

Here lies the mischief, the stumbling-blocks, the perpetuity of the curse. What rational hope of its abandonment till the piety of God's people is elevated, rises to the apostolical, till God's Book becomes the text-book, the standard, the hope, the joy, the life?

"The serpent's brood increase,
The powers of hell grow bold;
The conflict thickens, faith is low,
And love is waxing cold."

And yet, in the midst of death, there are signs of life.—Editors are beginning to see the ravages of this light bread. A correspondent of one of the best weeklies in our city writes thus:—

"I hope, dear brother, that you will succeed in checking the tide of falsehood which now floods the world in the shape of "fine stories," "polite literature," "religious fiction," and all the dreamy scribbling, that so burden the books and papers of our day. Does not religion suffer by this legion of fashionable tales, a loss which can not be repaired? If the genius of novelists is to be thus encouraged, where shall be found the funds to patronize sound and useful literature? Or when the time to read the Holy Scriptures, and the needful books and periodicals designed to accomplish permanent good?"

Another religious editor speaks in this wise: "We cannot, in good conscience, insert in our paper, notices of novels, or of papers which contain them. The practice of editors and publishers puffing one another,—"tickle me, and I'll tickle you"—has become so common, that he who refuses to fall in with that practice, especially at the polite request of another, is esteemed censurably churlish, or, perhaps, laughably bigoted. Nevertheless, we are constrained to utter protest against the publication and circulation of all that class of works calculated to corrupt the taste and deprave the morals of the reader. The press already teems with fictitious writings—our literature is becoming more and more light and spurious—community is floated with frothy trashy novels; and so much has the taste of the American reading people become corrupted or vitiated by the circulation of papers, pamphlets and books of this kind, that those who engage in publishing works of a more substantial and useful character, can scarcely gain even a reasonable remuneration, and most generally, are serious losers. Those publishers only, who pander to the corrupt taste, which has been formed by the circulation of novels, make a 'good living.'

Another blessed man in the editorial chair says:—"We are obliged to displease many book-makers and book-publishers, because we can not, conscientiously, go into a system of indiscriminate puffing. 'Novels' and tales of fiction, as a general rule, we pay no attention to, as we do not read them, nor wish others to. This is our 'platform' on the subject of 'puffing.'"

We give one other testimonial. A godly editor, in a recent editorial, warns his readers against these "snakes in the grass," saying:

"Whenever we find one interested in novel reading, we are sure they have lost their love for truth. Are your parlor tables loaded with the poisonous trash? Are the minds of your children pampered with such destructive food? Are you a professed christian and setting them the example? No wonder you have lost your love for the prayer-meeting and the preaching of the simple truth of the scriptures, and have been seeking entertainment in mere pulpit eloquence adorned with flowery fables. You too, are making progress; but in the way to death, and may soon expect to reap ruin as the wages of such a course. As a friend, we exhort you to quit such reading at once, and begin to store your mind with the rich treasures in the sacred Scriptures and other good books of truth.

Novel-reading is to the mind, what rum-drinking is to the body: intoxicating and ruinous. We should as soon expect to find an amiable whiskey-drinker, as a novel-reader. As soon expect the former as the latter growing in grace. Dear reader, if you have spent your fleeting hours in reading fiction, resolve now, in the strength of the Lord, to quit the bad habit forever. If there were not positive evils resulting from such reading, our lives are too short to be wasted in treasuring up falsehood. Hours thus spent will afford no joys on a dying bed or at the judgment scene. Wasted! wasted! must be the answer for time thus employed. Come, clean your house of novels, as you would of infidel books, cards, and rum. Let no more be poisoned by their baneful influence."

D. F. NEWTON, Author of Home Thrusts.

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE TALEBEARERS.

There have been some excellent articles in the Crisis of late on "Evil Speaking." I hope they will be heeded, especially at the campmeetings; for too much of it is practiced there, so that many good brethren dread their approach.

Traveling quite extensively the past year, I have heard of many a tale of scandal and slander, told, too often, by preachers, of each other, where they happened to differ in doctrine; and frequently when asked where these tales were first heard, "Why, at Wilbraham."

These things ought not so to be. The campmeetings are for a far different object. We profess to believe the Lord's coming is near. Let us prove it by our godly conversation, if we cannot see alike on time and other questions of doctrine. We cannot be Christians while we hate and tattle about each other.

Do you "think" your brother or sister a hypocrite? Don't fret about it, nor blab your "evil surmisings" all over creation. Remember that we see not as God seeth, and be careful of your brother's reputation, lest by a wrong thought or word, you destroy the influence for good of one of your heavenly Father's children. Seek that charity that neither thinketh nor speaketh evil of a brother, and leave the matter with God. He will soon unmask the hypocrites and vindicate his chosen. Talebearers and evil speakers are the little foxes which do great harm in the vineyard. Let all beware of the FOXES.

J. T. DIXON.

☞ Yielding tempers pacify resentments.

For the World's Crisis.

THAT WALK BY THE WAY.

We last took leave of the two disconsolate disciples on their way to a neighboring village. They had left Jerusalem early that morning; they had been accosted in a kind manner by Jesus, in the guise of a stranger. They had related to him some of the circumstances of the crucifixion of their supposed Messiah, as the cause of their disappointment and sadness, and continued their account in these words:

"And how the chief priests and our rulers delivered him to be condemned to death, and have crucified him. But we trusted that it had been he which should have redeemed Israel. Yea, and certain women, also, of our company made us astonished, which were early at the sepulchre. And when they found not his body they came, saying, that they had seen a vision of angels, which said he was alive."

Then said he unto them, "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken. Ought not Christ to have suffered these things and to enter into his glory?"

We can imagine the thoughts, if not the words, with which these men would reply, "Rather a hard saying, stranger; we are not unbelievers, we have listened earnestly to the words of the prophets read in the synagogue every Sabbath day from our youth up, till called to follow Jesus, and did not understand them to say anything about the 'sufferings of Christ; it was all 'glory to follow,' as you call it. And our parents always dwelt upon the glowing pictures of the prophets, about our Messiah coming to 'reign in Jerusalem and in Mount Zion, and before his ancients gloriously.' Yes, it was all glory. And when we followed Jesus, in the expectation that he was the Messiah, we wondered he did not fulfill some of these expectations. We were continually tantalized by our former friends and associates, for believing in such a man, so opposed to all the plain teaching of the prophets, as they considered it. Jesus did himself sometimes stumble us by intimating that he might be set at naught by the chief priests, and even slain. Do you say the prophets were mistaken?"

"And beginning at Moses and all the prophets, he expounded unto them in all the Scriptures the things concerning himself." Wonderful discourse, this! How shall we get at an adequate conception of it? But by this time they drew nigh unto the village whither they went; perhaps they will give us some idea of the exposition at another time, and then we will see how the shock upon their lifetime prejudices affected them; and what was the effect upon them of a stranger calling them "fools"!

The stranger made as though he would have gone further, but they constrained him, saying, "Abide with us, for it is towards evening, and the day is far spent"; and he went in to tarry with them.

Before listening further to their conversation, I wish to ply the imagination a little, as to the nature of that extraordinary interview, and as to its influence upon the minds of these two men. I do not know the thoughts and prejudices of the reader of these lines,—whether he ever had any very severe struggles with those prejudices and honestly preconceived opinions so common to most men. The writer has a vivid recollection of his own struggles,—how he had to give up one cherished opinion after another, and one prejudice after another. They were all imbibed under the most orthodox preaching,—backed up by the instruction and example of pious parents. How could I be mistaken?

I was just as much mistaken as were these two honest, disconsolate disciples, and on the same great subject, too, only reversed. When I read the prophets I saw the "glory of Christ and the sufferings to follow." I could understand all those passages in the Old Testament which these men did not understand, but could not understand those which were so clear in the minds of these men and their associates. I saw how they understood the nature of the future kingdom of their Messiah, but was taught to believe and did believe they were mistaken. I never dreamed that Christ encouraged them to retain and cherish the views entertained on the future glory of their kingdom—but that they retained them in spite of Christ's teachings.

When I say the views of the disciples of Christ were reversed in my mind, the glory of Christ and the sufferings to follow, I did not understand there would be any future glory, but that it all would be elsewhere than on this earth. Herein the disciples were ahead of us all, notwithstanding all their foolish prejudices on other points. I will not stop to relate how, or by what process, I was corrected, any further than to state that I sympathized with the patience of these disciples when contradicted. I might be, and was, called "infidel" and "fool," but that failed to disturb me. It was emphatically true, that I was "slow to believe ALL that the prophets had said concerning Christ."

In closing these thoughts for the present, let me kindly say to readers in general, may it not be true of us, that we have something more to learn yet about the "glory which is to follow?" In going over Moses, the Psalms, and the Prophets, our Lord could not expound more than one hundred passages relating to the "sufferings of Christ," whereas, in reference to the glory which is to follow, there are one thousand, at least, yet to be fulfilled.

D. C.

☞ To shake off trouble we must set about doing good to somebody. Put on your hat and go out and visit the poor; inqure into their wants and administer unto them; seek out the desolate and oppressed, and tell them of the consolation of religion. I have often tried this, and found it the best medicine for a heavy heart.—Howard.

For the World's Crisis.

DANIEL'S SIXTY-NINE WEEKS.

Daniel's sixty-nine weeks are reckoned "unto the Messiah the Prince" (Dan. 9: 25), hence cannot reach beyond the beginning of the history of the "Messias; which is, being interpreted, the Christ."—John 1: 41. And since before the crucifixion Jesus was both "the Christ" (Matt. 16: 16), and "the Prince of life" (Acts 3: 15), the sixty-nine weeks cannot reach to the cross. If asked, did not Peter after the crucifixion say, "him hath God exalted . . . to be a Prince" (Acts 5: 31)? we answer no; "to be" is in italics, showing that this was not in the original. The Diaglott reads thus:—"Him, a Prince and a Savior, God has lifted up." Since before the crucifixion, Christ was not only "the Prince of the host" (Dan. 8: 11), but even "the Prince of princes" (Dan. 8: 25), it is certain that the sixty-nine weeks cannot reach as far as the time the Messiah was "cut off."

If Daniel had said that the sixty-nine weeks are to be reckoned to the Messiering of the Messiah, or the anointing of the Anointed, we would understand them to reach to the time at which "God anointed Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost" (Acts 10: 38), but since they are reckoned not unto the anointing of the Anointed, but "unto the Messiah," they cannot extend beyond the time that Christ came. And he was Christ before his baptism, for it was revealed unto Simeon "by the Holy Ghost, that he should not see death before he had seen the Lord's Christ."—Luke 2: 26. Here he is expressly called "the Lord's Christ," that is, "the Lord's Messiah," beyond which Daniel's sixty-nine weeks cannot reach.

To find the year and day on which the sixty-nine weeks end, we have only to learn the earliest period at which "Jesus . . . is called Christ" (Matt. 1: 16.) The Jews, who were at that time waiting for the coming of their Messiah, were looking neither to the river Jordan, nor the grave, but to "Bethlehem of Judea," for they understood not that Jesus was to be transformed into Christ by the acquisition of some additional power, but that their "Christ should be born" (Matt. 2: 4), or as Paul has it, "made of a woman" (Gal. 4: 4.)

The reason the Jews gave for their opinion was the word of God:—"For thus it is written by the prophet; And thou Bethlehem, . . . out of thee shall come a Governor, that shall rule my people Israel" (Matt. 2: 6), and on the day of our Lord's birth he was introduced as Christ the Lord: "Unto you is born this day, in the city of David, a Savior, which is Christ the Lord" (Luke 2: 11.) If, on the day of his birth, he was both Lord and Christ, he could not have been less than "the Messiah the Prince"; hence Daniel's sixty-nine weeks cannot reach beyond the day of his birth.

Brethren, stop and think a moment; "Hath not the Scripture said, That Christ cometh of the seed of David and out of the town of Bethlehem" (John 7: 42)? Then what right has any one to say that Christ cometh out of the river Jordan, or the grave, or by being anointed with the Holy Ghost? If "Christ cometh of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem," it is impossible for his coming to have been either sooner or later than the day of his birth. Hence, if the sixty-nine weeks are reckoned "unto the Messiah the Prince," they cannot reach beyond the day of his birth.

Christ was born Prince; "For unto us a child is born . . . and his name shall be called . . . the Prince of Peace."—Isa. 9: 6. For thus saith the Lord, "Thou Bethlehem, . . . out of thee shall he come forth unto me that is to be ruler in Israel" (Micah 5: 2.) According to the Diaglott, Matthew quotes this prophecy thus:—"Thou Bethlehem, . . . out of thee shall come forth a Prince" (Matt. 2: 6), therefore Christ was born "a Prince."

Prince is used in the Bible as equivalent to king; and, long before the crucifixion, it was said of Christ, "thou art the Son of God; thou art the King of Israel" (John 1: 49.) This alone proves that the sixty-nine weeks cannot reach later than the beginning of the ministry of Christ; and when we are told that he was "born king of the Jews" (Matt. 2: 2), it is clear that they end with his birth. If asked how could he be king before he received his kingdom, we answer, as Jehoiachin was "king of Judah" during the more than thirty-seven years that he was without a kingdom. (2 Kings 25: 27.) From the time of his birth, Christ was heir to "the throne of his father David" (Luke 1: 32); hence was "born king of the Jews." God hath "sworn with an oath to him [David], that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne." (Acts 2: 30); and if "of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh," Christ is heir to the throne of David, and was "born king" or Prince. Therefore says Paul, "When the fullness of the time had come; that is, when Daniel's sixty-nine weeks had reached their full end, "God sent forth his Son, made of a woman; made under the law."—Gal. 4: 4. That Paul was here alluding to Daniel's sixty-nine weeks is clear, when we call to mind that there is no other period of time in all the Bible that is reckoned to the birth of Christ. Wilson in his Diaglott translates it thus:—"But when the completion of the time arrived, God sent forth his Son."

Brethren, in conclusion, if the little flock of Christ hear the good Shepherd's voice, and follow him, why should there be but one opinion as to that for which we have a clear thus saith the Lord? Hath not the Scriptures said, "That CHRIST cometh of the seed of David, and out of the town of Bethlehem, where David was" (John 7: 42)? Is there a clearer text of Scripture than this? and if our God has expressly said of Bethlehem, "out of thee shall he come forth unto me" (Micah 5: 2), can I say no, he must come either out of the river Jordan, or the grave? If God hath ever "sworn with an oath to David, that of the fruit of his loins according to the flesh he would raise up Christ" (Acts 2: 30), can I say no, that Christ was raised up by "anointing Jesus of Nazareth with the Holy Ghost?" Jesus came from Galilee to be baptized of John (Matt. 3: 13). His ministry "began from Galilee" (Acts 10: 37), and his last commission was given in Galilee" (Matt. 28: 16.) Now, "Search and look, for out of Galilee ariseth no prophet"; then "shall Christ come out of Galilee" (John 7: 41-52)?

WM. C. THURMAN.

☞ Man doubles all the evils of his fate by pondering over them. A scratch becomes a wound, a slight becomes an injury, a jest an insult, a small peril a great danger, and a slight sickness often ends in death by the brooding apprehensions of the sick. We should look on the bright side of life's picture.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Tuesday, Aug. 22, 1865.

☞ TAKE NOTICE.

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable in advance, at the rate of $2.50 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $3.00 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

NO PAPER NEXT WEEK.

We propose to give our help in the office a rest next week, while we attend our great annual campmeeting. They have served us very faithfully during the past two years, without any vacation; and we think they deserve, at least, one week for themselves.

It is also proposed to give the cost of next week's paper to the poor, by omitting that number, thus making twenty-five copies instead of twenty-six copies in the present volume. We think our readers will be willing to make this little sacrifice for the benefit of the hundreds of those who have the paper free. It will be only four cents each, yet it will amount to considerable in the aggregate.

HAVERHILL.

We spent a pleasant day in Haverhill, Mass., Aug. 13th. There are some living christians there, who are looking for the coming of Jesus. The congregations were large and attentive. Things look encouraging. We were invited to preach in the South Christian Baptist church in the afternoon, and accepted the invitation. We felt free in presenting the word of the Lord, and were invited to come again. It appeared like good soil for the truth. In compliance with their request we attended their prayer-meeting at 5½ P. M., and had a good one. We found them ready to work, and we enjoyed the occasion. We saw no signs of sectarian bars. Would that there were more such churches.

At noon we had a pleasant scene on the banks of the Merrimac, in administering the ordinance of baptism. This field seems white for the harvest, and it is proposed to hold a conference and protracted meeting here in September and October.

HOLINESS.—Do not fail to read the article in another column, headed,—"To seekers of holiness." We think it is the best thing we have seen on the subject.

DEATH OF TIBERIUS CÆSAR.

In establishing the chronology relating to the age of Christ at his crucifixion, the reign and death of Tiberius Cæsar shed much light upon the subject.

The death of Tiberius took place, according to the very accurate historian, Dion Cassius, on the 26th of March, when Proculus and Nigrinis were consuls in Rome, which, according to the critical work of Dr. Jarvis, was in the year of the Julian period 4749, which corresponds with A. D. 36. We find no standard chronology that makes the consulship of Proculus and Nigrinis later than A. D. 37; consequently, we cannot put the death of Tiberius later than A. D. 37.

Dion Cassius says Tiberius "lived seventy-seven years, four months, and nine days; whereof he reigned twenty-two years, seven months, and seven days." His reign began at the death of Augustus Cæsar, Aug. 19th, A. D. 13, or Aug. 19th, A. D. 14. According to Dr. Jarvis, it was A. D. 13. We think the latter date is best sustained by facts. If to Aug. 19th, A. D. 13, we add twenty-two years, seven months, and seven days, we have Mar. 26th, A. D. 36. If Augustus died in A. D. 14, then the death of Tiberius would be one year later; that is, Mar. 26th, A. D. 37.

Our Lord was crucified seven years before the death of Tiberius, if we place the death of the latter in A. D. 37, and six years before, if Tiberius died in A. D. 36. This point will be plain to all after looking at a few facts.

1. Christ was baptized "in the fifteenth year of the" joint "reign of Tiberius Cæsar" with Augustus Cæsar. (Luke 3: 1.)

2. Christ "began to be about thirty years of age" at his baptism. (Luke 3: 23.) This was about the middle of June, A. D. 26. The Savior then lacked two months of being thirty years of age, as shown by Epiphanius; and lived after his baptism three years, nine months and twenty-seven days, when he was crucified at the paschal full moon, A. D. 30, at which time he was thirty-three years, seven months, and twenty-three days of age, as may be clearly shown.

3. As Christ was baptized in the fifteenth year of the joint reign of Tiberius, it would be the thirteenth of his sole reign, if he reigned jointly two years, as may be shown by the best of evidence. His sole reign commenced at the death of Augustus Cæsar, Aug. 19th, A. D. 13. If to this date we add the length of his reign, as given by Dion Cassius, which is twenty-two years, seven months, and seven days, we have Mar. 26th, A. D. 36, as the date of his death.

Dr. Jarvis says, when speaking of the consuls Proculus and Nigrinis, in whose consulship Tiberius died,—"There is and can be no debate as to the consuls; or that the death of Tiberius and the accession of Caligula took place A. J. P. 4749."* The year of the christian era corresponding with the Julian Period 4749, is A. D. 36, which is the year in which Dr. Jarvis places the death of Tiberius.

Our Savior was crucified Apr. 6th, A. D. 30, about six years before.

* The Consuls were appointed every year, and commenced their duties on the first of January.

DRESS REFORM IN ROME.

"An association for the suppression of female extravagance in dress has been recently founded in Rome. The members, amongst whom are many priests and confessors, undertake to try and induce the women over whom they have any influence to dress modestly."

Would it not be well for the American women to consider this matter? We hope they do not dress any more immodestly and extravagantly in Rome than in the United States. A correspondent from Saratoga Springs, N. Y., speaks "of the necessity of eighteen large trunks to carry the wardrobe of one female," while visiting that fashionable resort; where ladies (?) make "from six to ten changes a day." "Twenty thousand dollars is said to be the cost of only a moderate standard of jewelry for ornamenting some of these brainless belles for the evening ball."

It is astonishing to see the pride manifested in these last days, not only by the people of the world, but by the professed bride of Christ. She seems to have forgotten his instruction in relation to her dress. He desires her to be dressed "in modest apparel, . . . not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array; but (which becometh women professing godliness) with good works;" "for after this manner, in the old time, the holy women also, who trusted in God, adorned themselves." Where are the holy women now? those who dress "in modest apparel," having the "ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price?" The aim seems to be now to obtain apparel which is in sight of men "of great price." Which is the best way? What will be our end if we try to please the world? "Ye adulterers, and adulteresses, know ye not that the friendship of the world is enmity with God? whosoever therefore will be a friend of the world is the enemy of God."—James 4: 4.

What ground of hope have we, if we conform to the world? Is it not high time that this matter was carefully considered? Shall we run the risk of losing eternal life and glory for the sake of being honored and flattered a few days by the enemies of God? Will it pay? Can it be afforded? Let the candid consider this matter in the light of the Scripture we have quoted, and much more of a similar character that might be mentioned. "BE NOT CONFORMED TO THIS WORLD."

INTEMPERANCE.

From facts which we are continually receiving, it appears evident that intemperance is on a "double quick" march among the people in these last days. It is well known that alcohol is one of Satan's prime ministers in aiding to accomplish the ruin of the human race. The temperance movement some years since put some heavy breaks on the drunkard's train; but the war and other influences have been very successful in removing them, so that the car of intemperance is now moving with terrible velocity; so much so, that few dare make an effort to stop it; while the mass look on with surprise, thinking it of no use to try to check its speed; and seem to pity the rashness of those who attempt it.

Young men by the thousand have recently got on board the liquor train, and take late rides at night among those familiar with debauchery. More corruption is coming in like a resistless tide, sweeping down the finest specimens of humanity that grace the social circles of the rising generation.

The question may well be asked, what can be done to stop the progress of this monster evil? A National Temperance Convention has been held recently at Saratoga, to see what action can be taken to persuade men to let alone the intoxicating bowl. When speaking of this convention, and the present state of society, the Boston Journal says:—

"Certain it is that there are indications all about us of an unusual prevalence of the evil" of intemperance. "It calls for intelligent counsel and wise action." "It is manifest that our community is in a different condition from what it ever was before in relation to the temperance question, and there is a necessity for new light and a better understanding among its friends."

LOUIS NAPOLEON.

There is no other man upon our planet who has so much power in his hands as Louis Napoleon; and it is evident that he is well aware of this fact. Every year adds to his overwhelming influence. No nation wishes to get into a war with him. All eyes seem to be watching the movements of this "wonderful man." The students of prophecy, especially in Europe, are directing their special attention to the movements of this remarkable Emperor, whose whole career is a strange enigma to all but those who take heed to the light of prophecy shining from the prophetic Scriptures.

In an article for the July number of the Rainbow, an able and valuable religious monthly, edited by Dr. Wm. Leask, published in London, 9 Paternoster Row, E. C., the writer says:—"Now, let us note what is taking place at the present time." After speaking of the indications of certain movements on the part of Napoleon relative to the Jews, and of "a projected harbor at Jaffa, and a railway to all parts of the holy land, with a central station at Jerusalem; he states that "the great uncle of Louis Napoleon proposed the restoration of the Jews to Palestine, but that the time had not" then "come." He then says:—

"It is well known that the nephew, Napoleon III., is closely following in the footsteps of his uncle, and three years ago Louis Napoleon pledged his Imperial word to the 'Alliance Israelite Universelle,' the House of Representatives of the Jewish nation which has assembled in Paris since 1860, that at the proper time 'he would carry back the Jews to Palestine.' A great conference of the Jews is either held or to be held this month (I believe) in Paris; and we are waiting patiently to learn the result. Napoleon III. has already promised to take back the Jews to their own land."

The writer, John Mason, then speaks of the invasion of England by Napoleon, and says:—

"I am now more and more convinced of its probability. There is, without doubt, real ground for the apprehensions which have led England to vote ten millions of pounds sterling for additional fortifications, and to arm and equip 160,000 volunteers. It is a significant fact that Napoleon, on his trial after the Boulogne expedition, said to his judges:—'I represent before you a principle, a cause, and a defeat. The principle is the sovereignty of the people; the cause is that of the empire; the defeat is that of Waterloo. The principle, you have recognized it; the cause, you have served in it; the defeat, you would avenge it.'

He also addressed his army after the coup d'etat in 1857.—'Soldiers, I have given you now two revenges, one for 1830 and one for 1840; the third I now promise you, is for Waterloo. He is likewise reported to have said during his residence in England:—'I shall be Emperor of France one of these days, and I shall then invade England. I like you very well as a people, but I must wipe out Waterloo and St. Helena.'"

The foregoing are some of the events laid down by Napoleon III., which he purposes to accomplish; and all things indicate that he is about ready to fill up this portion of his startling programme.

RATHER THREATENING.

At a late picnic of the Spiritualists, held in Abington, Mass., Dr. A. B. Child, a prominent and intelligent Spiritualist, made a speech which was published in the Banner of Light, Aug. 5th, 1865. In the course of the Dr.'s remarks, he is reported to have spoken as follows:—

"The time is speedily coming when every one who has opposed, scorned, reviled and persecuted spiritual communion will be brought to the altar of sacrifice; will suffer sorrow, regret, affliction. . . . It will be a bitter cup, but a necessary remedy for the present sickly morals and religions of men. It is in the power of the spiritual world to make any poor man rich in one day—to make any rich man poor in one day—to make a well man sick in a moment of time, or to make a sick man well—to take life or to continue it—to make woe in the human heart or joy and gladness there. . . .

Imminent and immediate dangers to earthly prosperity hang over all opposition to spiritual communion. Mark well, and you will soon see that the destruction of property, of health, even physical life will follow close upon the heels and overtake all the obstinate, persistent warriors against sin and the devil—all the military of the church militant—all who revile and scoff, and say all manner of things falsely against Spiritualism—against sins, sects, creeds, beliefs not their own. Disasters on sea and land, fires, failures, accidents, diseases, and early deaths will fall thick and fast and heavy, to harrow the peace and happiness of every bosom that is persistently turned with opposition and bitterness against this holy influx that comes down from heaven to earth to tell us the uses of sin and sorrow; to tell us of the realities of the world from whence man gets all his blessings; to tell him of the world from whence he came and whither he is going. . . .

Ay, more than blessed are ye, for a new era is beginning; a new religion is coming; a new day of morals is dawning; a new road for human progress is making; it is the road that the toiling hands of Spiritualism have graded, over lowlands and through highlands, over the swamps of humility and the mountains of pride. It is a straight road; it is a level road; it is a grand highway for all humanity; it is onward forever. Then take courage and be comforted; be not weary, for the work of Spiritualism is the work of well-doing. Relax no effort—seek to change no purpose in this great design, for it must make a revolution in the morals and religions of men that shall be a signal epoch in the history of the world's future, for the world's happiness."

We think the foregoing quite in harmony with the theology, wishes and purposes of Satan. It will be observed that "the obstinate, persistent warriors against sin and the devil,"—[O Lord, help me to be one of the "warriors,"—Ed.) are in "imminent and immediate dangers."

Let every christian, as he reads the foregoing, resolve, in the strength of the Lord, to be one of the "persistent warriors against sin and the devil," and leave the consequences with the King of kings. Let us quit ourselves like true soldiers of the cross,—like men of God. This is no time for cowards.

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE SCATTERED FLOCK.

BRO. GRANT:—I wish to say to dear tried ones of the scattered flock, that I am still with them in heart and hand, waiting for the manifestation of the sons of God, and think testimony justifies us in looking with an assurance of faith for speedy redemption. With my present light I cannot fix my faith upon 1868, or any other set time beyond the present. It does appear to me, evidence justifies us in looking with expectation prior to that time, and duty admonishes us to be at all times in a state of constant watchful preparation. This is the only safe position to occupy.

I have examined with very much care the prophetic Scriptures, and have failed to find any clear evidence proving events yet to occur amongst the nations, or in the church of Christ or the apostasy requiring time, prior to the dawning of that bright day of glory. Relative to the fall of Rome, which is an event in immediate connection with the Advent of Christ, testimony points to 1866! Events may at any time occur in Italy, causing her overthrow; but it now seems that nothing can prolong her days beyond that period. To which my entire being responds Amen! She merits her doom.

Query. The ten kings were to "agree and give their kingdom to the beast until the words shall be fulfilled." As they now hate her and have made her desolate and naked, does it not follow that God's word is now thus far fulfilled both as to time and event? If so, how can her days yet be prolonged?

Cheer up, beloved in the Lord. Let us gird ourselves anew; the contest will be short and victory certain, and then, O then, our rejoicing will be not like that recently experienced at the fall of Richmond, and the overthrow of the rebellion, quickly turned to mourning and sadness by the assassination of our much esteemed President. O no, there will be no assassins there, neither will our Captain be subject to the evils of mortality. For it will be He that was dead, and is alive evermore, "and hath the keys of hell and of death," and will unlock the gloomy mansions of the dead, who will return and come to Zion, the city of the living God, with songs and everlasting honors upon their heads.

As such is now our King, and such our glorious reward, can we not endure these many evils yet a little longer? Surely we can and must, if we expect to receive the promised crown of life.

P. ALLING.

Norwalk, O.

THE NEW $2000 TRACT FUND.

We, the undersigned, agree to give the sums affixed to our names, for the purpose of raising TWO THOUSAND DOLLARS to aid the Christian Publication Society in the gratuitous distribution of tracts.

Previous donations	$1230.78
G. L.	1.00
John McClellan	1.00
A young brother	5.00
N. Chase	1.00
A sister	.25
L. Davison	.25

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.
Whole number sent free 800. Amount $2000.00.

Previous donations	$1104.71
Mrs. E. G. O.	2.00
F. T.	3.00
G. L.	1.00
A friend	1.00

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

Previous donations	$104.94
The Advent Society in Exeter, N. H., $15.25, as follows:
Geo. T. Stacy	5.00
Mrs. D. Lang	1.00
Miss Anna Lang	1.00
N. Churchill	1.00
J. B. Safford	1.00
Chas. Haley	2.00
Mrs. E. Leavitt	1.00
Mrs. W. Eaton	.25
Sarah A. Thurston	1.00
Widow Elizabeth Keyes	1.00
John M. Weeks	1.00
Mrs. S. M. Cornell, New London, Ct.	.40
Hannah L. Hastings, Riverton, Ct.	.50
A sister in South Reading, Mass	5.00
From her little daughter	.50
G L., Thomaston, Ct.	1.00
John McClellan, Font Hill, C. W.	1.00
D. Cogswell, Dansville, N. Y.	3.00

For the World's Crisis.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS, JULY 25, '65.

Joseph is out of prison, let us shout! we exclaimed, as we heard read the procession of the colored teachers and their scholars, five hundred in number, fifty to each teacher, parading the streets of Savannah, Ga. Black pupils, black teachers! How good this sounds! Then the old slave market, a large building, three stories high, now their school-house! Let the parents, yea, let every friend of humanity, weep joyful tears, and shout praises to God who has done such great things for them. It seems the very stones would cry out if we did not shout at such results. We do give glory to God. Bless his name forever! The God of the oppressed shall he be called.

Then came "Good Things.—No. 2." Good things they were, too. From the east, from the west, and from the island home of our copper-colored brethren and sisters, came the offerings for these oppressed people. How this did cheer our hearts. God be praised.

Just at this moment of our writing comes in little Bennie with shining face, holding up his five cents just presented him by a gentleman for blacking his boots. After we read to him about the Savannah children, and about "Good Things.—No. 2," he volunteered two-thirds of his little all to the common treasury. Now who is this little Bennie? He is himself a little "Freedman," some eight or nine years old, whom the soldiers brought from Washington, D. C. Homeless and friendless he came to us; and we, all thanks to the grace of God in our hearts, are doing for him as for a son. He is one of the darkest of his race, but a boy of good ability. Pray for him, that he may be contented and happy with us as he now seems to be, and learn to love Jesus; and, if time continues, be a blessing to his race. He was so delighted this morning to learn to spell the name of Jesus. His heart beat high as he ran from my room to let C. hear how he could spell it. Little C., too, gave a tenth of all her little earnings to the Freedmen. She says, "Bennie, how much better this is than to spend all our money for candy."

Then came "Wilbraham Campmeeting," or a call for a tent for the colored people for that meeting. Were we there that tent would be the centre of interest to us. May it be forthcoming.

Next comes "The Italian Mission." The report of Bro. Jones' case we felt would repay for one year's labor, if that were all. The considerate and grateful remembrance, by our brother, of the little we had done as a people for that mission, quite touched our hearts, and we said, O, that it had been hundreds instead of tens! May our God prosper the work, and sustain our brother and his increasing family. To our brother Joseph Jones we say, "Let thy bow abide in strength, and thy hands be made strong by the mighty God of Jacob. Let these blessings rest upon the head of this Joseph also, and upon the crown of the head of him that was separate from his brethren." Go forth, my brother, "thus separated unto the gospel of God" to the work whereunto thou art called of the Holy Ghost.

Just now comes another offering for the Lord's treasury—a gold ring and stud wrapped in a dollar bill with these words, "These are doing me no good; if they can help any one, I shall be very glad." How delightful to see such sacrifices from the young. May they, in turn, be ornamented with a meek and quiet spirit, which is, in the sight of God, of great price. Will Bro. Jones accept this offering as a token from the Lord that his promise is being fulfilled to give brothers and sisters, fathers and mothers to those who forsake all for Christ?

Then came "Christian Union," No. 12, to cheer our hearts. This has been our very spirit for years. Thank God. To forget every name but the name of Christ, and to recognize the Lord Jesus in every one who bears his image is to divest one's self of every yoke but the yoke of Christ; to lay down every burden but the burden of Christ. It is the true freedom in Christ. "If the Son therefore shall make you free, ye shall be free indeed." John 8: 36. We have tasted this freedom, and our soul loathes sectarian bondage.

In the language of our beloved brother, the apostle to the Gentiles, we say to these our favored brethren and sisters in the Lord, "Though I be absent in the flesh, yet am I with you in the spirit, joying and beholding your order, and the steadfastness of your faith in Christ. As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him, rooted and built up in him, and stablished in the faith, as ye have been taught, abounding therein with thanksgiving." Col. 2: 5, 6, 7.

But our sheet admonishes us to close this, to us, interesting review. Much more of interest we read and heard read—The Editorial, "Visit to Canada," The proposed tent labor, —the Lord go with Bro. Hastings and Bro. Brown,—The translations from the German. The Lord prepare his people for the true gathering when "he shall send Jesus Christ." Amen. "No. fifteen" of "Letters,"—the Lord sanctify his people,—"Trusting in God,"—that is good; the true principle. "Christian Religion," by our aged father. Thank God for "nursing fathers." "Importance of Rest,"—"Lines" to our afflicted sister. God bless her.

God bless the Crisis, and make it a paper to please himself. Pray for us. Yours in hope,

E. S. WILLARD.

Hammonton, N. J.

"OUR TIMES AND OUR CHURCHES."

THE DISEASE WITHOUT THE REMEDY.

"Our Times and our Churches," is the title of an interesting pamphlet recently published. The subject was presented at the autumnal meeting of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, held at Hull, Oct. 1864. It is from Samuel Hebditch.

The following remarks on the work from "The Rainbow," a valuable monthly, published in England, will show how candid, observing men are looking at the state of things in the world:—ED.

What says this good and earnest christian man? First, generally, he puts a few questions, and then in detail he exhibits the ground upon which they are raised? "Now what is the general impression as to the present condition of our churches? Does not every pastor here feel a measure of dissatisfaction with the average piety of his own church? Is it what it might be? Is it what he hoped it would be? Is it, in some cases, what it was?" He gratefully recognizes the good that exists, but actually finds that it is "strikingly exceptional."

He traces the influence of the age on religion by noticing what has been its effect on man's estimate of himself. "When that estimate is exaggerated, religion always suffers. The Christ is lowered if the Ego is raised; the more I am, the less is Christ to me." When we read this fine and true remark, our hearts leaped with the hope that it would be followed by its logical sequence, as that is exhibited in the Scriptures; but we were doomed to disappointment. We have been teaching that man's idolatry of agency—for we can call it by no gentler name—has blinded him to the assurance that Christ himself will come, and, according to the well-defined character of the dispensation, must come before the tares can be removed, or the corrupting leaven be purged out. Our boastings of our mighty organizations are among the most ominous signs of the day. But Mr. Hebditch does not carry his thoughts in this direction. Had he done so, we should have hailed the fact with uncommon pleasure, although in that case he would not have been a representative man; and it will, of course, be understood that it is in this light, and not in that of an individual writer, that we consider him. "Peril to christians," and "abated faith in Providence," are the sequences of this ego. True enough, as a description of the actual fact; but danger to the christian life, and a diminished faith in divine Providence, are themselves symptoms of the great disease which preys upon the heart of the church in consequence of her disbelief of the great doctrine that she should be continually looking for the return of her Lord in person. She is to occupy till he come; but she has chosen to occupy with reference to an entirely different issue,—the conquest of the world before, and independently of, his advent,—an issue for which she has no warrant; and the result is faith in herself, her head, her heart, her gold—in one word, her egoism.

Glancing now at the items of complaint, it is affirmed that "the church of our times wants reverence"; that "a more serious defect in the piety of our day is its feeble evangelism"; that humility is wanting; that constraining love to Christ is rare; that it is harder than ever to deny ourselves; that we are worldly, uncharitable, unforgiving; that the feeling of redeemed ones is hardly ours; that the christian will—that is, the identification of our will with God's will—is relaxed; that our prayer meetings are scantily attended and dull; that our "cultivated members never lead the devotions of their brethren at all; that those who do, show little proficiency in the holy art"; that church meetings are miserably attended; that the nursing of young life, mutual oversight, and care for the common weal, are neglected; that family and friendly gatherings crowd out family praise and prayer; that concessions to the world on such occasions are common; that it is "more common than once to see christian parents with unconverted children"; that the elder members of rich dissenting families gravitate towards "the wealthy and fashionable Establishment"; that making haste to be rich in consequence of the idolatry of social status is common; that "the great mass of our people" are unwilling to give in proportion to their income; and that, "last and saddest fact" of all, conversions are lamentably few.

These are melancholy statements; and, as the writer remarks, "it is no relief to know that the same may be said of other churches also." What, then, is the remedy proposed for this "epidemic"? Mr. Hebditch is "diffident on the question of recovery." No wonder, when the soul-stirring cry, "Behold, the bridegroom cometh," is totally ignored! This animating truth, rung through the ranks of the church, would perform wonders; but we are told that in regaining lost ground "the first thing is to believe that we can." "On the church herself the whole burden lies." But what is this but a return to the discarded ego? Sick at heart, and paralyzed in every limb, the invalid is to help herself, and spring up to health and beauty! To awaken in every christian the conviction that he is responsible for the state of his own heart; to preach Christ more exclusively, and yet more variously; and to implore christians to spend more time in the culture of their own hearts, are good suggestions as far as they go; but these suggestions have been made often before without accomplishing the desired result. The lethargy is chronic; the epidemic is wide-spread. How can we wonder, when the great Scripture doctrine of the Master's return is either kept entirely out of view, as in this pamphlet, or explained away by the ingenuity of the "spiritualizer," as in many a sermon? In cases not a few indeed even this miserable attempt to make the Holy Spirit say something else than the words obviously mean is not thought worth while, but sarcasm, caricature, and ridicule are deemed sufficient argument with which to dispose of that divine doctrine which apostles preached, and which is the only hope of the church. If the church will try every remedy in her deplorable state except that of looking for her Lord; if she will try every expedient except that which has been prescribed by the great Physician himself; and if she is determined not to believe the special truth which sheds its glorious light on the thickest darkness of the dispensation, and solves every difficulty in a way worthy of infinite wisdom, she must even take her course, and reap the fruits of her unbelief. Why, this very book of lamentations is a clear description of the very malady superinduced by disbelief of the Lord's return. Unconsciously the author has written a vivid commentary on the signs which precede the advent. It is very remarkable that we should have this cry of cooling love, increased conformity to the world, spiritual deadness, self-esteem, deficiency of faith, and paucity of conversions, coming from a body that regards the doctrine of the pre-millennial advent with special dislike, and believes and teaches that the conversion of the world is the mission of the church. It is a "sign" to which it is well to take heed. There is more in all this than meets the eye that looks not beyond the boundary line of denomination, and rests quietly on the received theology of a most respectable brotherhood. Complaint has a meaning as well as congratulation, and frequently in religious matters the significance of the former is deeper than that of the latter. In this paper we need not pursue the subject further, but we are quite sure that sincere love to our brethren has constrained us to make these few remarks on the disease without the remedy.

WHAT IS YOUR HOPE?

Reader, what is your hope about your soul? Have you any, or have you none? Can you tell me in what way you expect to be accounted righteous before God?

Depend upon it, these are very serious questions. You and I are dying men. After death comes the judgment. What is our hope of acquittal in that awful day? What are we going to plead on our behalf before God? Shall we say that we have done our duty to God? Shall we say that we have done our duty to our neighbor? Shall we bring forward our prayers, our regularity, our morality, our amendments, our church-going? Shall we ask to be accepted by God because of any of these things?

Which of these things will stand God's eye? Which of them will actually justify you and me? Which of them will carry us clear through judgment, and land us safe in glory? None, none, none. Take any commandment of the ten, and let us examine ourselves by it. We have broken it repeatedly. We can not answer God one of a thousand. Take any of us, and look narrowly into our ways, and we are nothing but sinners. There is but one verdict. We are all guilty, all deserve death. Wherewith can we come before God? We must come in the name of Jesus, standing on no other ground, pleading no other plea than this, "Christ died on the cross for the ungodly, and I trust in him."

O! believe me, Christ must be all the hope of every one who would be justified and saved. You must be content to go to heaven as a beggar—saved by free grace, simply as a believer in Jesus—OR YOU WILL NEVER BE SAVED AT ALL.—Rev. J. C. Ryle.

Correspondence.

From Bro. J. C. Rice.

BRO. GRANT:—It is with pleasure unfeigned that I improve these moments in presenting words of encouragement to Father's faithful ones, while in the discharge of the duties which devolve upon them, as my hopes beat high for speedy deliverance, and immortality, eternal life; and would say, cheer up, dear ones, land is nearing. The port is almost in hailing distance, and "we will anchor bye-and-bye." We have a skilful Pilot at the helm, "the Captain of our salvation," who was made "perfect;" therefore with him we can bid defiance to the dangers which encircle our harbor of eternal rest, let the winds blow high or blow low. I speak to the faithful only, as I have no hope for any other, be their professions or pretensions what they may.

As I arose early this morning, and repaired to my school-room for private communion and consultation with Father, through our Elder Brother, I strolled through the adjacent burying-ground, and was soon lost in reverie on the "bright morn," when the entombed loved ones would be reanimated by the sweet though powerfully thrilling accents of Him "who is our life," as of old, "come forth!" and the old green, turfy grave-yards, in obedience to the divine mandate, open their massive portals, and a greeting of inexpressible pleasure and grandeur ensues; at which point I was constrained to cry out, "How long? O Lord, how long? when will these hopes be realized? when will the song of redemption, salvation and victory be sung? and, I suppose with feelings akin to those of the "much beloved" Daniel and the "beloved disciple" John on the same matter; but was reminded that it was for an appointed time, and that the blessing was on him who "waiteth and cometh to the thousand three hundred and five and thirty days," when praying Daniel, our informant, through the mercy and goodness of God, shall "stand in his lot," (Query: when?) "at the end of the days" (Dan. 12: 13), and all are perfected together; therefore I hope on, for it will not be in vain in the Lord, as "it shall come and will not tarry."

O, I do bless and give glory to the God of heaven for the light of his word, which is truly "a lamp unto my feet, and a light unto my path, which I desire to shine "more and more unto the perfect day," whose dawning will dispel the darkness in which we are groping, and the blazing sun of righteousness will emit its glory throughout eternity. Glory to God! Amen! I am happy, and the trials of life appear so meagre, when compared with the glory that shall follow, and that right early, that I hardly think it worth while to make any more complaints.

I thank the good Lord for Bro. Thurman's light on His word, and for Bro. Hudson's criticism upon it, as I knew not how to appreciate it until I had proven it; and being inadequate to the task, I had no possible chance until Bro. Hudson so manfully, to say the least, went into it, instead of contenting himself with making a few guerilla thrusts, as some have, which enabled me to assume the position of impartial, though interested judge; and after finding that the basis upon which previous chronologers rested was "knocked," my confidence in very many of Bro. T.'s applications has become strengthened, almost, if not entirely, to permanency; yet I cannot give up the hope that "the Nobleman" will make his appearance, and grant us emancipation before '68; but as the Lord willeth. Amen.

Dear brethren and sisters, we are in the perils of the last days; so let us be encouraged. Look up, lift up your heads, gird on the whole armor. We are in the winding up of the conflict. Glory to God, deliverance is near. Be faithful a little longer, and we shall get an honorable discharge, with a "well done!" and a "come, ye blessed." There will be no "shabbing off" practiced upon the veterans of the cross, but a glorious regard be had for them, not only for a little while either, but for an endless eternity. Glory to God! "Gird up" a little longer, and He who is our life will appear, and then shall we appear with him in glory. Amen. Your brother in the "lively hope." Jos. C. Rice.

Hillsburgh, N. S.

From Sr. E. G. Osgood.

Bro. Grant:—I have become deeply interested in the perusal of your paper,—"The Crisis,"—a privilege I have enjoyed for a few months only, yet long enough for it to have become a welcome messenger in its weekly visit.

I have been especially interested in reading that part devoted to the Lord's poor, for several reasons: first, because I like to know that the poor are cared for; and I believe the good Lord will never have them uncared for, if they are his. We read that not a sparrow falls to the ground without our heavenly Father's notice; and I firmly believe that a true christian, one who has the spirit of his heavenly Master, will derive much happiness in looking after the temporal as well as spiritual interests of a brother or sister in want; yet how many professing christianity, also looking for the speedy coming of their Lord, close their hands tightly over earthly possessions, but are extremely liberal in dispensing spiritual gifts, advice, etc. In such cases, I am reminded of what the apostle James says on that subject;—"If a brother or sister be naked, and destitute of daily food, and one of you say unto them, Depart in peace, be ye warmed and filled, notwithstanding ye give them not those things which are needful to the body, what doth it profit?" The apostle John also says: "Whoso hath of this world's goods, and seeth his brother have need, and shutteth up his bowels of compassion from him, how dwelleth the love of God in him?" Truly such know not the truth of that promise of Jesus, "Give, and it shall be given," etc.; neither do they realize how much more blessed it is to give than to receive. But enough on this point. I trust there are none of this class among the readers of the Crisis.

Another reason why I am interested in reading that part of your paper is, that it gives those who are so disposed ample opportunity to exercise their benevolence.

I always did love to give, and have always practised the same as far as my limited means would allow. And I love more than ever to give since I came into the knowledge of the truth that my blessed Lord and Master is soon coming to gather home his faithful children; and among them will be some of the poor afflicted ones of earth. O! what a happy release it will be to them. How blessed it is to know that this earth is again to bloom in all its Eden beauty, and God's children may all eat of the good of the land. All,—for all will be rich then; there will be no distinction, no sorrow there, no sickness, nor disabled limbs; no need to earn our bread by the sweat of our face, but we shall "plant vineyards and eat the fruit of them, build houses and inhabit them," etc. Those precious promises found in God's holy book are enough to buoy up with hope the fainting heart of even the most severely tried one, who is looking for Jesus soon to come. I pray God that I may be a faithful worker in his vineyard here, that when he comes I may be one of that number who shall be accounted worthy to go in and possess the land, and eat the fruit thereof, and enjoy in his glorious presence a blissful immortality.

Enclosed you will find ——. Please use them for the Poor Fund, and I shall hold myself in readiness to add my mite to the Lord's treasury whenever my means will admit, assured that I shall receive in this world a hundred fold, with tribulation, and in the world to come life everlasting, if faithful.

Yours looking for the coming of our Lord,
Portland, Me. E. G. Osgood.

From Bro. W. Sheldon.

Bro. Grant:—I have been too busy recently to write much for the Crisis or Voice. During the past few months, I have not allowed much time to run to waste. Much of the time I have preached two sermons per day during the week, and three sermons on Sundays; and some of the time I have preached three sermons on week days, and four sermons on Sundays, besides administering the ordinance of baptism. A part of the time, our tent has been crowded inside and out. Some have turned to the Lord, a goodly number have been baptized, and many church members have been led to see the light of truth. Also many of our own brethren have been led to see our special nearness to the coming judgment more fully than ever before. The work is progressing, despite all opposition from foes within and without. Thank the Lord.

I hope soon to publish some works that will feed the household of faith, and enlighten unbelievers, and do away with some theological fog. Jesus is coming, and it is time to believe it, and act in harmony with this belief, in spite of those who cry, "Where is the promise of his coming?" To me all looks bright. I can see through all the fog yet raised to hide the truth on the time of deliverance. Cheer up, brethren; our King is coming soon. W. Sheldon.

Baraboo, Wis.

From Bro. Cornelius Sweet.

Mr. Grant:—Dear Sir,—Six months ago I did not know that there was any other person in the world who had taken the same position as myself. Seeing that I was somewhat advanced in years, I thought it my duty to begin to look after my future welfare. I had a great notion two years ago to join the Methodist church. I attended a protracted meeting in our village, where there was a good revival. I studied on it for some time, but could not make up my mind to join them. I then resorted to the Scripture, to search out my own salvation, for I knew there it was to be found by the help of God. I expressed my opinion on this subject to one of my shop mates, and told him what I was resolved to do. He then asked me if I had ever read any of the Adventists' writings, or knew how they believed. I told him I did not, never had seen one, nor heard one preach, and have not to this day. He then furnished me with some books, papers and tracts. I perused their contents for some time. The scales began to fall from my eyes. My heart leaped with joy. I found what I had been looking for. My eyes were opened. I saw the truth. The Bible became a new book, and a most delightful one. I thank God for this new discovery. May your works go on, and God give you speed. I then subscribed for the Crisis, and bought the "Signs of the Times," read the "Voice of the Church," and several other books, and the more I read the better I like them. It is quite a new thing in this place. I circulated a few tracts and lent my paper to all that dare read it; and I suppose you, by experience, well know the result. I was attacked on all sides, and in the most scoffing manner laughed at, and called crazy; and, to tell the truth, some people dared not read the paper because it bears the name of Second Advent. At the present I find that the heaviest of the storm is over. People find my position is based on the Scriptures and their truth. It is one of the seven wonders of the world to me to hear people, intellectual, well educated persons, look at Scripture in the light they do, and fashion it to suit their own belief. May God have mercy on such, and cause them to take hold of the truth.

As I have stated above, I have never heard a sermon preached by an Advent preacher, but if God spares my life to do so, I shall the first opportunity. But if I never hear one, my mind is fixed on following the truth of the Bible as far as I know, and by the help of the information of your valuable books and paper, the Crisis, I shall hope by the help of Christ and my well doing to make safe landing on the other side of "Jordan's stormy banks." Cornelius Sweet.

Utica, Ill.

From Bro. W. H. Berryman.

Bro. Grant:—I truly enjoy the heart-warming letters from the brethren, who in these days of scoffing dare to stand up for the truth; who are not to be silenced by a sneer; who, like Daniel, dare to do right, and, turning their face towards the heavenly Jerusalem, make their supplications to that God who has power not only over the lions, but over the demons. I love the faithful who dare to be true. Thank God he has a people who have not denied his name, and unto them he has given an open door that no man can shut, and who will proclaim God's truth although it is unpopular, and that in the face of an hypocritical, pharisaical, and would-be-called church, who are saying, "Where is the promise of his coming?"

God bless you, Bro. Grant, in your labors of love, and may God Almighty give you wisdom in your discussions to put the scoffers to flight, that God's cause and truth may run and be glorified; and may the God of all mercy bless the brethren, and help them to be living epistles, that God's truth may be lived as well as taught. We are truly hasting on to the great day of God, wherein the heavens will be on fire. Brethren, are we ready for the burning day? My prayer to God is, that his people may not only be ready for the day of fire, but ready for immortality and the land of peace. I sometimes try to sound the gospel trump. I profess to have no hobbies except that the Lord is soon coming to grind all discordant elements, factions, and disobedient men and women, and demons, to powder, and to establish a better government on earth than that which our fathers, sons and brothers have been fighting for. There will be no need of cannon and monitors, muskets, bayonets, sabres, and the munitions of war, to preserve peace and order in the kingdom of our Master. Thank the Lord, we may then delight ourselves in the abundance of peace. Your brother waiting for deliverance,
W. H. Berryman.

Floyd, Floyd Co., Iowa.

From Sr. S. E. Stewart.

Dear Friends:—How often do I, as I read the different articles in the Crisis, wish I could see the dear children of God who write them; but, thank God, the time is soon coming when we shall meet in his kingdom; then we shall see, not only those whose writings we have read, but all the dear ones who are striving for eternal life. I can say from my heart, "Come, Lord Jesus, and come quickly," and save thy tried and tempted children who are waiting and watching and praying for thy coming, that they may have deliverance. I want to be among the number that will be found watching when Christ shall come.

I feel that the strait and narrow path is a good one, and although I have been traveling it only about a year, yet I can say truly, that year has been the happiest year of my life, and I would not give up the enjoyment I now have for all the pleasures of a fashionable world. This world has lost all its charms for me. The christian's path is bestrewed with trials and temptations, but we can look beyond this vale of tears, and with the eye of faith see the promised land only a little in the distance; for Christ will soon come to gather his elect from the four corners of the globe; then we shall meet the dear ones who have fallen asleep in Jesus, and all the ransomed throng, and with them sing praises to God throughout eternity. Let us be faithful, humble and prayerful, that we may be ready to go in to the marriage supper of the Lamb, having on the spotless robes of righteousness.

Canaan, Vt. Sarah E. Stewart.

From Bro. J. E. Speights.

Bro. Grant:—One of the "times of refreshing from the presence of the Lord," which the humble disciple looking for His return enjoys, is communicating with each other, which, thanks to the press, can be more extensively done now than when the hope of the gospel was first promulgated to the world.

The "little flock" in Baltimore has long been scattered, yet a number survive the purifying and trying process, through contending for the faith once delivered to the saints, and are to-day united in sustaining public worship twice every Sunday in a respectable Hall, rented for the purpose. In common with the saints elsewhere, they are rejoicing in hope of soon seeing the King in his kingdom; endeavoring to hold fast that they have, that no man take their crown; exhorting each other, and so much the more as they see the day approaching. The time is drawing nigh when the just (or justified] shall live (or obtain eternal life) by his faith.

Encourage the faithful to be steadfast, for in a little while He that is to come will come and not tarry. Yours in the hope,

Baltimore, Md. J. S. Speights.

From Sr. Mary Jones.

Mr. M. Grant:—I have been reading your excellent paper, "The World's Crisis." I have been a member of the Baptist church nearly fifty years, and a constant reader of the Bible; but I must confess I never understood it until I read your paper. How I pity the professed christian. They do not understand the Bible. I lend my paper to every one I can get to read it. Mary Jones.

Zanesville, O.

Obituaries.

Allen. Died in Athens, Vt., Aug. 11th, Charles A. Allen, aged twenty-five years.

Once more the dark wing of death has cast a shadow over our household, and another loved member has been taken. In the midst of the years of usefulness, when the future promised so much of happiness, our brother has been snatched from us with scarcely a note of warning. Our hearts are filled with grief, yet we mourn not as those without hope, for in the days of prosperity Charles had given his heart to that Savior in whom he strongly trusted, and when the hour of dissolution came, he was ready to be offered. When his life was nearing its close, his weeping wife asked him what she should do when he was gone. He said, "Our Heavenly Father will care for you; trust in him." His life has ever been consistent and honorable, and he leaves many to mourn his loss, not bound to him by the ties of nature. We have left him, our brother, to sleep awhile among the green hills of Athens, till the morning dawns; then we hope for a glad reunion in the home of the blest. May the consolations of the gospel sustain the bereaved companion of our brother, and soothe the sorrows of all who mourn. O. P. Allen.

Hull. Died in Charlton, Mass., Sr. Mary A., wife of Bro. Daniel Hull, aged fifty-one years.

Sr. Mary was a firm believer in the gospel of the kingdom, and the soon coming of Christ to call his weary children home. Her sickness and death were caused by a cancer of fifteen years standing. For the last two years, and more especially the last four months, she has suffered severe pain. But during her sickness, she was resigned to the will of God, and very often expressed a wish to be at rest, when it was the Lord's will. She leaves to her afflicted companion a bright evidence that in the morning of the resurrection, if faithful, he will meet her among the incorruptible ones. It is a severe blow to Bro. Hull, but he is not left to mourn as those who have no hope. Sermon preached by the writer from 1 Thess. 4: 13–14.

H. K. Flagg.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Advices of the 5th instant.

Political news unimportant.

Much anxiety and exitement existed concerning the Atlantic cable, which had continued entirely without signals since the noon of the 2d inst.

The cattle plague continued violent, and energetic measures were progressing to check it.

SPAIN.

The Epoca asserts that orders have been sent to Gen. Guadara to declare war against San Domingo.

SCHLESWIG-HOLSTEIN.

Alarming rumors had been current of the total failure of the negotiations between Austria and Prussia relative to the Duchies, and the Vienna Bourse was so affected that all funds were falling. The latest dispatches say that all negotiations have not been broken off, but that they have merely entered upon a new phase.

BRAZIL.

The mails are received with additional details of the great naval victory of the Brazilian over the Paraguayan squadron. Both sides exhibited great heroism, and the slaughter is described as terrible. The battle occurred three leagues below the city of Corrientes, and lasted from 9.30 in the morning to 6 o'clock in the evening. The Paraguayan fleet, consisting of eight steamers and six gunboats mounting eighty-pounders and also battery of forty rifled cannon, was almost annihilated. The Brazilian force consisted of nine gunboats, and their loss was three hundred men and nineteen officers. The main army of the Brazilians, 17,000 strong, was encamped on the banks of Uruguay in Entre-rios, and on the confines of the Brazilian territory another wing of 14,000 men was stationed. The condition of the Brazilian army was unsatisfactory. Typhus and dysentery were making sad ravages. A body of 2000 Paraguayans desolated the province of Corrientes. They afterward burst into Rio Grande, swept the banks of the Parana, and were marching through that province.

Ancona remains the farthest point the cholera had reached in its northwestern route.

DOMESTIC.

Baltimore, Aug 16. The Richmond Republic of yesterday says:—"Most intense excitement was caused in this city yesterday afternoon by the explosion of a magazine containing a large quantity of powder, situated on the flat lying between the river and canal, about 200 yards below the pump house. The first report was heard at four o'clock, and was rapidly followed by the rapid explosion of shells, vividly recalling the fearful scenes of the ever memorable 3d of April. The ammunition was the property of the late rebel government, stored in small wooden houses known as the Ledgar Arsenal. It is supposed they contained 2000 rounds of shell, shot and rifle cartridges, and a large quantity of percussion caps were also stored in one of the houses. Fragments of shell were thrown for miles around. Persons living near Oregon Hill had to flee for their lives. Several houses were struck, but the inmates escaped. Many narrow escapes are reported. There are various reports and theories as to the origin of the explosion, but it is believed to have been accidental. It is reported that a member of the 11th U. S. Infantry (named Healy) and a negro were killed by the explosion."

New York, Aug. 16. The Tribune's Matamoras correspondent says the late rebel General Shelby has organized a corps of 4000 mounted men for the Mexican service and is in command of it. The corps is for special border service and is formed entirely of men in the late rebel army.

The Atlantic Cable.—The accounts of the loss of the Atlantic cable are exceedingly interesting. It seems that having been caught and injured in the mouth of the hawse pipe, about noon of the 2d inst., the cable soon after parted, and instantly sunk. Nothing then remained but to drag for it in 1950 fathoms water—rather a hopeless task, it would seem at first view. And yet those on board the Great Eastern seem to be confident that the grapnel actually caught the cable three several times, and would have brought it safely to the surface but for the breaking of the shackles twice, and the rope once. The Great Eastern, with an interruption of three days by bad weather, was engaged in these operations from the 2d to the 11th, when, becoming short of rope, she returned to England for better dragging machinery. In the meantime the parted cable lies in the bed of the ocean, about two and a quarter miles below two little buoys in that vast expanse of waters. If it is again hit upon and recovered, we shall have the pleasure of recording one of the most remarkable achievements of modern times.—Journal 18th.

San Domingo.—The China brings news that Spain has ordered General Gandara to commence hostilities against San Domingo. This is corroborated by a statement in the Washington Chronicle made up from the latest news received at the State Department from the Dominican Republic. The Chronicle says that General Gandara, the Queen of Spain's Commander in San Domingo, demands of the Republic an acknowledgement that Spain went to take possession of the Dominican soil and people at the spontaneous desire of the people; that her conduct while there was generous, and that she leaves it entirely of her own free will, because she has such a profound respect for the rights of every people, without regard to their strength or weakness, that when she discovered that the Dominicans preferred their national independence she would not remain.

This means that the Dominicans shall relieve Spain of the charge of infracting the "Monroe Doctrine," while it opens the door for future reclamations for war expennitures. The Dominican Government refused to sanction such an admission, and General Gandara has declared a blockade of all the coasts and harbors of the Dominican Republic.

The Western Crops.—According to the dispatches from Illinois, the wheat crop has been damaged very considerably—probably fully one-fourth being ruined. In almost every place it is injured more or less, only one or two despatches reporting the crop large and good. The crop of oats is large, but it would appear to be injured by rains and storms about one-fourth. The barley crop is also injured very materially. The crop of rye is reported fair in many places, but badly damaged in others. The corn crop, from all accounts, looks finely, and the rains have improved it rather than otherwise, except in low grounds. Thus far, the prospect is that Illinois will have the largest crop of corn ever known."

☞ Destroy the passion for telling a tale, we pray you.

Bridgeport, Conn., Aug. 15.—An extra freight train was sent up the Housatonic Railroad this morning. By an accident to the cylinder of the engine the freight train stopped on the track near the paper mill at Trumbull, about three miles from this city. A flag was sent back on the track by the conductor on the freight train, to warn the passenger train of the danger. When the latter train came up it hitched on to the freight train, and was slowly drawing it back to Bridgeport at the rate of about eight miles an hour. When near the Pequonnock Mills the train was met by a new locomotive coming up the track on a trial trip. At a curve in the road the new engine came suddenly in collision with the train backing down. Several of the cars were entirely demolished, the engine going literally through the rear passenger car. Six persons, three of them ladies, were instantly killed, and twenty were severely wounded. Very many were scalded by the steam issuing from the locomotive boiler.

The Causes of Railway Disasters.—A veteran railway engineer of acknowledged skill said some six years since to a young brother of the profession: "Within ten years you will hear of frequent and fatal accidents on our American railways. They will increase to an extent which will be absolutely appalling. The wood and iron on which the wheels of the trains run last but a certain time. At present they are mostly new, and the danger of which I speak does not exist; but they will continue to look sound to the eye until their texture has been changed by constant hammering of the heavily loaded wheels, and then they will suddenly give way. The first warning the companies will have of their unsoundness, with the exception of the length of time they have been in use, will be some accident to the trains that pass over them. But the time which has elapsed since they were laid will not be regarded. The desire for profit will induce the railway companies to leave them on the track as long as the superintendent finds no defect to the eye, and thus disaster and the discovery of their defective condition will occur at the same moment." What was predicted six years ago is beginning to take place.

The Messiah.—The colored people everywhere look upon the Yankees as their deliverers from bondage. They speak of their coming as the advent of the Messiah—and sometimes in their extravagant demonstrations of joy call the Yankees the individual Messiah. So I was introduced to Rosa's mother. Passing along King street, near the citadel, I met an old negress with a basket on her head, wearing a brown dress and roundabout. She knew that I was a Yankee and made a profound courtesy.

"How do you do, Aunty?" was my salutation.

"O bless de Lord, I'se very well, tank you," grasping my hand, and dancing for joy. "I am sixty-nine years old," she said, "but I feel as if I want but sixteen." She broke into a chant:

"Ye's long been a-comin,
Ye's long been a-comin,
Ye's long been a-comin,
For to take de land;
And now ye's a-comin,
And now ye's a-comin,
And now ye's a-comin,
For to rule de land."

This was followed by "blessing of de Lord."

"Then you are glad the Yankees are here?" I said.

"O! chile, I can't bress de Lord enough; but I doesn't call you Yankees?"

"What do you call us?"

"I call you Jesus' aids, and I call you head man de Messiah." She burst out into a raphsody of hallelujah, thanksgivings and praises, calling us the agents of Providence. "I can't bress de Lord enough; and bress you, chile, I can't love you enough for comin," she exclaimed.

"Were you not afraid, Aunty, when the shells fell into the town?"

She straightened up, raised her eyes, and with a look of triumphant joy said:

"When Mr. Gillmore fired the big gun and I hear de shell a-rushin ober my head, I say, come, dear Jesus, and I feel nearer to Heaben dan I ever feel before!"

I bade her good-bye, stepped aside and wrote the conversation in my note-book, that it might not escape me. The old woman looked after us, and pointed us out to all her friends as agents of the Messiah.!

ITEMS.

☞ A Canadian gentleman says the crops this year will prove to be the largest ever harvested in Canada, and the yield will be of a very fine quality. The favorable spring, with genial rains and the fine harvest weather have done wonders this season.

☞ A Georgia paper represents affairs in the southwestern portion of that State as flourishing. Most of the negroes remained on the plantations, hiring themselves to their former masters, who, it is said, are disposed to treat them fairly. In consequence the crops are flourishing and promise well throughout that region.

☞ English engineers sent to survey the Dead Sea report that the depression of the surface of that sea below the Mediterranean varies from 1289½ to 1290 feet, the former being its position in the winter, and during the freshets, the latter in the early summer months. It is the deepest known fissure below the general surface or level of the earth.

☞ A tornado visited South Bend, Ind., last Wednesday, unroofing the court house, a church and other buildings and destroying a large bridge worth $24,000. The damage done is estimated at $200,000.

☞ Colt's factory is to be run twenty hours a day, in consequence of the increased demand for pistols. Many of the orders, it is said, come from Southern negroes.

☞ The number of persons in Washington regularly and temporarily holding positions of trust and emolument under government, or who are paid for transacting business with the government, is five thousand.

☞ It is said that salt rheum and other cutaneous diseases can be cured by binding a piece of silk oil cloth on the part affected, and keeping it there a certain length of time. The cure frequently takes place in fifteen hours.

☞ Last Friday the Union Hotel at Saratoga entertained 490 people.

Married.

In Byron, Me., Sunday, Aug. 13th, 1865, by Eld. W. H. Mitchell, Bro. John C. Libby, of Biddeford, and Sr. Bernice M. Taylor, of Byron.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

Edwin Burnham .... Sunday, Aug. 27th and through September.

East Boston.

H. F. Carpenter .... Sunday, Aug. 27th
Hiram Munger .... Wednesday evening, Aug. 30th

New Bedford .... Sunday, Aug. 27th
J. S. White.

Sharon, Ct., (Pine Swamp) .... Sunday, Sept. 3d
Campmeeting at New Preston .... Sept. 5th
Ira Morgan.

Alton Campmeeting .... Thursday, Aug. 31st
Portland .... Sunday, Sept. 3d
Brunswick .... Tuesday evening, Sept. 5th
East Livermore, (or where Bro. Hanscom appoints), Wednesday and Thursday evenings, Sept. 6th and 7th.
Britton's Mills .... Friday, Sept. 8th
Carthage .... Sunday, Sept. 10th
From Monday to Wednesday where Bro. Wheeler appoints.
Bryant's Pond, (if conveyance) .... Sept. 15th
Mechanic Falls .... Sept. 16th
West Poland .... Sunday, Sept. 17th
South Poland .... Wednesday evening, Sept. 20th
Hiram Munger.

Brockport, N. Y., (as the church there may appoint), Sunday, Aug. 27th. C. F. Sweet.

New Britain .... Sept. 3d
R. Williams.

Cumberland, (Merrill school-house), Aug. 27th, 2 P. M.
Richmond, (Reed meeting-house) .. Sept. 3d, 10½ A. M.
Evening, Reed school-house, or where H. D. Reed may appoint. R. R. York.

Chichester, N. H., (at the Pine Ground), every two weeks until further notice. S. S. Mooney.

Lee, N. H. .... Sunday, Aug. 27th
L. Boutell.

Belgrade, (Baptist meeting-house) ... Sunday, Aug. 27th
H. B. Sevey.

Burlington, Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday evenings, Aug. 30th, 31st, and Sept. 1st.
Lowell .... Saturday evening, Sept. 2d and over the following Lord's day.
J. S. Jordan.

Notices.

GENERAL CAMPMEETING AT WILBRAHAM, MASS.

Providence permitting, a general campmeeting will commence at Wilbraham, on the old ground upon the hill, Monday, August 21st, and continue one week.

Ample accommodations will be provided for board and horse keeping. Board at 70 cents per day. Single meal,—breakfast or supper,—25 cents; dinner 30 cents. The boarding department is under the charge of the Committee, and any profits accruing from the same will go to the support of the meeting.

Those going from Boston to the campmeeting can take the 4.45 A. M. train at the Boston and Worcester depot, and arrive at the camp ground at 7.27 A. M., or they can take the 2.30 P. M. express train, and arrive in Worcester at 4 P. M., and then change to an accommodation train, which leaves Worcester at 4.15, and arrives at Wilbraham at 6.23 P. M.

Arrangements have been made with the Eastern R. R. Co., by which those taking the cars from Portsmouth and intermediate places for Boston, paying full fares at the ticket offices, can have free return passes by application to Geo. T. Adams, 167 Hanover street, Boston, or to him on the campground.

On the Conn. R. R. from South Vernon, and intermediate places to Springfield, those going to campmeeting will buy a common ticket, and be sure and ask the Conductor for a return Check from Wilbraham campmeeting. This Check must be endorsed by Geo. T Adams, at the Wilbraham campmeeting. As it is most likely that the R. R. Co. from Bellows Falls to South Vernon will do the same as the Conn. R. R., all who come from Bellows Falls will also please ask the Conductor for a return pass.

On the Western R. R. and also the Worcester, the fare has been reduced one third. Tickets good Aug. 19th to Sept. 1st, to be obtained at the various R. R. ticket offices, on the Western R. R., and at the Westboro', Framingham and Boston offices, on the Worcester R. R. Fare from Boston to Wilbraham and return $3.90. Please remember to call for Campmeeting Tickets at the offices on the Western and Worcester Roads.

The cars leave Springfield for the camp-ground, (distance nine miles), at 7.15 and 11.45 A. M., and 5 P. M.

S. G. Mathewson,
Miles Grant,
Geo. T. Adams,
H. Munger,
J. Hemenway,
} Committee of Arrangements.

Rhode Island to Wilbraham.

Brethren in Rhode Island who are going to the Wilbraham Campmeeting can obtain through tickets, (good from Aug. 19th to Sept. 1st,) at a reduction of one-third of the usual fare, by applying at the Providence and Worcester depot, Providence, R. I. Call for Campmeeting tickets.

I. C. Humes, for the Brethren.

Wilbraham via. Rutland, Vt.

I have just seen the Superintendent of the Rutland and Burlington R. R. He gave me authority to advertise that any who wish to attend the campmeeting at Wilbraham, can go over that road from Rutland for one fare there and back.

M. Batchelor.

☞ Campmeeting Information.

Bro. Grant:—I have made arrangements with the R. and Saratoga R. R. Co., and the Saratoga, Whitehall and Rutland R. R. Co., through their Superintendent, J. V. Baker, to carry over their road to Albany and return at half price. Tickets can be purchased at Castleton, Vt., of Mr. Isaac M. Guy (the former station master), with his name endorsed, and pay fare one way. Tickets must be endorsed at the camp-ground by Bro. Adams. Brethren from Castleton will have to take the midnight train from Rutland, and stop over one train at Saratoga, and go by the way of Albany (instead of Troy), when they will arrive in time to connect about nine o'clock with the Western R. R. train for Springfield.

Tickets can also be purchased at Fort Edward of the Station Agent. His name must be endorsed on the ticket, and it must also be endorsed by Bro. Adams on the camp-groudd, and it will entitle a return passage from Albany.

The Fort Edward, or Sandy Hill brethren, by taking the 7 o'clock train A. M., will meet the Castleton brethren, who take the midnight train, and stop over at Saratago, one train in the morning early. Solomon Hale.

General Campmeeting at Alton Bay, N. H.

Providence permitting, a general campmeeting will commence at Alton Bay, N. H., Sunday, Aug. 27th, holding through the week, and over the following Sunday. Ample accommodations will be provided for board and horse keeping. Board at 60 cents per day; single meal, breakfast or supper, 25 cents; dinner, 35 cents. The boarding department and general lunch stand will be under the charge of Bro. J. S. Moulton. A Graham table will also be set for all who choose that way of living.

We have erected a stable on the ground, and procured a good pasture feed, so our friends need not be afraid to come with horses.

Arrangements have been made with the railroad and steamboat companies as follows: Passengers from Boston, and on the line of the Boston and Maine R. R., by taking trains that leave Boston at 7.30 A. M., 12 M., or 3 P. M., via. Dover and Winnipiseogee R. R., will go through to Alton Bay without change of cars, fare one way.

Passengers from Portland, and on the line of the P. S. and P. R. R., will take the trains leaving Portland at 8.45 A. M. or 3 P. M., and change cars at Dover. Fare reduced one third.

Passengers from Concord, and on the line of the Boston, Concord, and Montreal R. R., by taking trains that leave Concord 10.31 A. M., will connect at Wier's landing with steamers for Alton Bay, half fare.

Arrangements have been made with Captain Sanborn of the Steamer Lady to take all from the Wier's at two o'clock, Monday, Aug. 28th, direct to Alton Bay, so that those leaving Concord 10.31 A. M., by stopping at the Wier's until the 2 o'clock train comes down, can go to the camp-ground with those that come from above the Wier's.

Passengers who take the cars at Newport Monday morning, will arrive at Alton Bay at 3½ P. M. the same day.

Fare reduced one half on the Concord and Portsmouth railroad.

Please remember and call for campmeeting tickets at the several ticket offices. Be sure and bring under beds to fill with straw on the ground; also other bedding. All who can will provide themselves with tents; but let none stay away that are without, for we will see that they have a place to lodge.

J. G. Smith, in behalf of the Committee.

General Western Campmeeting.

This meeting will commence Monday, Sept. 4th, at Amboy, Ill., and continue over the following Lord's day. Our friends will remember how very interesting our meeting was last year, and what an impulse for good was given to the infant cause in the West. We are yet weak and few, and have need of all the means that can be employed to build us up, and enlarge our sphere of usefulness. The campmeeting is one of the most efficient means of promulgating the truth, and building up the general interests of religion among us. Let all who can arrange be there. Let every one encourage his neighbor by a good example of sacrifice and consecration. Elds. Wm. C. Thurman, C. B Turner, and Hiram Munger from the East, and Eld. D. R. and Mrs. M. S. Mansfield, Eld. Wm. Sheldon, and many others of our most interesting speakers from the West, are expected to be present. In view of the increase of light and knowledge upon the time of the Lord's advent, we should act with great earnestness and zeal to prepare for the coming of the kingdom of God.

D. S. Clark,
E. Royce,
D. W. Knight,
Wm. McCullock,
E. K. Burrington,
J. V. Himes,
} Committee.

Campmeeting at New Preston, Ct.

There will be a campmeeting in New Preston, Ct., commencing Sept. 4th, and hold over the next Lord's day. Board by the day or single meal can be had on the ground, also horse keeping on reasonable terms.

Those coming to this meeting by railroad, will take the stage at New Milford on the Housatonic Railroad. The fare from New Milford is seventy-five cents. We hope to see a general rally at this central campmeeting. The last day is just before us. The signs are thickening fast. Soon we shall have a meeting that will not break up. Come, then, brethren and sisters, in the name of the Lord. Lay by the cares and labors of this life, and let us "strengthen the things that remain."

Rufus Whitehead,
H. J. Baldwin,
John Ackerman,
C. M. Reynolds,
H. M. Bolles,
} Committee.

Basket Meeting.

A basket meeting of the "Second Advent church of Christ" in Fairfield, Huron Co., Ohio, will be held in the maple grove of Mr. Charles Penfield, on the "Diagonal road," near the corners, formerly known as "Wakeman's Mills," on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 9th and 10th. Should the weather be unpropitious, the assembling will then be in the Penfield shool-house close by. Preaching Saturday and Sunday, at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 2 P. M. Lord's Supper on Sunday, 1½ P. M. Prayer and conference on Saturday, forenoon and afternoon services, and also in the evenings, at the school-house. Brethren and sisters from Plymouth, Norwalk, Berlin, and other places in the vicinity, are invited to attend. Ask your friends to come with you, and have your baskets well filled for the entertainment of strangers. Bro. Jonas Wendel of Edinboro', Pa., is invited to be present.

By order of Committee,
G. W. Stetson, Evangelist.

Notice.

To the isolated brethren of Iowa—Greeting:—Those of you who wish preaching some time during the coming year, will please write me immediately; giving a description of the place, the people, and the state of religious interest, and how much, if anything, can be raised to aid the conference in supporting the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom among you. I wish to know where is the best place to use the means entrusted to my hands. If any know of a good opening for missionary labor, let me know at once.

P. S. W. Deyo,
Iowa Christian Conference Missionary.
Strawberry Point, Iowa.

Conference.

The next Annual Maine Advent Conference will be holden in Belgrade, to commence Sept. 7th and continue over Sunday. The meeting will be in the Baptist house, one mile from the depot. We hope there will be a general rally to this meeting, and that brethren will come filled with the spirit of Christ, and in earnest to unite their efforts to spread the truth, build up the cause of Christ, and save sinners. Those coming to the meeting may call on Brn. Wesley Greely, Thomas Rowlins, Thomas Eldridge, and Eld. Joseph Cumming.

H. B. Sevey, Pres.
W. H. Mitchell, Sect.

Meeting in Darien, N. Y.

There will be a two days meeting in Darien, Genesee Co., N. Y., at the Baptist house, commencing Friday evening, Sept. 8th, and continue over the Sabbath. It is also the quarterly meeting of the Christian Conference of Western New York. Brethren coming from the East will find a conveyance at Croft's Station, on the New York Central, five miles west of Batavia, at 1½ P. M. Also, for those coming from the West, at Corfu Station, at 4 P. M., Friday. Do not forget the empty straw ticks. A general attendance is looked for. B. C. Simonds.

Campmeeting Notice.

There will be a campmeeting in New Preston, Ct., commencing Monday, Sept. 4th, and hold over the Sabbath. Particulars hereafter. In behalf of the committee of arrangements. A. Ross.

Conference.

There will be a quarterly conference at South Hope, Me., to commence Sept. 8th, at 2 o'clock P. M., and hold over the Sabbath. Preaching brethren and all lovers of truth are cheerfully invited to attend. S. K. Partridge.

Wisconsin Conference.

Probably our Wisconsin annual meeting will be held in the big tent, on the bank of Devil's Lake, in Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis., beginning Sept. 22d. Particulars in time. W. Sheldon.

Notice.

If any of our preaching brethren, on their return from the Wilbraham campmeeting or from other places to the Alton Bay campmeeting, can stop with us and preach on Sabbath 27th, we wish notice in due season. Edward Blaisdell, Cor. Sec.

Dover, N. H.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

S. Lamson, P. S. W. Deyo, S. Hawkins, J. W. Taylor, D. Campbell, C. R. Danks.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

Mrs. George A. Otis—West Cummington, Mass.
Eld. D. J. Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
Maria Mathews Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
H. F. Carpenter—Rutland, Vt.
Mrs. Walter Pratt—No. 4 Poplar Place, Boston, Mass
C. Goodrich—No. 2 Central Square, East Boston, Mass.
Bro. Wm. C. Thurman's address for the present is Boston, Mass., Box 292, care of Miles Grant.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The Emphatic Diaglott: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library; with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

Christian Baptism: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid; $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

Rahab the Harlot. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

Why the Shoe Pinches. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

Dictionary of the Holy Bible, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

The Scriptural Question Book. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

Canon of the Holy Scriptures examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

The Great Symbolic Chart of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

Glad Tidings; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts.; postage, 2 cts.

Fables of Infidelity and Facts of Faith. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.00.

The taking of Human Life incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

Death not Life; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 2 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

Glad Voices; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty-five or less.

The Mission of Suffering. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 5c, postage 2c.

Thurman's Bible Chronology, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

Muller's Life of Trust. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

Diphtheria: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. Price, 10 cts.; by mail, 12 cts.

The Syriac New Testament. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. Price $2.50. Postage 36 cts.

Non-Resistance; or, the Spirit of Christianity restored. By W. C. Thurman. Price 20 cts.; postage 4 cts.

Chloe Lankton; or, Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75 cents. By mail, 87 cts.

Likeness of Wm. Miller, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jno. T. Curry. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton, "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; [illegible]

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 18th chap. of Isaiah, [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, [illegible] By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, [illegible] By C. F. Sweet. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the promised Messiah. By Mrs. Mary A. Seymour. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. The Devil: his origin, personality, power, and doom. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for preparing all the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated health institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 14, [illegible] By H. K. Flagg. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.00.
By Express—1500 pages for $1.00.
Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; postage, 2 cents. Free to the poor.

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers. 36 pages.
The Saints' Inheritance .... 48 "
The New Heavens and New Earth .... 24 "
The Voice of Warning .... 24 "
The Advent at Hand .... 24 "
The Last Days .... 24 "
The Church not in Darkness .... 24 "
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one) .... 24 "
Outline of the Coast of Man .... 8 "

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State .... 24 pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead .... 24 "
Ghostology .... 48 "
Man's Future State .... 12 "
The Key of Truth .... 12 "

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved .... 24 pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment .... 12 "
Future Punishment Destruction .... 12 "
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts) .... 12 "
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Lost 24 "
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary .... 24 "
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality .... 12 "

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one) .... 36 pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one) .... 36 "
One Thing .... 12 "
Judson's Letter on Dress .... 12 "
Duty of Christians (a peace tract) .... 24 "
Leaflets for Letters,—6 cents per set.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—[illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the Sign of thy coming, and the end of the World?" [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the Signs in the Sun, in the Moon, and in the Stars; [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology vs. Bible; [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, [illegible]

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25

ENGLISH BIBLES.

Sent by mail, postpaid, at the following prices:—

Diamond,	morocco, gilt, marginal references,	$1.75
"	roan, " "	1.10
"	roan, " brass rims and clasps,	1.70
"	calf, colored edges, marg. ref.,	1.35
Pearl,	morocco, gilt, reference between verses,	2.40
"	morocco " circuit bind., marg. ref.,	3.20
"	roan, " reference between verses,	1.75
"	roan, " rims and clasps, marg. ref.,	2.00
Nonpareil,	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.00
Minion,	morocco, gilt, without references,	2.40
"	roan, " without references,	1.90
"	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.50
"	calf, marbled edges, without ref.,	2.15

Address all orders, with the money, to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

LEAFLETS FOR LETTERS.

1. Home .... 16 pp.
2. Life Insurance .... 16 pp.
3. Lost! Lost! .... 8 pp.
4. Brother, shall we meet? .... 8 pp.
5. About God (for children) .... 4 pp.
6. Worth Knowing .... 4 pp.
7. Peace in Christ .... 4 pp.
8. Now .... 4 pp.

The above practical tracts, envelope size, will be sent, postpaid—

One set (64 pp.) .... 6 c.
1300 pp. $1.00
1800 pp., (by express, not prepaid) $1.00

Address all orders to MILES GRANT Boston, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

THE RIGHTEOUS DEAD.

Within the narrow grave they sleep,
Our silent dead;
Above, the stars their vigils keep,
While stricken friends in anguish weep
For loved ones fled.

Mankind's most stern, relentless foe,
Hath struck them down—
Amid the dust hath laid them low,
And yet, sometime, full well we know
They'll wear a crown.

For O, a day is coming fast,
Is nigh at hand,
When we shall hear a trumpet blast
Proclaim that Time itself hath past
From sea and land;

And in the heavens shall be seen
A wondrous sign;
And grander than the grandest dream
Shall banners wave, and helmets gleam
On brows divine.

And we amid that throng shall see
A matchless face—
The Crucified of Galilee,
Clothed with all power and majesty,
And heaven's own grace.

Lo! in that hour the Crucified
Our dead restores;
Those lowly mounds, ranged side by side,
At His command shall open wide
Their prison doors.

In immortality arrayed
Our friends shall be;
Nature's great debt forever paid,
Father and son, matron and maid,
Their King shall see.

Our praises shall encircle him,
Our Sacrifice!
Life's rarest wine shall overbrim,
While rays of coming glory swim
Before our eyes.

O, that the hours would swifter flee,
For we have seen
Signs that proclaim we soon shall see
On David's throne, in majesty,
The Nazarene.

MRS. CHARLES A. KNOWLES.

For the World's Crisis.

LABORS AMONG THE FREEDMEN.

BRO. GRANT:—I have received two communications from Bro. Leslie, one of the missionaries to the Freedmen in Tennessee, extracts from which I would like to see in the Crisis, for the information of its readers, and to awaken a deeper interest in the cause of missionary labor among that poor, oppressed people. Bro. Leslie went out from this vicinity, and I KNOW him to be an earnest, competent, and faithful laborer in the cause of our coming King. I trust our brethren of the Crisis will give him their sympathy and co-operation in his field of labor. I think we all should take hold of the work in earnest, in giving this people the gospel of the kingdom of God; for the time is short. What we do must be done quickly. It appears to me that God in his providence has placed this people in their present position for a special purpose; i. e., to give them the everlasting gospel of the kingdom of God nigh at hand.

Yours in Christ, L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

Newton Upper Falls, Mass.

Near Nashville, Tenn., June 28, 1865.

Dear Bro. Cunningham:—I have wanted to write to you ever since I arrived here, but have had so much else to do that I have been obliged to delay it. My health is quite good; at any rate I keep going. You know that as long as a clock keeps time it is not considered out of order. Here is a plenty of work to do, and if any one has a will to do it, something can be accomplished. I have a little more than I ought to do, but as long as I can keep up it is best to have it. My work among the sick is the most exhausting; and I have tried to avoid giving medicine outside of our congregation and school, but have not succeeded in throwing off many; for they will come; and in the condition in which they are I cannot refuse to do something for them. As I go along the road they come out of their cabins and call to me: "Doctor! wont you come in and see my sick mother, child, brother?" or some other relative or friend. Of course I must go in, and if the poor one is not really in the jaws of death, I must give medicine, and when once begun have to continue till death comes or health returns.

My field of labor is thus wide, for there is no bad habit or delinquency among the people but I can point out, and my influence among them is almost unlimited. I have induced many to abandon the use of snuff, coffee, and the habit of smoking, which were killing them. They thank me for it, while they say they feel so much better. I intend, if I can get time, to give a lecture on the effects of tobacco, coffee, and whiskey. We are making the coming of our Lord a subject of thought and speaking. The preparation for this event is the great burden of my preaching here. The nearness of it will be my theme hereafter when the people understand to some extent at least the reasons for looking for the Savior soon.

* * * * * * * *

My gratitude for your kindness to me, and help in the good work here, cannot be expressed. In the day of Christ, I think you will see that it was not bestowed in vain. I am doing what I can, with the means I have, and the ability which God giveth. Pray for me and the Mission. I am yours for the truth, I. I. LESLIE.

Near Nashville, Tenn., Aug. 5, 1865.

My Dear Bro. C.:—In the midst of much labor I try to fulfill my promise to give you a few thoughts in relation to this people, and the condition in which they are at present.

There is something about these children of Ham that interests me. When I remember that their history is a part of the history of the world ever since the flood, and how large a space in it they occupy; the monuments which still stand testifying to their former greatness and glory; and not least striking, the varied dealings of God with them through so many ages, I look upon them with a kind of awe; for it seems to me that they are here in this nation so far removed from their native land by a design of God, and to accomplish some grand purpose of his. What that design or purpose may be we may not understand; but surely God will accomplish something glorious by the scattering abroad of this ancient nation, and their enslaved and downtrodden condition. Their sufferings here have been untold, and will ever remain so. The system of oppression was never more perfect in any nation of the earth than it has been in this, here at the South.

Much that is here told us of the cruelties of slavery is not to be doubted. I have never listened to an account of suffering by these oppressed ones, which I did not fully believe. Whenever I have asked questions to test the truthfulness of their story, it has been confirmed in my mind by their ready and straightforward answers. Nothing which they relate seems fictitious, and it would be difficult to color many of these events in their personal history. I could relate a score of incidents told me by men and women (occurring some of them years ago, and others more recently) that would cause tears of sympathy to start from every eye. But there is so much that remains of slavery—so many diabolical acts committed by it, even now before our eyes, that in relating any of its cruelties it is not necessary to rehearse what has been told us, but state what we have seen and are every day witnessing.

Slavery is not yet dead. It may be fast dying; every good man hopes this is so; but it "still lives" and crushes its victims. Its head may be wounded, but it breathes and is able to sting, poison and destroy much of God's good and fair creation. Thousands are suffering to-day from its direct attacks, and hundreds of thousands from its baleful influences. Here only, where it still lifts its head, can be fully realized its strength, power and influence. Its deeds of blackness, darkness and night are the same as ever where the arm of the government is not now directly extended in behalf of the suffering victims. Worse than ever would be the condition of these partially freed ones, if these States could return to their former position in the Union. Slavery, that then was sometimes merciful, would have no pity; where it then sought to build up itself, it would seek to crush and destroy whatever came within its reach. All that was then beautiful here, in spite of it, would fade, decay, and perish. What a day that would be if God should permit it to return. But he will not. Never, no, never can it come back.

The great question of suffrage for the colored race is agitating the nation; and here it is most bitterly opposed by all, union men as well as rebels. What the result of this agitation will be, I confess myself unable to determine. Were I at the North, and had never seen the condition of things here, I might have, without perhaps a doubt, believed the right of suffrage would soon be granted to the black man. But I now see obstacles in the way which I fear will not be speedily, if ever, removed. I believe most firmly that the only hope of the nation is in giving to this people what God demands of us; but whether we shall do it, or not, is the question which with me is unanswered. I look upon the nation as not saved. Its wickedness is great and increasing. Its heart is corrupt, and of its cleansing there is no evidence. The antichristian elements which it now contains, and which are increasing daily, together with a growing corruption in all so called evangelical bodies, make it evident to every christian observer that in morality and piety the nation is retrograding. That it will fill up the measure of its guilt and iniquity, like all other nations of the earth, and be ready with them for the pouring out of the wrath of God, who can doubt?

Yet there is something which can be done. The gospel can be preached to tens of thousands here who have never heard it. There is something which must be done. The glad tidings of the kingdom of God at hand must be proclaimed here. Has God opened this wide field without having any reference to the proclamation of his coming kingdom therein? May we not think,—yea, ought we not to believe that He had especial reference to the preaching of the everlasting gospel here at the South when he opened this door, ever before closed against it? Can we believe that He meant every other truth should here be proclaimed, and this never be sounded in the ears of the millions here hastening on to the judgment? If this gospel of the kingdom is to be preached in all the world for a witness, must it not be preached here?

"Shall we whose souls are lighted"

be found with our work done when called in from labor, if it is seen that we have never entered this part of the great vineyard of God? Will not these millions have reason to say to us in that day, "You had the light, but gave it not to us; you warned us not of our danger, nor told us of these things"?

How many are waiting to hear and receive the "glad tidings" in this land of darkness, we know not; but surely there are some. It is not for us to ask how many will be saved when we preach the gospel. To "sound the alarm" is our duty, not to number the people who may hear it and come. Wickedness abounds here, and so much the more is there need of the condemning and saving truths of God being preached to these multitudes. How far, oh, how far are they from the light of the gospel which shines on us! Darkness, gross darkness covers the land and people. Down in the dust of ignorance and superstition they lie, bound to the earth. Nothing but the trump of God will startle many; but there are some to whose ears the tidings of His coming will be startling and attractive, and whose hearts will respond to the cry, "Behold he cometh!"

The colored people, where they are not prejudiced by the whites against this truth, will receive it joyfully. It will do those good who are godly, and awaken thousands among those who are impenitent. The word of God here is little known, and less regarded. It is by theories, dreams and visions that the people are guided. A "thus saith the Lord" is seldom if ever brought forward as an argument or proof of what is affirmed. Sectarianism abounds. It is nearly all the religion there is here. It is felt every where. Even these poor blacks are yoked by it, and many of them can see no good except in the sect to which they are bound. Ignorant of the Bible and every thing pertaining to it except the little they have heard read by their teachers, they know not that it should be taken as their guide and rule of faith and practice instead of their church creed, impressions, dreams, and visions. When told that the word of God was given us to be our only guide, and that we must depend entirely upon it for a knowledge of the way in which we should go, they seem amazed and are incredulous. A church without a creed and name to them is no church at all. It must be a Methodist, Baptist, Presbyterian, or whatever church they are in, or it cannot be a church. What is the name of your church? they ask. If we answer, the church of Christ, they are in the dark as to whether we are christians or not; but take some name and give them, and you are recognized as having a right to be called christians.

But impressions, visions and dreams are the principal guides by which these poor creatures are led; and while the sects to which they belong may in their creeds not recognize but disavow them, still all, both black and white, are permitted to exercise their fullest faith in them and conduct themselves accordingly.

My dear brother, if there ever was a need of faithful, enlightened missionaries in any land, they are needed here. The Bible is a sealed book to this people, and there is no interest manifested in regard to its teachings. The religion here is outside of it, and thousands are expecting to be saved who daily violate its most positive precepts and requirements. What a cry will go up here when the great white throne appears! How many will be undeceived then!

The responsibility which rests upon us who have the light is great. God grant that we may give the light to others as freely as it has been given to us. Hoping to have my work done when He comes, and rest with you in the kingdom of Christ, I subscribe myself

Your brother in the gospel, I. I. LESLIE.

For the World's Crisis.

TAKE US HOME.

O Savior, hear our earnest prayer,
And let us in thy coming glory share;
Lead us thyself through life's rough way,
And bring us to the realms of endless day.

CHORUS.
O Savior, come and take us home,
No longer let us weary roam;
Bring back our loved ones from the tomb,
And make this dreary earth like Eden bloom.

A few more days of toil and pain,
And Thou wilt come on earth in peace to reign;
A few more tears shall dim the eye,
Then we shall reach the home where none shall die.

O little flock, march bravely on,
Soon every shade of sorrow will be gone;
Lift up your head, O trembling soul,
The storms will break, the thunders cease to roll.

We'll journey on, it won't be long
Ere we shall sing the happy victor's song;
We'll bear the cross, the crown to win,
And soon be free from sorrow and from sin.

Danville, C. E. MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

For the World's Crisis.

A LESSON FROM NATURE.—No. 2.

It must be apparent to florists and gardeners generally, that there are many plants, highly useful, as well as exquisitely ornamental, which are incapacitated to support themselves. Although so useful and ornamental, their very structure proves they were made to be upheld by a sterner body. Look at those little claspers so plentifully furnished all along their attenuated body, and remember that nature could not have been complete without these very dependents. Possibly some of these choice plants which proffer us their delicious fruits, might without the aid and support of a trellis, yield an occasional cluster, but left to make their way upon the ground might be buried by the foot of the unwary traveler, instead of pleasing his palate and satisfying the keen demands of appetite.

Again my eyes are greeted every day with beauties exquisite in form and color, from the same dependent family, which, with a little care and attention, may be shaped so as to make their beauty still more beautiful, and their luxuriant growth cover many imperfections of the body which supports them.

So when we look at the church, we see many of the features manifest by this portion of nature. Many indeed there are, possessing some very useful talent, but may be imbecile in some points, and need supporting; and could they find the right shaped trellis, or a properly formed body, on which they might affix their claspers, and lean, they might adorn the church, and satisfy her cravings in these last days, as she anxiously inquires, "Watchman, what of the night?" Will not the church which, according to Inspiration, possesses "eyes before, behind, and within," use these organs of vision in looking after these things, and see to it that the gifts of God are properly appropriated to the edifying of the body of Christ, instead of heedlessly allowing them to be covered and trampled under foot?

Is it not apparent to the close observer that many do possess gifts for writing, teaching, preaching, exhortation, etc., who yet for various reasons remain undeveloped? Will not the church look up the treasures that God has prepared for his storehouse, and see if there be not enough to fill it? What if the man, or the woman, who possesses light, and has ability to explain some Bible subjects, is weak or ignorant on others,—shall that gift be thrown away? Nay, verily. What if he, or she, be weak in many things, but yet possesses one kind of delicious fruit to present to God's household. Shall they be permitted to present it, or shall it be ruthlessly stamped in the dust for lack of variety?

When we consult the oracles of God, it would seem that one gift only was given to one member; and if all improve that one, will not the church be in possession of all the gifts she needs to perfect herself? I have heard some speak mournfully relative to their own deficiency in gifts—could not see that they possessed any particular gift with which to edify the church.

Well, you can live Christ-like daily, be a CHRISTIAN everywhere, but especially at home. Let your husband, your wife and children know and feel that you are a christian. Let your near neighbors feel the same. Then, like the strong and sturdy oak, you will be able to support some delicate plants, that will yield both flowers and fruit. What if you should look around, and by your acts as well as words invite some weak vine to lean upon you? Can you not induce some timid one to enter the field who possesses a gift to feed the church? Promise to stand by them with your prayers, your influence, etc.

Every one who lives a christian life, is a supporting pillar in the church of God, and although we may not possess the gift of teaching, or preaching, we can help support the church, help others to live for God, pick up the trailing vines and say, Run over my back. I'll support you, as long as God upholds me. My prayer is, that the church may learn to appreciate what God their Father has given them, by a proper appropriation of the same.

When you and I bestow favors on the needy, and they make the best possible use of our charity—make everything tell, do not our hearts prompt us to exclaim, "There! I'll save the next garment, or loaf, I can spare, for those who have so economically used the first bestowal." But when, as is sometimes the case, we see them use our charity as though it were worthless—too indolent to prepare it for the purpose for which it was designed, or pawning the same for spirituous liquors,—such might solicit some time before some of us should help them again. So when God sees that his church does not use his gifts economically, will he give more until she does works meet for repentance?

Castleton, Vt. B. MATHEWSON.

☞ The following is a characteristic short sermon, which, it is stated, President Lincoln was in the habit of preaching to his children: "Don't drink, don't smoke, don't chew, don't swear, don't gamble, don't lie, don't cheat; love your fellow-men as well as God, love truth, love virtue, and be happy."

For the World's Crisis.

OUR TIMES.

There never has been a time in the history of our race, when crimes were so fearfully prevalent as at this time, as the following will prove, showing that we are living in the last times, when every iota of Scripture is being fulfilled to the very letter. 2 Tim. 3: 1-4. "Know also, that in the last days perilous times shall come; for men shall be . . . covetous, . . . blasphemous, . . . unholy, . . . heady, high-minded. . . . But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse." Matt. 24: 12. "Iniquity shall abound," says Christ. Let us briefly glance at the fulfillment of the above. Says the Portland Advertiser, of Aug. 3, 1865, on New York amusements,—

"The thieves, robbers, and cut-throat classes, of New York generally, are indulging of late in playful excursions into the 'rural districts' during the 'heated term.' They go into towns, take possession of the streets, deface, destroy and pillage stores, houses, gardens, etc., not forgetting to relieve every person, male or female, whom they meet, of money, jewelry, or whatever else of value they may have about their persons. After having a 'bang up time' of this style of recreation, they return to the city very much pleased with their day's enjoyment. It is but just to say this thing is not fairly systematized, but it is in a fair way to be. Several of the New York journals send out special reporters, to do these piquant little affairs, which furnish reading inferior only in interest to the once famous Barnum's Museum. We shall look shortly for regular advertisements of these excursions, with the programme of the day's sports briefly sketched out beforehand.

Not to be behindhand with their metropolitan neighbors, the Albanians have initiated a series of similar 'excursions.' One of these visited the pleasant little city of Hudson. It was on Monday last. The reporters say that 'it was visited by a gang of roughs.' These scoundrels spread all over the city, knocking down citizens, to their heart's content, amusing themselves by firing loaded guns and revolvers at people's heads, seizing whatever movable property suited them, beating one poor, remonstrating police officer (seventy years of age) into a jelly, and maiming and wounding citizens generally. This burglar gang is facetiously spoken of by the lively reporter, as having held a perfect carnival." Another paper states that the number of rowdies filled fifteen cars on their way home.

Says a Providence paper, "Every day the New York papers come to us freighted with the records of crime in that city. They constantly tell of 'brutal assaults,' 'violent outrages,' 'murders,' 'stabbings,' and the like. Do violence, brutality and murder have the freedom of that city, by special license? What is the true explanation of this state of things? The New York rowdies prowl about in organized bands; they walk the streets and perpetrate their outrages, as though their ascendancy over law and the police were well nigh questioned."

In conclusion, I find the following in a "Spiritual" paper, and as it professes to come from a source of light and knowledge, perhaps it may enlighten us on the subject:

"In the twelfth hour the glory of God, the Lord in God, the Holy Procedure, shall crown the Triune Creator with the perfect disclosive illumination, then shall the creation, in effulgence above the divine seraphimal, arise into the dome of the disclosive in one comprehensive revolving galaxy of supreme created Beatitudes." JOHN TAYLOR.

New Sharon, Me.

BROADCAST THY SEED.

Broadcast thy seed!
Although some portion may be found
To fall on uncongenial ground,
Where sand, or shard, or stone may stay
Its coming into light of day;
Or when it comes, some pestilent air
May make it droop and wither there,—
Be not discouraged; some will find
Congenial soil and gentle wind,
Refreshing dew and ripening shower,
To bring it into beauteous flower;
From flower to fruit, to glad thine eyes,
And fill thy soul with sweet surprise.
Do good, and God will bless thy deed—
Broadcast thy seed!

CONVERSION OF A JEW.

At the close of a morning prayer-meeting held in Chicago, a christian met a man on the sidewalk near the church, who seemed greatly disappointed that the meeting was closed, and expressed an anxiety to see Rev. Mr. Hammond, who, he had seen by the morning paper, was to be there. He was taken in and introduced to that gentleman.

His story was soon told. He was a Jew, and had received a liberal education in England, but had been for ten years a theatrical performer, and was a very wicked man. One Sabbath he had been allured by the singing into a church he was passing on the west side of the city, and had stopped a few minutes when he heard words that robbed him of his peace. The preacher told his audience that they must soon die, and then they must render up a balance-sheet of their accounts to God. This he knew to be true, but he felt that his accounts would be sadly unbalanced; and this truth pierced his heart, and made him so unhappy that he had not slept since. His first question was, "Is Jesus of Nazareth divine?" Mr. H. talked and prayed with him, and when compelled to leave, placed him in charge of an efficient christian brother, who, with three others, including a stranger clergyman, remained.

He soon said, "Mr. Hammond told me I must have a change of heart—and I do not know what that means; will you please to tell me?" and he bowed his head while Mr. M—— opened the Bible and read from the third chapter of John, repeating the fourteenth and fifteenth verses five or six times. The little circle then kneeled, ane when the others had prayed, Mr. M—— asked the heart-burdened Jew, who was prostrate on the floor, to pray. He groaned out, "I am too great a sinner! You would not ask me if you knew me! I am too vile to pray!" He was told of the thief on the cross, and of a dying soldier in the army, who had found help in Jesus; but he kept saying, "I am too vile a sinner!" The clergyman then said, "Can you believe the fact that Jesus is the Messiah of whom Moses and the prophets wrote?" He replied, "That is the trouble!" The minister continued to say, "The Holy Ghost can only make you see it. But you can pray, 'God be merciful to me, a sinner,' can you not?" he answered, "Yes," and repeated, "God be merciful to me, a sinner!"

Mr. M.——, who felt the presence and power of the Holy Ghost, had commenced praying for him again, when he suddenly sprung to his feet, clapped his hands, and exclaimed aloud, "I see it; I see it!" The others immediately arose, when he said, hurriedly, "Open to that place and read that again, that fourteenth verse." And when that and the fifteenth verse had been solemnly read, "As Moses lifted up the serpent in the wilderness, even so must the Son of man be lifted up; that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have eternal life," he exclaimed again, "I see it! The brazen serpent had no virtue in itself, but because it was a type of Christ, that those were healed who looked and believed. He is the true Savior! Let me go and tell my people that Jesus is the Messiah!" And taking his hat, he said, "Where is the New Testament?" They gave him one, and he went on his way rejoicing, while they fell on their knees again, to return thanks to God.

In the prayer-meeting this morning, at the request of Mr. Hammond, he repeated the account of his conviction of sin, and said, "When I asked Mr. H. whether Jesus is divine, while he was talking, I lifted up my heart to the God of Abraham, and besought him to show me whether Jesus was indeed their Messiah. Mr. M. opened the New Testament, which had been a sealed book to me, and read the fourteenth verse of the third chapter of John, I knew that my ancient fathers had been saved from death by looking at a brazen serpent on a pole, and as I knew that the brazen serpent had no power in itself to heal, I felt that the healing must have been through the believing. And when Mr. M. was praying, I said in the agony of my soul, 'O Lord God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, show me the connection between the serpent on the pole, and the Messiah, thy Son.' At that moment there was pictured to my mind, as clearly as if my bodily eyes had seen it, the Savior lifted up on that cross; I felt that he was the Messiah, my Savior, and I was filled with ecstasy.

My brethren, it is of God; it can be nothing else, for it it so opposite to any thing I ever thought or felt before. I hate the things that I always loved, and I have been very wicked; and I love that which I hated. I love now to think, talk, read, and sing of Christ, and to be with christians in meetings of prayer. Oh! I feel, I cannot tell how; I love every body, and I could go out into the streets and tell every body that Jesus is the Savior. I went yesterday to Mr. Abraham, one of my people, to tell him that Jesus is the Messiah, aud he called me 'Apostate,' and struck me. Before, I would have knocked him down quickly. Now, I remembered that my Savior was buffeted and spit upon for me, and that he opened not his mouth; and so I said nothing to him, only 'God bless you, Mr. Abraham,' and I came away.

Pray for me, that I may be kept from being overcome by the power of temptation. I was tempted last night. On my way home from Mr. M.'s meeting, I met one of my theatrical companions, who said, 'Where have you been?' I replied, 'To prayer-meeting.' He asked, 'What books have you in your hand? Is that Hamlet?' 'No,' I answered, 'that is a Bible Mr. M. gave me.' 'And what singing book is that? Christy's Minstrel Melodies?' 'No, it is Mr. H.'s Revival Melodies.' 'Good God!' was the reply, 'a Bible and Revival Melodies! Charley, you are mad! Come and take a drink, and get rid of this nonsense.' 'No!' I said, 'I do not drink liquor any more, and if this is being mad to love Jesus, I pray that all may become mad, and that I may grow more and more mad as long as I live.' and so we parted. Pray for me brethren, that I may be kept humble, and at the foot of the cross, and then I shall be safe."—Guide to Holiness.

EXTRAVAGANCE IN LIVING.

To one who has traveled abroad, or informed himself thoroughly respecting the economy of domestic life in England, and on the Continent, few things are more striking than our American extravagance. We waste in our food much which would be turned to good account in their family maintenance. Much goes into the swill-pail, or is thrown out for the chickens and dogs, and cats, which would there be worked over for the table of the servants, or given to the poor. We are extravagant in dress. Broadcloth and silk, and patent leather and Alexandre's gloves are none too fine for daily use. We are "clothed in purple and fine linen, and fare sumptuously every day." In carpets and rosewood furniture, and lace curtains and mirrors, in carving and gilding, in equipage and grand dwellings,—in short, in whatever may contribute to physical indulgence and material show, we put little or no restraint upon our desires. And what we might, perhaps, with some show of reason do in times of peace and plenty, and low prices, we have continued to do in time of war and national distress, and the enhanced cost of living.

Now, to an outsider, this must look foolish, if not morally wrong. What if we think we can afford this high style of expenditure? Fast living is hurtful to soul and body. Frugality, temperance, self-restraint, are signs of a better character, than wastefulness and headlong self-indulgence. They are productive of truer happiness, more genuine self-respect and better health. Individual extravagance and national luxury have in all past times gone together, and are likely to do so in time to come. It is well to have an eye to the future. There may be rainy days ahead. If they come, we shall be thankful for our economy; and if they do not, it will do us no harm to have provided with habits of carefulness for every contingency.—Amer. Agriculturist.

A SUBMISSIVE AND PATIENT WOMAN.—Mr. Peabody one day came in from a walk. His wife said to him, "I have been thinking of our situation, and have determined to be submissive and patient." "Ah!" said he, "that is a good resolution; let us see what we have got to submit to. I will make a list of our trials. First, we have a home,—we will submit to that. Second, we have the comforts of life,—we will submit to that. Thirdly, we have each other. Fourthly, we have a multitude of friends. Fifthly, we have God to take care of us." "Ah," said she, "pray stop, I will say no more about submission."

ANOTHER PRAYER.—"Mr. C.," said a self-righteous but ungodly farmer to a pastor in one of our New England villages lately; "I think I'd rather use the Lord's prayer when I do my praying, than to join with you ministers in your off-hand, long-winded addresses to the Almighty. It's short, you know, and it's just what Christ taught us."

"Yes," was the answer, "but there's another prayer which Christ taught us, which is even shorter, and fits your case and mine quite as well."

"Ah! what is it?"

"God be merciful to me a sinner," was the emphatic answer.

A BEAUTIFUL REPLY.—A pious old man was one day walking to the sanctuary with a New Testament in his hand, when a friend who met him, said:

"Good morning, Mr. Price."

"Ah, good morning," replied he; "I am reading my Father's will as I walk along."

"Well, what has he left you?" said his friend.

"Why, he has bequeathed me a hundred-fold more in this life, and in the world to come life everlasting."

This beautiful reply was the means of comforting his christian friend, who was at the time in sorrowful circumstances.

SHORT SERMONS.—Dr. Emmons' advice to young preachers was, not to preach over thirty minutes, saying, "There are no conversions after the first half hour." Wesley held the same opinion, and said, "If any, then, of the preachers exceed their time (about one hour in the whole service), I hope you will always put them in mind what is the Methodist rule. People imagine the longer a sermon is, the more good it will do. This is a great mistake."

A BIGOT.—The celebrated John Foster thus describes a bigot, "He sees religion, not as a sphere, but a line, and it is a line in which he is moving. He is like an African buffalo—sees right forward, but nothing on the right or left. He would not perceive a legion of angels or devils at the distance of ten yards on the one side or on the other."

☞ No persons are more empty than those who are full of themselves.

WIDE PREACHING.—This wide preaching is not entirely out of fashion yet, especially with those who aim at popularity with worldly men. There are many eloquent discourses which "play around the head, but come not near the heart." Under such preaching men's consciences feel perfectly easy. They are willing to hear the dignity of human nature, the wisdom of God in adapting the material universe to the wants of man, the tendency of the human mind toward the infinite, etc.; but when the sinfulness of the heart is touched upon, when its ingratitude is brought to view in contrast with the wisdom and mercy of God, when the minister reasons of righteousness, temperance, and a judgment to come, then they feel that conscience is pinched, and too many are ready to say, "Go thy way for this time!"—Ex.

GRADATION.

A sparrow caught upon a tree
The plumpest fly; all, all unheeded
Were struggles, cries and agony,
As for his life the victim pleaded.
"Nay," quoth the sparrow, "you must die,
For you are not so strong as I."

The hawk surprised him at his meal,
And in a trice poor sparrow spitted;
In vain he grasped his last appeal:
"What crime, Sir Hawk, have I committed?"
"Peace," quoth the captor, "you must die,
For you are not so strong as I."

Down swooped an eagle, who had spied
With grim delight the state of matters.
"Release me, king," the victim cried;
"You tear my very flesh to tatters."
"Nay," quoth the eagle, "you must die,
For you are not so strong as I."

A bullet whistled at the word,
And struck him ere his feast was ended.
"Ah! tyrant," shrieked the dying bird,
"To murder him who ne'er offended."
"Oh!" quoth the sportsman, "you must die,
For you are not so strong as I."

—From the German.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

BREAD FROM WHEATEN MEAL.

A correspondent, "Nymphea," in Yorkville, N. Y., is quite enthusiastic on the subject of bread from unbolted ground wheat, and sends not only her recipes, but specimens of the articles made according to them. The preparations were sweet, light, and palatable, and would no doubt be prized by those who like articles made from wheaten meal. We give her own account of the manner of producing them:

"After all that has been said on the vexed bread question, probably many of your readers may receive with great incredulity the statement that good light and wholesome bread can be made with simple meal and water. I believe we have spoiled our bread for the sake of having it look white. We take great pains to grind the wheat to an impalpable powder, carefully sift out those portions which conduce most to sweetness, lightness, and nutrition; and then take a vast deal more pains to put in artificial ingredients which at best but poorly restore these important qualities. If good wheat be ground coarsely (if with sharp stones the better) and not bolted, nor sifted, you can, by the following, and other recipes, make good light bread, quickly and certainly; bread that will keep for days, and yet can be eaten hot with impunity, because it contains no unwholesome drugs or compounds.

Batter Cakes.—Stir wheat meal slowly into cold water till it is of a consistence about half way between griddle cakes and pound cake. Bake in large patty pans or small muffin rings in a hot oven twenty or thirty minutes. If wanted extra nice, use milk instead of the water. If the cakes do not come out of the oven as light as good wheat bread, your batter is too thick or two thin, probably the latter, or you have undertaken to bake it in a large loaf, or to mar the recipe in some other way. I prefer to use the patty pans which should not be more than 2½ inches across the top, and one inch deep. If oblong, they may be three or four inches long. The fluted tins will do, and if greased with a very little sweet oil, the cakes will soon come out smoothly while hot. Some prefer to drop the batter by the spoonful on a large tin; this saves time. This bread will keep moist and tender two or three days unless it has been salted.

Sweet Batter Cakes.—Make the batter as above, sweeten to the taste (slightly,) and add a dash of cinnamon. Bake as above.

Wheat Meal Rolls.—Pour boiling water into good wheat meal. Stir with a stout spoon into a dough as soft as can be conveniently handled. Work it as little as possible, roll ¾ inch thick on a well planed board, cut into inch-and-a-half cakes with a knife or a cake cutter, and bake quickly. This does not require so hot a fire as the batter cakes. The bread is sweeter but not so porous, and will keep longer.

Boiled Pudding.—Make a dough as in the last recipe, and roll ½ inch thick. Stir up shred apples or any slightly tart fruits with wheat meal, and a little water if necessary, and wrapping it up in the crust, turn-over fashion, put it into a bag and boil an hour. Two or three hours will improve it. Eat with sweetened cream or other simple dressing.

Wheat Meal Mush.—Stir wheat meal gradually into slowly boiling water, as for hasty pudding. Let it cook very slowly twenty minutes or more. Eat with sweetened cream. After the meal is all stirred in, whortleberries either dried or fresh, form a charming addition. This pudding makes a palatable, cheap, and wholesome desert, which can be prepared at short notice.

Ambrosia.—Make a batter as in the first recipe, or a trifle stiffer. Grease a deep dish and spread this batter half an inch thick upon the bottom. Place upon this a layer of small fruits or tart sliced apples, with barely sugar enough to correct their acidity. Put a very thin layer of batter, or if the fruits are very juicy, wheat meal should have been added with the sugar, sufficient to absorb the juice in cooking; then another layer of fruit with sugar, flour, etc., covering the whole with a thin layer of batter. Bake about one hour in a moderate oven. The best fruits for this dish are tart cherries, blackberries, plums, and grapes. The two points to be observed are, not to let the fruits touch the dish or surface, and not to let the juices escape in cooking. This dish is better if it ripen a day or two before it is eaten, thus permitting the fruit to permeate the cereal with its juices and aroma.

This, Mr. Editor, is my very own invention and my chef d' œuvre, and as I must needs have a name for it, I have appropriated the type of all excellence among the edibles of ancient mythology."—American Agriculturist.

FOOD IN HOT WEATHER.

Bread should be the leading article of food for all in warm weather. With this and the delicious fruits that follow each other in quick succession all through the summer, there will be no danger of suffering for want of nutritious food. The hardest laboring man can be sustained upon these, and would be much more likely to preserve health, equanimity of temper, and long life, than if using meats and gravies two or three times a day.

Milk is a true food. We do not use half enough of it as an article of our daily meals. If we add this to bread and the fruits and vegetables which are usually at our command, we shall secure all the nutritious and sustaining elements that our bodies need, whether we are at hard work or not. No diet will keep up human strength better than this, because it is composed of a mixture of vegetable and animal food. Some persons say they cannot labor upon a dinner of bread and milk. Why not? No other food contains so many of the things which a working man requires to sustain his life and strength, as bread and milk. Why cannot he then labor upon it? Is it not because he has become accustomed to a heavier and more stimulating food, and when the excitement it causes is discontinued, he feels languid and weak? If the practice were persisted in for ten days, no unpleasant sensations would follow, but we believe increasing strength, clearness of mind, and energy would.—N. E. Farmer.

HEALTH ITEMS.

REST.—After we have had abundant exercise, or honestly labored until necessary work is accomplished, then should come a period of rest. It is then grateful to every sense, because it has been deserved. It is not consonant with health to be "always on the drive," to be, as it were, too industrious. Not in a physical sense merely, but under too great mental stimulus. Consequently there must be, for health's sake, intervals of leisure—a pleasant suspension of effort, when the faculties are "off guard," and we are happily unconscious of care.

BATHING.—Bathing we should resort to when the physique is sound, for purposes of cleanliness only. In this respect, a daily bath is necessary. This should be taken quickly, but without nervous haste. If no other means are at hand, a good and invigorating bath may be had with a quart of water. Simply rub the body all over with a wet sponge, or, what is better, with a wet towel, or with the hands. Dry rapidly with a coarse towel, using plenty of friction. The water, of course, will be cold, and the room, if possible, of a moderate temperature.

SLEEP.—We should have an abudance of sleep; at stated periods, if possible, but have it at all events. Therefore, numerous sage maxims to the contrary notwithstanding, if we retire late, we must sleep late. Seven hours of sound sleep, out of the twenty-four, seems indicated as the average quantity for men and women. The time taken from this amount, instead of gain, is, in every sense of the word, an irreparable loss.

FOMENTATIONS.—In the hands of the practitioner these are found to answer most admirably the end for which they are employed, to wit: Relaxing muscles, relieving spasms, griping pains, nervous headache, etc. Any cloths wet in hot water and applied as hot as can be borne, generally answer the purpose; but flannel cloths dipped in hot water, and wrung nearly dry in another cloth or handkerchief, so as to steam the part moderately, are the most efficient sedatives.

DIET.—The leading requirement in regard to diet, it may be stated, is simplicity. All mere stimulants, and gross or highly concentrated articles of food, which overtax the digestive organs, should be avoided. So should allspices, condiments, and seasonings, which supply no nutrition, and cannot be assimilated. In addition, the food should be well masticated, taken at regular intervals, and moderate in quantity.

THE PASSIONS.—The passions should be kept in check. Hatred, excessive fear, immoderate grief, intense emotions of any kind, are injurious. Hence, we should not be "carried away" by our feelings, but cultivate, as religious duties, serenity of temper, and self-control.—W. L. Rathe, in Manual of Gymnastics.

INTEMPERANCE.—With regard to the evils of intemperance, from what we have read and heard and seen, we are thoroughly satisfied that the only permanent security against them is in the practice of a rigid total abstinence from every drink that can intoxicate.—Herald of Health.

PURE AIR.—Just as we would eat only wholesome food, we should at all times breathe nothing but pure air.

MILK FOR BABES.

"Some of us would, years ago, have been in the other world had the saffron—a decoction of which was given us in babyhood—been fresh. But this herb kept awhile loses its peculiar properties." So said an honest-spoken Professor of Theory and Practice, in a Medical College. Yet many mothers, whom we think are better taught, still believe or feel that babies need some kind of gas or something.

Women give babies herb teas; and nurse thinks baby needs something to regulate him; perhaps a little catnip or saffron tea would be of service. Let mothers remember,—milk for babes.—Nothing else. Also, let the mother be sure that her habits—air, sunshine, rest, sleep, exercise, food, and mental states,—are such as to make baby's food wholesome.—Herald of Health.

ANTIDOTE FOR MAD DOG BITE.

The Liepsic (Germany) Journal publishes the following antidote for the bite of a mad dog, which, it says, was an exclusive secret with a Saxon forrester, but who, growing old, was unwilling to let it die with him, and, therefore, procured its publication. He is said to have used it for fifty years, and rescued many human beings and cattle from the fearful death of hydrophobia.

Take immediately warm vinegar or tepid water; wash the wound clean therewith, and then dry it; then pour upon the wound a few drops of hydrochloric acid, because mineral acids destroy the poison of the saliva, by which means the latter is neutralized.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance .... $2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months .... $3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address .... $5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address $10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE.

Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

Single copy, 50 cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, 40 cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, 33 cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

CLUBS.—Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, at the above rates, and having them all sent to one address, with no other name on them, will save, in clubs of fifty and over, 17 cents a year on each copy; in clubs of ten to fifty, [illegible] cents a year on each copy; and, in smaller clubs (of less than ten), from [illegible] cents a year on each copy.

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. Back numbers will be sent from either of these dates.

POSTAGE.—Six cents per quarter, on every package of ten copies or less, to one address. Must be paid quarterly or yearly in advance, at [illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 517-518. BOSTON, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 5, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 24-5.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at

167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. A. MITCHELL,
JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS,
S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN,
D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

WHEN SHALL I BE AT REST?

When shall I be at rest? my trembling heart
Grows weary of its burden, sickening still
With hope deferred. Oh! that it were Thy will
To loose my bonds, and take me where thou art.

When shall I be at rest? my eyes grow dim
With straining through the gloom; I scarce can see
The way-marks that my Savior made for me:
Would it were morn, and I were safe with Him.

When shall I be at rest? Hand over hand
I grasp and climb an ever steeper hill,
A rougher path. O! that it were Thy will
My tired feet might tread the Promised Land.

O that I were at rest! a thousand fears
Come thronging o'er me lest I fail at last.
Would I were safe, all toil and danger past,
And Thine own hand might wipe away my tears.

But why these murmurs? Thou didst never shrink
From any toil or weariness for me,
Not even from that last deep agony;
Shall I beneath my little trials sink?

No, Lord, for when I am indeed at rest,
One taste of that deep bliss will quite efface
The sternest memories of my earthly race,
Save but to swell the sense of being blest.

Then lay on me whatever cross I need
To bring me there. I know Thou canst not be
Unkind, unfaithful, or untrue to me!
Shall I not toil for Thee, when Thou for me didst bleed?

THE WANE OF FAITH.

A SYMPTOM OF COMING JUDGMENT.

"Nevertheless, when the Son of man cometh, shall he find faith on the earth?"—LUKE 18: 8.

We feel very sure, that, if Christ were to come now, he would find the system of christian doctrine, as popularly held and taught, most sadly out of joint, and so confused and indefinite as to be almost without one positive feature. There are many who believe, and believe the truth, and contend earnestly for it. But the common so-called christian mind is full of darkness, incertitude, and misgivings. This no careful observer can doubt. What was once settled as fundamental orthodoxy has, in various particulars, become strangely disturbed. The old ways of thinking no longer fit or satisfy or command unfaltering consent. Says a prominent Unitarian doctor, "Compare the sacred literature of our day—the published sermons of all denominations, the religious newspapers of all the sects with the bodies of divinity, the articles of faith, the catechisms and creeds, of fifty, a hundred, and five hundred years back. Notice the contradictions, the inconsistencies, the vacillations, of theological opinion, in all statements of our time,—how vague the language chosen, how uncertain the note struck, how many the loopholes of evasion! Examine the children of the Sunday-schools of all orders, and see whether they are indoctrinated in any positive system. Try if you can get a definite declaration of theological faith from your intelligent friends of any denomination. Question the professed teachers of religion, and notice how slowly, how guardedly, how vaguely, they answer direct inquiries."

It would seem as if nobody knew any more what to believe, and as if those who profess to believe are too unsettled and uncertain to avow anything with confidence. There has been an almost universal loosening of old moorings, a breaking away from the firm fastenings of other days, and a drifting no one can tell whither.

In a recent London book, on "The Religious Tendencies of the Age," it is said, "The edge of our religious belief has been dulled, the objective truths of religion are comparatively ignored, the sterner features of christianity are veiled and passed over. If we examine the religious tone of our popular authors, or if we observe the general feeling of society, we shall find that an eclectic system, consisting of the more attractive doctrines of christianity combined with the latitudinarian philosophies, is everywhere the predominant belief."

In an article of the Westminster Review, for October, 1860, there is this startling statement, and the more startling for having so much truth for its basis: "The Newspaper, the Review, the tale by every fireside, is written almost exclusively by men who have long ceased to believe. So, also, the school-book, the text-book, the manuals for the study of youth and manhood, the whole mental food of the day; science, history, morals, and politics; poetry, fiction, and essay; the very lesson of the school, the very sermon of the pulpit. And all this is done beneath a solemn or cynical hypocrisy. How long shall this last?"

The editor of one of the leading journals of the Episcopal church recently made the following observations in an article on Passion Week and Easter:

"It is the sad truth, that the precision of doctrine is departing greatly from our modern christianity. In the infancy of the various sects, their standards were as clear as our own on the essential verities of the Faith. They took that clearness with them, as a treasure, from the church they left. Indeed, in many cases, the standards, the books and confessions, retain that clearness very greatly yet. But, as time passed, this clearness and precision faded away from the actual living teaching. It may remain in the standards; but it is not found in the pulpits. The 'Confessions,' the 'Creeds,' the 'Catechisms,' the 'Platforms,' the 'Disciplines,' teach one thing; the pulpits teach quite another. Presbyterianism in the pulpit is not Presbyterianism in 'the Confession of Faith.' Methodism in the pulpit is not the Methodism of 'the Discipline.' Congregationalism, alive and talking, is not the Congregationalism of 'the Platform.'

The doctrine of the ATONEMENT, the very centre and heart of the Faith, has lost its hold, beyond anything we dream, on our 'common christianity.' We do not speak only of the fifteen hundred or more 'churches,' of Puritan origin, 'Congregational' in name still, where the doctrine and the fact are, in so many words, denied. Sad as that may be, it is not the saddest. The terrible Puritan apostasy is a visible evil; but it only indicates an evil vastly greater, which is gradually working to the light.

In pulpits still accounted 'orthodox' the doctrine has lost its reality. The precision of statement is gone. In some vague way there may have been what one might call an atonement. But the clear fact that the Lord Jesus Christ died instead of men, bore their penalty and their shame, paid their debt and cancelled their account, the guiltless for the guilty; that he stood in man's place, a real vicarious sacrifice, satisfying divine justice; that this clear fact has faded, or is fading, into metaphor and figure and vagueness, no man acquainted with the general drift of sectarianism can deny.

And the other fact and doctrine that conclude and sign and seal the atonement, these follow into the same vagueness. The Congregational paper of Illinois has been writing systematically against the resurrection and the general judgment for months past, and we have heard no word of warning or of protest. It has declared that there is no resurrection of the flesh, in so many words: that the soul's going to heaven, immediately after death, is all there is. The body is not needed at all.

And this is not the only case. Evidently the mass who have accepted the folly and blasphemy of 'Spiritualism,' could have done so only because they had never been trained in any belief in the resurrection. The common teaching about the state after death, that the good go at once to heaven and the bad at once to hell, has made the resurrection superfluous and led to the denial of its existence. Why bring a saint of ten thousand years' standing out of heaven, or a sinner, of as many, out of hell, to go through the farce of a judgment or receive the useless clog of a body? In truth, we question seriously whether the mass of the members of the so-called 'Evangelical Churches' are not utter unbelievers in that article of the creed, 'I believe in the resurrection of the body.'"

Another of our exchanges remarks, "It is very evident that there is about the same evidence that the theological world is ready to break up in confusion, as there is of political revolutions. Old and established points of doctrine are surrounded by doubters and opposers, and but few defenders. Reason is substituted for revelation, and infidelity for faith. Skeptics are multiplying all about us and growing bolder every day, while professed christians are sleeping and slumbering in the midst of these great perils. A great change is at hand."

As a further illustration of the condition of the public mind on the great items of the faith, we may also refer to a particular in the proceedings of the late Congress of the United States. Some christians, troubled with regard to the atheistic character of the Constitution, had sent in their earnest appeals to have such changes made as would unequivocally acknowledge the existence and sovereignty of Almighty God. The petition on the subject was referred to the Committee on the Judiciary, consisting of Lyman Trumbull, of Illinois, Lafayette Foster, of Connecticut, J. C. Ten Eyck, of New Jersey, Ira Harris, of New York, J. M. Howard, of Michigan, and L. W. Powell, of Kentucky; who were to consider the subject and report upon it. It was hardly to be supposed that so simple a request with respect to so elementary and vital a doctrine would have remained without some sort of response to meet the feelings of the petitioners. The governments of ancient Rome, of Egypt, and of even the barbarous tribes of Germany, had woven into them some distinct acknowledgment of an all-powerful hand. Socrates bowed in his theology to some divine logos, and moved the recognition of Deity in the civil policy of Greece. Mahomet saw the eminent propriety of officially recognizing some overruling power. Yet, in the Senate of a country priding itself in its enlightenment, its civilization, its advancement in everything praiseworthy, its christianity, and its mission to convert and regenerate the world, Mr. Trumbull, on behalf of himself and the other members of the committee, asked to be discharged from the further consideration of a petition for the recognition of a Supreme Being in the Constitution of the United States. The request was, we believe, granted, and the petition cast under the table! So much for the civilization, the morality, and the faith of a land which, while drenched in blood, helpless in the hands of Deity, yet would, through his appointed officers, refuse in its agony even to acknowledge definitely an Almighty Power, or to accept into its fundamental law the doctrine of the existence and supreme authority of God. On what are people building their hopes?

And how is it with regard to the personal return and reign of the Lord Jesus? How many sneer at the very idea, and laugh at the people who believe it! Though the Scriptures everywhere point us to Christ's coming again as our great hope, the poor, faint-hearted christianity of our day can hardly bear to think of it. Many professed christians would rather that Christ might never come. In the days of christianity's pristine vigor, the anxious inquiry of disciples was: "Tell us, when shall these things be? and what shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?" "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" Then christians wrote to each other about citizenship in heaven, whence they looked for the Savior; and comforted one another with the assurance that the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God. Then they lifted up their heads, and looked up with joyful hope at every turn in human affairs which they could by any means construe into a probable herald of his nearing Epiphany. Then the prayer; "Thy kingdom come," had a depth of meaning and lively anticipation which now is well-nigh lost. Then "the appearance of Jesus Christ" had power over the soul which made men "rejoice with joy unspeakable and full of glory." Then the most earnest and constant call of apostles and their followers was: "COME, LORD JESUS; COME QUICKLY. EVEN SO. AMEN." Is it so now? And does not the manifest change argue a great wane of faith? Can we regard ourselves as upon the apostolic foundation, when we no longer join with heart and soul in apostolic prayer? Conceal and dispute it as we may, it is a fact, that the faith of the church is awfully beclouded, enfeebled, and uncertain. Judgment cometh.—Prophetic Times.

THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

In accordance with previous notice in the World's Crisis and Voice of the West, a meeting of Second Advent believers was held on Wilbraham Campground, Thursday, Aug. 24th, 1865, to take into consideration the formation of an Advent Missionary Society, having special reference to missionary effort among the freedmen South.

The meeting was called to order by Elder Himes, of Michigan, who stated the object of the meeting; and after the singing of the Jubilee Hymn, and a fervent and appropriate prayer by Elder O. R. Fassett, of N. Y., invoking the blessing of God upon our proceedings, Joshua V. Himes was appointed Chairman, and Wm. B. Herron, Secretary.

The Chairman, in a few remarks, urged the great need and importance of such a society, and thought it best that it should embrace in its membership and operations brethren of the whole land, east and west, uniting in one society, and bending all their energies to the accomplishment of the work to be done.

"A field," said the Chairman, "of four millions of hitherto down-trodden and suffering bondmen in the South, is open to the church. Let us rise and do our part in the great work. The subject will now be more fully laid before us in an address by Bro. Wm. B. Herron, who has taken very deep interest in this subject."

The Secretary then delivered the following address on

Our Mission Work.

"Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature."

This was Christ's great and last commission to his disciples, just before the heavens received him out of their sight.

The words were spoken to a few, and in a past age; but they are not therefore of limited or temporary application. This solemn injunction of the ascending Lord of glory was for all his people, of all time.

It is of perpetual obligation; and every believer now, who, full of zeal for God's glory, asks—"What shall I do for the salvation of souls?"—hears, breaking out of the cloud on Olivet, his farewell words:—"Go! preach the gospel to every creature." Go! in person; Go! in your money; Go! gather a people for me at my coming; and, lo, I am with you always, even to the end of the world."

In obedience to this command, his disciples, then, "WENT forth, and preached everywhere; the Lord working with them, and confirming the word with signs following."

In obedience to this command, his disciples, in all ages since, have penetrated every land, and proclaimed the good news of salvation to every people,—from the wild Indian tribes of America, to the far off shores of China and Japan; and from the lonely islands of the South Seas, to the cold and inhospitable climes of Greenland and Labrador.

And, to-day, a thousand missionaries among the HEATHEN, are laboring for Jesus in the four quarters of the globe,—many of whom have grown hoary-headed in the good work.

Like Heaven's Great Missionary, who, full of love and mercy, left the abodes of celestial joy and the glory which he had with the Father and the angels, to visit this dark and fallen world for the salvation of a rebellious and ruined race; so, inspired with the same god-like love and self-denial, have these abandoned the delights of home, and the sweets of friendly intercourse, to go far away into the dark places of the earth, and among the habitations of cruelty and superstition, to save the sinful and the lost, and win souls to Christ. In this noble work, they have endured privations, and pains, and hardships; cold, and hunger, and nakedness; scorn, and abuse, and persecution; the loss of all things, and death and martyrdom for Jesus,—comforted in all their trials, and cheered in the dying hour, with the blissful assurance that, if they have suffered with Him, they shall also reign with Him.

But a new field for missionary labor is now opened at our very doors, such as, for extent and promise, the world never saw before, and the like of which the church was never before called upon to cultivate.

Out of a bloody and wicked rebellion, which for four years deluged the land with blood, and left a vacant seat in thousands of mourning homes, an overruling Providence, which brings good out of evil and makes the wrath of man to praise him, has wrought deliverance to millions of wronged and down-trodden slaves, and opened a most inviting and encouraging opportunity for christian labor in their behalf.

When I think of the great good which God has accomplished through this war; of the national purification and deliverance from the direst moral pestilence and curse that ever spread infection and death under the sun; of the resurrection of a dead race to a new life; of the opening of the prison-doors, and the oppressed going free; of the great field now calling for the labors of the Christian church;—when I think of these things, I confess, while I deprecate and abhor the deadly conflict of arms as much as any, and while I mourn with those who mourn, and weep with those who weep over friends and kindred gone, yet, I thank God for the war.

Yes! in view of its present and prospective results, I thank God, that He has broken the bonds of an oppressed and suffering race forever, with the thunderbolts of war.

Hitherto, we, as a people, have stood almost as idle and unconcerned spectators, gazing listlessly upon a scene in which we seemed to have taken little interest, and in regard to which we had nothing to do; while others, with greater promptitude and zeal, have gone about their work of noble and god-like benevolence, at once; following in the track of every army, planting schools and missions on the very heels of every victory, instructing the ignorant, clothing the naked, feeding the hungry, relieving the distressed, and pouring the balm of Christian hope and comfort into the hearts of the sick and the dying.

And now, from yonder heaven, to which our Lord ascended, and from whence He looks down upon us to-day, comes a voice of reproving love and goodness,—"Why stand ye—all the day—idle? Go! work in my vineyard, and what is right, that will I give you."

But why should we labor for the freedmen? why should we give of our substance to help them? Can you ask?

Are they not men, and brothers?—children of the same Heavenly Father?—candidates for the same immortality?—fellow sinners—ignorant and lost and perishing—for whom the same Savior died?

Has not the Master commanded us to preach the gospel to every creature? has he not commissioned you—to do your part in the great work of evangelization?

Have you no special mission,—to preach "this gospel of the kingdom" to "all the world" before the Lord comes? and does not that mission embrace them?

Is not the poor freedman's soul as white and as precious, in God's sight, as yours? Will not a black saint, shining in glory, by means of your preaching, or your teaching, or your dollar, be as bright a gem in the crown of your rejoicing in the day of the Lord Jesus as the whitest and noblest that shall stand around the throne of God and the Lamb?

Why should we labor for them?

Think of their ignorance and degradation; of their corruptions and vices, which have been entailed upon them as their natural heritage from slavery. Think of the cotton-fields and rice-swamps, of the broken homes and severed families. Think of the auction block, the lash, and the bloodhounds! Think of Southern harems and slave-pens. Think of the corruptions, and cruelties, and crimes, of which, for ages, the poor bondmen and bond-women have been made the victims.

Think of their long, patient, agonizing cry for deliverance; which, for so many years, had gone up into the ears of God, and which he has now at last heard and answered.

Oh! was it not time for the dawning upon them of a brighter and a happier day?

But the dawning has but just begun. A great work is to be done before their day comes (if, indeed, it shall come before the Lord comes), and that work is to be done by the Church of Christ. Never before were they called upon to give light to a people so numerous, so needy, so near, and so ready to receive it and walk in it.

A million of colored youth are crying for moral and religious instruction; and two or three millions of freed men and women are waiting to be taught in evening and Sabbath schools, and to have the gospel preached to them. To instruct so vast a multitude in letters and in the principles of Christianity, so that they can read and understand God's Word for themselves, will require twenty or thirty thousand teachers and missionaries. In this great work, every denomination of Christian people is called upon to do their part. Shall we do ours?

God calls! A race is to be elevated—educated—Christianized. A nation, born in a day, is to be made fit for the kingdom of heaven, ready to hail, with joyful acclamations, the coming of the Great Emancipator!

It is a noble—a godlike work! And he, who calls himself Christian, and has no hand and no heart for it, is forgetful of his mission, and recreant to duty.

Are we ready for the work, and shall we have a hand in it?

A nation of worldlings pours out freely its millions, in carrying on a war to subjugate insurgent States. How much shall we give to put down insurrection against God?

Inspired by her love of country, the world sends forth her sons and volunteers by hundreds of thousands, to put down rebellion, and enforce obedience to human law. How many of her sons and volunteers will the Church of Christ send forth,—to put down rebellion against God, and bring men back to their allegiance to His law, and to the enjoyment of a brighter destiny?

But what encouragement have we to labor for the freedmen?

Much. As a race, they are superior to the poor whites South; they are more teachable, and more ready and anxious to improve. They are not so helpless and dependent; are more fertile in expedients, more industrious, more religious, and more vigorous in body and mind. They are easily moved, of ardent feelings, grateful, simple and childlike; and, just now, can be led in any direction. With proper training, and education, and Christian influence, they will make an earnest, whole-souled, Christian people. This is the testimony of all who are laboring among them.

In all their want and degradation, their insatiable hungering for instruction seems truly wonderful. Never before was there seen, among any people, such a greediness for learning.

They are just awaking from a long night of darkness and ignorance. How great was that darkness in which the whole South has been shrouded, few realize. The mass of the white population there are but little higher in the scale of intelligence than the blacks.

In 1861, while Massachusetts had less than 2000 white native adults who could neither read nor write, Virginia had more than 77,000.

In 1850, Georgia had 41,000; and in 1854, including the youth between 8 and 20 years of age who could not read, there were, in that State, 150,000 whites without the rudiments of education; and over 380,000 colored Georgians, to teach whom to read was a crime, punishable by the State laws.

What a field for educational and missionary labor!

In a single State,—in the most enlightened and Christianized (?) nation on the globe,—more than 500,000 souls (over half the entire population) rushing on to the judgment, unable to read the word of God!

But—thanks be to God—what a marvelous change is coming over the scene, now.

Gross darkness has covered the people,—these heathen at home,—but the darkness is fast fleeing away, before the glorious light of coming day.

Missions and schools have been established, and all, except the poor whites, are eager to learn; and they, warmed to a new life by contact with their sable brethren, may yet wake up to a higher destiny.

More than 200,000 colored people, old and young, in the rebellious States, have learned to read during the last three years. Colored children are flocking to the schools, and everywhere making most surprising progress.—Old men and women, with heads like almond blossoms, come nightly to the evening schools, with a thirst for knowledge never seen before.

One old woman in Florida, over 60 years of age, says a teacher there, is "just beginning to spell; and it seems as if she could not think of ANY thing but her book. She spells her lesson all the evening, and then she dreams about it, and wakes up thinking about it."

"You are doing nicely," said a teacher in Norfolk, the other day, to a boy of twenty, who was laboring hard to learn to read. "Mrs. W.," said he, his coal-black face all aglow,—"I'se gloriously in earnest!" He spoke for himself not only, but for his race.

Yes! they are gloriously in earnest. And why?

They want to be able to read God's word. That is their great desire; and their greed for it is so much the greater, because it has been to them so long a prohibited and sealed book.

Would you witness some of their earnest and determined efforts to learn to read the Bible?

Go with me, for a moment, to Norfolk, Va., and visit one of the schools there. See, in yonder corner, that large class of gray-headed men, with spectacles on, striving to learn to read the word of God.

Go with me to Washington, and see the mothers, from every direction, bringing their little ones (too small to go alone) to the freedmen's schools. See them stand there by the hour, their faces beaming with delight, as they hear their children's voices, lisping the names of those mystical characters, which assume untold importance in their minds, because some way connected with being able to read "de bressed book."

Go with me to that Mission School in Eastern Virginia. Ask that aged pupil,—"What would you take for the knowledge of the Bible which you have gained in the last six months?" See her start up, with her whole soul in the answer,—"Noting! NOTING! money do me no good when I leab dis worl'; but dis Book go wid me into 'ternity: I s'all always hab de good ob it."

Go with me to Vicksburg, and hear that grey-haired pilgrim (65 years old) say to his teacher,—"No; I'se not gwine to larn writin'; Ise too ole for dat. Ise jus' one ting Ise wants to larn 'fore I die: Ise wants to larn to read, so Ise read de Bible 'fore I die; and dat's all Ise wants ob de larnin'. If dese ole eyes can git so as to read what de Sabior says 'bout God and de heabens, before Ise gits dar, dat's all I a'ks. I jus' wants de larnin for dat ar', and dat's all."

Such are some examples of the spirit and efforts of the freedmen in their greed for instruction. Their great needs are—schools and missions; teachers and missionaries.

Shall we send them? Shall we do our part in "this last great work of evangelization"? Shall we carry to them the glad tidings of a coming Redeemer?

They are all ready to receive it. The bitter trials of their earthly lot have prepared them to look beyond this suffering state to a brighter one to come; and to long for that Great Day of Earth's Jubilee, when the rod of the oppressor shall be broken forever, and Slavery, and Scorn, and Wrong, shall be suffered and felt no more.

Time is flying, judgment coming; and the great work admits of no delay. Imploringly, Western Ethiopia stretches forth her hands to God! and from the Atlantic coast to the Great River, from the Ohio to the Gulf, four million voices cry to God's people North,—"Come over and help us!" This cry comes to us—to you. Who will send? Who will go? Who will sacrifice ease and comfort, the enjoyments of home society, and the emoluments of office or business, for the sake of Christ and the poor, despised, benighted bondmen, to save whom Christ died? Who will go bring the outcasts into the fold, instruct them in righteousness, and shine, by and by, as the stars for ever and ever?

Are there any here, whom God calls to this work? Is there, in this assembly, one, full of love and zeal for the salvation of souls, ready to cry out,—"I, Lord, send me"?

Are any faithful stewards of the Lord's money here, who stand ready to respond—"Here are the dollars—Go!"

We can do little or nothing, in this great work, without associated action and organized effort. Let us then, at once, and here, organize an Advent Mission Society, for the better accomplishment of the work which we have to do; and let us support it by large and liberal contributions, according to the ability which the Lord shall give us,—looking for our reward when the Judge comes and the books are opened.

Every one has a duty to do in this matter. We shall not have long to work, at the longest; and there is no time to lose. What we do, let us do quickly, and well. So shall we receive, at last, the Master's "Well done!"

God give us wisdom, and zeal, and promptness of action,—that this "gospel of the Kingdom" may soon be preached where it has been hardly heard of before, until every hill and valley of the sunny South, shall echo to the cry,—"Behold! He cometh!"

After the address, on motion of Elder Fassett, the Chair appointed a Committee of three to draft a Constitution for the proposed Society, and report the same at a subsequent meeting to be held at the call of the Chair. The Chair appointed Wm. B. Herron, Solomon Hovey and O. R. Fassett said Committee. Whereupon adjourned.

WM. B. HERRON, Secretary.

Friday, Aug. 26, 10 A. M. Met, according to adjournment.

The meeting being called to order, the Committee appointed at the previous meeting reported the following Constitution, which, on motion of Bro. Randolph E. Ladd, of Springfield, Mass., was adopted, by a unanimous vote.

Constitution

OF THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

NAME.

I.—This Association shall be called the AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

OBJECT.

II.—The object of this Society shall be—to promote the preaching of the gospel of Jesus Christ in destitute places in our own and other lands, and prepare a people for his near coming and kingdom. Its special object—the evangelization of Southern freedmen.

MEMBERSHIP.

III.—This Society shall be composed of annual delegates to, and officers of, the Advent Christian Association (East) and the Western Advent Christian Association, and of all ministers in good standing—co-operating therewith.

OFFICERS.

IV.—The Officers of this Society shall be a President, Vice Presidents not to exceed fifteen, Secretary, Treasurer, Auditor, and an Executive Board of seven, of which the President, Secretary, Treasurer and Auditor, shall, ex-officio, form a part.

THE EXECUTIVE BOARD.

V.—It shall belong to the Executive Board to conduct the business of the Society,—to select missionary fields, appoint missionaries and teachers, fix their compensation, direct concerning their fields and labors, make all appropriations to be paid out of the Treasury, and do all such other business as shall properly belong to the Executive Board of a Missionary Society. They shall have power to fill vacancies, appoint their own meetings, elect their own Chairman and Recording Secretary, and enact their own By-laws and Rules of Order; and they shall present to the Society at each annual meeting a full report of their proceedings during the current year. Four members of the Board shall constitute a quorum for transacting business.

FUNDS.

VI.—All monies or other property contributed and designed for the mission-work, should be sent to the Treasurer, who shall acknowledge the receipt of, and report the same at the annual meeting.

TREASURER.

VII.—The Treasurer shall give bonds to such amount as the Executive Board shall think proper.

ANNUAL MEETING.

VIII.—The annual meeting of this Society for the election of Officers, and the transaction of such other business as may come before them, shall be held at the same period and in the same place as the annual meeting of the Advent Christian Association.

Special meetings may be called, when necessary, by the Executive Board, at such time and place as they shall designate.

ALTERATIONS.

IX.—This Constitution may be altered or amended, on recommendation of the Board, by a two-third vote of the members present at any annual meeting.

On motion of Eld. A. W. Sibley, of Boston, Mass., the Chair appointed a Committee of three to nominate Officers for the Society for the ensuing year. Brn. A. W. Sibley, S. G. Mathewson and L. T. Cunningham were appointed said Committee.

Adjourned, subject to the call of the Chair.

WM. B. HERRON, Secretary.

Friday evening, 6 P. M. Met, according to adjournment.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and accepted.

The Committee on Nominations reported the following list of Officers for the ensuing year, and their report was accepted and unanimously adopted,—(Three of the names were added at a subsequent meeting):—

Officers

OF THE AMERICAN ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

President.

ELD. JOSHUA V. HIMES, Michigan.

Vice Presidents.

ELD. S. G. MATHEWSON, Vermont.
ELD. D. T. TAYLOR, New York.
ELD. I. C. WELLCOME, Maine.
S. P. CLARK, Rhode Island.
ELD. JOHN COUCH, New Hampshire.
ELD. WILLIAM SHELDON, Wisconsin.
SIDNEY HALL, Connecticut.
ELD. O. R. FASSETT, New York.
ELD. H. K. FLAGG, Massachusetts.
ELD. J. D. BROWN, Pennsylvania.
C. S. SHERMAN, Vermont.
DR. P. B. HOYT, Ohio.
ELD. WILLIAM McCULLOCK, Illinois.
N. W. WAIT, New York.
RANDOLPH E. LADD, Massachusetts.

WM. B. HERRON, } Corresponding & Recording Secretary.
GEORGE T. ADAMS, ...Treasurer.
SOLOMON HOVEY, ...Auditor.

Executive Board.

ELD. J. V. HIMES, GEORGE T. ADAMS,
ELD. MILES GRANT, ELD. A. W. SIBLEY,
SOLOMON HOVEY, ELD. L. T. CUNNINGHAM,
WILLIAM B. HERRON.

The meeting then adjourned to the call of the Chair.

WM. B. HERRON, Secretary.

Saturday, Aug. 27th, 7 P. M. Met, as per adjournment, Bro. Himes presiding.

The minutes were read and accepted.

The Nominating Committee reported two more names to the list of Vice Presidents, omitted from the previous report, and one in the place of Eld. Hastings, who declined. Their report was accepted and adopted, and the names added to the list.

Bro. Himes urged the immediate raising of funds for the use of the mission, so that missionaries and teachers may be sent without delay; and, calling for pledges and donations, he proposed that the sum of $1000 be raised on the ground. In the few minutes that remained before the general prayer meeting, the time for which was drawing near, the following pledges and payments were taken, to the amount of $182.00:—

Joshua V. Himes, Buchanan, Mich.	$50.00
I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me.	25.00
M. Grant, Boston, Mass.	25.00
Friends, (through Sr. Mathewson)	35.00
Wm. Nichols, Albany, N. Y.	10.00
Ira Morgan, Cheshire, Ct.	10.00
P. Wilbur, West Hoosick, N. Y.	10.00
Dr. B. St. John, Wilton, Ct.	10.00
J. Moore, Hillsburg, N. S.	3.00
A friend	2.00
A Sister	2.00

The Chairman here introduced to the meeting Bro. Addison Wheeler, from Washington, D. C., for some time a teacher among the freedmen, in the employ of the National Freedman's Relief Association, who gave a brief and interesting account of the destitute and ignorant condition of the colored people South, and his labors and experience among them, showing the great need of Christian effort in their behalf. He closed by bidding the newly-formed Society God-speed, and exhorted all to do what they can in helping on the good work.

The meeting then adjourned to the call of the Chair. WM. B. HERRON, Secretary.

Sunday, Aug. 27th, 2 P. M. Bro. Himes preached from Rev. 14: 6, 7, on the First Angel's Message, to an audience of not less than ten thousand people, the largest assembly on the old campground for many years; and, in speaking of the proclamation of the gospel of the kingdom which had been made among all nations, he drew attention to the new door now open to the hitherto benighted millions in our own land, and concluded with a most powerful and stirring appeal in behalf of the Freedmen and the Mission;—in response to which, immediate payments and pledges were given for the mission work, to the amount of about $400, as follows:—

Sidney Hall, Hartford, Ct., $100.00; H. Campbell, Green Pt., L. I., $25.00; P. W. Higgins, Wellfleet, Mass., $25.00; Anson Gage, Northfield, Mass., $25.00; T. Glover, Wilbraham, Mass., $10.00; Israel Rice, Hillsburg, N. S., $10.00; W. Howard, Coventry Centre, R. I., $10.00; S. H. Walker, Southampton, L. I., $12.00; R. W. Warner, Waterbury, Vt., ($1.00 a month), $12.00; A. Flagg, Brattleboro, Vt., ($2.00 a month), $24.00; R. G. Wood, Palmer, Mass., ($1.00 a month), 12.00; J. B. Morgan, Northfield, Mass., ($1.00 a month), $12.00; R. White, Ludlow, Mass., ($1.00 a month), $12.00; M. M. Densmore, So. Woodstock, Vt., ($1.00 a month), $12.00; Levi Allen, Chicopee Falls, Mass., (50 cents a month), $6.00; W. A. Thomas and wife, Hinsdale, (50 cents a month), $6.00; S. Newton, Westboro, Mass., (50 cents a month), $6.00; L. D. Merrill, Pleasant Valley, Ct., $5.00; Justin Fuller, Bondville, Mass., $5.00; R. Baker, Warren, Mass., 6.00; C. D. Severence, Northfield, Mass., $5.00; J. King, Westfield, Mass., $5.00; J. Myers, Pownal Centre, Vt., $5.00; A Sister, $5.00; J. E. Ainsworth, Brimfield, Mass., $5.00; T. W. Titus, Vernon, Vt., $5.00; A friend, $5.00; Stephen Knobb, New Haven, Ct., $3.00; C. Bemis, Windham, Vt., $5.00; Mrs. A. Hendrick, So. Wilbraham, Mass., $3.00; O. Loomis, So. Windsor, Ct., $1.00; A Sister, Palmer, Mass., $1.00; Mrs. S. P. Parkhurst, So. Manchester, Ct., $1.00; B. Perham, Vernon, Vt., $1.00; A. Ware, Warren, Mass., $1.00; Wm. McNary, New Britain, Ct., $1.00; J. Blain, Buffalo, N. Y., $1.00; W. Simmons, Danielsonville, Ct., $1.00; D. Cables, Thompson, Ct., $2.50.

Sunday evening, Aug. 27th, 7 P. M. Met, according to adjournment (Bro. Himes presiding), to make another and a final effort to raise the Mission Fund to $1000. The matter was taken hold of with a noble and generous emulation, and the following additional subscriptions received:—

J. V. Himes, added to former pledge	$25.00
Sidney Hall " " " "	25.00
P. S. Butler, Wilbraham, Mass.	25.00
Luther Cunningham, Newton Upper Falls, Mass.	25.00
E. M. Haggett, Livermore, Me.	25.00
B. Bancroft, Warehouse Pt., Ct.	10.00
Solomon Hale, Troy, N. Y.	5.00
Laura Gilman, Ill	10.00
Geo. W. Johnson, Holden, Mass.	3.00
R. T. Haskins, Brooklyn, N. Y.	1.50

These offerings, added to the amount previously subscribed, raised the Mission Fund to $1050.

Voted, That the minutes of these doings be published in the World's Crisis and Voice of the West.

Thus closed the initiatory proceedings of one of the most important movements ever made among us, since we were a people.

WM. B. HERRON, Secretary.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRONOLOGY.—No. 5.

We have heard some profess to doubt that Tiberius was associated with Augustus two years before the death of the latter. They say that Josephus and some other ancient historians do not mention the fact, but simply state the duration of Tiberius' sole reign, viz: twenty-two years and six months, and, as Luke says Jesus was baptized in the fifteenth year of Tiberius, he meant the fifteenth from Augustus' death.

We will present some reasons for believing that the year of our Lord's baptism was the fifteenth from the time when Tiberius was joined with his step-father in the Roman government.

1. The fact of this joint reign is not questioned by any standard Scripture commentator that we have read, as Clarke, Doddridge, etc. Take, for instance, Albert Barnes' note on Luke 3: 1. "Now in the fifteenth year. This was in the thirteenth year of his being sole emperor with Augustus; and Luke reckons from the time when he was admitted to share the empire with Augustus Cæsar." See Lardner's Credibility, vol. i.

2. Jarvis devotes a whole chapter to this inquiry, and gives the concurrent testimony of four Roman historians. The following is taken from Suetonius, of the first century, whose Lives of the Twelve Cæsars have come down to us: "Tiberius dedicated the temple of Concord, and also the temple of Castor and Pollux. . . . And not long after, a law being proposed by the consuls that he should administer the government of the provinces in common with Augustus, and at the same time carry on the census, and celebrate the lustral purifications, he departed into Illyricum." The only question in the matter is, whether the co-partnership was two or three years long. Dr. Clarke assigns A. D. 11, and Jarvis a year earlier.

3. As we have proved that Jesus was born as early as five years before the vulgar era, and that Augustus died in A. D. 13, our Lord was thirty-two years old in the fifteenth year of Tiberius' sole reign; but as Luke says he was about thirty in the fifteenth year of Tiberius, we are compelled to reckon as Mr. Barnes has done, and we have a harmony between Scripture testimony and the record of history. "Augustus first established a despotism over the Roman people. Luxury and the arts having enervated them, and the former civil wars and consequent calamities having paved the way for a different order of things, in the quiet establishment of despotism under Augustus, their fate from this time was fixed. He found no difficulty in riveting their chains, and for long ages a series of despots, most of them monsters in vice and cruelty, ruled with a rod of iron this once liberty-loving people, and mistress of nations. . . . Many seem to forget what scenes of brightness and grandeur have illumined the nations before us, and how mournfully those scenes have departed."—Robbins' Outlines, vol. 2, p. 11.

JOHN LYLE.

☞ The celebrated Mr. Wesley remarks that fretting and scolding seems like tearing the flesh from the bones, and that christians have no more right to be guilty of this sin, than they have to curse and swear, or steal.

For the World's Crisis.

TEMPERANCE.

"And every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things."—1 Cor. 9: 25.

The apostle would have his brethren strictly observe the rules of temperance. That christians should be temperate in all things, is the revealed will of God. To see a professed disciple of Christ practising any species of intemperance, either in eating, drinking, or dressing, or in any thing else, is to witness a reproach brought upon the cross of Christ. It is a self-evident truth that intemperance does not consist alone in an unjustifiable use of intoxicating drink, No; a person may deprecate the use of ardent spirits, and against it bear a heavy hand, while at the same time in the eyes of Jehovah he may be equally guilty with the degraded, polluted, broken down sot, in consequence of practising another species of intemperance. Every unnecessary appendage to decorate the body, or dwellings, or meeting-houses, is a species of intemperance practised upon public opinion; which I verily believe drowns people in darkness and perdition, against which public opinion is not set, nor likely to be, so long as pride is the ruling principle of the day.

If intemperance practised in useless and consequently needless decorations, were but devoted to the support and spread of the truths of the gospel, a vast amount of good might be done, and many that are now suffering for the necessities of life might be comforted. One would suppose that for a person to be intoxicated with strong drink, would render such a person intemperate, consequently unfit for a seat and standing in the church of Christ. But I would ask if drunkenness is any more forbidden in the word of God than the plaiting of the hair, the wearing of gold, of costly array, the tinsels, ornaments, and fashions of an ungodly world? What saith the apostle? "Every man that striveth for the mastery is temperate in all things." If the Isthmian racers who strove for the mastery, were temperate in all things, should not those be who are striving for eternal life? Most certainly. They should lay aside every weight, and the sin that doth so easily beset, while engaged in running the pilgrim's race. In 1st Peter 1: 14, 15, we read, "As obedient children, not fashioning yourselves according to the former lusts in your ignorance; but as he which has called you is holy, so be ye holy in all manner of conversation." Again, Rom. 12: 1, 2, "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, that ye present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service, and not be conformed to this world, but be ye transformed by the renewing of your mind, that ye may prove what is that good and acceptable and perfect will of God." In this text the apostle besought his brethren by the mercies of God not to conform themselves to the world, but to be transformed by the renewing of the mind, so that they might be prepared to prove all the will of God concerning them.

Such as obey the injunctions of the holy word by coming out and separating themselves from the world in relation to all that is sinful, are those who are willing to prove all things, by having all things brought to light and tested by the standard of eternal truth. If by scriptural examination they find the word of God not fulfilled in them, their first and greatest concern is to immediately be made conformable to its spirit and letter. For this the true christian prays—for it he sacrifices—for it he labors by endeavoring to bring his own will into subjection to the will of God, and to the spirit and letter of his word.

The real devout child of God is satisfied with nothing short of a full and unreserved submission to the will of God. For him to practice intemperance in any sense, is to sin against God and his own conscience. Therefore all such are anxious and fully resolved to observe the rules of true temperance; and to adorn themselves according to the apostle's instructions in 2 Tim. 2: 9,—"In like manner also, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefacedness and sobriety, not with broidered hair, or gold, or pearls, or costly array." How different the real saint of God from the ungodly, worldly professor or sinner, with Christ in them the hope of glory, the eye single to the glory of God, and not to men; who drink deep at the fountain of love and grace. How changed "the hidden man of the heart, in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is, in the sight of God of great price."—1 Pet. 3: 4.

Portsmouth, N. H. S. P. SHEPHERD.

For the World's Crisis.

"WHAT HATH GOD WROUGHT?"

BRO. GRANT:—When I look upon the results of the united labors of the people of God for the last few years, in the East and in the West, in the cause of the "Coming One," I am led to exclaim, in the language of the ancient prophet, "What hath God wrought?" Light and truth have been spread everywhere, and large numbers have been gathered to Christ. We have reason to thank God and take courage. Our labor as Adventists has not been in vain in the Lord.

The meeting just closed at Wilbraham has indicated that the Lord has not left his people. The peace and the unanimity among the brethren, and their deep engagedness in the work of God, both for the salvation of souls, and the general spread of light and truth, has been both hopeful and cheering. And especially is this so in the manifestation of the missionary spirit, as seen in the formation of the Missionary Society, to send the gospel of the kingdom to the Freedmen, and others. The liberal contributions of money, and also of men and women, saying, "Here am I, send me," all lead us to exclaim, "What hath God wrought?"

The great unanimity with which the brethren support our periodicals, is another sign of God's blessing, and especially so with the Crisis, in keeping you in the editorial chair. I congratulate you on the support that is given by the brethren to sustain you in this position. May God give you continued success, for the sake of the cause.

We live in a glorious time,—on the eve of great events, and especially of the great consummation. May the Lord help us all to work together, and successfully, till Jesus comes. J. V. HIMES.

Boston, Aug. 30th, 1865.

☞ Christians ought to be as careful about sinning against the laws of health as any other class of God's laws. Christ requires a "living," not a dying sacrifice.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Sept. 5, 1865.

NEW SUBSCRIBERS.

Our readers will observe that the next number will complete the present volume, hence this is the time to pay in advance for the next volume, and a good time to obtain new subscribers. In view of the approaching day of the Lord, let us make a united effort to spread the truth far and wide. We shall not be sorry for any sacrifice made for the future good of our fellow beings; and if we ever do any thing, it is evident that it must be done soon. Shall we do it? or shall we let our friends and neighbors go on blindfolded to ruin, when we might send them the light? Our responsibilities are great. Would that we felt them more sensibly. Come, dear brethren and sisters, let us make another grand rally for the cause of the Lord, and do all we can to scatter light on the glorious truths we love so well, which have been to us of more value than all the gold and silver the world affords. Brn., let us all awake, and do all in our power to save some from "the second death." Let every reader get at least one new subscriber. A new effort will produce new results. Who will help? We think we hear the echo of thousands of voices, "We will do what we can." Amen. God bless you.

WILBRAHAM CAMPMEETING.

We have just closed another great feast of tabernacles at Camp Wilbraham, which will be long remembered with pleasure by those who were privileged to enjoy it. Our meetings at W. are the largest gatherings in the world of our people. This year there were one hundred and one tents and houses. A dozen or more of the latter have been erected, which afford much home comfort. Camp Wilbraham is a hallowed spot, and will be held in dear remembrance by many who were there persuaded to take the road to eternal life. We think no one who attended the meeting this year would say that it was not a profitable one. We do not expect to get nearer to a scene in paradise, in this world, than the one we have enjoyed at Wilbraham. Every thing seemed to conspire to make us happy.

THE GROUND is very pleasantly located on a hill, overlooking a beautiful landscape, covered with a pleasing variety of country scenery, affording a charming sight for those who love the beauties of nature mingled with the works of art. The camp is well shaded by large oaks and other forest trees, affording a nice shade for the sunny day, and a shelter from disturbing winds.

THE GATHERING commenced on Saturday, Aug. 19th, when some twenty-five tents were erected, giving quite a campmeeting look. On the following day, about a dozen preachers were present, and we had quite a large congregation, and an interesting meeting. The writer preached in the morning, and Bro. Burnham in the afternoon, All seemed to enjoy the scene. We felt the approbation of the Lord, and the comfort of his Spirit. Many came from Springfield,—nine miles, and from the surrounding country. We had an interesting Bible class in the P. M., for the purpose of examining the prophetical periods. We find an increasing interest on this subject.

The students of prophecy are becoming more and more satisfied that "the end of all things is at hand."

At noon, we repaired to the water, and had a pleasant baptismal scene. In the evening, we enjoyed a good prayer meeting. Thus closed the day.

Monday, Aug. 21st, was a very busy day in the camp. About sixty tents were up at its close. None but a stoic could witness the hearty greetings of the children of the Lord, without feeling deep emotions at the sight. It was enough to fill the eyes with tears of joy to see the exhibitions of christian sympathy gushing out, as they embraced each other in the arms of affection and love. The beholder could not help saying, "See how these christians love one another." Involuntary shouts of joy would burst forth from their warm hearts, and earnest expressions of praise to the Lord for the blessed privilege they were enjoying. One could well afford to go a hundred miles to witness such a scene.

In the evening, we listened to a timely discourse from Bro. Israel Damman, which produced happy results.

Tuesday. A large addition was made to our numbers during the day. We had good preaching by Brn. L. Boutell and A. W. Sibley, and in the evening by Sr. A. E. Smith, J. K. Bellows, and G. A. Streeter. Six requested prayers at the close of the afternoon meeting. We have rarely seen so good interest so early in the campmeeting. It was evident that most had come to work for the Lord, and to do those things which make for peace. The Spirit of the Lord rested upon the people, and all seemed to be comforted and strengthened, and could say of a truth that it was good to be there.

Wednesday. The interest continued to increase. The business of the Advent Christian Association was completed during the day. The work was accomplished in less time and more pleasantly than ever before. It was evident that our brethren feel assured that our time for work in this world is short, and that we must do those things that make for peace, in order to be ready for the coming of Jesus. Preaching by Brn. M. Batchelor, S. S. Brower, and I. C. Wellcome. We were not privileged to hear, but heard good reports.

Thursday. The meetings were excellent. Several requested prayers, and were blest. All seemed disposed to make others happy, and put their religion into practical works. Preaching by Brn. A. Decker, E. Burnham, and H. Pratt. The audiences were large, attentive, and deeply interested. The truth was received joyfully by the saints, and awakened a new interest in the minds of many who had not heard before. It was very evident that the people are becoming convinced that we have the truth, the Bible being the standard.

Friday. Preaching by Brn. H. Munger, A. Simpson, and H. F. Carpenter. The meetings were very good. Some twenty requested prayers, and most of them were made to rejoice in the Lord. Many were almost persuaded to be christians, and others fully so. It was manifest that a deep work was going on in the hearts of the people. Those who came upon the ground felt a holy influence that caused them to exclaim, The Spirit of the Lord is here.

Saturday. Every thing seemed to conspire to make our meeting heavenly. We could not doubt that the Lord was bestowing special favors upon the encampment. Preaching by Brn. H. K. Flagg, H. L. Hastings, and Ira Morgan.

About midnight, the encampment was startled by piercing screams, and the cry of "fire," which were caused by the burning of the Goshen tent. It was a thrilling sight. It was a good sized tent, and full of men, women and children, all sleeping quietly, when they were awakened by flames and smoke rolling around them. We never saw a fire do its work in greater haste than on this occasion. It was with much difficulty that they escaped from the tent in time to save themselves. Bro. Henry Pratt had his hands badly burned, while making a hole through the tent to escape from the flames, and Bro. Otis also received some injury. Several had their clothing and bedding burned up. The whole loss was estimated at $150, which was made up to the sufferers by the Brn. and Srs. There were one hundred tents in all. The following is the report of the fire, as published in the Springfield Daily Union:—

SCENES AND INCIDENTS.

The devil isn't dead yet. He rampages up and down the earth seeking what tender titbit he can find for his greedy maw. His head-quarters are in a country where the impish stokers are eternally shovelling heaps of brimstone into seven-fold heated furnaces, where the fires never go out, but flash, and dash, and crash, ever twisting and twirling, with mountains of leaping flame and valleys of fiery depth. And his satellites of course delight to play with the same fiery edge-tool. Therefore it is not strange perhaps, that some devil, wearing for the nonce a human form, should try to burn up and out the tents and their inhabitants on the camp ground.

About midnight of Saturday, the large tent of W. McCullock, full of sleepers, was set on fire, and but for the timely discovery of the flames, would have been burned to the ground, while it would have communicated the fire to the tent next it, and as they are in a circle, the flames would have run completely around the camp ground. In making his way out of the blazing tent, Elder Henry Pratt had one of his hands seriously burned. It is absolutely impossible to conjecture the cause of this deed of more than fiendish malignity. Had it been successful, we should to-day have been called upon to chronicle the most appalling disaster of the 'carnival of crime. That the fire was not the result of accident is proved from the facts that it broke out in the end opposite to the tent lantern, while the watchman was at the other end of his beat, and that a person was seen to run from the direction of the tent upon the discovery of the flames. Had he been caught, the ministers of the Lord and of Gideon ought to have strung him up in front of the preaching stand, that all the people might see the swift vengeance and terrible justice of the avenger."

Lord's day. This was the great day of the feast. The weather was lovely, and every thing seemed to combine together for the general good of the meeting. At 8½ o'clock, we met in front of the preachers' stand for our great love-feast. It was a precious season. That meeting alone paid well for the whole meeting. It will never be forgotten by those who were present to enjoy it. In an hour and a quarter, 244 spoke of their love for Jesus, and their determination to press forward in well doing. We do not expect to get nearer, in this world, to the joys of paradise restored, than on the occasion of that love-feast. We think some will go on the strength of it more than "forty days."

At an early hour a long line of carriages, of various descriptions, might be seen wending their way to the encampment. It had the appearance of an immense funeral procession. In addition to these, twenty-two cars came in from Springfield and Palmer crowded with passengers, which swelled our audience, as estimated, to some ten thousand. Camp Hill was all alive with human beings. As there was not room for all in the circle of the tents, another congregation assembled in the woods, and was addressed by Bro. Hastings. Preaching at the stand by Brn. S. G. Mathewson and J. V. Himes. The order during the day was the best we ever witnessed. People were astonished to see such excellent behavior on the part of all. During the entire meeting of eight days, we did not hear but two oaths, and not a single hoot or noise calculated to disturb the peace of the encampment Says the Springfield Daily Union:—

"The largest crowd of the week was on the ground on Sunday. A special train of sixteen cars from Springfield, and one of six from Palmer, each car filled from platform to platform, took a cityful to the ground; and a caravan of gigs, market wagons, carryalls, and even cotemporaries of the 'Deacon's one-hoss shay,' poured in a swarming host more of the faithful and the faithless; while not a few reverent, irreverent, and indifferent pilgrims plodded camp-groundward 'on the hoof.'

Among the excursionists who went from this city was a crowd of roughs, who looked ready to pick a pocket or a quarrel with the same sang froid and professional skill. Many more of the party were rattle-headed boys, young enough to be very old; frolicsome journeymen, bent on a day's sport; with a leavening of sensible, sober men, who were going to the meeting to enjoy the services. But despite the heterogeneous host of humanity cast upon the ground, the order was excellent, and no disturbance occurred for the day."

Every one seemed disposed to add to the comfort of the rest. Those living in the neighborhood of the camp-ground also did what they could, by kind deeds and words, to make our meeting pleasant. Every body appeared friendly, and a well-wisher to the cause we love so well.

THE RESULTS of our great meeting have been glorious. It was a very common remark, that we never before had a campmeeting where such harmony and love prevailed among the brethren and sisters as at this one. Each seemed disposed to let the others enjoy, preach and talk their own views, without combating one another. The iron bedsteads were broken in pieces, test questions were not urged, but the general feeling appeared to be, we are near the judgment, and must help each other to get ready for the day.

Bro. Israel Rice, Hillsburg, N. Y., and Sr. A. E. Smith, New York City, were set apart for the work of the ministry.

During the meeting, a good effort was made in behalf of the Freedmen, and about one thousand dollars was pledged for sending missionaries and tracts among them.

The devotional meetings were excellent. A goodly number found peace in believing, backsliders were reclaimed, and twenty-eight were baptized. The scenes at the baptism were specially interesting, and afforded much comfort to the lovers of Jesus.

In the evening, four hundred and ninety-nine gathered around the table of the Lord to commemorate the sufferings of Christ. It was a most heavenly scene, never to be forgotten by those present. It was evident that there is a general conviction among our brethren that the Lord is soon coming to set up his kingdom. The same conviction is resting upon the minds of many who have not yet become faithful followers of Jesus. They are honestly inquiring if these things are so. May the Lord bless them with light and truth, and courage to embrace them; and a heart to obey, that they may have a final home in paradise.

WALLINGFORD CAMPMEETING.

We are not able to give but a brief notice of the Wallingford campmeeting, in Ct., as we spent but one day there, and a part of two others. Wallingford is a very pleasant village, having an excellent soil. We have not been in any other place in New England where the crops look as well as in the town. The corn, broom-corn, sorgum, tobacco, grass, potatoes, and other vegetables, are looking finely.

The campmeeting was about three miles east of the depot, in a pleasant grove. The meeting was not large, but good. There is an excellent interest in the neighborhood, as the result of the labors of Bro. B. Hitchcock, and others. The truth has taken strong hold of several substantial men and women, who have been members of other churches; and others have been converted, and are rejoicing with them in the "blessed hope" of soon seeing Jesus. There is a good field for the faithful servant of the Lord.

The time has come when the unconverted have lost their confidence in the popular religion of the day, that makes a display at fairs and picnics, dressed up in the foolish, immodest, and costly fashions of the day. The few devoted members of the fashionable churches, who are sighing over the sad state of things, are starving for healthy food where they are, and are satisfied they cannot endure such a state of things much longer. They feel the necessity of a change, but know not what to do. We think such will yet see the glorious truths relating to the speedy coming of Christ, the resurrection of the dead, the end of the wicked, and the coming kingdom. Now is the time for those who have light, to let it shine. Many will appreciate it, and rejoice; others will scoff, but let us not heed their mockings, only to be more earnest in efforts to spread the truth. Our working time is nearly over. Let none get "weary in well-doing."

We found the people anxious to hear on the evidence of our hope, and the signs of the times. It was a pleasure to talk to them for this reason. We were rejoiced to see them so ready to listen to what the popular clergy are pleased to call "infidelity." Many now see that the infidelity is on the other side of the house, and are surprised that they did not see it sooner. It was heart cheering to hear the testimonies of the old soldiers of the cross, who have recently seen the bright light that now shines upon the word of the Lord. We trust that others will have courage to seek and receive the same before it is too late.

We had the pleasure of meeting the following christian watchmen:—Bro. L. Boutell, Ira Morgan, J. K. Bellows, B. Hitchcock, H. W. Perkins, Chas. Piper, who are laboring faithfully in the vineyard of the Lord. We were obliged to leave on Friday, but learned that the meeting continued to increase in interest to its close. Several were brought from darkness to light, and went on their way rejoicing.

TWENTY-FOUR QUESTIONS.

The following twenty-four questions are full of good common sense. They were published some years since in the "Age of Gospel Light." We commend these questions to the consideration of the candid. As many of our readers have not seen them till now, we hope they will be weighed with candor in the scales of truth. Please look specially at No. 22, and consider the fruits of the lie of Satan, spoken to our first parents in the garden of Eden. His harvest has now come, instead of "the conversion of the world" to the Lord.

TWENTY-FOUR QUESTIONS.

1. Is the soul a part of God or a part of man?
2. If it is a part of God, can it sin?
3. If it is a part of man, is it not mortal, and subject to death?
4. Is there an intimation in the Bible that God put a soul (mortal or immortal) into Adam at his creation; but, as he was made of dust, is it not said that this man of dust became a living soul?
5. If men can exist without bodies, why were Enoch and Elijah taken out of the world bodily?
6. If the body is a prison-house for the soul, are not these good old prophets still in prison?
7. If the body is a prison-house, why was Adam's soul put into it before it sinned?
8. When the soul (the prisoner) becomes guilty, why is the prison (the body) destroyed to let it out?
9. Did not Christ suffer the penalty due to Adam's trangression in making the atonement?
10. Then, if that penalty was moral or spiritual death, did not Christ suffer it?
11. If in Adam all die a spiritual death, will not all be made spiritually alive in Christ?
12. If the soul is an immortal or spiritual thing, must it not die a spiritual death?
13. As nothing can die except what is mortal, if the soul dies a spiritual death, must it not be spiritually mortal?
14. If the soul is a spiritual thing, and immortal, it must have spiritual immortality: how then can it die a spiritual death?
15. If literal death destroys a literal thing, must not spiritual death destroy a spiritual thing?
16. How could David say, "God will redeem my soul from the power of the grave," if the grave has no dominion over the soul?
17. How is it written that Christ's soul should be made an offering for sin; and, again, that he poured out his soul unto death, if his soul did not die?
18. If the soul is the conscious and responsible part, how is that, by repentance, it escapes to paradise at death, and leaves the innocent body to suffer the penalty?
19. If the righteous go to glory at death, did not the serpent speak the truth?
20. If God spake the truth, does not that which he calls the soul return to dust?
21. But if that which man calls the soul does not surely die, did not the serpent speak the truth?
22. Are not the spiritual manifestations the ripe fruit of the popular doctrine of the immortality of the soul,—that is, "Ye shall not surely die"?
23. Is there any difference between this popular doctrine and rapping Spiritualism, but this: that the rapping Spiritualist is a little ahead of the popular church; she having taught the doctrine of the innate immortality of man, (not surely die,) and the rapping Spiritualist is (by Satanic agency) pretending to prove it?
24. How can the clergy say that rapping Spiritualism is of the devil?—do they intend to say that he is proving the immortality of the soul, which they have long tried to do, but always failed?

PARISIAN SOCIETY.

The fashionable society of Paris is very far from the christian standard; and yet the American people are becoming faithful imitators of the immodest and expensive fashions of that licentious city. It is a sad sight for a christian to behold as he looks around and sees the professed followers of Jesus following the ungodly customs, manners and fashions of Paris,—the modern Sodom. But so it is, and every year shows an increasing movement in that direction.

The following is from the Paris correspondent of the London Star:—

"A very curious debate took place a few days ago in the Senate, on the present state of the social evil in the city of Paris. From the nature of the subject discussed the government reporter was not admitted. M Dupin has, however, printed the speech he delivered on that occasion, for private circulation. In it he energetically condemned the luxurious lives of the upper classes of Parisian society, comparing the women of the present day to the frog in the fable, who burst while attempting to swell itself to the size of his friend the ox. 'When a married woman has not de quoi to pay her bills, she shrinks from telling her husband. Her own purse being empty, she dresses on credit, which cannot last for ever. Therefore she signs bills of exchange, of which the payment is almost invariably fatal to virtue.' 'I believe the veteran orator by no means exaggerates this picture of the highest circles of Paris society, where the object of every woman is to outvie her acquaintances in the lavish extravagance of her dress and entourage. In fact, it is now recognized that society closes the doors of its salons to those whose mise en scene (an expressive term I cannot render into English) does not come up to the conventional standard of the day.

It was but very lately a gentleman of moderate income assured me that seven hundred francs was the lowest sum he could spend each time he took his wife into a French ball room, and even then the lady seemed singular from the plainness of her attire. Such being the state of things in the respectable portion of the community, it may easily be imagined to what the expenditure of another and yet more reckless class of women now amounts, and the consequent ruin brought on families whose sons the Anonymas of the hour involve in hopeless debt and difficulty. M. Dupin suggests a somewhat Utopian remedy, namely, the establishment of a society similar to that of the matrons of the Roman republic, where the young girls and married women would be trained to habits of 'modesty, decency and domestic virtue.' The scheme may have been practical in the days of Lycurgus or of Cato, but I do not see by what process of reasoning M. Dupin will induce the Coralies and Boulangers of the Quartier Breda, or even the princesses and marquises we see in the Bois de Boulogne, to exchange their point d' Alencon dresses, or their gilt boudoirs, for even a temporary residence in M. Dupin's societe de temperance."

"THE WANE OF FAITH."—Do not fail to read the article on "the wane of faith." It will give the reader a true idea of the state of things in Christendom. The change for the worse is rapid; and the Bible assures us that "worse and worse" will be the order till the end of the present dispensation.

☞ Reports of the Alton Bay campmeeting will be found in the Boston weekly Journal and Boston weekly Post, of the last and present week.

For the World's Crisis.

TO BRETHREN WEST.

DEAR BRETHREN:—It is now Aug. 17th, and I have not been able to start for the West on account of the sickness of my child. We have had to leave the city with him, and seek a cooler climate. He has been sick since the first of June. We have once despaired of his life, but he is improving slowly now. Wife is much worn down by over care and anxiety, and I think it will be impossible for me to fill my appointment west, which I much regret, as I have been long contemplating this tour, but must submit to what appears to be duty, hoping that ere long I may be able to visit those I have so long desired to see. Yours in affliction, looking for Jesus,

C. B. TURNER.

Glenmore, Oneida Co., N. Y.

THE TRACT WORK.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held in Bro. Adams' tent, on Wilbraham Campground, August 25th, 1865, the importance of having a greater number and variety of tracts for general circulation was brought up for consideration, in accordance with the suggestion of the Business Agent, in his Annual Report read before the Society; and, on motion, it was Voted, That we urge our brethren, through the Crisis, to write tracts (of four, and not exceeding twenty-four pages) upon the subjects of the Lord's Speedy Coming, The Holy Spirit, Prayer, Holiness, Exhortations to the Impenitent, etc., etc., and forward the same to the Society for publication;—the brethren who devote their time and talents to the writing of such tracts being assured of due compensation from the Society, if the tracts are accepted.

And, in view of the exigencies of the times, which demand that we keep the truth as embodied in our tracts in active and extensive circulation, it was also—

Voted, That we endeavor to raise the present Tract Fund to the amount of $3000.

A good beginning to the new effort for the diffusion of light and truth is made in the donations which have come in already. Who else will add their mite to help on the good cause?

Come, brethren, awake! A great work and warfare is before us, demanding the constant and dilligent use of every talent and every Christian weapon,—head, heart and hand; prayer, purse and pen. Let us, this year, make a more vigorous and determined assault upon the bulwarks of Error and Sin, and take their strongholds by storm, in the name of the Lord of hosts.

WM. B. HERRON, Secretary
Adv. Chr. Pub. Society.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of Tracts.

Previous pledges and donations	$1239.28
Geo. T. Adams	25.00
Miles Grant	25.00
William B. Herron	5.00
J. F. Burch	5.00
A young brother	5.00
J. J. Curtis	5.00
A friend	1.00
A sister	3.00
A friend	3.00
Mrs. Wm. Welch	1.00
E. P. Cumming	1.00
H. B. S.	.25
Mrs. J. D. Ellis	.75
B. G. J.	.25
Miss Sanderson	.10

OUR FREE LIST.

We have now on our Free List, as will be seen from the Business Agent's Report next week, over 560 subscribers to whom the paper is sent without charge, at an annual expense of some $1400. Shall we cut them off?—We have not the heart to do it. They are the Lord's poor, rich in faith, and with us heirs of the kingdom. They are mostly scattered and alone, like sheep upon the mountains without a shepherd; and their only preacher is the Crisis. They must have the gospel preached to them. Shall this welcome "Messenger" of the near approach and reign of the Coming One still cheer their lonely homes as heretofore, at our expense; or will you., brethren, as the past year, with generous sympathy for these poorer members of the brotherhood, nobly share with us the blissful burden?

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free, 560. Ann'l Expense. $1400,00.

George T. Adams	$10.00
William B. Herron	5.00
J. S. Warren	5.00
J. F. Burch	5.00
Thos. C. Wilson	2.50
A friend	1.00
C. H. Smith	.50
Wm. Rowarth	.50

Doings of the Executive Board OF THE AMER. ADVENT MISSION SOCIETY.

The first meeting of the Board was called by the President of the Society, and was held at the Office of the World's Crisis, Wednesday, August 30th, at 3 P. M., Eld. Himes in the Chair.

The meeting was opened with prayer by Bro. Himes, who fervently besought the Lord of missions to preside over all the counsels of this Society, and abundantly bless all its operations.

The following By-laws were introduced by the Secretary, and on motion of Bro. Hovey, adopted:—

By-laws of the Executive Board.

1. All meetings of the Board shall be opened with prayer.
2. All committees shall be appointed by the Chairman of the meeting.
3. All resolutions, if required, shall be presented in writing.
4. No monies shall be paid out from the Treasury, or appropriated to any purpose, except by order of the Board.
5. No Officer of this Society shall receive any salary from the funds of the Society, nor make any private use thereof, nor receive any compensation except for actual service rendered or expense incurred in discharge of the duties of his office.
6. The regular meetings of the Board shall be on the first Thursday in every month, at 3 P. M. Special meetings may be called, by order of the Secretary, at the request of any two members of the Board.

Some suggestions were made by the President and Secretary as to division of labor, by the appointment of certain Committees, who shall give special attention to the various concerns which may require the deliberations of the Board; and,—

On motion of Bro. Hovey, the Chair appointed the following

Committees.

Committee on Schools and Missions.
J. V. HIMES, MILES GRANT, WM. B. HERRON.

Committee on Finance.
GEO. T. ADAMS, S. HOVEY, A. W. SIBLEY.

Committee on Clothing and Supplies.
A. W. SIBLEY, GEO. T. ADAMS, L. T. CUNNINGHAM.

Committee on Publications.
WM. B. HERRON, MILES GRANT, J. V. HIMES.

On motion of Bro. Herron, Bro. Adams was authorized to take such steps, in behalf of the Society, as are required by the laws of the State, to effect a legal organization.

Bro. Himes stated his intention to publish the proceedings of organization, with the Secretary's Address, &c., in the Voice of the West; and thought it would be for the good of the cause of missions, to issue the same in tract form, which he could do, at little expense, from the same type, and from his own press; and, on motion of Bro. Hovey, it was Voted—That Bro. Himes be authorized to publish in a tract, for the Society, its proceedings of organization, with the Address of the Secretary, and a report of the first meeting of the Board, for general circulation.

As it was understood that Bro. Himes intended soon to go South with his Big Tent,—

On motion of the Secretary, Bro. Himes was appointed the Society's Agent to select suitable fields South for the establishment of schools and missions; and he was requested to enter upon the work as soon as practicable.

It was suggested that an effort in behalf of the mission should be made at the Alton Bay Campmeeting, and

On motion of Bro. Adams, Eld. H. K. Flagg was requested to make special solicitations at the Alton Bay Campmeeting, and was authorized to raise funds, and receive pledges, for the help of our mission work among the freedmen; and the Secretary and President were instructed to notify him of the same.

The subject of Bro. Czechowski's Italian Mission came up, and the question was discussed at some length whether this Society shall adopt his mission as a part of its operations; but no action was taken at this meeting.

To awaken our brethren everywhere to the great and urgent importance of our mission work among the freedmen, it was voted that we send out the following

Address of the Board.

To the Saints scattered abroad, greeting:—

Brethren of the Advent faith; ye who look and long for speedy redemption, and who recognize it as our christian duty to do all we can to extend the preaching of "this gospel of the Kingdom" into all the world before the Lord comes,—we address you, in behalf of needy and suffering humanity, not for the heathen in far-off lands, who worship idols, and bow down to stocks and stones, but for our own heathen at home, in a land of boasted Christianity and civilization; for a people hitherto scattered and peeled, a people meted out and trodden down; who have, for ages, been treated as having no rights which white men are bound to respect; to whom, until now, the gates of learning have been closed, and the Bible has been a prohibited and sealed book; to whom the sacredness of marriage and the purity of the domestic relation have been made a mockery, and the rights of citizenship and manhood a dream; who have been corrupted and imbruted by slavery, and kept in ignorance and degradation by the inhuman bondage under which they have groaned.—A people whose prison-doors are now opened, and whose bonds are broken; and who are just emerging from a long night of darkness and death, and calling upon the good people of this Christian land for light and help.

We appeal to you in their behalf; and ask you, in the name of Him who delighted in doing good, to consider their condition and their wants. Their chains are, indeed, severed; and they are now free. But they are yet poor, and hungry, and naked, and ignorant; and they need to be fed, and clothed, and instructed. They need religious and moral training, to elevate them to the dignity and enjoyment of the sons of God, and fit them for heirship in the Kingdom of heaven.

We call upon you to unite your energies, and contribute liberally of your means, to the elevation and christianization of this long oppressed and benighted people.

An Advent Mission Society has been organized for the purpose of sending out missionaries and teachers to "occupy" our portion of the great field, in the hope of doing the poor freedmen some good, and leading them to rejoice with us in the good news of a coming Redeemer.

The Executive Board now call upon you for help. Already several able and experienced missionaries and teachers are waiting to go, as soon as fields are selected, which, we trust, will be not long hence. But we want means to send more; and means to publish tracts for the freedmen, for their moral and religious instruction. We want $5000, the present year. Shall we have it? Ye, whom the Lord has made stewards of his money, will you not give freely to this noble work, and trust to the Lord to reward you when He comes?

We want, not only monies, but clothing, bedding, and books; garments of every description, new or worn, for the old and young; blankets, sheets, comforters; school-books, Bibles, Testaments, &c., &c.

And we recommend the formation of Branch Societies in every church, and the appointment of certain persons who shall see to the collection of funds and supplies, the manufacture of clothing, and forward them to the office of the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, 167 Hanover Street, Boston, Mass., (or, if from the far West, to ELD. JOSHUA V. HIMES, Buchanan, Mich.)

God help us to "occupy," and do all the good we can in the great field, till the Lord comes. Amen!

WM. B. HERRON, Secretary.

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

Previous pledges and donations	$131.50
A. J. S., Southington, Ct.	.50
Mrs. Mary W. Brooks, Groton Junction, Mass.	1.00
A. Bucklew (through F. Burr)	3.00
G. S. Gates, Groton Centre, Mass.	3.00
Lucinda Jones, Acton, Mass.	1.00
Daniel Jones, " "	1.00
E. B.	1.00
J. F. Burch, Philad., Pa.	5.00
Mrs. Jane D. Ellis, E. Hardwick, Vt.	1.00
Rhoda, Wilkinsonville, Mass.	1.00
E. P. Cummings, South Sutton, N. H.	2.00
Mrs. S. A. K., Lewis, Iowa	5.00
Pilgrim, North Carver, Mass.	2.00
S. O. Mathewson, Castleton, Vt.	10.00
Husband and wife (through Sr. Mathewson)	5.00
A friend " " "	1.00
A friend " " "	.50
Taken at the Wilbraham Campmeeting.
A sister, Pascoag, R. I.	5.00
Dr. J. B. Walker, Athol Depot, Mass.	2.00
G. P. Persons, Hockanum, Ct.	5.00
Widow's Mite, Troy, N. Y.	15.00
S. S. Spaulding, So. Killingly, Ct.	5.00
S. M. Wise, Collinsville, Ct., two gold rings.
Another widow's mite (all she is worth) silver	.50
J. J. Curtis, Thompsonville, Ct.	5.00
Ralph White and wife, Ludlow, Mass.	4.00
M. S. Smith, Granby, Mass.	2.20
J. N. More	3.00
A sister	2.00
A friend	2.00
Paid and pledged at the mission meetings, and reported on the first page	785 00
Omitted from said report, as follows:—
A friend in New Jersey, to publish tracts for the freedmen (thro' Bro. Himes)	100 00
C. W. Dudley, Cheshire, Ct	5 00
Sr. Holbrook, Worcester,, Mass.	5 00
A. Smith, Granby, Mass.	2 00
A friend, Worcester, Mass.	1 50
A sister	2 00
Cash	1 00
Taken by Bro. H. K. Flagg at Alton Bay Campm'g.
Theodore H. Ford, Concord, N. H.	25.00
Thomas F. Kelley	5.00
Ruth Morrell	5 00
T. B. Tamblyn	5.00
Wm. M. Ingham	5.00
Mark Robinson	5.00
E. A. Black	3.00
A. Barrott	2.00
Joseph Hamell	1.00
Moses D. Richardson	1.00
Sr. Eaton	1.00
L. Vease	2.00
G. W. Goomine	5.00
Geo. Christenson	5 00
W. A. Ordway	2.00
Samuel Ladd	3.00
J. L. Prescott	1.00
Chas. H. Coff	3.00
A stranger	1.00
T. M. Tower	3.00
L. S. Hodgdon	1.00
Sr. Adams	1.00

PLEDGES PAID—J. Wilbur.

KEY TO THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART.—This is a little tract of 24 pages, designed as a help to the understanding of the prophetic periods as embodied in the chart. Sent free to all who purchase, or have purchased, the chart, on the receipt of a stamp to prepay postage.

Price of the chart, in cloth, not mounted, by mail, $4.00; on rollers, by express, $5.00.

☞ Biela's comet is expected soon to make its appearance. It is not yet near enough to be visible—being no nearer the earth than 110,000,000 of miles. On the first day of November next it will be close to Markab, one of the four bright stars forming the well-known square of Pegasus.

For the World's Crisis.

TENT MEETING IN NEW YORK.

If the Lord will, I hope to commence a Tent meeting at or near Savannah Station, on the New York Central R. R., between Syracuse and Rochester, on Thursday evening, Sept. 14th, and continue it over the following Lord's day, and as much longer as may be duty.

Will Brn. Stevens, Miles, and others, select a place, procure four poles fifteen feet long, and fifteen poles seven feet long, and give notice in the region?

The following week we hope to hold a Tent meeting at Avon Springs, then perhaps near Belvidere, Alleghany Co., N. Y., and onward as the Lord may guide. Will those who have been converted and blessed under this old Tent pray for us?

H. L. Hastings.

Correspondence.

From Sr. M. E. Streeter.

Brn. and Srs.:—I am still trying to do my Master's will, and longing for that rest that remains for the people of God. The Lord has truly been good to me, and I will praise his blessed name. I have passed through some severe trials, but, thank God, I have found his grace sufficient thus far, and I always expect to as long as I am walking in the strait and narrow way; and I can say with the poet—

"When friends that once I loved so well
Leave me alone to sigh,
This hope bids me rejoice and sing,
For my redemption's nigh."

Blessed thought! our trials and afflictions are almost over, and we shall soon exchange the cross for the crown. Let us gird on the armor anew, and fight the good fight of faith, that we may lay hold on eternal life. The Master is soon coming, and what we do we must do quickly. God grant that we who profess to be looking for the Lord may be separate from the world and its fashions, for we must be unspotted from the world. I care not what the world may say or think of me, if I can only know that my ways please God; for if we live godly we shall suffer persecution; and I am willing to; and if we suffer with Him we shall also reign with him; and if we deny him he will also deny us. Let us also stand up boldly for Jesus, and show to the world that we are not ashamed of Him who has done so much for us, who has suffered and died that we might live eternally in the kingdom soon to be given to all the faithful ones.

"My longing heart cries out, O come!
Creation groans for thee;
The weary pilgrim sighs, O come!
Bring immortality."

This is the language of my heart. There is no true happiness in this life but in the service of God. Truly, "if in this life only we have hope,...we are of all men most miserable." But we have hope beyond this vale of tears; for Jesus is soon coming to make up his jewels and gather all his children home, and we shall be made like Jesus, and our bodies fashioned like his glorious body, when we shall reign on the new earth for ever and ever. Then we shall behold all those dear loved ones who have so long been sleeping in the cold ground. Lord, help me to live in constant readiness, so that when He who is our life shall appear, I may also appear with him in glory. Your sister in Christ,

Mary E. Sseeeter.

No. Dana, Mass.

From Sr. J. Thompson.

Bro. Grant:—We do not know how to do without the Crisis. We are comforted and refreshed by hearing from our brethren and sisters, and we do earnestly unite, with them in their labors of love. We are grateful for the measures taken to spread the truth. Our prayer is, there shall not one escape that may be reached by the scattering of tracts, and that the spirit of the Lord may send the truth home to the heart of every one.

We feel unworthy to speak. The Lord knoweth them that are his, and in him is all strength. We feel the perils are great, and the need of girding on the whole armor and settling down with deep interest and solemnity. There never was a time when the true church needed to search so closely the word of God as now. We are satisfied the enemy of all righteousness cares not how, if he can only throw us off the path, the straight-footed path that Esdras speaks of. It seems there is a time when the saints will have to walk so close to the line, and the path is so narrow, there is danger of stepping off the mark. Let us be on the watch, double our diligence, and be sure we are in the faith, trusting in God, relying wholly on his word, abiding in the truth, and in the spirit of meekness and love do all as unto the Lord, having an eye single to his glory.

We have no preaching, therefore our Bible and the Crisis is our reading. Yours in hope of redemption through Jesus Christ, at the resurrection of the just.

Mrs. J. Thompson.

Grand Blanc, Mich.

From Sr. E. Braley.

Bro. Grant:—I am thankful for the Crisis, the medium through which the children of God communicate with each other; and may the blessing of God rest upon those who labor incessantly to spread the light of God's truth. I love the Crisis, because it advocates God's truth; and my soul has often been made to rejoice while reading the soul-cheering epistles, and extracts of sermons, from the saints scattered abroad. I rejoice that in these last days of apostasy there are some faithful servants giving meat in due season; men who are not afraid to preach the word; who, like David, are not ashamed of their hope. Would God there were more such men in the field. I pray He will send forth laborers into his vineyard, for the harvest is great, and the laborers are few.

Brethren and sisters, we have something to do. There are no idle posts in the church of God. If we will not labor, by reason of the cold, we shall beg in harvest, and have nothing. It is high time to awake out of sleep. Our salvation is nearer than when we believed. The note of alarm is sounding. God is in it. Shall we heed it? or shall we say, "Yet a little sleep, a little slumber, a little folding of the hands to sleep. So shall thy poverty come as one that travaileth, and thy want as an armed man." O! may God help us to heed the warning voice; to arise from dead works to serve the living God, by putting on the Lord Jesus Christ, and making no provisions for the flesh to fulfill the lusts thereof. Time is short (do we realize it?), and what we do must be done quickly. "Awake, thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light." God has promised us light, if we come to it. Let us arise quickly; for "the night is far spent, the day is at hand; let us therefore cast off the works of darkness, and let us put on the armor of light"; that we may be able to discern the signs of the times, and make speedy flight to the stronghold in Zion.

The time hasteth greatly when he that is holy will be holy still, and he that is filthy will be filthy still. Soon the last note of warning will be sounded, the last servant sealed, and the ministry of God finished, as he hath declared to his servants the prophets. May God help us to double our diligence in his cause. Let us be awake to the call for the Tract Fund, by casting our mites into the Lord's treasury. Let our faith and works blend, that it may be said of us, we have done what we could, when every man's work shall be tried, of what sort it is. "Behold, the Judge standeth before the door." "Have your loins girded about with truth, and your lights burning," that you may be accounted worthy to enter in to the marriage supper of the Lamb, when "he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and admired in all them that believe."

"O, land of rest,
For thee I sigh."

Your sister, striving for the kingdom,

Roxbury, Vt. E. Braley.

From Bro. M. M. Markham.

Bro. Grant:—I have some good news for you. In answer to prayer, and by reading some of your tracts on the sleep of the dead and destruction of the wicked, also the near coming of our Savior, Bro. ——, a Baptist preacher in this place, has been led to see the beauty there is in the word of the Lord on these subjects.

He does not believe in preaching for a salary. He does not agree with the popular preaching of the present day; so therefore he is poor as to this world's goods, but rich in faith, and an heir of the kingdom. I have listened to his preaching once in two weeks for about three years past. We have no Advent meeting in this place; but I try, in my feeble way, to talk these great and sublime truths to the people as often as opportunity presents. There are many here who feel interested to hear on the subject.

Middle Haddam, Ct. M. M. Markham.

Obituaries.

Dewey. Died in Troy Grove, Ill., Aug. 17th, 1865, Wm. S., infant son of Louisa and Wm. K. Dewey, aged seven months and six days.

Getchell. In Chelsea, August, 1865, of cholera infantum and congestion of the brain, Eddie, only son of Bro. P. G. and Sr. Mary B. Getchell, aged three years and three months.

The enemy has snatched away our last boy, but we mourn not as those who have no hope, for we believe that "Jesus died and rose again," and that those who sleep in him God will "bring with him." Our hearts say, Come, Lord Jesus, and drive out the usurpers, and give thy people the inheritance promised them.

Services were attended by Brn. Grant and Sibley.

B. G. & Mary B. Getchell.

Dixon. Died, in a fit, in Rocky Brook, Tuesday, August 1st, 1865, my brother, Alonzo Dixon, in the thirty-seventh year of his age.

He has been subject to epileptic fits from a child, until reason was nearly gone. For the last eight months mother was forced to board him away from home, confined to his room, she being unable to care for him properly. In his rational moments his theme was Jesus as his present help and final Redeemer. He embraced him as his best friend and Savior in 1864, and was then baptized by Eld. H. L. Hastings.

J. T. Dixon.

Wade. Died in Hampton, Ct., Aug. 6th, 1865, of hæmorrhage of the bowels, Sister Aleph Abbey Wade, wife of Bro. Lawton Wade, aged fifty-three years, eight months.

An affectionate husband mourns for one who has been a faithful partner of his toils and cares, children the loss of a devoted mother, friends a kind and cheerful acquaintance, and the church a worthy member of her blest communion. They mourn not without hope, for "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth." These words, written expressly for this hour of temptation, were employed by the writer to impart consolation to the bereaved circle who followed our beloved sister to her burial. She has oft refreshed us at her home when weary, and God will send refreshing from his presence, bid her wake and sing, and satisfy her with his likeness.

H. F. C.

Married.

At Wilbraham, Mass., Aug. 24, 1865, by Eld. P. S. Butler, assisted by Eld. J. V. Himes and H. L. Hastings, Eld. T. M. Preble, of East Weare, N. H., and Mrs. Sophia R. Young, of Wardsboro, Vt.

In H. L. Hastings' Bethel Tent at Wilbraham Campground, by Eld P. S. Butler, assisted by H. L. Hastings, Mr. James Mack, of Chester, Mass., and Miss Mary Jane Marshall, of Long Meadow, Mass.

In Worcester, Aug. 29th, 1865, by Eld. H. F. Carpenter, Mr. Lewis S. Carpenter and Miss Elvira Briggs, both of Worcester, Mass.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

From Queenstown the 20th ult.

The political news unimportant. Nothing has been determined in regard to the Atlantic cable. Future proceedings were to be resolved upon on the 21st inst.

Capt Anderson of the Great Eastern, in a letter says it will require ten months to provide proper gear for lifting the Atlantic cable and to make the necessary repairs to the Great Eastern. He suggested that a new cable should be made and laid in May next, and the old one then picked up and repaired. He has every confidence in the future success of the cable, but thinks it useless to renew the attempt to lay it during the winter months.

The Suez canal was opened on the 17th inst., and a vessel laden with coal passed from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea.

The European Times says: "The cholera is making sad havoc in the domains of Victor Emmanuel, and seems to be greatly extending. One bulletin from Ancona declares the attacks to be 115 and the deaths 65. At Bologna the epidemic has appeared in the prisons, and we hear of the appearance of the cholera at Milan and other places, where the mortality has been serious. A cure for cholera is said to have been found in inoculation by quassia, the body of the patient being shampooed before and after the operation. In London, the Social Science Congress has called a meeting of medical and scientific gentlemen, at which speeches were made, plans proposed, cures discussed; but after all had been said and done, the proceedings terminated with a recommendation to enforce strict cleanliness as the best preventive measure.

At the Cape of Good Hope, hostilities have commenced between two of the native rival tribes, the Boers and the Basutos, who have been fighting with desperate courage. So far the Boers appear to have fared badly, and 100,000 sheep and large droves of horned cattle belonging to them have fallen into the hands of the enemy.

A prospectus is published for a fortnightly steam line with vessels of 4000 tons between Southampton and New York. The title of the line is to be the "Trans-Atlantic Steamship Company."

A Convention between Austria and Prussia has been concluded concerning the Duchies. Prussia gets Laurenburg, paying Austria a pecuniary indemnity. The Provisional Government of the Duchies continues. Prussia rules Schleswig and Austria Holstien.

Liverpool, Aug. 24th, Londonderry 25th.

The Great Eastern had arrived at Sheerness. Capt. Anderson fully believes in being able to lay the Atlantic cable.

The Atlantic Telegraph Companies have resolved to lay a new cable next June, and pick up the old one.

The cattle plague continues.

FRANCE.

The Emperor and Empress are in Switzerland.

TURKEY.

The cholera was disappearing at Constantinople.

SPAIN.

The cholera at Gibraltar, Barcelonia and Valencia was disappearing.

SUEZ.

The Suez canal gates have been opened and vessels laden with coal passed direct from the Mediterranean to the Red Sea on the 15th.

Great preparations are making at Portsmouth to give a fitting reception to the French fleet. Grand banquets, balls, military parades and illuminations are in the programme.

A Cork paper says the Fenians are very active in that city and neighborhood. Large crowds, it is said, regularly assemble for drill, and illegal gatherings are no longer held in out of the way places, but in open day, and the members avow their intentions almost without reserve.

Some foreign journals have started a rumor that Napoleon contemplates the annexation of Belgium to France after Leopold's death, giving Duke Brabant the Mexican instead of the Belgian crown; also giving Venetia to Italy, the Danubian Principalities to Austria and the territory in Northern Germany to Prussia.

The Roman army is to be increased by 3000 men.

The cholera continued its ravages in Ancona.

The negotiations between Spain and Rome on account of the recognition of Italy, are satisfactorily concluded. Spain promises to protect the Pope and the interests of religion in Spain.

DOMESTIC.

New York, Aug. 28. Edward B. Ketchum, the forger, was arraigned this morning before Justice Hogan in the Magistrate's private room in the Tombs, where none were admitted but those specially interested in the case.

The latest advices from China are to June 22. A new rebellion is spreading rapidly, and the rebels have advanced within one hundred miles of Pekin, where they occupy a strong position. The authorities of Pekin have applied for British military officers to come to their relief.

Col. Burgeoine is in the custody of the Mandarins, who refuse to give him up at the demand of the American Consul.

The Herald's Vera Cruz correspondence says the town of Zongolcca, the principal place in the State of Vera Cruz, has declared in favor of the Republic, and it is defended by a force considered adequate to hold it. A force of Austrians marching against it was drawn into an ambuscade and put to flight, losing quite a number. The Austrians had also met with a reverse north of Puebla

Washington, Aug. 29. The trial of Jefferson Davis will take place before a United States Circuit Court, but what particular one has not yet been designated. There seems to be no importance attached to the fact that the Grand Jury of the District of Columbia some months ago found a true bill against him for constructive treason in sending his troops to operate against Washington in the summer of 1864.

The Grand Jury of the Court at Knoxville has indicted him for treason, for there Davis harangued the people against the United States Government. The trial, however, cannot now take place in that town or at any other place in the 10th Judicial district, for the reason that the vacancy occasioned by the death of Associate Justice Catron has not yet been filled. As the military operations against the United States were directed by orders from Richmond, it is probable the trial will take place in Virginia, at Norfolk, in which event Chief Justice Chase will preside, as that State is embraced in the judicial circuit assigned him.

New York, Aug. 29. The Herald's Washington dispatch says Gen. Swayne, in command at Montgomery, Ala., reports that the propensity to rob in that section has increased, consequent upon the unsettled functions of the law, and the social body is kept in a constant state of turmoil.

Col. Thomas, the commander of freedmen in Mississippi, reports that out of 346,000 freedmen in that State only 3000 are subsisted by the Government. The colored colonies and farms are doing finely. The more intelligent Mississippians are represented as willing to assist in developing the new order of things by the employment of interest and means.

The Herald's Richmond correspondence says that at the Union meeting held Tuesday afternoon in that city, the national flag was raised and "Yankee Doodle" and "The Star Spangled Banner" were played by the band. All the speakers six months ago were prominent supporters of Jeff. Davis.

Chicago, Ill., Aug. 30. A startling and murderous plot to release all the prisoners in the State Prison at Joliet has been discovered and frustrated.

New York, 24. The Herald has received private information from England relative to the late disaster to the Atlantic cable. It appears, according to the information, that the failure was owing entirely to defective connections purposely inserted by the malevolent action of a rival house in the manufacture of telegraph cables, and that we are indebted to them for the misfortune which is to be regretted by all the world, and not to any weakness in the enterprise.

New York, Sept. 1 The Herald's Kingston (Jamaica) correspondent says the headway the revolutionists are making in Hayti, has induced President Jeffrard to make preparations for his escape from that country.

The negroes of Jamaica are reduced to most abject poverty by the severe drouth of this summer, and are on the verge of starvation. They blame the Governor, and are so bitter that an outbreak is anticipated.

The last mail from England brings a report, on good authority, that the Great Eastern will be at once despatched from Sheerness to Newfoundland. The object of this trip is to fish up on the way the fragments of the dissevered cable, which, it is hoped, will be recovered by means of grapnels and buoys. The promoters of the enterprise in England are determined to lay another cable next year, making use of the recovered portions of the old one.

The Cholera in Turkey. The New York Post publishes an extract from a private letter just received from Rev. Cyrus Hamlin, D. D., President of Robert College, Constantinople. It is dated, "Halki, Prince's Islands, Sea of Marmora, August 7, 1865," and is the latest intelligence from Constantinople. Mr. Hamlin says:—

"Since I last wrote you, the cholera has occupied all our thoughts and time. It has been increasing in extent and intensity with great rapidity, until a universal panic has seized the entire population. All who can find means or conveyances are fleeing. Every steamer leaving the port is crowded from stem to stern. Those who fled from Egypt are now returning, and it is believed that one thousand to fifteen hundred die daily. The Porte has closed most of the places of business, and in the thoroughfares, once so crowded, you see little but the hurrying along of silent funerals. We have put up and distributed a great deal of medicine, and hundreds of bottles, labeled Dr. Hamlin's mixture, have been sold by one apothecary."

ITEMS.

☞ The number of battles fought during the late war is 252. Of these the soil of Virginia drank the blood of 89. Tennessee witnessed 37, Missouri 15, Georgia 12, South Carolina 11, Alabama 7, Florida 5, Kentucky 14, the Indian Territory and New Mexico 1 each. Once the wave of war rolled into the Northern States, and broke in the great billow of Gettysburg. Of the battles enumerated 16 were naval achievements.

☞ The Fenians of Chicago had a grand excursion and picnic on Saturday. There are two regiments of Fenians in Chicago. One of the speakers declared that a blow for the freedom of Ireland is to be struck within a year.

☞ Thirteen brothers and sisters—the oldest not twenty years of age—now lie side by side in a graveyard near Walkersville, Md., all of whom died of diptheria. Eight of them have died within the past four weeks.

☞ A hailstorm in the vicinity of Mount Sterling, Wisconsin, has just destroyed thirty thousand dollars' worth of crops. Hailstones, or rather rocks of ice, were seen which measured six or eight inches in circumference.

☞ The Czar, in reply to the request of the Pope that the Archbishop of Warsaw and the Bishop of Wilna be allowed to leave the interior of Russia and return to their dioceses, has informed the Papal Government that the latter permission will never be given them.

☞ Crops in Minnesota were less injured than interested parties represented. There will be an abundant yield of all kinds of grain.

☞ Crops of all kinds are much above the average in the northern counties of Wisconsin.

Notices.

Discussion in New Hampshire.

The undersigned have agreed to hold a public oral discussion in the Town Hall at Alton Corner, (near Alton Bay), commencing at 3 o'clock P. M., on Monday, September 25th, to continue through ten consecutive forenoon and afternoon sessions, of two hours each, ending on Saturday forenoon, Sept. 30th, unless terminated earlier by mutual consent of the parties. Question:—"Does the Bible teach that the wicked dead will not be made alive?" Affirmative—R. Wendell. Negative—T. M. Preble. The speeches are to be twenty minutes in length. The forenoon sessions will commence at 10 o'clock, and the afternoon sessions (after the first day) at 2 o'clock. Admission free. All are invited to attend.

Rufus Wendell.
T. M. Preble.

Basket Meeting.

On Sept. 23d and 24th, there will be a meeting of the Premillenialists in the grove of I. C. Judson, in the northeast corner of Berlin Township, Erie Co., Ohio, one mile west of Florence Corners. Exercises to begin on Saturday P. M., at 12½ o'clock, with prayer and conference. Preaching at 2 P. M. in the grove, and 7 P. M. at the Chapel. All are invited. Bro. R. Wendell is expected to be with us.

G. W. Stetson.

New Hampshire State Conference.

The fourth quarterly session of the New Hampshire State Conference will be held with the church in Whitefield, N. H., commencing Sept. 28th, and continue over the following Lord's day. May prayer go up to God that this meeting may result in great good to the church and people in Whitefield.

N. W. Sibley, Secretary.

Tent Meeting in DeKalb.

The Lord willing, there will be a tent meeting in DeKalb, DeKalb Co., Ill., commencing Sept. 14th, at 2 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Sunday. Bro. Himes, Sheldon, and others are expected to attend. The fields are all white for the harvest; let us gather in the sheaves.

H. G. McCulloch.

Look Here!

Who carried home two comforters, which were not theirs, from my tent at Tremont campmeeting? They were borrowed for my convenience, and must be found or paid for. Please send them at once by express to Eliel Benson, Tremont, Mass., and write stating the fact to H. L. Hastings, 19 Lindall Street, Boston.

Notice.

Eld. J. K. Bellows and H. Hadlock will hold meetings in the Advent Christian Chapel, Hoosick, N. Y., commencing Wednesday evening, Sept. 27th, and continue over Sunday.

In behalf of the church, J. Wilbur.

Eating House.

It may not be generally known to our friends visiting Boston, who need something to eat while there, that the cheapest and, on the whole, the best place for them to get a meal is at the Marshall House, No. 10 Marshall St., in the vicinity of the Crisis office. Gentlemen and ladies both go there. Wadsworth, who keeps the house, is a gentleman.

Edwin Burnham.

Found on the Camp Ground.

One black overcoat, velvet collar. One pair green spectacles. One pair in morocco case. One pair in steel case. One door key. Two portmonies. One wallet. A fine odd glove and veil. Those wishing the articles, please send a stamp, and address Hiram Munger, Chicopee Falls, Mass.

Basket Meeting.

A basket meeting of the "Second Advent church of Christ" in Fairfield, Huron Co., Ohio, will be held in the maple grove of Mr. Charles Peufield, on the "Diagonal road," near the corners, formerly known as "Wakeman's Mills," on Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 9th and 10th. Should the weather be unpropitious, the assembling will then be in the Penfield shool-house close by. Preaching Saturday and Sunday, at 10½ o'clock A. M., and 2 P. M. Lord's Supper on Sunday, 1½ P. M. Prayer and conference on Saturday, forenoon and afternoon services, and also in the evenings, at the school-house. Brethren and sisters from Plymouth, Norwalk, Berlin, and other places in the vicinity, are invited to attend. Ask your friends to come with you, and have your baskets well filled for the entertainment of strangers. Bro. Jonas Wendel of Edinboro', Pa., is invited to be present.

By order of Committee,
G. W. Stetson, Evangelist.

Notice.

To the isolated brethren of Iowa—Greeting:—Those of you who wish preaching some time during the coming year, will please write me immediately; giving a description of the place, the people, and the state of religious interest, and how much, if anything, can be raised to aid the conference in supporting the preaching of the gospel of the kingdom among you. I wish to know where is the best place to use the means entrusted to my hands. If any know of a good opening for missionary labor, let me know at once.

P. S. W. Deyo,
Iowa Christian Conference Missionary.
Strawberry Point, Iowa.

Conference.

The next Annual Maine Advent Conference will be holden in Belgrade, to commence Sept. 7th and continue over Sunday. The meeting will be in the Baptist house, one mile from the depot. We hope there will be a general rally to this meeting, and that brethren will come filled with the spirit of Christ, and in earnest to unite their efforts to spread the truth, build up the cause of Christ, and save sinners. Those coming to the meeting may call on Brn. Wesley Greely, Thomas Rowlins, Thomas Eldridge, and Eld. Joseph Cumming.

H. B. Sevey, Pres.
W. H. Mitchell, Sect.

Meeting in Darien, N. Y.

There will be a two days meeting in Darien, Genesee Co., N. Y., at the Baptist house, commencing Friday evening, Sept. 8th, and continue over the Sabbath. It is also the quarterly meeting of the Christian Conference of Western New York. Brethren coming from the East will find a conveyance at Croft's Station, on the New York Central, five miles west of Batavia, at 1½ P. M. Also, for those coming from the West, at Corfu Station, at 4 P. M., Friday. Do not forget the empty straw ticks. A general attendance is looked for.

B. C. Simonds.

Conference.

There will be a quarterly conference at South Hope, Me., to commence Sept. 8th, at 2 o'clock P. M., and hold over the Sabbath. Preaching brethren and all lovers of truth are cheerfully invited to attend.

S. K. Partridge.

Wisconsin Conference.

Probably our Wisconsin annual meeting will be held in the big tent, on the bank of Devil's Lake, in Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis., beginning Sept. 22d. Particulars in time.

W. Sheldon.

Notice.

Ministering brethren who may wish to come to Biddeford, Me., to preach, will correspond with J. C. Libby or A. P. Hyde, that appointments may not conflict.

Maine Second Advent Tract Society.

S. K. Partridge, R. R. York, I. C. Wellcome
Board of Managers.
I. C. Wellcome, Secretary and Business Agent.
Isaac Wight, Treasurer.

It was voted that all orders for tracts and books for distribution by this Society be addressed to the Agent, I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me., who will supply them as fast as the means are furnished.

All our ministers will receive subscriptions for the Tract Fund, and they purpose to raise $200, or more, for free distribution in Maine this year.

I. C. Wellcome, Agent.

Agency for Maine.

Having been solicited to take the agency for Maine of Bro. Himes' "New Chart of Daniel and John," I would say to any and all in Maine who wish it, I am prepared to furnish it at the regular retail price, $5.00, and to preachers (or others who wish them to sell) at a liberal discount. Address orders to I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me.

Notice.

Elder Thomas Smith, Bangor, Me., has on hand for sale H. L. Hastings' "Signs of the Times," with an assortment of his various Tracts; also, the Tracts by Miles Grant, on "The Soul," "The Spirit," and "What is Man?" and other Advent tracts.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as Tuesday Morning, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

Lowell Street Chapel, Boston, corner of Causeway and Lowell Streets. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

Lowell Street Chapel.

Edwin Burnham....Sundays, Sept. 10th, 17th, and 24th

East Boston.

J. Blain..........Sunday, Sept. 10th

New Preston campmeeting, Ct..........Sept. 7th and over the Lord's day. Miles Grant.

Salem, Mass..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
A. W. Sibley.

Lowell, Mass.

Bro. W. C. Thurman..........Sept. 10th
Miles Grant..........Sept. 17th
Bro. Plummer..........Sept. 24th

Hartford, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
Plainville, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 15th
Holyoke, Mass..........Sunday, Oct. 22d
Edwin Burnham.

Barnes' Hall, Springfield, Mass.

Ira Morgan..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
A. W. Sibley..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
Edwin Burnham..........Sunday, Oct. 8th

Rocky Brook..........Saturday evening, Sept. 3d and Lord's day, A. M., Sept. 4th.
Clark's Mills..........Lord's day, P. M., Sept. 4th
Westerly..........Monday, Sept. 5th
New York City, (Bro. Curry's)....Wednesday, Sept. 7th
Brockport, N. Y..........Sunday, Sept. 11th
Carlton, N. Y..........Sunday, Sept. 18th
West Barre..........Sunday, Sept. 25th
Home Oct. 1st. Jos. D. Brown.

East Carlton, N. Y..........Sept. 17th
Brn., please meet me at Eld. Sweet's on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 16th.
West Barre, N. Y..........Sept. 24th
J. Blain.

Athol, Mass..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
S. S. Brewer.

Northwood Narrows, N. H..........Sept. 10th
East Canaan, N. H..........Sept. 17th
Nottingham, N. H..........Sept. 24th
Z. Ford.

Barnstead, (Clark meeting-house), Saturday, 1 P. M., Sept. 16th, and over the Lord's day.
Conference at Pomfret, Vt., commencing Thursday, Sept. 21st, 7 P. M., to hold over the following Lord's day. All invited to come. J. Couch.

Northfield, or Campville, Ct., (as the brethren may arrange), Sunday, Sept. 17th. C. Goodrich.

Portsmouth, N. H.

C. S. Emerson..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
Burleigh Emery..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
Joseph Pinkham..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Wm. H. Mitchell..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
C. Goodrich..........Sunday, Oct. 15th

North Adams..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
E. McCulloch.

Carver, (for baptism)..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
Taunton, (Trescott Street)..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
W. E. Hathaway.

Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
Mathew Bachelor.

New Hampton, N. H., in the grove, near Bro. Pike's, Saturday afternoon, Sept. 9th, and over the following Sunday. A. Simpson.

Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
Worcester, Mass..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
J. Hemenway.

Dover, N. H., (Court House Hall), Tuesday evening, Sept. 12th.
Rye..........Wednesday evening, Sept. 13th
Lynn, Mass..........Friday evening, Sept. 15th
West Abington..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
Worcester, Mass..........Wednesday evening, Sept. 20th
Abington, Ct..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Danielsonville, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
R. I. Conference..........Oct. 4th
Wm. M. Ingham.

Guilford, Ct., (East River)..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
O. D. Woodruff.

Dover, N. H..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
Biddeford, Me..........Monday evening, Sept. 11th
Tuesday evening, Sept. 12th, Bible class. Subject,—Rev. 20th chap.
Wednesday evening, Sept. 13th, at liberty to preach as the way opens, if informed in season at Biddeford, Me.
Lee, N. H., Thursday and Friday evenings, Sept. 14th and 15th. Will Bro. Durgin meet me at New Market Depot?
Concord, N. H..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
Haverhill, Mass..........Monday evening, Sept. 18th
Lawrence, Mass., Wed. and Thurs. evenings, Sept. 20th and 21st.
South Reading, Mass..........Friday evening, Sept. 22d
Lynn, Mass..........Saturday evening, Sept. 23d
At liberty Sunday, Sept. 24th, to preach somewhere near Boston. Please inform me in season at Concord, N. H. H. K. Flagg.

Freeport, (Swamp school-house), Sunday, Sept. 17th, 2 P. M.
Brunswick, (Yellow school-house), Sept. 24th, 10½ A. M. Evening, Harding school-house, 7 o'clock.
R. R. York.

Bristol, Ct..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
New Britain, Ct., Thursday and Friday evenings, Sept. 21st and 22d, and over Sunday, 24th.
Collinsville, Ct., Wed. Thurs. and Friday evenings, Oct. 4th, 5th, and 6th.
Pleasant Valley, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 8th
North Adams, Mass., evenings....Oct. 11th, 12th, 13th
Hoosick, N. Y..........Sundays, Oct. 15th and 22d
Poultney, Vt..........Sundays, Oct. 29th and Nov. 5th
Chas. E. Piper.

Bristol, Ct.

S. W. Treat..........Sept. 10th
T. W. Piper..........Sept. 17th
Ira Morgan..........Sept. 24th

Thomaston..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
Newfield..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
R. Williams.

Goshen, Mass..........evenings, Sept. 7th and 8th
Savoy..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
Dalton, (at Bro. Warren's)..........evening, Sept. 12th
Dalton, (Bro. Smith's)..........evening, Sept. 13th
South Adams, (at Bro. Wheelock's), evenings, Sept. 14th, 15th, and 16th.
North Adams..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
Hoosick, N. Y..........evening, Sept. 18th
North Bennington, Vt..........Sept. 19th and over Sunday. Geo. A. Streeter.

Jackson's Corners, West Barre, Sept. 17th, at 10½ A. M.
East Carlton, (as Bro. C. Farr may arrange), Sunday, Sept. 24th.
Newstead, (Benedict school-house), Oct. 1st, 10½ A. M., and Kinny school-house at 4 P. M. C. P. Sweet.

Cheshire Street..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
Wallingford, Ct., from Tuesday to Friday. Will some of the brethren meet me at the cars at 4 P. M.?
Sunday, the 17th, at Hartford; suggested by Bro. Hiram Munger. Eld. Stewart.

Huckleberry Hill..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
North Canton..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
Canton Street..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Will Bro. Ripley be at Canton Street and preach the word? S. Woodruff.

Swanville, Me..........Sept. 10th, A. M.
North Searsport..........Sept. 10th, P. M.
Surry, North Bend..........Sept. 17th
Bradford..........Sept. 24th
South Atkinson, (with Bro. Joshua Livermore), Oct. 1st
Sebec, (where the brethren may appoint, with the assistance of Bro. F. A. Baker), Oct. 8th. Ordination at the time. Thomas Smith.

Chester Factories, Mass., (where Jer. Bishop may arrange)..........Wednesday evening, Sept. 13th
H. L. Hastings.

Carthage..........Sunday, Sept. 10th
From Monday to Wednesday where Bro. Wheeler appoints.
Bryant's Pond, (if conveyance)..........Sept. 15th
Mechanic Falls..........Sept. 16th
West Poland..........Sunday, Sept. 17th
South Poland..........Wednesday evening, Sept. 20th
Hiram Munger.

Lowell..........Saturday evening, Sept. 23d and over the following Lord's day.
J. S. Jordan.

Fables of Infidelity in Tract Form.

Sent, postpaid, as follows:

1. I don't believe in Religion..........12 pp., 3c.
2. Did the World make itself?..........16 pp., 4c.
3. Is God Everybody, and Everybody God?..16 pp., 4c.
4. Have we any need of the Bible?..........24 pp., 4c.
5. Who wrote the New Testament?..........16 pp., 4c.
6. Is the Gospel Fact or Fable?..........16 pp., 4c.
7. Can we believe Christ and his Apostles?..16 pp., 4c.
8. Prophecy..........32 pp., 5c.
9. Moses and the Prophets..........32 pp., 5c.
10. Infidelity among the Stars..........28 pp., 5c.
11. Daylight before Sunrise..........36 pp., 5c.
12. Telescopic Views of Scripture..........32 pp., 5c.
13. Science, or Faith?..........32 pp., 5c.

For the Set, (making 304 pp.)..........40c. postpaid.

FOR A GREATER QUANTITY.

By mail, 800 pp..........$1.00.
By express, 1000 pp..........$1.00.

Address all orders to Miles Grant, Boston, Mass.

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

J. Carr—The bill was for the other subscriber in No. W., and was put in the wrong paper.

E. B.—You will find "Home Thrusts" advertised in the next column.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 518. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid.

If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe.

For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, (if any), charge four cents; for every week since No. 468, if less than 26 weeks, five cents; if over 26 weeks, six cents a week (or $3.12 for the year.) From the sum deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—E Rogers 489, A W Lloyd 520, S R Fyler 527, M Goodale 536, L A Lang 571, J J Batchelder 536.

$2.00 each—F Sawtell 531, D Dean 520, R. S Robinson 588, T J Johnson 565, W Johnson 536, H Bancroft 566, L A Crowninshield 564, T J Wetherell 541, E Chamberlain 539, Mrs B Damon 536, O R Fassett 572, J Pike 568, Mrs Pike (?), K Pike 536, M Cornell 572, W Mosher 578, N Gibson 566, C H Hudson 572, N D Babcock 561, L Welch 538, L K Gaines 561, Mrs. E Stowe 609, S Goodale 563, E M Hulbert 573, E S Walker 563, N W Wait 603, I. Pancher 572, Dea. Pike 578, S. Pike 599, V. R. Stone 541, E. Fisk 576, D. Mathewson 520, P H Wait 572, L. Mason 578, J. Morris 548, A. Dewey 576, S Smith 572, S Stiles (?), J. Kingsley 568, S Freeman 572, Mrs M Card 546, J Alexander 578, M Waldorf 542, H B Vaughn 561.

$2.50 each—J Ewell 520, A Gage 564, E O Allen 576, E Collins 603, C Tower 571, E Lee 568, J Enderton 572, S P Dixon 569, A Allen 552, J B Walker 582, D Bears 544, T. W. Titus 561, E. Wetherell 546, T H Knowles 572, W A Thomas 567, Mrs. S. Orcutt 566, W Wright 614, A S Richards 596, E A Egglstone 592, E R Bowles 569, D Kendall 563, T S Page 562, R Pendleton 568, E Phelps 539, E. Fairman 569, R. Avery 572, O D Pease 569, H Bennett 561, E Kettell 547, H. Butler 582, D. Thomas 572, D D Chaffee 576, E L Crumb 568, O Morgan 579, S R Stewart 614, A B Howard 571, B R Clark 542, J J Curtis 557, J B Brown 572, W F Collier 582, M W Benham 551, L Dudley 576, W Harris 566, T L Saltonstall 597, H Patten 572, O Bidwell 535, S Cotton 572, J Strove 572, E Griffin 574, Mrs A P Chapin 568, A H Dodge 569, H Patten 520, W Nichols 551, M C Kershaw 624, S Pease 570, C N. Harvey 551, J R Pease 569, R Smalley 579, D Hoskins 562, H L Crane 569, L C Newcomb 551, S F Clapp 569, S Pease 572, S Ellenwood 561, J P Green 558, D Jones 572, S Parker 556.

$1.25 each—S. Button 537, L. Harrington 536, E. J. Brown 542, G. Wood 542, H. Clark 535, G L Rice 546, E Ayres 551, J A Clark 549, A Richardson 545, R Allen 545, S W Bartlett 546, A J McCulloch 543, Mrs M Crane 543, S F Hulburd 551, M K Drury 532, F H Bruce 542, R. White 546, H. Humphrey 527, M. Alderman 520, L. Belden 543, E P W Packard 543, R Day 537, S Tucker 546, H Moses 546, J E Marsh 540, S J Tyrrell 543, H A Miller 543, S. F. Bradley 543, W. Row n1 543, E Card 543, J Allen 571, A Burnett 525, G F Chapman 520, H Buell 535, M A Belding 546.

$1.75 each—S. Van Wart 546, J. H. Snooks 572, J S Tucker 572, M E Snook 572.

$3.00 each—J Brackett 582, A Bliss 520, J Fuller 569, A Doolittle 515, D F Howe 520, S Pease 572.

Various sums—E. W. Stevens $1.50, 515; G B Piper $3.93, 520; Mrs W F Thompson $2.16, 546; J M Snook $2.13, 546; G & W Snook $8.25, 572; C R Miles $1.24, 615; J Agan $7.43, 572; I Barnes $2.05, 572; C D Chase $2.05, 572; A Morse $1.80, 546; J E Healey $1.62, 572; O Tower $4.86, 572; J H Morgan $1.94, 520; F Edwards $2.15, 535; D W Miller $5.39, 572; Mrs J Randall $1.55, 535; A. B. Loomis $3.18, 541; Mrs J S Warner $3 17, 517; N Mather $1.55, 535; W H Stone $3 04, 520; C A Hastings $3 15, 572; C. Morse $5.50, 535; R. Britton $3.25, 572; J H Piper $3.39, 520; J A Paine $1.00, 533; J P Batchelder $2.92, 516; W. H. Bancroft $3.50, 572; H Lowe $1.00, 520; A Neff $3.73, 544; J A Best $3 43, 572; J M Chaffee $3.58, 520; A Hawks $3.38, 546; S O Parker $1.50, 551; E. A. Marsh $5.00, 540; T. Pease $3.05, 572; E. D. Warner 75c, 528; S. Converse $1.50, 540; J C Whiting $9.27, 572; S R Parkhurst $2.82, 517; Mrs. S. R. Chandler 80c, 533; T. Glover $3.45, 572; H. Clark $3.43, 546; J R Brown $3.10, 546; G Gillett $1 04, 540; W Paine $1.56, 520; L Allen $1.86, 546; A B Reed $1.50, 520; W. B. Rose $4.00, 572; S. B. Colton $7.89, 572; B F Streeter $1.60, 541; G Lyon 63c, 507; M Andrews $3.35, 572; A B Read $1.50, 551; C Benton $3.67, 546; Mrs. M Thrall $3.10, 572; H F Wade $5.00, 553; J Moore $3 61, 572; Dr. D N Moore 75c, 518.

For Books and Tracts—S. Ayers, $3.00.

☞ The very large number of receipts for the Crisis at the different Campmeetings, and in response to bills, renders it impossible to acknowledge them all in this number. They will all appear as fast as we can get at them. Have patience.

BOOKS AND TRACTS SENT.

By Mail.—A Darling, H McClary, J Mackey, O S Hayne, M A Elliott, S C Wilcox, Mrs. S Gardner, P E Williams, H B Sevey, B Russell, J C Thomas, J. R. Preston, J Naramore, J H Luttenton, J Dick, A Bellows, B S Jackson, Mrs. E Bennett, A H Steele, U C Newcomb, Mrs. W Welch, A E Goodrich, M Crabtree.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

J Lyle, A N Seymour, J W Taylor, A E Smith, L B Weaver, J S Lutteton, M. Whitman, S. Tenney, H. McClary, A Lewis, E S Willard, J Elkins, S L Manley, T G Burpee. M. L. Durand, F H Chamberlain, B. P. French, D Kenney, S G Walter, J A Purdy, H P Chase.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

Eld. D. J. Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
Maria Mathews Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
Mrs. George A. Otis—West Cummington, Mass.
A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
J. Couch—Concord, N. H.
H. F. Carpenter—Rutland, Vt.
Mrs. Walter Pratt—No. 4 Poplar Place, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—No. 2 Central Square, East Boston, Mass.
Bro. Wm. C. Thurman's address for the present is Boston, Mass., Box 292, care of Miles Grant.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

The Emphatic Diaglott: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library; with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

Christian Baptism: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid; $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

Rahab the Harlot. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

The New Testament of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

Why the Shoe Pinches. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

Dictionary of the Holy Bible, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

The Scriptural Question Book. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

Canon of the Holy Scriptures examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

The Great Symbolic Chart of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

Glad Tidings; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts.; postage, 2 cts.

Fables of Infidelity and Facts of Faith. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.00.

The taking of Human Life incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

Death not Life; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 2 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

Glad Voices; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty five or less.

The Mission of Suffering. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 5c, postage 2c.

Thurman's Bible Chronology, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

Muller's Life of Trust. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

Diphtheria: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. Price, 10 cts.; by mail, 12 cts.

The Syriac New Testament. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. Price $2.50. Postage 36 cts.

Non-Resistance; or, the Spirit of Christianity restored. By W. C. Thurman. Price 20 cts.; postage 4 cts.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT,
Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jas. T. Curry. "Do the Scriptures teach the Resurrection of the Wicked?" [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell.

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the ways of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments.

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments.

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar, an exposition of Matthew 10: 28, Genesis 35: 18.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture, of which only a single word is remembered, [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Muller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, England, [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, showing by copious extracts from History, the fulfillment of Christ's Predictions, and the Kingdom of God soon to come. By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, embracing the Scripture argument against fighting, and the testimonies of the Primitive Church. By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. By M. Hull. [illegible]

America in Prophecy, Exposition of the 13th chap. of Revelation, [illegible] By G. R. Fussell. [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. After the manner of Bunyan. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, the kingdom of Satan, the kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ, [illegible] By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, as comprehended in the Scriptures of truth. By C. F. Hewet. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the promised Messiah. By Mrs. Mary A. Seymour. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God. The Devil; his origin, personality, power, and doom. By Frances A. Smith. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for preparing all the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated health institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. Price 15c, postage 2c.

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. A. Stone. This is a valuable work, and should be read by all the young. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 14, in connection with Dan. 12: 11-13. By H. K. Flagg. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.00.
By Express—1500 pages for $1.00.
Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; postage, 2 cents. Free to the poor.

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers. 36 pages.
The Saints' Inheritance..........48 "
The New Heavens and New Earth..........24 "
The Voice of Warning..........24 "
The Advent at Hand..........24 "
The Last Days..........24 "
The Church not in Darkness..........24 "
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one)..........24 "
Outline of the Coast of Man..........8 "

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State..........24 pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead..........24 "
Ghostology..........48 "
Man's Future State..........12 "
The Key of Truth..........12 "

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved..........24 pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment..........12 "
Future Punishment Destruction..........12 "
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts)..........12 "
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Lost 24 "
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary..........24 "
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality..........12 "

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one)..........36 pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one)..........36 "
One Thing..........12 "
Judson's Letter on Dress..........12 "
Duty of Christians (a peace tract)..........24 "
Leaflets for Letters,—6 cents per set.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo Persia, Grecia, Rome Pagan, Rome Papal—as viewed by the light of Revelation. [illegible]
2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied in a manner plain and easy to be understood. [illegible]
3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Woe" ended with the Reign of Terror in France, [illegible]
4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]
5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]
6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. This is an argument based upon Amos 3: 7,—"Surely the Lord God will do nothing, but he revealeth his secrets unto his servants the prophets." [illegible]
7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the question, "What shall be the sign of thy coming, and of the end of the world?" [illegible]
8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. This is a phenomenal compend, containing a history of the Signs in the Sun, the Moon, and in the Stars; [illegible]
9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. Price 4 cts., postage 2 cts.
10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology on Bibles embracing testimony from the above sources, concerning the nature and destiny of souls. [illegible]
11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, revised, and enlarged. [illegible]

One copy of each of the above works sent by mail for $1.25.

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C. F. Hudson. [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. From Sir James Stephen, with notes. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, Is Evil Eternal? With Reply to Dr. Mosaid. [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to [illegible]

Blain's Tracts.

Price.—1 cent for every 8 pages; postage, 2 cents on every package of 150 pages, or less.

Endless Misery not a Bible Doctrine..........32 pages.
The Wicked not Immortal (with 200 proof-texts)..........16 "
Bible Meaning of the word Hell..........16 "
Bible Meaning of Forever and Everlasting..........16 "
[illegible]
Rev. John Foster's Letter on [illegible]

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.

Dedicated to Sr. Martha Dinsmore.

Thy child is resting; let her rest,
For life is full of care;
She sweetly sleeps in yonder grave,
No grief can reach her there.
God knows the frail and feeble ones,
He knows the very brave;
Those he lets live to fight the foe,—
He hides those in the grave.

'Tis well; for burdens are unborn,
And bitter tears unshed,
They have escaped these last-day snares,
The holy early dead.

The trump that tells us Christ has come,
Will bid the sleepers rise;
O glorious hope! it wipes the tears
From many a mourner's eyes.

Thanks be to God, the morn will come,
The Resurrection morn,
And from the bowels of old earth
The saints will all be born.

MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CALL.

"Go ye into my vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you."—Matt. 20: 4.

First, the nature of the call is to be considered. It comes from a source whose authority can not be disputed—the Householder, the Lord Jesus Christ; and it is he who spake this parable, or drew this illustration,—"Go ye into my vineyard." Who go? Those he has called. Who has he called? Everybody. The commission which he gave his disciples extended into all the world. Mark 16: 15. Then the prophet exclaims, "Look unto me, all ye ends of the earth, and be ye saved."—Isa. 45: 22.

Then we understand by the command, "Go ye into my vineyard," to be, first, the vineyard is the earth, or the whole world. Second, the Householder is the Lord Jesus Christ. Then we understand that he has called all mankind? Nay, verily. But whom has he hired? Those who comply with the conditions he has offered. But will every one do this? "Many are called, but few are chosen." Verse 16. Then he has hired and chosen none who have not complied with the contract.

But have we any thing to do? We think so, from the very fact that the Master saw men idle, doing nothing; therefore he said, "Go ye into my vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you." This language teaches us that we must work. But what is the work? Unto some he has said, "Go, preach my gospel." Then if he has called me, I can not preach some idea of my own, and cause division to come in consequence. No, nothing save the gospel. But, Master, may I not stop and contend for my views, and force them upon people at thy expense? No, the "charge" that I give to all I send into the vineyard is, to preach the gospel to every creature. But suppose men will not hear or believe me? That is nothing to you. Your business is to preach the gospel, and not to shun to declare the whole counsel of God; and as my servant Paul has well spoken, to say, "I am determined to know nothing save Jesus Christ and him crucified." 1 Cor. 2: 2.

But I have striven to do it; yet men have turned against me, and ridiculed my preaching, and I have felt many times that my efforts were so feeble that they were not received, and I had better go home and stay there. As I said before, it is your business to do the preaching I bid you, and do it faithfully, and leave the result; for it is he that believeth (the gospel) and is baptized (obeys the gospel) who shall be saved; and he that believeth not (the gospel, of course will not obey) shall be damned; and you must "go and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have command-you (no more). And lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."—Matt. 27: 19, 20. And you must work. You were doing nothing for me; therefore I called you; now work, and not idle away any more time; and at the end of the day (gospel day), whatsoever is right I will give you; and you need not be afraid; for, "verily I say unto you, there is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's, but he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children (no fathers), and lands, with persecution, and in the world to come eternal life." Mark 10: 29, 30.

This is what we shall receive, brethren, if we do the work that God has bidden us do. Then while the Master has laid it upon us to preach his word, let us do it faithfully, and not daub with untempered mortar, but declare the whole truth or counsel of God. It is either a savor of life unto life, or of death unto death. And, says the Master, "I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves; be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless (simple) as doves." Let us heed what the Master has said, obey the call, go into the vineyard, and not complain. Has not the Master said, "Whatsoever is right I will give thee"? Can not we trust God? How many of the poor in this world are destitute of preaching, because preachers are fearful they will not get so much money if they go. This tells a plain truth; such have not the cause of God at heart. These places out in the by-ways and hedges are neglected by many. Is this right? Did not the Master say the poor should have the gospel preached to them?

Brethren in the ministry, do not neglect the poor. Go preach the gospel. What if you have a large family, and you can earn so much at home? If the Master has chosen you to preach his word, go. Trust in him who sent you. Does he not know your circumstances? Has he not said the cattle on the hills are his, the gold and the silver also, and will he not give you what is right? Is he not faithful who has promised? Has he ever forsaken those who trust in him? Never, no, never. What if you do not have all the nice things of this world? trust in God; he that clothed and fed the ravens, will he not do as much for you? Let us do what the Master has bidden us, and leave the result with him. "Lo, I am with you, even unto the end of the world."

But are the preachers only called, and no one else? Nay. Has he not hired others? All are not apostles, all are not teachers or preachers. There are different parts to the human body—the face, the ear, the eye, the hand and arm, the feet and legs; and each one is needed in its own place; and when either is out of place, there is a deformity of the body; but when every member is in its place, and all are at work, there is unison; not a jar or discord; each one attends to its business, and every thing goes on nicely. But if the eye should begin to think itself better than the ear, or the ear than the eye, or the hand than the face, and all should contend about it, you see it would not work well at all; there would be nothing done; so that none can say of the other, you are of no use, when in fact one is as much needed as the other.

So it is in the great body of Christ. There are different places to fill, and one need not think he can fill them all. The Master has placed every one in his place, and has given to all according to their several ability, commanding them to improve or occupy until he comes. By and by he will reckon with all. There are the preachers, or teachers; then follow the other members of the body. Neither can complain of the other; all are useful when in their proper places; when they are there, and all at work, they will move in harmony with each other, and there will be a proper and healthy body; the cause will prosper, the church be edified and built up.

Contrary to this, there will be divisions, distractions, etc., in consequence of all not keeping their places. Such had better read John 21: 21. When the preacher leaves his family and friends, he makes a great sacrifice; he meets with many things in the world that those who stay at home know but little about. The Spirit says, Go, leave all; go preach my gospel. He sees many in the bonds of iniquity. He sees the end of all things is at hand. He takes his Bible in his hand and starts forth to a certain place. God blesses his labors, sinners are converted, backsliders awakened, believers strengthened, and all rejoice; but he sees that while he is trying to do his duty and perform the will of God on his part, there is a lack on the part of other members. Some do not work; some are too fearful in helping the preacher perform his duty; while they are fed largely of spiritual things, they in turn withhold their temporal things. He sees all this. He may not speak of it, but goes to his Master about it; reminds him of his promise; the temporal things come in some other way, and they lose the blessing.

If it is one member's place to work to give to him that needeth, ought he not to do his duty? If that member is idle, it affects the whole body. Has not the great Apostle said that he that preaches the gospel shall live of the gospel? and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. When a man is in the enjoyment of the gospel, he is free and liberal with his temporal things; but let the spirit of the world creep in, he feels poor, he must take care of himself and family. Brethren, let us see what the Master has required of us, do duty, trust in God, and he will reward in time. It is the willing and obedient that shall eat the good of the land. Thy Bro. waiting for the coming of the Just One. GEO. A. STREETER.

No. Dana, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

"THEM THAT ARE ASLEEP."

PAUL'S DESIRE AND THE FELLOW SERVANT.

Nothing can be gained by quoting Paul in 1 Thess. 4: 14;—"them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him"; for he does not say them also who are awake, but them who are asleep; and it was not from heaven that "He brought again our Lord Jesus," but "from the dead." Heb. 13: 20. "For," says the apostle, "if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so (do we believe that) them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him,"—by a resurrection from the dead,—"for as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order; Christ (to be made alive) the first fruits (of the resurrection); afterward they that are Christ's ("shall be made alive") at his coming. 1 Cor. 15: 22. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven" (the angels of God only accompany him, Matt. 25: 31), "and the dead in Christ shall rise" before the believers in Christ who are alive at his coming shall be changed; and they, (as Christ said to Martha (John 11: 26), "shall never die." Martha said, "I know that he shall rise again, in the resurrection, at the last day." Jesus said, "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead (them that sleep in Jesus), yet shall (future time) he live (in the resurrection at that last day); and whosoever liveth (at the last day) and believeth (who are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord) shall never die"; because they will be changed from mortal to immortal, "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," after the believing that have died are raised. Consequently whatever Paul may have meant when he said in Phil. 1: 23, "Having a desire to depart, and (having a desire) to be with Christ, which is far better" than to depart this life, he could not have meant to be understood that he should be with Christ in heaven before the resurrection, out of himself; for he knew perfectly well that the law not only presented "a bar temporary" to that, but Christ himself had made "a bar special" when he said, "Whither I go ye cannot come." He certainly did not say that it would "be gain" to him if he was to die, for the gain was to be to the cause of Christ, to the church, the body of Christ. See verses 24, 25, 26. For he said (verse 20), "Christ shall be magnified in my body (i. e., shall be enlarged, increased, have gain), whether it be by (my) life, or by (my) death."

In view of his "bonds," "sufferings," and "persecutions," it may have been that he felt inclined to die, to "sleep in Jesus," where "the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest," and have his life "hid with Christ in God," till Christ who was his life should appear; when he knew he should also appear in glory with him. Col. 3: 3, 4. He might even desire this, rather than live and endure so "great a fight of afflictions"; but for Christ's sake, for whom "he endured all things," and for the "furtherance of the church" in "joy and faith" at Philippi; and seeing there was a necessity for this, he was willing still "to abide" in the suffering, fleshly, mortal state, that their rejoicing in Christ might be more abundant by his coming to them again. But his "desire to be with Christ," he said, "was far better" than either of the two other things, i. e., dying, "departing this life," or abiding in the flesh, the suffering state, for Paul knew "there was a crown laid up for him, which the Lord (Jesus) the righteous Judge would give to him at that day" of his appearing, which Paul so much desired, for when that day came he knew he would be with Christ. There have been, probably, very few christians since Paul's time who have not had the same desire, i. e., if it was the Lord's will, that they might see the Lord's return, and they "be changed," and "never die," which certainly would be "far better" than to remain mortal and suffer, or than to die and sleep. Amen.

The fellow servant of John (Rev. 19: 10, and 22: 9), called "the angel," was Christ's messenger (1: 1), who was "sent to signify" the revelation to John, who represents the church; to whom he gave his testimony, the declaration of the witness; and the evidence of the truth of that declaration is the effect produced on the mind of the listener, John. "The witness of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy" (19: 10), and this spirit of prophecy, of teaching, of instruction, the angel had who was sent "to testify unto John these things in the churches" (22: 16.) And so has every angel that testifies in the churches this same "spirit of prophecy." Let us all in the churches take heed that we do not, like John, "worship the angel" that brings the message, instead of worshiping God, from whom every message, as well as messenger, and all testimony, should come.

"The angel" was the fellow servant of John, and the fellow servant of his brethren that have the testimony of Jesus (19: 10); and the fellow servant of his brethren, the prophets, and the fellow servant of them who keep the sayings of this book (22: 9), which John had seen opened (10: 2), and upon which he had been feasting (10: 9, 10.) That angel might have been Enoch; it might have been Elijah (Elias); it might have been one of that company who came out of their graves—not out of paradise—"after His resurrection," and appeared unto many in the city. It might have been one of that "multitude of captives," led by Christ for "a wave sheaf," when he "ascended on high, and gave gifts unto men,"—Eph. 4: 8, marginal reading. It is not improbable it might have been Moses resurrected, and yet to "be changed." There is not even a possibility that it might have been a ghost or spirit, for they keep not "the sayings of this book."

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

CHRONOLOGICAL QUERY.

DEAR SIR,—I have just read in a book of sermons, printed in 1846, for private circulation, the following:—According to the chronology affixed to our authorized version we must be (1846) now above 150 years distant from the second advent. But the computation of Fynes Clinton, in his "Fasti Hellen-ci," grounded chiefly on St. Paul's declaration in Acts 13, leads to a very different result; and if his computation be only substantially correct, then it will follow that "this generation shall not pass away till all be fulfilled." The following is a tabular view of the dates given, to which I have added Scripture authorities for those dates more especially, which materially differ from our Scripture chronology.

From the creation to the deluge	1656	Bible Chronology.
From the deluge to the birth of Abraham	352
From the birth to the call	75	Gen. 12: 4; Joseph, An. I. vii. 1.
From the call of Abraham to the Exodus	430	Ex. 12: 40, 41; Gal. 3: 5-7.
The abode in the wilderness	40	Acts 13: 18.
The conquest and division of Canaan	6	Joshua 14: 7-10.
The administration of the Judges	450	Acts 13: 20.
The administration of Samuel		No where mentioned in Scripture.
The reign of Saul	40	Acts 13: 21.
The reign of David	40	2 Sam. 5: 4; 1 Kings 2: 11.
From the death of David to the rebuilding of the temple	3	1 Kings 11. 42.
The remainder of Solomon's reign	37
From the death of Solomon to the destruction of the temple by Nebuchadnezzar	389	Bible Chronology.
From the destruction of the temple to Christ's incarnation	587
	4105
Christian dispensation	1846
	5951

Deeming the foregoing important and interesting in 1865, 19 years nearer the close of the 6,000 from the Creation, and anticipating the near approach of the Sabbatical rest "that remaineth," may I ask if we are not able to fill up the gap caused by "the administration of Samuel?"

Amid such varied opinions, held so strongly by their propounders, it would be well to obtain agreement on as many points as possible. Is Bible chronology one of them? The headings in our Bible make the adminstration of Samuel 20 years. This makes A. D. 1865 A. M. 5990, leaving ten years for coming events, including the last week of Daniel.

Again let me say that I am only anxious to aid in bringing forward anything that may cast a light in these dark days, and not give any views of, yours faithfully, E. T. C.

—The Rainbow.

For the World's Crisis.

LETEERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE.

NUMBER SEVENTEEN.

To Bro. J.:—Pardon the liberty I take in addressing you in regard to some remarks made by you on Friday evening. Although I knew, from what you had at other times said, that you were skeptical in respect to impressions, yet I was not prepared to hear such strong remarks as were expressed that evening. I refer particularly to those touching a call to the ministry. The time has been when I should never have expected to hear a Methodist minister repudiate a special call, made by the direct voice of the Spirit of God, to the mental ear, communicating with the spirit of man, and moving him in such a manner by its influence that he is constrained to say, as did the apostle Paul, "Woe is me if I preach not the gospel."

Such was the faith of the primitive Methodists, and I trust they are comparatively few who believe and teach differently. They not only believed it essential to have a specific call, by being moved upon by the Holy Ghost, in order to enter upon the work of the ministry, but they also deeply realized the actual necessity of being guided by its illuminations in order to rightly divide the word of truth, and give to each a portion in due season. Hence they were men of prayer—much prayer, especially in secret. Often would they spread before them the sacred volume, and with bended knee and uplifted heart mingle their supplications with their studies. Deeply conscious of their own inefficiency, and ignorance of divine truth if left to themselves, they sought for wisdom from above. Realizing their high and holy calling, and the awful responsibility resting upon them as God's ministers chosen to set before dying men the only way of life and salvation, they felt that they needed to be holy men, full of faith and the Holy Ghost. Hence the secret of their eminent success.

It is with painful emotion I have witnessed a departure, to an alarming extent, from the simplicity and devotion of former days. There is a great deal more of what is termed intellectual preaching, but while it captivates the ear, and feeds the intellect, it fails to penetrate the heart. Something seems to be lacking to give it power and effectiveness. What is it? It is something of God's own choosing, even the light and unction of the divine Spirit. Native talents and collegiate studies have, in our humble opinion, been substituted in its stead.

Yet the talents are useful, and the education also; and with the intellect sanctified, and the education baptized and directed by the Holy Ghost, the individual may be very successful in winning souls. It is not to an educated and intellectual ministry that we object, but the danger lies in the undue exaltation given to these qualifications; the giving them a pre-eminence above the teachings, gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit. Have you not seen, my brother, a tendency to place more reliance upon human wisdom, and outward adornings, than upon the power of God?

The splendid temple is erected, an attractive choir is selected, not from the pious who can sing with the Spirit and with the understanding also, but from those who have but little reverence for the name of Him whose praise they express with their lips; an expensive organ sends forth its rich and deep-toned melody, and a minister is selected, not for his humble walk with God, his spirituality, his thorough acquaintance with the Scriptures, his plain, pointed, heart-searching, conscience-awakening sermons, but for his talents, his pleasing address, his erudition and eloquence. Not that this is always so, but is it not true that in our larger cities these are considered the most essential qualifications, in order that the people may be attracted, and drawn to "our church"? And in the cities of less note, and the principal towns, do we not often see an exhibition of the same spirit?

Gladly would I shut out the conviction from my heart, if I could do so in view of facts, that the church has to an alarming extent ceased to glory in the cross; that she has become a lover of pleasure more than a lover of God; that she is more conformed to the world than transformed; that she has more of the form of godliness than of the power thereof; that her ministers not only do not so deeply feel their dependence on God for ability and efficiency, and their constant need of the aid of the Spirit to give success to the word preached, but that in too many instances they repudiate it altogether, and "deny the power" that was so manifest in the apostles as being needful or available in these times.

Often have I mourned over these departures from primitive faith, and as I have beheld the increasing unbelief and the spirit of opposition against those who have dared to stand forth in defense of the old-fashioned doctrines, such as the "baptism of the Holy Ghost," "divine guidance," "special providences," "dreams and visions," I have been ready to believe that there would be martyrs of the Holy Ghost among Protestants, as there was in the days of Fenelon, Madame Guyon, and Thomas a Kempis, among the Catholics. M. D. W.

For the World's Crisis.

"EARTHEN VESSELS."

Meekness and humility are the tokens of the christian. Who ever saw a proud christian? You may have seen a proud professor, but a proud christian never. We are not gold and silver, nor even nice china ware, but poor "earthen vessels."—2 Cor. 4: 7. "But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of GOD, and not of us." Whatever we may do that is acceptable, all the glory belongs to GOD. Of ourselves we can do no good thing. We are poor, and weak, and vile.

The world says, "Trust in yourself." But feeling our weakness and insufficiency; feeling that we are poor "earthen vessels," we reply, "We cannot trust in ourselves." As Paul says, in 2 Cor. 1: 9, "We had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves, but in GOD which raiseth the dead."

Has any man any just reason to be proud? Or should any one even have a good opinion of himself? The Pharisee was proud of his goodness and his virtues, but the poor despised publican, who was willing to be called a sinner, or an "earthen vessel," was "justified rather than the other."

The proud Pharisees of the present day look down with scorn upon the poor of this world, whom "GOD hath chosen" to be heirs of an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away." I should like to ask these proud professors a question. What have you to be proud of? Are you proud of your goodness and virtue? Hear what the Lord said to Satan, Job. 1: 8,—"Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is NONE LIKE HIM IN THE EARTH, a perfect and an upright man?" Proud professor, are you better than holy Job? Yet hear what he says, Job 42: 6,—"I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes." But perhaps you are proud of your learning. You are able to speak so that the poor simple ones cannot understand you. Marvelous man!

"There was another, large of understanding,
Of memory infinite, of judgment deep,
Who knew all learning, and all science knew;
And all phenomena, in heaven and earth,
Traced to their causes; traced the labyrinths
Of thought, association, passion, will;
And all the subtle, nice affinities
Of matter traced; its virtues, motions, laws;
And most familiarly and deeply talked
Of mental, moral, natural, divine.
* * * * * * *
Did all that mind assisted most could do,
And yet in misery lived, in misery died,
Because he (had not) holiness of heart."

There is another cause of pride, which is perhaps more deeply seated in the constitution of man, and more difficult to root out than any other. Perhaps I ought not to mention it here, as "what can't be cured must be endured," and there is no use of talking about it. This pride of which I am speaking accompanies a peculiar phrenological development. Those who have this predominant, are possibly past all cure. They may never be persuaded to think that they are "earthen vessels," poor vile worms of the dust. They say by action if not by word, "Come not near me; stand by thyself; I am holier than thou."

If we are more highly favored than these proud persons; if we have no wealth, or learning to be proud of; and if our heads are differently formed from theirs, let us praise GOD with all our heart; for it is he who has made us to differ. If we ever do or say a right thing, it is because he helps us, and to him be all the praise. And when we do anything wrong, all the [illegible] belongs to us. If we are indeed "living temples of the Holy Spirit," "we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of GOD, and not of us.'

Sutton, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

HOW TO LIVE.

He liveth long who liveth well!
All other life is short and vain;
He liveth longest who can tell
Of living most for heavenly gain.

He liveth long who liveth well!
All else is being flung away;
He liveth longest who can tell
Of true things truly done each day.

Waste not thy being; back to Him
Who freely gave it, freely give;
Else is that being but a dream—
'Tis but to be, and not to live.

Be wise, and use thy wisdom well;
Who wisely speaks, must live it too;
He is the wisest who can tell
How first he lived, then spoke, the true.

Be what thou seemest; live thy creed;
Hold up to earth the torch divine;
Be what thou prayest to be made;
Let the great Master's steps be thine.

Sow truth, if thou the true wouldst reap;
Who sows the false shall reap the vain;
Erect and sound thy conscience keep;
From hollow words and deeds refrain.

Sow love, and taste its fruitage pure;
Sow peace, and reap its harvest bright;
Sow sunbeams on the rock and moor,
And find a harvest-home of light.

—H. Bonar.

For the World's Crisis.

A SHORT SERMON.

"And Noah walked with God."—GEN. 6: 9.

One of the apostles gave us a very good representation of religion, when, speaking of God, he says: "With whom we have to do." Now in all our dealings with our fellow beings, we should be governed by pure morality; but morality must be founded on true piety in order to be pure. But it is with God we have to do; for our connections with him, and our expectations from him, and our obligations to him, must all be of the highest magnitude. But what is implied by Noah walking with God? We answer, it is having the same object in view that God has. God says, "My glory will I not give to another." And Noah was laboring with all his might, and in every movement, to glorify God; and God in all his movements aims to establish his own glory; and Noah was aiming to accomplish the same object, that is, to glorify his heavenly Father. Here, you see, two can walk together, when they are so well agreed as God and Noah were. Now, if you are found walking with God when Christ comes, by trying to glorify him in all your movements, you will enter the heavenly kingdom to go no more out forever. But you must examine yourself before God every day, and find whether you are walking with God or away from him.

There is another position the saint occupies, very much the same as walking with God; that is, walking before God; as he says, "Walk before me, and be thou perfect." This implies observation, or that God beholds and takes cognizance of all our movements, and knows whether we love him or not by our daily walk and conversation. And while we try to walk before God in love and meekness, we must always have a perfect hatred of sin in all its forms, because God hates it, and be of a kind and tender spirit, as was Noah and our dear and loving Savior; for, "when he was reviled, he reviled not again"; and if we love and cherish the spirit of Christ in our hearts, God will love us with a Father's love, and own us for his dear children.

Another important position for a child of God is, following Christ, or walking after Christ. Paul says, "Follow me, as I follow Christ." This implies that we must take Christ as our pattern, or example, and walk in his steps. How much this comprehends! Look at it a moment, and let us examine ourselves, and see if we have the tender spirit of Christ in our hearts; if we have, we shall always be ready to do all we can to relieve suffering humanity in all its forms. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least . . . ye have done it unto me," says Christ; and the dear Savior will say to such, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; for I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat," etc. How much good it does me to be able to do a little towards helping those who are poorer than I am. Blessings follow all acts of kindness towards our dear and suffering brethren and sisters. This is truly following Christ.

But we must also follow Christ in holiness of heart and life; for "it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." If I walk with God, I shall resemble him, and every one will take knowledge of me that I have been with Jesus. Such honor have all his saints. They walk with the King of kings and Lord of lords. "I will walk before the Lord," says David, "in the land of the living." "My presence shall go with thee, saith the Lord, and I will give thee rest."

"Come, lovely King, oh! quickly come;
The saints shall welcome thee;
And shouts of joy shall reach the throne
Throughout eternity."

Vernon, Vt. B. PERHAM.

FILIAL REVERENCE.

Kindness and honor toward parents is a part of German piety. In this respect German family life partakes somwhat of the patriarchal spirit. Children rise up before the hoary head, especially if it belongs to a parent or grandparent. They consult the wishes of their parents in every undertaking. In learning a trade, or settling in life, the voice of the parent is law. Often, after the father dies, the son will learn the trade he had, out of respect to his memory. The house and home of the parents is kept as a sacred possession in the family. In this respect a great difference is noticeable between the children of Germans and those of a different descent. The prevailing custom elsewhere now is for children to be ashamed of the pursuits of their parents, especially if they belong to the laboring classes. There is a restless impatience to break away from ancestral occupations and homes, as if that were in itself a mark of progress. The honest, thrifty piety of the olden time and of the fatherland, which works hard, pays its debts, and is content with enough, is fast losing caste.—Ger. Ref. Messenger.

THOUGHTS FOR MINISTERS.

Let Jesus Christ be all in all—study Christ, preach Christ, live Christ.

In preaching, study not to draw applauses, but groans from the hearers.

Let every minister, while he is preaching, remember that God is one of his hearers.

Preach no sermon without lifting up your heart to God that it may be blessed to the people.

The grand scope of the christian ministry is to bring men home to Christ.

KIND WORDS.

The destiny of individuals often turns upon a single word spoken in kindness or unkindness. The celebrated Adam Clarke was, till about nine years of age, the perfection of dullness in the estimation of his teachers. As such, when at this age, he was pointed out by his teacher to a stranger of respectability who visited the school. The stranger with great interest and affection replied, that he thought the teacher had mistaken the genius of the boy; that he had talents, and might yet attain to eminence in the literary world. That kind word struck a spark in the mind of the child, which rendered the future man one of the distinguished lights of the world. On the other hand, an unkind or discouraging word spoken at just such a crisis, may effectually break the spirits, or turn the heart into bitterness, and render the subject ever after the companion of foul spirits. O, the tears, the sighs, occasioned merely by unkind words!—Ex.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

WILLIAM'S TEMPTATION.

William liked fruit and candy, but his mother was a widow, and could not afford to indulge him.

One day she gave him some money to buy him an umbrella and a pair of overshoes. After paying for them, a quarter of a dollar was left, which he was to expend for his mother. It was in cents and small bits of silver, and as William was passing a fruit-store, he thought it would surely be a small matter if he spent a cent in figs. They were no sooner eaten than his conscience began to trouble him. He tried to hush it by saying to himself, "A cent is nothing; mother won't miss it." Then he tried to forget the figs, but they would not be forgotten. They gave him more trouble than they had given pleasure.

Soon after, he was passing a candy-store in company with Charles Ellis. "Come, William," said Charles, "buy us some candy. You've money in your pocket; I know you have." So he bought six cents worth and gave it nearly all to Charles. He was so conscious he had done wrong, that he could eat little himself. But he felt worse when he reached home and met his anxious, overworked, and self-denying mother. He could hardly look her in the face.

The next day he saw some very fine apples at a fruit-stall. He thought of his mother at once. He knew she liked apples; so he bought some of the finest and gave her, feeling that an indulgence for her might weigh somewhat against his self-indulgence. His mother was pleased with his kind feelings thus expressed towards her, as he knew she would be, but told him frankly that he did wrong to spend her money even for herself without her consent, and that she could not afford luxuries. Poor William! The best thing for him would have been repentance and confession. The apples only made him the more sorry about the figs and candy.

At last he had to tell his mother all. The purchase for her must be made, and he had not enough money. She asked an account of what he had spent.

"You know, mother," he said, "there was a quarter of a dollar left after I had bought my umbrella and overshoes. I spent four cents for your apples, three cents for matches, one cent for figs, and five cents for a sponge. You know you said I might have a sponge for my slate, mother?"

"Yes, my son; but that was not all the money?"

"O," exclaimed William, as if something had just at that moment come to his remembrance; "O, I bought some candy. Six cents for candy."

"Six cents for candy! And why did you not tell of it first?"

"I didn't think of it," William answered. He spoke falsely, and his mother knew it from his look.

"O, William, William," she said, "do not be false; own the truth at once. It was wrong for you to buy the candy, and you could not have forgotten it. Own the truth, my son. This last sin is worse than the first."

William burst into tears, and with a broken heart acknowledged all. His mother wept. It was so hard to find her son both self indulgent and false. She knelt beside him and prayed to God for him and herself. When they rose up, William kissed his mother tenderly, and begging her forgiveness, promised, "O, mother, I never will do so again.

"You are easily tempted, my son. You need continued aid from God. You need to lift up your heart to him for help."

"I do pray some, and I mean to pray more," said William.

"You must watch as well as pray. It will not do to pray, 'Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil,' and then run right into evil, you must avoid temptation."

"Do you mean that I ought to keep away from the candy and fruit stores?"

"Avoid them as much as you can; do not even glance at their windows, if you can help it. If the other boys will stop, you had better leave their company than commit sin. Tell them you have no money to spend, and no time to waste. If they laugh at you, they will soon stop laughing, and respect you. Manliness and honesty win respect from the weak and wicked; and if they do not, they are worth more than the approbation of the whole world."

"It is very hard to be poor, isn't it mother?"

"Your situation and circumstances are of God, appointed of him, and therefore the best for you. Act worthily in them, and let them do you all the good that God intended they should."

Every word his mother now said, sank into William's heart. He prayed more, and strengthened himself in God.

His new strength was soon tested. Charles Ellis joined him in the street with a package of nice candies.

"See here, William," he exclaimed, displaying his tempting store.

"They are very nice," said William.

"Ain't they, though? Have some of them? take all you want—take a lot?" said Charles, holding the candies before William.

"No, thank you," said William.

"What?" exclaimed Charles with surprise, "ain't you going to take any?"

"No, thank you," again answered William, blushing.

"Why not; what's the matter?"

"I mean to stop eating candy, if I can; I ought not to buy it, for my mother is poor; and I don't want to eat other boys' candies when I have none to give them; that would not be fair."

"O, take some candy now, Will; who minds such things?"

"Please don't urge me," said William.

"Well, then, I won't; but it seems to me your're getting queer."

William was somewhat embarrassed, but he walked on quietly, lifting up his heart to God for strength and wisdom. Charles put away his candy, and the boys were soon in a pleasant chat about school and other things.

When William met his mother, on his return home, he told her of the power which God had given him over appetite and pride, and mother and son rejoiced together. They knelt together and thanked God; as they rose, the mother pressed the hand of her boy with new hope and courage as she said, "Better is he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city."

A TRUE STORY.

Merton Smith, in his early childhood, was a boy of unusual promise; the idol of a doting father, who could scarcely see a fault in him. "Isn't he a likely lad?" the fond parent one day asked of a visitor to whom he had admiringly displayed his child's acquirements.

"Yes," was the reply; "but such a boy will need careful training; I hope you will think of that."

"I guess he'll train himself mostly," the father answered; "his mother has her hands full with half a dozen girls to bring up. And I like to see him have a mind of his own; so long as he don't take to any thing bad, we shall let him have his way pretty much, I reckon."

Merton Smith did have his way. He was bright and beautiful; and though sometimes mischievous, and always willful, he was so much the pet and pride of parents and sisters, that he received more caresses than rebukes. His father and mother were neither of them pious, and the former seldom attended divine worship; yet both of them felt shocked and mortified when they found that Merton had begun to use profane and ribald language. The mother entreated and the father commanded him to give up so foolish and disgraceful a habit; but their efforts were alike fruitless. So he grew to opening manhood a swearer and blasphemer.

It happened one sultry day in August, that, with two or three young companions, Merton Smith went down to the river for a bath. He was more profane than usual; and talked so shockingly as to incur the reproof of one of his comrades, less addicted to such folly. At this he became enraged, and let fly a volley of oaths wicked almost beyond belief. Suddenly he stopped; and to the surprise of his companions swam ashore, pale and silent. That silence was perpetual. He never spoke again.

Mental imbecility, too, had taken the place of his once bright talents; and though he lived several years, he was incapable alike of business or enjoyment; having only sense enough left to dress and feed himself, and to roam around his native village, a wreck and a nuisance.

I do not say that the terrible event thus related was the judgment of heaven upon the young blasphemer,—retribution being, as I believe and acknowledge, chiefly deferred to a future state; but I know not that we should question the divine right to vindicate sometimes, even here, its outraged majesty; and to show to presumptuous sinners that God "will not hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain."—Tract Journal.

PEACOCK AND BUTTERFLY FOLKS.

Little boys or girls tipped off gaily in fine things, gew-gaws, and artificials, inflated with pride and self-importance, remind us of the peacock and butterfly.

"Some poor little ignorant children delight
In wearing fine ribbons and caps;
But this is a very ridiculous sight,
Though they do not know it, perhaps."

Young readers, how is it with you? Are you fond of fine clothes? Do you think more of a pretty face, a new dress, a new bonnet, a new coat, or a new hat, than you do of the improvement of your mind and heart? of the Bible and the Lord Jesus Christ?

Show us a girl that spends her leisure moments looking in the glass, or making some bit of finery, and we will show you a girl with a head as symmetrical as a balloon, and as light or vain as the peacock.

Show us a boy that is always noticing what sort of clothes other people have on, and would rather have a nice suit and stay out of school, than a plain suit and go to school, and we will show you a boy that bids fair to be, if not already, a sinner and a dunce.

Do you know, little folks, that the poor sheep and silk-worms wore that very clothing long before? "The tulip and the butterfly appear in far gayer coats than you. Dress fine as you will, flies, worms and flowers exceed you still."

Does God take delight in fine clothes, that tend to vanity and pride? "My son, give me thy heart."

"Hear ye not a voice from heaven,
To the listening spirit given?
Children, come! it seems to say,
Give your hearts to me to-day."

"Home Thrusts."

"A BOY'S LAWSUIT."

The following is the best illustration of the fruits of lawsuits we have ever seen. Those who engage in lawsuits usually get no more than did the "two boys;" that is, only the "shell;" while the lawyer gets the "kernel," or the money; while the contending parties lose it, and have only hatred left for each other. It is business that does not pay those who support the quarrel. We hope our young readers will never do as did these boys:—ED.

Under a great tree close to the village, two boys found a walnut. "It belongs to me," said Ignatius, "for I was first to see it." "No, it belongs to me," cried Bernard, "for I was the first to pick it up." And so they began to quarrel in earnest. "I will settle the dispute," said the older boy, who had just then come up. He placed himself between the two boys, broke the nut in two, and said: "The one piece of shell belongs to him who first saw the nut; the other piece of shell belongs to him who picked it up; but the kernel I keep for judging the case. And this," he said as he sat down and laughed, "is the common end of most lawsuits."

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..............$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE.

Semi-monthly.

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

[illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, July, and at other times. [illegible]

POSTAGE.—[illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

For the World's Crisis.

LINES.

Dedicated to Sr. Martha Dinsmore.

Thy child is resting; let her rest,
For life is full of care;
She sweetly sleeps in yonder grave,
No grief can reach her there.
God knows the frail and feeble ones,
He knows the very brave;
Those he lets live to fight the foe,—
He hides those in the grave.

'Tis well; for burdens are unborn,
And bitter tears unshed,
They have escaped these last-day snares,
The holy early dead.

The trump that tells us Christ has come,
Will bid the sleepers rise;
O glorious hope! it wipes the tears
From many a mourner's eyes.

Thanks be to God, the morn will come,
The Resurrection morn,
And from the bowels of old earth
The saints will all be born.

MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

For the World's Crisis.

THE CALL.

"Go ye into my vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you."—Matt. 20: 4.

First, the nature of the call is to be considered. It comes from a source whose authority can not be disputed—the Householder, the Lord Jesus Christ; and it is he who spake this parable, or drew this illustration,—"Go ye into my vineyard." Who go? Those he has called. Who has he called? Everybody. The commission which he gave his disciples extended into all the world. Mark 16: 15. Then the prophet exclaims, "Look unto me, all ye ends of the earth, and be ye saved."—Isa. 45: 22.

Then we understand by the command, "Go ye into my vineyard," to be, first, the vineyard is the earth, or the whole world. Second, the Householder is the Lord Jesus Christ. Then we understand that he has called all mankind? Nay, verily. But whom has he hired? Those who comply with the conditions he has offered. But will every one do this? "Many are called, but few are chosen." Verse 16. Then he has hired and chosen none who have not complied with the contract.

But have we any thing to do? We think so, from the very fact that the Master saw men idle, doing nothing; therefore he said, "Go ye into my vineyard, and whatsoever is right I will give you." This language teaches us that we must work. But what is the work? Unto some he has said, "Go, preach my gospel." Then if he has called me, I can not preach some idea of my own, and cause division to come in consequence. No, nothing save the gospel. But, Master, may I not stop and contend for my views, and force them upon people at thy expense? No, the "charge" that I give to all I send into the vineyard is, to preach the gospel to every creature. But suppose men will not hear or believe me? That is nothing to you. Your business is to preach the gospel, and not to shun to declare the whole counsel of God; and as my servant Paul has well spoken, to say, "I am determined to know nothing save Jesus Christ and him crucified." 1 Cor. 2: 2.

But I have striven to do it; yet men have turned against me, and ridiculed my preaching, and I have felt many times that my efforts were so feeble that they were not received, and I had better go home and stay there. As I said before, it is your business to do the preaching I bid you, and do it faithfully, and leave the result; for it is he that believeth (the gospel) and is baptized (obeys the gospel) who shall be saved; and he that believeth not (the gospel, of course will not obey) shall be damned; and you must "go and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Ghost; teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have command-you (no more). And lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end of the world."—Matt. 27: 19, 20. And you must work. You were doing nothing for me; therefore I called you; now work, and not idle away any more time; and at the end of the day (gospel day), whatsoever is right I will give you; and you need not be afraid; for, "verily I say unto you, there is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or lands, for my sake, and the gospel's, but he shall receive an hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, and children (no fathers), and lands, with persecution, and in the world to come eternal life." Mark 10: 29, 30.

This is what we shall receive, brethren, if we do the work that God has bidden us do. Then while the Master has laid it upon us to preach his word, let us do it faithfully, and not daub with untempered mortar, but declare the whole truth or counsel of God. It is either a savor of life unto life, or of death unto death. And, says the Master, "I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves; be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless (simple) as doves." Let us heed what the Master has said, obey the call, go into the vineyard, and not complain. Has not the Master said, "Whatsoever is right I will give thee"? Can not we trust God? How many of the poor in this world are destitute of preaching, because preachers are fearful they will not get so much money if they go. This tells a plain truth; such have not the cause of God at heart. These places out in the by-ways and hedges are neglected by many. Is this right? Did not the Master say the poor should have the gospel preached to them?

Brethren in the ministry, do not neglect the poor. Go preach the gospel. What if you have a large family, and you can earn so much at home? If the Master has chosen you to preach his word, go. Trust in him who sent you. Does he not know your circumstances? Has he not said the cattle on the hills are his, the gold and the silver also, and will he not give you what is right? Is he not faithful who has promised? Has he ever forsaken those who trust in him? Never, no, never. What if you do not have all the nice things of this world? trust in God; he that clothed and fed the ravens, will he not do as much for you? Let us do what the Master has bidden us, and leave the result with him. "Lo, I am with you, even unto the end of the world."

But are the preachers only called, and no one else? Nay. Has he not hired others? All are not apostles, all are not teachers or preachers. There are different parts to the human body—the face, the ear, the eye, the hand and arm, the feet and legs; and each one is needed in its own place; and when either is out of place, there is a deformity of the body; but when every member is in its place, and all are at work, there is unison, not a jar or discord; each one attends to its business, and every thing goes on nicely. But if the eye should begin to think itself better than the ear, or the ear than the eye, or the hand than the face, and all should contend about it, you see it would not work well at all; there would be nothing done; so that none can say of the other, you are of no use, when in fact one is as much needed as the other.

So it is in the great body of Christ. There are different places to fill, and one need not think he can fill them all. The Master has placed every one in his place, and has given to all according to their several ability, commanding them to improve or occupy until he comes. By and by he will reckon with all. There are the preachers, or teachers; then follow the other members of the body. Neither can complain of the other; all are useful when in their proper places; when they are there, and all at work, they will move in harmony with each other, and there will be a proper and healthy body; the cause will prosper, the church be edified and built up.

Contrary to this, there will be divisions, distractions, etc., in consequence of all not keeping their places. Such had better read John 21: 21. When the preacher leaves his family and friends, he makes a great sacrifice; he meets with many things in the world that those who stay at home know but little about. The Spirit says, Go, leave all; go preach my gospel. He sees many in the bonds of iniquity. He sees the end of all things is at hand. He takes his Bible in his hand and starts forth to a certain place. God blesses his labors, sinners are converted, backsliders awakened, believers strengthened, and all rejoice; but he sees that while he is trying to do his duty and perform the will of God on his part, there is a lack on the part of other members. Some do not work; some are too fearful in helping the preacher perform his duty; while they are fed largely of spiritual things, they in turn withhold their temporal things. He sees all this. He may not speak of it, but goes to his Master about it; reminds him of his promise; the temporal things come in some other way, and they lose the blessing.

If it is one member's place to work to give to him that needeth, ought he not to do his duty? If that member is idle, it affects the whole body. Has not the great Apostle said that he that preaches the gospel shall live of the gospel? and there is that withholdeth more than is meet, but it tendeth to poverty. When a man is in the enjoyment of the gospel, he is free and liberal with his temporal things; but let the spirit of the world creep in, he feels poor, he must take care of himself and family. Brethren, let us see what the Master has required of us, do duty, trust in God, and he will reward in time. It is the willing and obedient that shall eat the good of the land. Thy Bro. waiting for the coming of the Just One. GEO. A. STREETER.

No. Dana, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

"THEM THAT ARE ASLEEP."

PAUL'S DESIRE AND THE FELLOW SERVANT.

Nothing can be gained by quoting Paul in 1 Thess. 4: 14;—"them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him"; for he does not say them also who are awake, but them who are asleep; and it was not from heaven that "He brought again our Lord Jesus," but "from the dead." Heb. 13: 20. "For," says the apostle, "if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so (do we believe that) them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him,"—by a resurrection from the dead,—"for as in Adam all die, even so in Christ shall all be made alive. But every man in his own order; Christ (to be made alive) the first fruits (of the resurrection); afterward they that are Christ's ("shall be made alive") at his coming. 1 Cor. 15: 22. "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven" (the angels of God only accompany him, Matt. 25: 31), "and the dead in Christ shall rise" before the believers in Christ who are alive at his coming shall be changed; and they, (as Christ said to Martha (John 11: 26), "shall never die." Martha said, "I know that he shall rise again, in the resurrection, at the last day." Jesus said, "I am the resurrection and the life; he that believeth in me, though he were dead (them that sleep in Jesus), yet shall (future time) he live (in the resurrection at that last day); and whosoever liveth (at the last day) and believeth (who are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord) shall never die"; because they will be changed from mortal to immortal, "in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye," after the believing that have died are raised. Consequently whatever Paul may have meant when he said in Phil. 1: 23, "Having a desire to depart, and (having a desire) to be with Christ, which is far better" than to depart this life, he could not have meant to be understood that he should be with Christ in heaven before the resurrection, out of himself; for he knew perfectly well that the law not only presented "a bar temporary" to that, but Christ himself had made "a bar special" when he said, "Whither I go ye cannot come." He certainly did not say that it would "be gain" to him if he was to die, for the gain was to be to the cause of Christ, to the church, the body of Christ. See verses 24, 25, 26. For he said (verse 20), "Christ shall be magnified in my body (i. e., shall be enlarged, increased, have gain), whether it be by (my) life, or by (my) death."

In view of his "bonds," "sufferings," and "persecutions," it may have been that he felt inclined to die, to "sleep in Jesus," where "the wicked cease from troubling, and the weary are at rest," and have his life "hid with Christ in God," till Christ who was his life should appear; when he knew he should also appear in glory with him. Col. 3: 3, 4. He might even desire this, rather than live and endure so "great a fight of afflictions"; but for Christ's sake, for whom "he endured all things," and for the "furtherance of the church" in "joy and faith" at Philippi; and seeing there was a necessity for this, he was willing still "to abide" in the suffering, fleshly, mortal state, that their rejoicing in Christ might be more abundant by his coming to them again. But his "desire to be with Christ," he said, "was far better" than either of the two other things, i. e., dying, "departing this life," or abiding in the flesh, the suffering state, for Paul knew "there was a crown laid up for him, which the Lord (Jesus) the righteous Judge would give to him at that day" of his appearing, which Paul so much desired, for when that day came he knew he would be with Christ. There have been, probably, very few christians since Paul's time who have not had the same desire, i. e., if it was the Lord's will, that they might see the Lord's return, and they "be changed," and "never die," which certainly would be "far better" than to remain mortal and suffer, or than to die and sleep.—Amen.

The fellow servant of John (Rev. 19: 10, and 22: 9), called "the angel," was Christ's messenger (1: 1), who was "sent to signify" the revelation to John, who represents the church; to whom he gave his testimony, the declaration of the witness; and the evidence of the truth of that declaration is the effect produced on the mind of the listener, John. "The witness of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy" (19: 10), and this spirit of prophecy, of teaching, of instruction, the angel had who was sent "to testify unto John these things in the churches" (22: 16.) And so has every angel that testifies in the churches this same "spirit of prophecy." Let us all in the churches take heed that we do not, like John, "worship the angel" that brings the message, instead of worshiping God, from whom every message, as well as messenger, and all testimony, should come.

"The angel" was the fellow servant of John, and the fellow servant of his brethren that have the testimony of Jesus (19: 10); and the fellow servant of his brethren, the prophets, and the fellow servant of them who keep the sayings of this book (22: 9), which John had seen opened (10: 2), and upon which he had been feasting (10: 9, 10.) That angel might have been Enoch; it might have been Elijah (Elias); it might have been one of that company who came out of their graves—not out of paradise—"after His resurrection," and appeared unto many in the city. It might have been one of that "multitude of captives," led by Christ for "a wave sheaf," when he "ascended on high, and gave gifts unto men,"—Eph. 4: 8, marginal reading. It is not improbable it might have been Moses resurrected, and yet to "be changed." There is not even a possibility that it might have been a ghost or spirit, for they keep not "the sayings of this book."

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

CHRONOLOGICAL QUERY.

DEAR SIR,—I have just read in a book of sermons, printed in 1846, for private circulation, the following:—According to the chronology affixed to our authorized version we must be (1846) now above 150 years distant from the second advent. But the computation of Fynes Clinton, in his "Fasti Hellen-.ci," grounded chiefly on St. Paul's declaration in Acts 13, leads to a very different result; and if his computation be only substantially correct, then it will follow that "this generation shall not pass away till all be fulfilled." The following is a tabular view of the dates given, to which I have added Scripture authorities for those dates more especially, which materially differ from our Scripture chronology.

From the creation to the deluge	1656	Bible Chronology.
From the deluge to the birth of Abraham	352
From the birth to the call	75	Gen. 12: 4; Joseph, An. I. vii. 1.
From the call of Abraham to the Exodus	430	Ex. 12: 40, 41; Gal. 3: 5–7.
The abode in the wilderness	40	Acts 13: 18.
The conquest and division of Canaan	6	Joshua 14: 7–10.
The administration of the Judges	450	Acts 13: 20.
The administration of Samuel		No where mentioned in Scripture.
The reign of Saul	40	Acts 13: 21.
The reign of David	40	2 Sam. 5: 4; 1 Kings 2: 11.
From the death of David to the rebuilding of the temple	3	1 Kings 11: 42.
The remainder of Solomon's reign	37
From the death of Solomon to the destruction of the temple by Nebuchadnezzar	389	Bible Chronology.
From the destruction of the temple to Christ's incarnation	587
	4105
Christian dispensation	1846
	5951

Deeming the foregoing important and interesting in 1865, 19 years nearer the close of the 6,000 from the Creation, and anticipating the near approach of the Sabbatical rest "that remaineth," may I ask if we are not able to fill up the gap caused by "the administration of Samuel?"

Amid such varied opinions, held so strongly by their propounders, it would be well to obtain agreement on as many points as possible. Is Bible chronology one of them? The headings in our Bible make the adminstration of Samuel 20 years. This makes A. D. 1865 A. M. 5990, leaving ten years for coming events, including the last week of Daniel.

Again let me say that I am only anxious to aid in bringing forward anything that may cast a light in these dark days, and not give any views of, yours faithfully, E. T. C.

—The Rainbow.

For the World's Crisis.

LETEERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF CHRISTIAN EXPERIENOE.

NUMBER SEVENTEEN.

To Bro. J.:—Pardon the liberty I take in addressing you in regard to some remarks made by you on Friday evening. Although I knew, from what you had at other times said, that you were skeptical in respect to impressions, yet I was not prepared to hear such strong remarks as were expressed that evening. I refer particularly to those touching a call to the ministry. The time has been when I should never have expected to hear a Methodist minister repudiate a special call, made by the direct voice of the Spirit of God, to the mental ear, communicating with the spirit of man, and moving him in such a manner by its influence that he is constrained to say, as did the apostle Paul, "Woe is me if I preach not the gospel."

Such was the faith of the primitive Methodists, and I trust they are comparatively few who believe and teach differently. They not only believed it essential to have a specific call, by being moved upon by the Holy Ghost, in order to enter upon the work of the ministry, but they also deeply realized the actual necessity of being guided by its illuminations in order to rightly divide the word of truth, and give to each a portion in due season. Hence they were men of prayer—much prayer, especially in secret. Often would they spread before them the sacred volume, and with bended knee and uplifted heart mingle their supplications with their studies. Deeply conscious of their own inefficiency, and ignorance of divine truth if left to themselves, they sought for wisdom from above. Realizing their high and holy calling, and the awful responsibility resting upon them as God's ministers chosen to set before dying men the only way of life and salvation, they felt that they needed to be holy men, full of faith and the Holy Ghost. Hence the secret of their eminent success.

It is with painful emotion I have witnessed a departure, to an alarming extent, from the simplicity and devotion of former days. There is a great deal more of what is termed intellectual preaching, but while it captivates the ear, and feeds the intellect, it fails to penetrate the heart. Something seems to be lacking to give it power and effectiveness. What is it? It is something of God's own choosing, even the light and unction of the divine Spirit. Native talents and collegiate studies have, in our humble opinion, been substituted in its stead.

Yet the talents are useful, and the education also; and with the intellect sanctified, and the education baptized and directed by the Holy Ghost, the individual may be very successful in winning souls. It is not to an educated and intellectual ministry that we object, but the danger lies in the undue exaltation given to these qualifications; the giving them a pre-eminence above the teachings, gifts and graces of the Holy Spirit. Have you not seen, my brother, a tendency to place more reliance upon human wisdom, and outward adornings, than upon the power of God?

The splendid temple is erected, an attractive choir is selected, not from the pious who can sing with the Spirit and with the understanding also, but from those who have but little reverence for the name of Him whose praise they express with their lips; an expensive organ sends forth its rich and deep-toned melody, and a minister is selected, not for his humble walk with God, his spirituality, his thorough acquaintance with the Scriptures, his plain, pointed, heart-searching, conscience-awakening sermons, but for his talents, his pleasing address, his erudition and eloquence. Not that this is always so, but is it not true that in our larger cities these are considered the most essential qualifications, in order that the people may be attracted, and drawn to "our church"? And in the cities of less note, and the principal towns, do we not often see an exhibition of the same spirit?

Gladly would I shut out the conviction from my heart, if I could do so in view of facts, that the church has to an alarming extent ceased to glory in the cross; that she has become a lover of pleasure more than a lover of God; that she is more conformed to the world than transformed; that she has more of the form of godliness than of the power thereof; that her ministers not only do not so deeply feel their dependence on God for ability and efficiency, and their constant need of the aid of the Spirit to give success to the word preached, but that in too many instances they repudiate it altogether, and "deny the power" that was so manifest in the apostles as being needful or available in these times.

Often have I mourned over these departures from primitive faith, and as I have beheld the increasing unbelief and the spirit of opposition against those who have dared to stand forth in defense of the old-fashioned doctrines, such as the "baptism of the Holy Ghost," "divine guidance," "special providences," "dreams and visions," I have been ready to believe that there would be martyrs of the Holy Ghost among Protestants, as there was in the days of Fenelon, Madame Guyon, and Thomas a Kempis, among the Catholics. M. D. W.

For the World's Crisis.

"EARTHEN VESSELS."

Meekness and humility are the tokens of the christian. Who ever saw a proud christian? You may have seen a proud professor, but a proud christian never. We are not gold and silver, nor even nice china ware, but poor "earthen vessels."—2 Cor. 4: 7. "But we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of GOD, and not of us." Whatever we may do that is acceptable, all the glory belongs to GOD. Of ourselves we can do no good thing. We are poor, and weak, and vile.

The world says, "Trust in yourself." But feeling our weakness and insufficiency; feeling that we are poor "earthen vessels," we reply, "We cannot trust in ourselves." As Paul says, in 2 Cor. 1: 9, "We had the sentence of death in ourselves, that we should not trust in ourselves, but in GOD which raiseth the dead."

Has any man any just reason to be proud? Or should any one even have a good opinion of himself? The Pharisee was proud of his goodness and his virtues, but the poor despised publican, who was willing to be called a sinner, or an "earthen vessel," was "justified rather than the other."

The proud Pharisees of the present day look down with scorn upon the poor of this world, whom "GOD hath chosen" to be heirs of an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away." I should like to ask these proud professors a question. What have you to be proud of? Are you proud of your goodness and virtue? Hear what the Lord said to Satan, Job. 1: 8,—"Hast thou considered my servant Job, that there is NONE LIKE HIM IN THE EARTH, a perfect and an upright man?" Proud professor, are you better than holy Job? Yet hear what he says, Job 42: 6,—"I abhor myself, and repent in dust and ashes." But perhaps you are proud of your learning. You are able to speak so that the poor simple ones cannot understand you. Marvelous man!

"There was another, large of understanding,
Of memory infinite, of judgment deep,
Who knew all learning, and all science knew;
And all phenomena, in heaven and earth,
Traced to their causes; traced the labyrinths
Of thought, association, passion, will;
And all the subtle, nice affinities
Of matter traced; its virtues, motions, laws;
And most familiarly and deeply talked
Of mental, moral, natural, divine.
* * * * * * *
Did all that mind assisted most could do,
And yet in misery lived, in misery died,
Because he (had not) holiness of heart."

There is another cause of pride, which is perhaps more deeply seated in the constitution of man, and more difficult to root out than any other. Perhaps I ought not to mention it here, as "what can't be cured must be endured," and there is no use of talking about it. This pride of which I am speaking accompanies a peculiar phrenological development. Those who have this predominant, are possibly past all cure. They may never be persuaded to think that they are "earthen vessels," poor vile worms of the dust. They say by action if not by word, "Come not near me; stand by thyself; I am holier than thou."

If we are more highly favored than these proud persons; if we have no wealth, or or learning to be proud of; and if our heads are differently formed from theirs, let us praise GOD with all our heart; for it is he who has made us to differ. If we ever do or say a right thing, it is because he helps us, and to him be all the praise. And when we do anything wrong, all the b[illegible] belongs to us. If we are indeed "living temples of the Holy Spirit," "we have this treasure in earthen vessels, that the excellency of the power may be of GOD, and not of us.'

Sutton, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

HOW TO LIVE.

He liveth long who liveth well!
All other life is short and vain;
He liveth longest who can tell
Of living most for heavenly gain.

He liveth long who liveth well!
All else is being flung away;
He liveth longest who can tell
Of true things truly done each day.

Waste not thy being; back to Him
Who freely gave it, freely give;
Else is that being but a dream—
'Tis but to be, and not to live.

Be wise, and use thy wisdom well;
Who wisely speaks, must live it too;
He is the wisest who can tell
How first he lived, then spoke, the true.

Be what thou seemest; live thy creed;
Hold up to earth the torch divine;
Be what thou prayest to be made;
Let the great Master's steps be thine.

Sow truth, if thou the true wouldst reap;
Who sows the false shall reap the vain;
Erect and sound thy conscience keep;
From hollow words and deeds refrain.

Sow love, and taste its fruitage pure;
Sow peace, and reap its harvest bright;
Sow sunbeams on the rock and moor,
And find a harvest-home of light.

—H. Bonar.

For the World's Crisis.

A SHORT SERMON.

"And Noah walked with God."—GEN. 6: 9.

One of the apostles gave us a very good representation of religion, when, speaking of God, he says: "With whom we have to do." Now in all our dealings with our fellow beings, we should be governed by pure morality; but morality must be founded on true piety in order to be pure. But it is with God we have to do; for our connections with him, and our expectations from him, and our obligations to him, must all be of the highest magnitude. But what is implied by Noah walking with God? We answer, it is having the same object in view that God has. God says, "My glory will I not give to another." And Noah was laboring with all his might, and in every movement, to glorify God; and God in all his movements aims to establish his own glory; and Noah was aiming to accomplish the same object, that is, to glorify his heavenly Father. Here, you see, two can walk together, when they are so well agreed as God and Noah were. Now, if you are found walking with God when Christ comes, by trying to glorify him in all your movements, you will enter the heavenly kingdom to go no more out forever. But you must examine yourself before God every day, and find whether you are walking with God or away from him.

There is another position the saint occupies, very much the same as walking with God; that is, walking before God; as he says, "Walk before me, and be thou perfect." This implies observation, or that God beholds and takes cognizance of all our movements, and knows whether we love him or not by our daily walk and conversation. And while we try to walk before God in love and meekness, we must always have a perfect hatred of sin in all its forms, because God hates it, and be of a kind and tender spirit, as was Noah and our dear and loving Savior; for, "when he was reviled, he reviled not again"; and if we love and cherish the spirit of Christ in our hearts, God will love us with a Father's love, and own us for his dear children.

Another important position for a child of God is, following Christ, or walking after Christ. Paul says, "Follow me, as I follow Christ." This implies that we must take Christ as our pattern, or example, and walk in his steps. How much this comprehends! Look at it a moment, and let us examine ourselves, and see if we have the tender spirit of Christ in our hearts; if we have, we shall always be ready to do all we can to relieve suffering humanity in all its forms. "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least . . . ye have done it unto me," says Christ; and the dear Savior will say to such, "Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world; for I was an hungered, and ye gave me meat," etc. How much good it does me to be able to do a little towards helping those who are poorer than I am. Blessings follow all acts of kindness towards our dear and suffering brethren and sisters. This is truly following Christ.

But we must also follow Christ in holiness of heart and life; for "it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness." If I walk with God, I shall resemble him, and every one will take knowledge of me that I have been with Jesus. Such honor have all his saints. They walk with the King of kings and Lord of lords. "I will walk before the Lord," says David, "in the land of the living." "My presence shall go with thee, saith the Lord, and I will give thee rest."

"Come, lovely King, oh! quickly come;
The saints shall welcome thee;
And shouts of joy shall reach the throne
Throughout eternity."

Vernon, Vt. B. PERHAM.

FILIAL REVERENCE.

Kindness and honor toward parents is a part of German piety. In this respect German family life partakes somwhat of the patriarchal spirit. Children rise up before the hoary head, especially if it belongs to a parent or grandparent. They consult the wishes of their parents in every undertaking. In learning a trado, or settling in life, the voice of the parent is law. Often, after the father dies, the son will learn the trade he had, out of respect to his memory. The house and home of the parents is kept as a sacred possession in the family. In this respect a great difference is noticeable between the children of Germans and those of a different descent. The prevailing custom elsewhere now is for children to be ashamed of the pursuits of their parents, especially if they belong to the laboring classes. There is a restless impatience to break away from ancestral occupations and homes, as if that were in itself a mark of progress. The honest, thrifty piety of the olden time and of the fatherland, which works hard, pays its debts, and is content with enough, is fast losing caste.—Ger. Ref. Messenger.

THOUGHTS FOR MINISTERS.

Let Jesus Christ be all in all—study Christ, preach Christ, live Christ.

In preaching, study not to draw applauses, but groans from the hearers.

Let every minister, while he is preaching, remember that God is one of his hearers.

Preach no sermon without lifting up your heart to God that it may be blessed to the people.

The grand scope of the christian ministry is to bring men home to Christ.

KIND WORDS.

The destiny of individuals often turns upon a single word spoken in kindness or unkindness. The celebrated Adam Clarke was, till about nine years of age, the perfection of dullness in the estimation of his teachers. As such, when at this age, he was pointed out by his teacher to a stranger of respectability who visited the school. The stranger with great interest and affection replied, that he thought the teacher had mistaken the genius of the boy; that he had talents, and might yet attain to eminence in the literary world. That kind word struck a spark in the mind of the child, which rendered the future man one of the distinguished lights of the world. On the other hand, an unkind or discouraging word spoken at just such a crisis, may effectually break the spirits, or turn the heart into bitterness, and render the subject ever after the companion of foul spirits. O, the tears, the sighs, occasioned merely by unkind words!—Ex.

The Children's Corner.

PLEDGE OF THE TRY COMPANY.

We, the Undersigned, hereby pledge ourselves to abstain from Tea, Coffee, Tobacco, and all Intoxicating Drinks as a Beverage.

WILLIAM'S TEMPTATION.

William liked fruit and candy, but his mother was a widow, and could not afford to indulge him.

One day she gave him some money to buy him an umbrella and a pair of overshoes. After paying for them, a quarter of a dollar was left, which he was to expend for his mother. It was in cents and small bits of silver, and as William was passing a fruit-store, he thought it would surely be a small matter if he spent a cent in figs. They were no sooner eaten than his conscience began to trouble him. He tried to hush it by saying to himself, "A cent is nothing; mother won't miss it." Then he tried to forget the figs, but they would not be forgotten. They gave him more trouble than they had given pleasure.

Soon after, he was passing a candy-store in company with Charles Ellis. "Come, William," said Charles, "buy us some candy. You've money in your pocket; I know you have." So he bought six cents worth and gave it nearly all to Charles. He was so conscious he had done wrong, that he could eat little himself. But he felt worse when he reached home and met his anxious, overworked, and self-denying mother. He could hardly look her in the face.

The next day he saw some very fine apples at a fruit-stall. He thought of his mother at once. He knew she liked apples; so he bought some of the finest and gave her, feeling that an indulgence for her might weigh somewhat against his self-indulgence. His mother was pleased with his kind feelings thus expressed towards her, as he knew she would be, but told him frankly that he did wrong to spend her money even for herself without her consent, and that she could not afford luxuries. Poor William! The best thing for him would have been repentance and confession. The apples only made him the more sorry about the figs and candy.

At last he had to tell his mother all. The purchase for her must be made, and he had not enough money. She asked an account of what he had spent.

"You know, mother," he said, "there was a quarter of a dollar left after I had bought my umbrella and overshoes. I spent four cents for your apples, three cents for matches, one cent for figs, and five cents for a sponge. You know you said I might have a sponge for my slate, mother?"

"Yes, my son; but that was not all the money?"

"O," exclaimed William, as if something had just at that moment come to his remembrance; "O, I bought some candy. Six cents for candy."

"Six cents for candy! And why did you not tell of it first?"

"I didn't think of it," William answered. He spoke falsely, and his mother knew it from his look.

"O, William, William," she said, "do not be false; own the truth at once. It was wrong for you to buy the candy, and you could not have forgotten it. Own the truth, my son. This last sin is worse than the first."

William burst into tears, and with a broken heart acknowledged all. His mother wept. It was so hard to find her son both self indulgent and false. She knelt beside him and prayed to God for him and herself. When they rose up, William kissed his mother tenderly, and begging her forgiveness, promised, "O, mother, I never will do so again.

"You are easily tempted, my son. You need continued aid from God. You need to lift up your heart to him for help."

"I do pray some, and I mean to pray more," said William.

"You must watch as well as pray. It will not do to pray, 'Lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil,' and then run right into evil, you must avoid temptation."

"Do you mean that I ought to keep away from the candy and fruit stores?"

"Avoid them as much as you can; do not even glance at their windows, if you can help it. If the other boys will stop, you had better leave their company than commit sin. Tell them you have no money to spend, and no time to waste. If they laugh at you, they will soon stop laughing, and respect you. Manliness and honesty win respect from the weak and wicked; and if they do not, they are worth more than the approbation of the whole world."

"It is very hard to be poor, isn't it mother?"

"Your situation and circumstances are of God, appointed of him, and therefore the best for you. Act worthily in them, and let them do you all the good that God intended they should."

Every word his mother now said, sank into William's heart. He prayed more, and strengthened himself in God.

His new strength was soon tested. Charles Ellis joined him in the street with a package of nice candies.

"See here, William," he exclaimed, displaying his tempting store.

"They are very nice," said William.

"Ain't they, though? Have some of them? take all you want—take a lot?" said Charles, holding the candies before William.

"No, thank you," said William.

"What?" exclaimed Charles with surprise, "ain't you going to take any?"

"No, thank you," again answered William, blushing.

"Why not; what's the matter?"

"I mean to stop eating candy, if I can; I ought not to buy it, for my mother is poor; and I don't want to eat other boys' candies when I have none to give them; that would not be fair."

"O, take some candy now, Will; who minds such things?"

"Please don't urge me," said William.

"Well, then, I won't; but it seems to me your're getting queer."

William was somewhat embarrassed, but he walked on quietly, lifting up his heart to God for strength and wisdom. Charles put away his candy, and the boys were soon in a pleasant chat about school and other things.

When William met his mother, on his return home, he told her of the power which God had given him over appetite and pride, and mother and son rejoiced together. They knelt together and thanked God; as they rose, the mother pressed the hand of her boy with new hope and courage as she said, "Better is he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city."

A TRUE STORY.

Merton Smith, in his early childhood, was a boy of unusual promise; the idol of a doting father, who could scarcely see a fault in him. "Isn't he a likely lad?" the fond parent one day asked of a visitor to whom he had admiringly displayed his child's acquirements.

"Yes," was the reply; "but such a boy will need careful training; I hope you will think of that."

"I guess he'll train himself mostly," the father answered; "his mother has her hands full with half a dozen girls to bring up. And I like to see him have a mind of his own; so long as he don't take to any thing bad, we shall let him have his way pretty much, I reckon."

Merton Smith did have his way. He was bright and beautiful; and though sometimes mischievous, and always willful, he was so much the pet and pride of parents and sisters, that he received more caresses than rebukes. His father and mother were neither of them pious, and the former seldom attended divine worship; yet both of them felt shocked and mortified when they found that Merton had begun to use profane and ribald language. The mother entreated and the father commanded him to give up so foolish and disgraceful a habit; but their efforts were alike fruitless. So he grew to opening manhood a swearer and blasphemer.

It happened one sultry day in August, that, with two or three young companions, Merton Smith went down to the river for a bath. He was more profane than usual; and talked so shockingly as to incur the reproof of one of his comrades, less addicted to such folly. At this he became enraged, and let fly a volley of oaths wicked almost beyond belief. Suddenly he stopped; and to the surprise of his companions swam ashore, pale and silent. That silence was perpetual. He never spoke again.

Mental imbecility, too, had taken the place of his once bright talents; and though he lived several years, he was incapable alike of business or enjoyment; having only sense enough left to dress and feed himself, and to roam around his native village, a wreck and a nuisance.

I do not say that the terrible event thus related was the judgment of heaven upon the young blasphemer,—retribution being, as I believe and acknowledge, chiefly deferred to a future state; but I know not that we should question the divine right to vindicate sometimes, even here, its outraged majesty; and to show to presumptuous sinners that God "will [illegible] hold him guiltless that taketh his name in vain."—Tract Journal.

PEACOCK AND BUTTERFLY FOLKS.

Little boys or girls tipped off gaily in fine things, gew-gaws, and artificials, inflated with pride and self-importance, remind us of the peacock and butterfly.

"Some poor little ignorant children delight
In wearing fine ribbons and caps;
But this is a very ridiculous sight,
Though they do not know it, perhaps."

Young readers, how is it with you? Are you fond of fine clothes? Do you think more of a pretty face, a new dress, a new bonnet, a new coat, or a new hat, than you do of the improvement of your mind and heart? of the Bible and the Lord Jesus Christ?

Show us a girl that spends her leisure moments looking in the glass, or making some bit of finery, and we will show you a girl with a head as symmetrical as a balloon, and as light or vain as the peacock.

Show us a boy that is always noticing what sort of clothes other people have on, and would rather have a nice suit and stay out of school, than a plain suit and go to school, and we will show you a boy that bids fair to be, if not already, a sinner and a dunce.

Do you know, little folks, that the poor sheep and silk-worms wore that very clothing long before? "The tulip and the butterfly appear in far gayer coats than you. Dress fine as you will, flies, worms and flowers exceed you still."

Does God take delight in fine clothes, that tend to vanity and pride? "My son, give me thy heart."

"Hear ye not a voice from heaven,
To the listening spirit given?
Children, come! it seems to say,
Give your hearts to me to-day."

"Home Thrusts."

"A BOY'S LAWSUIT."

The following is the best illustration of the fruits of lawsuits we have ever seen. Those who engage in lawsuits usually get no more than did the "two boys;" that is, only the "shell;" while the lawyer gets the "kernel," or the money; while the contending parties lose it, and have only hatred left for each other. It is business that does not pay those who support the quarrel. We hope our young readers will never do as did these boys:—ED.

Under a great tree close to the village, two boys found a walnut. "It belongs to me," said Ignatius, "for I was first to see it." "No, it belongs to me," cried Bernard, "for I was the first to pick it up." And so they began to quarrel in earnest. "I will settle the dispute," said the older boy, who had just then come up. He placed himself between the two boys, broke the nut in two, and said: "The one piece of shell belongs to him who first saw the nut; the other piece of shell belongs to him who picked it up; but the kernel I keep for judging the case. And this," he said as he sat down and laughed, "is the common end of most lawsuits."

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..........$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months..........$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address..........$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.

Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.

Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.

All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.

When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.

Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.

All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE.

Semi-monthly.

THE YOUNG PILGRIM;

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:

Payable always in advance.

Single copy, 25 cents a year; and at the same rate for any number of copies under ten.

Ten copies, and any larger number under fifty, when sent to one address, [illegible] cents a year for each copy.

Fifty copies, and any number over fifty, when sent to one address, [illegible] cents a year for each copy.

To Canada subscribers, at the same rates. No extra charge for American postage.

CLUBS—Sunday Schools and neighborhoods, by taking the paper in clubs, [illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or July, and at no other times. [illegible]

POSTAGE—[illegible]

ALL COMMUNICATIONS, orders, and remittances should be addressed to THE YOUNG PILGRIM, BOSTON, MASS.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 519. BOSTON, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 26.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
37 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. A. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

Report of the Sixth Annual Meeting OF THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

HELD AT Wilbraham Grove, Aug. 22d and 23d, 1865.

Aug. 22d, 4 o'clock, P. M. The Association was called to order by the President, Bro. S. G. Mathewson, and opened by prayer offered by Bro. M. Batchelor.

On motion, the Chair appointed Brn. Grant, Sibley, and Herron, a committee to receive and examine credentials, and to report the membership of this meeting. While the committee on credentials were out, the time was profitably and fully occupied in singing, and listening to some grateful and cheering remarks from Brn. Himes, Batchelor, Moore, Damman, Mathewson, and others. The committee on credentials reported the following list of membership, viz :—

Members of the Board.

S. G. MATHEWSON, President.
M. BATCHELOR, Vice President.
G. T. ADAMS, Treasurer.
H. F. CARPENTER, Secretary.
J. G. HAMBLIN, A. W. SIBLEY, C. F. HUDSON, } Directors.

Preachers.

From Massachusetts. E. Owen, Three Rivers. Chas. E. Piper, Boston. H. K. Flagg, Holliston. W. J. Blanchard, Savoy. M. Grant, Boston. J. N. Sherman, Holliston. Geo. A. Streeter, North Dana. Harvey Haddock, Savoy. S. S. Brewer, South Ashburnham. Wm. C. Thurman, Boston. Rufus Starks, Savoy. L. Boutell, Groton. E. McCullock, Savoy. J. Hemenway, Athol. A. M. Higgins, Palmer. H. Pratt, Wales. G. A. Streeter, Savoy. C. F. Hudson, Cambridge. A. W. Sibley, East Boston.

From New Hampshire. A. Simpson, Concord. T. M. Preble, East Weare. A. Flagg, Hinsdale.

From Vermont. Edward Cotton, West Brattleboro. O. D. Gibson, Houghtonville. L. W. Miller, Brattleboro. M. Batchelor, Rutland. S. G. Mathewson, Castleton. H. F. Carpenter, Rutland.

From Connecticut. C. Goodrich, West Winsted. J. L. Bassett, Bridgeport. B. St. John, Danbury. H. Rockwell, Winsted. B. Hitchcock, Forestville. Ira Morgan, Meriden. E. Bellows, So. Killingly. Amasa Morse, Eastford.

From Maine. I. Damman, Corinna. N. G. Reed, Bangor. J. R. Hall, So. China. I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth.

From Pennsylvania. S. P. Babcock, Philadelphia. J. D. Brown, Edinboro.

From Rhode Island. M. R. Phetteplace, Natick. J. J. Northrop, Richmond. Wm. Devereaux, Scituate.

From New York. J. K. Bellows and S. Curry, New York City. J. Blain, Buffalo. O. R. Fassett, Sandy Hill.

From New Jersey. Wm. Shepherd, Newark. Dr. A. Decker, Newark.

Wm. Ingham, Clemensport, Nova Scotia. J. V. Himes, Buchanan, Mich. D. S. Clark, Amboy, Ill.

Delegates.

From Vermont. Carlos Sanford, Castleton. A. S. Meacham, Castleton. T. A. Cheney, Rutland. Moses Merril, Vernon.

From New Hampshire. Henry Little, J. W. Leighton, and J. C. Smith, Concord. T. E. Wood, Portsmouth.

From Massachusetts. A. L. Chamberlain, E. G. Higgins, Worcester. James Burnham, Broomfield. G. W. Thomas, Holden. Solomon Hovey and W. B. Herron, Boston. W. R. Rose and Thomas R. Weaver, Springfield. J. I. Johnson, Lynn. Orin Tower, Savoy. Isaac Barnes, Clinton. Anson Gage, Northfield. Alvin Cudworth, Charlemont. J. F. Sawtell, Athol.

From Connecticut. B. Bancroft, Warehouse Point. Alex. Elliott, Northfield. Sidney Hall and H. H. Dickenson, Hartford. N. Shumway, Danielsonville.

From New York. Jacob Wilbur, W. Hoosick. H. Walker, Shinecock, L. I. J. Pike and D. Mathewson, Sandy Hill. A. H. Brown, New York City. Solomon Hale, Troy. J. Moore, Hillsburg, N. S.

On motion, the resolution adopted last year, requiring from preachers offering their names for membership a certificate of good character from a christian church, was rescinded.

The Chair appointed Brn. J. V. Himes, J. D. Brown, and D. Mathewson, a committee to arrange and announce the business to come before this Association. The meeting, according to a previous vote, adjourned to meet to-morrow, at 8½ o'clock A. M.

Wednesday, 8½ o'clock, A. M. The meeting opened by prayer from Bro. I. Damman; the President, S. G. Mathewson, in the chair. The committee on business reported the following work in its order, before the Association, viz.,—

1st. The reading of the Secretary's minutes of the A. C. A.
2d. The appointment by the Chair of nominating committees for the A. C. A. and C. P. S.
3d. The report of the President of C. P. S.
4th. " " of the Secretary of C. P. S.
5th. " " of the Treasurer of C. P. S.
6th. " " of the Bus. Ag't of C. P. S.
7th. Election of officers of A. C. A. and of the Editor of the World's Crisis.
8th. Election of officers of C. P. S.

The report of the Business Committee being accepted, the minutes of the A. C. A. were read by the Secretary, accepted and adopted. The Chair appointed Brn. O. R. Fassett, A. Simpson, and J. G. Hamblin, a nominating committee for the A. C. A.; and Brn. H. K. Flagg, J. Hemenway, and G. T. Adams, a nominating committee for the C. P. S. Bro. Adams resigning his position upon the last named committee, Bro. S. Hovey was substituted by the Chair.

The Association now listened to the reports of the President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Business Agent of the C. P. S., all of which reports were accepted and adopted.

President's Report.

To the President and members of the Advent Christian Association, assembled at Wilbraham, Aug. 23d, 1865.

Gentlemen and Christian Brethren :—

At the close of another financial year, it becomes my duty to present to you a report of the business transacted by your executive agent of the Christian Publication Society, over which, from its organization, your action has called me to preside.

Our Society has held but two meetings during the past year,—the first on this campground, a year ago; the second during the present convocation. The minutes of the Secretary of our Society, when read, will inform you of our doings. The receipts and expenditures, as shown in the report of the Treasurer, are larger than ever before, and indicate to some extent an increase of business, though the higher prices of present times account for a part of the increasing totals. The business of the office has been during the past year under the supervision of a business agent, who has been constantly at his post, and the result has been, in my judgment, a more orderly, efficient, and desirable state of affairs in the sales and general office business.

The World's Crisis has maintained about its previous circulation. Little or no increase is reported this year; a fact of some importance, when it is remembered that during the previous year, an increase of about two thousand subscribers was reported. As to the occasion of this apparent declension of interest, the Association must judge for themselves. Doubtless, the increase in the price of the paper may have affected its circulation to some extent.

The Young Pilgrim has been under my own editorial charge during the past year. The terms fixed by the Association were so low, that according to the accurate estimates made by me, and submitted in advance to the Publication Society, with a circulation of even ten or twenty thousand copies, there would still be a deficiency of some five hundred dollars at the close of the year.

My anticipations and estimates were fully realized by the results. A deficiency has occurred, which has been mainly met by contributions made to the Sunday School Fund for that and similar purposes. At the conclusion of the volume, it was decided to advance the price of the paper, and thus endeavor to make it self-sustaining,—with what success we have yet to see.

The Young Pilgrim was started and circulated almost entirely through the medium of the World's Crisis, in which its claims to support were repeatedly and zealously urged. During the past year but little has been said in that paper concerning the "Young Pilgrim," and it would not be strange if the interest in it, and the circulation of it, had proportionably decreased. Under judicious management, this interest could doubtless be again revived.

The terms of the Pilgrim are payment in advance. When the money paid is exhausted, the paper stops. As the paper is largely read by children, rather than by the parents who pay for it, the time of payment passes, the paper stops, is not ordered again, and so hundreds of subscribers are lost at the close of each volume. If the Crisis was thus stopped when the money paid was exhausted, no doubt large numbers would fail to renew their subscriptions, and hence the present year's loss would nearly equal all who are in arrears for the paper; and also a portion of the free list, there being no free list of any amount on the Pilgrim books. The increase of the price of the Pilgrim may also have resulted in a decrease of subscribers.

The interest in the Tract work still continues, and a good degree of prosperity may be reported, although, as during the previous year, I think no new tracts have been issued, but considerable quantities of the old and standard publications have been manufactured and circulated.

At the last year's meeting of the C. P. Society, they requested the President to press to its completion the Hymn Book and Hymn and Tune Book, which the Society had proposed to publish. His business engagements did not then permit him to do this. In reply to an inquiry from the C. P. S., as to whether they could not in some way relieve him of that business, that he might complete the Hymn Book, he suggested that he might give up his office in Boston, put the whole of his book business temporarily into the office of the Society, and thus he might be able to accomplish the work. He hoped to have devoted last winter to this work, spending his time in the vicinity of Boston for that purpose. Various circumstances rendering it expedient for him to preach for a considerable period in distant localities, it became impracticable for him to produce the Hymn Book as contemplated, and, consequently, the arrangement for the relinquishment of the office and the transfer of the business to the C. P. S. was never consummated; and though a considerable number of hymns have been selected and prepared for use, the book is yet unfinished.

The most extensive book-publishing enterprise undertaken by the C. P. Society, during the past year, has been the printing from stereotype plates of 500 copies of a volume of an autobiography, in paper covers, all of which were sold during a few weeks, as other books doubtless might be by similar energetic advertising in the columns of the World's Crisis.

The past year's experience justifies the conclusion that careful attention to the business of the Society will result in a proportionable increase of its opportunities for doing good in the world.

I take the liberty of calling your attention to the fact, that should the business of the office largely increase, some change of location or enlargement of premises may be necessary, and it is possible that the additional rent in another locality would not exceed the saving effected in the matter of insurance, and in the convenience of a more central and public position. A business, which includes the receipt and disbursements of $20,000 or $30,000 annually, will evidently require the careful and constant attention of an experienced business man, and the revenues of the Society will doubtless justify the needful expenditure.

In restoring the trust I have held to the hands of those from whom I have received it, I pray that God will enable you to act in all wisdom and faithfulness in the work before you. The kingdom is at hand, is the solemn message of our age. Let us strive to publish it to earth's widest limit. May God give us help, and guide us to his honor here, and to his kingdom hereafter, is the prayer of your brother and servant in Christ,

H. L. HASTINGS.

Wilbraham Camp-ground, Aug. 23d, '65.

Secretary's Report.

MINUTES of a meeting of the Christian Publication Society, held on the Camp-ground in Wilbraham, Mass., Aug. 26, 1864.

Met in Bro. Hovey's tent at 1 o'clock P. M., H. L. Hastings in the chair. Prayer by S. S. Brewer. Present, I. C. Wellcome, S. G. Mathewson, C. F. Hudson, H. F. Carpenter, D. Mathewson, M. D., Geo. T. Adams, and Jos. D. Brown.

I. There were no minutes to be read.

II. There was some conversation and questions in regard to what business needed to be done by the C. P. Society.

III. Moved, That as Bro. Grant desires to be relieved of the duties of Business Agent, Bro. Geo. T. Adams be appointed Business Agent, with a salary of three hundred dollars per year ($300.00) as Business Agent and Treasurer. Carried.

The Business Agent asked to be instructed in regard to his duties, and instructions were given as follows:—that it was his duty, 1. To superintend all purchases of the office. 2. To fix the prices of sales, and rates of discount. 3. To supervise the advertisement of publications sold in the office. 4. Sales to be cash as far as practicable, with limited and cautious credits if necessary. No books to be sent out on commission. 5. Books to be kept and sold in the office must be those of permanent value, and of a profitable character, in harmony with the objects of the C. P. Society. 6. Publishers' names and addresses to be allowed to be printed with the advertisements of their books for sale at this office. 7. To superintend the general business of the office.

IV. Moved, That Bro. Hastings continue in his present relation to "The Young Pilgrim," at the same compensation. Carried.

a Moved, That "The Young Pilgrim" be made self-sustaining, and that we return to the monthly issue, if necessary, to accomplish this object. Carried.

V. Moved, That the list of free subscribers to the Crisis be reduced one half (½), by some means, either by cutting it down, or by calling on the churches to take care of their poor by paying for their papers. Carried.

VI. Moved, That the subscription rates for the Crisis be $2.50 a year, if paid in advance, and $3.00 per year if not paid within six months. Carried.

VII. Moved, That we raise two thousand dollars ($2000.00) this year, for free distribution of tracts. Carried.

Some conversation then occurred in regard to what we could do to obtain a Hymn Book. Asked Bro. H. L. Hastings how we could take his publishing, and relieve him in such a way that he could get out a Hymn and Tune Book, and Hymn Book for us. He asked till morning to think of the matter.

VIII. Moved, That we adjourn till to-morrow morning at 5½ o'clock, at this place. Carried.

Aug. 27th, 5½ o'clock A. M. Met as adjourned. H. L. Hastings in the chair. Prayer by S. G. Mathewson. Present, J. D. Brown, C. F. Hudson, G. T. Adams, S. G. Mathewson, I. C. Wellcome, D. Mathewson, M. D.

I. Moved, That Bro. Blain's offer for the sale of his plates be postponed on account of having no funds to use at present. Carried.

II. Moved, That persons sending the names of new subscribers with the money for their papers, shall be paid a premium of 20 per cent in tracts. Carried.

III. Bro. Hastings made proposal to give up his office, and to turn over his stock of manufactured books to us for sale, excepting orders 50 s. and 100 s. and some private orders that may come to him during the transition, he proposing to give us 10 per cent on all sales made in the office. This proposal was made by Bro. Hastings, that he might prepare a Hymn and Tune, and Hymn Book for the Society, as they had desired him to do.

a Moved, That we accept Bro. Hastings' proposal as above. Carried.

IV. Moved, That the Business Agent be empowered to call a meeting of the C. P. Society, whenever in the absence of the President he may think needful. Carried.

V. Moved, That the Hymn Book committee be relieved at their request. Carried.

VI. Moved, That Bro. H. L. Hastings be appointed a committee to get out the Hymn Book and Hymn and Tune Book for us, with liberty to seek whatever aid he may please. Carried.

VII. Moved, That we adjourn sine die. Carried. JOS. D. BROWN, Sec. C. P. S.

Minutes of a Meeting

Of the Christian Publication Society, held on the Camp-ground in Wilbraham, Mass., Aug. 22 and 23, 1865.

Met in Bro. Adams' tent, H. L. Hastings in the chair. The meeting was opened by a prayer by Bro. S. G. Mathewson. Members present besides those already named,—J. G. Hamblin, G. T. Adams, H. F. Carpenter, C. F. Hudson, S. S. Brewer, D. Mathewson, M. D., I. C. Wellcome, J. D. Brown.

The business done was as follows :—

I. The Secretary's minutes of the last meeting were called for, and read.

a Moved, to accept and adopt the minutes. Seconded. On this motion there was considerable discussion, resulting in motions as follows :—

b Moved, That the Secretary's minutes be amended so as to read (in Art. 3 of the session of Aug. 27.) Bro. Hastings made proposals to give up his office, and to turn over his stock of manufactured books to us for sale, excepting orders for 50 s. and 100 s., and some small orders that may come to him during the transition, he proposing to give us 10 per cent. on all sales made in the office. This proposal was made by Bro. Hastings, that he might prepare a Hymn and tune, and Hymn book for the Society, as they had desired him to do. Carried under a call for yeas and nays. Vote as follows :—

Yeas—S. G. Mathewson, H. F. Carpenter, C. F. Hudson, I. C. Wellcome. (4.) Nays—G. T. Adams, S. S. Brewer, D. Mathewson. (3.)

c Moved, that we accept the Minutes as amended. Seconded. The yeas and nays being called for, the vote stood :—

Yeas—H. F. Carpenter, C. F. Hudson, I. C. Wellcome, J. D. Brown. (4.) Nays—G. T. Adams, S. S. Brewer, S. G. Mathewson, D. Mathewson. (4.) Bro. J. G. Hamblin having been excused from voting on the question, the vote was a tie, decided by the President in the affirmative.

Bro. Adams asked that the Secretary record in the Minutes, that his reasons for opposing the amendment were, that he thought the original report was the true statement, and the amendment for the worse.

II. The Treasurer's annual report was called for, read, and being vouched by the auditing committee, Henry V. Davis and J. G. Hamblin, it was a Moved, that the Treasurer's report be accepted. Carried.

III. The Business Agent's report of the business of the year was called for, read, and the auditing committee having endorsed it, saying, "We have examined the accounts of Geo. T. Adams, Business Agent of the C. P. Society, and find them correct, according to the best of our knowledge and belief"; it was a Moved, that it be accepted, and ordered to be read before the A. C. Association. Carried.

IV. Moved, that we adjourn to meet in Bro. Brown's tent at 7½ o'clock this evening. Carried.

7½ o'clock P. M., Aug. 22. Met as per adjournment. H. L. Hastings presiding. Prayer by Bro. J. Blain. Present the whole board, except Bro. S. S. Brewer.

I. Business in regard to a claim of Bro. J. Blain against the C. P. Society was attended to. Bro. J. Blain was called upon to state his claim. It being found that Bro. Blain had misunderstood what he was authorized to do; it was a Moved, That Bro. Blain be granted $138, after adjusting accounts, for tracts distributed by him for the C. P. Society. Carried.

II. Moved, That we adjourn till to morrow, at 8 o'clock in the morning. Carried.

Aug. 23, 8 o'clock A. M. Met in Bro. Adams' tent. H. L. Hastings presiding. Prayer led by Bro. S. S. Brewer. There being no business to do,

I. The Secretary's minutes of the previous meeting were called for, read, and approved.

II. Minutes of the present session were read and approved.

III. Moved, To adjourn sine die. Carried.

JOS. D. BROWN, Sec. C. P. S.

The Treasurer's Report.

GEO. T. ADAMS, Treasurer, in account with the C. P. Society, Aug. 21, 1864, to Aug. 16, 1865, inclusive.

DR.

Aug. 16, 1864.
To balance from last year's account	$550 54
By cash received from Aug. 19th, 1864, to Aug. 16th, 1865, inclusive	19896 00
Total receipts	$20446 54

CR.

Aug. 16, 1865.
Ch. pd.		Editor of World's Crisis, Aug. 19, 1864, to Aug. 18, 1865, inclusive	772 50
"	"	Clerk, Aug. 21, 1864, to Aug. 19, 1865, inclusive	780 00
"	"	Assistant Clerk, Aug. 21, 1864, to Aug. 12, 1865, inclusive	504 67
"	"	Editor of Young Pilgrim, for the year ending with Aug. 1865	192 00
"	"	Treasurer of C. P. S. to Aug. 23, 1864, as per vote of the Chris. Pub. Society	250 00
"	"	Business Agent and Treasurer, as per vote of the Society, Aug. 27, 1864, to Aug. 17, 1865	291 67
"	"	For composition on Crisis and Pilgrim	1997 34
"	"	Press work and folding papers	1252 79
"	"	Printing paper for Crisis	7056 61
"	"	Printing paper for Pilgrim	841 47
"	"	Rent of rooms for C. P. S., Aug. 1864 to Aug. 1865	252 00
"	"	Postage—including letters, books, tracts, and papers sent into the British Dominions, and Box rent	441 49
"	"	For type, printing materials, etc.	109 84
"	"	Wrapping paper, stationery, blank books, etc.	315 13
"	"	Fuel, gas, insurance, and stove repairs	144 49
"	"	For sundries, such as teaming Crisis to post office, various articles in clerks' and compositors' rooms, extra work on sub. book, expressage on books, discount on uncur. money, counterfeit currency, U.S. license, etc. etc.	335 35
"	"	Books, tracts, etc., bought and made	3447 92
		Total expenditures	$19075 27
		Balance in Treasurer's hands	$1371 27

PROPERTY ON HAND.

Printing paper for Crisis	$954.29
" " Pilgrim	99.00
Wrapping paper	16.50
Books and tracts	1536.00
Back numbers of Pilgrim	100.00
Postage stamps	24.00
Office furniture, type, mail machine, estimated at	1500.00
Iron safe	81.00
Tract and question book plates	650.00
	$4960 79
Total cash and property on hand	$6332 06

GEO. T. ADAMS, Treasurer.

Crisis Office, Boston, Aug. 18th, 1865.

We, the subscribers, have examined the accounts of the Treasurer, and find them systematically kept, correctly cast, and properly vouched, and a balance in cash on hand of One Thousand Three Hundred and Seventy-one Dollars, and Twenty-seven cents.

HENRY V. DAVIS, J. G. HAMBLIN, } Auditing Committee.

Business Agent's Report.

Brn. of the Christian Publication Society :—

In most of the several departments of our business the past year, we have the pleasure to report a favorable degree of prosperity. If not so great or so remarkable in all respects as in the year before, we have yet much reason to remember with gratitude the same kind hand which has hitherto crowned us with blessings, and multiplied our means of usefulness. Our financial condition, on the whole, is better to-day than it was at the close of the last fiscal year. The total expenditures then exceeded the total receipts by some $1900, and the net capital, including outstanding accounts, was estimated at $8410. The expenditures this year are less than the receipts by some $820, and our capital, including accounts due, is increased beyond that of last year $1172. We are free from liabilities, and in good condition to commence the operations of another year under favorable auspices.

The increase in our business and resources from year to year, and the relative increase of the past year as compared with the years previous, will be seen from the following statement of receipts and expenditures—showing that the amount of business, as indicated by the annual incomes, has nearly quadrupled in the last four years :—

	RECEIPTS.	EXPENDITURES.
1862	$5,493.99.	$4,543.23.
1863	11,399.17.	8,955.00.
1864	14,567.91.	16,461.54.
1865	19,896.00.	19,075.27.

The total net capital with which we commence the new fiscal year, including accounts due, may be estimated as follows :—

Property on hand	$4960.79
Cash in the Treasury	1371.27
Crisis accounts, $4205, valued at	3000.00
Book accounts, 374, valued at	250.00
Total net capital	$9582.06

Besides the financial prosperity which has attended our general operations thus far, we have reason to be thankful also for the great enlargement of works of christian benevolence among us the past year. The brethren at large, whom the Lord has made stewards of his money, have had new calls upon their sympathy and their zeal,—for the help of the poor, for tract distribution, and for the work of missions; and they have contributed with a generous, and a liberal, and in some instances with a princely hand. The donations sent in for these noble charities, of which the Society has been made the agent and the almoner, have been more than double the gifts of benevolence the year previous. The receipts for these purposes the past year being nearly $3000, and the year before less than $1500. The kind and liberal donors have doubtless realized already, and will more fully realize by and by, that it is "more blessed to give than to receive."

BOOK AND TRACT DEPARTMENT.

In the business of this department, there has been a very considerable increase. We have printed over $1100 worth of the Society's tracts and leaflets, or 2,568,560 pages, which is about the same number that was printed last year. We have also issued 500 sheets of "Glad Voices," and a third edition of about 500 copies of the life of Hiram Munger, which last, by judicious management, were sold in eleven weeks, and they were not enough to supply the demand. The amount of books and tracts made and purchased for sale and distribution, is $3447.92; the amount on hand, $1536.00; of which the Society's tracts are $635.00, and new books and other tracts $901.00. Our cash sales exceed those of the previous year by nearly $1000.00; being $2204.00 in 1864, and this year $3185.00, to which may be added the amount of tracts given away—$1145; making a total of $4330.00 received for books and tracts.

The proposal of Bro. Hastings, accepted by the Society at its last meeting in August, 1864, "to turn over his stock of manufactured books to us for sale," excepting certain specified orders, he has, for some reason unexplained, not carried out.

In regard to the progress of preparing the new hymn and tune book, which was put into the hands of a committee a year ago, we have no definite information to give.

With the means in hand, our book and tract business may, and ought to be, more than doubled the ensuing year. The times in which we live, and the grand and solemn events impending, call upon us loudly to do all we can to advance the cause of truth and righteousness while we may, by a large and liberal circulation of the right kind of religious reading. Additions should therefore be made to the number and variety of our publications, and our denominational talent called out to produce tracts and other works for the times, on Scriptural and practical subjects, and on questions concerning our faith and hope, which shall convince and quicken both saint and sinner, and prepare them for the things which are coming on the earth. Thus shall we enlarge our circle of usefulness, and receive the approval of the Master at his coming.

THE TRACT FUND.

The interest felt by the benevolent in providing means for the free distribution of tracts, has suffered little or no abatement the past year, notwithstanding the continued calls upon their charities in other directions; the donations to the Fund amounting to $1205, while those of the previous year were but a trifle more—$1252. With this money we have printed, and scattered in all parts of the land north, and to some extent in the south, in camps, and hospitals, and missions, $1145.00 worth of these little messengers of truth and salvation, being about $75.00 worth more than was distributed in 1864. The balance of tracts from this and the previous year belonging to the Fund undistributed, is $242.77.

The great good which has been done by the contributors to this fund in diffusing light and knowledge, and awaking men to a serious consideration of eternal things, will be known only at the judgment, and then will they receive their reward.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

The total receipts on subscription for the Crisis are $13,350.00; to which is to be added the amount paid in for the Free Subscribers, $1110.00—making the entire receipts for the Crisis $14,460.00. The total expenditures have been $13,526.27 or $933.73 less than the receipts. The Crisis expenditures have been unusually large, owing chiefly to the high price of printing paper,—the cost of which has been more than one third of our entire expenses. The highest price paid was 27 cents a pound. The last lot was obtained for a shade less than 17 cents. The average through the year has been 22¼ cents.

In accordance with previous notice, we stopped, early in the year, the papers of 374 delinquent subscribers, who were owing $4.00 and over, and had made no responses to our repeated calls. The amount due from the same was $2437.00, of which only $326.00 have been paid, leaving a balance of $2111.00 still unpaid. To this is to be added $440 more, the amount due from other delinquents who have stopped their papers without paying up arrearages;—making the entire delinquencies $2551.00—the most of which covers an indebtedness of several years standing.

The net increase of new subscribers the past year has been quite small, especially as compared with the very large increase of last year. We may put it at about 300. But as more than that number of delinquents were stricken off, our subscription list stands now about where it did at the beginning of the year, not far from 7000. We hope the coming year to see a new and a general rally of its friends and subscribers every where to enlarge its circulation and extend its usefulness.

THE POOR FUND.

The number of papers sent free to the poor at the beginning of the year was about 800, the annual expense of which, at present rates, would be some $2000.00. These expenses for the poor the office had borne freely, and almost entirely, for a number of years. But the list at that time had grown so large that the Society, as a matter of necessity, decided to cut it down, so as not to exceed 400, unless the benevolent should step in and relieve the office, by taking a part of the burden. In the beginning of Sept. last a Poor Fund was started for that purpose, and contributions called for. In answer to the calls, and to the "Voices from the Poor," brethren every where have responded, with a noble and generous sympathy and liberality,—to the amount of $1110.00. Some of these Poor have since become paying subscribers, and the number of free papers now sent is 563.

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

The receipts for the Young Pilgrim the past year have been $1034.00; the expenditures $1739.00; the excess of expenditures over receipts $705.00. The number of subscribers, which was 7000 the first year, and 5400 the second year, is now 2900, the remainder of last year's subscribers not having yet been heard from.

Finding some months since that the receipts were falling short of expenses, with a prospect of a deficiency at the end of the year in June, of several hundred dollars, we raised the price, in accordance with the vote of the Society, to make the paper "self-sustaining." We have heard of few or no complaints at the increase of price; and it does not appear that the large falling off in its subscriptions is to any great degree owing to that cause. As the great bulk of its subscribers take it in clubs at club rates, the average price per year is not over 40 or 42 cents, which, perhaps, is not too much for a paper of so small a circulation, and having no resources but what come from subscribers.

There are, we cannot doubt, at least a few friends of the Pilgrim who are ready to say, "It must not go down," and who will do all they can for its support. And as it was started with the expressed object—and is needed for that object—to furnish our children with the right kind of food,—to instruct them in the principles of our faith and hope, and lead them, with us, to be ready for the coming and kingdom of Christ,—it will be for its friends and the Society to make such efforts and adopt such means as shall, if possible, again enlarge its circulation and usefulness, and bring the blessing of God upon it.

THE ITALIAN MISSION.

Bro. Czechowski, to whom the columns of the Crisis have been open the past year to enable him to raise funds for his Mission to Italy, is not, as many have supposed, a missionary of our people; nor is he, so far as we know, a chosen missionary of any body or bodies of Advent believers. It is simply an individual mission, calling for aid from all who may feel disposed to give it. Yet, though not in some respects with us in faith, we have wished him well in his Christian efforts in Italy. As the funds raised have passed through our hands, it is proper that we should make some report of them here. The amount of receipts for this mission (not counting the considerable amount received by himself before starting) have been $491.82; which has been sent to him, in three different remittances,—the first in October last, the second in February, and the third on the 10th instant. $110.00 of this were donations received through the Advent Herald office. These remittances have been made in drafts on Paris. But so high have been the rates of exchange that the whole $490.00 have realized to him perhaps not half that amount. To send $1.00 to a foreign mission, at a time when it takes 50 cents of it to get the other 50 cents there, seems like throwing money away, even if it is for a good object. If our people shall organize a Missionary Society, it will be for them to take this mission under their charge if they see fit.

THE FREEDMEN'S MISSION.

Calls and contributions have been made for this much needed work, and some $140.00 have been raised. But as action will soon be taken in regard to this mission, no further remarks need be made here in reference thereto, more than simply to recommend to your consideration the propriety of the proposed missionary organization.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEO. T. ADAMS, } Business Agent of Chris. Pub. Soc'y.

Boston, Aug. 18th, 1865.

We, the subscribers, have examined the accounts of Geo. T. Adams, Business Agent of the Christian Publication Society, as embodied in the foregoing Report, and find them correct, according to the best of our knowledge and belief.

HENRY V. DAVIS, J. G. HAMBLIN, } Auditing Committee.

The Officers of the C. P. S. having thus finished their reports, the nominating committee for the A. C. A. reported their nominations as follows, viz :—

For President..........S. G. MATHEWSON.
" Vice President....M. BATCHELOR.
" Secretary..........H. F. CARPENTER.
" Treasurer..........GEO. T. ADAMS.

For Directors.—J. Couch, C. F. Hudson, H. V. Davis, J. G. Hamblin, A. W. Sibley, Wm. A. Fenn, C. B. Turner, C. S. Sherman, Wm. H. Mitchell.

For Editor..............MILES GRANT.

This report being accepted, pending its adoption the management of the Crisis for the past year was somewhat lengthily discussed by Brn. Hastings, Himes, Wellcome, C. F. Hudson and others, and various suggestions were made for the improvement of the editorial department without effecting any decision, when the meeting adjourned until 2 P. M.

2 o'clock P. M. Prayer was offered by Bro. I. C. Wellcome. Discussion was resumed upon the report of the nominating committee of the A. C. A., after which their report was adopted. The Chair appointed Brn. T. M. Preble, C. Sanford, and E. G. Higgins a committee on ballots for the A. C. A. Ballots were received at the call of the roll. While ballots for officers of A. C. A. were being counted, the nominating committee for C. P. S. reported their nominations as follows, viz :

For President.............D. T. TAYLOR.
" Secretary.............J. D. BROWN.
" Treasurer.............GEO. T. ADAMS.

For Editorial Committee.—S. G. Mathewson, J. Couch, Wm. H. Mitchell.

For Publishing Committee.—H. F. Carpenter, H. V. Davis, S. S. Brewer, J. G. Hamblin, D. Mathewson.

Bro. J. D. Brown refusing to accept his nomination as Secretary of the C. P. S., Bro. W. B. Herron was nominated in his stead.

Brn. A. H. Brown, A. S. Meacham, and A. W. Sibley, were appointed by the Chair a committee on ballots for C. P. S. Ballots were received at the call of the roll.

The committee on ballots for the A. C. A. reported the following officers elected :—

S. G. MATHEWSON............President.
M. BATCHELOR...............Vice President
H. F. CARPENTER............Secretary.
GEO. T. ADAMS..............Treasurer.

Directors.—J. Couch, C. F. Hudson, H. V. Davis, J. G Hamblin, A. W. Sibley, Wm. A. Fenn, C. B. Turner, C. S. Sherman, Wm. H. Mitchell.

MILES GRANT...............Editor.

Voted, That the committee who are out be allowed to vote when they come in.

Voted, That the Chair appoint a committee of three to nominate a campmeeting committee of five to be elected at the stand by the campmeeting. The Chair appointed as said committee J. V. Himes, D. Mathewson, and Solomon Hale.

Moved, That the word Advent be inserted in Art. II., sect. 1, of the Constitution of the A. C. A. before the phrase "Christian Publication Society." Carried.

Moved, That the Treasurer of the C. P. S. be instructed to have the legal document of that Society so altered as to give it the name of the Advent Christian Publication Society. Carried.

The Shinecock Indians having forwarded to this Association a sum of money as a donation for its benefit, it was Voted, To pass the money over to the A. C. P. S. for their disposal.

Moved, That we instruct the C. P. S. to make a change of editors for the Young Pilgrim by appointing Wm. B. Herron its editor. Carried.

The committee on ballots for C. P. S. reported the following elections, viz :

D. T. TAYLOR...............President.
WM. B. HERRON.............Secretary.
GEO. T. ADAMS..............Treasurer.

Editorial Committee.—S. G. Mathewson, Wm. H. Mitchell, J. Couch.

Publishing Committee.—H. F. Carpenter, H. V. Davis, S. S. Brewer, J. G. Hamblin, D. Mathewson.

The Association now adjourned sine die at 5 o'clock P. M.

H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

A TENDER CONSCIENCE.—A tender conscience is like the apple of a man's eye—the least dust that gathers into it affects it. There is no surer and better way to know whether our consciences are dead and stupid, than to observe what impression small sins (as they are improperly named) make upon them; if we are not very careful to avoid all appearance of evil, and to shun whatever looks like sin—if we are not so much troubled at the vanity of our thoughts and words, at the rising up of sinful motions and desires in us, as we have been formerly, we may then conclude that our hearts are hardened, and our consciences are stupefying; for a tender conscience will no more allow of (what are called) small sins, than of great sins.—Bishop Hopkins.

☞ The pleasure of doing good is one that never wears out.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME."

WHOLE NO. 519. BOSTON, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1865. VOL. XXI.—NO. 26.

The World's Crisis AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at 37 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. A. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

Report of the Sixth Annual Meeting OF THE ADVENT CHRISTIAN ASSOCIATION,

HELD AT

Wilbraham Grove, Aug. 22d and 23d, 1865.

Aug. 22d, 4 o'clock, P. M. The Association was called to order by the President, Bro. S. G. Mathewson, and opened by prayer offered by Bro. M. Batchelor.

On motion, the Chair appointed Brn. Grant, Sibley, and Herron, a committee to receive and examine credentials, and to report the membership of this meeting. While the committee on credentials were out, the time was profitably and fully occupied in singing, and listening to some grateful and cheering remarks from Brn. Himes, Batchelor, Moore, Damman, Mathewson, and others. The committee on credentials reported the following list of membership, viz:—

Members of the Board.

S. G. MATHEWSON, President.
M. BATCHELOR, Vice President.
G. T. ADAMS, Treasurer.
H. F. CARPENTER, Secretary.
J. G. HAMBLIN, }
A. W. SIBLEY, } Directors.
C. F. HUDSON, }

Preachers.

From Massachusetts. E. Owen, Three Rivers. Chas. E. Piper, Boston. H. K. Flagg, Holliston. W. J. Blanchard, Savoy. M. Grant, Boston. J. N. Sherman, Holliston. Geo. A. Streeter, North Dana. Harvey Hadlock, Savoy. S. S. Brewer, South Ashburnham. Wm. C. Thurman, Boston. Rufus Starks, Savoy. L. Boutell, Groton. E. McCullock, Savoy. J. Hemenway, Athol. A. M. Higgins, Palmer. H. Pratt, Wales. G. A. Streeter, Savoy. C. F. Hudson, Cambridge. A. W. Sibley, East Boston.

From New Hampshire. A. Simpson, Concord. T. M. Preble, East Weare. A. Flagg, Hinsdale.

From Vermont. Edward Cotton, West Brattleboro. O. D. Gibson, Houghtonville. L. W. Miller, Brattleboro. M. Batchelor, Rutland. S. G. Mathewson, Castleton. H. F. Carpenter, Rutland.

From Connecticut. C. Goodrich, West Winsted. J. L. Bassett, Bridgeport. B. St. John, Danbury. H. Rockwell, Winsted. B. Hitchcock, Forestville. Ira Morgan, Meriden. E. Bellows, So. Killingly. Amasa Morse, Eastford.

From Maine. I. Damman, Corinna. N. G. Reed, Bangor. J. R. Hall, So. China. I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth.

From Pennsylvania. S. P. Babcock, Philadelphia. J. D. Brown, Edinboro.

From Rhode Island. M. R. Phetteplace, Natick. J. J. Northrop, Richmond. Wm. Devereaux, Scituate.

From New York. J. K. Bellows and S. Curry, New York City. J. Blain, Buffalo. O. R. Fassett, Sandy Hill.

From New Jersey. Wm. Shepherd, Newark. Dr. A. Decker, Newark.

Wm. Ingham, Clemensport, Nova Scotia. J. V. Himes, Buchanan, Mich. D. S. Clark, Amboy, Ill.

Delegates.

From Vermont. Carlos Sanford, Castleton. A. S. Meacham, Castleton. T. A. Cheney, Rutland. Moses Merril, Vernon.

From New Hampshire. Henry Little, J. W. Leighton, and J. C. Smith, Concord. T. E. Wood, Portsmouth.

From Massachusetts. A. L. Chamberlain, E. G. Higgins, Worcester. James Burnham, Broomfield. G. W. Thomas, Holden. Solomon Hovey and W. B. Herron, Boston. W. R. Rose and Thomas R. Weaver, Springfield. J. I. Johnson, Lynn. Orin Tower, Savoy. Isaac Barnes, Clinton. Anson Gage, Northfield. Alvin Cudworth, Charlemont. J. F. Sawtell, Athol.

From Connecticut. B. Bancroft, Warehouse Point. Alex. Elliott, Northfield. Sidney Hall and H. H. Dickenson, Hartford. N. Shumway, Danielsonville.

From New York. Jacob Wilbur, W. Hoosick. H. Walker, Shinecock, L. I. J. Pike and D. Mathewson, Sandy Hill. A. H. Brown, New York City. Solomon Hale, Troy. J. Moore, Hillsburg, N. S.

On motion, the resolution adopted last year, requiring from preachers offering their names for membership a certificate of good character from a christian church, was rescinded.

The Chair appointed Brn. J. V. Himes, J. D. Brown, and D. Mathewson, a committee to arrange and announce the business to come before this Association. The meeting, according to a previous vote, adjourned to meet to-morrow, at 8½ o'clock A. M.

Wednesday, 8½ o'clock, A. M. The meeting opened by prayer from Bro. I. Damman; the President, S. G. Mathewson, in the chair. The committee on business reported the following work in its order, before the Association, viz.,—

1st. The reading of the Secretary's minutes of the A. C. A.

2d. The appointment by the Chair of nominating committees for the A. C. A. and C. P. S.

3d. The report of the President of C. P. S.

4th. " " of the Secretary of C. P. S.

5th. " " of the Treasurer of C. P. S.

6th. " " of the Bus. Ag't of C. P. S.

7th. Election of officers of A. C. A. and of the Editor of the World's Crisis.

8th. Election of officers of C. P. S.

The report of the Business Committee being adopted, the minutes of the A. C. A. were read by the Secretary, accepted and adopted. The Chair appointed Brn. O. R. Fassett, A. Simpson, and J. G. Hamblin, a nominating committee for the A. C. A.; and Brn. H. K. Flagg, J. Hemenway, and G. T. Adams, a nominating committee for the C. P. S. Bro. Adams resigning his position upon the last named committee, Bro. S. Hovey was substituted by the Chair.

The Association now listened to the reports of the President, Secretary, Treasurer, and Business Agent of the C. P. S., all of which reports were accepted and adopted.

President's Report.

To the President and members of the Advent Christian Association, assembled at Wilbraham, Aug. 23d, 1865.

Gentlemen and Christian Brethren:—

At the close of another financial year, it becomes my duty to present to you a report of the business transacted by your executive agent of the Christian Publication Society, over which, from its organization, your action has called me to preside.

Our Society has held but two meetings during the past year,—the first on this campground, a year ago; the second during the present convocation. The minutes of the Secretary of our Society, when read, will inform you of our doings. The receipts and expenditures, as shown in the report of the Treasurer, are larger than ever before, and indicate to some extent an increase of business, though the higher prices of present times account for a part of the increasing totals. The business of the office has been during the past year under the supervision of a business agent, who has been constantly at his post, and the result has been, in my judgment, a more orderly, efficient, and desirable state of affairs in the sales and general office business.

The World's Crisis has maintained about its previous circulation. Little or no increase is reported this year; a fact of some importance, when it is remembered that during the previous year, an increase of about two thousand subscribers was reported. As to the occasion of this apparent declension of interest, the Association must judge for themselves. Doubtless, the increase in the price of the paper may have affected its circulation to some extent.

The Young Pilgrim has been under my own editorial charge during the past year. The terms fixed by the Association were so low, that according to the accurate estimates made by me, and submitted in advance to the Publication Society, with a circulation of even ten or twenty thousand copies, there would still be a deficiency of some five hundred dollars at the close of the year.

My anticipations and estimates were fully realized by the results. A deficiency has occurred, which has been mainly met by contributions made to the Sunday School Fund for that and similar purposes. At the conclusion of the volume, it was decided to advance the price of the paper, and thus endeavor to make it self-sustaining,—with what success we have yet to see.

The Young Pilgrim was started and circulated almost entirely through the medium of the World's Crisis, in which its claims to support were repeatedly and zealously urged. During the past year but little has been said in that paper concerning the "Young Pilgrim," and it would not be strange if the interest in it, and the circulation of it, had proportionably decreased. Under judicious management, this interest could doubtless be again revived.

The terms of the Pilgrim are payment in advance. When the money paid is exhausted, the paper stops. As the paper is largely read by children, rather than by the parents who pay for it, the time of payment passes, the paper stops, is not ordered again, and so hundreds of subscribers are lost at the close of each volume. If the Crisis was thus stopped when the money paid was exhausted, no doubt large numbers would fail to renew their subscriptions, and hence the present year's loss would nearly equal all who are in arrears for the paper; and also a portion of the free list, there being no free list of any amount on the Pilgrim books. The increase of the price of the Pilgrim may also have resulted in a decrease of subscribers.

The interest in the Tract work still continues, and a good degree of prosperity may be reported, although, as during the previous year, I think no new tracts have been issued, but considerable quantities of the old and standard publications have been manufactured and circulated.

At the last year's meeting of the C. P. Society, they requested the President to press to its completion the Hymn Book and Hymn and Tune Book, which the Society had proposed to publish. His business engagements did not then permit him to do this. In reply to an inquiry from the C. P. S., as to whether they could not in some way relieve him of that business, that he might complete the Hymn Book, he suggested that he might give up his office in Boston, put the whole of his book business temporarily into the office of the Society, and thus he might be able to accomplish the work. He hoped to have devoted last winter to this work, spending his time in the vicinity of Boston for that purpose. Various circumstances rendering it expedient for him to preach for a considerable period in distant localities, it became impracticable for him to produce the Hymn Book as contemplated, and, consequently, the arrangement for the relinquishment of the office and the transfer of the business to the C. P. S. was never consummated; and though a considerable number of hymns have been selected and prepared for use, the book is yet unfinished.

The most extensive book publishing enterprise undertaken by the C. P. Society, during the past year, has been the printing from stereotype plates of 500 copies of a volume of an autobiography, in paper covers, all of which were sold during a few weeks, as other books doubtless might be by similar energetic advertising in the columns of the World's Crisis.

The past year's experience justifies the conclusion that careful attention to the business of the Society will result in a proportionable increase of its opportunities for doing good in the world.

I take the liberty of calling your attention to the fact, that should the business of the office largely increase, some change of location or enlargement of premises may be necessary, and it is possible that the additional rent in another locality would not exceed the saving effected in the matter of insurance, and in the convenience of a more central and public position. A business, which includes the receipt and disbursements of $20,000, or $30,000 annually, will evidently require the careful and constant attention of an experienced business man, and the revenues of the Society will doubtless justify the needful expenditure.

In restoring the trust I have held to the hands of those from whom I have received it, I pray that God will enable you to act in all wisdom and faithfulness in the work before you. The kingdom is at hand, is the solemn message of our age. Let us strive to publish it to earth's widest limit. May God give us help, and guide us to his honor here, and to his kingdom hereafter, is the prayer of your brother and servant in Christ,

H. L. HASTINGS.

Wilbraham Camp-ground, Aug. 23d, '65.

Secretary's Report.

MINUTES of a meeting of the Christian Publication Society, held on the Camp-ground in Wilbraham, Mass., Aug. 26, 1864.

Met in Bro. Hovey's tent at 1 o'clock P. M., H. L. Hastings in the chair. Prayer by S. S. Brewer. Present, I. C. Wellcome, S. G. Mathewson, C. F. Hudson, H. F. Carpenter, D. Mathewson, M. D., Geo. T. Adams, and Jos. D. Brown.

I. There were no minutes to be read.

II. There was some conversation and questions in regard to what business needed to be done by the C. P. Society.

III. Moved, That as Bro. Grant desires to be relieved of the duties of Business Agent, Bro. Geo. T. Adams be appointed Business Agent, with a salary of three hundred dollars per year ($300.00) as Business Agent and Treasurer. Carried.

The Business Agent asked to be instructed in regard to his duties, and instructions were given as follows:—that it was his duty, 1. To superintend all purchases of the office. 2. To fix the prices of sales, and rates of discount. 3. To supervise the advertisement of publications sold in the office. 4. Sales to be cash as far as practicable, with limited and cautious credits if necessary. No books to be sent out on commission. 5. Books to be kept and sold in the office must be those of permanent value, and of a profitable character, in harmony with the objects of the C. P. Society. 6. Publishers' names and addresses to be allowed to be printed with the advertisements of their books for sale at this office. 7. To superintend the general business of the office.

IV. Moved, That Bro. Hastings continue in his present relation to "The Young Pilgrim," at the same compensation. Carried.

a Moved, That "The Young Pilgrim" be made self-sustaining, and that we return to the monthly issue, if necessary, to accomplish this object. Carried.

V. Moved, That the list of free subscribers to the Crisis be reduced one half (½), by some means, either by cutting it down, or by calling on the churches to take care of their poor by paying for their papers. Carried.

VI. Moved, That the subscription rates for the Crisis be $2.50 a year, if paid in advance, and $3.00 per year if not paid within six months. Carried.

VII. Moved, That we raise two thousand dollars ($2000.00) this year, for free distribution of tracts. Carried.

Some conversation then occurred in regard to what we could do to obtain a Hymn Book. Asked Bro. H. L. Hastings how we could take his publishing, and relieve him in such a way that he could get out a Hymn and Tune Book, and Hymn Book for us. He asked till morning to think of the matter.

VIII. Moved, That we adjourn till to-morrow morning at 5½ o'clock, at this place. Carried.

Aug. 27th, 5½ o'clock A. M. Met as adjourned. H. L. Hastings in the chair. Prayer by S. G. Mathewson. Present, J. D. Brown, C. F. Hudson, G. T. Adams, S. G. Mathewson, I. C. Wellcome, D. Mathewson, M. D.

I. Moved, That Bro. Blain's offer for the sale of his plates be postponed on account of having no funds to use at present. Carried.

II. Moved, That persons sending the names of new subscribers with the money for their papers, shall be paid a premium of 20 per cent in tracts. Carried.

III. Bro. Hastings made proposal to give up his office, and to turn over his stock of manufactured books to us for sale, excepting orders 50 s. and 100 s. and some private orders that may come to him during the transition, he proposing to give us 10 per cent on all sales made in the office. This proposal was made by Bro. Hastings, that he might prepare a Hymn and Tune, and Hymn Book for the Society, as they had desired him to do.

a Moved, That we accept Bro. Hastings' proposal as above. Carried.

IV. Moved, That the Business Agent be empowered to call a meeting of the C. P. Society, whenever in the absence of the President he may think needful. Carried.

V. Moved, That the Hymn Book committee be relieved at their request. Carried.

VI. Moved, That Bro. H. L. Hastings be appointed a committee to get out the Hymn Book and Hymn and Tune Book for us, with liberty to seek whatever aid he may please. Carried.

VII. Moved, That we adjourn sine die. Carried. JOS. D. BROWN, Sec. C. P. S.

Minutes of a Meeting

Of the Christian Publication Society, held on the Camp-ground in Wilbraham, Mass., Aug. 22 and 23, 1865.

Met in Bro. Adams' tent, H. L. Hastings in the chair. The meeting was opened by a prayer by Bro. S. G. Mathewson. Members present besides those already named,—J. G. Hamblin, G. T. Adams, H. F. Carpenter, C. F. Hudson, S. S. Brewer, D. Mathewson, M. D., I. C. Wellcome, J. D. Brown.

The business done was as follows:—

I. The Secretary's minutes of the last meeting were called for, and read.

a Moved, to accept and adopt the minutes. Seconded. On this motion there was considerable discussion, resulting in motions as follows:—

b Moved, That the Secretary's minutes be amended so as to read (in Art. 3 of the session of Aug. 27.) Bro. Hastings made proposals to give up his office, and to turn over his stock of manufactured books to us for sale, excepting orders for 50 s. and 100 s., and some small orders that may come to him during the transition, he proposing to give us 10 per cent. on all sales made in the office. This proposal was made by Bro. Hastings, that he might prepare a Hymn and tune, and Hymn book for the Society, as they had desired him to do. Carried under a call for yeas and nays. Vote as follows:—

Yeas—S. G. Mathewson, H. F. Carpenter, C. F. Hudson, I. C. Wellcome. (4.) Nays—G. T. Adams, S. S. Brewer, D. Mathewson. (3.)

c Moved, that we accept the Minutes as amended. Seconded. The yeas and nays being called for, the vote stood:—

Yeas—H. F. Carpenter, C. F. Hudson, I. C. Wellcome, J. D. Brown. (4.) Nays—G. T. Adams, S. S. Brewer, S. G. Mathewson, D. Mathewson. (4.) Bro. J. G. Hamblin having been excused from voting on the question, the vote was a tie, decided by the President in the affirmative.

Bro. Adams asked that the Secretary record in the Minutes, that his reasons for opposing the amendment were, that he thought the original report was the true statement, and the amendment for the worse.

II. The Treasurer's annual report was called for, read, and being vouched by the auditing committee, Henry V. Davis and J. G. Hamblin, it was a Moved, that the Treasurer's report be accepted. Carried.

III. The Business Agent's report of the business of the year was called for, read, and the auditing committee having endorsed it, saying, "We have examined the accounts of Geo. T. Adams, Business Agent of the C. P. Society, and find them correct, according to the best of our knowledge and belief"; it was a Moved, that it be accepted, and ordered to be read before the A. C. Association. Carried.

IV. Moved, that we adjourn to meet in Bro. Brown's tent at 7½ o'clock this evening. Carried.

7½ o'clock P. M., Aug. 22. Met as per adjournment. H. L. Hastings presiding. Prayer by Bro. J. Blain. Present the whole board, except Bro. S. S. Brewer.

I. Business in regard to a claim of Bro. J. Blain against the C. P. Society was attended to. Bro. J. Blain was called upon to state his claim. It being found that Bro. Blain had misunderstood what he was authorized to do; it was a Moved, That Bro. Blain be granted $138, after adjusting accounts, for tracts distributed by him for the C. P. Society. Carried.

II. Moved, That we adjourn till to morrow, at 8 o'clock in the morning. Carried.

Aug. 23, 8 o'clock A. M. Met in Bro. Adams' tent. H. L. Hastings presiding. Prayer led by Bro. S. S. Brewer. There being no business to do,

I. The Secretary's minutes of the previous meeting were called for, read, and approved.

II. Minutes of the present session were read and approved.

III. Moved, To adjourn sine die. Carried.

JOS. D. BROWN, Sec. C. P. S.

The Treasurer's Report.

GEO. T. ADAMS, Treasurer, in account with the C. P. Society, Aug. 21, 1864, to Aug. 16, 1865, inclusive.

DR.

Aug. 16, 1864.
To balance from last year's account	$550 54
By cash received from Aug. 19th, 1864, to Aug. 16th, 1865, inclusive	19896 00
Total receipts		$20446 54

CR.

Aug. 16, 1865.
Ch. pd. Editor of World's Crisis, Aug. 19, 1864, to Aug. 18, 1865, inclusive	772 50
" " Clerk, Aug. 21, 1864, to Aug. 19, 1865, inclusive	780 00
" " Assistant Clerk, Aug. 21, 1864, to Aug. 12, 1865, inclusive	594 67
" " Editor of Young Pilgrim, for the year ending with Aug. 1865	192 00
" " Treasurer of C. P. S. to Aug. 23, 1864, as per vote of the Chris. Pub. Society	250 00
" " Business Agent and Treasurer, as per vote of the Society, Aug. 27, 1864, to Aug. 17, 1865	291 67
" " For composition on Crisis and Pilgrim	1997 34
" " Press work and folding papers	1252 79
" " Printing paper for Crisis	7056 61
" " Printing paper for Pilgrim	841 47
" " Rent of rooms for C. P. S., Aug. 1864 to Aug. 1865	252 00
" " Postage—including letters, books, tracts, and papers sent into the British Dominions, and Box rent	441 49
" " For type, printing materials, etc.	109 84
" " Wrapping paper, stationery, blank books, etc.	315 13
" " Fuel, gas, insurance, and stove repairs	144 49
" " For sundries, such as teaming Crisis to post office, various articles in clerks' and compositors' rooms, extra work on sub. book, expressage on books, discount on uncur. money, counterfeit currency, U.S. license, etc. etc.	335 35
" " Books, tracts, etc., bought and made	3447 92
Total expenditures		$19075 27
Balance in Treasurer's hands		$1371 27

PROPERTY ON HAND.

Printing paper for Crisis	$954.29
" " " Pilgrim	99.00
Wrapping paper	16.50
Books and tracts	1536.00
Back numbers of Pilgrim	100.00
Postage stamps	24.00
Office furniture, type, mail machine, estimated at	1500.00
Iron safe	81.00
Tract and question book plates	650.00
		$4960 79
Total cash and property on hand		$6332 06

GEO. T. ADAMS, Treasurer.

Crisis Office, Boston, Aug. 18th, 1865.

We, the subscribers, have examined the accounts of the Treasurer, and find them systematically kept, correctly cast, and properly vouched, and a balance in cash on hand of One Thousand Three Hundred and Seventy-one Dollars, and Twenty-seven cents.

HENRY V. DAVIS, } Auditing
J. G. HAMBLIN, } Committee.

Business Agent's Report.

Brn. of the Christian Publication Society:—

In most of the several departments of our business the past year, we have the pleasure to report a favorable degree of prosperity. If not so great or so remarkable in all respects as in the year before, we have yet much reason to remember with gratitude the same kind hand which has hitherto crowned us with blessings, and multiplied our means of usefulness. Our financial condition, on the whole, is better to-day than it was at the close of the last fiscal year. The total expenditures then exceeded the total receipts by some $1900, and the net capital, including outstanding accounts, was estimated at $8410. The expenditures this year are less than the receipts by some $820, and our capital, including accounts due, is increased beyond that of last year $1172. We are free from liabilities, and in good condition to commence the operations of another year under favorable auspices.

The increase in our business and resources from year to year, and the relative increase of the past year as compared with the years previous, will be seen from the following statement of receipts and expenditures—showing that the amount of business, as indicated by the annual incomes, has nearly quadrupled in the last four years:—

	RECEIPTS.	EXPENDITURES.
1862	$5,493.99.	$4,543.23.
1863	11,399.17.	8,955.00.
1864	14,567.91.	16,461.54.
1865	19,896.00.	19,075.27.

The total net capital with which we commence the new fiscal year, including accounts due, may be estimated as follows:—

Property on hand	$4960.79
Cash in the Treasury	1371.27
Crisis accounts, $4205, valued at	3000.00
Book accounts, 374, valued at	250.00
Total net capital	$9582.06

Besides the financial prosperity which has attended our general operations thus far, we have reason to be thankful also for the great enlargement of works of christian benevolence among us the past year. The brethren at large, whom the Lord has made stewards of his money, have had new calls upon their sympathy and their zeal,—for the help of the poor, for tract distribution, and for the work of missions; and they have contributed with a generous, and a liberal, and in some instances with a princely hand. The donations sent in for these noble charities, of which the Society has been made the agent and the almoner, have been more than double the gifts of benevolence the year previous. The receipts for these purposes the past year being nearly $3000, and the year before less than $1500. The kind and liberal donors have doubtless realized already, and will more fully realize by and by, that it is "more blessed to give than to receive."

BOOK AND TRACT DEPARTMENT.

In the business of this department, there has been a very considerable increase. We have printed over $1100 worth of the Society's tracts and leaflets, or 2,568,560 pages, which is about the same number that was printed last year. We have also issued 500 sheets of "Glad Voices," and a third edition of about 500 copies of the life of Hiram Munger, which last, by judicious management, were sold in eleven weeks, and they were not enough to supply the demand. The amount of books and tracts made and purchased for sale and distribution, is $3447.92; the amount on hand, $1536.00; of which the Society's tracts are $635.00, and new books and other tracts $901.00. Our cash sales exceed those of the previous year by nearly $1000.00; being $2204.00 in 1864, and this year $3185.00, to which may be added the amount of tracts given away—$1145; making a total of $4330.00 received for books and tracts.

The proposal of Bro. Hastings, accepted by the Society at its last meeting in August, 1864, "to turn over his stock of manufactured books to us for sale," excepting certain specified orders, he has, for some reason unexplained, not carried out.

In regard to the progress of preparing the new hymn and tune book, which was put into the hands of a committee a year ago, we have no definite information to give.

With the means in hand, our book and tract business may, and ought to be, more than doubled the ensuing year. The times in which we live, and the grand and solemn events impending, call upon us loudly to do all we can to advance the cause of truth and righteousness while we may, by a large and liberal circulation of the right kind of religious reading. Additions should therefore be made to the number and variety of our publications, and our denominational talent called out to produce tracts and other works for the times, on Scriptural and practical subjects, and on questions concerning our faith and hope, which shall convince and quicken both saint and sinner, and prepare them for the things which are coming on the earth. Thus shall we enlarge our circle of usefulness, and receive the approval of the Master at his coming.

THE TRACT FUND.

The interest felt by the benevolent in providing means for the free distribution of tracts, has suffered little or no abatement the past year, notwithstanding the continued calls upon their charities in other directions; the donations to the Fund amounting to $1205, while those of the previous year were but a trifle more—$1252. With this money we have printed, and scattered in all parts of the land north, and to some extent in the south, in camps, and hospitals, and missions, $1145.00 worth of these little messengers of truth and salvation, being about $75.00 worth more than was distributed in 1864. The balance of tracts from this and the previous year belonging to the Fund undistributed, is $242.77.

The great good which has been done by the contributors to this fund in diffusing light and knowledge, and awaking men to a serious consideration of eternal things, will be known only at the judgment, and then will they receive their reward.

THE WORLD'S CRISIS.

The total receipts on subscription for the Crisis are $13,350.00; to which is to be added the amount paid in for the Free Subscribers, $1110.00—making the entire receipts for the Crisis $14,460.00. The total expenditures have been $13,526.27 or $933.73 less than the receipts. The Crisis expenditures have been unusually large, owing chiefly to the high price of printing paper,—the cost of which has been more than one third of our entire expenses. The highest price paid was 27 cents a pound. The last lot was obtained for a shade less than 17 cents. The average through the year has been 22½ cents.

In accordance with previous notice, we stopped, early in the year, the papers of 374 delinquent subscribers, who were owing $4.00 and over, and had made no responses to our repeated calls. The amount due from the same was $2437.00, of which only $326.00 have been paid, leaving a balance of $2111.00 still unpaid. To this is to be added $440 more, the amount due from other delinquents who have stopped their papers without paying up arrearages;—making the entire delinquencies $2551.00—the most of which covers an indebtedness of several years standing.

The net increase of new subscribers the past year has been quite small, especially as compared with the very large increase of last year. We may put it at about 300. But as more than that number of delinquents were stricken off, our subscription list stands now about where it did at the beginning of the year, not far from 7000. We hope the coming year to see a new and a general rally of its friends and subscribers every where to enlarge its circulation and extend its usefulness.

THE POOR FUND.

The number of papers sent free to the poor at the beginning of the year was about 800, the annual expense of which, at present rates, would be some $2000.00. These expenses for the poor the office had borne freely, and almost entirely, for a number of years. But the list at that time had grown so large that the Society, as a matter of necessity, decided to cut it down, so as not to exceed 400, unless the benevolent should step in and relieve the office, by taking a part of the burden. In the beginning of Sept. last a Poor Fund was started for that purpose, and contributions called for. In answer to the calls, and to the "Voices from the Poor," brethren every where have responded, with a noble and generous sympathy and liberality,—to the amount of $1110.00. Some of these Poor have since become paying subscribers, and the number of free papers now sent is 563.

THE YOUNG PILGRIM.

The receipts for the Young Pilgrim the past year have been $1034.00; the expenditures $1739.00; the excess of expenditures over receipts $705.00. The number of subscribers, which was 7000 the first year, and 5400 the second year, is now 2900, the remainder of last year's subscribers not having yet been heard from.

Finding some months since that the receipts were falling short of expenses, with a prospect of a deficiency at the end of the year in June, of several hundred dollars, we raised the price, in accordance with the vote of the Society, to make the paper "self-sustaining." We have heard of few or no complaints at the increase of price; and it does not appear that the large falling off in its subscriptions is to any great degree owing to that cause. As the great bulk of its subscribers take it in clubs at club rates, the average price per year is not over 40 or 42 cents, which, perhaps, is not too much for a paper of so small a circulation, and having no resources but what come from subscribers.

There are, we cannot doubt, at least a few friends of the Pilgrim who are ready to say, "It must not go down," and who will do all they can for its support. And as it was started with the expressed object—and is needed for that object—to furnish our children with the right kind of food,—to instruct them in the principles of our faith and hope, and lead them, with us, to be ready for the coming and kingdom of Christ,—it will be for its friends and the Society to make such efforts and adopt such means as shall, if possible, again enlarge its circulation and usefulness, and bring the blessing of God upon it.

THE ITALIAN MISSION.

Bro. Czechowski, to whom the columns of the Crisis have been open the past year to enable him to raise funds for his Mission to Italy, is not, as many have supposed, a missionary of our people; nor is he, so far as we know, a chosen missionary of any body or bodies of Advent believers. It is simply an individual mission, calling for aid from all who may feel disposed to give it. Yet, though not in some respects with us in faith, we have wished him well in his Christian efforts in Italy. As the funds raised have passed through our hands, it is proper that we should make some report of them here. The amount of receipts for this mission (not counting the considerable amount received by himself before starting) have been $491.82; which has been sent to him, in three different remittances,—the first in October last, the second in February, and the third on the 10th instant. $110.00 of this were donations received through the Advent Herald office. These remittances have been made in drafts on Paris. But so high have been the rates of exchange that the whole $490.00 have realized to him perhaps not half that amount. To send $1.00 to a foreign mission, at a time when it takes 50 cents of it to get the other 50 cents there, seems like throwing money away, even if it is for a good object. If our people shall organize a Missionary Society, it will be for them to take this mission under their charge if they see fit.

THE FREEDMEN'S MISSION.

Calls and contributions have been made for this much needed work, and some $140.00 have been raised. But as action will soon be taken in regard to this mission, no further remarks need be made here in reference thereto, more than simply to recommend to your consideration the propriety of the proposed missionary organization.

All of which is respectfully submitted.

GEO. T. ADAMS, } Business Agent of Chris. Pub. Soc'y.

Boston, Aug. 18th, 1865.

We, the subscribers, have examined the accounts of Geo. T. Adams, Business Agent of the Christian Publication Society, as embodied in the foregoing Report, and find them correct, according to the best of our knowledge and belief.

HENRY V. DAVIS, } Auditing
J. G. HAMBLIN, } Committee.

The Officers of the C. P. S. having thus finished their reports, the nominating committee for the A. C. A. reported their nominations as follows, viz:—

For President..........S. G. MATHEWSON.
" Vice President....M. BATCHELOR.
" Secretary..........H. F. CARPENTER.
" Treasurer..........GEO. T. ADAMS.

For Directors.—J. Couch, C. F. Hudson, H. V. Davis, J. G. Hamblin, A. W. Sibley, Wm. A. Fenn, C. B. Turner, C. S. Sherman, Wm. H. Mitchell.

For Editor..........MILES GRANT.

This report being accepted, pending its adoption the management of the Crisis for the past year was somewhat lengthily discussed by Brn. Hastings, Himes, Wellcome, C. F. Hudson and others, and various suggestions were made for the improvement of the editorial department without effecting any decision, when the meeting adjourned until 2 P. M.

2 o'clock P. M. Prayer was offered by Bro. I. C. Wellcome. Discussion was resumed upon the report of the nominating committee of the A. C. A., after which their report was adopted. The Chair appointed Brn. T. M. Preble, C. Sanford, and E. G. Higgins a committee on ballots for the A. C. A. Ballots were received at the call of the roll. While ballots for officers of A. C. A. were being counted, the nominating committee for C. P. S. reported their nominations as follows, viz:

For President..........D. T. TAYLOR.
" Secretary..........J. D. BROWN.
" Treasurer..........GEO. T. ADAMS.

For Editorial Committee.—S. G. Mathewson, J. Couch, Wm. H. Mitchell.

For Publishing Committee.—H. F. Carpenter, H. V. Davis, S. S. Brewer, J. G. Hamblin, D. Mathewson.

Bro. J. D. Brown refusing to accept his nomination as Secretary of the C. P. S., Bro. W. B. Herron was nominated in his stead.

Brn. A. H. Brown, A. S. Meacham, and A. W. Sibley, were appointed by the Chair a committee on ballots for C. P. S. Ballots were received at the call of the roll.

The committee on ballots for the A. C. A. reported the following officers elected:—

S. G. MATHEWSON..........President.
M. BATCHELOR..........Vice President
H. F. CARPENTER..........Secretary.
GEO. T. ADAMS..........Treasurer.

Directors.—J. Couch, C. F. Hudson, H. V. Davis, J. G. Hamblin, A. W. Sibley, Wm. A. Fenn, C. B. Turner, C. S. Sherman, Wm. H. Mitchell.

MILES GRANT..........Editor.

Voted, That the committee who are out be allowed to vote when they come in.

Voted, That the Chair appoint a committee of three to nominate a campmeeting committee of five to be elected at the stand by the campmeeting. The Chair appointed as said committee J. V. Himes, D. Mathewson, and Solomon Hale.

Moved, That the word Advent be inserted in Art. II., sect. 1, of the Constitution of the A. C. A. before the phrase "Christian Publication Society." Carried.

Moved, That the Treasurer of the C. P. S. be instructed to have the legal document of that Society so altered as to give it the name of the Advent Christian Publication Society. Carried.

The Shinecock Indians having forwarded to this Association a sum of money as a donation for its benefit, it was Voted, To pass the money over to the A. C. P. S. for their disposal.

Moved, That we instruct the C. P. S. to make a change of editors for the Young Pilgrim by appointing Wm. B. Herron its editor. Carried.

The committee on ballots for C. P. S. reported the following elections, viz:

D. T. TAYLOR..........President.
WM. B. HERRON..........Secretary.
GEO. T. ADAMS..........Treasurer.

Editorial Committee—S. G. Mathewson, Wm. H. Mitchell, J. Couch.

Publishing Committee.—H. F. Carpenter, H. V. Davis, S. S. Brewer, J. G. Hamblin, D. Mathewson.

The Association now adjourned sine die at 5 o'clock P. M.

H. F. CARPENTER, Clerk.

A TENDER CONSCIENCE.—A tender conscience is like the apple of a man's eye—the least dust that gathers into it affects it. There is no surer and better way to know whether our consciences are dead and stupid, than to observe what impression small sins (as they are improperly named) make upon them; if we are not very careful to avoid all appearance of evil, and to shun whatever looks like sin—if we are not so much troubled at the vanity of our thoughts and words, at the rising up of sinful motions and desires in us, as we have been formerly, we may then conclude that our hearts are hardened and our consciences are stupefying; for a tender conscience will no more allow of (what are called) small sins, than of great sins.—Bishop Hopkins.

☞ The pleasure of doing good is one that never wears out.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Sept. 12, 1865.

☞ TAKE NOTICE.

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable in advance, at the rate of $2.50 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $3.00 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

THE CLOSE OF THE VOLUME.

This number closes the present volume. Now is the time to pay for the next year. It is much better for all concerned, when it can be done, to pay in advance; those who do so will take the most comfort, we think, in reading their paper, besides saving the half dollar which would be due if the subscription was not paid at the end of the year. We trust that none of our old friends will close their doors against our weekly visits; but, on the contrary, we hope to receive a more hearty welcome than ever. During the past six months, we have sometimes been obliged to send out some things that were not so sweet and healthful as we could have desired, but we trust all will be well in time to come. We purpose to spare no pains to make our paper the best in the world, if possible. We think there has never been a time in the past when we needed the benefits of christian sympathy more than now. The world is rapidly growing wicked, infidelity abounds on every side, and as the result, the love of many is growing cold. Let us not sleep as do others. In order to keep awake, we need all the helps we can get. We hope to be able to make the Crisis better than ever,—just such a paper as will be needed in every family till Jesus comes. Pray for us, that we may succeed in feeding the flock of God.

It is very evident that our Savior will soon return to this planet, and set up his kingdom. It will be our purpose to give the evidence of his coming, as fast as light appears on the subject. Events indicate a rapid change in the moral and political condition of the world. We may expect to see revolutions advance like a tornado. Statesmen begin to see and feel that a heavier storm is gathering than any through which the world has ever passed. They dread its commencement, but see no way to escape. The world seems to be in a condition like that of France just before the beginning of the French revolution. Men have become bold and very daring in dark deeds. Justice has fallen in the streets, and no one ventures to offer assistance; while iniquity holds a prominent position, and is sustained in luxurious triumph. This is emphatically an age of infidelity and crime. In view of all these things, we think we never needed a paper to send to the scattered flock of God, more then we do now. Then let us all do what we can to arouse the world and the church to get ready for the advent of the Son of man.

Could our friends read the many encouraging letters received from those who have been led to see the light by reading the Crisis, we think more earnest efforts would be made to increase its circulation. Who will take hold of the work? Will not every preacher act as an agent to obtain new subscribers? Come, let us take hold with renewed zeal, and make a new effort to do good, and get people prepared for eternal life.

ALTON BAY CAMPMEETING.

It was our privilege to enjoy a portion of the excellent campmeeting at Alton Bay, from Aug. 29th to Sept. 3d. The location is a pleasant and romantic one, on the bank of the Winnepiseogee R. R. lake, at the terminus of the Dover and Winnepiseogee R. R., and the landing of the steamers on the lake. The meeting began on the Lord's day, Aug. 27th, and continued eight days. The ground was well fitted up, and quite a number of good sized houses have been erected for the accommodation of those who attend the meeting. Several of them are a story and a half high, the upper story being occupied as a sleeping room for the women and the lower by the men. They are the largest and most convenient we have ever seen. We should think full half of the encampment consisted of houses.

We found the same good spirit prevailing at Alton as at Wilbraham. It appears evident that there is an increase of brotherly love and christian union among those who are looking for the coming of the Son of man. This is a very encouraging feature. It looks like a genuine and permanent preparation for the coming of Christ. We should all remember that if we have "hatred" or "variance," we "shall not inherit the kingdom of God." All hardness and unkind feelings must be overcome before we shall be ready to meet the Son of man. We must have enough of the Spirit of Christ to love our enemies, and pray for them who despitefully use us, if we expect to be owned by Jesus when he comes. We fear many have been in great danger on this point; and we feel like praising the Lord for the happy change that is now taking place. These are times of great peril; but if we obey the Lord, he will take us safely through to the everlasting kingdom. Half-hearted service in the vineyard of the Lord is not sufficient for these days. There is no safety short of entire consecration. Many begin to feel this most sensibly. It looks like getting ready "for the marriage of the Lamb." Let us all awake to the importance of doing all to the glory of God, if we would be ready to welcome Jesus.

The prayer meetings were well attended and excellent. These are ever an index of the devotional feeling of the people. When they are neglected, it indicates a low state of christianity, but this was not the case at Alton. The prospect for a new interest in the cause of the Lord is good for New England. It is very evident that the children of the Lord are resolved to take advanced ground and be more engaged in the service of Christ than they have been in the past.

During the meeting we had several sermons well calculated to awaken the church to greater activity and faithfulness in the christian warfare. Tuesday evening, which was the first meeting we enjoyed, a stirring discourse was preached by Bro. S. Emery, of Portland. Wednesday, Brn. Wm. H. Mitchell, H. L. Hastings, and the writer preached. A good interest was manifested. Thursday, preaching by Wm. C. Thurman, H. Munger, and J. W. White; Friday, by Brn. I Damman, A Decker,, and the writer; Saturday, by Brn. H. L. Hastings, J. Couch, J. A. Libbey. Lord's day, by Bro. Couch, and the writer.

Saturday afternoon, Bro. Jared Whitman, Mechanic's Falls, Me., was ordained for the work of the ministry. We are glad to see some who are willing to consecrate themselves to the service of the Lord, and help sound the alarm to a guilty world. Let such be well sustained by the prayers and sympathies of the churches where they labor, and let them not be embarassed for a want of the necessary comforts of life. It is a heavy cross to bear, when one starts out in these days to proclaim "the gospel of the kingdom," but if hands are tied by the strings of poverty, so that he has to run in debt, in order to keep his family comfortable, then he has a double cross. In such cases there is a fault among those who have an abundance of this world's goods, and will let a poor preacher go home from his labors to a hungry family, with empty bags and pockets. Such stewards must expect lean hearts, and a gloomy pathway while on pilgrimage; and have but little hope of hearing Jesus say, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant; thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will make thee ruler over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord." Remember, "it is written in the law of Moses, thou shalt not muzzle the mouth of the ox that treadeth out the corn. Doth God take care for oxen? or saith he it altogether for our sakes? For our sakes, no doubt this is written: that he that plougheth should plough in hope; and that he that thresheth in hope should be partaker of his hope. If we have sown unto you spiritual things, is it a great thing if we shall reap your carnal things? If others be partakers of this power over you, are not we rather? Nevertheless we have not used this power; but suffer all things, lest we should hinder the gospel of Christ. Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? Even so hath the Lord ordained that they which preach the gospel should live of the gospel."

On this point we would say in conclusion, see that those who labor among you, in preaching the word, are not fettered and crushed because of the covetousness of those upon whom they bestow their faithful service. Make their hearts and families glad with a portion of your home comforts. Do not send them away empty with a mere "God bless you,—come again soon as you can." Help them "after a godly sort," and "thou shalt do well," saith the apostle. He who "withholdeth more than is meet," will find at last that "it tendeth to poverty" of soul, if not of purse. "The liberal soul shall be made fat; and he that watereth shall be watered also himself." Do not give "grudgingly or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver." "He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he which soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." Let us be among the bountiful reapers.

On the Lord's day, Sept. 3d, a great crowd assembled upon the encampment. Some eighteen hundred came in on the cars from Dover and intermediate stations, besides three steamboat loads over lake Winnepiseogee. The number present during the day was estimated at eight or ten thousand. Good order prevailed. Bro. Hastings addressed a portion of the crowd, on the banks of the lake.

In the morning, at 8½ o'clock, we met for a love-feast, and had an excellent one. In one hour and twenty-three minutes, two hundred and fifty-five spoke of their love for Jesus. It was truly good to be there. It was a heavenly place to the friends of Jesus. It was very evident that the campmeeting had been a great blessing to a large number present. In the evening we had a heavenly communion season, when between three and four hundred gathered around the table of the Lord to commemorate the dying love of our Savior. Some wept, others shouted aloud the praises of our Redeemer.

A goodly number were reclaimed from a backslidden state; several were converted, and twenty-one baptized. We think no one who watched the progress of the meeting would say that such gatherings are unprofitable. It was hard parting, but we hope to meet again soon, where partings never come, and all hearts are glad. That glorious day is rapidly approaching. If we would be ready we must keep "unspotted from the world."

OBITUARY POETRY.

We sometimes receive a long string of poetry on the death of some dear child, relative, or friend, with a request to publish it in the Crisis. If the paper was only taken by those who were acquainted with the friends of the deceased, then we should think all our readers would be interested in any thing connected with the loved one now sleeping in the grave; but as it is, only a very few, frequently not a dozen, of our readers are acquainted with the one about whom the obituary lines are written; hence they are not read with any interest. For this reason, we think persons should not send long obituary notices, or poetic articles about the dead, unless they were widely known among our readers.

We know those who mourn for the dead are especially interested in treasuring up every word uttered by them while living, and all the little incidents in their life; and we should love to unite with them in their sorrows and help bear them; but we trust every one can see that it would not be right to presume that all would be edified by reading long obituaries of strangers.

We trust our readers will recollect these suggestions, and try to comply with them.

TRACTS.

Now is a favored time to scatter tracts,—favored, because people are anxious to read them. Thousands of witnesses are ready to testify to the usefulness of these little quiet messengers. A few dollars laid out in tracts may arouse a whole neighborhood. Money thus laid out, we think will accomplish more good than in any other benevolent enterprise. A wide door is now open to do good in this way. Let us push the work with an earnestness corresponding with its importance. Let us work for the Lord with more zeal than ever before. Satan is spreading poisoned literature every where; shall we sleep on till it is too late to do any thing? The means are within our power; let us use them. The harvest is all ripe; let the sheaves be gathered before they are ruined by neglect. Please consider this matter, and let every reader send something to help on this worthy cause. Are there not some who will sanctify ten, fifty, and a hundred dollars, or more, to this noble work? Do not hesitate. It is for the good of others that we plead.

THE FREEDMEN.

We are glad to see a warm-hearted sympathy aroused in behalf of the poor freedmen at the South. This is a movement in the right direction. We believe it honors the cause of Christ. They have not had an opportunity to hear the glad tidings about the coming kingdom till since their chains of bondage were broken. Let us haste to their aid. Some noble hearts have already concluded to devote their energies to this work. Let us sustain them, and see that they lack no means necessary for this great field, now opened for the spread of truth among a most needy class. We are rejoiced to see the liberality of our brethren and sisters in this direction. Money thus spent will afford a heavy interest. Who else will lend to the Lord? Do not hesitate for a moment. Immediate action is necessary, lest Satan should plant his forces in advance.

"THE ORIGINAL REPORT."

In the report of the Secretary of the C. P. S., published on the first page of this paper, the following language occurs:—"Bro. Adams asked that the Secretary record in the minutes that his reasons for opposing the amendment were that he thought the original report was the true statement, and the amendment for the worse."

The original report, a copy of which was sent to this office nearly if not quite a year since, and which has served to refresh the memory of the Business Agent in regard to the duties of his office, reads as follows:—"Bro. Hastings made proposal to turn over his stock of manufactured books to us for sale, excepting orders for 50s and 100s, and some private orders that might come to him during the transition, he proposing to give us 10 per cent. on all sales made in the office." "Moved, That we accept Bro. Hastings' proposal. Carried."

For the World's Crisis.

THE GREAT ATONEMENT.

We understand that Christ died for our sins, and not only for ours, but for the sins of the whole world; then, according to the gospel, there is a door of mercy open for the whole human family. But are there not thousands, and even millions, who profess the religion of Christ, and pray long and loud, and are permanent members of churches, and often say they love God, who will never receive the atonement in such a manner as to secure to themselves eternal life in the kingdom of the dear Redeemer? And for this reason: they never will receive Christ in his mission into this world as it is held forth in the word of God; which was "to die, that we might live"; not to go through endless misery, that we might have endless happiness. No, indeed; but he shed his precious blood, entered the grave, passed through death, and rose from the dark abodes of the tomb, and effected a resurrection for his saints, and says he "will raise them up at the last day." But he does not say he will save them from endless misery; but he does say he "will save his people from their sins," and give them the victory over death and the grave.

But how can the atonement reach those who are not willing to enter "by the door into the sheepfold," but choose to climb over, or go round through Paganism, or Spiritualism, or through the doctrine of the commandments of men, and call death the door into heaven, when the Bible teaches no such doctrine; and in a stubborn or willful manner declare that man has an immortal soul, which goes to heaven, or happiness, at death; when, in fact, the Bible positively declares that no one is immortal but God, and that no one will get their reward till Christ comes in the great judgment day?

Now will the Lord be pleased with those professors of religion who can read the Bible, and still persist in those dreadful errors which have so polluted, deranged, and twisted the Bible and its doctrines, as to lay the foundations for Spiritualism, Mormonism, Mohammedanism and Universalism, and in many instances given God and the Bible the lie?

Reader, is it not your duty, if you see the truth, to do all you can to send books to your friends, which contain proper instructions on the real mission of Christ upon earth, which was to save us from the the second death, and give us eternal life in the kingdom? Is it not duty to go to your friends who have been brought up in error, and pray with and for them, and in a kind and tender manner converse with them, and try to show them the truth, and turn them from the doctrines and commandments of men?

Yours waiting for the kingdom,

Vernon, Vt. B. PERHAM.

☞ He who is puffed up with the first gale of prosperity, will bend beneath the first blast of adversity.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of Tracts.

Previous pledges and donations	$1239.28
Geo. T. Adams	25.00
Miles Grant	25.00
William B. Herron	5.00
J. F. Busch	5.00
A young brother	5.00
J. J. Curtis	5.00
A friend	1.00
A sister	3.00
A friend	3.00
Mrs. Wm. Welch	1.00
E. P. Cummings	1.00
H. B. S.	.25
Mrs. J. D. Ellis	.75
H. G. J.	.25
Miss Sanderson	.10
J. W.	.50
O. W. G.	.25
A young brother, of Newark, N. J.	10.00
Shinnecock Indians, Long Island	4.04

OUR TRACT WORK.

At a meeting of the Advent Christian Publication Society, held in Bro. Adams' tent, on Wilbraham Campground, August 25th, 1865, the importance of having a greater number and variety of tracts for general circulation was brought up for consideration, in accordance with the suggestion of the Business Agent, in his Annual Report read before the Society; and, on motion, it was Voted, That we urge our brethren, through the Crisis, to write tracts (of four, and not exceeding twenty-four pages) upon the subjects of the Lord's Speedy Coming, The Holy Spirit, Prayer, Holiness, Exhortations to the Impenitent, etc., etc., and forward the same to the Society for publication;—the brethren who devote their time and talents to the writing of such tracts being assured of due compensation from the Society, if the tracts are accepted.

And, in view of the exigencies of the times, which demand that we keep the truth as embodied in our tracts in active and extensive circulation, it was also—

Voted, That we endeavor to raise the present Tract Fund to the amount of $3000.

A good beginning to the new effort is already made. Who else will add their mite to help on the good cause?

Come, brethren, awake! A great work and warfare is before us, demanding the dilligent and constant use of every talent and every Christian weapon,—head, heart and hand; prayer, purse and pen. Let us, this year, make a more vigorous and determined assault upon the bulwarks of Error and Sin, and take their strongholds by storm, in the name of the Lord of hosts.

WM. B. HERRON, Secretary
Adv. Chr. Pub. Society.

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free, 560. Ann'l Expense. $1400,00.

George T. Adams	$10.00
William B. Herron	5.00
J. S. Warren	5.00
J. F. Busch	5.00
Thos. C. Wilson	2.50
A friend	1.00
C. H. Smith	.50
Wm. Rowarth	.50
I. C. Walker	1.00
W. Hollman	.50

OUR FREE LIST.

We have now on our Free List, as will be seen from the Business Agent's Report this week, over 560 subscribers to whom the paper is sent without charge, at an annual expense of some $1400. Shall we cut them off?—We have not the heart to do it. They are the Lord's poor, rich in faith, and with us heirs of the kingdom. They are mostly scattered and alone, like sheep upon the mountains without a shepherd; and their only preacher is the Crisis. They must have the gospel preached to them. Shall this welcome "Messenger" of the near approach and reign of the Coming One still cheer their lonely homes as heretofore, at our expense, or will you, brethren, as in the past year, with generous sympathy for these poorer members of the brotherhood, nobly share with us the blissful burden?

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

Previous pledges and donations.	$1162.49
M. C. Perkins (through M. Grant)	.50
S. Ham	.50
C. A. Tilton	1.00
C. C. Dow	5.00
S. R. C., Princeton, Ind	.50
J. Gresty, Hammonton, N. J.	.30
W. Mosher, Gloversville, N. Y	2.00
Lois Wells, Sutton, N. H	1.00
Randolph E. Ladd, Springfield, Mass	25.00
From a sister, who gives one-tenth of all her income to the Lord,	15.00
A reader of the Crisis, Danbury, Ct.	3.00

PLEDGES PAID.—Thos. F. Kelly.

"ONE-TENTH TO THE LORD."

A brother in Springfield, Mass., sending a subscription of $25.00, for the Freedmen's Mission, encloses also $15.00 "from a sister, who gives ONE-TENTH of all her income to the Lord."

This plan of definite and systematic giving, upon which the sister acts, is a good one; and it would be of great benefit to the cause of Christ if the same rule were adopted and acted upon by every member of the church of Christ. We live, it is true, under a dispensation, where the amount of our gifts to the Lord, for pious and benevolent purposes, is made in some sense voluntary, and not, as in the older dispensation, definitely regulated by divine law; yet, surely, if the present dispensation is an improvement upon the old, the amount of contributions which Christians give to these objects, ought to exceed those required of ancient Israel, just in proportion as this dispensation is a better one, and the objects to be accomplished by it greater.

A world is to be enlightened, and Christ's glad evangel of salvation to every repentant sinner, in a soon coming kingdom of everlasting righteousness and peace and joy, is to be carried to all nations, and preached to every people, before this age of probation closes.

This good work requires money. That money the Master has put into the hands of his people; and, though he has not, as under a former dispensation, stipulated what exact proportion of our substance we shall consecrate to his cause, he expects of every man, as the Lord has prospered him, to determine that in his own mind, in the light of coming judgment, and make a law for himself, by which, according to his means and ability, he shall regulate the amount and frequency of his givings.

It is to be feared that the great mass of Christians, even among those who are looking for the coming of the Lord, do not realize their duty in this direction; and, consequently, do not give what they ought to give, and what they easily could give, if they would. I know, for one, that I have not; and, though I have little to give, much less perhaps than many others, I mean, with God's help, to learn what my duty is, and do it. If there are any others who shall feel and do likewise, the Lord will doubtless bless them abundantly here, according to his gracious promise,—"GIVE, and it shall be given unto YOU; good measure, pressed down, and shaken together, and running over,"—and, in the coming day of awards, with a crown of glory, and the sweet assurance of having added some souls to that countless multitude of redeemed and shining immortals who shall sing praises to the name of our Great God for ever and ever.

W. B. H.

THE NEW HYMN BOOK.

After waiting in patience two years or more, the churches will now rejoice in the prospect of a New Hymn Book soon, which, it is hoped, will meet their wants better than those now in use.

What has been done in reference thereto, will be seen in the following abstract from the Secretary's minutes of a meeting of the A. C. P. Society, held on Wilbraham Campground, August 25th, 1865:—

"Bro. Hastings having been appointed, at the last meeting of the Society in August, 1864, a Committee to prepare a Hymn and Tune Book for the Society, was called upon to state what progress had been made in the work, what expenses had been incurred, if any, and whether there was any matter to deliver into the hands of the Society.

"In reply, Bro. Hastings stated that, although a number of hymns had been selected, from which he had issued a small book of his own, no further progress had been made. He had no charges to make for services rendered, and no matter to deliver over; and he was understood as not wishing to proceed further in the work of preparing a book for the Society.

"Such being the status of the case, the Board were prepared to listen, which they did, to a proposition coming, through Bro. Himes, from the Western Advent Christian Publishing Association,—to get up, in connection with them, a new book based on the old one, with such alterations and additions as might be deemed necessary. This proposition of the Western Association, after the retirement of Bro. Himes, elicited much discussion, which, while doing justice to the merits of the Lyre, on the one hand, resulted, on the other, in the passage of the following resolutions:—

"Whereas, the hymns of the Lyre have failed to meet the demands of our people; and, whereas, many of them are objectionable in sentiment; and, whereas, the type with which they are printed is far too small; and, whereas, there are many more tunes than are needful in such a book; Therefore—

"Resolved, That, in the opinion of this Society, it is not advisable to attempt to create a new book out of the old one. Also—

"Resolved, That, in view of the urgent calls from the Advent Body, for a Hymn Book which shall meet their wants, we proceed, after a delay of over two years, to prepare and publish such a book, as soon as it can be accomplished.

"Voted, That we engage Bro. S. S. Brewer to prepare a Hymn Book with from six to seven hundred hymns, without delay;—his work to be transmitted to the Editorial Committee, for their approval, emendation or rejection."

Since the above was penned from the minutes, we have seen Bro. Brewer, and he wishes us to say that the work, for which he had been for some time in preparation, is now in progress, and will be ready for the revision of the Committee in a few weeks.

In the mean time, let all who have choice and appropriate hymns and tunes which they would like to have embodied in the work, send them on at once to ELD. S. S. BREWER, Ashburnham Depot, Mass., or to the World's Crisis office.

WM. B. HERRON, Secretary
Adv. Chr. Pub. Society.

The American Advent Mission Society.

☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS relating to the general business of the Society, should be addressed to the Secretary, WM. B. HERRON, Crisis Office, Boston, Mass.

☞ ALL DONATIONS and subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Crisis Office, Boston, Mass. Or, they may be enclosed with letters to the Editor of the World's Crisis, Boston, Mass., or to the Editor of the Voice of the West, Buchanan, Mich.

For the World's Crisis.

TO THE CHURCH SCATTERED ABROAD.

DEARLY BELOVED:—Having been appointed by the C. P. S. at the late annual meeting to prepare a Hymn Book for the church, I have commenced and made some progress in this work. I humbly trust, by the blessing of God, to be able early in October to present it as properly classified to them for publication.

I would suggest to the A. C. P. S. that they meet, and conclude on the matter definitely, and have the work done.

I am requested also to state that there is a very general request that it be both a Hymn and Tune Book. What thou doest do quickly.

Thy Bro., S. S. BREWER.

For the World's Crisis.

THE HARVEST RIPE.

"Put ye in the sickle; for the harvest is ripe: come, get you down; for the press is full, the fats overflow; for their WICKEDNESS IS GREAT."—Joel 3: 13.

Ever since the violation of God's prohibition in Eden, sin has been in the world, and gradually on the increase. There has been also instances in which iniquity respecting nations and localities has reached a culminating aspect in the mind of God, bringing in return wrath and ruin. The word of God points most definitely to a time when it will universally affect the earth. Is it not written, "The field is the world"? and, "Let the tares and the wheat both grow together until the harvest"? "THE HARVEST IS THE END OF THE WORLD."

In the closing up of this dispensation of dispensations, there is every reason to believe there will be a manifest development of character:—"And because INIQUITY SHALL ABOUND, the love of many shall wax cold." This is most assuredly the condition of the moral and religious elements that compose society in these days. The old fathers and mothers, whose hearts were in former days as altars glowing with sacred fire, from which, like the "golden vials full of odors," ascended holy incense, have nearly all been gathered, and the few that remain will soon be gathered with their fathers. The places of those who sleep are filled in the churches by modern christianized officials, who hold and wield the decided influence in the different religious establishments, so that the voice and protests of the few aged ones, if raised against the modern innovations, fall impotent upon the ears and hearts of this very refined Diotrephesian, time-serving generation. We mourn the loss of the godly, and often recur to the words of David (Ps. 12), "Help, Lord; for the godly man ceaseth; for the faithful fail from among the children of men. They speak vanity every one with his neighbor: with flattering lips, and with a double heart, do they speak."

The faithful minister, often crushed, weeping and burthened in heart, groans in deep agony of soul, as he beholds his humble efforts to arouse the church paralyzed by a mere profession of religion without the sealing witness of the Spirit of God upon their hearts. Reader, did you ever conceive the import of Rom. 8: 9—"NOW IF ANY MAN HAVE NOT THE SPIRIT OF CHRIST, HE IS NONE OF HIS"? Please see Eph. 1: 13; also 2 Cor. 1: 22,—"Who hath also sealed us, and given the earnest of the Spirit in our hearts." See also Rom. 8: 16,—"The Spirit itself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are the children of God."

I draw this conclusion: if any man have not this sealing of the Holy Spirit, he is not a legitimate son of God. Multitudes are theorizing, hair-splitting, hobby riding, scattering firebrands, arrows and death, in their Jehu zeal, who seldom pause and, in secret, with deep solemnity before Him who judgeth righteously, consider the influence they are exerting upon the hearts of the children of men, blindly hurrying to ruin, without the Spirit of Christ. This is one of the perils of the last days.

But the immorality of the surroundings, in this and the nations universally, is beyond language to describe. Take up the papers, whose eyes survey communities at large, and what horrid recitals! Crimes of the deepest grade. Villainy of all tints, shade and character, from the titled dignities of Honorable, Reverend, Esquire, Judge, down to Mr., Mrs., Miss, and precocious juveniles from eight years upward, figure upon the calendar of iniquity and crime. It is but a few days since we took up a paper. First comes a murder: a son kills his mother and sister, splits their heads open, and cuts his mother's throat. Next, a father kills his wife and son. A husband, whose bed had been dishonored, kills his wife, then blows out his own brains. Other crimes, such as arson, theft, gambling, drunkenness, lewdness, rowdyism, running riot over law, and defying constituted authorities; swearing, lying, cheating, adultery, rape, and every species of crime committed, and with such utter recklessness that one gazes upon the moral turpitude with almost bewildering astonishment. In the language of the prophet, "Their wickedness is great."

Judging from the downward progression of society for the last few years, and the more rapid accumulation of all that is foul, black and detestable in the sight of virtue and a holy and righteous God, we may conclude that the fiat will soon go forth—"PUT YE IN THE SICKLE, FOR THE HARVEST IS RIPE."

There will also be a manifest development of "the wheat." This I conclude is from the language of Mal. 3: 16–18, "Then they that feared the Lord spake often one to another; and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name. And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them, as a man spareth his own son that serveth him. Then shall ye return, and discern between the righteous and the wicked; between him that serveth God, and him that serveth him not." This language was intended to have a chronological application, and has its bearing upon those looking for the revelation of "the Lord in flaming fire, taking vengeance on them that know not God, and obey not the gospel"! Notice the conjunctive language of the prophet. Mal. 4: 1,—"For, behold, the day cometh that shall burn as an oven; and all the proud, yea, and all that do wickedly, shall be stubble; and the day that cometh shall burn them up, saith the Lord of hosts, that it shall leave them neither root nor branch." "For, BEHOLD, the day cometh." When they see the unerring precursors of the day of God's wrath, such as is given in his word, THEY will speak OFTEN to each other. Their testimony will be, "Behold!" Look! See! the day cometh. Such faith, such testimony, will manifest character. Other passages might be added, but let the above suffice.

"The day cometh." What day? The day "that shall burn as an oven." Is that day limited in the teachings of Him by whom God has spoken to us in these last days? Luke 17: 29,—"But the SAME DAY that Lot went out of Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven and destroyed them all. EVEN THUS SHALL IT BE IN THE DAY when the SON OF MAN IS REVEALED." The apostle Paul testifieth that God will judge "THE QUICK AND THE DEAD AT HIS APPEARING AND HIS KINGDOM." Then the hour hath come when all that are "in the graves shall hear his voice and come forth; they that have done good unto the resurrection of life, and they that have done evil unto the resurrection of damnation." THEN will have been fulfilled what is written in Matthew 25: 31–46, "The righteous inherit the kingdom prepared for them from the foundation of the world." Then all the wicked have gone away into everlasting punishment, and all the righteous into life eternal. Then the tares have been cast into the furnace of fire. Then Christ's angels have gathered out of his kingdom all things that offend, and them which do iniquity. Then there is nothing left to offend, and NONE TO DO INIQUITY; and ALL THE DEAD have BEEN JUDGED. Then shall the righteous shine forth in the kingdom of their Father. Once more hear the Lord speak. Matt. 13: 47–51,—"Again, the kingdom of heaven is like unto a net that was cast into the sea, and gathered of every kind: which, when it was full, they drew to shore, and sat down, and gathered the good into vessels, but cast the bad away. So shall it be at the end of the world: the angels shall come forth, and sever the wicked from among the just, and shall cast them into the furnace of fire: there shall be wailing and gnashing of teeth. Jesus saith unto them, Have ye understood all these things? They say unto him, Yea, Lord."

Thus shall it be at THE HARVEST OF THIS WORLD. The net will be drawn to shore, gathering ALL KINDS: the good gathered into vessels, the bad cast away. Only two classes,—"good and bad," "tares and wheat," "sheep and goats,"—have been divided, and the King hath in the good pleasure of his Father given the kingdom unto those on his right hand. Then, in the goodness of God, is fulfilled Dan. 7: 18,—"The saints of the Most High shall take the kingdom, and possess the kingdom," "FOR EVER, EVEN FOR EVER AND EVER." Amen.

Dear reader, soon the harvest will be past, and the summer ended. Have you ever made the above subject a matter of prayerful consideration? If not, be entreated by your friend, and more especially by the love of Jesus, and the coming glory of the eternal age, to seek a fitness through the blood of the Lamb of God, to enjoy all that God hath in reversion for them that love him, and escape those things that are hastening upon the earth. Soon we shall meet with the assembled universe at the bar of God. Let us all prepare to meet him in peace. Amen. S. S. BREWER.

Correspondence.

From Sr. A. E. Smith.

Dear Sisters, who were not at the Wilbraham campmeeting:—We had good weather, good board, good friends, good preaching, good social meetings, and, in fact, a good time in every way. We arrived on the ground at one o'clock on Tuesday. Put up at Bro. Hastings' "Pilgrim and Stranger's" tent. We found the Lord was there before us, and had sanctified the spot for his own glory. Our social meetings commenced that evening in the tent. Brn. Himes and Curry, with other brethren and sisters, took part in the meeting. Two souls were converted. Praise the Lord for a good beginning. There were many converted at this campmeeting—how many I cannot tell, for I always mind my own business, and therefore only know what was done in our own tent, where forty-five were converted; and I expect each tent did its duty. I saw many converted at the stand, but as you will learn the facts from the proper source, I will leave that part, and return.

On Thursday, Bro. H. gave his large tent to the Sisters to hold their Association, at one o'clock; and as there were many who wanted to understand better the object of this Association, I tried to explain to them that it was formed expressly to assist women who were laboring in the vineyard of the Lord, and, in case those sisters were taken sick in their fields of labor, to help them home to their families and friends. In this explanation I related some of our experience as a missionary; of the trials and persecutions that we received continually, and how much this was needed. I related a very few cases out of the thousands that might have been mentioned, in relation to the very great suffering of the poor and needy whom we visit; and when I had proceeded thus far, the good Lord took the meeting into his own hands and presided over it himself, and moved the hearts of the people to put their hands in their pockets, and they took up a collection for my Mission in New York city of $61.50. Praise the Lord.

O, who is like Jesus? He can work, and none can hinder. Bless his name. I love him more to-day than I ever did. To think, dear sisters, how he has heard my prayers. Last winter, when I visited these poor creatures, I had nothing to give them, only what I took out of my own wages, which are small, and I could do but little. I have lain awake many nights, because I knew the suffering condition of those whom I had visited through the day. But now I have this amount put into my hands, I can visit the sick and give many things to nourish and strengthen those poor friendless ones. O Lord, I will praise thee, and honor and glorify thy holy name that thou hast heard and answered my prayer in their behalf. He will hear and he will answer.

On Friday we met again. Did something for our Association, but cannot tell exactly what till the Secretary, Sr. Boide, gets the names in order; as the money was given for so many different objects, it will take our sister a little time to arrange this matter with the many other duties she has to perform. My heart was so encouraged when I came home, I went immediately down town and found another terrible black spot of filth and degradation; and have obtained a room for meeting, at $5.50 per month, in the rear of No. 73 Broome St., near the East River. Will you pray that the Lord will be with me in starting the new meeting, that some may be converted and saved when Jesus comes.

Up this court is a stable for horses, and carpenter's shop, which seems to be a place where young girls and boys of fourteen to eighteen meet at night for their wicked deeds that cannot be done in daylight. And there are seven colored families in the same court who never go to church, but live like heathen. My meeting is right in the centre, next door to the stable. It is a very dark alley; and sisters, will you pray that the Lord will preserve my life among this crowd till my work is done. If I can only be the means in the Lord's hands of saving some of the young girls that congregate there, and get them to lead a virtuous life, I shall be satisfied. Sisters, pray for me. I expect bricks and stones to be thrown at me, for I have been in just such places before. I expect, as soon as the Lord begins to work, there will be war with the wicked; but I have no fears; the Lord has kept me twenty-three years in the field of battle, and he is able to keep to the end. Bless his holy name.

We had a business meeting on Saturday morning, of which you will hear through the Secretary in due time. I would just say that all monies, or books, or clothing, intended for this Mission, must be sent to my address, and to no other. All for the W. F. M. Association, to S. J. Boide, to the same No., as she is the Secretary and Treasurer of the same. Your Sister in Christ, A. E. SMITH.

No. 128 East 27th St., N. Y.

Bro. M. L. Durand writes:—"Two happy converts were buried in baptism yesterday in Wallingford. One was the fruit of the camp meeting. Another, an old grey-headed man who came out happy in God the morning the camp broke up (after their tent was taken down they staid to pray for him), will go forward in his own town as soon as possible. The seed is taking root."

☞ The Great Eastern has taken up her old moorings at Sheerness, on the Thames. Capt. Anderson says that with proper tackle they can hook up the cable. "This cannot be done," says an engineer, "unless you can either hook it near the end, or manage to cut off one side of the bight. Otherwise only the slack can be hauled up. The resistance of drawing the cable in the mud will be too great for the tackle or for itself."

☞ Government military authorities all over the country have been specially instructed to use every means at their command to prevent the effects of the cholera, should that pestilence visit our shores. Apprehensions of the approach of cholera are increasing in England. The epidemic had reached Marseilles. At an important meeting of medical officers, in London, resolutions were adopted advising the utmost care and all possible precautions.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool Aug. 31st, Londonderry Sept. 1st.

The Atlantic Telegraph Company has given orders for the manufacture of a cable, to be laid early next year.

The ravages of the cattle disease continue a fruitful theme of speculation. Hospitals or sanitoriums are to be established in London for diseased cattle.

It is stated that a French frigate has taken possession in the name of the French Government, of a valuable guano island in the Pacific, about lat. 8.13 S., long. 154.59 W.

The cholera appears to be receding to the parts from whence it came.

The Atlantic Telegraph Company have issued a formal notice that they will not attempt to recover the cable this year, the underwriters consider this equivalent to a total loss, and have settled insurances on the cable.

DOMESTIC.

New York, Sept. 8. The Herald's Vera Cruz correspondence says the Liberals captured the town of Tehuacan, with its garrison, made a large haul of stores and specie and then, the place being of no use to them, abandoned it. The Imperialists were chuckling over the supposed material reduction of Sheridan's force in Texas. It will require Imperialist force amounting to one hundred thousand to subjugate the country. The guerrillas still give great trouble to Maximilian's troops, and there is apparently no improvement in the social or moral condition of the country.

Nashville, Tenn. Sept. 8. The explosion yesterday on the Northwestern Railroad was a terrible affair. The train consisted of eight cars and passenger coaches, and there were nearly two hundred passengers on board. The two foremost cars contained powder, shot and shell, and it is supposed that sparks from the locomotive communicated with the powder through the cracks in the cars, causing the explosion. Seven persons were killed outright, and nearly all were more or less injured. The fireman was killed, the engineer badly and the conductor slightly injured. Among the slightly injured was Mr. Van Valkenburg, assistant superintendent of the telegraph. The engine was totally wrecked. The concussion was terrific, and shook the buildings in town like an earthquake.

New York, Sept. 9. Advices from New Zealand, 28th June, say the natives are still in insurrection, intrenched in a strong position, besieged by the British troops. It was reported that the rebels offered to surrender, but the report is contradicted.

Notices.

Discussion in New Hampshire.

The undersigned have agreed to hold a public oral discussion in the Town Hall at Alton Corner, (near Alton Bay), commencing at 3 o'clock P. M., on Monday, September 25th, to continue through ten consecutive forenoon and afternoon sessions, of two hours each, ending on Saturday forenoon, Sept. 30th, unless terminated earlier by mutual consent of the parties. Question:—"Does the Bible teach that the wicked dead will not be made alive?" Affirmative—R. Wendell. Negative—T. M. Preble. The speeches are to be twenty minutes in length. The forenoon sessions will commence at 10 o'clock, and the afternoon sessions (after the first day) at 2 o'clock. Admission free. All are invited to attend.

RUFUS WENDELL.
T. M. PREBLE.

P. S. There will be two sessions on the first day of the debate, the second one commencing at 7 o'clock in the evening. No session on Saturday. R. W.

Basket Meeting.

On Sept. 23d and 24th, there will be a meeting of the Premillenialists in the grove of I. C. Judson, in the northeast corner of Berlin Township, Erie Co., Ohio, one mile west of Florence Corners. Exercises to begin on Saturday P. M., at 12½ o'clock, with prayer and conference. Preaching at 2 P. M. in the grove, and 7 P. M. at the Chapel. All are invited. Bro. R. Wendell is expected to be with us. G. W. STETSON.

New Hampshire State Conference.

The fourth quarterly session of the New Hampshire State Conference will be held with the church in Whitefield, N. H., commencing Sept. 28th, and continue over the following Lord's day. May prayer go up to God that this meeting may result in great good to the church and people in Whitefield. A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

Conference.

The R. I. and East Conn. Conference will hold its next session with the church in North Foster, R. I., commencing Wednesday, Oct. 4th, at 2 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Sabbath. All are invited to attend. Come, brethren, with your hearts filled with the love of God, so as to labor for the salvation of sinners. Those coming by rail will stop at Danielsonville.

WM. H. CHAPMAN, Clerk.

Western Quarterly Conference.

The next session of this conference will be holden in Biddeford, Me., commencing Thursday, Sept. 28th, at 7 o'clock P. M. A general invitation is extended to the Lord's children to come and work for the salvation of sinners. Call on Bro. J. Libbey, who will direct to proper places of entertainment.

I. C. WELLCOME, Pres.
C. H. LEVERTON, Sec.

Tent Meeting in DeKalb.

The Lord willing, there will be a tent meeting in DeKalb, DeKalb Co., Ill., commencing Sept. 14th, at 2 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Sunday. Bro. Himes, Sheldon, and others are expected to attend. The fields are all white for the harvest; let us gather in the sheaves.

H. G. MCCULLOCK.

Notice.

Eld. J. K. Bellows and H. Hadlock will hold meetings in the Advent Christian Chapel, Hoosick, N. Y., commencing Wednesday evening, Sept. 27th, and continue over Sunday.

In behalf of the church, J. WILBUR.

Wisconsin Conference.

Probably our Wisconsin annual meeting will be held in the big tent, on the bank of Devil's Lake, in Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis., beginning Sept. 22d. Particulars in time. W. SHELDON.

Just Received.

Dr. Zech's computation of PTOLEMY'S ECLIPSES, based on the Greenwich observations as reduced by Professor Airy. Price $1.00 mailed, post paid. Address C. F. Hudson, Cambridge, Mass., or H. L. Hastings, 19 Lindall St., Boston, Mass.

Found.

Found on the campground at Alton Bay, a bank bill. If any one will write me, proving property, they can have it. Also, found a blue coat, two fans, a number of odd gloves, and a red flannel under waist. If any one through mistake has taken a red, green and yellow worsted shawl, please return it to Mr. Z. Bennett's store at Alton Corner, N. H. J. G. SMITH.

New Durham Ridge, N. H.

Conference.

Notice is here given that the first quarterly conference will be held at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa, commencing on Friday, Sept. 29th, 1865.

JOB GILDERSLEVE, Conf. Clerk.

Notice.

Ministering brethren who may wish to come to Biddeford, Me., to preach, will correspond with J. C. Libby or A. P. Hyde, that appointments may not conflict.

Maine Second Advent Tract Society.

S. K. PARTRIDGE, R. R. YORK, I. C. WELLCOME
Board of Managers.
I. C. WELLCOME, Secretary and Business Agent.
ISAAC WIGHT, Treasurer.

It was voted that all orders for tracts and books for distribution by this Society be addressed to the Agent, I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me., who will supply them as fast as the means are furnished.

All our ministers will receive subscriptions for the Tract Fund, and they purpose to raise $200, or more, for free distribution in Maine this year.

I. C. WELLCOME, Agent.

Agency for Maine.

Having been solicited to take the agency for Maine of Bro. Himes' "New Chart of Daniel and John," I would say to any and all in Maine who wish it, I am prepared to furnish it at the regular retail price, $5.00, and to preachers (or others who wish them to sell) at a liberal discount. Address orders to I. C. WELLCOME, Yarmouth, Me.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.
Edwin Burnham ... Sundays, Sept. 17th and 24th
Hiram Munger ... Sunday, Oct. 1st

West Poland ... Sunday, Sept 17th
South Poland ... Wednesday evening, Sept. 20th
Portland, Me ... Sunday, Sept. 24th
Thursday and Friday, 21st and 22d, anywhere, as doors may open on my way to Portland.
Biddeford ... evening, Monday, Sept. 25th
Lee, N. H ... Friday, Sept. 26th
Will some one meet me at New Market, first train?
Haverhill, Mass ... Wednesday evening, Sept. 27th
Lawrence, Mass ... Thursday, Sept 28th
South Reading ... Friday, Sept. 29th
After Oct. 1st not engaged. HIRAM MUNGER.

H. L. HASTINGS' TENT MEETINGS.
At Savannah, west of Syracuse, N. Y., commencing Thursday evening, Sept. 14th, and continuing about a week.
At Avon Springs, about twenty miles south of Rochester, N. Y., commencing Friday evening, Sept. 22d, and continuing while it may be duty.
At Allen, Allegany Co., on the Dagget Farm, now owned by Hiram Brown, ten miles from Belvidiere, on the N. Y. and Erie R. R., and 4½ miles from Angelia. Teams will run to Belvidiere to connect with the trains. Commencing here probably about a week later. All if the Lord will. Notice will be duly given. Pray for us. H. L. HASTINGS.

Wrightville, Ct ... Sept. 24th — S. TATRO.

Springfield, Mass ... Sept. 15th
Lynn, Mass ... Sept. 17th
Bangor or Brewer, (as the brethren may arrange), Sunday, Oct. 1st. ISRAEL DAMMAN.

Casco, (Mayberry Hill school-house) ... Oct. 1st — S. HAWKINS.

Lake Village, N. H., at the new Chapel, Friday evening, Sept. 15th, at 6 o'clock.
West Alton, N. H., Saturday evening, Sept. 16th, and over the Lord's day, 17th.
New Durham Corner, (as Bro. Bunnells may appoint), evenings, Sept. 19th, 20th, and 21st.
South Farmington, (as the brethren may arrange), Saturday evening, Sept. 23d, and over the Lord's day.
New Durham Ridge, (as Bro. Smith may appoint), evening, Sept. 26th.
East Barnsted, (as Bro. Hanson may appoint), evening, Sept. 28th.
Pittsfield, (as Bro. Emerson may appoint), Saturday evening, Sept. 30th, and over Lord's day. B. P. MANNING.

New Britain, Ct ... Sunday, Sept. 17th — R. E. LADD.

"Horn-town" School-house, N. H ... Sunday, Sept. 17th — J. W. HORNE, J. H. F. VARNEY.

Northwood Narrows, N. H ... Sunday, Sept. 24th — C. H. WILLEY, J. H. F. VARNEY.

Britton's Mills, Livermore, Me ... Sunday, Sept. 24th — I. C. WELLCOME.

Haverhill, Mass ... Sunday, Sept. 17th
North Strafford, N. H ... Sunday, Sept. 24th — J. G. SMITH.

Waterbury, Ct ... Sunday, Sept. 17th — B. HITCHCOCK.

Holderness, (Brick school-house) ... Sept. 24th — T. W. PIPER.

Manchester, N. H ... Sabbath, Sept. 17th — T. M. PREBLE.

Guilford, Conn., (East River) ... Sunday, Sept. 24th — O. D. WOODRUFF.

Springfield, (corner of State and Walnut Streets), Sunday, Sept. 17th. H. PRATT.

Mexico Corner, (where Bro. Collins may appoint), Saturday evening, Sept. 16th, and over Sunday.
Dixfield Center ... evenings, Sept. 18th, 19th and 20th
Carthage ... evening, Sept. 21st
Weld ... evenings, Sept. 22d and 23d and over Sunday. J. WHITMAN.

LOWELL, MASS.
Miles Grant ... Sept. 17th
Bro. Plummer ... Sept. 24th

Hartford, Ct ... Sunday, Oct. 1st
Plainville, Ct ... Sunday, Oct. 15th
Holyoke, Mass ... Sunday, Oct 22d — EDWIN BURNHAM.
Bro. Morgan, of Plainville, Ct., cordially invites the friends in that region to attend Bro. Burnham's coming appointment.

Goshen, Mass ... Sept. 17th
Plainfield, (as brethren may arrange) ... Sept. 19th–20th
Savoy, (Noah Myric's) ... Sept. 21st
" (Bro. Sherman's) ... Sept. 22d
North Adams, Mass ... Sept. 24th
West Hoosick, N. Y ... Sept. 27th
North Bennington, Vt ... Oct. 8th — J. K. BELLOWS.

West Deerfield, N. H ... Sunday, Sept. 17th
Haverhill, Mass ... Sunday, Sept. 24th — A. SIMPSON.

BARNES' HALL, SPRINGFIELD, MASS.
Ira Morgan ... Sunday, Sept. 17th
A. W. Sibley ... Sunday, Oct. 1st
Edwin Burnham ... Sunday, Oct. 8th

East Carlton, N. Y ... Sept. 17th
Brn., please meet me at Eld. Sweet's on Saturday afternoon, Sept. 16th.
West Barre, N. Y ... Sept. 24th — J. BLAIN.

Athol, Mass ... Sunday, Sept. 17th — S. S. BREWER.

Northwood Narrows, N. H ... Sept. 10th
East Canaan, N. H ... Sept. 17th
Nottingham, N. H ... Sept. 24th — Z. FORD.

Barnstead, (Clark meeting-house), Saturday, 1 P. M., Sept. 16th, and over the Lord's day.
Conference at Pomfret, Vt., commencing Thursday, Sept. 21st, 7 P. M., to hold over the following Lord's day. All invited to come. J. COUCH.

Northfield, or Campville, Ct., (as the brethren may arrange), Sunday, Sept. 17th. C. GOODRICH.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.
Burleigh Emery ... Sunday, Sept. 17th
Joseph Pinkham ... Sunday, Sept. 24th
Wm. H. Mitchell ... Sunday, Oct. 1st
C. Goodrich ... Sunday, Oct. 15th

Taunton, (Trescott Street) ... Sunday, Sept. 17th — W. E. HATHAWAY.

Vernon, Vt ... Sunday, Sept. 17th — MATHEW BACHELOR.

Worcester, Mass ... Sunday, Sept. 17th — J. HEMENWAY.

West Abington ... Sunday, Sept. 17th
Worcester, Mass ... Wednesday evening, Sept 20th
Abington, Ct ... Sunday, Sept. 24th
Danielsonville, Ct ... Sunday, Oct. 1st
R. I. Conference ... Oct. 4th — WM. M. INGHAM.

Concord, N. H ... Sunday, Sept. 17th
Haverhill, Mass ... Monday evening, Sept. 18th
Lawrence, Mass., Wed. and Thurs. evenings, Sept. 20th and 21st.
South Reading, Mass ... Friday evening, Sept. 22d
Lynn, Mass ... Saturday evening, Sept. 23d
At liberty Sunday, Sept. 24th, to preach somewhere near Boston. Please inform me in season at Concord, N. H. H. K. FLAGG.

Freeport, (Swamp school-house), Sunday, Sept. 17th, 2 P. M.
Brunswick, (Yellow school-house), Sept. 24th, 10½ A.M. Evening, Harding school-house, 7 o'clock. R. R. YORK.

Bristol, Ct ... Sunday, Sept. 17th
New Britain, Ct., Thursday and Friday evenings, Sept. 21st and 22d, and over Sunday, 24th.
Collinsville, Ct., Wed. Thurs. and Friday evenings, Oct. 4th, 5th, and 6th.
Pleasant Valley, Ct ... Sunday, Oct. 8th
North Adams, Mass., evenings ... Oct. 11th, 12th, 13th
Hoosick, N. Y ... Sundays, Oct. 15th and 22d
Poultney, Vt ... Sundays, Oct. 29th and Nov. 5th — CHAS. E. PIPER.

Newfield ... Sunday, Sept. 17th — R. WILLIAMS.

North Adams ... Sunday, Sept. 17th
Hoosick, N. Y ... evening, Sept. 18th
North Bennington, Vt ... Sept. 19th and over Sunday. GEO. A. STREETER.

Jackson's Corners, West Barre, Sept. 17th, at 10½ A. M.
East Carlton, (as Bro. C. Farr may arrange), Sunday, Sept. 24th.
Newstead, (Benedict school-house), Oct. 1st, 10½ A. M., and Kinny school-house at 4 P. M. C. F. SWEET.

Sunday, the 17th, at Hartford; suggested by Bro. Hiram Munger. ELD. STEWART.

North Canton ... Sunday, Sept. 17th
Canton Street ... Sunday, Sept. 24th
Will Bro. Ripley be at Canton Street, and preach the word? S. WOODRUFF.

Surry, North Bend ... Sept. 17th
Bradford ... Sept. 24th
South Atkinson, (with Bro. Joshua Livermore), Oct. 1st
Sebec, (where the brethren may appoint, with the assistance of Bro. F. A. Baker), Oct. 8th. Ordination at the time. THOMAS SMITH.

Bristol, Ct ... Sept. 24th
Forestville ... Oct. 1st
Plainville ... Oct. 8th
Wallingford ... Oct. 15th
Cheshire ... Oct. 22d
West Meriden ... Oct. 29th
Hartford ... Nov. 5th
Middle Hadam ... Nov. 12th
East Hampton ... Nov. 19th
In all these places will brethren please arrange. H. ROCKWELL.

Holderness, N. H., (Brick school-house, District No. 1), Sunday, Sept. 17th.
Centre Harbor, (Hawkins meeting-house), evening, Sept. 22d, at early candle light.
East Holderness, (meeting-house) ... Sunday, Sept. 24th
Whitefield, N. H., conference ... Sept. 28th
Compton, C. E., (Harvey school-house), Sunday Oct. 8th — A. MUSSEY.

Lowell ... Saturday evening, Sept. 23d and over the following Lord's day. J. S. JORDAN.

BRISTOL, CT.
T. W. Piper ... Sept. 17th
Ira Morgan ... Sept. 24th

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

Sr. T.—Sr. C. C. Crossman's address is Middleboro, Mass.

C. G. Carre—The price of "Fables of Infidelity" in cloth by mail, is $1.00.

J. White—You have paid to No. 541, and have so credited you on our books.

L. B. Potter—Received. Will be acknowledged next week.

B. H. Couch—Apochraphal New Testament will be $1.00 by mail.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.
To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 519. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, (if any), charge four cents; for every week since No. 468, if less than 26 weeks, five cents; if over 26 weeks, six cents a week (or $3.12 for the year.) From the sum deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

☞ The INDEX in this number has used up our figures so that we are obliged to omit the acknowledgments of CASH RECEIPTS till next week.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

A Mussey, S R Chaplin, H. Munger, B Perham, K Paine, W H Cornell, J Taylor.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

Mrs. Abigail Mussey—Plymouth, N H., care of John Emery, till Oct. 1st.
Eld. D. J. Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
Maria Mathews Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
Mrs. George A. Otis—West Cummington, Mass.
A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass.
W. Sheldon—Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis.
J. Couch—Concord, N H.
H. F. Carpenter—Rutland, Vt.
Mrs. Walter Pratt—No. 4 Poplar Place, Boston, Mass.
C. Goodrich—No. 2 Central Square, East Boston, Mass.
Bro. Wm. C. Thurman's address for the present is Boston, Mass., Box 292, care of Miles Grant.
B. Spaulding—Chelmsford, Mass.

INDEX TO VOLUME XXI.

MISCELLANEOUS.

A man who has not slept for fourteen years ... 4
Are we prepared for our Lord's coming? ... 10
A question ... 17
A few words on the time question ... 32
"Ask and receive" ... 32
Are you ready? ... 34
Awake! awake! ... 39
A correction ... 42
A word from the sick bed ... 42
Astronomical considerations ... 46, 50, 54
A letter ... 48
A short exegesis ... 49
A freedmen's mission ... 50
Astronomy again ... 50
Absorbing devotion to dress ... 52
A happy married life ... 52
A letter from Chloe Lankton ... 56
An Egyptian railroad ... 56
A new chart ... 58
Alton Bay campmeeting ... 58
Astronomy continued ... 58, 65, 70
Asparagus beds ... 60
Abounding in the work of the Lord ... 61, 64
A Sabbath among the freedmen ... 62
Are these things so? ... 66
An illustration ... 69
A short sermon ... 72
Absent from the body and present with the Lord ... 73
Attention, Western New York and Penn ... 74
A lesson from nature ... 80, 92
A thousand tract givers ... 92
A voice from the South ... 92
A short sermon ... 100
A call to preach ... 104
A thought ... 104
Bringing reproach ... 2
Boylan's grove conf ... 14
Business rules ... 32
Be wise ... 38
Butter making ... 44
Bringing a man to prayer meeting ... 48
Baptism, what is it? ... 62
Born of water ... 77
Credibility of Herodotus' eclipses ... 6
Christian union ... 13, 17, 25, 37, 44, 56, 57, 76
Childhood innocence ... 33
Condensing ... 36
Caterpillars ... 40
Convention in Poultney ... 58, 62
Conference report ... 66
Charlotte Elizabeth ... 69
Christian religion ... 76
Chronology ... 77, 85, 89, 72, 104
Consecration ... 78
Catching horses ... 80
Coming of Christ ... 85
Conversion of a Jew ... 92
Chronological query ... 100
Deliver us from evil ... 1
Dust! dust! dust! ... 4
Definite time dangerous ... 5
Distance to the theological heavens ... 17
Dr. Gregory's opinion ... 10
Durable fence posts ... 12
Day & Martin's blacking ... 12
Definite time ... 17, 42
Death of Augustus Cæsar ... 29
Difficulties ... 29
Do you believe it? ... 36
Destruction of good ... 41
"Designs" ... 44
Don't repeat it ... 56
Demonism alias Spiritualism ... 60, 64
Do not despair ... 64
Dialogue between Eld. Faithful and Bro. Hopeful 66, 80
Don't neglect ... 84
Daniel's sixty-nine weeks ... 90
Doings of the Ex. Board of the Amer. Adv. Mission Society ... 98
Education outside of books ... 16
Eld. Thurman's eclipses ... 25
Eternal torment ... 36
Extracts from Stilling ... 37, 56
Enemies of the church ... 44
Excellent testimony ... 77
Extravagance in living ... 92
Eastern vessels ... 100
Every word of God ... 104
Fort Covington ... 12
Foolish talking and jesting ... 18
From the East ... 57
Freedmen's Aid Societies ... 58
Forbidding to marry ... 72
Freedmen's schools in Savannah ... 74
Friendship ... 88
Filial reverence ... 100
Goodness ... 2
Good news from letters ... 30
God's kingdom near ... 33
Gethsemane ... 33
Gerritt Smith and future punishment ... 46
Good things ... 62, 74
Gay and costly apparel ... 66
Happiness or misery ... 1
Health—travels—labors ... 6
Help the women ... 6
How to make beautiful homes ... 8
How to get tracts read ... 14
How to paper a wall ... 20
How to whitewash ... 20
Heart kindness ... 32
Have faith in God ... 37
Heirs of God ... 69
Heaven and earth ... 69
Hearth rug ... 80
Hurry, hurry, hurry ... 84
How to get hearers ... 84
Health at campmeeting ... 86
Hell-fire ... 88
Is it so? ... 52
I have yet many things to say unto you ... 57
Is water baptism a christian institution? ... 57
It must be done quickly ... 57
"I have a hope, but how can I know that I am saved? 60
Improvements in Palestine ... 68
"In the body, or out of the body" ... 81
Journeyings ... 16
John 11: 26 ... 41
Jesus of Nazareth ... 56
Jewels ... 88
Jewish intelligence ... 88
Knowing the time ... 16
Keep the good spirit ... 18
Kind words ... 100
Key to the great symbolic chart ... 98
Last day scoffers ... 1
Let "both sides" be circulated ... 2
Lessons in Astronomy ... 2
Letters illustrative of christian experience ... 4, 8, 12, 20, 32, 36, 40, 48, 52, 68, 72, 75, 88, 100, 104
Light and truth solicited concerning Antichrist ... 5
Letter from the West ... 14
Literal interpretation ... 29, 33, 42
Labor and blessing ... 52
Let your light shine ... 56
Love and charity illustrated ... 62
Large liberality ... 64
Length of Christ's ministry ... 75
Let us make man ... 75
Leather on things to come ... 84
Labors among the freedmen ... 92
Living temples ... 104
More light ... 25
Ministration of death ... 32, 36, 40, 44, 48, 52, 53
Maine Advent tract cause ... 34
Michael, who is he? ... 41
Memory ... 41
Maine W. quar. conf ... 54
Misshapen christians ... 57
Mistakes of infidels ... 64
My tour west ... 70
Minn. conference ... 72
Matthew Henry on Luke 16: 19–31 ... 76
Mission to the freedmen ... 78
"Moses in the mount" ... 85
Napoleon III. and the Roman question ... 6
N. H. State conf ... 14
Note to Bro. Munger ... 38
"Nothing but leaves" ... 56
Notes by the way ... 82
Our needs: what are they? ... 1
Oil stocks ... 8
One root of drunkenness ... 12
Our convention ... 14
Ordination in Portland ... 22
Orthodoxy ... 37
Origen ... 38
Our convention ... 42
One of the Pharisees ... 49
Our fathers, where are they? ... 49
Overworked ... 56
Only a word ... 66
Opening of the books ... 81
Our times and our churches ... 90
Our times ... 92
Our free list ... 98
"One-tenth to the Lord" ... 102
Procrustes ... 2
Pen pictures of Bible scenes ... 8, 36, 48, 60, 62
Ptolemy's eclipses ... 9, 18, 29
Pure water for stock ... 16
Passing away ... 32
Pruning fruit trees ... 32
Propositions that can be sustained ... 38
Paradise ... 45
Prayer ... 49
Pray for the gift of the Spirit ... 56
Pingre's eclipses of B. C. 457 ... 60
Procrastination ... 66
Postal money orders ... 74
Progress of truth ... 85
"Please read this" ... 85
Peacemakers ... 104
Questions ... 21
Questions concerning Christ's kingdom ... 49
Questions to those who neglect prayer meetings ... 64
Remarks on butter making ... 4
Revivals ... 6
Report ... 10
Report of the R. I. and E. Conn. conf ... 26, 88
Remarkable latter day prophecy ... 46
Resting at watering places ... 60
Responses ... 70
Report of the Me. conf ... 72
Report of the sixth annual meeting of the Advent Christian Association ... 101
Signs and days of tribulation ... 1
Special providence ... 10
Spent tan for potatoe rot ... 12
Sickness has hindered ... 14
Scattered truths ... 21, 69
South Butler meeting ... 26, 54, 58
Steeped in infidelity ... 28
Spiritualism ... 32
Sister A. E. Smith ... 39
Sabbath arguments ... 45
"Should christians fight?" ... 64
Self-examination ... 65
Something worth remembering ... 69
Sagging doors ... 88
Semblance and reality ... 88
Snakes in the grass ... 89
The time question ... 1
" glorious appearing of Jesus Christ ... 1
" voice of historians ... 1, 5, 9, 16, 20, 24, 28
" "one week" ... 2
" past and the present ... 4
" pushing of the ram ... 5, 28
" time of the end ... 5
" forgiveness of sins ... 6
" Italian mission ... 6, 18, 22, 38, 46, 58, 74
Thurman's blunders ... 6
The Holy Ghost ... 8
Teachings of an oak stick ... 8
Transplanting at night ... 8
The new birth ... 9, 13, 40
" christian's hope ... 9
" Old Testament ... 9
" voice of wisdom ... 12
To keep moths from furs ... 12
To make hard soap ... 12
Tanseytea ... 12
The heart and the tongue ... 13
" infidelity of the day ... 16
Testimony ... 17
The Parian chronicle ... 18, 21, 28, 30
" strange class leader ... 20
Tainted meat ... 20
The computation of eclipses ... 21
" nominal church ... 21
Thoughts and apothegms ... 24
Thurman's chronology ... 25
Time hard to understand ... 29
The 2300 days ... 29
Truth advancing ... 30
Too late ... 31
The pearl of pearls ... 32
" resurrection of the dead ... 34
" Time movement ... 34
" Sabbath ... 37
" power of God ... 37
" friends of the Young Pilgrim ... 38
" work of God in New York ... 38
" Sabbath ... 39
" year of jubilee ... 40
To writers and speakers ... 40
Think for yourself ... 41
Twenty-five years ago ... 42
The true christian ... 48
Ten things to be considered ... 48
The Passover feast ... 49
" discussion of the Sabbath question ... 50
" Spiritualists' platform ... 50
" man who fell among thieves ... 51
" spirit shall return to God ... 53
Tares and wheat ... 53
The two witnesses ... 53
The "if" man ... 53
" death penalty ... 53
" last phase of things marked, etc ... 57
" female convention ... 58
Terms of the Young Pilgrim ... 58
To preserve milk ... 60
The jubilees ... 61
" burial and the planting ... 61
" "gathering" ... 61
" witness of the Spirit ... 64
" fear of man ... 65
Trembling ... 65
Thoughts on the day of judgment ... 68
The freedmen ... 68
Thy kingdom come ... 68
"Thou shalt be with me in Paradise" ... 69
The judgment ... 69
" three grains of rye ... 69
" effects of smoking ... 70, 104
" church at Poultney, Vt ... 72
That book on war ... 72
The power of a loving word ... 72
Trusting in God ... 73
The gathering-place of the saints ... 73
" oppressor ... 73
" oracle, the almanac, and other oracles ... 73
" last stroke of the Prelat Kaph ... 76
" crown of life ... 77
" passover ... 77
" year of the crucifixion ... 77
" flock of God ... 78
" church dying of the refinements ... 80
" Suez canal ... 80
" great jubilee ... 80
To cure hoove in cattle ... 80
The first resurrection ... 81
Take notice ... 81
The new book on the Sabbath question ... 82
" Darien meeting ... 86
That walk by the way ... 88, 89
To seekers of holiness ... 89
The souls under the altar ... 89
To the tale-bearers ... 89
The World's Crisis July 25 ... 90
" wane of faith ... 97
" Amer. Adv. Mission Society ... 97
" call ... 100
Them that are asleep ... 100
Thoughts for ministers ... 100
The harvest ripe ... 102
The atonement ... 102
To the church scattered abroad ... 102
"The original report" ... 102
The Amer. Adv. Mission Society ... 102
The new hymn book ... 102
Uncle Johnson ... 40
Unfulfilled prophecy ... 81
Volume of truth ... 4
Voice from Montreal ... 22
Vienna conference ... 54
Visit to Low Hampton ... 78
Will the times and seasons ever be definitely known? ... 4, 5, 12, 14, 17
Waiting upon God ... 12
Winter life ... 12
Was Christ born before the beginning of the Christian era? ... 13
Who love Jesus' coming? ... 17
What don't pay ... 17
What can we do? ... 28
We are all here ... 36
What shall we do for the freedmen? ... 41
Who and what is a Jew ... 45
Who is a christian ... 46
Who have mercy, and who are hardened ... 53
We miss her ... 54
We will pray for you ... 56
"What I have written, I have written" ... 65
What is a hobby? ... 68
Watering trees in hot weather ... 69
Waifs ... 81
Wilbraham campmeeting ... 82
What Josephus says ... 85
Who shall be able to stand? ... 85
Why do I believe the Bible? ... 86
What is your hope? ... 90
Your home ... 20

EDITORIAL.

A change needed ... 6
A challenge ... 26
"A test time" ... 32
Affairs in Italy ... 34
"A promise hard to keep" ... 42
A good work ... 46
A visit to the Indians ... 50
A good move ... 54
Atlantic telegraph ... 66
Atlantic cable ... 70
A horrid deed ... 70
Alton Bay campmeeting ... 102
Becoming reckless ... 26
Brookfield, N. H ... 42
"Breath of life" ... 62
Bread making ... 66
Baptism ... 80
Colossians 1: 13 ... 10
Cyrus ... 46
Catholicism ... 66
Camp furniture ... 86
Close of the volume ... 102
Disorder in the heavens ... 2
"Destiny of the wicked" ... 2
Discussion in Worcester ... 10
Discussion in Boston ... 10, 14
Death of Augustus Cæsar ... 30, 34
Daniel 8: 4 ... 26
Dates ... 38
Description of angels ... 50
Dedication at Lake Village ... 78
Death of Tiberius Cæsar ... 86
Dress reform in Rome ... 90
Explanation ... 14
Eclipses of B. C. 457 ... 26
Eclipses ... 30
Ending of the sixty-nine weeks ... 86
"Fiction, sir" ... 30
Gathered unto his people ... 66
"Great swelling words" ... 70
Garibaldi ... 70
Good tidings ... 74
"Hard times" in Canada ... 26
How changed ... 38
Hong's vision ... 46
Here we go ... 71
He speaks as a dragon ... 86
Haverhill ... 90
Intemperance at Washington ... 6
Instruction from the spirits ... 6, 42
Increase of crime ... 14
Israel's sojourn ... 18
Is it right? ... 54
"It does me no good" ... 62
Increase of rowdyism ... 74
It must be published ... 80
Intemperance ... 90
Jesus not risen ... 66
Lowell ... 2, 22
Laid on the table ... 38
"Let us make man" ... 66
Louis Napoleon ... 90
Man-worship ... 18
Marvelous elevation ... 26
Missionary work ... 62
Meaning of the word "soul" ... 66
Mormons ... 78
"Never die" ... 10
"Napoleon's Julius Cæsar" ... 38
New order of society ... 62
Napoleon ahead ... 66
Napoleon and Mexico ... 66
Not satisfied ... 82
New subscribers ... 98
Obituary poetry ... 102
Ptolemy or the Bible ... 18
Perils increase ... 22
Philadelphia ... 34
Parian chronicle ... 42
Pantheism ... 46
"Parliamentary logic" ... 62
Physical sins ... 70
Pre-existence of souls ... 70
Ptolemy's canon ... 74
Popular extravagance ... 14
Parisian society ... 98
Religious intelligence ... 2
Rather ignorant ... 14
Rightly named ... 30
Rather threatening ... 50, 91
Revelations 10 and 11 ... 62
Scripture reading ... 2
Should sinners fight? ... 14
Spiritualists' convention ... 30
Scatter tracts ... 42
Satan turned preacher ... 70
Slavery ended ... 82
Tracts ... 10, 74, 102
The mansions ... 10
" new birth ... 14
" Suez canal ... 14
" jubilees ... 22
" mourning ... 22
" coming struggle ... 26
" coming man ... 38
Temperance tracts ... 46
The 2300 days ... 50, 66
" Vandals ... 54
" Justinian code ... 58
" soldier's tracts ... 58
" scattered flock ... 90
" world's Spiritual convention ... 62
" cost of war ... 62
Theology of the spirits ... 66
The child's soul ... 66
" false prophet ... 70
" next congress ... 74
Thought without an organism ... 78
The Fenians ... 78
" "Monroe doctrine" ... 78
" great feast of tabernacles ... 86
" coming meeting ... 86
Tremont campmeeting ... 90
The freedmen ... 102
Temperance ... 98
To brethren west ... 98
The tract work ... 98
Tent meeting in N. Y ... 98
Twenty-four questions ... 98
Visit to Canada ... 74
Various readings ... 74
Worcester ... 14
Where is the "spirit land"? ... 14
What the demons say ... 18
Working miracles ... 26
Wallingford community ... 34
War declared ... 46
What next? ... 50
What a change ... 50
Waking up slowly ... 54
Wickedness abounds ... 78
Written credentials ... 84
What hath God wrought? ... 98
Wilbraham campmeeting ... 94
Wallingford campmeeting ... 98

POETRY.

As ye sow, so shall ye reap ... 5
"A grand old poem" altered ... 35
As in childhood ... 76
All night in prayer ... 77
"Behold, He cometh!" ... 49
Be of good cheer ... 73
"Behold, I stand at the door and knock" ... 84
Broadcast thy seed ... 92
Christ in me ... 49
Cease repining ... 56
Disappointed, yet hoping ... 80
Eternal life ... 4
Friendship's offering ... 17
Friendship ... 40
Faith's visions ... 65
Glad voices ... 1, 41
"God is love" ... 17
Going home ... 85
Gradation ... 92
He is coming again ... 37
How to be happy ... 52
Hymn ... 61, 81
How to live ... 100
"It is I, be not afraid" ... 53
In memory ... 61
I would like to live when Jesus comes ... 68
Jerusalem ... 28
Lines ... 20, 32, 44, 68, 76, 84, 100, 104
Longing ... 45
Let it pass ... 48
Labor is worship ... 53
"My sheep" ... 9
Maranatha ... 13
My hope ... 21
Moses on Sinai ... 37
On the death of D. A. J ... 1
Old age ... 5
O'er the hill ... 13
On the death of a friend ... 16
Our late victories ... 24
Our position and doctrine ... 41
Prayer ... 33, 69
Prophetic ... 45
Psalm 21: 57 ...
Rejoice ... 24
Resignation ... 69
Rest ... 80
Speak no ill ... 56
Tour in Conn ... 2
"There'll be no sorrow there" ... 4
The bright morning star ... 12
" Bridegroom is coming ... 12
" day-star ... 16
"Thy will be done" ... 20
Thou wilt come, dear Savior ... 25
The destruction of Pharaoh ... 29
" christian and his echo ... 32
" sower ... 33
" christian consolation ... 36
" unseen battle-field ... 40
Thousand-year reign of Christ ... 45
The fruits of violence ... 48
" divine response ... 52
" young penitent ... 60
Thoughts on the Sabbath ... 64
The last trump ... 77
To Chloe Lankton ... 88
Thoughts beneath chastisement ... 88
The beloved ... 89
" righteous dead ... 92
Take us home ... 92
What of the day? ... 57
We seek the great city ... 72
Where is home? ... 89
When shall I be at rest? ... 97
Wallingford campmeeting ... 104

HYGIENE.

Alcoholic medical muddle ... 12
Air ... 28
Asthma ... 36
Burns and scalds ... 12, 52
Brown bread ... 52
Bread and bread making ... 68
Bathing ... 68
Beauty in Poland ... 68
Bread from wheaten meal ... 92
Checking perspiration ... 44
Care of the eyes ... 60
Cleanliness ... 68
Causes of disease ... 104
Debility ... 76
Diphtheria gargle ... 78
Ear-ache ... 4
Erysipelas ... 36
Effects of smoking tobacco ... 44
Exercising the muscles ... 76
Great eaters ... 104
Felons ... 12
Food in hot weather ... 92
Hygiene ... 4
Health a duty ... 12
Health experience ... 12
Healthy surroundings ... 76
Health items ... 92
Interesting to physiologists ... 36
Importance of rest ... 76
Management of infants ... 20
Muscle and brain ... 36
Milk for babes ... 92
Mad dog bite ... 92
Nursing the sick ... 28
Natural law ... 84
Our eyes ... 28
Our hair ... 60
Over eating ... 76
Polypus ... 4
Pure air as a tonic ... 12
Poison ... 20
Preservation of the teeth ... 44
Pure air in sick rooms ... 104
Quantity and waste of food ... 52
Respiration ... 20
Restless nights ... 44
Sleeping with open windows ... 36
Salt ... 84
Spectacles ... 96
Tobacco and rum ... 56
Total abstinence ... 20
The education of labor ... 16
The Turkish bath ... 104
Unleavened bread ... 4, 22
What shall we eat? ... 48
Warm feet and heads ... 88
Woollen clothes ... 80

CHILDREN'S CORNER.

A lesson for boys ... 24
A word to boys ... 32, 80
A noble boy ... 9
A true story ... 16
A boy's lawsuit ... 100
Be gentle ... 24
Blue sky somewhere ... 21
Boorish boys and girls ... 84
Contented John ... 17
Conscience ... 17
David Matson ... 5
Don't unchain the tiger ... 33
Expose your faults ... 56
From Charlie West ... 12
Fun and fear temper ... 72
Good for evil ... 56
Godliness great gain ... 64
How a thief began ... 24
Hugh Miller ... 28
How the crickets brought good fortune ... 40
History of a lie ... 41
How to pick huckleberries ... 76
How to kill an enemy ... 72
Infant pleaders ... 64
Kitty's rebellion ... 56
Keep clear of rum ... 64
King Habit ... 80
Lesson from the ants ... 80
Making faces ... 16
"No" ... 48
Nature's teaching ... 60
Peacock and butterfly folks ... 100
Sit upright ... 100
Somebody's grandpa ... 28
Sign the pledge ... 16
Story for the girls ... 32
To the children ... 24
The little girl and her copy ... 24
Toads ... 24
The "one book" ... 36
The lamb, wolf and dog ... 56
The bad girl ... 56
Two pictures ... 64
The busy bee ... 72
" little spider ... 72
" two rules, and how they are worked ... 84
" iron boot ... 88
Two kinds of advice ... 96
Uncle Toby ... 56
William's temptation ... 100

CORRESPONDENCE.

B Spaulding 3, 22, 34, 47, 71, G W Gillespie 3, J. G. Hook 3, L A Salter 7, A E Smith 7, I Damman 7, J. Carr 7, P B Hoyt 7, J E Rice 10, S Worthington 10, J E Barnes 10, H T Miller 11, F Kies 15, J S Hinds 15, E Burnham 15, Z. A. Waterhouse 15, L. Annis 19, F. S. Bradford 19, W Walker 19, P S W Deyo 19, 26, A Ferry 22, S E Teeple 22, J. H. Philbrick 22, C. Lovis 22, J. Halee 22, W Nichols 24, J C Jackson 26, L B Braley 27, N C Locke 27, A B Hoyt 30, C H Shepherd 30, T Fancher 30, M P Lamprey 34, S L W Bragg 35, A M Barnes 35, H H York 35, W H Silverman 35, M M Shepherd 39, J W Elliott 39, E Bellows 39, S D Ackerman 43, P A Smith 43, D Eastman 43, W Ingham 43, A E Smith 43, E Cordwey 47, N H Reed 47, L C McKinstry 47, J Clark 47, J K Bellows 47, A Wheeler 36, J E. Cleveland 51, J Rice 51, A N Seymour 51, P Tandy 54, E M King 54, J F Dixon 56, B Loomis 55, L Annis 55, W B Reed 56, C Hill 59, B. Hill 59, R. Bailey 59, G. Needham 59, S Tenney 73, M H Morrison 63, C F Buck 63, H McClary 63, C Strunes 63, E L Marsh 66, J R Preston 66, S P Green 66, L B Weaver 67, J M Tuck 67, E P Beach 67, C P Church 67, L E Saulsaugh 67, W Crendon 67, A. Hill 67, H M Dubey 67, M A Starr 71, F C Torrey 71, H M Fisher 71, I K Lombard 75, L B Weaver 75, W H McDaniels 75, A E Smith 79, H M Bryant 79, J Taylor 83, G Streeter 83, A H Smith 83, S Brown 83, W O Davison 83, J Brown Jr. 83, W Forrester 83, M Miles 83, M Allen 83, R B D—— 87, G Thomson 87, L C Sweeney 87, M M Weaver 87, H McClintock 87, J C Rice 90, E G Osgood 91, W Sheldon 91, C Sweet 91, S R Stewart 91, J S Speights 91, M Jones 91, M E Streeter 99, J Thompson 99, E Braley 99, M. M. Markham 99, A E Smith 102.

OBITUARIES.

E Chapman 3, E I Cole 3, H P Fletcher 3, M Hannon 3, G Garland 3, M E Garitt 3, P Durfee 3, E L Tenant 3, C E Harrington 7, L Burroughs 7, A Stanley 7, A M Allen 7, E C Ramsey 7, B Potter 7, J Potter 7, E Putnam 7, G Ramsdell 7, M Allen 7, J L Rich 7, W Pratt 11, R B Barney 11, M Allen 11, A Waldron 11, J Waldron 11, J S Griffin 11, W Ames 11, F H Partridge 15, F A Rice 15, E G Coburn 15, S O Libby 15, L Haynes 15, S Marsh 15, A and J Waldron 15, C Cyphers 19, S T Straight 19, E B Peck 19, I D Nelson 19, G A Nelson 19, C P Nelson 19, B F Gifford 19, E Goodwin 21, J E Burnham 21, M Wetherell 27, J Shipman 27, A J Goodrich 27, C Maltby 27, T A Knight 27, J Pickering 27, T Turner 27, N S Weeks 27, E Sniff 27, G O Edgerley 31, S A Tute 31, A T Kent 31, R Robinson 31, A R White 31, A M McIntire 31, J Smith 31, A. C. Fisher 35, A Jackson 35, C E Marden 35, E Allyn 35, J H and N C Lougee 35, E Norton 35, J Chaplin 39, A M Ellison 39, S Kimball 39, F Brown 39, B De Witt 39, E Angle 39, H S Babb 39, J Noka 43, J M Sanborn 43, M Allen 43, C I Curtis 43, E Jones 43, C Kennedy 47, C A Gilman 47, W Dinsmore 47, E Burnham 47, E Hamlin 47, S S Saunders 51, A S Dole 51, L C Alexander 51, H T White 51, W Hopkins 55, T Sinclair 45, L A Barney 55, T F Pinkham 55, Z Brown 59, L Smith 59, T S Whittier 59, C A Warren 59, J W Craig 59, J Burridge 59, W Kenney 63, E L Short 63, J Grober 67, J Jacobs 67, F Ross 67, C Morey 67, M J Fletcher 67, G A Otis 71, W O Hough 71, E Chisam 71, G Barrett 71, E L Gilman 71, A Bassford 75, G Wallace 75, N Segur 75, M Dutton 75, B Stamwood 79, W H Wildey 87, J S Marcy 87, W Kelley 87, C A Allen 91, M A Hull 91, Wm S Dewey 99, E Getchell 99, A Dixon 99, A A Wade 99.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library: with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid; $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety; or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

THE NEW TESTAMENT of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible, also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

WHY THE SHOE PINCHES. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 20 cents.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2.25.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK. "Sanctify them through thy truth; thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 3 cts. on every three copies.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof. L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D.D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

GLAD TIDINGS; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.60.

THE TAKING OF HUMAN LIFE incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 8 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

GLAD VOICES; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty-five or less.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 5c, postage 2c.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

MULLER'S LIFE OF TRUST. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

DIPHTHERIA: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. Price, 10 cts.; by mail, 12 cts.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. Price $2.50. Postage 36 cts.

NON-RESISTANCE; or, the Spirit of Christianity restored. By W. C. Thurman. Price 20 cts.; postage 4 cts.

CHLOE LANKTON; or, Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75 cents. By mail, 87 cts.

LIKENESS OF WM. MILLER, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to MILES GRANT, Boston, Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Dr. T. Clapp. [illegible]

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. [illegible]

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton. "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

Miles Grant's Tracts. 32 pages each. Price 5 cents single, [illegible]

What is Man? A Bible view of his creation; The meaning of Soul, Spirit, Death, and Hell. [illegible]

The Soul, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words nephesh and psuche as employed in the old and new Testaments. [illegible]

The Spirit, What is it? Or a careful examination of all the uses of the words ruach and pneuma as found in the old and new Testaments. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. Thief on the Cross; Souls under the Altar; an exposition of Matthew 10: 28, Genesis 35: 18, etc.

MISCELLANEOUS.

Cruden's Condensed Concordance, by which any passage of Scripture, of which a single word is known, [illegible]

The Life of Trust. An account of the Lord's Dealings with George Müller, Director of the Orphan Houses at Bristol, [illegible]

A Treatise on the 24th and 25th chapters of Matthew, showing by copious extracts from History, the fulfillment of Christ's Predictions, [illegible] By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

Should Christians Fight? A pamphlet on War, embracing the Scripture argument against war, and the consistent course of the Primitive Church. By I. C. Wellcome. [illegible]

The Bible from Heaven, or a dissertation on the Evidences of Christianity. By M. Hull. [illegible]

America in Prophecy. Exposition of the 13th chap. of Revelation, [illegible]

The Celestial Railroad, or Modern Pilgrim's Progress. After the manner of Bunyan. [illegible]

The Three Kingdoms, or the Kingdom of God the Father, the Kingdom of Satan, the Kingdom of the Lord Jesus Christ; [illegible] By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Ten Virgins, or Wisdom and Folly contrasted. By T. M. Preble. [illegible]

The Two Adams. By T. M. Preble. An interesting tract. [illegible]

Messiah's Mission, or an exposition of the Gospel Covenant, as comprehended in the Scriptures of truth. By C. F. Sweet. [illegible]

The Excellency of the Lord's Anointed, or Christ the Lord. By Mary A. Seymour. [illegible]

Everybody's Book. The Bible View of the personality of God, The Devil; his origin, personality, power, and doom. [illegible]

Cook Book. By Dr. F. W. Hurd. This book gives instructions for the preparation of the articles of food used at Dr. Jackson's celebrated health institution, denominated "Our Home," Dansville, N. Y. [illegible]

Premature Decay of American Youth. By Dr. [illegible]

The Saint's Harvest, or an exposition of Matt. 24: 14, in connection with Dan. 12: 11-13. [illegible]

The Old and New Covenant. Superiority of the New. By A. W. Sibley. [illegible]

The Christian Lyre. A collection of Hymns and Tunes for Worship. [illegible]

A Disquisition on the Prophecies. By F. H. Berick. [illegible]

An Appeal to Pious Trinitarians. By H. Grew. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.60.
By Express—1500 pages for $1.60.
Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; postage, 2 cents. Free to the poor.

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers. 36 pages.
The Saints' Inheritance ... 48 "
The New Heavens and New Earth ... 24 "
The Voice of Warning ... 24 "
The Advent at Hand ... 24 "
The Last Days ... 24 "
The Church not in Darkness ... 24 "
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one) ... 94 "
Outline of the Coast of Man ... 8 "

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State ... 24 pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead ... 24 "
Ghostology ... 48 "
Man's Future State ... 12 "
The Key of Truth ... 24 "

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved ... 24 pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment ... 12 "
Future Punishment Destruction ... 12 "
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts) ... 12 "
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Lost 24 "
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary ... 24 "
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality ... 12 "

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one) ... 36 pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one) ... 36 "
One Thing ... 12 "
Judson's Letter on Dress ... 12 "
Duty of Christians (a peace tract) ... 24 "
Leaflets for Letters,—5 cents per set.

EXPOSITORY WORKS ON PROPHECY. BY S. S. BREWER.

1. The Days in which we Live. This is a concise history of the Four Great Monarchies—Babylon, Medo-Persia, Grecia, Rome, [illegible]

2. An Exposition of the Seven Seals. History and facts applied [illegible]

3. The Slaying of the Witnesses. Showing that the "Second Woe" [illegible]

4. A Treatise on Revelation XIII, in Two Parts. [illegible]

5. The Kingdom of God and Signs of the Times. [illegible]

6. The Last Day Tokens. No. 1. [illegible]

7. Last Day Tokens. No. 2 is an answer to the [illegible]

8. Last Day Tokens. No. 3. [illegible]

9. The Great Image soon to be dashed to pieces. [illegible]

10. The History of an Immortal Soul. Mythology and Theology. [illegible]

11. Rich Man and Lazarus. New edition, [illegible]

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace, or The Doctrine of a Future Life, by C. F. Hudson. [illegible]

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery on occasion of [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? With [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to [illegible]

Blain's Tracts.

Price.—1 cent for every 8 pages; postage, 2 cents on every package of 32 pages, or less.

Endless Misery not a Bible Doctrine ... 32 pages.
The Wicked not Immortal (with 200 proof texts) ... 16 "
Bible Meaning of the word Hell ... 16 "
Bible Meaning of Forever and Everlasting ... 16 "
Books of Torment and Unquenchable Fire ... 8 "
Rev. John Foster's Letter on Future Punishment ... 8 "

For the World's Crisis.

LORD.

O God, thou knowest every heart,
And e'en this heart of mine;
Thanks, thanks to thee that thou art Judge,
Thou God of TRUTH divine.

I bow before thy mercy seat,
And there the past recall;
My words, my works, my ways, my thoughts,—
O Lord, thou knowest them all.

So when my foes misjudge my heart,
And try to spoil my name,
Thy spirit answers to mine own,
That thy love is the same.

While adverse winds may round me blow,
And trials be my lot,
My heart shall rest in Christ alone,
The Friend that changeth not.

Amid life's cares and bitter tears
Thou my support shalt be,
And when shall end these tedious years,
I shall thy glory see.

Amen! amen! O, blessed hope,
Let this my soul inspire;
It points me to an endless rest,
And faith shall bring it nigher.

MARIA MATHEWS WEAVER.

North Dana, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

EVERY WORD OF GOD.

BRO. GRANT:—How shall we understand these words of our blessed Lord, "Man shall live by every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of God"? Or, suppose we inquire first what it does or may not mean. It can not mean that a man shall read and comprehend all of God's wonderfully revealed power at once. He says to his disciples, on another occasion, "I have many things to say unto you, but ye cannot bear them now." "All that the Lord has spoken, by the mouth of all the holy prophets," might be compared to a great feast, spread out upon many tables, and all are invited to partake freely.

Now it cannot mean that all the young, the weak, and sickly guests shall be fed from, or required to eat and digest all these luxurious truths, and comprehend them at once or suddenly. There should be some wise steward at hand, who should "rightly divide the word of God, and give to each one a portion in due season." I have seen stewards who do not seem to be wise, but insist that all should partake, indiscriminately; "and thereby some have become sickly." Others have seemed to gather up all on the table, and make it into a "hash," or some indigestible compound; so that those who wished to discriminate could not do so.

Now, with your leave, I would like to illustrate some of their different cases. I will begin with some of the most simple, and if I get too far, you will please stop me. There are some of the words which "proceedeth out of the mouth of God" which must belong to separate dishes, or perhaps be strewn on different tables of the wide-spread feast I have supposed. The guests who must be fed with care and caution, must be treated kindly. Some cannot eat "meat." Rather than to offend such, the strong and manly Paul says he would "eat no more meat while the world standeth." I suppose he means that if he sits along side of that brother with the "feeble knees." It would be very absurd to suppose Paul should not sit at some other table, along with full grown "men in Christ Jesus," when stronger food was allowed by the "wise steward."

Paul takes a still stronger, or rather weaker case than this, for he says that babes must be fed on the "sincere milk of the word, that they may grow thereby." But if babes are brought to the same table in this "feast of fat things," they must be left to the discretion of the tender mother; or if she has not the discretion or courage to discriminate, let there be the "wise steward" at her elbow. What I am most anxious to see done is, that those who want a little stronger food, shall have it; but still not offend those who must have milk or "herbs" for the present.

In order for this, the condescension should not be all on one side. Brethren troubled with that prevalent complaint called "feeble knees," must take a share of this christian grace called condescension. I know it seems hard to place a rich dish on the table before them, beyond the power of their feeble digestion; and I would go as far as any one to remove every "stone of stumbling and rock of offence," lest they stumble and their weakness be increased thereby. But something must be done soon, or the prevalent divisions in the "household of faith" will become scandalous. Already the divisions are great.

I was very familiar with the Advent "household of faith" at its earliest gatherings. There was great harmony then in the family. It was a small family then—one favorable bond of union. The outside pressure was also great, but perhaps not greater than now. This always tends to secure union. They could all gather around one table then, which was another favorable circumstance. There was very little served up at table, but one great dish. But sooner or later there must come a change, where a little variety is called for, that brother or sister, who thought any other dish than the one great staple was needed, soon began to feel the sharp elbow near them, and they must either retire, or keep silent.

Being among this latter class, I was obliged to keep still; but I never broke fellowship. I predicted what has followed. The family were kept together for a considerable time, and I must say it was the happiest family I ever saw. I was not held in full fellowship. But they could not keep me away from their family gatherings, nor mar my happiness by their exclusiveness. If I could not sit down at table with them, nearly all the stewards were among my early friends, and I always fared well.

Subsequently, I saw this great, increasing, harmonious family break up. The want of variety in diet was not the only cause of the unhealthy symptoms which first appeared, leading to this sad result. The first, chief steward (as honest a man as ever lived) was somewhat deficient in Bible studies in his youth. When he came to the study of that blessed Book, he brought with him a strong mind, but not having time to study and compare "every word which proceedeth out of the mouth of God," he seized upon one of the grandest features of that word, and every theory was in some way made to harmonize with this view, and put into his one great dish, for the family feast.

No one better understood, and more gladly appreciated, the excellences of that chief steward than myself. But, with all charity, I must say he failed in one thing. He did not rightly divide the word of God on all points. But there is another cause, worse than this, whereby divisions have arisen in this once united family. Some of the subordinate stewards have not only wrongly divided "the word of God," giving portions out of "due season," and in undue proportions, but have introduced foreign elements, not found among all the words which have proceeded out of the mouth of God.

How I have been pained by an example of this kind, one "out west," for instance; and to see that the New York Independent has taken occasion from that to bring discredit upon every branch of the family. It even attempts to make the Crisis shoulder the whole responsibility of the irregularities there practised. Now all the main branch of this once united family retain more or less of great and glorious truths, whatever of error may be unconsciously retained. I have not broken fellowship with any one branch of the family, nor do I intend to. I do not consider myself responsible for any remaining errors. I would most gladly aid in the removal of any or every error remaining.

Now, Mr. Editor, pardon these hasty and crude illustrations. If one member, or one branch of the Advent family suffer, I suffer with them. That cruel article I read in the Independent yesterday, wounded me deeply. It has recalled afresh to my mind recollections of the trials and the severe discipline to which the Advent family have been subject. O! that men would heed the words of our ever blessed Lord, that "it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the depths of the sea, than to offend one of these little ones." "Should not my shepherd feed the flock?" says God. Why have the flock been scattered? Because the old appointed shepherds feed themselves, and neglect to give the great needed "portion of meat in due season."

D. C.

For the World's Crisis.

LETEERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF CHRISTIAN EXPERIENCE.

NUMBER EIGHTEEN.

To Bro. J., (continued).—I read the memoirs of Bramwell, Carvosso, Mrs. Fletcher, and others of by-gone days; and while I feel a spirit of sympathy with them, I can but think that were they now moving and acting in our midst as they then did, the presence of the living would not be so much loved and cherished as the memory of the dead.

In their day they suffered persecution and reproach; now they are honored. The faithful prophets were hated and put to death, but in after days their tombs were whitened, their sepulchres garnished, and those who thus did them honor, shocked at the impiety of their fathers, exclaim with indignation, "If we had lived in the days of our fathers, we would not have been partakers with them in the blood of the prophets!" And yet those divinely commissioned ones who were then uttering their denunciations against the unrighteous nation were by these boastful Pharisees persecuted and slain! And I verily believe that were Mrs. Fletcher, whose memoir I am now perusing with interest, to appear now upon the stage of action with her "signs," "dreams" and "impressions," which she claims were from God; and were she as formerly to lead classes, and preach the gospel, standing sometimes upon a horse-block; traveling hundreds of miles a year, proclaiming the gospel from place to place; we verily believe the same spirit of opposition would be aroused, and multitudes who now respect her memory would be ready to condemn her as a visionary, an enthusiast, and fanatic.

In reading the memoirs of primitive Methodists and Baptists, we find that they were firm believers in those things which you so expressly repudiate; and allow me to say, with all frankness, that I would give more for their type of piety, with all of its homeliness of manifestation, than I would for that refined, popular, dressed-up religion, which is so prevalent in our day. For "dreams," and "visions," and "signs," and "special providences," and "the voice of the Spirit," we have the authority of the old-fashioned Bible, for Jacob dreamed, Joseph dreamed, Gideon dreamed, Paul dreamed, Moses had signs given in confirmation of his mission, Gideon also; Joshua had a sign, so had Hezekiah and others; Philip heard the voice of the Spirit saying, "Go join thyself to that chariot"; and Peter was directed by visions and the Spirit's revealings in respect to his fields of labor.

The outpouring of the Spirit was a special and enlarged blessing for the church in the last days, and it was to be attended by signs, and dreams, and visions, and the prophesying of servants and handmaids. It commenced on the day of Pentecost,—did it terminate there? Methinks the "last days" must needs extend to the end of time, and if so, will not the outpouring of the Spirit be accompanied by those same manifestations?

The fact that many have been led astray into error by following impressions and dreams, and deceived in various ways, is no more reason why we should repudiate them wholly, than it would be for us to reject all coin because much is counterfeit. The counterfeit proves the existence of the true; so the efforts of Satan to counterfeit the voice of God proves that he does communicate by his Spirit to the hearts of his people, and instead of its leading us to reject all impressions, signs, dreams, etc., it ought rather to lead us to be very wary, as we would be in regard to the reception of a bank-note, and compare them by the great detector, the Bible.

For many years I have stood up in vindication of that which you so decidedly reject; and while you say that the times are changed, and that the special call to the work of the ministry—the inward teachings of the Spirit, and the will of God communicated by dreams and visions are in the past, there is a wide difference of opinion between us respecting the cause.

The glory of the Mosaic dispensation was done away by the exceeding glory of the Christian economy, and as before said, the introduction of the latter was more emphatically attended by the Spirit's teachings—dreams and visions, and we have no prophetic word showing that they were to be superseded by a brighter light, until the dawn of the millennial glory. But we do find predictions respecting the departure of some from the faith, and the prevalence of a formal religion in the last of the "last days." I rejoice that this faith is not quite lost to the church; that there are yet some who will contend for the "old paths, and walk therein," although it makes them emphatically a "peculiar people."

I have written quite at length, and very plainly, this expression of my views, and I hope you will receive it with the same spirit of christian kindness with which it has been dictated. Yours truly, M. D. W.

For the World's Crisis.

CHRONOLOGY.—No. 6.

An attempt has been made to extend the time of Augustus' death to A. D. 19, or six years beyond the true date of that event. As some, like myself, have been misled by the argument for such a position, and as a few even now seem to believe it is unanswerable, we will examine the foundation upon which it is built, by consulting Dr. Jarvis' chronology, which is claimed to contain the proof. An extract which the Dr. cites from Dion Cassius is the main prop, and reads thus:—"At the celebration of his birthday this year (Sept. 23d,) a deranged person seated himself in the chair of Julius Cæsar, took his crown, and put it on his own head. This to Augustus seemed a portent of his own death, and such it truly was; for, in the following summer, in which Sextus Appuleius and Sextus Pompeius were consuls, Augustus went into Campania and died at Nola. There was a total eclipse of the sun, and a great part of the heavens seemed to be on fire, and blood-red comets were seen."

"Eusebius states the same," says the advocate of the A. D. 19 theory, "both using language which cannot be construed into any other meaning than a total eclipse." To this we reply, that Eusebius does not use the word "total" at all, but states in his Chronicon, at the 198th Olympiad, "There happened an eclipse of the sun when Augustus died." But more of Eusebius hereafter.

Now for Dion's testimony. Let it be borne in mind that Dr. Jarvis is not perplexed with Dion's assertion. Instead of trying to evade its force, as something that stood in the way of assigning A. D. 13, as the true date for Augustus' death, he is defending it against Petavius, who denied that there was any solar eclipse when Cæsar died. (Petavius was trying to establish A. D. 14 for the Emperor's death, and, as he found no solar eclipse there, he said Dion and Eusebius were mistaken.) "It was sufficiently near to a total eclipse," says Jarvis, "to be so designated by the historian." And in regard to the credibility of Eusebius, the Dr. remarks:—"Petavius acknowledges that Eusebius speaks of an eclipse of the sun in the same year in which Augustus died. The words are, as translated from the Arminian version, 'Defectio Solis facta, et Augustus mortunus est,'—an eclipse of the sun takes place and Augustus dies. St. Jerome, in his translation of Eusebius, and Syncellus, say the same thing. Petavius further acknowledges that this eclipse was calculated by Gerard Mercator, an astronomer of no mean reputation, and found to have taken place in the year of Nabonassar 760, when the sun was in 6 deg. 15 min. of Taurus." The era of Nabonassar began B. C. 747, therefore 760 answers to A. D. 13, and Dr. J. justly claims the testimony of Eusebius as concurrent authority for placing Augustus' death there.

And now we wish to carefully examine the testimony of Dion Cassius. We have given the extract from his history which is claimed as proof that A. D. 19, when a total eclipse was seen at Rome, is the true date of Augustus' death, because Dion has called the annular eclipse, which occurred in A. D. 13, when Sextus Appuleius and Sextus Pompeius were consuls, a "total" one. As this position is strenuously defended by some, it will be seen that Dion's little adjective "total" is one of vast importance in their estimation. Some of the effects of relying upon it are as follows:—

1st. It became the foundation of a theory which fixed the death of Augustus in A. D. 19, the fifteenth of Tiberius in A. D. 34, the death of Tiberius in A. D. 42, and the birth of Christ four years later than our Vulgar Era.

2nd. So strong is the confidence that some of the advocates of the above theory place in Dion's little word, that, instead of confessing the arrangement of the "Seventy Weeks," which was made upon it, a failure, they contend that the 2300 prophetic years of Dan. 8th ended in A. D. 1859.

3d. Others, who confess the above theory a failure, still hold on to A. D. 19, or A. D. 17, as the date of Augustus' death, and oppose them to writers on prophecy who name any point for that event between those years (see Crisis of May 9th—death of Augustus Cæsar) and all because of the little word!

4th. Such a use of this word, making it fix such a late date for Cæsar's death, opposes the judgment of all modern readers and writers of history (except those who invented the argument we are considering); it opposes ancient historians, both Jewish and Roman.

5th. It makes Dion Cassius contradict himself, and obliges us to rule out both him and his little word, so that the argument built upon it is good for nothing. But more of Dion hereafter.

JOHN LYLE.

For the World's Crisis.

LIVING TEMPLES.

"Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the spirit of God dwelleth in you?"—1 COR. 3: 16.

When Solomon had completed the great and famous Temple he said, "Will GOD in very deed dwell with men on the earth? Behold, heaven, and the heaven of heavens cannot contain thee: how much less this house that I have built."—2 Chron. 6: 18. And the humble christian when he reads and tries to believe that his poor vile body is a temple of the HOLY SPIRIT, says, "Can it be that the great JEHOVAH will dwell in such a house? Yes, it is so of a truth.

Reader, pray earnestly that you may now have a deep and realizing sense of this momentous truth. How carefully should we examine ourselves, how diligently should we prove ourselves, to see whether we be in the faith, and how careful we must be that we defile not this temple. Have ye not read what JESUS did, how he made a scourge of small cords, and drove out all the traders and merchants, and overthrew the tables of the money changers, and the seats of them that sold doves. And, think you, would not he find some such things in your heart? Does not he say unto you, "Take these things hence! Make not my FATHER'S HOUSE a house of merchandise."

The dividing line is being drawn, and it will soon be seen who is on the Lord's side. The thought is an overwhelming one. THE TEMPLE MUST BE CLEANSED. "Be ye holy, for I am holy." "Be ye therefore perfect, even as your FATHER which is in heaven is perfect."

Halting professor! there is a spirit and wisdom that you cannot gainsay nor resist. You must be holy or you must perish! It is not for me, now and here to say, whether you can become holy in an instant. But it is for me to say that if you do not strive to be holy, you will continue in sin, outer darkness.

Lukewarm christian! you must move. The order is from the CAPTAIN of our salvation. You must either cleanse the temple, and draw the sword in defence of the truth, or suffer the deserter's fate. "How long halt ye between two opinions?" "Choose ye this day whom ye will serve." This is no time to pick flaws, or argue on points of doctrine. The hosts are now being marshalled for the battle of the great day. You must either fight against GOD, or for him.

"Examine yourselves, whether ye be in the faith; prove your own selves. Know ye not your own selves, how that JESUS CHRIST is in you except ye be reprobates? But I trust that ye shall know that we are not reprobates."—2 Cor. 13: 5, 6. "Know ye not that ye are the temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?"

Sutton, Mass. F. H. CHAMBERLAIN.

For the World's Crisis.

WALLINGFORD CAMPMEETING.

To brethren dear and sisters who congregated there,
I need not say, the Father blest in answer to our prayer.
The air and water both were pure, the earth seemed holy ground,
A sweet solemnity, as though God's angels hovered round.
No words of bickering and strife in that blest place were heard;
The preaching all was excellent, and many hearts were stirred.
The songs were sweet and heavenly; and, floating on the air,
Came to our ear, through all the camp, the words of ardent prayer.
No harm or molestation came, nor aught to make afraid,
As quietly and peacefully our heads to rest we laid;
And as beneath the snow-white tents the sleepers safe were hid,
No sound disturbed the midnight air, save the quaint "Katy did."
Such quietness and harmony, such unaffected love,
Such kind forbearance toward each, was surely from above.
When at the sacramental board each sat a willing guest,
The Savior's body we discerned, and thus were truly blest.
Blest in the hope, above all hopes, though we His absence mourn,
Our Elder Brother is alive, and says I will return.
We've waited long, we're waiting still, we'll wait and not despair,
The festive board will soon be spread, He'll take the vacant chair;
His blessed voice will then be heard to every waiting one,
"You served me there, I'll serve you here; ye faithful saints, well done."
The last day came; 'tis ever thus, things earthly have an end,
And earth-like too, a parting came, and friend must part with friend;
And smiles and tears, and hopes and fears, and joy so mixed with sighs,
One scarce could tell which most prevailed when speaking our good byes.
As last of all I wandered there, and marked each hallowed place,
Where tents had been and now were gone, I knelt and asked for grace
That I might walk so humbly here, so faithful be, and true,
That I might meet you all again, when earth shall be made new.
Let prayer arise from every heart, that in the world to come,
As fruits of this blest gathering here, some may be gathered home.

Cheshire, Conn. M. L. DURAND.

A CALL TO PREACH.

The inward and direct call, I define to be, a deep and abiding impression made upon man's heart by the Holy Ghost that he is called of God to preach the gospel. Ordinarily, this is associated with a satisfactory consciousness that his sins are forgiven, and he is reconciled to God through the blood of the Lamb. This impression is sometimes imparted to the mind about the period of conversion; more frequently, months or years afterwards. There have been instances, not a few, when individuals have postponed their conversion on that single account. The cases are not rare where the call remains upon the conscience, even in a backslidden state. The "why and wherefore" connected with such peculiar periods of this manifestation of the Spirit is not for man to know; as "it is not for" us "to know the times or the seasons which the Father hath put in his own power."

In some, the call is little more than a solitary idea in the mind; it abides there, and seems in fact, to form a part of the mind itself, or thinking faculty; but without creating any serious trouble or uneasiness. To such it is rather pleasing than otherwise. The mind remains quiet and passive, because there stands associated with the idea, another impression,—the time is not yet,—"Tarry ye in Jerusalem until ye be indued with power from on high." In others, however, the call is imperative and immediate. The mind is arrested and commanded by a power that is invisible. Sin, and its penalties; Jesus Christ, and his bloody agonies; the law of God with its dreadful sanctions; redemption with its involving responsibilities; and poor lost sinners, with all their appalling jeopardies;—all these things are spread before the mind daily, accompanied with one all-absorbing conviction, "A dispensation of the gospel is committed unto me; woe is unto me if I preach not the gospel."

This inward call, in another mind, may resolve itself into a willing, cheerful, active, obedient principle. The mind habitually is in the mood subjunctive:—"If the Lord has called me to work for him, I am willing to go to the ends of the earth; let him only open my way." This is the constant language of the heart. In the mean time, the person called to preach is active for God now; nor does he idly wait for some great door to be opened, that he might accomplish some wonderful achievement, in the conversion of many thousand sinners; nor does he desire to pass, by a single step, from being a private member, to the position of a regular ordained minister. He begins immediately, and at every proper opportunity, exhorts his fellow sinners to turn to God. It matters not whether the next company he shall meet may amount to two, a dozen, a score, or a hundred; he determines they shall hear the truth, if by any means he may save some. He concerns not himself any moment whether he is to be a hewer of wood or a drawer of water; whether his Lord has ordained him to be a vessel of gold, or silver, or earth. His heart is filled with righteousness and everlasting love. Perishing sinners engross his tenderest compassion. He would do anything in his power to save them. But love gives speed to his chariot wheels; or, rather, he is borne upward and along on the wings of faith and love, restlessly desiring and vigorously pursuing the salvation of all around him.

I do not envy the position of those ministers, however splendid their talents, however honorable their titles, however valuable their emoluments, who can quietly deliver Sabbath messages, and return again to the enjoyment of their beloved seclusion, there to spend the week, without a tear, or a sigh, or a groan for the perishing thousands around them. O, my God! what will become of such ministers, when thou comest down to make inquisition for the lost, who might have been saved, had such ministers been faithful to their high calling, and labored night and day to bring the wandering back to Christ? O, my soul, enter thou not into their condemnation!—Earnest Christian.

For the World's Crisis.

A THOUGHT.

Sisters, when persons come into your house, do you speak to them, offer them a seat, and treat them with courtesy? You do. Well, there came a poor woman into your meeting last Sunday, a bashful old washerwoman, so shabby that she would not enter a more fashionable place. At intermission no one came near her. You huddled together, talked, laughed, maybe looked askance at the stranger, but no one went up and made her feel welcome there. So she went home feeling that no one cared for her soul, no one sympathized with her in her poverty. And so she continues her accustomed visits among those that will welcome her.

O! how many poor souls might be brought to Christ if we would only be humble and diligent. We are too formal, and, alas! too unmindful of the poor. Those who say, "If they were not slack or imprudent they need not be poor," are mistaken in some cases. Sickness excuses some. It is our duty to help the needy, but there is so much selfishness among us that few care how others prosper. If we felt for our neighbors as we ought, we would gather them in to meeting, or at least make them feel as though we saw them when they come of their own accord. Now next time a stranger comes in to your meetings, go and speak a friendly word. Don't commence on "the sleep of the dead" the first thing. Be cautious—"wise as serpents, harmless as doves." Try it. May be there are some of your brethren and sisters staying at home from meetings on account of this very thing. Hunt them up, and show them "brotherly kindness." M. MATTHEWS WEAVER.

Canada, 1865.

THE EFFECTS OF SMOKING.

The remarkable research made by M. Bouisson upon the danger of smoking has attracted the notice of the Academie, and has been rewarded with high praise. The horrors hitherto unknown, or unacknowledged, with which smokers are threatened, nay more, convicted by M. Bouisson, are sufficient upon bare anticipation to ruin the revenue, and pipe makers also. Cancer in the mouth he declares to have grown so frequent by the use of tobacco, that it now forms one of the most dreaded diseases in the hospitals, and at Montpelier, where M. Bouisson resides, the operation of its extraction forms the principal practice of the surgeons there. In a short period of time, from 1845 to 1859, M. Bouisson himself performed sixty-eight operations for cancer in the lips at the hospital Saint Eloi.

The writers on cancer previous to our day mention the rare occurrence of the disease in the lips, and it has become evident that it must have increased of late years in proportion with the smoking of tobacco. M. Bouisson proves this fact by the relative increase in the French duties on tobacco, which, in 1812, brought an annual amount of twenty-five millions, and now gives a revenue of one hundred and thirty millions, almost that attained by the duties on wines and spirits, and far beyond that rendered by those on sugar. M. Bouisson remarks, justly or not, that "this figure, extravagant as it may appear, fades into insignificace before that attained by the British tax, which, according to Dr. Seymour, amounts to a fabulous sum, in a country where boys smoke from five o'clock in the afternoon till three o'clock in the morning, and where children ten years old are known to consume as many as forty cigars in one day."

M. Bouisson, whose earnestness in the cause does him the utmost credit, advises a general crusade to be preached by the doctors of every country against the immoderate use of tobacco, as being the means of exterminating the habit; because, although the most powerful sovereigns have been powerless to prevent it,—although Sultan Amurath threatened in vain to cut off the noses of those who smoked, and Peter the Great vowed direct vengeance against all smokers, and even the thunders of the Vatican had been hurled against them in vain, there is one thing which mankind holds in more horror than a noseless face, or even an excommunicated soul; and that is an untimely death. Let young men be impressed with this truth, and the "Art of Smoking," which one of our best authors has lately extolled as the finest of all the fine arts, will soon be set aside and forgotten.—London paper.

For the World's Crisis.

PEACEMAKERS.

"Blessed are the peacemakers; for they shall be called the children of God."

These words came from the lips of our Savior "who spake as man never spake." What a rich promise. What an honor to be a child of God. Who would not strive to be a peace-maker? Let us see to it that we manifest this spirit of good will and peace to those around us. Christ has included such with those who are called the salt of the earth, and the light of the world; those who are to let their light shine before men, that they may see their good works, and glorify their Father in heaven. May we be at peace with one another, and, making peace, that we may be able to stand before the Judge of all the earth, and be found with the number who shall enter the kingdom of harmony, peace and love. N. M. WELLS.

Plymouth, Ohio.

EDUCATION.—Thewald thought it very unfair to influence a child's mind by inculcating any opinions before it should have come to years of discretion, and be able to choose for itself. I showed him my garden, and told him it was my botanic garden. "How so?" said he, "it is covered with weeds!" "Oh," I replied, "that is because it has not yet come to its age of discretion and choice. The weeds, you see, have taken the liberty to grow, and I thought it unfair in me to prejudice the soil in favor of roses and strawberries.—Coleridge.

"THEY SAY."—"They" will say any thing and every thing. "They" have said every thing mean and despicable. "They" say things that break up families, crush hearts, blight hopes, and smother worthy aspirations. Whenever a man circulates a slander, and gives "They" as his authority, turn your back upon him.

☞ He who receives a good turn, should never forget it; he who does one, should never remember it.

Hygiene.

"This is for your health."—Paul.

THE TURKISH BATH.

The Turkish bath is, as yet, comparatively unknown in this country. My own first experience in its use, was in the spring of 1862, in Boston, at the recommendation of my esteemed friend, Dr. Dio Lewis. The bath there administered was a modification of the Turkish bath, or really, a Hot Air bath, with a tepid and cold spray afterward. I had read of the high temperature endured by the fire king and others, and told the attendant I would like to have a bath, the temperature of which before closing, should reach that of boiling water; but he very wisely allowed it to reach no higher than 200° Fahrenheit. I received no shampooing and, in fact, no attention but the sweating in the Tepidarium and Sudatorium, and the spray bath afterward. And yet the effect of this single bath so soothed my nervous system, which had been wrought to so high a degree of excitement that I had not slept more than half the night for many weeks, as to induce the most delicious rest and equalization of the circulation which lasted—not for an hour, or for a day, but was permanent, and without reaction. Nowhere had I ever had a bath that seemed to produce so thorough and lasting an effect. Since then I have had many of them, and always with the best results.

By far the most complete baths that have yet been erected in this country are those at No. 13 Laight Street, New York city, by Drs. Miller, Wood & Co., first opened to the public in March, 1865. They are already patronized very largely by the most cultivated and intelligent people of New York. They were the first to introduce shampooing, and, in fact, this is a very important part of the process and has high value.

The benefits which are to accrue from the introduction of the Turkish bath into all our large cities are three-fold:

First, as a preventive of disease. There are certain functions of the body which city life tends to weaken. Most important of these is the skin; shut away as it is from light and air, and, for want of thorough and vigorous and vigorous exercise, rarely performing the function of perspiration as it should, much effete matter is retained, causing colds, fevers, lassitude, headache, rheumatism, neuralgia, and a lack of buoyancy, and that high state of health so desirable in all and attained by so few. The farmer in his daily labors perspires freely, and feels the better for it. The resident of the city perspires little, suffers with heat, retained morbid matter and resultant illness. The Turkish bath, however, artificially and in the most perfect manner promotes this perspiration until the whole body is bathed in sweat, and this, too, without the least effort on the part of the bather, but while in the most delicious state of rest. For weariness produced by over-exertion, either of body or brain, it has no equal. Weariness of all kinds are more readily relieved by the Turkish bath than any other means, sleep of course excepted.

Second, for many diseases this bath has high virtues. Among these are "Cachetic diseases, such as scrofula, consumption in its early stage, malarious fever, remittent and intermittent, biliary derangements, gouty and rheumatic diatheses, dyspepsia and renal disease (especially Bright's,) diabetes, neuralgia, hysteria, female weaknesses, and many nervous and spasmodic complaints, as epilepsy and hypochondriases, paralytic affections, lameness, contracted joints, fatty degenerations, particularly dropsies, diarrhœa and dysentery, influenza, catarrh, bronchitis, and numerous others, make up a long catalogue of maladies that are benefitted or cured by the use of the Turkish bath.

"There are no maladies which assume such protean types as those of the skin; their number is legion. The majority of these affections will yield to the sanative effect of the Turkish bath alone."—Dr. Wollaston, before the British Medical Association.

Particularly is the Turkish bath valuable in conjunction with the Swedish Movement Cure. The bath cleanses, purifies, equalizes the circulation, while the Movement Cure builds up and increases the strength of any organ weaker than the rest, and establishes harmony between the nervous system and the various organs of the body.

Third, the Turkish bath is a luxury. Too great indulgence in luxuries, there is no doubt, tends to produce weakness and effeminacy; but in their normal use, no one can object. Indeed, life, labor, rest, and every function we perform becomes a luxury when enjoyed in the highest degree and not carried to excess. The Turkish bath gives great pleasure because it so effectually cleanses the body. A clean shirt is often spoken of as a great luxury, but how much greater a clean, healthy skin and pure blood. It is a very frequent remark of those who bathe: "Oh, I feel so clean!" Cleanliness comes next to godliness, because it promotes it. A body purified promotes purity of thought, of heart.

For ladies, the Turkish bath possesses all, and more than all, the virtues it has for gentlemen. Physically their habits are so much worse, their skin so much weaker, circulation so much more languid, dress so much more confining, and perspiration so rarely well performed, that it becomes to them a necessity, and one of the greatest luxuries they can enjoy.

A lady in New York who had just, for the first time, taken a Turkish bath at the rooms of Miller, Wood & Co., writes to a friend as follows:

"Fresh from the bath! Did you ever take a Turkish bath, Nell? I fancy not. They are scarce luxuries in this country, but let me describe one to you while I am still glowing with the warmth and friction generously bestowed, and my mind and body sympathizing with each other in elasticity and lightness. I am inclined to have a very good opinion of my looks reflec'ed in the glass, and consider the present fresh, rosy hue, a good exchange for the old sallow look. But come with me and take a bath, in imagination at least, and see if it is not well worth giving a good deal of pains to enjoy.

We go down a flight of stairs, open a door to the right and enter the Frigidarium, which, to translate to your unaccustomed ears, means a nice, comfortable room, filled with easy charis, and lined around with little curtained apartments, which are dressing-rooms, ten in number. You enter one of these apartments, disrobe yourself of your attire, and take upon you the bath garment, which is a single garment of rectangular shape and Turkey-red hue, known as a "Cummerbund." This is tied artistically over the right shoulder, passing under the left one, and descends about to the knee; thence you proceed to the next room, the Tepidarium. As you open the door the air within seems hot as an oven—but don't shrink back, you have not reached the hottest place yet—and in a moment or two the sensation is very pleasant. You seat yourself on a softly cushioned lounge; an attendant wets your head in cold water, and wraps your forehead in a wet towel, places a tub of warm water at your feet, and having immersed your feet therein, you lay your head back, fold your hands, and begin to feel at peace with all the world, and, with the soft light from the stained-glass windows upon your eyes, feel as if it would be the easiest thing in the world to go to sleep. Soon the perspiration begins to start, and we are conducted by our attendant from luxurious warmth to luxurious hotness, into what you learn to be the "Sudatorium," meaning, in a free translation, the hot place. You are stretched upon a couch, a sheet thrown over you, and the air envelops you like a liquid blanket, warm, delicious; and there you lie till bathed in a profuse perspiration, and you are wet with tears of sweat. Then you are laid upon the shampooing bench in the middle of the room, and your limbs and body rubbed and kneaded till all the old skin is gone and every joint is limbered, while pains and aches flee to parts unknown. A sponge bath of soap-suds and a shower bath, the temperature gradually lessening from warm to cool; a brisk rubbing with a cotton sheet, and you go back to the Tepidarium, cool a little, and then to the Frigidarium, where for the first time you feel that it deserves its name, from its contrast to the hot air you have been in. But a good, motherly, soft, woolen blanket keeps you warm, and you sit in one of the easy chairs, till you feel ready to go back to the every day world once more fresh with vigor and life."

In closing this brief article, I wish to present the testimony of Dr. Dio Lewis, one whose name is a household word, and who has long been in the habit of using and recommending this bath. He terms it the "Queen of Baths," and that "without doubt it is the most valuable of all baths, and should be urgrd upon the people in a variety of ways. . . . In no other bath is there such an appeal to the skin; in no other is the skin so thoroughly cleaned, and certainly in no other is there such a determination to the surface. In our health establishments this form of bath will become prominent."—M. L. Holbrook, M. D.

GREAT EATERS.

Great eaters never live long. A voracious appetite, so far from being a sign of health, is a certain indication of disease. Some dyspeptics are always hungry; feel best when they are eating, but as soon as they have eaten they endure torments so distressing in their nature, as to make the unhappy victims wish for death. The appetite of health is that which inclines to eat moderately, when eating time comes, and which when satisfied, leaves no unpleasant reminders. Multitudes measure their health by the amount they can eat; and of any ten persons, nine are gratified at an increase of weight, as if mere bulk were an index of health; when in reality, any excess of fatness is, in proportion, decisive proof of existing disease, showing that the absorbents of the system are too weak to discharge their duty; and the tendency to fatness, to obesity, increases until existence is a burden, and sudden death closes the history. Particular inquiry will almost invariably [illegible] it the fact that fat persons, however rubicund and jolly, are never well, and yet they are envied.

While great eaters never live to an old age, and are never for a single day without some "symptom," some feelings sufficiently disagreeable to attract the mind's attention unpleasantly, small eaters, those who eat regularly of plain food, usually have no "spare flesh," are wiry and enduring, and live to an active old age. Remarkable exemplifications of these statements are found in the lives of the centenarians of a past age. Galen, one of the most distinguished physicians among the ancients, lived very sparingly after the age of twenty-eight, and died in his hundred and fortieth year. Kentigern, who never tasted spirits or wine, and worked hard all his life, reached a hundred and eighty-five years. Jenkins, a poor Yorkshire fisherman, who lived on the coarsest diet, was one hundred and sixty-nine years old when he died.—Hall's Journal of Health.

CAUSES OF DISEASE.

A family living in Fishkill, N. Y., consisting of seven persons, lost six of its number by death between the 28th of July and the 17th of August. They lived, it is said, in a house surrounded on all sides by large trees, shutting out the sun nearly all the day. And the sink water was also allowed to wind ito slow course through the yard, and to these two circumstances, not uncommon, the deaths were all attributed by the attending physician. We have known of instances where houses completely shut in by shade trees have produced constant sickness in the family and the death of a majority of its members from debility and consumption. The trouble disappeared in a measure with the letting in of the sun. In many a house in villages and the country where there is no excuse for such neglect, the reservoirs of waste matter from the house are allowed to lie uncovered, or conducted on to the grass or garden, and left to breathe out dangerous exhalations in the air. Thus the owners of situations possessing every natural advantage for health allow them to sink to the level of the city, where such evils cannot always be avoided. While the guardians of a city are particularly bound to have a care for cleanliness in this season of dreaded visitation, it becomes all persons everywhere to see that every precaution is taken to insure a good sanitary condition of their dwellings.

PURE AIR IN SICK ROOMS.—Throw open the doors, hoist the windows, and let the sick have pure fresh air. Very many perish from a dense, impure atmosphere. To breathe and rebreathe the noisome, filthy, gas-laden atmosphere that hangs like a pall around the bed of a sick man, is destruction to persons in health. The lungs become diseased, the blood infected, and the well man prostrated by continually taking in the same air in a room from which all outside air is excluded. Persons, therefore, should be careful to prevent children from staying any length of time in the room of a sick person, and especially from sleeping in such a room.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

TERMS:

If paid in advance..............$2.50 a year.
If not paid within six months....$3.00 a year.
Five copies, six months, to one address..........$5.60.
Same rate for any larger number under ten.
Ten copies, six months, to one address............$10.00
Same rate for any number over ten.

CLUB PRICES PAYABLE ALWAYS IN ADVANCE.

POSTAGE.—The postage, in the United States, on each single copy of the Crisis, is 20 cents a year, payable quarterly, in advance, at the office of delivery.

RULES FOR CORRESPONDENTS.—Over all matters not intended for publication, write PRIVATE.
Over all business matters, write BUSINESS.
Over all articles for the paper, write FOR THE CRISIS.
All articles should be accompanied by the writer's name, for the Editor's information, even if it is not published.
When the names of new subscribers are sent, please say they are new, and it will save us much labor.

PRIVATE LETTERS.—Those wishing to address the Editor on matters not connected with the office, will please write the word PRIVATE on the outside of the envelope.
Please put the business matters and appointments on a piece of paper separate from other communications.
All persons writing to the office should give DISTINCTLY and PLAINLY the Post Office, County and State at which they wish to be addressed; and all orders, subscriptions, communications and remittances, should be plainly directed to

MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

PUBLISHED ALSO AT THE SAME OFFICE, Semi-monthly,

THE YOUNG PILGRIM:

An Illustrated Sunday-School Paper,

FOR CHILDREN AND YOUTH.

TERMS:
Payable always in advance.

[illegible]

SUBSCRIPTIONS MAY COMMENCE with January, April, or [illegible]

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

"BEHOLD, I COME QUICKLY; AND MY REWARD IS WITH ME"

WHOLE NO. 520. BOSTON, TUESDAY, SEPTEMBER 19, 1865. VOL. XXII.—NO. 1.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER,
Issued every Tuesday Afternoon, at
167 HANOVER STREET, BOSTON.

MILES GRANT, EDITOR.

EDITORIAL COMMITTEE:
S. G. MATHEWSON, WM. A. MITCHELL, JOHN COUCH.

PUBLISHING COMMITTEE:
H. F. CARPENTER, H. V. DAVIS, S. S. BREWER, J. G. HAMBLIN, D. MATHEWSON.

GEORGE T. ADAMS,
TREASURER AND BUSINESS AGENT.

☞ THE CRISIS is devoted to the exposition of all Bible truth; especially the doctrine of the immediate, personal coming and reign of Christ on the earth; holiness of heart; the unconscious state of the dead; their literal resurrection, and final destruction of the wicked.

ANSWERS.

I prayed for faith, and o'er earth and sea
Clouds drifted low;
The night came on apace, with wind and rain,
And blinding snow,
And on my heart there lay a nameless dread;
How should I go?

I still prayed on—God surely would not cast
My prayer aside,
For he has promised in the darkest hour
To light provide;
And when the storm beat fiercest, Faith appeared
My steps to guide.

I prayed for guidance, and my feet were led.
A dreary way;
Down rugged steeps, and over chasms wide,
My journey;
A desolate and lonely path was mine
From day to day.

I prayed for patience, and a heavy weight
Pressed on my breast;
The sorrow that I dreaded crept in
To mar my rest.
Joy's garlands faded, and the hopes proved vain
That I loved best.

I prayed, and God my Father answered me
In his own way;
He sent the darkness, that unquestioning thro' faith
I might obey;
And after night's drear tempest, find
Love's perfect day.

My prayer for guidance too was not in vain,
My heart he knew;
And how the path I gladly would have trod,
Though fair to view,
Was not the narrow one that leads to rest,
Perfect and true.

And so he led me in his own good way,
And when I cried,
And asked for patience, then my pains and grief
He multiplied,
That my poor heart might sooner yield its will
To his, my Guide;
And thro' my tears and anguish claim this hope,—

Selected by E. P. Robinson.

For the World's Crisis.

THE DIVINITY AND SON-SHIP OF JESUS CHRIST."

BY O. R. FASSETT.

"In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the word was God. The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not any thing made that was made. In him was life; and the life was the light of men. And the light shineth in darkness; and the darkness comprehended it not. There was a man sent from God, whose name was John. The same came for a witness, to bear witness of the light, that all men through him might believe. He was not that light, but was sent to bear witness of that light. That was the true light, which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not. He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name; which were born, not of blood, nor of the will of the flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God. And the Word was made flesh, and dwelt among us, (and we beheld his glory, the glory as of the only begotten of the Father), full of grace and truth.—JOHN 1. 1–14.

On the very threshold of this sublime subject, we stand in awe and reverence, and with wonder and admiration exclaim with an apostle, "And without controversy, great is the mystery of godliness; God was manifested in the flesh, justified in the Spirit, seen of angels, preached unto the Gentiles, believed on in the world, received up into glory,"—1 Tim. 3: 16.

Having been requested to discourse upon these scriptures, I felt that I could not do it without carefully reviewing the whole scriptures bearing upon the divinity of Jesus Christ, to confirm my own faith and hope in him; and to be able to set before you this great revealed mystery clearly and distinctly. I have therefore canvassed the whole subject, and am prepared to give my views without the fear or favor of man, and only in the sight of God. Henceforth, I shall hold every man accountable to God for any misrepresentation of my views, as they may be known; and this I say, because I understand that I am regarded a heretic, and you, my brethren, as heretical upon the divinity of Christ. If these things were not said of us, we could not be regarded as the servants of our divine Lord, nor claim his promise, "Blessed are ye when men revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice, and be exceeding glad; for great is your reward in heaven; for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you."—Matt. 5: 11, 12.

There is not, perhaps, in the whole volume of the word of God a clearer revelation of both the divinity and the pre-existence of our Savior before his incarnation, than this written by John. Indeed, nothing could be more plainly written upon this subject. The Word was in existence before the world; he was in existence at the time of creation, and "was with God"; he "was God"; and "the Word was made flesh," etc. And Jesus himself adds in respect to the Word, "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life."—Jno. 3: 16.

In the contemplation of our theme, we shall consider

I. How Jesus Christ, or the Word, is the Son of God.

II. The peculiarity of his generation.

III. In what respect he differs from others who are called sons of God; and how he is the only-begotten Son of God.

This, I think, will cover the whole ground we need to contemplate. And I ask a candid hearing. Not a stoic's indifference, or a critic's opposition; but the hearing of reasonable and accountable men.

"What think ye of Christ?" (Matt. 22: 42) is a most important question for us all to consider, and the answer we give to it involves in fact our own eternal salvation. Jesus "asked his disciples, Whom do men say that I, the Son of man am? And they said, Some say that thou art John the Baptist; some, Elias; and others, Jeremias, or one of the prophets." The world has no knowledge or comprehension of who the Word is. v. 10. Then Jesus "saith unto them, But whom say ye that I am? And Simon Peter answered and said, Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God. And Jesus answered and said unto him, Blessed art thou, Simon Bar-jona; for flesh and blood hath not revealed it unto thee, but my Father which is in heaven." From which we learn that a revelation of the Son of God to men's understanding is by the Father; and to those especially blessed of him as his chosen. And Jesus himself says in his memorable prayer to his Father in heaven, "This is life eternal, that they may know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom thou hast sent." A knowledge of the Father and the Son is the assurance of "eternal life." No subject therefore is second to this. I commend it to your most serious and prayerful thoughts. May the Holy Spirit aid us in the study and contemplation of the Scriptures respecting the Son of God. We are to notice,

I. How Christ or the Word is the Son of God.

1st. Because he was begotten by the Holy Spirit, of the Virgin Mary, as says the angel—"The Holy Ghost shall come upon thee, and the power of the Highest shall overshadow thee; therefore also that holy thing which shall be born of thee shall be called the Son of God." "He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest," etc.—Luke 1: 32, 35. The Holy Spirit is the third person in the Godhead, and hence is God. Therefore Jesus Christ must be the Son of God; otherwise he is the son of a mere creature. This must be apparent to all. Reference in the scripture is had to "the body of Jesus Christ." Heb. 10: 5, 10.

2nd. Because he was raised from the dead immediately by the power of God to an immortal life. In the second Psalm God says, "Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee." v. 7. The chronology of this prophecy, in its fulfillment, is on the resurrection of the person of Jesus Christ from the dead, as is evident in the apostle's application of it. "God hath fulfilled the same unto us their children, in that he hath raised up Jesus again; as it is also written in the second Psalm, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee."—Acts 13: 33. "Jesus Christ our Lord was made of the seed of David according to the flesh; and determined to be the Son of God with power, according to the spirit of holiness, by the resurrection from the dead."—Rom. 1: 3, 4. This was the declarative and determining evidence. "He is the . . . first-born from the dead."—Col. 1: 18. Being the first raised from the dead to an immortal existence, by the power of God, he is the Son of God as a person.

3d. Because he is the actual heir of all things, and hence has the title of Son of God. "God . . . hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things. . . . Being made so much better than the angels, as he hath by inheritance obtained a more excellent name than they. For unto which of the angels said he at any time, Thou art my Son; this day have I begotten thee? And again, I will be to him a Son?"—Heb. 1: 1–5.

4th. But besides these, there are other reasons why he is called "the only-begotten Son of God." They underlie the evidence of the fact of his divinity and pre-existence before his manifestation in the flesh. I shall proceed therefore to show:

First, that Jesus Christ, who was conceived by the Holy Spirit, and born of the Virgin Mary, had an actual being and existence before his coming in the flesh. We give the testimony of Jesus himself upon this point. "No man hath ascended up to heaven, but he that came down from heaven, even the Son of man which is in heaven." "He that cometh from above is above all; he that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth; he that cometh from heaven is above all."—John 3: 13, 31. "For I came down from heaven." "What and if ye shall see the Son of man ascend up where he was before?"—John 6: 38, 62. "I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world; again, I leave the world, and go to the Father."—John 16: 28.

From these declarations of Christ, we learn that he was once actually in heaven, and that he really descended from thence; that he came forth from the Father, and came into the world. This part of Christ must have been in existence before that born of the Virgin Mary, and been distinct from that born of her; for that which was born of her was never in heaven before the time of which he speaks, and never descended from thence; nor did he ascend in that body until forty days after his resurrection from the dead. John 20: 17; Acts 1: 3–9. In this particular, he is distinguished from the first Adam. "The first man is of the earth, earthy; the second man is the Lord from heaven."—1 Cor. 15: 47. Adam was immediately "formed . . . of the dust of the ground" (Gen. 2: 7), and no part of him; and in no sense could it be said of him that he "came down from heaven." Nor could he say to his cotemporaries, as did Christ, "What and if ye shall see" (me) "ascend up where" (I) "was before?" But Jesus in truthfulness could say, "I came forth from the Father, and am come into the world; again, I leave the world, and go to the Father"; and hence, while "the first man" had his origin of the earth, "the second man is the Lord from heaven." And in this particular, he is distinguished from all men. "He that cometh from above is above all; he that is of the earth is earthly, and speaketh of the earth; he that cometh from heaven is above all. As the origin of the race is from the earthly Adam; and "as is the earthy, such are they also that are earthy" (1 Cor. 15: 48), he is above all Adam's posterity in his divine origin. Jesus Christ must therefore have had an existence antecedent to that which he received in the flesh. I shall show,

Second, That his pre-existence was from a certain specified period or space of time.

1st. He had an existence before John the Baptist. This is the testimony of John: "John bear witness of him, and cried, saying, This was he of whom I spake, He that cometh after me is preferred before me; for he was before me."—John 1: 15. Jesus came after John, both in his flesh and ministry, as is well known; and yet John affirms, "He is preferred before me," assigning as a reason, "for he was before me." Reference only can be had by John to the divinity and excellency of his nature, in which he must have existed before the days of John.

2nd. He had an existence before Abraham. This is his own testimony. "Before Abraham was, I am." This denotes a priority of existence. In this sense the Jews whom he addressed certainly understood him; for in surprise they say to a similar saying, "Thou art not yet fifty years old, and hast thou seen Abraham?" And the above declaration so excited their rage, that "they took up stones to cast at him." John 8: 57–59. According to his own testimony, therefore, he had an existence two thousand years before his birth in the flesh.

3d. He was in existence before the world. This is the testimony of John in this record. "The same was in the beginning with God. All things were made by him; and without him was not anything made that was made. . . . He was in the world, and the world was made by him, and the world knew him not." John 1: 2, 3, 10. All this could not be affirmed of him who "was made flesh," etc., (v. 14) with any truthfulness, without an existence anterior to the creation. Jesus himself prays to his Father, "O Father, glorify thou me with thine own self, with the glory which I had with thee before the world was."—John 17: 5. Here is a conscious existence in glory, of which he had a happy memory, "before the world was," to which he prays to be reinstated. We have no knowledge of such a pre-existence of our own. St. Paul gives his testimony, that "by his Son God made the worlds." And quoting the language of David,—"Thou, Lord, in the beginning hast laid the foundation of the earth; and the heavens are the work of thine hands; they shall perish, but thou remainest; and they all shall wax old as doth a garment; and as a vesture shalt thou fold them up, and they shall be changed; but thou art the same, and thy years shall not fail" (Heb. 1: 2, 10, 12), makes application of it to "the Son." v. 8. Thus he ascribes the creation, destruction, or dissolution, and the renewal of the earth and heavens to him beyond equivocation. Therefore he must have existed at least 4000 years before his birth in the flesh.

4th. We will go still further back in eternity, and affirm that he had an existence before any created intelligence in the universe. "Who is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of every creature; for by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible; whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers; all things were created by him, and for him. And he is before all things, and by him all things consist. And he is the head of the body, the church; who is the beginning, the first-born from the dead; that in all things he might have the pre-eminence. For it pleased the Father that in him should all fulness dwell."—Col. 1: 16–19. This scripture unequivocally refers to the Son of God. Even Origen, that stiffest and staunchest of Trinitarians, uses this language to prove the divinity of Jesus Christ, viz: "The first-born of every creature," and as a phrase in opposition to his humanity. But how he could reconcile this language so as to make him "the very eternal God, the Father," we leave him and all other Trinitarians of that school to define.

From these, and other undeniable scriptures, it is proven that he had an existence before the angels, and that they were created by him; as was also man. And when "God said, Let us make man," it was the Father addressing the Son; so also on the fall of man, "Behold the man is become as one of us."—Gen. 1: 26; 3: 22. All the first writers assert that these words were addressed by the Father to the Son.

5th. The epoch of his generation, or when he was brought forth, may be nearer approached by this language of John: "In the beginning was the Word." This is identical with the language of Moses. Gen. 1: 1. How far back in eternity this extends, we do not profess to determine. He was "brought forth" somewhere in the everlasting past, and before "the beginning" of things. This is the name he had in the beginning—the original name he bore before the world was; but little known to the world, and here reproduced by John in this beginning of his record. This name he still bears with others. The rider of the white horse, Rev. 19: 11, 13, 16, is "called the WORD OF GOD." Jesus, was the name given him by the angel, Matt. 1: 21, which his parents gave him on the occasion of his circumcision; and signifies Savior. Christ, is the title of his office, which was his on the occasion of his baptism by the Holy Spirit, and when he began his mission, at about the age of 30, Acts 10: 38, signifying anointed.

There is another name by which he is to be called, when he dwells with his people in the fu[illegible] ages; viz: "IMMANUEL" (Matt. 1: 23), signifying "God with us." This will be ascribed to him, and given him by his chosen people, as they see him revealed from heaven to save them. "And it shall be said in that day, Lo, this is our God."—Isa. 25: 9. "Our God." This name will be given in ecstacy of rapturous joy and surprise, as when Thomas saw and believed in his risen Lord, and said, "My Lord and my God"; i. e., "The Lord of me, and the God of me." John 20: 28. This name he will bear in the world to come. "And God . . . with . . . them . . . himself shall be their God." Rev. 21: 3. Amer. Bible Union Trans.

I will compare a few scriptures in which Jesus Christ is referred to under his original name—"The Word." "By the Word of the Lord were the heavens made; and all the host of them by the breath of his mouth." Ps. 33: 6. "Through faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the Word of God."—Heb. 11: 3. "God . . . hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son, whom he hath appointed heir of all things, by whom also he made the worlds."—Heb. 1: 2. "He that built all things is God."—Heb. 3: 4. "In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and the Word was God. All things were made by him."—John 1: 1–3. "In the beginning God created the heavens and the earth."—Gen. 1: 1.

From these, and the scriptures we have considered, I learn that the Word of God—the Father, spoken, uttered, became by his generative and creative power a living being, clothed and invested with the spirit of life; and this was the generation of his Son. "He spake, and it was done." He said, Let the Word be Life, and the light of men. Let the Word be my first-born and first begotten of every creature, and the thing was. And from henceforth the Word, animate with life, was with God as Wisdom personified by Solomon. Prov. 8: 22–36.

(To be concluded.)

For the World's Crisis.

"FOLLOW THOU ME."

"Follow thou me."
Can we in the garden of Gethsemane
Feel the woes he felt?
Can we weep as he like drops of blood,
Where all lonely Jesus stood?
Can we kneel as there he knelt?

"Follow thou me."
Can we bear the rugged cross, as he Bore it up on Calvary's mount?
Can we view grim death as he
Ere they nailed him to the tree?
Can we all his pains recount?

"Follow thou me."
Can we rise as he
Rose in power to rule at last?
Yes, we can o'er all our foes,
Christ each slumbering body knows;
He will raise our dust.

Machiasport. H. C. AMES.

For the World's Crisis.

"BLESSED ARE THE DEAD WHICH DIE IN THE LORD."—REV. 14. 13.

"And I heard a voice from heaven saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord FROM HENCEFORTH. Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." Clarke reads, "Their works do follow WITH them." Wesley, "Accompany them." There is no text perhaps in the whole Bible that has been more injudiciously handled than the foregoing, and none possibly that is less understood. On "funeral occasions" it seems to be a favorite text with a "certain class" of "Spiritual believers," who seem to think it a perfectly overwhelming argument in support of the conscious and blessed, rather blissful state of the righteous dead.

On one occasion, it was so handled by a Reverend Mr. T. of P., Ohio, that an old superanuated preacher, known familiarly as "Father Hull," was heard, after sermon, soliloquizing thus: "If the minister gave a correct interpretation of the text to-day, I wonder what became of all the rest of the righteous who died before the time spoken of in the text; were not they blessed too? I should like to know." But the last time it was employed in my hearing, the logical deductions from the premise contained in the text were completely irresistible. I had to confess that the Rev. Mr. H., of N. L., O., quite perplexed me. The occasion was the death of a near and most excellent neighbor, whom we will call South West. After enlarging upon the blissful condition of those who "die in the Lord," and contrasting the condition of those who die "out of the Lord," and affirming that there was a gehenna fire beyond the judgment, the preacher quoted the text,—"Blessed are the dead, who die in the Lord"; but, said he, "South West," the man proper, with whom we transacted business, that went out and in before us, is NOT dead." That, which lies before us in the coffin there, is not South West; that is only the house in which SOUTH WEST lived; but he has gone, moved away; and to-day, perhaps, is basking in the sunshine of GLORY." Very well, thought I; this is the funeral of my friend South West, but if he be not dead, why then these obsequies? why this eulogy? why this gathering of sorrowing friends, these sable weeds of mourning, these sobs and tears? Why mourn the living as if DEAD? Surely this IS "borrowing trouble." But the text said, "blessed ARE the DEAD"; but if South West was not dead, who, then, was blessed according to that Scripture?

But again the text says, "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth." Now, henceforth means "from this time forward." Clarke says, "now, immediately," and so say I; because so reads the record, "from hence-FORTH." But if the dead are blessed from the time specified in the text, and it is not till then that they rest from their labors, and their works "accompany them," where has Abel, Abraham, Noah, and the company "innumerable as the stars of the sky in multitude and the sand which is by the sea shore," all of whom "died in the faith," but "received not the promises," where have they been all the time before that referred to in the text; and what has been their condition?

You must perceive, dear reader, that this Scripture does not teach a conscious blissful state of those who "sleep in Jesus" during the time they remain in death; but it does teach a blessed deliverance from death by a resurrection from the dead; for the parallel passage, which speaks of the same time in chap. 11: 15, says, "The SEVENTH ANGEL SOUNDED; and there were voices in heaven, saying, The kingdoms of this world are become the kingdoms of our Lord and of his Christ; and HE shall reign forever and ever. . . . . And the nations were angry, and thy wrath IS COME, and the time of the dead, that they should be judged, and that thou shouldst give reward unto thy servants the prophets, and to the saints, and them that fear thy name, small and great, and shouldst destroy them that corrupt the earth." Speaking of this same time in chap. 10: 7, it was said, prophetically, that "in the days of the voice of the seventh angel, when he shall begin to sound, the mystery of God should be finished, as he had declared to his servants the prophets"; and Paul, in Eph. 3: 6, declares that this mystery was not only that the Gentiles should be "fellow heirs," but also partakers of the same promises made to the Jews, through Jesus of Nazareth, the King of the Jews; and the promise was that Christ, when he should ask, should "receive the heathen for an inheritance, and the uttermost parts of the earth for a POSSESSION." Ps. 2: 8. "Blessed are the meek, for they SHALL inherit the earth."—Matt. 5: 5. . . . "He removed into THIS land wherein ye now dwell: and God gave Abraham none inheritance in it, no, not so much as to set his foot on: YET GOD PROMISED that he WOULD GIVE IT to him for a POSSESSION, and to his SEED after him." "He saith not to SEEDS, as of many, but as of one, . . . which is CHRIST," "that we might receive the promise of the SPIRIT through faith." "But if the Spirit of him that raised up Jesus from the dead dwell in you, he that raised up Christ from the dead (as "the first fruits" of them that "died in the Lord," 1 Cor. 15: 23), shall (future time) also quicken (make alive) your mortal bodies by his Spirit that dwelleth in you." Acts 7: 4, 5; Gal. 3: 14, 16; Rom. 8: 11. Now notice that, particularly, he does not say by the "spirit of lives," which you have had ever since you inhaled the atmosphere; no, no; it is "his Spirit," the Holy Spirit, the Spirit of promise, the Spirit of Christ, given to you for the first time, when you believed with the heart into Christ, and made confession unto salvation, and which is bestowed upon true believers only; and if you or any other man receive not that Spirit, then the word of God contains no promise for you, or to you, of a resurrection unto living eternally at "the time of the redemption of the purchased possession," which is the earth; and cleansing it from sin, removing the curse, and bestowing it upon the saints of God, will be the finishing touch in the completion of the mystery of God as he hath promised to his servants the prophets. And this will be the state of all that "die in the Lord." "For such as be blessed of him shall inherit the earth; and they that be cursed of him shall be cut off. . . . Wait on the Lord, and keep his way, and he shall exalt (resurrect, see Phil. 2: 8, 9,) thee to inherit (possess) the land; when the wicked are cut off, thou shalt see it." Ps. 37: 22, 34.

Having shown when and how the mystery is to be completed, let us now show how we are able to know that the time of the completion of the mystery (Rev. 10: 7), and the time of "blessed are the dead" (Rev. 14: 14), are one and the same. Well, verse 10: 7, says it is when the seventh angel shall sound; and 11: 15, says he did sound, and under that sounding, it says the time of God's wrath and the judging of the dead had come. Then turn to chap. 14, from which our text is taken, and in verse 7, an angel is heard saying "with a loud voice," "Fear God, and give glory to him; for the hour of HIS JUDGMENT IS COME." Then, after Babylon falls, and after her worshipers are tormented with fire and brimstone from the cup of his indignation, in the presence of the holy angels, and in the presence of the Lamb, then the cry is raised, "HERE (in this place) is the patience of the saints. Here are they that keep the commandments of God (the Hebrew prophets and their brethren), and (here are they that keep) the faith of Jesus, the Gentile believers under the gospel; for they both "had need of patience that after they had done the will of God, they might receive the promise"; God having provided that the former without the latter should not be made perfect. Heb. 10: 36; 11: 40.

Then John in the vision heard the "voice from heaven, saying unto him, "Write, Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord." Now there are other Scriptures in proof of this position, some of which shall be produced. Immediately on this being written, John looked and beheld "a white cloud, and upon the cloud one sat like unto the Son of man, having on his head a golden crown, and in his hand a sharp sickle, and another angel cried . . . thrust in thy sickle, and reap; for the time is come for thee to reap; for the harvest of the earth is ripe; and he that sat on the cloud thrust in his sickle, on the earth, and the earth was reaped." Now turn to our Lord's parable of the "tares of the field," Matt. 13: 38–40. Christ says, "The field is the world (kosmos); the good seed are the children of the kingdom (those who die in the Lord); the tares are the children of the wicked one; the enemy . . . is the devil; the harvest is the end of the world (ainoios), and the reapers are the angels; as, therefore, the tares are gathered and burned in the fire, so shall it be in the end of this world (or age). . . . Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father," and "their works will accompany them." "And I say unto you, "Make to yourselves friends of the mammon of unrighteousness; that, when ye fail, they may receive you into everlasting habitations." Luke 16: 9. "Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors." The term rest is here used by way of contrast. "For he that is entered into his rest, he also hath ceased from his works, as God did from his." "Let us labor therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall (being "cut off"), after the same example of unbelief; for "there remaineth A REST to the people of God." Heb. 4: 9, 10, 11. "Which is a manifest token of the righteous judgment of God, that ye (the people of God) may be counted worthy of the kingdom of God; for (the sake of) which ye also suffer. Seeing it is a righteous thing with God to recompense tribulation to them that trouble you; and to you who are troubled, rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels." 2 Thess. 1: 5–7. "Then shall they see the Son of man coming in the clouds," Mark 13: 26; "in a cloud," Luke 21: 27; "on a white cloud," Rev. 14: 14; "he cometh with clouds, and every eye shall see him, and they also which pierced him; and all kindreds of the earth shall wail because of him," Rev. 1: 6; "But go thou thy way till the end be, for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days," Dan. 12: 13. Amen.

The reason why men do not better understand Rev. 14: 13, is, because they will not search the Scriptures for themselves; pinning their faith upon some "theologian's" sleeve, they "take it for granted" that his affirmation is "all right," and "go it blind," right or wrong. "Cursed be the man that trusteth in man, and maketh flesh his arm." Thus saith the Lord. Jer. 17: 5.

Olena, O. G. W. STETSON.

For the World's Crisis.

THE SEVENTY WEEKS OF DAN. 9.

WHERE DO THEY BEGIN?

To settle this question, it will be necessary to notice somewhat particularly the 24th, 25th, and 26th verses;—"Seventy weeks are determined upon thy people," etc. The Hebrew word translated determined, in the text, is khotokh, which "tropically" means, according to Gesenius, "to divide, hence to determine, to destine, to appoint." The tropical use of the term is, unquestionably, the only proper meaning here. Our translators and commentators have universally chosen as its meaning "determined," but the primary meaning of the word, as we have seen by Gesenius, is "to divide."

A. Pick's Bible Students' Hebrew Concordance translates khotokh, "to cut asunder," which has the same meaning as given by Gesenius, "to divide," that is, the seventy weeks are "cut asunder," or "divided," in its fulfillment, into two, three, or more parts, as the case may be. In the Septuagint it is translated by the Greek word "septernno," which, according to Lyddell and Scott, means "to cut up all in pieces, to chop up, to divide"; and Robinson's Greek Lexicon gives about the same. This shows how the Septuagint translators, of the Hebrew into the Greek, understood it over 2000 years ago. From all these facts, we think it is clearly proved that the true meaning of the word, as used here, is "to divide," thus proving that the seventy weeks were to be fulfilled in separate parts, or divisions; and this we shall find to be the truth, according to the explanation of the angel; for the angel, after having announced that "seventy weeks are determined (divided) upon thy people," etc., says, "Know, therefore, and understand"; that is, know for this reason. For what reason? Why, for the reason just announced, that "seventy weeks are divided upon thy people." This shows beyond question that what follows is an explanation of the seventy weeks, for the angel could not have used this language on any other principle, that is, than that he is giving an explanation of how the seventy weeks are divided and fulfilled, and at what point they begin: "Know therefore and understand, that from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem, unto Messiah the Prince, shall be seventy weeks." This is the first division of the seventy weeks: "and threescore and two weeks"; this is the second division, and the one week of the confirming of the covenant is the third and last division. Thus we see that the angel's explanation of the seventy weeks exactly agrees with the Hebrew and Greek Lexicons, as to the meaning of the word khotokh, and shows that it should have been translated divided, for thus the angel shows it was to be fulfilled upon Daniel's "people, and upon the "holy city."

The seventy weeks, therefore, by the command of the angel to Daniel to "know therefore and understand," are thus proved to begin at the "going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem." On any other ground they would be without any beginning whatever, as there is no other event given or revealed. As this is the only explanation of the seventy weeks given, therefore we cannot be mistaken in the fact that we have got the right understanding.

"And after threescore and two weeks shall Messiah be cut off"; that is, after the second division of the seventy; for, as we have seen, that there is but one such division in the seventy, and, therefore, it is proved that Messiah was to be "cut off" or crucified at the end of the sixty-nine weeks, for the seven weeks come before, in the explanation of the angel, the threescore and two weeks. So that, if he is "cut off" after the "threescore and two weeks," the second division, then he is, most certainly, "cut off" at the end of the sixty-nine weeks. As further proof that this is the correct position, Coverdale's Bible renders it "after these threescore and two weeks." And Davidson, from the University of Halle, D. D., L. L. D., in his introduction to the Old Testament, vol. 3, p. 213, published in 1863, translates it thus: "And after the threescore and two weeks"; and he professes to give the translation just as it is in the Hebrew. The sixty-nine weeks, therefore, are thus proved to extend from the "going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem," to the cross and resurrection of Christ. The seventy weeks, beginning at the same time, extend one week this side of the cross, and which (one week) was fulfilled by the confirming of the new covenant according to Hebrews 9: 15–17, and 2: 3, 4, which see. From these considerations, it is clearly proved, we think, that "the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem," referred to in the prophecy of Daniel, is the one given to Nehemiah, in the 20th year of Artaxerxes; and this position is further proved from the fact that, according to Ezra and Nehemiah, the one in the 20th year of Artaxerxes is the only commandment that ever was given to "restore and to build Jerusalem." DR. A. DECKER.

For the World's Crisis.

BAD BOOKS AND NEWSPAPERS.

Kind reader, did you ever think what a dreadful thing it is to suffer or permit bad books to enter your house; and also those newspapers which contain fictitious stories, that tend to demoralize, and fill the mind with nonsense instead of truth? You know that the youth are easily led astray by novel reading, and by reading those long and fictitious stories that are put into some public journals of our so-called christian land. O, how much better it is to be reading the Bible and other good books, than to read falshoods, in the shape of novels, and those fictitious stories in newspapers. Our kind and loving Father in heaven is of purer eyes than to behold iniquity, and we had better keep ourselves and our eyes from beholding such wicked nonsense; and if we love our dear children, we had better try in a kind way to prevent them from reading novels and bad newspapers; for when young people get into this habit, their minds are so bewitched and bewildered, that it is almost impossible to get them on the Bible or any other good books. As old as I am, I dare not read a novel or a fictitious story in a newspaper; for I am very sure it will injure the mind of an old person to read them; and of course it will injure the minds of the young.

Dear brethren and sisters, in love and kindness I say, let us do all we can to prevent our families from reading such stuff; and let us see if the word of the Lord does not forbid the reading of such false stories. In Col. 3: 16, we read, "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom." We also read in the 17th verse of the same chapter, "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." Kind reader, can the word of Christ dwell in the minds of novel readers? and can we read fictitious stories in the name of the Lord Jesus? In 2 Cor. 6: 17, we read, "Come out from among them and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing, and I will receive you." If novel reading is not unclean, in a moral point of view, I will ask what is unclean? In 1 Thess. 5: 22, we are commanded to "abstain from all appearance of evil." 1 John 5: 18, "We know that whosoever is born of God sinneth not; but he that is begotten of God keepeth himself, and that wicked one toucheth him not." Can a person who is born of God be a novel reader? We answer, no. Can a novel reader be born of God without forsaking all such worldly and demoralizing courses, or practices? We answer, no.

Let our prayers arise to God that he would enable us to cleave unto him with all our hearts, and love the truth of his lovely word, which will make us wise unto eternal salvation, through our loving Redeemer, and prepare us for his coming and kingdom. Amen.

Vernon, Vt. B. PERHAM.

For the World's Crisis.

LOVE ONE ANOTHER.

We are commanded to "love as brethren." Now, in a family, if one is in trial, how quickly the others feel it; and if one has particular joy, how the others rejoice; if one sins, how the others sorrow, and how they try to cover it, that no one may know it. If we obeyed the commandment, it would go well with us; but now, if a brother or sister has sorrow, the others are apparently indifferent, or at most hardly ever say more than a few cold words of sympathy; and if good fortune comes to one, the others envy, rather than rejoice with them. Supposing your brother or sister should do something she ought not; would you tell your cousins, your neigbors, even strangers of it, and so injure your brother, and in fact the whole family, and by and by, after the story had gone the rounds, have it come back to him twice as large as it started? Or, would you go to him, ask him about it, and encourage him to do bettter in the future?

A short time ago, I heard a professor of religion remark, "I think we ought to have a pastor to encourage the weak, comfort the afflicted, look after sinners," etc. I thought, 'If you were christians, if you were sons and daughters of God, loved as brethren and followed Christ, you would not want any one to do that for you. In a family they do not want any one to look after the different members of the family; they look after each other. If your sister was in trouble, would you ask your brother to comfort her? No. If you loved her, you would hasten to show your sympathy, and whisper words of comfort; and if one was in danger of losing her life, would you try to get some one to warn her before it was too late? Would you not rather tell her of her danger, and urge her to turn away? O Lord, help us to realize our condition, and come up to the requirements of the gospel, is my prayer.

Worcester, Mass. KATIE PAI[illegible]

SECTARIANISM.—I hate dividing prin[illegible] and practices, and, whatever others are, I [illegible] for peace and healing; and if my blood would be sufficient balsam, I would gladly part with the last drop of it for the closing up of the bleeding wounds of differences that are among true christians.—Matthew Henry.

For the World's Crisis.

NOTES OF A CALIFORNIA TOUR.

NUMBER ONE.

Brother Grant:—As I have been requested to send to the Crisis for publication a sketch of my journey to California and while there, with your permission I will notice a few of the many things that may be interesting. We sailed out of New York harbor June 2d, and arrived in San Francisco on the 26th, and it was said by those employed on the vessel, who had been back and forth for ten years, that it was the first trip they ever made without a death on board. The weather was not very uncomfortable at any time, only rather cool for the last two or three days, when coming into port.

The sight of tropical fruits at Aspinwall, and along the railroad on the Isthmus, together with the appearance of the natives, their houses and manner of living, the nude state which many of them was in, was very exciting. When we stopped to take on coal at Acapulco, a port on the Mexican coast, the natives came out in their small boats to the ship at anchor, with their fruits of all kinds, and sea shells, to sell to the passengers, which they sold very cheap,—sixteen oranges for twenty-five cents; four pine apples, very nice, for fifty cents, and a nice wrought basket which would hold almost a peck, full of beautiful sea shells, for seventy-five cents.

I preached three times on board, which made quite a stir among the passengers. They had a plenty to talk about, growing out of my subjects. One man expressed himself very thankful that he had an opportunity of hearing the gospel presented in a manner he could understand, and made one beautiful, harmonious whole. I gave him some books, for which he was very thankful. He is determined to investigate the matter, and do what he can to spread the truth. And others who opposed and were very rash in their denunciations of such a view of the Bible, after having an opportunity of conversing on the subject, and being shown where they were wrong, and that their views did not harmonize with the Bible, became very quiet and were anxious to hear more, and became so much interested that they bought books to investigate the matter further. I think some will be saved by the efforts put forth to spread the truth on the ship.

I stopped in San Francisco one week. I found Bro. Hopkins in the street in less than three hours after my arrival. He was on the sidewalk trying to dispose of his "World's Crisis," which he prints as often as he can get means, and "Ghostology," by Sheldon. He preaches on the street twice each Sunday. By that means and the scattering of his paper he has got a number to see that there is no immortality out of Christ. Bro. Hopkins keeps the Sabbath, and, in fact, all whom I saw there who profess to be Adventists did. Bro. Kellogg, from Battle Creek, preaches some, and is a very able speaker and a devoted, good man. He is very kind, and does not manifest a dogmatical disposition. I think him mistaken in regard to the Sabbath. I preached once at the house of Bro. Hopkins; but few were out. I spoke once in the street, on Sunday evening.

I attended the Mormon meeting Sunday afternoon. They are seceders from Brigham Young's company and do not advocate polygamy. The discourse did not differ from the Orthodox views but very little. In order to show that a person could not be saved without being baptized, that the thief on the cross was not an exception, he said he was not saved; that paradise was not a place of happiness, but a place for departed spirits, where the spirit of Christ went and preached to the spirit in prison. They both went there that day. As near as I could make out where the locality was of this receptacle of spirits, was a hole in the ground,—the same place, I suppose, that the witch of Endor brought up Samuel from.

We visited the Mission Protestant Chapel of the Chinese church. Oh, how sweet the spirit manifested by a young christian Chinese. I could praise the Lord for the privilege of seeing the contrast between christianity and paganism. It was a treat for me to converse with a person who had been converted from a pagan to a humble disciple of Christ; one who showed it in the expression of his face and the tone of his voice. I talked some with him about the coming of the Lord. He took the Bible and turned at once to Acts 1: 11. He appeared to understand about it. We heard there was a Chinese temple where they worship an idol called "Josh." We found it and inspected his majesty, together with all of the paraphernalia connected with idol worship. I counted ninety-four metal images in one glass case, which I suppose were for historical information, connected with past events in the empire of China. It was a sight I have long wished I could behold. I have been gratified. Oh, how I do prize the blessed Bible that has taught me to worship the living and true God. While I write, my whole being is affected with gratitude to God, that, together with that blessing, I have lived to see the glorious truth of the restitution; that Christ's mission was to restore all that Adam lost and give immortality to his children. Glory to God in the highest for such a gift. My health is better.

Yours in love, P. A. Smith.

Woodland, Cal., July 29th, 1865.

For the World's Crisis.

"SOCIAL HYMNS."

I want to say a few words to the readers of the Crisis about Bro. Hastings' new hymn book. I am delighted with it. Its appearance is very neat and inviting, and I regard it to be the best collection of hymns for the number that I ever saw. It meets a want that has long been felt in this section, that of an appropriate selection of hymns in so cheap a form that even children can have one of their own, and assist in singing in meeting. Let the young folks help sing, and then the meetings will be interesting. And for family worship there is nothing better to use than this little hymn book of Bro. Hastings.

Dansville, N. Y. F. Burr.

Secret sins.—Go down into your hearts, and take the keys of them, and ransack your private cupboards, and narrowly observe what junkets your souls have hitherto lived upon, and gone behind the door and there secretly and stoutly made a meal of them. As dogs have bones they hide and secretly steal forth to gnaw upon, so men have sins they hide under their tongues as sweet bits.—Goodwin.

☞ The bleakest adversity may bear us to prosperity. The Arctic wanderer may be floated into a warm latitude on a cake of ice.

The World's Crisis

AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.

Boston, Tuesday, Sept. 19, 1865.

☞ TAKE NOTICE.

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable in advance, at the rate of $2.50 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $3.00 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

DISCUSSION.

We have arranged to have a discussion in Dixfield Village, Me., with O. Johnson, a Universalist minister, to commence Tuesday evening, Sept. 26th. We are not able to say how long it will continue.

Question: "Are the doctrines as taught by the modern Adventists taught in the Bible?"

NEW VOLUME.

With this number we commence a new volume, and during its progress we hope to form many new acquaintences, visit many new families, and afford them much comfort and strength while engaged in the christian warfare. We shall endeavor to fill our paper from week to week with good spiritual food, that will help christian pilgrims to pursue the right way to the kingdom of heaven.

We are well satisfied that the remainder of our journey to the heavenly land will soon be accomplished. The opening scenes of earth's closing drama may be expected to commence soon—much sooner than many anticipate, and before they will be ready. One great object we desire to accomplish is to arouse this class of people to whom we have just referred; and we hope those who are awake to the perils of these last days will assist us with a hearty good will. We invite every christian to unite with us in this all-important effort for the eternal salvation of our fellow men. Here is a wide and useful field for earnest men and women, who love Jesus and his coming. Let us here from you cheering words, and receive your sympathies and prayers. A great field is opening for the efforts of true men and women, who are willing to consecrate all to the service of the Lord. Hearts and doors are open, and the Macedonian cry is sounding in all directions. Let us awake to the call.

NEW PRESTON CAMPMEETING.

It was our privilege to spend some days at the New Preston (Ct.) campmeeting. Like all others we have attended this year, it was excellent. There has been one very important and encouraging feature in the campmeetings this year,—a special forbearance, long-suffering and love, among those who have attended them for the worship of the Lord. We have never seen before so little disputing, and so strong a disposition to do those things that make for peace. Those holding entirely opposite sentiments, on doctrinal points, have met and bowed the knee together and united in the praises of the Lord as heartily and pleasantly as those who were agreed in their theology. This feature of our meetings has attracted special attention from beholders, and is a bright omen for the future. Let us do all we can to cherish this good feeling.

We arrived in New Preston Wednesday evening, Sept. 6th, and found a good home at Bro. Henry Bolles. Thursday morning we went upon the ground, which is a pleasant grove, about one fourth of a mile from the village. We met Brn. C. Goodrich, C. Piper, H. Rockwell, I. Damman, B. St. John, and Sr. A. Jennings, who were present to preach the word of life; which was listened to with good attention.

There were sixteen tents erected in all, besides the one for boarding. The prayer meetings were excellent. Several were persuaded to become christians, backsliders were reclaimed, and nine happy souls were buried with Christ in baptism. Lord's day morning we had an excellent love-feast. In fifty-five minutes ninety-six testimonies were heard in favor of our blessed hope; and at the close of the meetings, some eight or ten rose for prayers. It was a heavenly place in the Lord. We all felt it good to be there, and like making a long stop in the camp of the saints. But as it was in Job's time, so now, where the children of the Lord assemble for worship, Satan comes also.

There was a good colored brother, Charles Turf, attending the meeting from Plainville, Ct., who was happy in the Lord. Some who did not love Jesus thought it not proper that he should have the same privileges with the rest of us; and without any just cause began to abuse him. Just before he received abuse, he had been remarking in our most excellent prayer meeting that he felt like returning good for evil. If he was smitten on one cheek, the other should be given to the smiter instead of a blow. Soon after the close of the meeting he was very much insulted, and struck severely without any just cause, by a returned soldier, all of which was borne with christian patience. It was effective preaching, as it was well known that before his conversion but few men were a match for him in a fight. This happened on Saturday evening. At the close of the afternoon meeting, on the Lord's day, some seemed anxious to have sport at the expense of some one; and having heard of the remark of Bro. Turf, that he felt like returning good for evil, thought he would be a good subject on which to experiment; accordingly he was sought out, and operations commenced, and before they got through with him, he was grossly insulted and abused by having his ear pulled and severily pinched by a young man not much more than half his size, who also struck him with three heavy blows upon the side of his head, which caused much pain up to the time we left him on Lord's day evening. When the young man had pulled and pinched his ear, he informed Bro. Turf that he had heard he had said if one should strike him on one cheek, he should turn the other for a blow, instead of striking. Bro. T. replied that he had expressed that idea in substance, and then turned his other cheek to his persecutor, who immediately repeated his savage blow, and again the third time. By this time friends were present to prevent further abuse.

In the evening we had a most heavenly communion season, preceded by a prayer and conference meeting. The first one to pray was Bro. Turf. During his prayer he plead earnestly with the Lord to forgive his persecutors; and afterwards, when he rose to speak of his peace in Christ, he referred also to the young man who had treated him so cruelly, and said, "I feel just like kissing him." This was truly a triumph of the Spirit of Christ, and a shout of praise to the Lord rose from many lips. We are greatly rejoiced to see this spirit prevailing among the children of the Lord. We must all possess it in order to be ready for the coming of Christ.

With the communion season closed our very profitable campmeeting in New Preston. We were very glad of the favored privilege we enjoyed of being at that feast of tabernacles.

"RELIGIO PHILOSOPHICAL JOURNAL."

The above is the heading of a new Spiritualist paper, published in Chicago, Ill. We have received the first number, which was issued Aug. 26th. It is a large weekly, price $3.00 a year in advance. It shows evidence of being sustained by able men. We notice it puts the Bible in company with the Koran, Zendavesta, and Shaster. We do not know which is considered the highest authority of the three, by those who sustain the paper.

PRE-MILLENNIALISM.

We have received an interesting pamphlet of forty octavo pp., entitled "pre-millennialism,—the Two-fold Resurrection as taught in the Scriptures." It is by Joseph M. Weaver, Pastor Chestnut Street Baptist Church, Louisville, Ky.

He shows very clearly that there will be two resurrections,—one of the righteous, the other of the wicked, and that such was the faith of the primitive christians.

SHIMEALL'S NEW BOOK.

R. F. Shimeall, author of "Our Bible Chronology," has issued a new work, entitled "Christ's Second Coming: Is it Pre- or Post Millennial? The great Question of the day, Scripturally, Historically, and Philosophically considered, with a Reply to Prof. Shedd on 'Eschatology,' or the Millenarianism or Chiliasm of the Ancient, Medieval, and Modern Church. Also, remarks on an Article on the same subject by Rev. E. F. Hatfield, D. D.

The following are Mr. Shimeall's closing remarks:—

"We claim to have demonstrated, not only by the tradition of the pre-Christian Jewish writers, and the early post-Christian fathers, but also by Scripture, that God has revealed to the church the unalterable period of six thousand years as the interval within which, under three dispensations, Patriarchal, Jewish and Christian, ALL his ordinary purposes of providence and grace were to be accomplished. The six chronological tables, historic and prophetic, which, though formed of different combinations, yet all give the same aggregate of six thousand years, are referred to in proof." "We see, from these tables, that while five of them all concur in filling up to a year the divinely predetermined period, the last one, the sixth, shows that we have reached that limit to within four years from the present time!

The inevitable conclusion therefore is, that, unless these chronological deductions can be shown to be fallacious, the generation of those now living are they upon whom 'the ends of the world are come;' and that, mark, not the end of time, but THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES will close in A. D. 1868."

ANCIENT CHRISTIAN WORSHIP.

The following description of Christian worship in the second century, as given by Justin Martyr, is an item of interest. He says:—

"On the day called Sunday, there is an assembly in one place of all who dwell in the cities or in the country, and the Memorials of the Apostles or the Writings of the Prophets are read, as time may permit. Afterwards, we all stand up together and pray; and, as we said before, when we have made an end of prayer, bread is brought, and wine and water, and he who presides offers prayers and thanksgivings according to his ability, and the people add their assent, saying, Amen; and those things for which thanks were given are distributed, and are partaken of by each one; and they are sent by the deacons to those who are not present. Those who are well-off, and who wish it, contribute, each one according to his own purpose what he wishes, and the collection is deposited with him who presides; and he assists orphans and widows, and those who are in need, through sickness or other cause, and those who are in bonds, and strangers who may be sojourning in the place; and, in fact, he takes care of all who may be in need.

We all hold this united assembly on Sunday, since it is the first day, in which God turned aside darkness and matter, and made the world; and Jesus Christ, our Savior, on the same day arose from the dead."

RIGHTLY SERVED.

Two clergymen in Chicago disguised themselves as fops one night last week and paid a visit to the theatre, where they were arrested as pickpockets!—Boston Journal.

Would Jesus have done as did these professed ministers of his? Would he commend them for doing as they did? Was that a proper place for them? If it was not for Jesus nor his ministers, then it follows that it would not be for any of his followers. When people are so far from Christ as to seek enjoyment in Satan's scenes of amusement, they must be very low in divine life.

☞ The Spaniards have a proverb:—"The stone fit for a wall will not lie on the road." Prepare yourself for something better, and something better will come. The great art of success is to be able to seize the opportunity offered. Careful, patient perseverance in your lawful calling, will best help you to do this.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of Tracts.

Previous pledges and donations	$1229.23
Geo. T. Adams	25 00
Miles Grant	25.00
William B. Herron	5.00
J. F. Busch	5.00
A young brother	5.00
J. J. Curtis	5.00
A friend	1.00
A sister	3.00
A friend	3.00
Mrs. Wm. Welch	1.00
E. P. Cummings	1.00
H. B. S.	.25
Mrs. J. D. Ellis	.75
B. O. J.	.25
Miss Sanderson	.10
J. W.	.50
O. W. G.	25
A young brother	10.00
Shinnecock Indians, Long Island	4.04
Maria Drary	.50
P. M.	.08
C. Lovis	.28
M. Gauson	1.00
H. Baley	5.00
Sr. C	.25
Sr. D	.12
J. Cogswell	.50
S. Anson	1.00
F. Calhoun	1.00
T. W	1.00
A young brother	5.00
J. W. Marden	1.00

WILL YOU WRITE?

"Write what?" Write a tract. It shall doubtless glorify God, do the world great good, and bring blessings on the head of its author. Will you write?

A tract is a little preacher, but of mighty power. It goes forth, on its mission of truth and love, and finds ready and thoughtful hearers everywhere. It speaks to thousands who never hear other preaching, and to thousands who do. It enters the office and the family, the public place and the private study, the shop of the mechanic and the marts of merchandise; and it preaches, with its thousand tireless tongues, numberless and multiplied discourses, to greater multitudes than congregate within sacred walls. It is read, and re-read, over and over again, until its reasonings and appeals are indelibly fixed in the mind that receives them; and, compared with the living preacher, its impressions are deeper and more lasting, because they are more carefully and seriously weighed and considered. Not till the judgment, shall we be able to estimate its full value and influence, as an agency in the great work of evangelizing the world. Then shall we see and know how great the good done by a little tract which came forth from the heart and brain of some pious faithful soul, who sought to honor God and save the lost. Great and glorious will be his reward.

Who will write a tract? Will YOU? The Society asks you to write; The people cry,—"Write;" and God calls,—"Write! Write!" Tracts for the times. Tracts to scatter like autumn leaves, everywhere. Tracts on the principles of our faith and hope. Tracts on the things that are coming on the earth. Tracts on christian duties. Tracts on the sins of the day, and the perils that surround us. Tracts to awaken the careless, convince the skeptic, convert the sinner; and tracts to comfort and confirm the christian believer. Tracts for every body,—plain, pointed, practical; short, scriptural, stirring; full of heart and life, and kindling heart and life in the reader. Tracts of argument; tracts of exhortation; tracts of warning. Tracts written in the closet, on your knees, in the Spirit of the Holy One. Tracts that will carry God's blessing with them wherever they go. Twelve page, or eight page; four page, or two page,—or one page. The shorter the better. So will they be surer to be read with effect, here, and remembered with grateful joy in the ages to come forever.

Come! there is no time to waste. If the Lord has given you the talent, use it now. What he bids you to do for him, he will have you do quickly. Take your pen, and write at once. Revise, correct, and re-write; and then send to the Advent Christian Publication Society, Boston, Mass.

W. D. H.

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free, 560. Ann'l Expense. $1400,00.

George T. Adams	$10.00
William B. Herron	5.00
J. S. Warren	5.00
J. F. Busch	5.00
Thos. C. Wilson	2.50
A friend	1 00
C. H. Smith	.50
Wm. Rowarth	.50
I. C. Walker	1.00
W. Hollman	.50
C. Lovis	.25
J. W. Marden	1.00

"He that hath pity on the poor, lendeth to the Lord; and that which he hath given will he repay him again."

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

Previous pledges and donations	$1162.49
M. C. Perkins (through M. Grant)	.50
S. Ham "	.50
C. A. Tilton "	1.00
C. C. Dow "	5 00
S. R. C., Princeton, Ind	.50
J. Gresty, Hammonton, N. J.	.30
W. Mosher, Gloversville, N. Y	2.00
Lois Wells, Sutton, N. H	1.00
Randolph E. Ladd, Springfield, Mass	25.00
From a sister, who gives one-tenth of all her income to the Lord,	15.00
A reader of the Crisis, Danbury, Ct.	3.00
Geo. Humphrey, Yarmouth, Me., ($12 00 a year),	3.00
H. D. Watson	1.00
P. Warner	1.00
W. F. Carpenter	5.00
A sister in Camden, Me.	1.25
J. B. Morgan, W. Northfield, Mass.	1.00
A sister in New Hampton, N. H., (through Bro. Simpson),	2.00
A young brother	5 00
Geo. W. Place, Dement, Ill.	10.00

Pledges Paid.—P. W. Higgins ($5.00), I. Morgan, B. St. John.

The American Advent Mission Society.

☞ All communications relating to the general business of the Society, should be addressed to the Secretary, Wm. B. Herron, Crisis Office, Boston, Mass.

☞ All donations and subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer, Geo. T. Adams, Crisis Office, Boston, Mass. Or, they may be enclosed with letters to the Editor of the World's Crisis, Boston, Mass., or to the Editor of the Voice of the West, Buchanan, Mich.

For the World's Crisis.

WALLINGFORD CAMPMEETING.

Bro. Grant:—My last tour to Connecticut was pleasant to me, and I hope profitable to the churches I visited. I find great need of consistent, energetic, faithful preaching of this gospel, backed up by righteous daily living. Such laborers would find an open door and a good hearing almost anywhere, and a salutary influence would follow them. At Cheshire St., Yalesville, Thomaston and Camp's Mills, we had good meetings; all seemed to relish the life-giving word, and we had a special refreshing from the Lord. Old times were brought to remembrance, blessings flowed abundantly, and many could joy with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

From Northfield, by way of Bristol, I went directly to the Wallingford camp-ground. I arrived there Monday afternoon, when I found the preparations going on briskly, tents going up, and the people coming. There had been a meeting on the ground the Sunday previous, and preaching from Brn. Hitchcock and Piper.

Monday evening we were ready for a meeting in one of the tents, when it was evident that the great head of the church was present by the agency of the Spirit.

From Tuesday morning till the meeting finished there was preaching three times each day. Brn. Hitchcock, Bellows, Piper, Morgan, Rockwell, and others I did not know, were present, lending a helping hand by blowing the gospel trumpet, warning and earnestly entreating men to be reconciled to God. Bro. Grant was with us one day, giving us three timely discourses, which were listened to with much interest.

Our prayer and conference meetings were good. Thus the meeting increased in interest till its close.

There was much solicitude relative to the order of the meeting, as there had been rowdyism to contend with at their previous meetings; but by trusting in the Lord, and dealing justly with all, good order was preserved all through the meeting from those without, and quite an interest elicited to hear the doctrine of our faith; and day after day our congregation of respectful hearers increased till the people of all denominations heard for themselves, which they should do before they judge. And it was evident that much prejudice was removed, and the truth took strong hold of many minds. It was the general saying, "It was an excellent meeting."

The Wallingford campmeeting was rather an experiment, but it proved a success. The pleasant grove of oak on the land of Bro. Hill is well situated for a large meeting. The Brn. own the land contiguous, so they can control it. There is a living spring of good water near the ground, which will water man and beast, making it a most desirable place for a yearly meeting.

The committee did their best to make all comfortable, and when the meeting finished they had just got the machine working admirably, which may be of service to them in the future; for I have no doubt there will be a demand for another meeting the coming year, when many improvements could and would be made, should time continue. This may be made the permanent campmeeting for Connecticut.

Our communion season, the last evening, was solemn and excellent. Some were converted, others reclaimed, and much good will result from this meeting. To God be all the glory. L. Boutell.

Groton, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

POINTS FOR CONSIDERATION.

Jerusalem was laid in ruin by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. "He burned the house of the Lord, and the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem."—2 Kings 25: 9. Says Jeremiah to these captive Jews, "Thus saith the Lord, that after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon I will visit you, and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place."—Jer. 29: 10. "And I will cause the captivity of Judah, and the captivity of Israel, to return, and will BUILD THEM AS AT THE FIRST."—Jer. 33: 7.

To "build them as at the first" is "to restore and to build Jerusalem." And now, "in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia (that the word of the Lord spoken by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished), the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom."—2 Chron. 36: 22. In the written edict the temple is mentioned; in this proclamation neither the temple nor Jerusalem is mentioned; but since the object of the "proclamation" was to accomplish that which "the Lord" had "spoken by the mouth of Jeremiah," it could not have embraced less than to "BUILD THEM AS AT THE FIRST." And "from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jesusalem, unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks and threescore and two weeks."—Dan. 9: 25.

The Jews are called "Jerusalem" by Jeremiah. Jer. 2: 2. This "Jerusalem hath grievously sinned, therefore she is removed."—Lam. 1: 8. But, saith the Lord, "I will cause the captivity of Judah, and the captivity of Israel to return, and will BUILD THEM (the people) as at the FIRST" (Jer. 33: 7), that is, at the end of the seventy years' captivity; for saith the Lord, "That after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon, I will visit you, and perform my good word towards you, in causing you to return to this place."—Jer. 29: 10. "In the first year of Cyrus king of Persia (that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled), the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, . . . saying, . . . Who is there among you of ALL his people? his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem."—Ezra 1: 1–3. Cyrus also "restored" "the golden and silver vessels of the house of God" (Ezra 6: 5), and commanded the building of the temple; and thus was Jerusalem "builded," and the people restored as at "the first," and "from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem," Daniel's sixty-nine weeks commence.

The king of Babylon "burnt the house of the Lord, and the king's house, and all of the houses of Jerusalem." 2 Kings 25: 9. While the city was yet lying in desolation and ruin, Gabriel conversed with Daniel concerning its restoration; hence must have alluded to the restoration from its then present desolation, which Daniel had just learned was to continue "seventy years." Dan. 9: 2. That which put an end to its desolation was its restoration, and from "the going forth of the commandment" for this restoration, Daniel was informed that the sixty-nine weeks are to commence; so, whether we commence the sixty-nine weeks with the first of Cyrus, or the second of Darius, or the 20th of Artaxerxes, the seventy years of desolation must end with "the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem."

If, according to Ptolemy's Canon, we commence them with the 20th year of Artaxerxes, that is, B. C. 445, we have B. C. 515 for the beginning of the desolation, in the 8th of Nebuchadnezzar, or from which, according to Josephus, there were seventy years to the first of Cyrus; so, if from 515 we take 70, we will have B. C. 445 for the first year of Cyrus.

The object of "the commandment" (Dan. 9: 25) was to restore to their land and city "the inhabitants of Jerusalem" that had been driven from home; hence this commandment for the restoration of Jerusalem could not have gone forth at a later date than seventy years after the 8th of Nebuchadnezzar; "for thus saith the Lord, That after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon, I will visit you and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place" (Jer. 29: 10); so, from the eighth of Nebuchadnezzar, the Jews resided seventy years in Babylon, and from their return home, or "the going forth of the commandment" for their restoration, "to the Messiah the Prince" were 483 years.

Wm. C. Thurman.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTER FROM H. L. HASTINGS.

To the Saints scattered abroad:—Greeting:—I am, through God's mercy, yet alive, and though worn down by six successive weeks of tent and camp meetings, yet I am in comfortable health.

I still inquire for the old (the eternal) paths, and desire to be found walking in them, that I may find rest for my soul. As for me and my house, I trust that we shall serve the Lord and serve our generation by the will of God. And with outward labor there is inward rest.

I feel no desire to leave God's work or to quarrel with his workmen; but would stand upon the broad and equal basis of christian liberty and unity and gospel order, as a companion of all those that fear God; and if I lack this companionship, I pray that it may be through no fault of mine. I would renounce the hidden things of dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, or handling the word of God deceitfully, but by manifestation of the truth, commending myself to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

I believe that a rough truth is better than a smooth lie, and that the faithful wounds of an honest friend are more desirable than the honied kisses of a secret foe. Hence, I would be more faithful than cunning, more frank than politic, believing that the best, the surest and most enduring policy is the honest truth, even if it offend both friend and foe; and that the best expediency is in unshaken adherence to right principles.

I find when earthly trusts fails God is an eternal position; and when human foundations tremble, "the foundation of God standeth steady, having this seal, The Lord knoweth them that are his."

Busy as ever in my specific work, I find no time for bustling idleness and empty disputation. Amid a Babel of contending voices, coming from those whose mouths seem to be more open than their ears, I find "a time to be silent," and work the work the Master sets before me. And as I have no ambition for the first word or the last word, I let events move on. I view with regret dissensions, divisions and seeming errors which may have been avoidable; but in the school of God mistakes and misapprehensions may often serve at last to show the teachable the more excellent way. And it is only after men have suffered awhile that they are established, strengthened and settled by "the God of all grace."

When the true order of the church, as taught in the New Testament, is sought out by men wearied alike with human tyranny and human anarchy; when the church meets its responsibilities and refuses to be beguiled by those who would bring men into legal bondage, or lorded over by those who love to have the pre-eminence; when in gospel simplicity each local flock listens to the great Shepherd's voice in his word; when charity is recognized as greater than faith or hope; when the unity of the Spirit is preserved, and the unity of the body kept in mind by its appropriate and divinely ordained symbol; when diligent service leaves little time for perverse disputing, and loving weakness prepares our hearts to receive the engrafted word; and when the power of the Holy Ghost uplifts our hearts and inspires our souls with a sense of the solemn magnitude and grandeur of our work as christians here, then may we hope for a better and more prosperous state of things, even amid the perils of the latter days.

If we can contribute to such a glorious consummation it becomes us to labor diligently, if not as we would, yet as we can, working the work of God, believing on him whom he has sent, and seeking the lowly fellowship of the despised and cross-bearing Son of God. Thus giving light and truth the widest possible dissemination, we shall find our labor not in vain, and our work prospering beneath our willing hands.

I feel, as I have for many years, a deep interest in that work to which the best period of my life has been given, the furnishing of a sound, practical and scriptural literature in the world. The many-tongued press must speak beyond the narrow circle of the living messenger; and its voice must not be a mere Babel of confused babblings, but a steady testimony to established truths. Not merely the organ of transient excitements, but the exponent of settled principles, of unalterable, eternal, sanctifying truths. Its work is teaching truth, rather than fighting error; preaching Christ more than abusing Antichrist; sowing wheat rather than pulling tares. Many errors will soon become insignificant if the truth has free course and is boldly testified, while leaving preaching the truth to fight error is like plowing Canada thistles till every broken root becomes a new plant, and every furrow multiplies the pest. Certain weeds are not curable by plowing or harrowing; the remedy for them is to smoothe the ground and seed it down with grass, and mind and seed it heavy when you lay it down. And my idea is, that we can best kill error by seeding down with all the truth the soil will bear, and so choke the weeds before the weeds can choke any thing else.

The demands of the age are immense. Calls for light come from various quarters. Amid the bursting of bonds and the clank of broken fetters rises clear and strong the prayer for the light of life, the words of truth, the waters of salvation. And as the call comes from God's working, its answer must be born of his blessing. There is work to be done. If not in one way in another; if not in one place in another; if not under one system under another. "Why should the work cease?"

To me, as also to others, is given a humble part. And if I ask, "What must I do?" the answer comes, "What can you do?" I must do what I can. Others do not accomplish my work. All my waiting and expecting in this direction has tended to disappointment. I have lain inactive long enough. "Why should the work cease?" It must not cease, it must not linger. Years must not elapse without some advance. The order is, "Forward!" With such thoughts long revolving in my mind, I find my way opening before me. After long and prayerful considera. I have determined to resume the publishing work, which I have so long neglected, and which I had hoped and tried to free myself entirely from. I have accordingly, with a clear conviction of duty, commenced operations. I have secured a large and commodious business office, about twenty-five feet wide and eighty long, which affords me ample room. The expense of the place will be about $300 per year. It is located in the very heart of the city of Boston, at No. 19 Lindall street, directly across the street from the Boston Post Office. Entering the Post Office on State street, and passing through the entire length of the building, you will see the sign, "Scriptural Tract Repository, H. L. Hastings," directly across the way. Every wagon load of mail matter received and forwarded from here passes in full view of the window where I am now writing.

My printing and book-making facilities are also convenient, and I am here for work. With skilful and competent assistants, who work because they love the work, I hope to be able to labor abroad much of the time, still keeping the work in motion here.

I am aware that expenses are heavy, but still I have no fear on that score. I have ordered about three tons of paper for books and tracts, and I have several new publications now ready for delivery, catalogues and specimens of which can be obtained with or without price, by addressing me.

I am free from all associations, and holding no office whatever in church or state. I have only the Lord to please. My trust is in him, and he cares for my needs, while I care for his work and his flock. Since I commenced writing this article an unexpected letter from a christian friend, with $25 enclosed, caused me to thank God and take fresh courage.

God has money enough, and even in these days of high prices and paper currency he says, "The silver and the gold are mine." And under his blessing I trust the living streams of truth will flow.

My friends may not have much account of my letters from time to time. I prefer to use the steam to run the cars rather than to spend it in blowing the whistle. Silence is not idleness. If the Lord will, I hope to issue in rapid succession books, tracts, pamphlets, cards and books, for children, freedmen and others, new and fresh, never before introduced among our brethren; and I trust that great good may result from their circulation.

Persons desiring specimens of all new issues can have them mailed as fast as issued by sending their requests to that effect. I desire the prayers of God's people that the work, begun in his fear, may proceed with his direction, and be crowned with his blessing here and hereafter.

Numerous letters, which come from far and near, convince me that through all the toils and privations of this work in days gone by, the labor has not been in vain in the Lord. In this confidence I would still "Go labor on, spend and be spent."

I wish it constantly understood and kept in mind, whether I am able to so announce it to all or not, that all God's poor who need my books, pamphlets, or tracts, can have them at the regular price, or at their own price, or without money and without price, either for themselves or for distribution among preachers or people, who may be searching for the truth, or who are curious to learn more of these matters.

Friends visiting the city are invited to call on me. For catalogues, information, or grants of tracts and publications, please address your brother in Christ,

H. L. HASTINGS, { Scriptural Tract Repository, 19 Lindall St., Boston.

Sept. 7th, 1865.

P. S. I start soon on a campaign with my tent—am going into "the regions beyond," and I hope to have the prayers of those who love God, and especially those who have been converted, enlightened and strengthened at the tent meetings held in time past.

H. L. H.

Correspondence.

From Sr. A. E. Smith.

Dear Sisters:—As many of you who were at the Wilbraham campmeeting wished me to let you know, through the Crisis, how I succeeded with our dedication at Hackensack, I hasten to fulfill my promise. We arrived home safely on Monday evening. I arranged for some new meetings in this city, and on Friday went to Hackensack to hold our quarterly conference and arrange for the baptism. I had sixteen names, and expected to have the number increased to twenty-five; but when I arrived at the place, I found the serpent had been in my garden doing just what he did once before.

The colored minister of that place told them that he understood Latin and Greek, and that sprinkling was the proper mode of baptism; and some of the white Methodists told them one way was just as good as another, and they would take cold, and, if they were in their place, they would not be dipped; and that Mrs. Smith was leading them all wrong; and some opposed their friends. One man said if his wife was baptized he would kill her. So you see I had a terrible time of it. I did not like the way the enemy was tearing away my breastworks; but as I had all my guns drawn in to be oiled and repaired for working order, ready for a protracted meeting the 15th of this month; and as all my picket officers were still out at the different campmeetings, I thought it was best to keep cool. I could manage one gun, and I felt determined to make that one do its duty. So on Friday evening I managed my gun for a dead shot. I patiently waited for the hour for service. Almost every one I talked with said, "Mrs. Smith, I am not going to be baptized." Why not? "Why, Mr. B. says that we colored people don't understand it, and he don't think we are fit. We have only been converted six months. He has been converted fifteen years and he don't think he is fit yet." You know that was a good text for my gun that night. Bless the Lord, my powder was dry, and the flint sure fire. O what a turning time; and as my gun was of the self-loading patent,—the Bible, I had nothing to do but fire away on the enemy, and he soon ran and left me the field. When the smoke had passed away so we could see, I found I had recaptured my sixteen, and three new ones. Bless the Lord. So I went to my lodgings to bed, but I could not sleep a wink.

Morning came, and after breakfast I began to study in my mind how I should arrange my big guns for Sunday. I expected Brn. Curry and Wilkins from New York, and one sister from Philadelphia, and my own picket

For the World's Crisis.

NOTES OF A CALIFORNIA TOUR.

NUMBER ONE.

BROTHER GRANT:—As I have been requested to send to the Crisis for publication a sketch of my journey to California and while there, with your permission I will notice a few of the many things that may be interesting. We sailed out of New York harbor June 2d, and arrived in San Francisco on the 26th, and it was said by those employed on the vessel, who had been back and forth for ten years, that it was the first trip they ever made without a death on board. The weather was not very uncomfortable at any time, only rather cool for the last two or three days, when coming into port.

The sight of tropical fruits at Aspinwall, and along the railroad on the Isthmus, together with the appearance of the natives, their houses and manner of living, the nude state which many of them was in, was very exciting. When we stopped to take on coal at Acapulco, a port on the Mexican coast, the natives came out in their small boats to the ship at anchor, with their fruits of all kinds, and sea shells, to sell to the passengers, which they sold very cheap,—sixteen oranges for twenty-five cents; four pine apples, very nice, for fifty cents, and a nice wrought basket which would hold almost a peck, full of beautiful sea shells, for seventy-five cents.

I preached three times on board, which made quite a stir among the passengers. They had a plenty to talk about, growing out of my subjects. One man expressed himself very thankful that he had an opportunity of hearing the gospel presented in a manner he could understand, and made one beautiful, harmonious whole. I gave him some books, for which he was very thankful. He is determined to investigate the matter, and do what he can to spread the truth. And others who opposed and were very rash in their denunciations of such a view of the Bible, after having an opportunity of conversing on the subject, and being shown where they were wrong, and that their views did not harmonize with the Bible, became very quiet and were anxious to hear more, and became so much interested that they bought books to investigate the matter further. I think some will be saved by the efforts put forth to spread the truth on the ship.

I stopped in San Francisco one week. I found Bro. Hopkins in the street in less than three hours after my arrival. He was on the sidewalk trying to dispose of his "World's Crisis," which he prints as often as he can get means, and "Ghostology," by Sheldon. He preaches on the street twice each Sunday. By that means and the scattering of his paper he has got a number to see that there is no immortality out of Christ. Bro. Hopkins keeps the Sabbath, and, in fact, all whom I saw there who profess to be Adventists did. Bro. Kellogg, from Battle Creek, preaches some, and is a very able speaker and a devoted, good man. He is very kind, and does not manifest a dogmatical disposition. I think him mistaken in regard to the Sabbath. I preached once at the house of Bro. Hopkins; but few were out. I spoke once in the street, on Sunday evening.

I attended the Mormon meeting Sunday afternoon. They are seceders from Brigham Young's company and do not advocate polygamy. The discourse did not differ from the Orthodox views but very little. In order to show that a person could not be saved without being baptized, that the thief on the cross was not an exception, he said he was not saved; that paradise was not a place of happiness, but a place for departed spirits, where the spirit of Christ went and preached to the spirit in prison. They both went there that day. As near as I could make out where the locality was of this receptacle of spirits, was a hole in the ground,—the same place, I suppose, that the witch of Endor brought up Samuel from.

We visited the Mission Protestant Chapel of the Chinese church. Oh, how sweet the spirit manifested by a young christian Chinese. I could praise the Lord for the privilege of seeing the contrast between christianity and paganism. It was a treat for me to converse with a person who had been converted from a pagan to a humble disciple of Christ; one who showed it in the expression of his face and the tone of his voice. I talked some with him about the coming of the Lord. He took the Bible and turned at once to Acts 1: 11. He appeared to understand about it. We heard there was a Chinese temple where they worship an idol called "Josh." We found it and inspected his majesty, together with all of the paraphernalia connected with idol worship. I counted ninety-four metal images in one glass case, which I suppose were for historical information, connected with past events in the empire of China. It was a sight I have long wished I could behold. I have been gratified. Oh, how I do prize the blessed Bible that has taught me to worship the living and true God. While I write, my whole being is affected with gratitude to God, that, together with that blessing, I have lived to see the glorious truth of the restitution; that Christ's mission was to restore all that Adam lost and give immortality to his children. Glory to God in the highest for such a gift. My health is better.

Yours in love, P. A. SMITH.

Woodland, Cal., July 29th, 1865.

For the World's Crisis.

"SOCIAL HYMNS."

I want to say a few words to the readers of the Crisis about Bro. Hastings' new hymn book. I am delighted with it. Its appearance is very neat and inviting, and I regard it to be the best collection of hymns for the number that I ever saw. It meets a want that has long been felt in this section, that of an appropriate selection of hymns in so cheap a form that even children can have one of their own, and assist in singing in meeting. Let the young folks help sing, and then the meetings will be interesting. And for family worship there is nothing better to use than this little hymn book of Bro. Hastings.

Dansville, N. Y. F. BURR.

SECRET SINS.—Go down into your hearts, and take the keys of them, and ransack your private cupboards, and narrowly observe what junkets your souls have hitherto lived upon, and gone behind the door and there secretly and stoutly made a meal of them. As dogs have bones they hide and secretly steal forth to gnaw upon, so men have sins they hide under their tongues as sweet bits.—Goodwin.

☞ The bleakest adversity may bear us to prosperity. The Arctic wanderer may be floated into a warm latitude on a cake of ice.

The World's Crisis
AND SECOND ADVENT MESSENGER.
Boston, Tuesday, Sept. 19, 1865.

☞ TAKE NOTICE.

All subscriptions for the Crisis are payable in advance, at the rate of $2.50 a year; but if delayed six months beyond the time of payment, the price is $3.00 a year. Thus 50 cents a year is saved by paying in advance.

DISCUSSION.

We have arranged to have a discussion in Dixfield Village, Me., with O. Johnson, a Universalist minister, to commence Tuesday evening, Sept. 26th. We are not able to say how long it will continue.

QUESTION: "Are the doctrines as taught by the modern Adventists taught in the Bible?"

NEW VOLUME.

With this number we commence a new volume, and during its progress we hope to form many new acquaintences, visit many new families, and afford them much comfort and strength while engaged in the christian warfare. We shall endeavor to fill our paper from week to week with good spiritual food, that will help christian pilgrims to pursue the right way to the kingdom of heaven.

We are well satisfied that the remainder of our journey to the heavenly land will soon be accomplished. The opening scenes of earth's closing drama may be expected to commence soon—much sooner than many anticipate, and before they will be ready. One great object we desire to accomplish is to arouse this class of people to whom we have just referred; and we hope those who are awake to the perils of these last days will assist us with a hearty good will. We invite every christian to unite with us in this all-important effort for the eternal salvation of our fellow men. Here is a wide and useful field for earnest men and women, who love Jesus and his coming. Let us here from you cheering words, and receive your sympathies and prayers. A great field is opening for the efforts of true men and women, who are willing to consecrate all to the service of the Lord. Hearts and doors are open, and the Macedonian cry is sounding in all directions. Let us awake to the call.

NEW PRESTON CAMPMEETING.

It was our privilege to spend some days at the New Preston (Ct.) campmeeting. Like all others we have attended this year, it was excellent. There has been one very important and encouraging feature in the campmeetings this year,—a special forbearance, long-suffering and love, among those who have attended them for the worship of the Lord. We have never seen before so little disputing, and so strong a disposition to do those things that make for peace. Those holding entirely opposite sentiments, on doctrinal points, have met and bowed the knee together and united in the praises of the Lord as heartily and pleasantly as those who were agreed in their theology. This feature of our meetings has attracted special attention from beholders, and is a bright omen for the future. Let us do all we can to cherish this good feeling.

We arrived in New Preston Wednesday evening, Sept. 6th, and found a good home at Bro. Henry Bolles. Thursday morning we went upon the ground, which is a pleasant grove, about one fourth of a mile from the village We met Brn. C. Goodrich, C. Piper, H. Rockwell, I. Damman, B. St. John, and Sr. A. Jennings, who were present to preach the word of life; which was listened to with good attention.

There were sixteen tents erected in all, besides the one for boarding. The prayer meetings were excellent. Several were persuaded to become christians, backsliders were reclaimed, and nine happy souls were buried with Christ in baptism. Lord's day morning we had an excellent love-feast. In fifty-five minutes ninety-six testimonies were heard in favor of our blessed hope; and at the close of the meetings, some eight or ten rose for prayers. It was a heavenly place in the Lord. We all felt it good to be there, and like making a long stop in the camp of the saints. But as it was in Job's time, so now, where the children of the Lord assemble for worship, Satan comes also.

There was a good colored brother, Charles Turf, attending the meeting from Plainville, Ct., who was happy in the Lord. Some who did not love Jesus thought it not proper that he should have the same privileges with the rest of us; and without any just cause began to abuse him. Just before he received abuse, he had been remarking in our most excellent prayer meeting that he felt like returning good for evil. If he was smitten on one cheek, the other should be given to the smiter instead of a blow. Soon after the close of the meeting he was very much insulted, and struck severely without any just cause, by a returned soldier, all of which was borne with christian patience. It was effective preaching, as it was well known that before his conversion but few men were a match for him in a fight. This happened on Saturday evening. At the close of the afternoon meeting, on the Lord's day, some seemed anxious to have sport at the expense of some one; and having heard of the remark of Bro. Turf, that he felt like returning good for evil, thought he would be a good subject on which to experiment; accordingly he was sought out, and operations commenced, and before they got through with him, he was grossly insulted and abused by having his ear pulled and severily pinched by a young man not much more than half his size, who also struck him with three heavy blows upon the side of his head, which caused much pain up to the time we left him on Lord's day evening. When the young man had pulled and pinched his ear, he informed Bro. Turf that he had heard he had said if one should strike him on one cheek, he should turn the other for a blow, instead of striking. Bro. T. replied that he had expressed that idea in substance, and then turned his other cheek to his persecutor, who immediately repeated his savage blow, and again the third time. By this time friends were present to prevent further abuse.

In the evening we had a most heavenly communion season, preceded by a prayer and conference meeting. The first one to pray was Bro. Turf. During his prayer he plead earnestly with the Lord to forgive his persecutors; and afterwards, when he rose to speak of his peace in Christ, he referred also to the young man who had treated him so cruelly, and said, "I feel just like kissing him." This was truly a triumph of the Spirit of Christ, and a shout of praise to the Lord rose from many lips. We are greatly rejoiced to see this spirit prevailing among the children of the Lord. We must all possess it in order to be ready for the coming of Christ.

With the communion season closed our very profitable campmeeting in New Preston. We were very glad of the favored privilege we enjoyed of being at that feast of tabernacles.

"RELIGIO PHILOSOPHICAL JOURNAL."

The above is the heading of a new Spiritualist paper, published in Chicago, Ill. We have received the first number, which was issued Aug. 26th. It is a large weekly, price $3.00 a year in advance. It shows evidence of being sustained by able men. We notice it puts the Bible in company with the Koran, Zendavesta, and Shaster. We do not know which is considered the highest authority of the three, by those who sustain the paper.

PRE-MILLENNIALISM.

We have received an interesting pamphlet of forty octavo pp., entitled "pre-millennialism,—the Two-fold Resurrection as taught in the Scriptures." It is by Joseph M. Weaver, Pastor Chestnut Street Baptist Church, Louisville, Ky.

He shows very clearly that there will be two resurrections,—one of the righteous, the other of the wicked, and that such was the faith of the primitive christians.

SHIMEALL'S NEW BOOK.

R. F. Shimeall, author of "Our Bible Chronology," has issued a new work, entitled "Christ's Second Coming: Is it Pre- or Post Millennial? The great Question of the day, Scripturally, Historically, and Philosophically considered, with a Reply to Prof. Shedd on 'Eschatology,' or the Millenarianism or Chiliasm of the Ancient, Medieval, and Modern Church. Also, remarks on an Article on the same subject by Rev. E. F. Hatfield, D. D.

The following are Mr. Shimeall's closing remarks:—

"We claim to have demonstrated, not only by the tradition of the pre-Christian Jewish writers, and the early post-Christian fathers, but also by Scripture, that God has revealed to the church the unalterable period of six thousand years as the interval within which, under three dispensations, Patriarchal, Jewish and Christian, ALL his ordinary purposes of providence and grace were to be accomplished. The six chronological tables, historic and prophetic, which, though formed of different combinations, yet all give the same aggregate of six thousand years, are referred to in proof." "We see, from these tables, that while five of them all concur in filling up to a year the divinely predetermined period, the last one, the sixth, shows that we have reached that limit to within four years from the present time!

The inevitable conclusion therefore is, that, unless these chronological deductions can be shown to be fallacious, the generation of those now living are they upon whom 'the ends of the world are come;' and that, mark, not the end of time, but THE TIMES OF THE GENTILES will close in A. D. 1868."

ANCIENT CHRISTIAN WORSHIP.

The following description of Christian worship in the second century, as given by Justin Martyr, is an item of interest. He says:—

"On the day called Sunday, there is an assembly in one place of all who dwell in the cities or in the country, and the Memorials of the Apostles or the Writings of the Prophets are read, as time may permit. Afterwards, we all stand up together and pray; and, as we said before, when we have made an end of prayer, bread is brought, and wine and water, and he who presides offers prayers and thanksgivings according to his ability, and the people add their assent, saying, Amen; and those things for which thanks were given are distributed, and are partaken of by each one; and they are sent by the deacons to those who are not present. Those who are well-off, and who wish it, contribute, each one according to his own purpose what he wishes, and the collection is deposited with him who presides; and he assists orphans and widows, and those who are in need, through sickness or other cause, and those who are in bonds, and strangers who may be sojourning in the place; and, in fact, he takes care of all who may be in need.

We all hold this united assembly on Sunday, since it is the first day, in which God turned aside darkness and matter, and made the world; and Jesus Christ, our Savior, on the same day arose from the dead."

RIGHTLY SERVED.

Two clergymen in Chicago disguised themselves as fops one night last week and paid a visit to the theatre, where they were arrested as pickpockets!—Boston Journal.

Would Jesus have done as did these professed ministers of his? Would he commend them for doing as they did? Was that a proper place for them? If it was not for Jesus nor his ministers, then it follows that it would not be for any of his followers. When people are so far from Christ as to seek enjoyment in Satan's scenes of amusement, they must be very low in divine life.

☞ The Spaniards have a proverb:—"The stone fit for a wall will not lie on the road." Prepare yourself for something better, and something better will come. The great art of success is to be able to seize the opportunity offered. Careful, patient perseverance in your lawful calling, will best help you to do this.

$3000 TRACT FUND.

For the Free Distribution of Tracts.

Previous pledges and donations	$1220.23
Geo. T. Adams	25 00
Miles Grant	25.00
William B. Herron	5.00
J. F. Busch	5.00
A young brother	5.00
J. J. Curtis	5.00
A friend	1.00
A sister	3.00
A friend	3.00
Mrs. Wm. Welch	1.00
E. P. Cummings	1.00
H. B. S.	.25
Mrs. J. D. Ellis	.75
B. G. J.	.25
Miss Sanderson	.10
J. W.	.50
O. W. G.	25
A young brother	10.00
Shinnecock Indians, Long Island	4.04
Maria Drury	.50
P. M.	.08
C. Lovis	.28
M. Gauson	1.00
H. Baley	5.00
Sr. C	.25
Sr. D	.12
J. Cogswell	.50
S. Anson	1.00
F. Calhoun	1.00
T. W	1.00
A young brother	5.00
J. W. Marden	1.00

WILL YOU WRITE?

"Write what?" Write a tract. It shall doubtless glorify God, do the world great good, and bring blessings on the head of its author. Will you write?

A tract is a little preacher, but of mighty power. It goes forth, on its mission of truth and love, and finds ready and thoughtful hearers everywhere. It speaks to thousands who never hear other preaching, and to thousands who do. It enters the office and the family, the public place and the private study, the shop of the mechanic and the marts of merchandise; and it preaches, with its thousand tireless tongues, numberless and multiplied discourses, to greater multitudes than congregate within sacred walls. It is read, and re-read, over and over again, until its reasonings and appeals are indelibly fixed in the mind that receives them; and, compared with the living preacher, its impressions are deeper and more lasting, because they are more carefully and seriously weighed and considered. Not till the judgment, shall we be able to estimate its full value and influence, as an agency in the great work of evangelizing the world. Then shall we see and know how great the good done by a little tract which came forth from the heart and brain of some pious faithful soul, who sought to honor God and save the lost. Great and glorious will be his reward.

Who will write a tract? Will YOU? The Society asks you to write; The people cry,—"Write;" and God calls,—"Write! Write!" Tracts for the times. Tracts to scatter like autumn leaves, everywhere. Tracts on the principles of our faith and hope. Tracts on the things that are coming on the earth. Tracts on christian duties. Tracts on the sins of the day, and the perils that surround us. Tracts to awaken the careless, convince the skeptic, convert the sinner; and tracts to comfort and confirm the christian believer. Tracts for every body,—plain, pointed, practical; short, scriptural, stirring; full of heart and life, and kindling heart and life in the reader. Tracts of argument; tracts of exhortation; tracts of warning. Tracts written in the closet, on your knees, in the Spirit of the Holy One. Tracts that will carry God's blessing with them wherever they go. Twelve page, or eight page; four page, or two page,—or one page. The shorter the better. So will they be surer to be read with effect, here, and remembered with grateful joy in the ages to come forever.

Come! there is no time to waste. If the Lord has given you the talent, use it now. What he bids you to do for him, he will have you do quickly. Take your pen, and write at once. Revise, correct, and re-write; and then send to the ADVENT CHRISTIAN PUBLICATION SOCIETY, Boston, Mass.

W. B. H.

POOR FUND DONATIONS.

To pay for Papers sent to the Poor.

Whole number sent free, 560. Ann'l Expense. $1400,00.

George T. Adams	$10.00
William B. Herron	5 00
J. S. Warren	5.00
J. F. Busch	5.00
Thos. C. Wilson	2.50
A friend	1 00
C. H. Smith	.50
Wm. Rowarth	.50
I C. Walker	1.00
W. Hollman	.50
C. Lovis	.25
J. W. Marden	1.00

"He that hath pity on the poor, lendeth to the Lord; and that which he hath given will he repay him again."

FREEDMEN'S MISSION FUND.

Previous pledges and donations	$1162.49
M. C. Perkins (through M. Grant)	.50
S. Ham "	.50
C. A. Tilton "	1.00
C. C. Dow "	5 00
S. R. C., Princeton, Ind	.50
J. Gresty, Hammonton, N. J.	.30
W. Mosher, Gloversville, N. Y	2.00
Lois Wells, Sutton, N. H	1.00
Randolph E. Ladd, Springfield, Mass	25.00
From a sister, who gives one-tenth of all her income to the Lord,	15.00
A reader of the Crisis, Danbury, Ct.	3.00
Geo. Humphrey, Yarmouth, Me, ($12.00 a year),	3.00
H. D. Watson	1.00
P. Warner	1.00
W. F. Carpenter	5.00
A sister in Camden, Me.	1.25
J. B. Morgan, W. Northfield, Mass.	1.00
A sister in New Hampton, N. H., (through Bro. Simpson),	2.00
A young brother	5 00
Geo. W. Place, Dement, Ill.	10.00

PLEDGES PAID.—P. W. Higgins ($5.00), I. Morgan, B. St. John.

The American Advent Mission Society.

☞ ALL COMMUNICATIONS relating to the general business of the Society, should be addressed to the Secretary, WM. B. HERRON, Crisis Office, Boston, Mass.

☞ ALL DONATIONS and subscriptions should be sent to the Treasurer, GEO. T. ADAMS, Crisis Office, Boston, Mass. Or, they may be enclosed with letters to the Editor of the World's Crisis, Boston, Mass., or to the Editor of the Voice of the West, Buchanan, Mich.

For the World's Crisis.

WALLINGFORD CAMPMEETING.

BRO. GRANT:—My last tour to Connecticut was pleasant to me, and I hope profitable to the churches I visited. I find great need of consistent, energetic, faithful preaching of this gospel, backed up by righteous daily living. Such laborers would find an open door and a good hearing almost anywhere, and a salutary influence would follow them. At Cheshire St., Yalesville, Thomaston and Camp's Mills, we had good meetings; all seemed to relish the life-giving word, and we had a special refreshing from the Lord. Old times were brought to remembrance, blessings flowed abundantly, and many could joy with joy unspeakable and full of glory.

From Northfield, by way of Bristol, I went directly to the Wallingford camp-ground. I arrived there Monday afternoon, when I found the preparations going on briskly, tents going up, and the people coming. There had been a meeting on the ground the Sunday previous, and preaching from Brn. Hitchcock and Piper.

Monday evening we were ready for a meeting in one of the tents, when it was evident that the great head of the church was present by the agency of the Spirit.

From Tuesday morning till the meeting finished there was preaching three times each day. Brn. Hitchcock, Bellows, Piper, Morgan, Rockwell, and others I did not know, were present, lending a helping hand by blowing the gospel trumpet, warning and earnestly entreating men to be reconciled to God. Bro. Grant was with us one day, giving us three timely discourses, which were listened to with much interest.

Our prayer and conference meetings were good. Thus the meeting increased in interest till its close.

There was much solicitude relative to the order of the meeting, as there had been rowdyism to contend with at their previous meetings; but by trusting in the Lord, and dealing justly with all, good order was preserved all through the meeting from those without, and quite an interest elicited to hear the doctrine of our faith; and day after day our congregation of respectful hearers increased till the people of all denominations heard for themselves, which they should do before they judge. And it was evident that much prejudice was removed, and the truth took strong hold of many minds. It was the general saying, "It was an excellent meeting."

The Wallingford campmeeting was rather an experiment, but it proved a success. The pleasant grove of oak on the land of Bro. Hill is well situated for a large meeting. The Brn. own the land contiguous, so they can control it. There is a living spring of good water near the ground, which will water man and beast, making it a most desirable place for a yearly meeting.

The committee did their best to make all comfortable, and when the meeting finished they had just got the machine working admirably, which may be of service to them in the future; for I have no doubt there will be a demand for another meeting the coming year, when many improvements could and would be made, should time continue. This may be made the permanent campmeeting for Connecticut.

Our communion season, the last evening, was solemn and excellent. Some were converted, others reclaimed, and much good will result from this meeting. To God be all the glory. L. BOUTELL.

Groton, Mass.

For the World's Crisis.

POINTS FOR CONSIDERATION.

Jerusalem was laid in ruin by Nebuchadnezzar, king of Babylon. "He burned the house of the Lord, and the king's house, and all the houses of Jerusalem."—2 Kings 25: 9. Says Jeremiah to these captive Jews, "Thus saith the Lord, that after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon I will visit you, and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place."—Jer. 29: 10. "And I will cause the captivity of Judah, and the captivity of Israel, to return, and will BUILD THEM AS AT THE FIRST."—Jer. 33: 7.

To "build them as at the first" is "to restore and to build Jerusalem." And now, "in the first year of Cyrus king of Persia (that the word of the Lord spoken by the mouth of Jeremiah might be accomplished), the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom."—2 Chron. 36: 22. In the written edict the temple is mentioned; in this proclamation neither the temple nor Jerusalem is mentioned; but since the object of the "proclamation" was to accomplish that which "the Lord" had "spoken by the mouth of Jeremiah," it could not have embraced less than to "BUILD THEM AS AT THE FIRST." And "from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jesusalem, unto the Messiah the Prince, shall be seven weeks and threescore and two weeks."—Dan. 9: 25.

The Jews are called "Jerusalem" by Jeremiah. Jer. 2: 2. This "Jerusalem hath grievously sinned, therefore she is removed."—Lam. 1: 8. But, saith the Lord, "I will cause the captivity of Judah, and the captivity of Israel to return, and will BUILD THEM (the people) AS AT THE FIRST" (Jer. 33: 7), that is, at the end of the seventy years' captivity; for saith the Lord, "That after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon, I will visit you, and perform my good word towards you, in causing you to return to this place."—Jer. 29: 10. "In the first year of Cyrus king of Persia (that the word of the Lord by the mouth of Jeremiah might be fulfilled), the Lord stirred up the spirit of Cyrus king of Persia, that he made a proclamation throughout all his kingdom, . . . saying, . . . Who is there among you of ALL his people? his God be with him, and let him go up to Jerusalem."—Ezra 1: 1–3. Cyrus also "restored" "the golden and silver vessels of the house of God" (Ezra 6: 5), and commanded the building of the temple; and thus was Jerusalem "builded," and the people restored as at "the first," and "from the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem," Daniel's sixty-nine weeks commence.

The king of Babylon "burnt the house of the Lord, and the king's house, and all of the houses of Jerusalem." 2 Kings 25: 9. While the city was yet lying in desolation and ruin, Gabriel conversed with Daniel concerning its restoration; hence must have alluded to the restoration from its then present desolation, which Daniel had just learned was to continue "seventy years." Dan. 9: 2. That which put an end to its desolation was its restoration, and from "the going forth of the commandment" for this restoration, Daniel was informed that the sixty-nine weeks are to commence; so, whether we commence the sixty-nine weeks with the first of Cyrus, or the second of Darius, or the 20th of Artaxerxes, the seventy years of desolation must end with "the going forth of the commandment to restore and to build Jerusalem."

If, according to Ptolemy's Canon, we commence them with the 20th year of Artaxerxes, that is, B. C. 445, we have B. C. 515 for the beginning of the desolation, in the 8th of Nebuchadnezzar, or from which, according to Josephus, there were seventy years to the first of Cyrus; so, if from 515 we take 70, we will have B. C. 445 for the first year of Cyrus.

The object of "the commandment" (Dan. 9: 25) was to restore to their land and city "the inhabitants of Jerusalem" that had been driven from home; hence this commandment for the restoration of Jerusalem could not have gone forth at a later date than seventy years after the 8th of Nebuchadnezzar; "for thus saith the Lord, That after seventy years be accomplished at Babylon, I will visit you and perform my good word toward you, in causing you to return to this place" (Jer. 29: 10); so, from the eighth of Nebuchadnezzar, the Jews resided seventy years in Babylon, and from their return home, or "the going forth of the commandment" for their restoration, "to the Messiah the Prince" were 483 years.

WM. C. THURMAN.

For the World's Crisis.

LETTER FROM H. L. HASTINGS.

TO THE SAINTS SCATTERED ABROAD:—Greeting:—I am, through God's mercy, yet alive, and though worn down by six successive weeks of tent and camp meetings, yet I am in comfortable health.

I still inquire for the old (the eternal) paths, and desire to be found walking in them, that I may find rest for my soul. As for me and my house, I trust that we shall serve the Lord and serve our generation by the will of God. And with outward labor there is inward rest.

I feel no desire to leave God's work or to quarrel with his workmen; but would stand upon the broad and equal basis of christian liberty and unity and gospel order, as a companion of all those that fear God; and if I lack this companionship, I pray that it may be through no fault of mine. I would renounce the hidden things of dishonesty, not walking in craftiness, or handling the word of God deceitfully, but by manifestation of the truth, commending myself to every man's conscience in the sight of God.

I believe that a rough truth is better than a smooth lie, and that the faithful wounds of an honest friend are more desirable than the honied kisses of a secret foe. Hence, I would be more faithful than cunning, more frank than politic, believing that the best, the surest and most enduring policy is the honest truth, even if it offend both friend and foe; and that the best expediency is in unshaken adherence to right principles.

I find when earthly trusts fails God is an eternal position; and when human foundations tremble, "the foundation of God standeth steady, having this seal, THE LORD KNOWETH THEM THAT ARE HIS."

Busy as ever in my specific work, I find no time for bustling idleness and empty disputation. Amid a Babel of contending voices, coming from those whose mouths seem to be more open than their ears, I find "a time to be silent," and work the work the Master sets before me. And as I have no ambition for the first word or the last word, I let events move on. I view with regret dissensions, divisions and seeming errors which may have been avoidable; but in the school of God mistakes and misapprehensions may often serve at last to show the teachable the more excellent way. And it is only after men have suffered awhile that they are established, strengthened and settled by "the God of all grace."

When the true order of the church, as taught in the New Testament, is sought out by men wearied alike with human tyranny and human anarchy; when the church meets its responsibilities and refuses to be beguiled by those who would bring men into legal bondage, or lorded over by those who love to have the pre-eminence; when in gospel simplicity each local flock listens to the great Shepherd's voice in his word; when charity is recognized as greater than faith or hope; when the unity of the Spirit is preserved, and the unity of the body kept in mind by its appropriate and divinely ordained symbol; when diligent service leaves little time for perverse disputing, and loving weakness prepares our hearts to receive the engrafted word; and when the power of the Holy Ghost uplifts our hearts and inspires our souls with a sense of the solemn magnitude and grandeur of our work as christians here, then may we hope for a better and more prosperous state of things, even amid the perils of the latter days.

If we can contribute to such a glorious consummation it becomes us to labor diligently, if not as we would, yet as we can, working the work of God, believing on him whom he has sent, and seeking the lowly fellowship of the despised and cross-bearing Son of God. Thus giving light and truth the widest possible dissemination, we shall find our labor not in vain, and our werk prospering beneath our willing hands.

I feel, as I have for many years, a deep interest in that work to which the best period of my life has been given, the furnishing of a sound, practical and scriptural literature in the world. The many-tongued press must speak beyond the narrow circle of the living messenger; and its voice must not be a mere Babel of confused babblings, but a steady testimony to established truths. Not merely the organ of transient excitements, but the exponent of settled principles, of unalterable, eternal, sanctifying truths. Its work is teaching truth, rather than fighting error; preaching Christ more than abusing Antichrist; sowing wheat rather than pulling tares. Many errors will soon become insignificant if the truth has free course and is boldly testified, while leaving preaching the truth to fight error is like plowing Canada thistles till every broken root becomes a new plant, and every furrow multiplies the pest. Certain weeds are not curable by plowing or harrowing; the remedy for them is to smoothe the ground and seed it down with grass, and mind and seed it heavy when you lay it down. And my idea is, that we can best kill error by seeding down with all the truth the soil will bear, and so choke the weeds before the weeds can choke any thing else.

The demands of the age are immense. Calls for light come from various quarters. Amid the bursting of bonds and the clank of broken fetters rises clear and strong the prayer for the light of life, the words of truth, the waters of salvation. And as the call comes from God's working, its answer must be born of his blessing. There is work to be done. If not in one way in another; if not in one place in another; if not under one system under another. "Why should the work cease?"

To me, as also to others, is given a humble part. And if I ask, "What must I do?" the answer comes, "What can you do?" I must do what I can. Others do not accomplish my work. All my waiting and expecting in this direction has tended to disappointment. I have lain inactive long enough. "Why should the work cease?" It must not cease, it must not linger. Years must not elapse without some advance. The order is, "Forward!" With such thoughts long revolving in my mind, I find my way opening before me. After long and prayerful considera. I have determined to resume the publishing work, which I have so long neglected, and which I had hoped and tried to free myself entirely from. I have accordingly, with a clear conviction of duty, commenced operations. I have secured a large and commodious business office, about twenty-five feet wide and eighty long, which affords me ample room. The expense of the place will be about $300 per year. It is located in the very heart of the city of Boston, at No. 19 Lindall street, directly across the street from the Boston Post Office. Entering the Post Office on State street, and passing through the entire length of the building, you will see the sign, "SCRIPTURAL TRACT REPOSITORY, H. L. HASTINGS," directly across the way. Every wagon load of mail matter received and forwarded from here passes in full view of the window where I am now writing.

My printing and book-making facilities are also convenient, and I am here for work. With skilful and competent assistants, who work because they love the work, I hope to be able to labor abroad much of the time, still keeping the work in motion here.

I am aware that expenses are heavy, but still I have no fear on that score. I have ordered about three tons of paper for books and tracts, and I have several new publications now ready for delivery, catalogues and specimens of which can be obtained with or without price, by addressing me.

I am free from all associations, and holding no office whatever in church or state, I have only the Lord to please. My trust is in him, and he cares for my needs, while I care for his work and his flock. Since I commenced writing this article an unexpected letter from a christian friend, with $25 enclosed, caused me to thank God and take fresh courage.

God has money enough, and even in these days of high prices and paper currency he says, "The silver and the gold are mine." And under his blessing I trust the living streams of truth will flow.

My friends may not have much account of my labors from time to time. I prefer to use the steam to run the cars rather than to spend it in blowing the whistle. Silence is not idleness. If the Lord will, I hope to issue in rapid succession books, tracts, pamphlets, cards and books, for children, freedmen and others, new and fresh, never before introduced among our brethren; and I trust that great good may result from their circulation.

Persons desiring specimens of all new issues can have them mailed as fast as issued by sending their requests to that effect. I desire the prayers of God's people that this work, begun in his fear, may proceed with his direction, and be crowned with his blessing here and hereafter.

Numerous letters, which come from far and near, convince me that through all the toils and privations of this work in days gone by, the labor has not been in vain in the Lord. In this confidence I would still "Go labor on, spend and be spent."

I wish it constantly understood and kept in mind, whether I am able to so announce it to all or not, that all God's poor who need my books, pamphlets, or tracts, can have them at the regular price, or at their own price, or without money and without price, either for themselves or for distribution among preachers or people, who may be searching for the truth, or who are curious to learn more of these matters.

Friends visiting the city are invited to call on me. For catalogues, information, or grants of tracts and publications, please address your brother in Christ,

H. L. HASTINGS, { Scriptural Tract Repository, 19 Lindall St., Boston.

Sept. 7th, 1865.

P. S. I start soon on a campaign with my tent—am going into "the regions beyond," and I hope to have the prayers of those who love God, and especially those who have been converted, enlightened and strengthened at the tent meetings held in time past.

H. L. H.

Correspondence.

From Sr. A. E. Smith.

DEAR SISTERS:—As many of you who were at the Wilbraham campmeeting wished me to let you know, through the Crisis, how I succeeded with our dedication at Hackensack, I hasten to fulfill my promise. We arrived home safely on Monday evening. I arranged for some new meetings in this city, and on Friday went to Hackensack to hold our quarterly conference and arrange for the baptism. I had sixteen names, and expected to have the number increased to twenty-five; but when I arrived at the place, I found the serpent had been in my garden doing just what he did once before.

The colored minister of that place told them that he understood Latin and Greek, and that sprinkling was the proper mode of baptism; and some of the white Methodists told them one way was just as good as another, and they would take cold, and, if they were in their place, they would not be dipped; and that Mrs. Smith was leading them all wrong; and some opposed their friends. One man said if his wife was baptized he would kill her. So you see I had a terrible time of it. I did not like the way the enemy was tearing away my breastworks; but as I had all my guns drawn in to be oiled and repaired for working order, ready for a protracted meeting the 15th of this month; and as all my picket officers were still out at the different campmeetings, I thought it was best to keep cool. I could manage one gun, and I felt determined to make that one do its duty. So on Friday evening I managed my gun for a dead shot. I patiently waited for the hour for service. Almost every one I talked with said, "Mrs. Smith, I am not going to be baptized." Why not? "Why, Mr. B. says that we colored people don't understand it, and he don't think we are fit. We have only been converted six months. He has been converted fifteen years and he don't think he is fit yet." You know that was a good text for my gun that night. Bless the Lord, my powder was dry, and the flint sure fire. O what a turning time; and as my gun was of the self-loading patent,—the Bible, I had nothing to do but fire away on the enemy, and he soon ran and left me the field. When the smoke had passed away so we could see, I found I had recaptured my sixteen, and three new ones. Bless the Lord. So I went to my lodgings to bed, but I could not sleep a wink.

Morning came, and after breakfast I began to study in my mind how I should arrange my big guns for Sunday. I expected Brn. Curry and Wilkins from New York, and one sister from Philadelphia, and my own picket [...]home. So I formed a plan, and went to [...]e cars to meet them. Some came, and some did not. Well, I thought the Lord would not disappoint, if the preachers did; so I went to the business meeting. It was our first quarterly conference since we were organized, and I was wondering how I would make out; but I could not back out. The hour came, and we had one of the best meetings of the kind I ever was in. We got through with our business, and the most went home to supper, but some of us to the church till the love-feast. Bro. Curry came in time for me to tell him what the enemy had been doing; so we all made up our minds we would show we were ready for action as soon as the word was given. We had a glorious meeting, gained the victory, and went home; but I did not sleep again.

Sunday morning came. Baptism at eight o'clock, and we expected to be mobbed by the white rowdies. We started for the river, two miles away. We had not got far, when we saw the road full, all wending their way to the water side. We arrived, and found the candidates there waiting for us. We got a place for the women to change their clothes in the house, and the men in the barn; then we went down to the water, and oh, what a sight! Man and wife, till four couples, who six months before were in sin and wickedness, spending their Sabbaths in drinking and fighting, cursing and swearing, were now converted and buried with Christ in baptism. What hath God wrought? They all came up shouting and happy. There were nine baptized. The rest did not get there till it was too late. There was not a word from the wicked. There were several boats filled with them, but they were still. They did not even splash their oars in the water. We had good respect shown us. There were some fine carriages there with their colored drivers. I afterwards inquired who they were, and found they were Baptist friends from a distance. One came seven miles.

We then went to the church. Bro. Curry preached the dedication sermon, at half past ten. Had a good time. Then we had communion at three o'clock; the white people communed with the colored. Praise the Lord for the victory. Then we heard the testimonies of the candidates. It would have done you good to have been there. Bro. Wilkins preached on the kingdom, in the evening, to a crowded house, and some of the most respectable part of the community. More next time. ANNIE E. SMITH.

New York, Sept. 5th, 1865.

From Bro. J. S. Hinds.

BRO. GRANT:—I embrace this opportunity to drop a few lines to let you and many more of my beloved Brn. and Srs. know that I have got home without any trouble, and now wish to acknowledge your christian kindness received by me. I suppose you remember the old man that had come from York State, over two hundred miles, and had got there through much opposition and bad luck, etc. I am that man. I have attended many Methodist campmeetings, but never saw so good a one as that at Wilbraham. I have so much that I wish to write, that I don't know what to say.

In the first place, you know that I had a hard time to get there; and Bro. Hiram Munger was the first man I shook hands with; and I had not been there thirty minutes before I was glad that I had started and got there. Well, I must make a long story short, and leave out nine-tenths. I got happier all day, Aug. 24th, and in the evening I thought that I was as happy as I wished. I had been only six months in the Second Advent school, and had never heard any one preach except myself, but I found that I had got the doctrine all about right. O, that meeting was a good school for me. But I would inform you all, that I never had much education to start with, that is, worldly wisdom; but by believing in the influence and teaching of the Holy Spirit, I have got along. I can't help saying, thank the good Lord for the meeting, and for the kindness of my brethren and sisters.

Well, I had a very pleasant time getting home. Arrived at New Haven, Vt., Tuesday morning, at 7 A. M.; attended a good prayer meeting, and then had breakfast with a brother from Addison, Vt., and left about 4 P. M., and stopped two miles from there with a Universalist man's family. He arrived late in the evening, and his business called him away early the next morning, but to his praise and his family, I would say they were very benevolent.

Stopped next at Bro. D. Smith's, near the Second Advent meeting house in East Addison. Saw old Bro. Whitford, and left an appointment to meet them there at 11 A. M., Sabbath, then went towards West Addison, and found one of my cousins, Dr. Hinds, a Close-Communion Baptist.

I went to West Addison, and found cousins and second cousins, all of them holding on to the belief that when a person dies they don't die, but the righteous go away "beyond the bounds of time and space." And you know where they say the wicked go when they die, into indescribable torment, and there will be no end to it. My heart sickens when I think how they are slandering God and the Bible. I appointed a meeting at the school-house, to commence at 5 P. M. Had a very good time till Sabbath, when cousin Albert Hinds carried me over to my appointment. There were not very many out, but we had a good time, a season of refreshing, thank the Lord.

We had a full house at West Addison. Monday morning, I crossed the lake in a skiff, two and a half miles, for 25 cts., and took a steamboat at Pt. Henry, and landed at Port Kent, N. Y. Fare $2.00.

Stopped at Clintonville campmeeting, Tuesday, 4 P. M. They had not commenced having meetings, but were to commence at 7 P. M. I did not stop long, for I had no tent there. I went two miles up to the village, staid over night, and next day stopped at several places to see old friends, and got home about 5 P. M., a distance of sixteen miles, with the joys of salvation still with me. Praise the Lord.

Monday, Sept. 11th. I don't feel well today. I feel the springing up of the seeds of death in my mortal body, and old age coming on. I don't feel hardly able to write, and feel some doubts about staying and watching three years for Christ's second coming.

Bro. Grant, when I was at Camp Wilbraham, Monday morning, just as I was about to leave, I said I wanted the tract called "Rich Man and Lazarus." Some one handed it to me. On starting to leave, I saw a tract in my path, and picked it up, and have it now, and am thankful for it; for of all the tracts that I have had, I have never found one that agreed so well with my views as that. If I had fifty of them, I would send them to my friends, to let them know what I believed. The tract is called, "The spirit in man, what is it? A Bible view of its meaning." But I shall have to be content with one.

Brethren and sisters scattered abroad, I ask you to pray for me, that I may hold out faithful. Farewell. J. S. HINDS.

Wilmington, Essex Co., N. Y.

From Bro. A. N. Seymour.

BRO. GRANT:—Mrs. Seymour and myself have just returned from Delta, Ohio, where we have spent a few days in holding forth the word of life to a congregation of attentive hearers, and we feel assured that our labors there will result in good to the community. Bro. S. G. Clark, from Indiana, was with us, and aided us in the meeting. On Monday morning, we met and organized a church of eighteen members. Six arose desiring baptism, which was attended to in the afternoon. We had a most blessed time at the close of the organization. All hearts seemed to be knit together in the bonds of christian love and sympathy; and as we arose to sing, and take the parting hand, tears of joy and gladness filled all eyes, knowing that though we part here we shall meet ere long in our happy Eden home, to part no more forever. Oh, may this church of Christ, taking the Scriptures as their only rule of faith and practice, be abundantly blessed and nourished by the indwelling of the Holy Spirit; and may it prove by its sincere devotion and ardent labors to be a beacon light, shedding forth the rays of moral life in that community.

Brn. James Watkins and Chester Fox were ordained as elders, to preside over the flock. May the Lord make them wise as serpents and harmless as doves.

On our way to and return from Delta, we tarried over night with Bro. and Sr. Hastings, and Bro. and Sr. Harwood, near Morency, Mich. Three of them went with us to the meeting. They are whole-souled christians, waiting for Israel's soon-coming king. We expect ere long, the Lord willing, to commence a series of meetings in their place, to arouse the people to seek an interest in the coming kingdom. Oh, how much there is to be done, and how few there are to engage heartily in the vineyard of the Lord. Lord, help in these perilous times, is my prayer.

Yours in hope, A. N. SEYMOUR.

Reading, Mich., Aug. 30th, 1865.

From Sr. B. Loomis.

BRO. GRANT:—I have been so comforted by reading the testimony of the dear saints in the columns of your papers that I want to say a few words to try to encourage them to write more fully on some subjects, which has given me so much pleasure.

It has, at times, almost seemed to me that there was hardly faith in the earth; but I find through their testimony that the prayers of God's people still heal the sick, give sight to the blind, so that they see the truth as it is in God's word. This is living faith, and, dear brethren and sisters, let us still labor for more, that we may say to this mountain, be thou removed, and to this tree, be thou plucked up, and it shall be done.

I also find much comfort in the "Letters" published, "illustrative of christian experience," for I, too, have been so filled with the love of God that there was no room for evil there. And the Spirit of the Most High so filled soul and body, that I needed not natural food for a time. Then did the words of our Savior occur to my mind, "I have food to eat that ye know not of"; but, alas! with shame I confess, I have lost the heavenly blessing. Pray for me, dear sisters, that I may be endowed with power from on high to guide me into all truth.

I would say to you, my dear sisters, whom the Lord has called to a place in the ministry, be faithful; preach the word; be instant in season and out of season; falter not, for I believe the Lord will sustain you, stop the mouth of gainsayers, and will verify his promise, "Lo, I am with you alway, even unto the end." How I long to meet with you at some of your gatherings, but must be content with hearing from you. There are a few in this place who believe the coming of the Lord to be nigh; but we have had no Advent preaching for some years, and I wish some faithful soul would come this way and preach to us the word of life. Your sister in Christ, who believes the coming of the Lord is nigh, even at the poor. B. LOOMIS.

Canton, Pa.

Obituaries.

WYATT. Died at Montgomery, Ala., July 14th, after an illness of only a few hours, Bro. W. A. Wyatt, Sergeant of Co. D, 117th Reg. Ill. Vol., aged thirty-seven.

Sermon preached by the writer, Sept. 10th, at the Baptist church in Staunton, Ill., from texts chosen by the deceased. The church was filled with an attentive and oftentimes a tearful congregation. Texts, Jer. 31: 15, 16, 17, also, 1 Thess. 4: 13, 14, 18. Bro. Wyatt was loved by all who knew him. He was a true, consistent christian, ever ready to bear the burdens of the sick and feeble in the ranks, utterly forgetful of self, if he might do good to others. He loved the Crisis, and the great truths it advocates. He bought, read and scattered a great many of Bro. Hasting's works. Bro. Grant's four little books he used to call his "battery of four guns."

He was stricken and died the day before he was to have started for home, to his young wife, with whom he had stayed but one week after marriage. He was to us a true friend, a dearly loved brother, and we cry,

"How long shall death, the tyrant, reign
And triumph o'er the just?"

N. M. HENRY, Bunker Hill, Ill.

Will Herald of Life and Voice of the West please copy.

CUTTING. Died of consumption, in Athol, Mass., Aug. 23d, 1865, Addison Cutting.

Thus death continues its cruel work, and has taken from our midst a faithful and good man. Bro. Cutting has been identified with the Advent cause since the year 1843. He loved the truth and died in expectation that the great Life-giver would soon come, and give him, with all the faithful, a crown of life that would not fade away. In the last of his sickness, while panting for breath, he would break out in ejaculations of praise to God for his goodness. He calmly waited the approach of death; arranged for his resting place in the grave, and bade his companions and friends adieu until the final gathering day, when the loved of earth shall meet to part no more. A sermon was preached on the occasion by the writer, from Job 14: 14. God bless the afflicted.

J. HEMENWAY.

GOOD. Died in Manchester, N. H., Aug. 31st, 1865, Lizzie M., only daughter of Frank and Allie B. Good, aged nine years and five months.

Lizzie was a child beloved by all who knew her. Ever ready to perform an act of kindess, always cheerful and hopeful, of a naturally kind and affectionate disposition, gentle and unassuming in manners, she won the respect and esteem of all who became acquainted with her. But Lizzie sleeps. The place once filled by her is now vacant. The sorrowing family sincerely mourn her loss, but not without hope, believing as they do in him who can give consolation when all others fail, and that the time is not far distant when they who sleep in Jesus will again come forth to inherit eternal life. May the Lord give them strength and grace to sustain them in their bereavement, and enable them to feel that he doeth all things well, and that their loss is her eternal gain. G. E. S.

SEVERANCE. Bro. George Severance, of Bath, Me, fell asleep in Jesus, Aug. 20th, aged forty-seven.

My acquaintance with Bro. S., though short, was long enough to know that he was a christian. For Jesus and his truth he was willing to sacrifice all that this world affords. In his death, Sister Martha has lost a kind husband, a large family of children a loving father, and the little church in Bath a faithful member. But his end was peace, and he rests in hope of eternal life. May the grace of the Lord ever rest upon the mourners.

R. R. YORK.

BRADLEY. Died in Bristol, Ct., Aug. 27th, 1865, of cholera infantum, Henry Lewis, only child of Harlan P. and Margaret M. Bradley, aged fourteen months and thirteen days.

Once more death has entered our family circle, and again we are rendered childless. Our hearts are thus caused to bleed afresh. Like those of old, we pour the same sad plaint in the ears of a loving Savior, "If thou hadst been here our loved one had not died." Nevertheless, we say, "Thy will be done." "The Lord gave and the Lord hath taken away, blessed be the name of the Lord."

"Pale in the tomb the quiet child now lies;
Freed from its pains, it sleeps without surprise;
Its heavy hands lie still, they'll move no more,
The pulse of life stands still, its toils are o'er."

M. M. BRADLEY.

HAMILTON. Fell asleep in Jesus, Aug. 24th, 1865, Sister Mary Hamilton, aged seventy-one years and six months.

She sleeps in the sure and certain hope of a resurrection to a future life, at the appearance of our great Life-Giver.

The writer was called upon to attend her funeral, and to administer words of comfort to her friends, which he did from 1 Thess. 4: 13. Afterwards she was taken to Cypress Hill, and numbered with the silent dead, to wait till the change shall come, which will be but a very short time, as the days are nearly ended, when Daniel and all the sleeping saints will rise up and stand in their lot. Amen.

ELDER WM. ROWORTH.

FLAGG. Died in Holliston, Mass., Aug. 18th, Daniel L., son of H. K. and Octava Flagg, aged four months lacking one week.

Sleep on, thou darling one, 'tis but a nap
E'er thou shalt come again. For in the land
Thou liest, One has slept, upon whose lap
A little one was seated. A youthful band
Of others round him stood, of whom he said,
"To such" my Father's kingdom gives a home.
We loved thee, and with deep-felt grief we laid
Thee in thy silent bed. We do not mourn
Like those who have no hope. Thy pains and sighs,
Thy griefs and tears, are hushed in thy last sleep.
Sleep on then, thou loved one; the time to rise
Is now so near, we have no time to weep.
We hail with joy that coming morn, and wait
To clasp thee, darling, in our arms again.

H. K. F.

BROWN. Died in Bolton, C. E., Sept. 1st, 1865, of typhoid and brain fever, after a short but most painful illness, Estella, daughter of Sylvester G. and Emily Brown.

Estella, amiable, beautiful and much loved, after eight brief summers, has been nipped by the frost of death; the roseate hue of health has faded from her cheek, and she waits in death's silence for Jesus to come, who said, "Suffer the little children to come unto me, ... for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Then Estella will live again. Blessed hope. Sermon by Elder Sweet, from Jas. 4: 14.

CHAS. P. DOW.

CROWLEY. Died at the Lincoln General Hospital, Washington, D. C., June 24th, of diphtheria, Bro. Jackson Crowley, of Massena, St. Lawrence Co., N. Y., aged twenty-nine.

Bro. Crowley was an unassuming, modest, yet earnest christian. May the Lord bless the widow and the two orphan boys.

A sermon was preached on the death of Bro. Crowley, on Sunday, Aug. 6th, by Elder D. T. Taylor, at Massena Centre. WM. MORPHY.

ADAMS. Died of consumption, at Nashua, N. H., June 13th, 1865, Daniel N. Adams, aged twenty-eight years.

After nine months illness he died in peace, leaving as his last words of dying testimony, "I am happy, happy, happy," to comfort in their sorrow an aged, twice widowed mother, two sick and suffering sisters, and a brother, who sorrow in hope of the uprising of the dead. CHAS. P. DOW.

WHITAKER. Died in West Brattleboro, Vt., Aug. 21st, Cornelius Alfonzo, son of Foster H. and Charlotte E. Whitaker, aged seven months lacking two days.

A comforting discourse was preached by Bro. Bennet, from Jer. 31: 15, 16.

Farewell, sweet child, a short farewell;
We bid thee not adieu forever;
We'll meet thee soon where pleasures dwell,
And death's cold hand no more can sever.

Loved one, sleep on in Jesus' sleep,
Till he a glorious body gives thee;
This hope sustains us while we weep,
That quickly he will come and raise thee.

C. E. WHITAKER.

CARPENTER. Died in Stafford, Vt., Jan. 31st, 1865, Sr. Charlotte C. Carpenter, aged sixty-one years. She sleeps in Jesus.

GRESTY. Died, on the 29th of August, Mary Martha, daughter of Joseph J. and Sarah Gresty, aged one year and five months.

Bro. R. Willard attended the services.

CRABTREE. Died in South Hope, Me., July 21st, 1865, of consumption, Sister Martha Crabtree, aged twenty-two years.

She gave her heart to the Savior when young, and was baptized by Elder Thomas Smith. Her life was in keeping with her profession, and she died in peace, leaving a husband and child to mourn her loss. The church has lost a faithful sister. S. K. PARTRIDGE.

Summary of News.

FOREIGN.

Liverpool Sept. 2d, Queenstown 3d.

Political news unimportant.

The manufacture of the new Atlantic telegraph cable has commenced. The steamship Great Eastern has been engaged for cable purposes for five years.

The French fleet has left Portsmouth after a very successful round of fetes.

The war between Paraguay and the Argentine Republic shows no signs of a termination. The rains had prevented military operations, but hostilities were about to commence on an imposing scale. Large armies were being raised by volunteers and conscripts.

Liverpool Sept. 6th, Queenstown 7th.

Five of the leaders in the recent Fenian demonstrations at Black Rock, near Dundalk, have been committed for trial at the Assizes without the privilege of bail. The prosecution was instituted by orders from the authorities at Dublin Castle.

The Mark Lane Express fears that three-fourths of the English wheat crop will prove to be in a bad condition.

The cattle plague continues its ravages. It is stated to have made its appearance in the county of Donegal, Ireland. The Common Council of London have headed a subscription with £1000 to compensate persons who had been compelled to kill diseased animals.

The Emperor and the Empress of the French, and the Queen of Spain were about to exchange visits at San Sebastian and Biarritz.

The cholera continued to retire at Marseilles.

Joseph Bonaparte, Prince of Misigune, had died at Rome.

A great fire occurred at Stamboul. 2500 buildings were burnt, and the fire was still raging on the 6th.

DOMESTIC.

Augusta, Me., Sept. 17. The most destructive fire that ever occurred in Maine passed over this city this morning. The entire business portion of the city, extending from the passenger bridge to Winthrop street, and from the river to above the railroad track is a smoking mass of ruins. The fire broke out in a new wooden building on Water street, in which the occupant only moved yesterday, and spread rapidly in all directions. The utmost efforts of the firemen could only confine the destructive progress to the limits above mentioned. Every lawyer's office in the city, all the banks, two hotels, the post office, the express and telegraph offices, all the dry goods stores, book-stores, and clothing establishments in the city, the United States Quartermaster's, the commissary and pension offices, the new depot not finished, the Age newspaper office and many other buildings, in all numbering more than a hundred individuals and firms, were burned. Many saved portions or the whole of their stocks of goods, while others lost everything. The banks succeeded in saving all their papers and treasure. The fire was undoubtedly the work of an incendiary. The losses cannot now be estimated, but cannot fall short of half a million of dollars. No estimate of the insurance has as yet been made.

New York, Sept. 13. The Herald's Charleston correspondence says in the election of delegates to the Convention the Union ticket was totally defeated in that city, and apparently this has been the result throughout the state. Wade Hampton, who has been elected, has not yet been pardoned, and it is not known whether he would be. Secesh citizens are much elated at the result, claiming that they are all Unionists, while those who were loyal throughout the war regard it as a virtual surrender of the State to the control of the secessionists.

Bangor, Me., Sept. 12. Fires are raging in the woods in every part of this county, particularly in Carmel, Hermon, Oldtown, Veazie, Bradley, Milford, Orono and Holden. Much valuable property is being destroyed, and tanneries, houses, etc., on the Bangor, Oldtown and Maine Railroad. The cars find it difficult to get through the flames.

Fires are doing great damage in the woods on the line of the Boston and Maine Railroad between Haverhill and Kingston. Unless rain speedily comes to subdue it the loss will be very severe.

THE CATTLE DISEASE.—The Troy papers report that the cattle disease has appeared in that part of New York. The disease resembles erysipelas, the attacked part swelling up sometimes under the breast, at other times on the side, but more frequently under and on the side of the throat, the victim dying in from twenty-four to forty-eight hours in great agony.

Married.

In Yarmouth, Me., by R. R. York, Aug. 31st, Mr. WESLEY C. HOLDSWORTH, of Digby, N. S., to Miss HATTIE P. HUMPHREY, of Yarmouth.

Notices.

Discussion in New Hampshire.

The undersigned have agreed to hold a public oral discussion in the Town Hall at Alton Corner, (near Alton Bay), commencing at 3 o'clock P. M., on Monday, September 25th, to continue through ten consecutive forenoon and afternoon sessions, of two hours each, ending on Saturday forenoon, Sept. 30th, unless terminated earlier by mutual consent of the parties. Question:—"Does the Bible teach that the wicked dead will not be made alive?" Affirmative—R. Wendell. Negative—T. M. Preble. The speeches are to be twenty minutes in length. The forenoon sessions will commence at 10 o'clock, and the afternoon sessions (after the first day) at 2 o'clock. Admission free. All are invited to attend. RUFUS WENDELL. T. M. PREBLE.

P. S. There will be two sessions on the first day of the debate, the second one commencing at 7 o'clock in the evening. No session on Saturday. R. W.

Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire.

The annual session of this Conference will be held at Lake Village, N. H., commencing Oct. 12th, and continue over the following Sunday. We hope there will be a full attendance, both of ministers and delegates from churches throughout the State. In the meantime let prayers go up to God for his blessing to rest upon us during its session.

ALBION ROSS, President.
A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

We would call the attention of our preaching brethren who are members of the Advent Christian State Conference of New Hampshire to the following: The constitution requires that "the ministers shall report themselves personally, or by letter, and the churches by delegates duly appointed thereby," at its annual session. Let this be remembered. A. ROSS. A. W. SIBLEY.

Conference.

It is proposed to hold a conference at the chapel in North Norway, Me., commencing Oct. 6th, and continuing through the week and over the following Lord's day. Particulars hereafter. We purpose to be present, the Lord willing. A cordial invitation is extended to all to come.

M. GRANT.

Notice.

I anticipate once more visiting Iowa, if my health permit. Friends wishing me to visit them and labor among them, can write me at Cedar Falls, care of Lyman Davison. My health is far from good, but I hope a change of climate will be beneficial. N. M. HENRY.

Bunker Hill, Ill., Sept. 15th, 1865.

Basket Meeting.

On Sept. 23d and 24th, there will be a meeting of the Premillenialists in the grove of I. C. Judson, in the northeast corner of Berlin Township, Erie Co., Ohio, one mile west of Florence Corners. Exercises to begin on Saturday P. M., at 12½ o'clock, with prayer and conference. Preaching at 2 P. M. in the grove, and 7 P. M. at the Chapel. All are invited. Bro. R. Wendell is expected to be with us. G. W. STETSON.

Quarterly Conference.

The fourth quarterly session of the New Hampshire State Conference will be held with the church in Whitefield, N. H., commencing Sept. 28th, and continue over the following Lord's day. May prayer go up to God that this meeting may result in great good to the church and people in Whitefield. A. W. SIBLEY, Secretary.

Conference.

The R. I. and East Conn. Conference will hold its next session with the church in North Foster, R. I., commencing Wednesday, Oct. 4th, at 2 o'clock P. M., and continue over the following Sabbath. All are invited to attend. Come, brethren, with your hearts filled with the love of God, so as to labor for the salvation of sinners. Those coming by rail will stop at Danielsonville.

WM. H. CHAPMAN, Clerk.

Western Quarterly Conference.

The next session of this conference will be holden in Biddeford, Me., commencing Thursday, Sept. 28th, at 7 o'clock P. M. A general invitation is extended to the Lord's children to come and work for the salvation of sinners. Call on Bro. J. Libbey, who will direct to proper places of entertainment.

I. C. WELLCOME, Pres.
C. H. LEVERTON, Sec.

Notice.

Eld. J. K. Bellows and H. Hadlock will hold meetings in the Advent Christian Chapel, Hoosick, N. Y., commencing Wednesday evening, Sept. 27th, and continue over Sunday.

In behalf of the church, J. WILBUR.

Wisconsin Conference.

Probably our Wisconsin annual meeting will be held in the big tent, on the bank of Devil's Lake, in Baraboo, Sauk Co., Wis., beginning Sept. 22d. Particulars in time. W. SHELDON.

Just Received.

Dr. Zech's computation of PTOLEMY'S ECLIPSES, based on the Greenwich observations as reduced by Professor Airy. Price $1.00 mailed, post paid. Address C. F. Hudson, Cambridge, Mass., or H. L. Hastings, 19 Lindall St., Boston, Mass.

Conference.

Notice is here given that the first quarterly conference will be held at New Hartford, Butler Co., Iowa, commencing on Friday, Sept. 29th, 1865.

JOB GILDERSLEEVE, Conf. Clerk.

Lost.

On or near the camp-ground at Alton Bay, an account book, belonging to John C. Wheeler. Any person finding said book, shall be duly recompensed by sending it by mail to Eld. J. C. WHEELER, Carthage, Berry's Mills, Me.

Appointments.

We would say to our preaching Brethren that it is necessary we should receive their appointments as early as TUESDAY MORNING, as our paper goes to press about noon; otherwise they will not be inserted till the week following.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL, BOSTON, CORNER OF CAUSEWAY AND LOWELL STREETS. Meetings are held regularly three times every Sunday, and Tuesday and Friday evenings. Seats free.

LOWELL STREET CHAPEL.

Edwin Burnham..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Hiram Munger..........Sunday, Oct. 1st

EAST BOSTON.

C. Goodrich..........Sunday, Oct. 1st

Charlestown, (69 Maine Street), Lord's day, Sept. 24th
WM. C. THURMAN.

Guilford, Conn., (East River)..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Yalesville, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
O. D. WOODRUFF.

Richmond, R. I., (Clark's Hall)..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
JOHN T. DIXON.

Rocky Brook, R. I..........Sept. 24th
RALPH WILLIAMS.

Ashburnham, Mass..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Lunenberg, Mass..........Oct. 1st
S. S. BREWER.

Lee, N. H..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, Oct. 8th
C. GOODRICH.

Holderness, N. H., (Burleigh school-house), Monday evening, Sept. 25th.
Woodstock..........Tuesday evening, Sept. 26th
Whitefield..........Thursday, Sept. 28th, at conference.
J. KNOWLES.
A. W. SIBLEY.

Worcester, Mass..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
A. W. SIBLEY.

East Concord, N. H., (at the Ward room), Sunday, Sept. 24th.
JOHN G. HOOK.
C. W. SARGENT.

Cheshire Street, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
ELDS. STEWART & PIPER.

Concord, N. H..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Holliston, Mass..........Tuesday evening, Sept. 26th
South Natick..........Thursday evening, Sept. 28th
Natick, R. I..........Saturday evening, Sept. 30th and over the following Sunday, Oct. 1st.
H. K. FLAGG.

Savoy, Mass..........Sept. 22d
S. C. HANCOCK.

Lee, N. H..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
S. S. MOONEY.

Melvin Village..........Oct. 1st
Freedom, (where Bro. Judkins may appoint), Friday evening, Oct. 6th.
Parsonsfield, (where Bro. Moulton may appoint) Saturday evening, Oct. 7th.
Kezar Falls..........Sunday, Oct. 8th
T. W. PIPER.

Newstead, Erie Co., N. Y., (Benedict school-house), Oct. 15th, 10½ A. M., and West or Kinny school-house, at 4 P. M. C. W. LOW.

Wallingford Farms, Ct., (baptism) Sunday, Sept. 24th
Waterbury, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
B. HITCHCOCK.

Poultney, Vt..........Sept. 17th
West Hoosick, (Advent Chapel, in company with Bro. Bellows), Sept. 28th and over the Sabbath.
North Bennington, Vt..........Oct. 7th
and over the Sabbath. WM. J. BLANCHARD.

Newstead, (Benedict school-house), Oct. 1st, 10½ A. M., and Kinny school-house at 4 P. M.
Brockport, N. Y., Oct. 8th, at 10½ A. M., and 7 P. M.
Scipio, Cayuga Co., N. Y., Sept. 29th and 30th, at 7 P. M., and over Sunday, Oct. 1st, as Bro. Daniels and others may appoint.)
Bro. McWilliams, of Batavia, will fill my appointments of Oct. 1st. C. F. SWEET.

Ashburnham, Mass..........evenings, Sept. 26th and 27th
Athol, Mass..........evenings, Sept. 28th and 29th
Vernon, Vt..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
North Springfield, Vt..........Sunday, Oct. 8th
Poultney, Vt..........Sundays, Oct. 15th and 22d
West Hoosick, N. Y..........Sunday, Oct. 29th
A. SIMPSON.

Portland, Me..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Thursday and Friday, 21st and 22d, anywhere, as doors may open on my way to Portland.
Biddeford..........evening, Monday, Sept. 25th
Lee, N. H..........Friday, Sept. 26th
Will some one meet me at New Market, first train?
Haverhill, Mass..........Wednesday evening, Sept. 27th
Lawrence, Mass..........Thursday, Sept. 28th
South Reading..........Friday, Sept. 29th
After Oct. 1st not engaged. HIRAM MUNGER.

H. L. HASTINGS' TENT MEETINGS.

At Avon Springs, about twenty miles south of Rochester, N. Y., commencing Friday evening, Sept. 22d, and continuing while it may be duty.

At Allen, Allegany Co., on the Dagget Farm, now owned by Hiram Brown, ten miles from Belvidiere, on the N. Y. and Erie R. R., and 4½ miles from Angelia. Teams will run to Be vidiere to connect with the trains. Commencing here probably about a week later. All if the Lord will. Notice will be duly given. Pray for us.

H. L. HASTINGS.

Wrightville, Ct..........Sept. 24th
S. TATRO.

South Farmington, (as the brethren may arrange), Saturday evening, Sept. 23d, and over the Lord's day.
New Durham Ridge, (as Bro. Smith may appoint), evening, Sept. 26th.
East Barnsted, (as Bro. Hanson may appoint), evening, Sept. 28th.
Pittsfield, (as Bro. Emerson may appoint), Saturday evening, Sept. 30th, and over Lord's day.
B. P. MANNING.

Northwood Narrows, N. H..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
C. H. WILLEY.
J. H. F. VARNEY.

Britton's Mills, Livermore, Me..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
I. C. WELLCOME.

North Strafford, N. H..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
J. G. SMITH.

Holderness, (Brick school-house)..........Sept. 24th
T. W. PIPER.

LOWELL, MASS.

Bro. Plummer..........Sept. 24th

Hartford, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
Plainville, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 15th
Holyoke, Mass..........Sunday, Oct. 22d
EDWIN BURNHAM.

Bro. Morgan, of Plainville, Ct., cordially invites the friends in that region to attend Bro. Burnham's coming appointment.

North Adams, Mass..........Sept. 24th
West Hoosick, N. Y..........Sept. 27th
North Bennington, Vt..........Oct. 8th
J. K. BELLOWS.

Haverhill, Mass..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
A. SIMPSON.

BARNES' HALL, SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

A. W. Sibley..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
Edwin Burnham..........Sunday, Oct. 8th

West Barre, N. Y..........Sept. 24th
J. BLAIN.

Nottingham, N. H..........Sept. 24th
Z. FORD.

Conference at Pomfret, Vt., commencing Thursday, Sept. 21st, 7 P. M., to hold over the following Lord's day. All invited to come. J. COUCH.

PORTSMOUTH, N. H.

Joseph Pinkham..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Wm. H. Mitchell..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
C. Goodrich..........Sunday, Oct. 15th

Abington, Ct..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Danielsonville, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 1st
R. I. Conference..........Oct. 4th
WM. M. INGHAM.

Brunswick, (Yellow school-house), Sept. 24th, 10½ A.M.
Evening, Harding school-house, 7 o'clock.
R. R. YORK.

New Britain, Ct., Thursday and Friday evenings, Sept. 21st and 22d, and over Sunday, 24th.
Collinsville, Ct., Wed. Thurs. and Friday evenings, Oct. 4th, 5th, and 6th.
Pleasant Valley, Ct..........Sunday, Oct. 8th
North Adams, Mass., evenings..........Oct. 11th, 12th, 13th
Hoosick, N. Y..........Sundays, Oct. 15th and 22d
Poultney, Vt..........Sundays, Oct. 29th and Nov. 5th
CHAS. E. PIPER.

Canton Street..........Sunday, Sept. 24th
Will Bro. Ripley be at Canton Street and preach the word? S. WOODRUFF.

Bradford..........Sept. 24th
South Atkinson, (with Bro. Joshua Livermore), Oct. 1st
Sebec, (where the brethren may appoint, with the assistance of Bro. F. A. Baker), Oct. 8th. Ordination at the time. THOMAS SMITH.

Bristol, Ct..........Sept. 24th
Forestville..........Oct. 1st
Plainville..........Oct. 8th
Wallingford..........Oct. 15th
Cheshire..........Oct. 22d
West Meriden..........Oct. 29th
Hartford..........Nov. 5th
Middle Hadam..........Nov. 12th
East Hampton..........Nov. 19th
In all these places will brethren please arrange.
H. ROCKWELL.

East Holderness, (meeting-house)...Sunday, Sept. 24th
Whitefield, N. H., conference..........Sept. 28th
Compton, C. E., (Harvey school-house), Sunday, Oct. 8th
A. MUSSEY.

BRISTOL, CT.

Ira Morgan..........Sept. 24th

Business.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

C. P. Dow—L. Marsh's was credited, and acknowledged July 23d.

D. Cogswell—Credited.

W. Cornell—Subscription expired July 4th, 1865.

N. M.—You commenced taking the Crisis at No. 442, and for the $1.00 which you sent we credited you 26 numbers, which paid to No. 468. There is now due from No. 468 to No. 520, or for one year, which, when not paid in advance, or before the expiration of six months, is $3.00, as in the bill.

Sr. E. Challon—There is a paper in San Francisco, Cal., called the "World's Crisis," published and edited by Bro. J. L. Hopkins.

CASH RECEIPTS FOR THE CRISIS.

To find how your account stands.

The present No. of the Crisis is 520. The No. which follows your name is the No. to which you have paid. If the No. paid to, is greater than the present No., the difference shows how many weeks you have paid for in advance. If the No. paid to, is less than the present No., the difference shows for how many weeks you owe. For every week of indebtedness before No. 468, (if any), charge four cents; for every week since No. 468, if less than 26 weeks, five cents; if over 26 weeks, six cents a week (or $3.12 for the year.) From the sum deduct four cents for every dollar, and you have the exact amount due.

$1.00 each—J. Whitman 553, Mrs. S Barrett 539, G. L Hart 522, B Hall 537, A Jeffrey 365, J Danforth 520, J Boutell 532, W. Forrester 486, J E Pratt 539, S. L. Walter 498, T W Haskins 527, J T Dudley 520, Mrs. M W Bates 544, H W Spencer 539, W F Fahnestock 539, W Mix 532, S Briggs 456, A Shaw 532, W H Dougherty 535, E H Shaw 510, J Hackett 498, M A Hardy 536, G Durkee 505, J M Dalton 540, E C Keith 531, G Hebner 539, D G Alling 539, L Chamberlain 535, J Dunham 519, A Patterson 533, W W Miller 528, C Wakefield 522, C A Holder 323, T Wentworth 532, I Merrille 500, M B Dumay 539, H S Moore 526, M Thorpe 551, S Alden 284, W H Brown 540, S G Lovering 535, J G Kelley 532, C Lovis 539, T Williams 543, Mrs. M Whitman 482, T W Holbrook 542, J Wallace 535, B R Fellows 547, H Close 529, I H Horton 505.

$1.25 each—F Gove 537, Mrs. O Drew 537, H Kimball 510, S Brown 536, A H Brown 526, H A Brown 532, E A Woster 532, A Stout 532, O Blanchard 544, N Fish 544, W Perkins 544, M B Hotchkiss 544, R S Johnson what P. O? Mrs. J D Ellis 542, H R Allen 521, P Eaton 544, Mrs. E Murdock 544, C M Crabtree 520, R Taylor 520, E B Gard 552, S H Marston 544, J Bennet 534, L Haskell 544, Mrs. M Capwell 503, C W Low 546, J Schifferli 547, S J Wheeler 511, H F Holt 544, D T Hall 544, F H Whitaker 547, Mrs. M Lewin 541, W Roworth 562, J W Mowbray 558, E M Dunham 538, N Potter 521, L M Richardson 539, Mrs. L Darbee 546, S C Wilcox 518, E S Field 544, J A Lazell 544, G. Umberhind 541, O. Ware 525, N Batchelder 536, L M Smith 542, W S Moulton 525, G Harnesen 638, J Hussey 542, D B Rogers 546, P Blanchard 527, I A Artus 532, H Griecter 532, J Mans 536, S A Paine 542, J Partridge 535, E Wetmore 537, M C Tucker 544, J Erwin 548, H C Bradley (?) E G Dudley 544, J A Humerston 544, S Talmadge 542, C Andrews 544, A Bailey 544, J Abbey 544, E Chandler 526, W S Chandler 545, L Tiffany 540, C H Young 544, L Grant 538, S R Goodsell 535, S M Lum 533, B Perham 539, J Needham 544, Mrs. P Mathewson 544, W Morrell 533, E G Fuller 541, H Wilson 516, A. Kingsbury 572, B. Spear 539, S Robbins 480, D A Murray 538, H Phillips 549, M L Curtis 547, S Knobb 545, J C Burnham 546, W Hagens 545, M Weeks 530, J Whipple 545, S Allen 545, N Towle 529, J Burch 520, S Langley 542, J C Young 520, N Furber 555, S J Buswell 509, T D Bailey 546, M A. Georgia 546, L. Allen 562, R C Jackman 546, A J Mayhew 544, A Holt 545, Mrs. T Bennett 547, A Rice 520, C M Chapman 544, A P Noyes 546, Mrs. M Gage 530, M Burren 533, J Douglass 438, J M Dodge 546, G Bailey 543, G Herrick 551, D Deming 546, M Ward 517, L M Plummer 546, J Wetherell 531, J H Young 545, R Williams 546, W C Dean 545, A Abbott 544, T Tripp 562, E G Emmons 546, L M Goodyear 541, J A Clark 520, G Johns 520, C Loomis 548, E Garland 545, B B Chedel 532, Mrs. J Mason 547, M. Crabtree 541, J. P. Lougee 545, S Tibbetts 543, A McClure 541.

$1.50 each—R. Hatch 511, J M Squier (old acct) 502, C Bunnell 521, Mrs H Adams 511, G A Fuller 539, Mrs H S Peasley 525, P W Rood 518, H. Phelps 538, L. L. Brown 544, Miss M Jenness 549, Mrs. L. Bills 556, E. Hotchkiss 505, M Whitaker 534, M Durkee 543.

$2.00 each—H Hill 512, P Miller 550, Mrs J Ray 544, E Groves —, H Hay 574, J. F. Rice 550, D. Cogswell 518, B Brown 507, C Rozenburg 558, G S Gates 568, F Carpenter 519, Mrs H Sackett 581, W Whitford 579, S B McMurphy 479, J N Hines 555, O T Hobbs 512, C Colby 496, C F Whittier 525, Mrs E Bennett 574, O Dore 550, E H Welton 520, L. C. Utley 566, G W Gillespie 577, E. E. Miles (old acct) 390, W W Wheeler 555, C. Crawford 532, L. Tuttle 577, N. Knapp 642, A Streeter 586, M B Plummer 543, T E Wilson 531, O Athorn 577, J. Parsons 468, A. B. Andrews 559, E. Watson 595, R. Scott 560, H V Jenks 433, L Conkey 518, Mrs. A. Richardson 567, A. Darling 538, J. Jones 580, W D Taylor 481, A E Deyo 541, J C Dunn 537, J E Ainsworth 551, E. Pond 477, N Millen 521, H Campbell 547, J B Potter 571, M Garland 562, J D Proctor 557, M S Berean 535, S G Kimball 472, H T Miller 538, E A Baker 506, Mrs J Spackman 508, A L Arnold 464.

$2.50 each—J. S. Speight 568, B Lear 563, J Perkins 573, D. H. Warren 546, J. Haley 541, E. Arnold 568, J. Brown 572, A Anthony 546, J Culbertson 565, M C Hawkins 570, J S Pratt 570, M Rice 570, H Bailey 533, M S Grinnell 558, N. E. Allen 572, W G McNary 570, Z W Ellis (what P. O.?), S G Finley 571, M B Cyphers 541, M Grinnell 555, H. Smith 552, J. G. Thomas 570, A G Brown 571, H. Case 572, E. P. Cummings 572, E B Gard 550, S Shattuck 570, W H Wiley 582, J S Giddings 570, T S Applegate 531, R R Gaither 504, Z C Rogers 570, A. Mallory 570, J. Narsmore 561, J W Purdy 570, R. J. Doud 563, M. L. Horton 538, R. Morrill 552, A. Twombly 575, J. Davis 523, D. Bump 562, S Ladd 566, G. H. Richardson 570, D. Clemont 570, D. Taylor 570, Miss R. A. Jenkins 580, A Rankin 570, G. S. McLaurin 541, M. A. Piatt 570, M P Randall 570, S. Barrett 561, H. L. Salisbury 550, N. A. Brooks 532, J B Southmayd 570, F Dunbar 570, B Beach 572, L R Barber 559, J F Baker 511, W Austin 558, C H Smith 563, E Butterfield 571, C C Smith 483, C Newell 572, L Wade 548, O Gilman 572, M L Gilm n 545, R Severy 546, A K Jones 570, J. R. Richardson 570, D Cables 546, H W Perkins 572, E. Hill 580, W. Bartholomew 559, W W Ives 570, A J Tuttle 570, G. E. Markham 572, E. W. Ives 538, L. D. Merrill 588, E S Collins 570, H Gorham 552, T A Cheney 572, S B Bliss 564, F Patterson 532, C Stevens 570, R Taylor 520, M J Jones 541, A Perrin 561, A A Hall 571, J S Smith 525, H M Blackmer 570, J Elmore 541, D W Spear 551, M B Mills 565, C Mathews 571, H B Streeter 555, C F Clough 572, S Parker 482, A Ware 525, M G Wise 577, M. Bogardus 550, S B Bliss 513, M A Church 555, J. Vickery 562, J. Durgin 544, C A Wiggin 512, J Nash 572, L. Lougee 548, J. M. Cate 570, S. Hodgdon (what P. O.?), C Avery 572, J Murray 572, J Brooks Jr. 572, M G Pickering 532, A M Locke 576, C Rowe 533, E C Dowling 557, H. L. Ellis 528, B W Smith (what P. O.?) A G Sawyer 549, C Piper 559, S R Davidson 551, P Hersey 571, J Peck 545, O Parker 546, E E Rice 546, A. Banks 546, I Rice 578, W H Allen 569, D. Watson 539, D. Johnson 571, L. Scott 553, M. Drury 572, J. D. Merriam 561, L Shurtleff 546, G R Baker 570, G T Stacey 572, R. Fine 572, A. Hubbard 572, J M Stetler 568, Mrs E McMullan 554, W Ashman 550, G W Place 557, J Wilbur 571, J C Piper 521, E Greene 569, M J Merritt 520, H Corbin 568, A K Baker 549, S Sanford 572, A. Whitcomb 572, J. Whitcomb 576, J H Colton 565, J A Hamblin 571, E Whitaker 571, D. C. Dennett (what P. O.?)

$3.00 each—A A Steadman 552, J A York 582, N Fogg 474, D D Thayer 575, B. Jennings 593, B B Estes 553, C Lombard 521, D Graffam 520, H Miles 491, L B Potter 541, Mrs B F Terrill 518, H Hitchcock 557, L Wilcox 518, J H Thurston 580, S E Miner 526, W Sterling 518, Mrs. L. Perren 493, J. Dunham 571, P Miller 518, J Jones 520, R Haskins 535, J C Varney 520, J E Wharff 539, W. H. Jones 567, Mrs. J Sanderson 552, W H Wild 537, E N Overlock 520, J Kelley 523, L Lord 634, N. Hall 480, D B Matteson 571, D. Ellenwood 572, H. Card 565, Z E Harris 550, A [illegible] 572, A Cudworth 530, C W Hicks 522, A [illegible] J Graham 494, E S Gage 507, G W H Davis [illegible] Humphreyville 571, A Elliott 429, J G Moulton [illegible] all 563, I F Lovejoy 520, S Underwood 544, S C H[illegible] 520, M A Tisdale 566, P Bradford 520, I Tice [illegible] Buck 520, J. Hall 540, H Williams 521, B B Ca[illegible] 527, J Sargent 571

$4.00 each—H. A. Ring 522, G. Noble 577, B E Rau 521, J Ellis 520, J Jenkins 533, A Brooks 538, N G Howard 520, S Titus 503, H Bates 524, H Castle 529, L Brackett 520, J N Berry 535.

$1.00 each—S L Tinkham 522, B Bethel 560, A Burgess 528, G O Spencer 531, E Brandon 555, W Hall 528, A W Taylor 562, J Matthew 544, C D W Scott 529, G B Winter 562, A C Geer 566, H A King 561, S B Pike 548, W Chamberlain 541, D. Parker 554, A. Andrus 638, H. Card 520, B Bancroft 565, A S Meacham 556, A W Gage 551, N K Thurston 562, C S Hodgdon 567, J R Tucker 541, J. Shannon Jr. 568, Mrs H A Groatt 549, G. Humphrey 536, W H Williams (21, D C Terry 562, A C Newell 554, W P Paine 623, O Hubbard 550, E Hodsdon 574.

$50 cts. each—J N Snyder (from August) 518, M. K. Farvis (what P. O.?) J N Snyder (for Sept.) 522, J. J. Austin 556, M Dore 529, Mrs. M L Clark 529.

Various sums.—W E Ladd $5.80, 495; T B Rice 75c, 504; T Wells $4.15, 544; C W Osgood $4.43, 520; C K Davis $3.20, 520; Mr. Foye $3.08, 520; C White $3.50, 585; M. M. Ross $2.60, 572; W. Stark $2.10, 572; R. Fisher $2.48, 565; J. Staples 75c, 532; B. Huntington (4 Sov.) $1.50, 596; J S Evans $2.90, 520; S Twitchell $1.50, 572; N. Blodgett $2.25, 520; C. Whipple $2.48, 520; H V Davis $104.00, 520; H Rotherham $3.35, 512; J C Jones 63c, 531; A Rhoades $1.50, 547; S A Miller $3.40, 544; A. F. Palmer $3.55, 520; Miss C. A. Clark $2.48, 520; Mrs. E Rawlinson $2.60, 520; E Peck $2.75, 520; M E Davis $5.40, 520; M J Hammons $3.30, 520; L A Morrill $3.10, 518; Mrs. E Chaille $3.25, 521; Mrs. L Phelps $2.25, 515; D Clow $3.54, 520; S E Hughes $3.50, 522; Mrs. W. W. Chase $3.86, 520; Mrs. R. Seymour $2.75, 257; W. Hastings $3.65, 520; G W Gish $1.60, 520; B Ray $1.31, 520; L G Putshin $3.75, 520.

FOR BOOKS AND TRACTS.

J R Stall 25c, D Hogarth $1.00, W Cornell $2.00, R Hinckley $1.00, L. M. Goodyear 25c, J. Gunnison 50c, A T Wilson 75c, Mrs E Case 50c, D. Johnson 50c, M S Pepper $.95, J Gildersleve $2.00, T S Campbell $3.75, J C Dunn $2.00, W Hollman $1.42, M T Andrew $1.00, W Mosher $1.00, A G Descent $3.40, C L Opdyke $1.25, N S Alexander 50c, M. Smith $5.00, N. Ladd 75c, C H Shepherd $5.00, G. S. Hayne $2.90, A. Bellows $2.00, R J Doud 25c, M A Elliott $1.00, S C Wilcox 25c, J W Purdy 27c, S. Carter 50c, B S Jackson 25c, S L Walter 50c, Mrs S Gardner $2.00, Mrs L Darbee 25c, L H Little $1.00, A Darling $1.75, F Burr 25c, A Lewis $2.00, L A Hart $1.00, J H Luttenton $2.50, H McClary $1.00, E A Prescott $3.00, H B Seavey 24c, B Russell $1.00, M Crabtree $1.00, Mrs Welch $1.00, A E Goodrich $2.00, E Ripley 25c, J R Preston 30c, U C Newcomb 50c, M. McKnight 50c, M. W. Brooks 50c, H. Rotherham 65c, D. Williams $2.00, G W Turner $1.00, P. Noka $3.40, A A Hoyt $2.50, R. Fisher 87c, J. M. Howard 20c, T. Wells 35c, A H Steele $1.00, N Branch $1.00, L Briggs $1.10, O S Knapp 75c, P E Williams $5.00, N Bastion 30c, P Williams $1.00.

LETTERS RECEIVED.

H E Twing, A P Moore, P A Smith, A B Smith, W H Spencer, H. L. H., C Case, L M Chaffee, J S Speights, J S Hindes, B Loomise, M. O. S., E Sanderson, L Bouell, L B Weaver, C A Tilton.

POST OFFICE ADDRESS.

Mrs. Abigail Mussey—Plymouth, N. H., care of John Emery, till Oct. 1st.
Eld. D. J. Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
Maria Mathews Weaver—North Dana, Mass.
Mrs. George A. Otis—West Cummington, Mass.
A. W. Sibley—No. 4 Meridian Place, East Boston, Mass.
H. Munger—Chicopee Falls, Mass

BOOKS AND TRACTS.

[illegible]

All orders for any of the following works must be addressed to

MILES GRANT,
Boston Mass.

MILES GRANT'S WORKS.

Resurrection of the Wicked. Discussion with Jos. T. Curry. "Do the Scriptures teach the Resurrection of the Wicked?" [illegible] by H. F. Woodward. [illegible] postage 2c.

Eternal Suffering. Discussion with Dr. J. Litch. "Do the Scriptures teach the eternal, conscious suffering of the Wicked?" [illegible], postage 6c.

State of the Dead. Discussion with W. W. Clayton, "On the State of the Dead and the Punishment of the Wicked." [illegible]

C. F. HUDSON'S WORKS.

Debt and Grace. Or the Doctrine of a Future Life, by C F. Hudson. [illegible] 1 vol. 12 mo., pp. [illegible] $1.25—post paid.

Christ our Life. The Scriptural Argument for Immortality through Christ alone. [illegible]

Human Destiny. A Critique on Universalism. [illegible]

The Doctrine of Endless Misery an occasion of Scepticism. From Sir James Stephen, with notes. [illegible]

Eternal Death in the literal sense is Eternal Punishment. [illegible]

The Rich Man and Lazarus. With remarks on Josephus. [illegible]

The Rights of Wrong; or, is Evil Eternal? With Simply to Dr. Messed. [illegible]

Reviewers Reviewed. New edition with replies to articles in the Quarterlies, January, April, and September, 1858, and April and October, 1859. [illegible]

TRACTS

Issued by the Christian Publication Society.

By Mail—1300 pages for $1.00.
By Express—1500 pages for $1.00.

Singly, by mail, 1 cent for every 12 pages; postage, 2 cents. Free to the poor.

TRACTS ON THE ADVENT, ETC.

Plain Truths, from the Bible and the Fathers.	36 pages.
The Saints' Inheritance	48 "
The New Heavens and New Earth	24 "
The Voice of Warning	24 "
The Advent at Hand	24 "
The Last Days	24 "
The Church not in Darkness	24 "
Ancient Landmarks (six tracts in one)	24 "
Outline of the Coast of Man	8 "

STATE OF THE DEAD.

The Intermediate State	24 pages.
Milton on the State of the Dead	24 "
Ghostology	48 "
Man's Future State	12 "
The Key of Truth	12 "

DOOM OF THE UNGODLY.

Will all Men be Saved	24 pages.
Anti-Eternal Torment	12 "
Future Punishment Destruction	12 "
Destiny of the Wicked (with proof texts)	12 "
Silence of the Scriptures on the Immortality of the Soul, or of the Race, or of the Lost	24 "
Immortality through Christ alone; the doctrine safe and salutary	24 "
Scripture Searchers, with proof-texts, on the Destiny of the Wicked, State of the Dead, Coming of Christ, The Resurrection, The Judgment, Plain Truths, and Forty Questions on Immortality	12 "

PRACTICAL.

Important Questions (nine tracts in one)	36 pages.
Olive Leaves (nine tracts in one)	36 "
One Thing	12 "
Judson's Letter on Dress	12 "
Duty of Christians (a peace tract)	24 "

Leaflets for Letters,—6 cents per set.

BOOKS FOR SALE AT THIS OFFICE.

THE EMPHATIC DIAGLOTT: containing the Original Greek Text of the New Testament, according to the Recension of Dr. J. J. Griesbach, with an Interlinear Word-for-Word English Translation, based on the renderings of eminent critics, and on the various readings of the Vatican Manuscript (No. 1209) in the Vatican Library; with Notes, References, and an Appendix. 880pp. 12mo. Price, plain leather, $4.00; extra, gilt, $4.50; Turkey morocco, $5.00. Postage, 16 cents.

CHRISTIAN BAPTISM: its Duty and Object Scripturally considered and enforced. To which are added copious extracts from important histories on immersion, pouring, sprinkling, lustration, exorcism, etc. etc., showing some curious doctrines and workings of Pagan traditions, and Christian superstitions. By I. C. Wellcome, Yarmouth, Me. Price, 20 cents postpaid, $2.00 per dozen, postpaid.

RAHAB THE HARLOT. The Scarlet Line the token of Safety, or, the fall of Jericho a type of the fall of "the cities of the nation," with Babylon the Great. Words of solemn warning. By Wm. Shepherd. 40 pp. 10 cts. single, 85 cts. a dozen.

THE NEW TESTAMENT of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ; with brief Notes and Instructions; containing the references and marginal readings of the Polyglott Bible; also the Psalms, Maps, and Harmony of the Gospels. Published by the American Tract Society. For family use. $1.75; by mail, $2.15.

WHY THE SHOE PINCHES. A useful little work, with cuts, showing the conditions of a healthy foot, the causes of deformities, and how to avoid those troublesome diseases and malformations, such as chilblains, corns, bunions, flat-foot, bent-up toes, grown-in nails, etc. Price, 30 cents.

DICTIONARY OF THE HOLY BIBLE, for general use in the study of the Scriptures, with Engravings, Maps, and Tables. Published by the Amer. Tract Society. This is one of the best. Cloth, $1.50; by mail, $1.75. Sheep, $2.00; by mail, $2 25.

THE SCRIPTURAL QUESTION BOOK. "Sanctify them through thy truth: thy word is truth." A valuable help to Sunday School and family instruction. 127 pp. Price, 15 cts.; postage 4 cts. $1.50 per dozen; postage 8 cts. on every three copies.

CANON OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES examined in the light of History. By Prof L. Gaussen, of Geneva, Switzerland. Translated from the French, and abridged by Edward N. Kirk, D. D. $1.75. By mail, $2.00.

THE GREAT SYMBOLIC CHART of the Times of Daniel and John, in which the most important features of chronological prophecy are "made plain upon tables, that he may run that readeth" Sent by express for $5.00.

GLAD TIDINGS; or Bible proof that woe and sin are to end in the universe by a literal destruction of wicked men and devils after the day of judgment. Being the last three chapters of "Death not Life." Price, 8 cts., postage, 2 cts.

FABLES OF INFIDELITY AND FACTS OF FAITH. A series of tracts on the absurdity of Atheism, Pantheism, and Rationalism. By Robert Patterson. Bound, in cloth, $1.00, by mail, postpaid. Five copies for $4.00; twelve for $9.00.

THE TAKING OF HUMAN LIFE incompatible with Christianity; with remarks on the present crisis. By T. F. Tukesbury. Price, 8 cts.; postage 2 cts. A tract for the times.

DEATH NOT LIFE; or, the Destruction of the Wicked Scripturally established. By Jacob Blain. Price, 25 cts; postage 2 cts. Cloth, 40 cts.; postage 8 cts.

GLAD VOICES; words by D. T. Taylor, music by L. Reimer. Price $2.00 per one hundred. 3 cts. single; postage 2 cts. on every package of twenty-five or less.

THE MISSION OF SUFFERING. An excellent tract, addressed "to a pastor in trying circumstances," by A. P. Jolliffe, Philadelphia. Price, 5c, postage 2c.

THURMAN'S BIBLE CHRONOLOGY, or, The Sealed Book of Daniel Opened. A work for every Bible Student. $1.50; by mail, $1.75.

MULLER'S LIFE OF TRUST. A Narration of the Lord's dealings with George Muller, written by himself. $1.75; by mail, $2.00.

DIPHTHERIA: its Causes, Treatment, and Cure. By James C. Jackson, M. D. Price, 10 cts.; by mail, 12 cts.

THE SYRIAC NEW TESTAMENT. A literal translation from the Syriac Peshito Version. By James Murdock, D. D. Price $2.50. Postage 36 cts.

NON-RESISTANCE; or, the Spirit of Christianity restored. By W. C. Thurman. Price 20 cts.; postage 4 cts.

CHLOE LANKTON; or, Light beyond the Clouds. A Story of Real Life. 75 cents. By mail, 87 cts.

LIKENESS OF WM. MILLER, suitable for Photographic Albums. Price 25 cts.

ENGLISH BIBLES.

Sent by mail, postpaid, at the following prices:—

Diamond,	morocco, gilt, marginal references,	$1.75
"	roan, " "	1.10
"	roan, " brass rims and clasps,	1.70
"	calf, colored edges, marg. ref.,	1.35
Pearl,	morocco, gilt, reference between verses,	2.40
"	morocco " circuit bind., marg. ref.,	3.20
"	roan, " reference between verses,	1.75
"	roan, " rims and clasps, marg. ref.,	2.00
Nonpareil,	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.00
Minion,	morocco, gilt, without references,	2.40
"	roan, " without references,	1.90
"	roan, " ref. between verses,	2.50
"	calf, marbled edges, without ref.,	2.15

Address all orders, with the money, to
MILES GRANT, BOSTON, MASS.

Blain's Tracts.

Price.—1 cent for every 8 pages; postage, 2 cents on every package of 150 pages, or less.

Endless Misery not a Bible Doctrine	32 pages.
The Wicked not Immortal (with 200 proof-texts)	16 "
Bible Meaning of the word Hell	16 "
Bible Meaning of Forever and Everlasting	16 "
Smoke of Torment and Unquenchable Fire Explained	8 "
Rev. John Foster's Letter on Future Punishment	8 "

For the World's Crisis.

CAMPMEETING.

The days of the dying summer,
The camp in the dear old grove,
A welcome to each glad comer
To the annual feast of love.
Warm greetings of saints long parted,
Glad faces of friends that meet;
Good cheer for the weary-hearted,
And rest for the pilgrims' feet.

Sweet sounds through the oak trees straying,
As the songs of their praises flow;
Till the evening bell seems saying,
"To your tents, O Israel," go.
Sweet rest for the thousand sleepers,
While the sand of the night-glass runs,
For he maketh his angels keepers
Of all his dear "little ones."

The bell and a voice together,—
"The hour for family prayer,— Thank God for this pleasant weather,"
Ring out on the morning air.
Then breakfast, and haste, and bustle,
And business and toil beside;
For the dwellers in tents are mortal,
And must for the flesh provide.
It's amusing—the stir—to watch it;
Now and then from the stand comes—"Hark!
"Who was it that borrowed our hatchet?
Or, "Please bring our crockery back."

A throng at the morning meeting,
The tones of a pleasant voice,
Speaking words of cheerful greeting,
That bid every heart rejoice.
Hear his prayer to the "Holy Father,"
And hear his inspired "Amen"!
Hear the hymn that they raise together,
While the woods send it back again.

And now comes the varied preaching,
Here's a sermon on gospel grace,
Another to home-life reaching,
While others "the prophets" trace.
Here sinners, to Christ invited,
First enter the way of peace;
Here saints to fresh zeal incited,
Gird new for a swifter race.
